METHODIST BISHOPS WARREN AND MOORE SLATED TO RETIRE

Neely Also Is Suggested By the Episcopacy Committee.

Clash Over Elimination of Amusement Ban Will Come on Thursday.

Effort to Dissolve Church Temperance Society Is Defeated.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The episcopacy committee of the Methodist Episcopal church today advocated the retirement of Bishops H. W. Warren and D. H. Moore. The committee refused to recommend in the case of Bishop Thomas B. Neely, but advocated a secret ballot of the entire conference upon the retirement of the three bishops.

Dance Fight Thursday.

What is expected by the delegation to be one of the greatest battles of the present session of the general conference here is scheduled to be fought out on the floor of the convention tomorrow, when the report of the committee on the amusement question has been made a special order of business.

The report was to have come up for discussion today, but through a motion made yesterday by Chancellor James R. Day of Syracuse university it was postponed until Thursday because of the absence of certain members of the committee. Chancellor Day, who favored in the committee the eliminating of the paragraph prohibiting amusements and declared his belief that the Wesley doctrine of "individual conscience" should be reinstated, has served notice that a minority report will be presented. The committee on the state of the church by a vote of 100 to 51 favored the retention of the paragraph.

If the conference adopts the report of the committee on temperance and prohibition, the Church Temeperance society will receive $50,000 for expenses

FOUND TALKING TO DEAD WIFE

Seattle Man Exhumes Body in Illinois in Excess of Grief.

Naperville, Ill., May 15.—Carl Hillegan of Seattle, Wash., was so overcome by grief regarding his wife's death that he disinterred her body and for hours tried to talk with the corpse. He was found by a searching party early today after a long hunt through the woods, into which Hillegan had disappared from his mother's home near here. He was discovered by Sheriff Kuhn and taken into charge. The wife's body will be buried again in the family lot here and Hillegan, who owns a ranch near Seattle, will be given careful attention by physicians.

ALASKA IS ILL-TREATED

Denied By Congress Even Territorial Form of Government.

Great Riches Which Country Has Contributed to Uncle Sam.

(By Willis J. Abbot.)

Washington. May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Probably few people in the United States appreciate the worth to this country of the territory of Alaska. Most of us think of it as a place where the salmon run in silver hordes and where Rex Beach and Jack London coin local color into most profitable fiction. But it means much more than that. Today the prosperity of Seattle, Tacoma and Portland, Or., all hinges on the prosperity of Alaska.

The other day President O. L. Dickeson of the Yukon & White Pass railroad in Alaska was in conference with Delegate James Wickersham of that territory. Mr. Dickeson has the honor of being the youngest railroad president in corporate captivity. Judge Wickersham possesses the distinction of being one of the hardest workers in the house of representatives, endowed by nature with an eloquent tongue, but denied by the Constitution of the right to vote even though he may sway other votes by his eloquence.

"You don't understand the commercial importance of Alaska," said Wickersham. "I have here a chart from official sources showing that that territory, denied the right of self-government today, in 1910 conducted a trade with the various nations exceeding $60,000,000. Nothing but a territory you know—denied the right to legis-

NEW BREAK IN LEVEES

Homes of 60,000 People Menaced—Hundreds Are Fleeing.

Dozens of Villages Will Be Inundated Within the Week.

New Orleans, La., May 15.—Hundreds of persons are fleeing before the flood in the country just north of New Orleans, on the opposite side of the Mississippi river. The break that came in the west levee last night is widening and a great fertile territory will be added to Louisiana's thousands of inundated acres.

Thousands of persons are in the path of the flood. The danger of life loss is small because government aid was at the scene a few hours after the break was reported, but the damage to towns and plantations that will be flooded will be tremendous.

Approximately 60,000 people will be affected and probably half of this number will be without homes until the water recedes.

Will Cover 360 Miles.

A stretch of territory adjacent to the Mississippi river varying in width from ten to thirty miles and unbroken with few exceptions from the Arkansas state line south to the St. Charles-Jefferson parish, approximately 360 miles, probably will be more or less inundated before this new crevasse is closed.

Dozens of villages along the Texas & Pacific, including Taft station will be under water before another week passes. Roosevelt, in North Louisiana, was among the first towns to be inundated by the Dog Tail crevesse waters several weeks ago.

The news of the break was carried rapidly last night by couriers, by telegraph and telephone to the thousands of persons in the affected district, and throngs of women and children sought refuge on the levees above and below the break, awaiting the rescue boats.

ALLEGED SLAYER IS UNDER ARREST

Accused of Killing Pillager Woman, Caught on Cuyuna Range.

Brainerd, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Tony Schnider, alias John Kropel, the alleged murderer and ravisher of Mrs. F. J. Page of Pillager, was caught on the streets of Crosby last evening by Mike Rall, a neighbor of the Pages who, with Sheriff Armstrong of Morrison county and Deputy Sheriff Claus Theorin of Crow Wing county, had trailed the man to Ironton. They chased him down the Soo tracks and lost him for a period when the Austrian disappeared in the log piles and swamps, but finally took him. Mrs. Page was assaulted on her way home from Sunday school and her throat was cut, the body being found by her husband Monday in the woods near his farm, eight miles from Pillager.

Calumet, Mich., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The 10-year-old daughter of Emil Frederickson, a Red Jacket blacksmith, was killed by an electric car last night while dodging another car. Her body was cut in two. Four wheels of the car passed over it.

DANISH KING DIES UNRECOGNIZED IN HAMBURG STREETS

Frederick VIII Stricken While on Solitary Stroll in Goose Market.

Body Is Taken to Morgue of Sailors' Hospital in an Ambulance.

Had Been Reported in Perfect Health After Trip to the South.

Hamburg, Germany, May 15.—King Frederick VIII of Denmark died, alone, unaccompanied and unattended, on the street in this city late last night of apoplexy.

The king, traveling incognito, arrived here Monday on his return from a long trip to the south, where he had been convalescing from a serious attack of inflammation of the lungs. With the queen and the royal suite he took quarters at the Hamburgerhof hotel.

At 10 o'clock last night the king left the hotel, unaccompanied, for his usual stroll before retiring. He had gone only a short distance when he was overcome by a sudden attack of apoplexy.

Picked Up in Street.

He fell unconscious to the pavement and died instantly. Not being recognized as that of a person of so great prominence the body was rushed to the nearest hospital in an automobile.

When members of the king's suite became alarmed over his failure to return to the hotel after a reasonable

STANDARD OIL PAYS UP $50,000

Fine Assessed By Missouri Court in Trust Suit Is Settled.

Jefferson City, Mo., May 15.—The Standard Oil company paid a fine of $50,000 to the clerk of the supreme court today as a result of being prosecuted as a trust.

There is a motion pending before the supreme court on behalf of the Standard Oil company asking that it be permitted to pay the fine imposed on it, together with all costs of the prosecution, and that the order ousting it from the state be withheld so long as it obeys the laws and the orders of the courts.

The Republic Oil company, which also was found guilty, now is expected to pay its fine.

Sheriff With Bloodhounds Is Hunting Bandits in Mississippi.

Passengers on New Orleans-New York Limited Not Molested.

Hattiesburg, Miss., May 15.—Two masked men held up the New Orleans-New York limited No. 2, northbound, on the New Orleans & Northeastern railroad, eight miles from Hattiesburg, shortly after midnight this morning, and after dynamiting the safe in the express car, escaped on horses with a bundle containing, it is reported, $140,000, said to belong to the government.

The passengers were not molested and no one was hurt.

The train had stopped at a water tank just north of Richburg when the men boarded the express car.

The men first forced the engineer and fireman to leave the engine, and together with the conductor, flagman and other members of the train crew, they were lined up against the train and covered with a revolver by one of the robbers, while the other entered the express car and forced the express messenger and a guard said to be watching the government money on the train, to get out and join the lineup.

Missed $1,000.

When the train reached here, express employes made an inspection of the rifled car. They picked up from the floor of the car about 300 silver dollars. They also found in the safe about $700 in currency.

Early today Sheriff Bennett started in pursuit of the bandits. Bloodhounds led the way.

It is said that in the rifled car there was one package of money representing the payroll of the Alabama and Vicksburg railroad at Meridian and about twenty-five packages of cash, representing the remittances of agents of the Southern Express company at Plurality Over 60,000 for Nomination—Democrats Favor Clark.

San Francisco, Cal., May 15.—Returns today from yesterday's state presidential preference primary are useful only to determine the exact pluralities rolled up by Theodore Roosevelt and Champ Clark over their respective opponents for the Republican and Democratic nominations. Roosevelt's plurality is estimated at between 60,000 and 65,000 over Taft and La Follette; Champ Clark leads Woodrow Wilson by probably 20,000.

Women voters played a large part in the primary. Reports from all parts of the state indicate that they went to the polls in greater numbers than the men in proportion to registration.

Roosevelt probably carried every

Compares "Roosevelt of Today" With "Roosevelt of 1904."

Zanesville, Ohio, May 15.—Tired and hoarse, President Taft began his third day's campaign in Ohio at Roseville, ten miles from here. The president was up at 6:30 and made his speech at Roseville at 7 o'clock to several hundred persons. His hoarseness was marked, but his doctor, Maj. Thomas L. Rhoades, was confident he would be able to get through handily and would be in fine shape to take up the campaign after his scheduled twelve hours' rest at Cleveland tomorrow.

Mr. Taft's physical condition, Maj. Rhoades said, was practically as good as when he left Washington last Sunday and the only fear at present was that his voice might not stand the hard work of a dozen to fifteen speeches each day.

Mr. Taft told his Roseville audience that he pointed with pride to the rec-

SALOON FOR EACH SEVEN INHABITANTS

Winthrop, Mo., Officials Decide to Set Limit at That Proportion.

St. Joseph, Mo., May 15.—Winthrop, Mo., said to be the "wettest" town of its size in the country, is to be limited in the number of saloons. The town has eighty-three inhabitants, including the women and children, and the county court has just issued licenses for four additional saloons.

Winthrop now has six saloons and six wholesale liquor houses. The members of the county court declare they will issue no more saloon licenses. This will limit the number of liquor houses to one for every seven persons in the town.

Winthrop is just opposite Atchison, Kan., where there are no saloons. A bridge connects the towns, and at night it nearly always is crowded with persons going to Missouri.

ROOSEVELT MEN CONTROL

District Convention Instructs Its Delegates to Stick to Colonel.

W. A. Eaton and W. H. La Plant of Anoka Are Elected.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

Hinckley, Minn., May 15.—Roosevelt men were in complete control of the Eighth district Republican convention, which opened here at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon. The convention was for the purpose of electing delegates to the national Republican convention at Chicago and instructing them.

Resolutions were passed instructing the two district delegates to vote for Theodore Roosevelt until he is nominated. This will bind the delegates to Roosevelt unconditionally, and will permit of no trading or compromise.

The convention also indorsed Oscar Larson of Duluth as one of the four delegates-at-large from Minnesota. This brought out the only contest of the day, the Taft and La Follette men saying they intended to vote for their candidates in the state convention. The motion carried, however, by a vote of 75 to 54.

William A. Eaton of Duluth was chosen as one of the district delegates, and W. H. La Plant of Anoka for the other position. Efforts were made to have I. A. Caswell run, but he declined. H. F. Webb of Sandstone was chosen as one of the alternates, and Charles Morse of Cromwell as the other.

E. H. Krelwitz of Aitkin was chosen as chairman of the convention and George W. Empey of Pine county, secretary. All the counties in the district were represented except Cook. The Isanti, Lake, Itasca and Mille Lacs delegations were uninstructed. Kanabec was instructed for La Follette, and Aitkin, Koochiching, Carlton, St. Louis and Pine counties, having an overwhelming majority of the delegates, were instructed for Roosevelt.

The St. Louis county delegates left Duluth this morning on a special car on the Great Northern road Twenty-five of the thirty-nine delegates made the trip, and following the convention here they will go on to Minneapolis to attend the state convention there tomorrow.

NOW UP TO THE COMMISSIONERS

Proctor People Want Hermantown Road Improved as Promised.

With work on the new Proctor potato warehouse in progress, residents in this vicinity are now anxious to have the proposed road completed between Proctor and Hermantown. They claim that the county commissioners promised to start work on the road this spring, but so far no work has been done.

Work on the warehouse was begun the first of this month. The building will be the property of the Proctor Potato company, which organized early this spring with a capital of $50,000. The company was incorporated by a number of Proctor residents and farmers, all of whom were anxious to secure an open market for potatoes grown in this vicinity. The structure is expected to be finished by this fall, so that local farmers will be able to store their crops.

The warehouse will cost $10,000 when completed. It will be fireproof and is located on a site donated to the company by the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railroad. The officers of the company are: Albert Miller, president; Peter Hansen, vice president; James R. Grady, secretary, and F. G. Sugg, treasurer. The capital stock of $50,000 has been divided into 10,000 shares of $5 each. The life of the concern is limited to thirty years.

The distance between Proctor and Hermantown is two miles and about seven-eighths of a mile of road must be built. The estimated cost of this improvement is $1,000. "The agreement with the county commissioners has been complied with," said H. H. Peyton, president of the Proctor Commercial club, this morning. "The D. M. & N. road was asked to haul another load of gravel to a nearby road by the county commissioners, who then promised to improve the road to Hermantown. The gravel has been delivered and the members of the Proctor Commercial club and the potato company are now waiting for the commissioners to keep their promise."

PRESS SEATS RUN SHORT FOR CHICAGO CONVENTION.

Washington, May 15. — Victor Rosewater of Omaha, Neb., vice chairman of the Republican national committee, is here conferring with the standing committee of Washington newspaper correspondents, regarding seating arrangements at the national convention. More than 600 applications for the 400 available press seats in the Chicago Coliseum have been received. Mr. Rosewater said it might be possible to add a few more seats but the number would be small. Mr. Rosewater said he would open headquarters in Chicago June 5 on account of the contests before the committee scheduled June 6.

BRYAN MAY GET VOTES

Iowa Democratic Convention in Hands of Uninstructed Delegates.

Clark's Followers Will Have 100 Hounds at Meeting.

Burlington, Iowa, May 15.—Every train arriving today brought hundreds of delegates and politicians to attend the Iowa Democratic state convention, which will be held here tomorrow to select twenty-six delegates to the Baltimore convention. The contest is between the Champ Clark forces and the friends of Woodrow Wilson.

Of the 1,34 delegates, the Clark men claim 347 are instructed for their candidate and 162 for Wilson. The Wilson men, however, deny the accuracy of these figures and say Clark's instructed delegate number 240, while Wilson has 216. Both sides admit that the control of the convention is in the hands of the uninstructed delegates.

Bryan and Harmon.

Bryan is the choice of the six delegates from Lucas county and there is some Harmon sentiment in a few counties. The indications are that the field will combine in an effort to prevent the instruction of the national delegates for Clark. In the event of a deadlock there is a possibility Bryan may be taken up as a compromise candidate, as he has many friends among the delegates.

M. F. Healy of Fort Dodge, who will be temporary chairman, and Fred Beiman of Decorah, temporary chairman, are Clark men.

Bennett Clark, son of the speaker of the house of representatives and enthusiastically greeted as "Champ, Jr.," arrived early in the day, accompanied by United States Senator James A. Reed of Missouri. In the afternoon he was given a reception.

Advertise for Hounds.

The Clark managers have advertised for 100 hound dogs for use at the convention.

The Clark slate for delegate-at-large contains the names of Emmett Tinley, Council Bluffs; Claude B. Porter, Centerville; M. F. Healy, Fort Dodge; Wilbur Marsh, Waterloo. The Wilson men have prepared no slate.

MINERS MAY REJECT PACT

Length of Wage Agreement Causes First Clash at Wilkesbarre.

Foreign Element Is in Majority Among Anthracite Workers.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., May 15.—There appeared to be strong opposition in the anthracite miners' convention today to making the proposed agreement between the mine workers and the operators stand for a period of four years. Practically all the delegates who spoke on the question advocated either a one or two year agreement.

New wage agreements have just been entered into in most of the soft coal roads in the West, and these contracts usually run for two years.

The new agreement was formally laid before the delegates yesterday. International President White and District Presidents Dempsey and Fahey expect the agreement will be accepted by the men.

The foreign element among the miners is in the majority in the convention and it is among these men where most of the opposition lies.

When the convention opened its session shortly after 1 o'clock the delegates immediately plunged into the consideration of the agreement. It was explained that if any paragraph be rejected, the whole agreement falls.

The first paragraph provided that the agreement with the operators be for a period of four years, ending May 31, 1916. Delegates opposed the four year period, one claiming it would mean the death of the miners' union.

District President Dempsey favored a two year agreement, the same as prevails in the bituminous field.

Philip St. Marie and Wife Charged With Serious Offense.

Indicted on Evidence Given By 17-Year-Old Girl.

Philip St. Marie and his wife Clara, against whom secret indictments were returned by the May grand jury, have been brought before the district court to face the rather serious charge of having received earnings from a prostitute.

St. Marie was arraigned before Judge Dancer this morning and entered a plea of not guilty to the indictment. His wife, who was taken into custody and arraigned late yesterday afternoon, made a similar plea. The court fixed bail at $500 in both cases.

The St. Maries are held by the authorities on the story of Minnie Lee, a 17-year-old girl who for the past few months has been on a wayward path. She claims that she shared immoral earnings with St. Marie and wife, and that they furnished her a room for the purpose.

St. Marie was arrested on April 1 on the complaint of the Lee girl, who had previously been up in police court on a charge of vagrancy. The story which she told led to his arrest. He was bound over to the grand jury, which not only returned a true bill against him, but also indicted his wife.

The Lee girl claims that she was furnished a room at the St. Marie home, which was over a saloon at 123 West First street, and that in return for the privilege of bringing men to this place she shared with them in her profits. When small amounts were received, St. Marie or his wife would receive half, and when larger amounts were received from men, the Lee girl claims that she gave them about 40 per cent.

The Lee girl came to Duluth from East Grand Forks. Prior to her arrest on a charge of vagrancy which led up to the apprehension of St. Marie, she had attracted the attention of Humane Agent McKercher. He had noticed her frequently at public dance halls and on the streets at night.

The state will attempt to prove in the case against St. Marie and his wife that he made the rounds of the saloons in an attempt to "drum up trade," and that on several occasions men were sent to rooms of the Lee girl for immoral purposes. It is claimed that this condition of affairs existed for three months before the arrest was made.

After his arrest St. Marie was taken to the county jail to await the action of the grand jury, he being unable to furnish the required bonds. The Lee girl, who will appear against the St. Maries at their trial, has been kept at the Bethel home since St. Marie was arrested.

St. Marie is 26 years old, and at the time of his arrest gave his occupation as that of a salesman. His wife is also a young woman. Their attorney is William Marx.

"DEMOCRATS AIDING TAFT"

Roosevelt Declares Standpat Element in That Party Is Fighting Him.

Talks to Big Crowds on His Campaign in Ohio.

Norwalk, Ohio, May 15.—"The powers of privilege in the Democratic party are helping our opponents in every way," said Col. Roosevelt in a speech here today. "In New York and Massachusetts the great Democratic papers which represent the reactionary, standpat Democratic element, the papers that helped Parker in 1904, practically are all the organs of Mr. Taft. They are Democratic only nominally. They do the bidding of Wall street, with the Democratic leaders in congress. They are working in every way to prevent my nomination, partly because they are afraid I will win if I am nominated and partly because they do not like my style anyhow."

Began Day's Work Early.

The day's work began early for Col. Roosevelt. He was up at 6 o'clock and made his first speech at Elyria at 6:40. At that hour there was a crowd of several hundred at the station. A few minutes later he spoke to several hundred students of Oberlin college. His Norwalk speech was delivered at 7:30 to a large crowd. From Norwalk he started for Sandusky.

When the special pulled into Norwalk the station platform, running an entire block, was densely packed. No sooner did the colonel doff his hat than a voice rang out,

"What's the matter with California?"

"California is all right!" replied the colonel with the characteristic toss of his head.

"What's the matter with Ohio?" shouted a native son.

"Ohio's going to be all right," quickly replied the colonel.

Talked to Thousands.

Sandusky, Ohio, May 15.—"I intend to take nothing that is not mine," said Col. Roosevelt today, "but if anybody tries to take what is mine, there will be a lively time."

Col. Roosevelt made this remark in saying in his speech at Bellevue that he was content with the verdict of the people, but that if the people were for him he would not submit to being cheated out of that support.

The square near the railway station in Sandusky was filled with a crowd of several thousand persons when Col. Roosevelt arrived. Several hundred veterans from the state home for old soldiers were present.

Fanned by a high north wind, the flames for a time threatened the entire yards. Two hundred cattle, 100 tons of hay, five acres of pens and the government tuberculosis testing station were destroyed.

PLAYGROUND CAMPAIGN

Henry S. Curtis Will Spend Six Days Aiding Duluth Work.

Will Talk to Teachers and Members of Public Organizations.

The Duluth Playgrounds association will have Henry S. Curtis, Ph. D., former secretary of the Playground Association of America, and one of the most famous advocates of public playgrounds in America, here to assist in the six day campaign for public playgrounds, which will begin May 20 and continue all week.

Mr. Curtis was educated at Olivet college, Michigan, and Yale and Clark universities, receiving the degree of Ph. D. in psychology and philosophy in 1898. During three summers, he was an assistant director, director, and a general director of playgrounds in New York city. He spent one summer in investigating the playgrounds of Germany and England. He was for four years supervisor of the playgrounds in the District of Columbia. In 1902, an article of his in Harpers Magazine led Mrs. Humphrey Ward to start the recreation centers of London. In 1906, with the help of Dr. Gulick, he organized the Playground Association of America, of which he was secretary for three years and afterwards second vice president and secretary of the committee on a normal course in play. During the past two years, he has conducted playground revivals in fifteen different cities, and has lectured at many universities, normal schools, state and other teachers' associations, and teachers' institutes.

Week's Program.

On Monday, May 20, a visit will be made to the various playgrounds of the city, while the officials of the local association and Mr. Curtis will address the city council.

On Tuesday lunch will be taken at the Commercial club with the editors of the city. During the afternoon there will be a conference with the social organizations of the city, while the evening will be given over to a meeting at the high school, open to the public and to which there is a special invitation to the teachers of Duluth.

On Wednesday there will be a meeting at the high school in the morning. Lunch will be taken with the members of the park board, the public welfare board and some of the other city officials. In the afternoon there will be a meeting at the high school with the principals of the city schools and in the evening a dinner with the collegiate alumni societies of the city.

Thursday morning will be spent at the normal school. In the afternoon there will be a meeting with the woman's council at the Commercial club, the evening being taken up at the West Duluth Commercial club.

The civic lunch comes on Friday and the evening will be spent at the West End Commercial club.

On Saturday, the closing day, the interscholastic track and field meet at Athletic park will furnish part of the program of the day. The evening will be taken up with the conservation meeting.

This campaign is expected to arouse the interest of the city over the important question of the playgrounds.

Heat that saves strength

The greatest editor in America, who is also an active humanitarian, writes forcefully and pathetically of women's household drudgery:—"Do you realize that it is an absolutely primitive, stupid thing to carry coal upstairs and build a little wasteful fire? It is cruel to let women with thin shawls over their heads lug out and pick among the ashes with their blue-cold fingers, to do all the heavy after-sweeping and cleaning—the useless labors that make old, bent backs of those upon whom the health and strength of the coming men and women depend." There would be no force to such words if it were not for the invention of ideal heating—now available in price even for the humblest homes—namely,

AMERICAN RADIATORS & IDEAL BOILERS

This company conducts the only Testing Laboratories there are in the world (one each in the United States, England, France, Italy and Germany) for testing the heat-distributing qualities of any and all kinds of heaters. The most exhaustive tests have shown us how to construct Boilers and Radiators that will deliver the highest possible number of heat units from every pound of fuel burned—these outfits shut off all fuel waste. Our Laboratory tests have proved to all eminent engineers and architects the wonderful fuel-saving, as well as the easy-running features, steady control and almost indestructible durability of IDEAL Boilers and AMERICAN Radiators.

A No. 4121 IDEAL Boiler and 480 sq. ft. of 38-in. AMERICAN Radiators, costing the owner $190, were used to heat this cottage. At this price the goods can be bought of any reputable, competent Fitter. This did not include costs of labor, pipe, valves, freight, etc., which are extra and vary according to climatic and other conditions.

These outfits are strong factors in a million buildings in America, Europe, Australia and elsewhere. They are the efficient, clean, healthful, silent, reliable servants of the house-owner—they do more for the cheer and work-saving than any other material feature of the home—and quickly repay their cost in the fuel-saving, absence of repair bills, health protection, and the longer life of carpets, decorations and furniture because of the household freedom from ashes, soot, etc.

Ask your neighbors or let us send lists of local references. But you will need our complete catalog (free) to make right selection therefrom. Phone, call or write to-day.

IDEAL Boilers are safer and easier to run than a stove, and their cleanliness reduces housework one-half. They will last as long as the building and need no repairs. Accept no substitute.

We have also brought out the first genuinely practical, automatic, durable Vacuum Cleaner. ALL the dirt and trash is drawn from the rooms through small iron suction pipes leading to big, sealed dust-bucket in cellar. Attach hose to iron suction pipe opening in baseboard of any room, turn an electric button to start the machine in cellar, and with a few gentle strokes of the hollow, magical ARCO WAND, you instantly and thoroughly clean carpets, rugs, floor, walls, ceiling, draperies, moldings, mattresses, drawers, corners, crevices, etc. Put with ease into any old or new dwelling or building. Costs little monthly for electricity to run. Ask for catalog of ARCO WAND Vacuum Cleaner.

SOUTH AMERICA GOOD CUSTOMER

Trade With United States Increasing, Says Dun's Buenos Ayres Agent.

C. P. Walts, representative of R. G. Dun & Co., at Buenos Ayres, is in the city today visiting his sister, Mrs. N. J. Gochey of 2521 East Sixth street. He left South America in March and has been traveling since that time.

"South America is in a flourishing condition at the present time," said Mr. Walts. "There is a great deal of export trade and the import trade of the country is constantly increasing. South America is a great country and the trade with the nations of the world is developing its resources.

"I should say that the trade with the United States is increasing. We are studying the markets of South America, following the example of the European nations. We have men on the ground and they are studying the conditions and making it their business to learn the needs of South America.

"Germany and England have some advantage of the United States in the matter of trade in South America, but I believe that we are finding a larger market there and will continue to increase our trade advantages in the future. By following the policy of the European countries, particularly Germany and England, the United States will materially increase its exports."

CATCHES HIM IN THE ACT

Policeman Finds Burglar at Work in Butcher Shop.

Patrolman D. A. Montgomery caught Mike Cobey redhanded at 10 o'clock last night in the act of burglarizing the butcher shop of Pierson brothers at 203 West First street and sent him into headquarters on a charge of burglary.

The policeman noticed a movement inside the place as he walked along his beat and peering through the glass he saw a man prowling about inside.

Finding the street door locked he made his way to the alley and the rear of the store. He found that the intruder had gained an entrance by breaking a small pane of glass and unlocking the window. Following his example the patrolman slid inside the building.

With a shouted command to surrender he called upon the burglar to give himself up. The man dropped behind a counter and started to crawl away. But the officer had him covered with his revolver and seeing that escape was impossible the man laid his own revolver on the counter and allowed himself to be placed under arrest.

The policeman then unlocked the front door and marched his prisoner to the patrol box, where the Black Maria was summoned. At headquarters he said that his name was John Clark, but he was recognized by Lieut. Fritz, who stated that his true name is Mike Cobey. He is about 25 years old and single.

Cobey, or Colby, admitted this morning that he had burglarized the shop of the Northwestern Paint company, 323 West First street, last Thursday night. He stole brushes, combs, scrapers and other tools of the trade to the value of about $20 and sold them to a second hand dealer on the Bowery for $2.

When arraigned in police court this morning on a charge of burglary in the third degree he waived examination and was bound over to await the action of the next grand jury.

The police say that Cobey has served several years in the state reformatory at St. Cloud for similar offenses, gaining his liberty only last August. He was raised in this city and is quite well known here, particularly in police circles.

STUB ROO TONIC!

E. A. JOHNSON.

Manufacturer Stub Roo Tonic.

Superior, Wis., Jan. 2, 1907.

Dear Sir: In the spring of last year my health was very poor. I used many different medicines and prescriptions from doctors, but nothing did me much good. My bowels and kidneys were in bad shape, gas in stomach, pain in back, dizzy spells with pain in back of my head, short of wind, poor appetite, chills in my legs and generally weak.

I had heard of Stub-Roo Liquid for external use, and the many cures it had effected, but had not heard of the Stub-Roo Tonic. I bought a bottle, and to my surprise it gave me relief. I have now used fourteen bottles and consider myself in good condition for a man seventy-five years old. I shall always keep it in my house as it is a good tonic and blood purifier. I will always recommend this tonic to any one who is in need of a good medicine.

You may use my name as a reference to the virtues of Stub-Roo Tonic.

Yours truly,

No man ever saw his Father by climbing over his brother.
Your rank among men depends on how you help them to rise.
The faint hearted are those who think only of feeding themselves.
Many think they are going forward bravely because they fear to go back.
There is sorrow without selfishness but never selfishness without sorrow.

ORIGIN OF PANIC.
London Chronicle: No word has moved with the times more than "panic." Long ago in ancient Greece it was a mild fear inspired by mysterious sights and sounds among the mountains and valleys by night, which were attributed to the god Pan. Nowadays it has by no means supernatural significance on the stock exchange as it nearly did in Berlin the other day. "Panic fear" was the original expression, and in shortening it to "panic" we have already been as slipshod as the small boy who calls his "comic paper" a "comic." Shaftesbury, 200 years ago, would have used the word for any contagious feeling that seized upon masses of men. "There are many panicks in mankind besides merely that of fear. And thus in religion also pannick."

LIP-READING.
Strand: The value of lip-reading to those who have the misfortune to be born deaf or to lose their hearing is inestimable. Deaf children are now happily taught to speak and to lip-read, and are thus brought into normal relations with the hearing and speaking world. One of the most interesting lessons to be witnessed at the Oral School for Deaf Children at 11 Fitzroy square, London, is the synthetic lip-reading lesson of the kindergarten class, consisting of little children of from 4 to 6 years of age. Although they at present know the written names of very few of their toys, they can pick out any one of the thirty odd objects in their toy-box at the oral direction of their teacher. A child will be told to fetch a doll, get the bath and soap, wash the doll, and dry it, and each action is performed as readily as though the child could hear.
It would be difficult to over-estimate the value of this speech and lip-reading which these little children learn, thanks to those generous people who by their subscriptions enable the association to carry on its good work.
As an "aid" to hearing for those who have become deaf in adult life, lip-reading is superior to any of the mechanical or electrical devices now on the market, good as some of these devices are for certain forms of deafness. The lip-reading instruction which is provided at the Fitzroy Square college has been taken advantage of by large numbers of deaf people, but many more would no doubt avail themselves of the facilities provided they were aware of them, and could they be brought to realize how serviceable a knowledge of lip-reading would be to them.

WOMANHOOD IN INDIA.

Mrs. Flora Annie Steel, the English novelist whose wide experience in India would seem to qualify her as an authority on the subject, declares that "the position of women in the East is more independent, more honorable," than in England.
"Sex," says Mrs. Steel in the Queen, "is less of a disqualification to woman in India than to her in Europe. The cause of female infanticide, for instance, and the undoubted disappointment at the birth of a female child are not so much due to any contempt of the sex as a recognition of its greater claims. A girl has a right to marriage and marriage is hard to compass in the clan unless artificial means are taken to reduce the proportionate supply of brides.
"But deep down in the heart of every Hindu (and they make up two-thirds of the total population of India) lies an almost passionate devotion to the Great Mother of all. Their very mythology proves this. Again, the relative position of Hindu husband and wife shows how strong a hold they have on the truth that sex is ephemeral. For life to the husband is incomplete without the wife. He cannot even say his prayers purely without her; the tie between them is indissoluble. This fundamental belief is fostered by the fact that for one prayer which is put up to a god in India there are about a thousand to a goddess. All the local deities are female. And Sita or Mahadevi, Kali, Durga, Bhawani, all names of the one dread Goddess of Destruction, are at the heart of every worshipper, male or female, in India.
"This being so, we begin to understand the widespread cult of motherhood as the great fundamental unalterable fact lying at the bottom of all human effort, which is, au fond, the religion of India. That it is overlaid with much that gives color to the general Western estimate of the Eastern woman's position is true, but there it is all the same and the Eastern woman knows it.
"Even in the matter of seclusion the ideas of the average English person are absolutely at fault. Two-thirds of the total population of India is agricultural, and all agricultural women help in the work of the fields. They are free therefore to come and go.
"Doubtless in the crowded sunless alleys of a town, especially among the poorer and genteel community, the Indian woman's lot is less favorable. But it must not be forgotten that the urban population numbers as yet but one-tenth of the total.
"There is one point on which the Indian woman certainly has the pull over her European sister; she is never subjected even in the streets to coarse words or familiarities; no one calls her Polly or passes remarks on her looks or her dress. That would be an unpardonable offense. She is 'mother' even if she be young, to all men.
"Whether as a matter of fact they are good mothers is rather a moot point. They certainly carry kindness to extremes, and cruelty to children is almost an unknown offense in India. An Indian baby will eat anything and everything and they eat enormously. There is nothing more fascinating to play with than a really fat, wheat colored baby in a zenana. It is hardly to be wondered at that the women should treat it as a marionette, that they should dress it up in the most ridiculous miniatures of grown up garments, proceeding by and by to put it through such grown up ceremonies as betrothal and marriage.
"It is so good tempered, so curiously acquiescent, it cries so little, thanks to daily doses of opium, that as a rule it is as little trouble as a doll, at any rate for the first three years of its life. And even after that it is seldom hard to manage. The percentage of infant mortality is very high in India, even now when we think we have scotched female infanticide. This is scarcely to be wondered at when we consider the absolute lack of knowledge on the part of the mother.
"Female education is doubtless doing something to dissipate the almost inconceivable ignorance of the Indian mother, but it must be remembered that such education gauged at its highest—and how bad these so-called girls' schools can be I as inspector know to my cost—only touches four per cent of the total female population. Still, looking back on my life, I hold my magnum opus to have been the preparation in the vernacular of a primer on hygiene and domestic economy, which is still, I believe, used over half India."

GEMS OF ORATORY.
Vienna correspondence Chicago Post: Here are some gems of oratory from the late sessions of the Austrian parliament:
"I have already said all I wish to say, and therefore willingly withdraw all I might still say."
"I cannot longer keep silent without saying some words."
"Locomotive engineers stand with one foot in crime and with the other gnaw the rags of hunger."
"A funeral procession always has something mournful about it, especially when the decedent was a human being."
"If I am a parliamentary deputy I am still human."

THE LION AS AN ARTIST'S MODEL.
"There are few more difficult subjects to paint or sketch than the living creatures seen in our great zoological gardens," says a writer in the Strand. "To facilitate the work of the artists, the authorities at the New York zoological park have converted the end of their lion-house into a studio, where those so inclined can sit and sketch the various animals from life without fear of interruption. The model stand is a wire-fronted cage, nineteen feet long, nine feet deep, and seven feet high, with its floor raised two and a half feet above that of the room in front. The back, top, and sides of the cage are composed of solid plate-glass. The roof glass is opaque, the remainder clear. To control the light, dark olive-green shades on rollers, easily operated from the front, are provided. The animal selected is transferred in a novel manner. It is enticed into a shifting cage, which is brought up through the floor of the studio. The subject is then liberated, when the cage sinks until the top comes flush with the floor. One lion, known as Sultan, a magnificent creature of its kind, has been painted and modeled by artists and sculptors over 100 times."

time a search was begun. The searchers found his majesty dead at the hospital and brought his body back to the hotel with them.

Reported in Perfect Health.

The king was regarded by his physicians as completely restored to health by his trip to the south. Yesterday he felt particularly well and during the day expressed joy at his expected return to Copenhagen today. He remarked that he felt refreshed and completely restored to health.

It was announced this morning that arrangements for taking the body to Denmark would be completed during the day. His majesty's relatives and royalties throughout Europe were notified of his death before daybreak.

The flags on all the public buildings here, where the king had repeatedly been a welcome guest, were half-masted today.

Three Children With Them.

King Frederick and Queen Louisa, who had traveled here from Nice under the incognito of the count and countess of Kronberg, had their three youngest children, Princess Thyra, Prince Gustav and Princess Dagmar, with them.

King Frederick had been undergoing a course of treatment for arteriosclerosis, with which he had been troubled for a considerable time. He had also suffered from an attack of inflammation of the lungs, but this had been overcome.

When he left the Hamburgerhof last night after a hearty dinner, the king strolled toward the "Goose market," one of the principal squares in the business section of the city, and just around the corner from the hotel. A few minutes later some pedestrians noticed an elderly man fall to the sidewalk. He was dressed in an ordinary business suit, and appeared to be a well to do tradesman. The passers-by ran to assist him, but has was dead.

A policeman was called, who had the body conveyed in an automobile to the Sailors' hospital. The physicians on duty found that death had been instantaneous.

Put Body in Mortuary.

There was nothing on the body which afforded a clew to its identification, and it was placed in the mortuary of the hospital.

It was only later in the evening that the royal suite, which had become anxious owing to the king's absence, heard of the incident that had occurred on the "Goose market." As their inquiries in regard to the king's movements had up to then proved fruitless, they, together with the proprietor of the hotel, proceeded to the hospital to look at the body. On arrival they were confronted by the tragic fact that the dead man was the king.

Arrangements were immediately made for the body to be conveyed to the hotel, where it was laid out amid masses of flowers.

People Are Stunned.

Copenhagen, May 15.—The people of Denmark are stunned by the sudden death of their popular king, who, only two days ago, they were informed in official communications, completely had recovered from the serious illness which had affected him earlier in the year.

It is stated here that his majesty's return from Nice had been hastened, as the physicians recognized the possibility of a catastrophe.

A rumor is current that the late king recently visited a fortune teller incognito, and was informed he would die May 15.

The court physicians were unable to induce him to observe the quiet necessary to his convalescence.

Great Friend of America.

Frederick VIII was a great friend and admirer of the United States. He read daily newspapers and was a close student of American literature. He always was glad to greet American visitors at the palace.

During the first two years of his reign he was not beloved by the Danes, but in the last couple of years, when the people had recognized his ideal for Danish welfare and prosperity, he became most popular.

The proclamation of the new king, who will take the title of Christian X, occurred at 3 o'clock this afternoon in front of the Amalienborg castle.

Prince Christian went out for his customary ride early today unaware of the death of his father. When he arrived in the capital from his residence outside he saw the flags flying at half mast, and this was his first intimation of the bitter blow.

The royal yacht Dannebrog, escorted by a warship, sailed for Lubeck, Germany, this morning to embark the body of the king. Prince Herald, the third son of the late king, has left by train for Lubeck, where he will receive the body, which is to be conveyed by train from Hamburg. The Dannebrog is expected to return to Copenhagen on Friday.

Minute guns have been fired from Fort Sixtus since noon.

Sisters Are Prostrated.

London, May 15.—Queen Mother Alexandra and the Dowager Empress Marie of Russia, both of whom are sisters of the dead king Frederick, are prostrated by the shock of his majesty's death. The Dowager Empress Marie is staying at Marlborough house as the guest of her sister.

King George and Queen Mary proceeded to Marlborough house immediately after they were informed of the dramatic event.

Proclaimed King in 1906.

Christian Frederick was proclaimed king of Denmark as Frederick VIII on Jan. 30, 1906, after the death of Christian IX, the aged king who was dean of the crowned heads of Europe, father of King George of Greece, of the queen-mother, Alexandra of Great Britain, the empress dowager of Russia, and grandfather of King Haakon VII of Norway.

King Frederick VIII was born at Copenhagen, June 3, 1843. He was as popular with the people of Denmark as was his father. By the wishes of his parents, he was brought up with great simplicity. Frederick saw his younger brother and his own son become reigning monarchs of Greece and Norway respectively, while he himself was still an heir-apparent.

Noted For His Culture.

King Frederick was noted for his culture and possessed many foreign distinctions. While seldom openly identifying himself with political questions, he took an active interest in all public movements. He was at one time chancellor of Copenhagen university and head of the Free Masons of Denmark. He was well known as a promoter of philanthropic propositions. His interest in the army, of which he was an inspector-general, was shown conspicuously in the way he improved the lot of the soldiers.

Several months ago King Frederick suffered a severe illness. While taking his customary walk, he had a sudden seizure and was compelled to return to the palace. Later it was announced that he had suffered a chill, but the real nature of his malady was not disclosed.

While he showed rapid recovery, he suffered a relapse two weeks later, and considerable anxiety was expressed by members of the court as to his condition.

FREDERICK VIII AND QUEEN.

King Frederick's widow, who now becomes the queen mother of Denmark, was Princess Louise of Sweden. She was married in 1869.

during the coming quadrennium. The elimination of one of the temperance societies of the church and the concentration of the fight against the liquor forces by aiding but one organization had been discussed, but the committee favored the retention of the Church Temperance society.

Further greetings from various churches were given to the general conference at a reception tendered last night to the delegates from the federal council, Presbyterian church, Reformed Episcopal church and Evangelical association. Addresses were made by Rev. H. C. Swearingen of St. Paul, Rev. Dr. Herring and Rev. Rudolph Dubbs of Naperville, Ill.

While the report of the episcopacy committee was expected early this week, the fight in the committee concerning the number of bishops to be retired was said this morning to be raging. While it was rumored among the delegates that two would be retired, the fight was said to center around whether a third man shall quit active service. Until the number to be retired is decided, the number of new bishops to be elected probably will not be named.

ROOSEVELT WINS IN CALIFORNIA PRIMARY

county. Even San Francisco, where a determined effort was made by the Taft managers to make a good showing for their candidate, favored the colonel by a plurality of 3,437.

Senator La Follette found consolation only in San Diego county, which returned him his only plurality in any division of the state. The Industrial Workers of the World troubles there are said to have made sentiment for him in that section, the theory being that the citizens resented an investigation ordered by Governor Johnson, a Roosevelt supporter.

Champ Clark's victory over Woodrow Wilson was sufficiently sweeping to justify the pre-election claims of his campaign managers. He also probably carried every county.

No organized effort was made in behalf of any other Democratic candidate.

The twenty-six delegates won by Roosevelt and Clark yesterday are pledged to give their respective candidates their support.

ord of trust prosecutions by his administration.

He then said he was feeling the effects of these prosecutions in his campaign.

"It is difficult to arouse any enthusiasm for your candidate among persons who are being prosecuted," he said. "Many of these gentlemen are very angry. There's Dan Hanna of Cleveland, who was indicted for rebating. It has made him very angry and very active against me, and he thinks that I am no patriot and no good candidate for another term. But the unindicted are in the majority, and if they will stand by me I can afford to lose the indicted vote."

"When I was a candidate four years ago," said Mr. Taft, "Mr. Roosevelt commended me in language so flattering that I could not read what he said without blushing—and I can't now. Either he has changed or I have changed since then, and I think I have seen evidence that it is he. Certainly he has changed in respect to the third term.

Roosevelt and Roosevelt.

"I appeal for the Roosevelt of today to the Roosevelt of 1904 who held that only two terms were enough. But the Roosevelt who was not seeking office is not the Roosevelt who is chasing around the country after one."

The president's scheduled stops today include Newark, Mount Vernon, Mansfield, Marion, Bucyrus, Norwalk, Oberlin, Elyria and a night meeting at Sandusky.

President Taft's speech here was like his first one at Roseville, in which he discussed, among other things, the enforcement by his administration of the anti-trust law.

"I enforced that law as I swore I would when I took my oath to support the Constitution," continued the president.

As he was leaving the platform in the public square, a little boy of 3 or 4 was held up by his father to shake the president's hand.

"My name is William," the tot lisped.

"So is mine," said Mr. Taft, with a smile.

As he stepped down into the crowd a man with tears in his eyes reached out and grasped the president's hand.

"You pardoned me from the penitentiary, and I was innocent," he said.

MISSISSIPPI MAY SEE PROGRESSIVE PLATFORM.

Jackson, Miss., May 15. — A report that it is the intention of friends of United States Senator-Elect Vardaman to have embodied in the Democratic state platform expressions favorable to the initiative, referendum and recall created interest here today in the proceedings of the state convention. The platform is the only point of doubt as to the proceedings. A state-wide primary settled the question of delegates to Baltimore, sixteen from the districts and four at large being pledged to Oscar W. Underwood.

TWO MASKED MEN BLOW EXPRESS CAR SAFE; SAID TO HAVE GOT $140,000

points along the Vicksburg, Shreveport & Pacific railroad. In addition to these there were two or more sacks of silver, containing $1,000 each, other packages of currency and several packages of jewelry, valuable stock certificates and bonds.

"Obey Orders."

When the train was passing the flag station Okahola, two masked bandits climbed over the tender and with drawn revolvers called out to Engineer Maher and his firemen, "Obey orders."

No resistance was offered and after the train had rounded the curve above Okahola, the engineer was commanded to stop. He complied promptly.

With guns pointed at their heads, the engineer and fireman were marched back to the baggage car. Maher was ordered to call the express messenger. The engineer called out, and when the messenger, D. A. Gray of Chattanooga, opened the door of his car, he looked into the muzzle of a pistol. He did not hesitate to obey the order to alight.

Other trainmen promptly were lined up alongside the train, and leaving them in charge of his partner, the commanding bandit jumped into the express car and began work on the large express safe.

Fired Six Charges.

After applying a charge of nitroglycerin he dropped down and awaited the explosion. It was ineffective, and successively five other charges of the explosive were set off before the bandit accomplished his purpose. The sixth charge blew off the safe door and scattered silver coin and packages of currency and other valuables in every direction.

Except about 300 dollars in silver, everything in sight hurriedly was placed in a sack and the two men backed off into the darkness with their revolvers leveled at the train crew. After walking backward for about 100 yards the men dashed off. It is believed they fled on horses which had been left in charge of a third robber. It is presumed the robbers are those who held up a Mobile & Ohio train near Corinth in February.

Deny Big Amount Was Taken.

New Orleans, La., May 15.—Southern Express company officials here today declined to vouchsafe any information as to the amount of money taken by robbers who early today held up a Queen & Crescent flyer south of Hattiesburg and dynamited the express car.

It was denied, however, that the robbers obtained a sum approximating $140,000, the loss reported.

BIG PLANT FOR WALSH

Sewer Pipe Addition to the Large Duluth Brick and Tile Works.

Triple Shifts in the Consolidated and North American Mines.

It was announced today that a complete reorganization has been effected of the North American Brick & Tile company, whose office is in the Sellwood building and whose large plant is at Walsh, on the Vermilion iron range, adjoining Tower Junction, on the Iron Range railroad, under the name of the Duluth Clay Products company. The company erected a brick and tile plant and began operations last year. It has a great body of a superior clay sufficient to last it for fifty years. The plant was erected primarily to supply Duluth and the iron ranges with building brick, with a brick-making machine of a capacity of 150,000 a day.

Under the reorganization all claims have been wiped out and all of the original stockholders have been taken care of. The new president of the company is Frederick W. Young of Duluth. W. B. Dunlop of Dunlop & Moore is secretary; P. J. Walsh, treasurer; and S. E. Collins of Minneapolis, general manager.

Operations at the plant will be resumed inside of ten days. The company will install a large addition to the plant for the making of sewer pipe, for which the clay is ideal. Machinery for this branch of the business has been ordered. Within thirty days work will be resumed to complete the fine four-story hotel at Walsh by the Minneapolis company which owns it.

The shaft of the North American mine at Walsh is down 240 feet and is being sunk at the rate of 11 to 13 feet a week. Before drifting is begun the shaft will be sunk to a depth of 350 to 400 feet. Drifting will begin about the last of August. The drift will be run about 200 feet to the south before encountering the ore body, which has been proved up by thirteen diamond drill holes averaging 500 feet in depth. The deepest diamond drill hole in Northern Minnesota is on this property. It is 1,835 feet in depth.

Will Ship This Year.

T. J. Walsh, president of the North American Iron Mining company, said today that he hopes to ship from the North American late this season, if only a few car loads of ore. He is working three shifts in the North American, night and day and Sunday.

At the mine of the Consolidated Vermilion company, of which Mr. Walsh is also president, fifteen men are at work on the new hoisting equipment which is being installed by the Imperial Iron Works of Duluth. This equipment will be a duplicate of that at the North American shaft. Two 200-horse power boilers are being installed. The machinery will hoist five-ton skips 1,500 feet and give the shaft a capacity of 2,000 tons per day.

This shaft, which is in section 5, 62-14, was sunk to a depth of 340 feet. Then a drift was run 130 feet to the ore body. The drift is between twenty and thirty feet in the ore, which is averaging 65 per cent, and is a duplicate of the ore in the Zenith mine at Ely. The new boilers will be ready for use in about three weeks. Working in this shaft are thirty-two men in three shifts. This number will be doubled as soon as the new equipment has been installed.

Mr. Walsh said that he expects to make a small shipment from Vermilion Consolidated before the close of the shipping season.

Capt. Robert Powell, for many years with the Oliver Iron Mining company, is captain of the men at the Vermilion Consolidated. Kenneth J. Duncan has left the Pioneer mine at Ely to become general manager of the Walsh interests, which consist of the North American. Vermilion Consolidated and Minnesota Steel & Iron properties. Mr. Duncan is an experienced mining engineer.

Favor Mid-week Holiday.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Local clergymen are backing a movement for a mid-week half holiday. They are engaged this week in interviewing the business men of the city on the proposition.

It is proposed to establish the mid-week holiday with the object of doing away with the argument in favor of Sunday baseball.

STATE AUDITORS HEAR ADDRESSES

North Dakota County Officers in Annual Meeting Choose Officers.

Fargo, N. D., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Commission of Agriculture Gilbraith spoke before the State Association of County Auditors this morning on taxation subjects and made the statement that the assessed valuations in the western part of the state had been increased over 200 per cent in the last five year period, while those of the valley had not been boosted more than 15 per cent.

This is due to the rapidity of the development out there and the low rate of assessments in former years.

President Black of the North Dakota Press association spoke to the auditors in behalf of a uniform plan of measuring the delinquet tax lists, abstracts of election and other publications and for a uniform construction of the law regarding all official publications. This afternoon States Attorney Fowler of Cass county conducted a question box, answering many legal questions propounded by the visitors.

The new officers are: President, J. A. Brown, Rolla; vice president, F. A. Hurton, Wahpeton; secretary-treasurer, B. V. Bice, Devils Lake.

A special meeting will be held in Jamestown in February, when the place for the next annual meeting will be determined.

ONE OF DULUTH'S MOST HONORED CITIZENS NEARS FOUR SCORE MARK

Hon. J. D. Ensign, senior judge of the district court and for forty-two years a resident of Duluth, yesterday quietly celebrated his 79th birthday anniversary. Judge Ensign spent the day in the usual way but the occasion did not go unobserved by his many friends who called on him to extend their best wishes.

Judge Ensign was born in Erie county, New York, on May 14, 1833. His father was R. S. Ensign, who died in 1896. His mother lived to be 90 years old. He comes from an old American family, one of his great grandfathers serving as a soldier in the Revolutionary war.

Judge Ensign came to Duluth in the spring of 1870, was mayor of the city for two terms, served on the school board for a number of years, was for eight years a member of the city council and for the past twenty-two years has been on the St. Louis county district bench.

In Duluth Judge Ensign has always been an active and public-spirited citizen and has taken a prominent part in public and official affairs.

He is enjoying good health.

JUDGE J. D. ENSIGN.

PLAN RALLY OF UNION MEN

Union Labor Leaders Will Give Addresses Tuesday Evening.

Duluth union labor men are planning a big rally for next Tuesday evening at Carpenters' hall. The meeting will be a part of the Union Forward movement, which has been in progress for some time.

There will be several well known orators from outside the city who are well and favorably known in the labor movement.

Last night a rousing meeting was held at Moose hall, 224 West First street. Abe Gordon of Baltimore, general organizer for the United Garment Workers of America, Anthony McAndrews of Louisville, Ky., president of the International Tobacco Workers' union, and A. C. Bayless of Lafayette, Ind., national organizer for the Painters', Paperhangers' and Decorators' union, were the principal speakers.

A large meeting is being planned to be held in one of the city churches on May 27. E. G. Hall has promised to be present at that time and give an address. Mr. Hall is president of the State Federation of Labor.

PORTO RICAN VOTES WILL GO TO WILSON.

San Juan, P. R., May 15.—The Democratic territorial convention has elected six delegates to the Democratic national convention at Baltimore. They are Jacinto Taxidor, Henry McLina, Vicente Fano, J. W. Van Noonheff, Pedro Gerrero and F. V. Espinosa. All are instructed for Woodrow Wilson.

D. H., May 15, 1912.

FINE CLIMATE we are having this spring—ain't it, Mr. McCuen?

We wrote an ad on the opening of the baseball season yesterday and got left. Luckily we did not mention straw hats.

RAINCOATS, caps, rainhats, overcoats, rubbers, boots, flannel shirts—thus goes our song today, and we hope the cross and contrary weatherman will do his worst to fool us with a few nice, warm, sunny days.

If he does, look at the picture above. It speaks of summer ties. Some are beau-knots. Lay in a supply of them so that you will find favor with the favorita.

Ties to stand well in are here for him and her. A new one for men, made by Hanan is THE FRISCO—$6 and worth it.

HOW'S BUSINESS? It's improving every day. Why, everybody is going to work and the worse the weather the more clothes a workingman needs. The toilers of Duluth know that the Columbia carries the most extensive, the best and most price-worthy stocks of work clothes in this city. From underwear to overalls, from cap to shoes. We sell CARHARTT OVERALLS, the best in the land.

Capt. Tony Fiskett, in the role of peacemaker and court of last resort, proved himself an able diplomat with effective persuasive powers at headquarters yesterday afternoon. He succeeded in reuniting a sadly disruped family after all other means had failed. Left fall the wife of Louie Marts of New Duluth and her daughter by a previous marriage, played stellar parts in a double elopment. Wiser and disillusioned, both women returned a short time ago, willing and anxious to be taken back into the family fold.

The husband was bitter against them. He refused flatly and absolutely to have anything to do with them. The difficulties confronting the captain were enough to make any person think twice before attempting to wave the olive branch. But he did it, and did it in good style. One must "give it to the captain" when it comes to adjusting troubles of the people of his own race.

The woman first appealed to the officers at New Duluth to aid her in inducing her husband to take her back, but he would not listen to them. Then she came to Capt. Fiskett. He sent a note to Louie in his native tongue, trying to prevail upon him to take his wife back. To this he also paid scant attention. Again the woman came to him. This time he sent for Louie to come to headquarters.

When he reached the station yesterday his indignation had about reached the boiling point. He was more obdurate than ever. He declared that the woman had wronged him shamefully and that as long as he lived he would never again have anything to do with her. The captain argued with him. He tried to convince him that to take her back would be right and proper, but without appreciable result, except to cool him down a bit.

Then the captain showed his skill as a diplomat. He took Louie into a back room at the station, where he had his wife and their 9-year-old daughter, the only child born to them. The woman met him with tears in her eyes, but she couldn't melt Louie's heart of ice. Then a finer bit of strategy came into play. The captain knew that Louie loved his little girl, because Louie had said that he wanted her and would support and educate her.

When her daddy wouldn't listen to her mother she sidled up to him and put her arms around his neck, caressed him affectionately and asked him if he wouldn't please take her and her mamma back home with him. Both had missed him too much she pleaded. And not in vain. Lowe was unable to withstand the little girl. Two big tears trickled over his weatherbeaten face. The captain knew that the worst was over and recognized the psychological moment.

Again he asked Louie to take his wife back. The tears were welling down his cheeks and the woman threw herself before him on her knees. She cried that she knew she had not done right when she left him without his consent, but that further than that she had done no wrong.

Seeing Louie giving way the captain tiptoed out of the room. In the course of five or ten minutes a man and wife each holding a hand of their little daughter, trooped out together. Continuing out the street door they made their way happily to the depot, where they boarded the train for their home at New Duluth.

Judge Windom states that he knows Louie very well, as he worked for him a long while on his farm at Fond du Lac. He says that he is a good workman, and that he is well able to provide for his family in comfortable style. He explained that Louie had married the woman in the old country when she was a widow with two daughters. Both of them are now married. The woman said that it was to help her daughter to get happily married that she left home, as Louie objected to the suitor of her daughter.

When Adolph Frederick was discharged from the county poor farm yesterday morning he made his way to Duluth. Weak with age he got along as best he could. Although a cripple with one foot missing he walked a large part of the way, got a lift in a passing wagon another section and took a street car for the balance of the trip.

When he stepped off the car at Third avenue west he was unable to travel any further. He was "all in." Had not the policeman on the corner seen his predicament and come to his assistance he would have collapsed on the pavement. The officer sent for the patrol wagon and the old man was taken to headquarters, whence he was returned to the poor farm, as it was apparent that he was unable to take care of himself.

Frederick is an old timer about the city. For years he worked in the woods during the winter and sailed on excursion boats about the harbor and down the north shore during the navigation season. He lost one foot and part of the other when they were badly frozen while he was in the woods. He was taken with an epileptic fit and when he was found it was found that the members had been so badly frozen that amputation was necessary.

The old man was a bit diffident about going back to the poor farm. "I am a little bit afraid that they will be cranky with me when they see me coming back again," he said.

Railroad officials of the Canadian Northern are tired of being obliged to stop the Winnipeg train to put off persons stealing rides by the blind baggage route. Last night the special officers who have been set to watch the train arrested Fred Kline, a barber, on a charge of trespass. He pleaded guilty in police court this morning and got $10 and costs or ten days in the county jail.

Albert Bladon was arrested yesterday on a charge of destroying a tree in a public park. He pleaded guilty and paid a fine of $3.

John Olson and Peter Murphy, both old timers, got $40 and costs or thirty days in the county jail this morning when they pleaded guilty to drunkenness. Both said that they would get out of town if the court would release them. Willing to take a long chance of getting rid of them the court suspended sentence.

Timothy McCarty was found guilty of disorderly conduct after a trial in police court yesterday afternoon. The police reported that he had struck a cripple after being refused a dime which he was trying to beg. McCarty declared that it was the cripple who was doing the begging. The court didn't believe him and gave him $10 and costs or ten days in the county jail. He went over the hill.

The policeman who arrested this man first entered his name as Erickson. Who could blame him? The prisoner's right name is Rantakonkonen. He got off with the minimum after pleading guilty to drunkenness, in spite of his cognomen.

Oscar Wickman and Fred Eckstrand, accused by Emanuel Halquist of having robbed him of $300, were found guilty of drunkenness in police court yesterday afternoon. They got $10 or five days. If they got the money they didn't show it as both went to jail to serve their time.

TELLS ABOUT SUGAR IMPORTS

Publisher Testifies in Suit Against Trust—Havemeyer's Words Quoted.

New York, May 15.—Wallace P. Willett, publisher of a trade paper, continued today his testimony in the government's dissolution suit against the American Sugar Refining company and other sugar producing concerns alleged to constitute a monopoly in restraint of trade. Mr. Willett's testimony covered largely importations of raw and refined sugar in various years. Frank L. Crawford, counsel for the Refining company, objected to the introduction of a tabulation showing importations from 1893 to 1911 on the ground that the witness did not know of his own knowledge that the figures were accurate. Mr. Willett was instructed to compile figures to which he could certify and bring them to a later hearing.

Havemeyer's Words Quoted.

Prominent in the evidence thus far introduced are statements of the former head of the company, Henry O. Havemeyer five years dead. The admission of this testimony brought about a clash between the government and counsel for the defense who declared that testimony was privileged, immaterial, incompetent and irrelevant. United States District Attorney Wise insisted that the testimony was material to the suit as supporting he government's contention that the company sold its product without profit until it had vanquished opposition, and then recouped its losses by selling at exorbitant prices.

The testimony in question—which was given by Mr. Havemeyer before the congressional industrial commission on June 14, 1899—was admitted to the records subject to the objections raised by the defendant's counsel.

BEGIN TRIAL OF DARROW

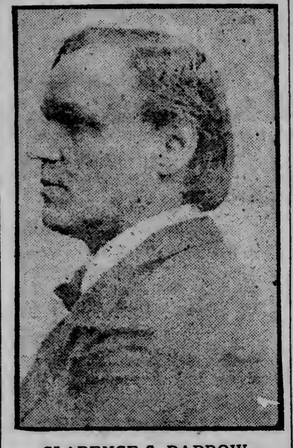
"Evidence Is Strong as That Against McNamaras," Says Prosecution.

Mrs. McManigal and Franklin to Testify—Dictaphone Will Be Factor.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 15.—Clarence S. Darrow, chief counsel for the McNamara brothers, was placed on trial before Judge Hutter in the superior court today charged with having attempted to bribe a juror in the McNamara trial.

When he appeared in court Darrow said he was ready for trial and would ask no delay; that he was innocent of any wrongdoing, and that he had no fear of the outcome of the case.

Darrow is being defended by Earl Rogers, Former Judge Cyrus McNutt of Indiana, Will Anderson, and by himself, Darrow having announced that he would make application to the court to be recognized as an attorney of record in his own case.



CLARENCE S. DARROW,
Accused of Jury Bribing in the McNamara Case.

Fredericks is Prosecutor.

The prosecution is in charge of District Attorney John D. Fredericks, who conducted the McNamara prosecution. He declared today:

"The evidence against Darrow is as strong as it was against the McNamaras."

The first clash is expected over the selection of a jury. The ventiremen will be confined from the time they are summoned. It is expected ten days or two weeks will be required to secure a jury.

Among the witnesses to be called, attorneys for the prosecution declared, would be Mrs. Ortie E. McManigal, wife of the star witness in the McNamara case, providing she was willing to come from Chicago. It was agreed by both sides Mrs. McManigal could not be compelled to come here and testify, but it was pointed out that since the climax came in the McNamara trial, during which she had become estranged from her husband, yesterday afternoon. They got $10 or five days. If they got the money they didn't show it as both went to jail to serve their time.

Franklin to Testify.

Other witnesses to be called include Bert H. Franklin, former chief investigator for Darrow, and who recently was fined $4,000 for having attempted to bribe one of the McNamara jurors. At his trial McNamara testified that Darrow directed him to bribe the jurors and gave him the necessary money.

To corroborate Franklin's testimony, it was stated the state would introduce evidence obtained by means of a telephonic device in Darrow's room which is alleged to have recorded portions of the attorney's conversation during the time Franklin was on trial.

Detective Guy Biddinger of Chicago, who the prosecution declares was offered a bribe by Darrow to make reports on the prosecution's work, and John R. Harrington, an attorney formerly on the McNamara defense, to whom the state declares Darrow admitted his guilt, also will be called for the prosecution.

BUILDINGS INTENDED TO DECEIVE

Wide World Magazine: A curious variety of "freak" structures are pretentious "shams"—buildings deliberaely intended to deceive the unwary. Dinton "castle," near Aylesbury, is a typical specimen of these pinchbeck fabrics. At a distance, and even from the road, it looks like a mediaeval stronghold, but at close quarters the largeness of its windows and the thinness of its walls betray its youth. It is actually no castle, but a mere lodge erected by a former owners of the estate on which it stands.

An Ilford "freak," known locally as the "castle," seems to be of the same class; but in truth it has a much more curious history. Its creator was Sir Charles Raymond, who, conceiving the idea of erecting a mausoleum for himself and his family, raised this building for use as such. Beneath it he provided extensive catacombs, then above them a chapel in which the burial service was to be read on occasion, and above that again a room for the accommodation of mourners. But Sir Charles, like many other builders, reckoned without the other party; for the bishop refused to consecrate the structure, which in consequence could not be used for the purpose for which it was intended. It is now tenanted and forms one of the most curious dwelling houses in the United Kingdom, since, despite its size, it contains only four habitable rooms, a well like spiral staircase, which leads from the chapel to the roof taking up much of the space.

Akin to such manifestations of the craze for building are structures which are mute witnesses of the vanity of human wishes. The most remarkable, perhaps, of these melancholy memorials is the chief "lion" of Carshalton. Bent on building a great mansion, Sir William Scawen, a wealthy London merchant, first concentrated his attention on the entrance; and set up a fine gateway of wrought iron, flanked with sculptures by Catalini, the whole 240 feet in width. Before he could proceed any farther, however, he failed in business, with the result that the beginning of the proposed mansion was also the end. The great gateway, notwithstanding that it has stood for many decades, was valued by experts some time back at $25,000, and when offered for sale by auction three or four years ago, with the land attached (worth, it was estimated, $3,650), was "bought in" at $9,500. Splendid indeed would have been a mansion in keeping with a gateway worth so large an amount, even now.

THE HOUSE WHERE YOUR CREDIT IS GOOD

WIFE'S RELATIVES GO AHEAD.

In England, where the question of precedence is a vital one even at family parties, there is a definite rule as to whose relatives shall go first, those of the wife or those of the husband. As a matter of fact, says the Queen, precedence is generally accorded to the relatives of the wife.

There are several reasons for this being so. The wife's mother is taken in to dinner by her son-in-law, the host, as he could not take his own mother or his own sister. Again, a wife could go in to dinner with her brother-in-law, but not with her own brother when other men guests were present.

Concerning more distant relations the case is different. A host could take in his own married niece, and the hostess her nephew, but they would not do so if the wife's niece or the wife's nephew was present on the occasion. This because of the preference usually accorded to the relatives of the wife over those of the husband.

It is essentially at dinner parties that this question of precedence has to be considered, but in reality it comes to the front throughout the day, not only at meals, but on all those occasions where one or other of the ladies must take the lead. For instance, when a drive is proposed, either by carriage or by motor car, the first to enter the vehicle is a relative of the wife, mother or sister, followed by a relative of the husband, the hostess entering last.

At luncheon the wife's mother often occupies the seat at the bottom of the table in the absence of the host, and assists in doing the honors to the guests. At tea she also assists her daughter in helping the guests to all they require in the way of cakes and bread and butter, etc.

At dinner she is the first to be helped, as the waiting commences from the host's right hand, and should the guests be helped in the order in which they are seated, and they happen to be numerous, unless there are duplicate dishes the relatives of the husband have some little time to wait in each course. The signal for the ladies to leave the dining room is given by the hostess to the lady who is seated at the host's right hand, her mother in a family party, and she is the first to lead the way from the dining room to the drawing room, followed by the other ladies, the hostess going last. The adjournment for the night is made in a like manner, the proposal being suggested by the hostess to her mother, and carried out as aforesaid. Thus it will be seen that throughout the visit the honors of the situation are bestowed upon the relations of the hostess, and this by general consent.

SELL THOSE STATE BONDS.

State Treasurer Walter J. Smith, supported by John Lind and other members of the state investment board, is urging that the bonds of other states held by Minnesota be sold and the proceeds invested in the bonds of subdivisions of this state—counties, cities, school districts and villages that are borrowing money for domestic development.

Mr. Smith points out that the state will profit by getting a higher rate of interest than it is getting from Alabama, Virginia and the other states to whch it has lent money; that the local subdivisions will profit by getting a lower rate of interest than they have to pay private money lenders, not to speak of savings in commissions and premiums; and that there is an important gain in having the money circulating in Minnesota instead of in other states. Mr. Smith's arguments are unanswerable, and the board should sell these outside bonds as soon as possible.

Has Ample Precedent.

Now let the weather man exercise the rule of reason on days when ball games are scheduled.

THE COMMISSION PLAN IN DULUTH.

Says the Kansas City Star: "At an election last Tuesday Duluth adopted an amendment to its charter providing for the initiative, referendum and recall. The vote was more than four to one in favor of the amendment.

"A year ago Duluth abandoned a movement for the new rule because of the opposition of its politicians to destroying the old ward form of government. But in adopting the amendment for the recall and the initiative and referendum Duluth has robbed the old form of about everything that has made it so attractive to the politicians who opposed the commission plan."

The Star is right about one important point, and wrong about another.

It is true that the adoption of the initiative, referendum and recall will make the old form of government far less attractive to the politicians and the interests which have opposed the commission plan. In fact it will make it of so little use to them that much of their opposition may be expected to subside.

But it is by no means true that Duluth, a year ago or at any time, abandoned the commission plan.

Following agitation of this subject by The Herald, the charter commission took it up and appointed a subcommittee to study the commission charters of other cities and to prepare a commission charter for Duluth. The issue of the constitutionality of the plan was raised both here and in St. Paul, and as many lawyers believed the present provisions of the Constitution would make the commission plan illegal, an amendment to the Constitution was proposed, and is to be voted on this fall, removing that doubt.

However, many other lawyers believe the Constitution to be no obstacle, and several Minnesota cities have adopted the commission plan. A test case has been brought on the Mankato commission government, which is now before the supreme court.

If the supreme court holds the commission plan constitutional, Duluth will go ahead. If it holds it unconstitutional, perhaps Duluth will try to get as near the Des Moines plan as it can under the Constitution. At any rate, Duluth will work for the ratification of the constitutional amendment.

Duluth has not abandoned the commission plan. It is as lively an issue as it ever was, and this city has recently had a demonstration of what a mistake the ward plan is that has made it a livelier issue than before.

Duluth does not abandon plans because the politicians do not approve them. The Republican politicians didn't approve Roosevelt, but the city went overwhelmingly for him the other day.

And Still the World Moves On.

One month ago today the Titanic went down with more than sixteen hundred human beings, but today you can think of it with hardly a quickening of your pulse.

THE NEGLECTFUL VOTER.

There is no machinery of government, and there never will be any, that will work automatically to produce results for the common good.

If there are enough venal or negligent voters—and the one is as bad as the other—the most ideal machinery will fail.

The Taft vote in Nebraska in 1908 was 126,997. In the presidential primaries the Republicans cast but 52,213 votes, of which Roosevelt got 31,242, Taft 10,692 and La Follette 10,279.

While Roosevelt got a majority of the votes cast, and so gets the Nebraska delegates, his vote is less than one-fourth of his party's vote in the state, and the state's preference is expressed by a minority of the party membership. Even if he had had all the votes, this would still be the case.

The same thing is true on the Democratic side. The vote for Bryan in Nebraska in 1908 was 131,099. In the presidential primaries the Democrats cast but 35,132 votes, of which Clark received 14,031, Harmon 11,241 and Wilson 9,860. Clark, too, though he had a scant plurality of the votes, was given the delegates by a minority of his party—in his case by a little more than ten per cent of its Nebraska voters.

What became of the 74,784 Republicans and the 95,967 Democrats who voted in 1908 but didn't vote at the primaries? Some of them may be accounted for by the fact that many, nowadays, are so thoroughly divorced from partisanship that they affiliate with neither party; yet you would think that if they were interested in public affairs they would want to express a choice at the primaries.

The presidential primaries are even more important than the election. The people have but two to choose from in November—three, now that many people are voting the Socialist ticket—but they have many to choose from at the primaries. If both parties make mistakes, as they may, the fault is the fault of the rank and file for letting the bosses misrepresent them.

Direct primaries, direct election of presidents and senators, initiative, referendum and recall—all are mere machinery of free government. They are effective and useful only if the people use them.

We have consumed a good deal of time and energy in rebuking voters who are ignorant or corrupt.

More to the purpose would be time and energy spent in waking to a sense of their obligations as citizens those who fail to exercise the privilege of the ballot, to gain which their fathers shed their blood—the blood of patriots and heroes.

For the neglectful citizen is far more menacing than the ignorant and corrupt.

If there were no neglectful voters there would be no incentive to herd the ignorant and corrupt.

Credit Him With An Error.

The weather clerk made a mistake. Duluth was going to open the baseball season yesterday, not the water carnival.

BASEBALL IN DULUTH.

Though the managers of the "See-Eye" baseball league, in announcing the opening of the season in Duluth for yesterday afternoon, failed to consult the weather man, that is merely a temporary interruption, and the oversight is one that is not hard to understand when the many duties connected with getting a new baseball club and a new league under way are considered.

Four good towns have come together in this league, and four good teams are to compete. The season's games ought to attract much interest in Duluth, and while nobody attends baseball games purely from public spirit, it is to be hoped that the league will be a success because of the future.

It is important that a city like Duluth should have a baseball team, not only because baseball is good clean sport and because it is good for the system to be out in the open air exercising your lungs for a few hours in the afternoon, but because every community that counts for much has a baseball team, and more of a city's standing than many imagine depends on the standing of its team in the baseball world.

Success to the new league, and especially to the Duluth club.

Many-Sided Man.

"Mayor McCuen." "Dr. McCuen." "Baseball Magnate McCuen"—It almost makes one think of the old stanza, "I am a cook and a captain bold and a mate of the Nancy brig."

GOOD WORK. CONGRATULATIONS.

Two beautiful booklets, interesting in themselves but vastly more so because of their contents and the movement they illustrate, have lately come to The Herald.

One came from Cass Lake, and pictures the beauty and promise and prosperity of Cass Lake and Cass county; the other came from Aitkin, and pictures the beauty and promise and prosperity of Aitkin and Aitkin county.

The Herald wishes to congratulate the people of both these counties on their enterprise and taste and skill. They have put out charmingly attractive booklets, of a character certain to direct attention to the opportunities they offer to industry and enterprise. And they have both shown good judgment in refusing to exaggerate, and in showing nothing in the pictures that cannot be shown in real life.

The more of this the better. The Northern Minnesota Development association is doing great good. The state of Minnesota is doing something, though not so much as it should. And every county and community which takes up this work of attracting settlers is helping not only itself, but all Northern Minnesota.

High Class Finance.

State Treasurer Smith wants to save money to the counties and make money for the state, all in the same breath. What's the matter with Walter? He's all right!

RHETORICAL BRICKBATS.

The battle between those two old friends, William Howard Taft and Theodore Roosevelt, is raging more bitterly as the days go by.

Both are probing the bottoms of their vocabularies for epithets of suitable violence to hurl at each other.

President Taft, running his hand deep into his vocabulary, picks out a hard, jagged adjective with knobs on it, and hurls the projectile at his adversary.

He says that Roosevelt's campaign against him is "accusatory."

That's a horrible thing to say about anybody, but we fear it is true.

Though It Hardly Seems Possible.

Ohio is learning that it is not beyond possibilities to have a real interesting campaign without Joe Foraker mixing into it.

SECRETARY WILSON'S DEPARTMENT AGAIN.

Based in part on charges made by Caroline Bartlett Crane, who recently visited Duluth to talk about municipal housekeeping, a congressional committee is preparing an investigation of conditions in the meat packing industry.

According to Congressman Nelson, chairman of the house committee on expenditures in the agricultural department, which is to make the investigation, the committee expects to find that hygienic conditions in the packing houses are worse than they were when "The Jungle" startled the country and took away the meat appetite of a lot of people; that the inspection provided by the department of agriculture is a farce and a sham; and that the conditions developed will cause an upheaval of public sentiment more bitter than that which brought about the creation of a Federal inspection system.

If these charges are true, this is another ugly blot on the Taft administration and particularly on the department of agriculture, where the Wilson-McCabe-Dunlap regime has already been shown to have made a farce of the pure food law.

The people are paying enough for meat to get clean meat.

They are paying enough for government to get honest, efficient government.

If they are getting neither, there is something radically wrong with an administration from which good servants like Wiley and Pinchot have been squeezed out, and in which servants like Wilson and McCabe remain to defy the public will and protect crooked interests.

THE OPEN COURT

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest, but discussions of sectarian religious differences are barred. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

GARDENER IS ANSWERED.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Are there more vegetables (garden variety) than those I have written below? If so, will you please publish the names of them in The Herald Open Court:

Potato, tomato, spinach, parsley, peas, string beans, sweet corn, beets, mangoes, celery, rhubarb, lettuce, turnips, rutabagas, parsnips.

RAYMOND L. HOLT.

Duluth, May 14.

(Why neglect the rosy radish, or the cool cucumber, or the crisp carrot, or the odoriferous onion? There are many others, but our correspondent is referred to the seed catalogues. For real imagination, the seed catalogue editors must be given the cake, and they can name vegetables nobody else ever heard of. The library has an excellent lot of garden books.—The Editor.)

HERE'S ANOTHER.

To the Editor of The Herald:

The following example may interest some of the readers whose notice it has escaped. The example and solution were published in the Scientific American some years ago. A farmer and his wife desired to weigh a pig, and had no scales. The man weighed 160 pounds and his wife 139 pounds. They put a board across a fence so that when they sat upon each end of the board it exactly balanced. Then they changed places, the wife taking the pig in her lap, just balancing the board again. How much did the pig weigh? CHARLES TURNQUIST.

Duluth, May 14.

THINK OF HAVING A MIND LIKE THIS.

To the Editor of The Herald:

In your evening story of May 13 the code message should have read as follows:

G H I H O E L V B Y R A R I E
No-W i n-Th e y-s u b m i t

You print Leinberg and Leinburg. You say "letters h e y and r occurred twice," when the fact is the letters e and y are not in the message. I would advise either a little more care in the selection of your evening stories or in the setting up of the same, otherwise there will be war, because I will not submit. Yours respectfully,

A SUBSCRIBER.

"A WEEK OF OPTIMISM."

To the Editor of The Herald:

I should like to use a little of your space in expressing hearty approval of the letter, "Boost, Don't Knock," which appeared in last night's Herald. I am one of the many who feel thoroughly disgusted with the News Tribune's policy of continual knocking and nagging at somebody or something. At the merest hint of a controversy of any sort the News Tribune immediately lines up with the side that seems to offer the best opportunity for the expression of pessimistic sentiments and "calamity howling." For a week or so the Tribune greeted us every morning with a column on the first page, headed with bold, black type, denouncing the local railroad service. Turning to the editorial page, one finds the majority and lengthiest of the editorials devoted to criticism along other lines.

Many churches follow the custom of having a "week of prayer" preceding the winter revivals in order that the members may be inspired with new zeal and help make the meetings successful. Beginning the first of June, we hope to see Duluth overflowing with visitors from every part of the country. Every one of us should do everything possible to create an atmosphere of good feeling, hospitality and gayety. Why not have a "week of optimism" in preparation for the advent of the summer tourists? Let us all abstain from criticism of any sort for a whole week, and let not a day pass without commending somebody, or growing enthusiastic over some one of Duluth's many attractive features. Any one who follows this plan for a week will make some pleasant discoveries; they will find some new reason each day for being glad that they live in Duluth; that there really are honest city officials to be found in the Zenith city; that there are railroads that give an occasional thought to the traveling public; that there are even corporations that are not soulless." We all admit that criticism of municipal affairs, public officials, corporations, etc., is beneficial and absolutely necessary at times. But this is the glad springtime, and any one who has a "grouch" should pack it away with his flannels and fur coat. An optimistic, "love thy neighbor as thyself" state of mind is a fine spring tonic, beneficial to the individual and the community. Yours sincerely,

"OPTIMO."

Duluth, May 14.

Free Speech Fight in San Diego.

Prohibition of street speaking in a restricted area in San Diego, Cal., has produced a situation of such tension, involving fundamental issues of personal rights that conflicting reports have been the order of the day. Mary Anderson Hill, formerly a leader in civic movements in New York, gives in the Survey an exceedingly fair and unbiased statement of what has occurred.

"As to the causes and meaning of these events," she says, "every shade of opinion exists. It is claimed that a time had come in the growth of San Diego when customary uses of the streets had become nuisances, but it is difficult to find people who were actually inconvenienced by the street gatherings. The Free Speech league claim that they resisted the ordinance because they knew it to be aimed at free speech on the part of labor in San Diego. A policeman refused to let me go through the county jail because, he said, the language of the prisoners was too vile; a member of the Free Speech league hesitated to quote to me the foul speeches of the police officers. The police officers and many citizens refer to all members of the Free Speech league as anarchists. One local paper claims that the citizen vigilantes are within the state constitution in organizing to defend the rights of property against men who insult the country's flag. The Free Speech league say that not one act of violence has been done by them, while they must themselves go unarmed and in such risk of personal attack that no one of them dares go home alone at night.

"Meanwhile, there are some things any one who will can see: Two jails so crowded that six men are where four should be; justice so slowly administered, that only two trials a week are held; statements in the press on the face of them prejudiced, inconsistent, and exaggerated; among the great majority outside the 'fight' ignorance of social questions, indifference to the lives and ideas of others, fear of loss in the real estate and other markets, paralysis of personal responsibility; and on both sides within the 'fight' intense expenditure of body, mind, and heart in a cause which, while it seems now more and more identified with hate, may force us on to 'fraternity and hope.'"

Harper's Magazine: At Jimmy Harrigan's wake a tinge of patriotism was manifest. Mr. Mulcahy approached the widow and said:

"Phat did he die of, Mrs. Harrigan?"

"Gangrene, Mr. Mulcahy."

"Well, thank heaven for the color, Mrs. Harrigan."

THE GOVERNORSHIP.

Throwing the Switch.

Montevideo Leader: It is suggested that the "Y" in Sam Y. Gordon's name is to be used to switch Eberhart's ice wagon off the main track so that Sam can get there, on time.

Democratic Material.

Fairmount Sentinel: There is no need of Democrats making a campaign against Governor Eberhart. Prominent Republicans are traversing the state from one end to the other showing him up as a servile tool of the brewery and corporation interests and an all around misfit in the executive office. This is putting it pretty strong, but Taft and Teddy have set the pace for this kind of warfare and it is not proper for Democrats to interfere.

The Brewery in Politics.

Fergus Falls Journal: The Journal has frequently called attention to the control which the big city breweries have obtained in the politics of Minnesota through the medium of Ed Smith and the weak governor through who mhe governs. That they are not content to control the state but are mixing in the politics of the different cities was forcibly illustrated this week when the city election in the state's capital city—St. Paul—became a contest to decide not whether the breweries should control, but which brewery should control.

Sam Still on the Job.

Moose Lake Star-Gazette: A great many people are under the impression that Sam Gordon has been eliminated in the governorship race by the announcement of Mr. Spooner, but this is not the case. Mr. Gordon is today the biggest man for the job and if the people select Sam he will be on the job all the time.

The Field Against Gordon.

Chisholm Tribune-Herald: Recent indications point to a change in the gubernatorial situation from the field against Governor Eberhart to the field against Gordon.

The People's Servant?

Foley Independent: Who denies that Governor Eberhart is not capable to serve the people of Minnesota if he would? The governor is too busy looking after interests of a personal nature that he neglects the duties he owes to his people. Oh, for such a governor.

No Personal Expense.

Holt Northern Light: Eberhart, the watchdog for the breweries, declares he will spend no money to be re-elected. Of course not, his owners will attend to that.

Perhaps!

Northfield News: When Governor Eberhart declared he was "A Man of Destiny," he had Uncle Knute's seat in the senate in mind.

Another Victory for Jane Addams.

Jane Addams in the Survey: Last week I left at Hull house a young girl whose childish face, surrounded by old-fashioned curls, reminded me of the playmates of my earliest memory. She had been rented at the age of 12 by her mother to a notorious man in a neighborhood state with whom she had remained four years, ostensibly as his daughter. Two weeks ago her mother sent her to Chicago to a white slave trader, who agreed to meet her at a given place in a large railroad station. The careful plot failed somewhere, and when the man did not appear she came directly to Hull house, because in the brothel kept by her mother the little girls had been in the habit of pretending that they were related to people whose names they had seen in the newspapers, and as I had figured as a hypothetical relative she knew my name and address. The girl's story, which she gave most reluctantly, corroborated since by governmental officials, revealed that she had been subjected to unspeakable experiences. She is still so simple and childlike that she lay awake until midnight last Friday night to see if she would feel differently when the clock struck 12 and she should become 16 and she gravely reported her disappointment the next morning.

The Democracy of Roosevelt.

Atlantic: By birth Mr. Roosevelt is an aristocrat. An unfeigned interest in the lives of his fellow millions has made a democrat of him, and through both channels he draws that social understanding of which I have spoken. But partly from the consciousness of a lack of sympathy for his "class," and partly from the inevitable sense that his lot is cast with the multitude, it is the democrat in him which has gained the permanent ascendency. He no longer feels the hurt of the rough give-and-take of politics which keeps so many of the gently-bred out of permanent public life. He is utterly without that respect for property which is the Chinese wall of aristocratic tradition. He enjoys the rough-or sports, the more boisterous humor, the freer play between man and man. He loves things not because they are rare, but because they are common. No prejudice of taste or mind cuts him off from the mass of his fellows. He does not seek to conserve the present, but, like the true democrat, he will hazard it against the future on the turn of a die;

"nor fears
To shake the iron hand of Fate
Or match with Destiny for beers."

The ancient sense of the aristocrat that every path has been trodden, every task assayed, has no hold on him, and he follows the Great Adventure with a mind as free from care, and with an enjoyment as irresponsible, as ever marked a man whose shoulders have been weighted with the burdens of a nation.

Harmony and Horticulture.

Rising shortly after dawn, we proceed
To view the lawn,
And, on noting that it seems a trifle
patchy,
Make the bashful bladelets shoot by performing on the flute,
Something more or less euphonious and catchy.
Lured by Lauder's latest lilt, the carnations never wilt,
And the petals of the roses, red and yellow,
Perceptibly expand when "Let's all go down the Strand"
Is mellifluously rendered on the 'cello.

The turnip and the carrot love "The Interfering Parrott";
Whilst a martial lay (with cornet obligato)
Wrests the radish from the earth, and
The cabbages show symptoms of
dejection,
And, if cabbages show symptoms of
dejection,
Fill their tender hearts with joy when we treat them to Savoy
Comic opera—a piccolo selection.

—F. J. Whitmarsh in London Opinion.

Selling Blood for Bread.

New York World: That more than 150 men should grasp eagerly at an opportunity to sell their life blood for the equivalent of a week's wages is a painful and disillusioning thing. Are the conditions of the struggle for existence in this richest of cities such that the physically robust are compelled to resort to this extreme to earn a pittance? That is the depressing inference from the extraordinary spectacle of strong men in threadbare clothing thronging the doors of a hospital in answer to an advertisement offering $25 as compensation for the transfusion of blood to the veins of a patient.

The scene presents a startling contrast to the familiar pictures of prodigal expenditures associated with metropolitan life. It reveals a shocking penury and hints at a worse degree of destitution than is appreciated in a city renowned for its munificent charities.

It does not necessarily indict organized charity for shortcomings in the distribution of relief. It does, however, seriously indict society for its lack of provision for men capable of working and willing to work, but compelled as the result of enforced idleness to consent to such a sacrifice.

WHAT IS CIVILIZATION?

Omaha World-Herald: Says the New York World: "Civilization is surplus wealth, and surplus wealth is the product of surplus labor. The savage produces no more than he consumes. The civilized man produces far more than he consumes. That is why civilization exists. When our Socialist friends have created a state of society in which the worker produces only what he consumes, and spends the rest of the time in leisurely loafing, what will become of civilization? Or is barbarism preferable?"

The smugness of this gives us a pain in the intellect. We have no brief for "our Socialist friends" but we would like to know what "surplus labor" is, and where it may be found producing "surplus wealth." The only kind of "surplus labor" we have heard of is the labor that is idle. And idle labor produces no wealth. "surplus" or otherwise. Its one function in the scheme of things as they are is to keep the labor that is occupied busy producing wealth with as big a "surplus" as possible for the exploiter and as little a share as possible for the laborer.

And what is "surplus wealth?" Literally, it would be wealth in excess of what is used or needed. While there may be wealth in excess of what is used, there is no such thing as wealth that is not needed. If the World proprietors, with all their inherited millions, doubt it, let them look around the corner, or just outside their own backyard. There can be no surplus wealth while there are children and women doing the work of men, while there are tenements and filthy hovels for the poor, while our "steel civilization" is founded on twelve hours of work, seven days in the week, for an average wage of about $35 a month. That some men have a surplus is certain—wealth they do not need; wealth they cannot use. If this represents civilization, and its absence barbarism, barbarism is symbolized by Harry Thaw and barbarism by John Milton bartering "Paradise Lost" for the equivalent of a few rags and crusts of bread.

Civilization flourishes when wealth can be applied not only to the satisfaction of man's material wants but his intellectual and spiritual needs as well. To these three combined there is no limit. There can be, therefore, no "surplus labor" in the true sense, though there may be misdirected labor. There can be no "surplus wealth" though there may be wasted wealth. It might be possible to produce too much corn, but it is impossible to produce too much of everything that mankind needs and can use and enjoy.

It follows that there is work for all the world—a plenty of work. There is no necessity or danger of the work stopping when material wants are satisfied. These are only the beginning. But one of the important wants of man is leisure. Shall not the worker also enjoy his share of that? Or is it impossible, in the World's opinion, to have a civilization except on the basis that a few men have all the leisure, and, therefore, the culture, luxury and opportunity for development, while the great mass of those who do the world's work have none? If this is the definition of civilization then we doubt not that a good many reasonable intelligent men would admit there is something to be said for barbarism.

In our opinion the "leisurely loafing" done by a steel employe working only six or eight hours a day instead of twelve would be quite as civilized a spectacle as the leisurely loafing of the steel trust millionaire that begins on the "Great White Way" and extends to Reno if it does not end in Matteawan.

No one, certainly not the Socialist, proposes that the worker shall produce only what is needed to fill his belly and then spend the remainder of his time, like the boa constrictor, or the idle rich, in the process of digestion. But a great many people in addition to the Socialists, would like to see "surplus wealth" as well as "surplus leisure" a bit more evenly distributed, and if this puts civilization itself in jeopardy then the New York World may as well begin right now preparing itself to join the contemplative New Zealander on London Bridge.

Mr. Roosevelt in History.

Atlantic: Time will do much for Mr. Roosevelt in obliterating the turbulent record of his familiar life. The constant hurly-burly, the stinging epithet, the lie given today and returned tomorrow, have with all their offensive detail blurred the outline of his large accomplishments. To the sensitive man they have vulgarized Mr. Roosevelt, and to the idealist they have debased him. The historian will see his burly figure large and clear. His lack of self control, his blazing indiscretion, his consistent inconsistency, his continued denial of statements attributed to him by reputable witnesses, have all made good men his enemies. And yet such faults as these have not their roots in the baser depths of human nature. They spring rather from very intensity of life. As no other man in our history, save, perhaps, Andrew Jackson, Mr. Roosevelt lives completely in the present. Details of the past are as vague to him as promises for the future. The attraction of his presence lies largely in the fact that while he shakes your hand, it is obvious that you are the man of men he wishes to talk with. If ever a man nailed "whim" over his door that man is Mr. Roosevelt. The present is his and he makes the most of it. In his practical philosophy there is neither past nor future.

In a Different Language.

Browning's Magazine: Edward Coles Rowland, the widely known Washington journalist and statistician of the civic federation, who died in New York recently, used to tell this as "one on him."

A delegation of Mexican editors, with their wives, daughters and sweethearts, was visiting Washington. Howland, one of a committee of newspaper men who wore showing the visitors around, rode in a carriage with a charming editorial daughter whom, for a long time, he dare not address, supposing she was as ignorant of our language as he was of hers. Coming along toward the capitol, though he determined to give his cheek and nerve a chance anway and pointed to the noble pile and said:

"El capitole. Very fine. Magnifico."

To which the charming signora instantly replied:

"Bet your life it is!"

Lessons From Lawrence.

Lorin F. Deland in the Atlantic: The Lawrence strike is ended, but we must not let it pass without learning some of its lessons. The fact of eighteen diverse nationalities among the workers in one mill has been, for the first time, shown to be no barrier to a perfect solidarity of brotherhood in a common cause. The bonus system as now practiced in textile mills, while fair in theory, has certain vicious features which cannot be countenanced. The way to make anarchism grow in this country is to refuse to allow organization and collective bargaining. Absentee ownership in a factory should not exempt stockholders from all interest in the lives of their laborers. Finally the presence in this nation of congested masses of vaguely understood foreigners who absolutely refuse American standards of living should turn us to a careful consideration of our immigrant laws.

The Lawrence strike has cost the community millions of dollars. It has caused suffering and privation to 50,000 persons, and it will later collect a grim toll through infant mortality. Yet if all this has brought but the single return of awakening public opinion to the dangers ahead, this wretched conflict has been a blessing in disguise.

Individual Strawberry Shortcake.

National Food Mazazine: One pint flour, one-half teaspoon salt, four teaspoons baking powder, one-fourth cup (four tablespoons) shortening, enough milk to moisten (about three-fourths cup).

Mix the dry ingredients; work in shortening with tips of fingers; add milk slowly, cutting it in with a knife, mix to a soft dough. Turn on to a floured board or cloth and pat to one-fourth inch thickness. Cut with a large biscuit cutter, place one layer in baking pan, leaving a quarter of an inch between each one; spread softened butter over them and put on another layer. Bake about twenty minutes in a hot oven. Break the biscuits apart and put a generous layer of crushed and sweetened strawberries between. Put whipped cream over the top, and dot with whole berries.

EMPTYING ELEVATORS

Greater Part of Canadian Grain Has Been Forwarded.

Boats Now Taking Ore—Coal Cargoes Very Scarce.

It is estimated that of the 15,000,000 bushels of Canadian grain handled by local elevators this spring, there is but 3,000,000 bushels left.

Since the opening of navigation grain has been going down the lakes at a great rate, so fast, in fact, that it kept the railroads and elevators at Buffalo mighty busy to avert a blockade and the escape was narrow at that, it is said.

This means that the business in Canadian bonded grain is now pretty well cleaned up. All the grain was for export and it is being shipped out of Buffalo as fast as possible. It is thought that in a few weeks time the grain will be entirely out of the country.

The shipping rate remains the same at 1½ cents. The movement is not so heavy now as it was some time ago. But about one-third of the boats are now taking grain, compared to the number two weeks ago.

Just now most of the boats are taking ore. In the last twenty-four hours at least twenty-five boats have left the local harbor loaded with ore.

The movement in lumber is also brisk, the rate remaining at $2.50 for Lake Erie ports. Ten "hookers" have made the local port and departed with lumber during the last twenty-four hours.

Tonnage is become scarce for grain, it is said. Most of the boats that are open to grain are now taking ore and others are tied up awaiting their turn to discharge their cargo at Buffalo. Owners claim that they lose a good deal of time waiting to get unloaded at Buffalo when carrying grain and that ore at 40 cents net is money as easily earned as grain at 1¼ cents, especially with the poor dispatch offered when carrying grain.

Coal cargoes are as scarce as hens' teeth. It is expected that the movement will begin about June 1 and vessel owners are anxiously awaiting this date.

Capt. Garrity Suspended.

Capt. Thomas Garrity of the steamer James Hoyt, which went aground near Beaver Island on her way to Duluth about ten days ago, has been relieved as master of the boat by the Pittsburg Steamship company. The company will also lay the information it has gathered on the case before the Great Lakes Protective association, it is stated.

Sultana Goes Aground.

On her way to Buffalo with a cargo of grain, the steamer Sultana went aground at Long Point Sunday night. The Sultana is on a sandy bottom and no fear for her is felt. A tug went to her assistance late yesterday and it is probable that she has been released by this time.

DIABETES

Treatment That Costs Nothing If It Fails to Benefit.

Diabetes has long been considered an incurable disease, and the only hope held out to patients has been to prolong their years by abstemious living. A newly discovered plant in Mexico called Diabetol herb has been found to be a specific in the treatment of diabetes, quickly reducing the specific gravity and sugar, restoring the weight and building up the system.

The treatment is very inexpensive; $1.00 worth of the herb will last two weeks and will remove the worst symptoms in the most aggravated cases. Call at our store and see the proofs and get a free booklet of diet lists, showing the proper foods for diabetes. Boyce Drug Store.

WILL BEGIN WORK ON DOCK EXTENSION.

Work will be begun tomorrow on the extension of Dock No. 5 in Allouez bay belonging to the Pittsburg Coal company. The general contract has been awarded to the Barnett & Record company and the contract for filling the extension to the Duluth-Superior Dredge company. The extension is to be 1,200 feet long and 450 feet wide. The dock, with the extension, will have a total length of 3,500 feet and a capacity of 1,000,000 tons' storage. It will be larger than any other coal dock in the Duluth-Superior harbor. The extension will not be ready for use this season, and will be fully equipped to receive coal next spring. The cost of the improvement will be about $300,000.

FURNISHED HOME FOR THREE GIRLS

Funeral at Cloquet of Maiden Lady Who Reared Three Women.

Cloquet, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Miss Olson, 74 years old, a resident of Cloquet for many years, died at her home on Tenth street. On Wednesday of last week she celebrated her birthday and many friends came to express their felicitations. She was stricken with paralysis the following day, and did not regain consciousness before the end Monday.

Miss Olson was a unique character. She has adopted and brought up to womanhood three girls giving them a mother's love and care. Two of the girls have married and live in Cloquet, Mrs. Dan Irish and Mrs. John Oswald. The third, Miss Denham, still made her home with Miss Olson. The funeral took place this afternoon from the Norwegian Lutheran church, Rev. T. T. Roan officiating.

Aged Woman Dies on Farm.

Mrs. John White died Tuesday morning at the Cloquet hospital, where she was taken a few days ago. Mrs. White had been ill all winter at her home on a farm about two miles from the city. She was well known to every one in Cloquet and had the esteem of all. A husband and son, Ernest White, and two gandsons survive.

The funeral will be held Friday afternoon from St. Andrews Episcopal church, Rev. F. C. Coolbaugh, officiating. Mrs. White was 77 years old. The family came to Cloquet twenty-eight years ago from London, England, shortly afterward opening up one of the first farms anywhere in this section.

FOREIGN WHEAT OUTLOOK GOOD

Department of Agriculture Issues Summary of Grain Conditions.

Washington, May 15.—The department of agriculture summary of the foreign wheat situation, issued today, says:

"Taking into account of the wheat crop already secured in the southern hemisphere and that for the most part secured in India in connection with the outlook for winter and spring wheat together in Europe and in Canada, there does not at present seem to be any reason for apprehension of a short age in the foreign portion of the world's wheat supply for the coming harvest year.

"The harvests of the southern hemisphere have given a wheat crop estimated to be nearly 6¼ per cent larger than the previous year. This includes the crop of Argentina, Chile, Australia and New Zealand. The great wheat crop of India now is nearing the end of its harvest, the bulk of it already being garnered. The second general memorandum of the Indian government indicated an area slightly less than a year ago but exceeding the average for the five years by about 250,000,000 acres.

"In Europe, winter wheat, which except in Russia constitutes the bulk of the wheat crop, was for the most part sown under favorable conditions and came through the winter well. During a considerable part of April very unseasonable weather prevailed over an extensive region; but the reports so far received do not indicate that any serious damage has been done to the wheat crop."

Anybody Can Erase Approaching Age-Marks

With an ordinary Chinese ice-pencil wrinkles and "crow's feet" can be rubbed out and the complexion given a youthful glow and rich embellishment. For erasing wrinkles, the ice-pencil is rubbed the long way of the furrow, then a gentle massage is employed. A few treatments will rub out every wrinkle, because the Chinese ice dissolves the fatty membranes on each side of the furrow and encourages the stunted tissues under the crease to healthy activity.

Chinese ice-pencils are slightly astringent, and with one it is a trifling matter to overcome loose, flabby skins, by applying the ice and massaging from point of chin to ears. This gradually reduces the muscles to their natural state, and when this is accomplished, the flesh will be firm, clear and smooth. Any drug store can supply Chinese ice-pencils for a moderate sum, and their use will insure a youthful complexion for every woman.

SIGNS HIS LAST BATCH OF BONDS

City Clerk Harry W. Cheadle today signed the last batch of municipal bonds in his official capacity. They were the $50,000 issue of park bonds, rencently authorized by the council. They are dated April 1 and for that reason could not be signed by his successor. It is understood that the park board will sell but $10,000 of the bonds at present, the balance to be sold as needed. During the fourteen years he has been in the office Mr. Cheadle has signed municipal bonds aggregating millions of dollars. The largest batch was that for the purchase of the water and light plant.

WANT ILLINOIS CONSTABULARY

Coal Mine Operators Will Appeal to Governor Deneen.

St. Louis, Mo., May 15.—The coal operators' association of the fifth and ninth Illinois districts, representing fifty-two companies, has named a committee to meet with other industrial associations and representatives of labor organizations to demand of the state the establishment of a constabulary. The committee will make its first appeal to Governor Deneen for legislative action.

REPUBLICANS MOVE INTO THE COLISEUM.

Chicago, May 15.—Preparations were made today by William Hayward, secretary of the Republican national committee, to move the headquarters of the committee from the hotel where he has had his office to the Coliseum, where the national convention will be staged. Chairman Harry New of the sub-committee in charge of the convention arrangements, is expected to arrive today or tomorrow and the details of convention arrangements will receive the attention of the whole committee, at a meeting called for Saturday.

MINNESOTA PIONEER BURIED IN OKLAHOMA.

Guthrie, Okla., May 15.—Thomas P. Hewitt, 54 years old, who was furloughed from West Point military academy by Gen. George B. McClellan sixty-four years ago, but who never returned and was technically still a student at the academy, was buried here today. Hewitt, who was a native of Hoosick Falls, N. Y., was generally known as the Point's oldest student. He was a pioneer in both Minnesota and Oklahoma, voting in the constitutional elections of both states. For twelve years he had been attached to the United States attorney's office here as a messenger.

She died Saturday morning of pneumonia. She was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John O'Leary of the Ashland location and was 17 years of age. Milady's Toilet Table

By Mme. D'MILLE.

"The easiest way to preserve and restore youthful complexion is to lightly massage the face, neck and arms with a solution made by dissolving an original package of mayatone in eight ounces of witch hazel. No powder is necessary, for mayatone prevents that 'shiny' look and keeps the skin soft, satiny and altogether lovely.

"The hair can be kept light and fluffy, and beautifully lustrous, by dry shampooing. Mix four ounces of powdered orris root with an original package of therox, sprinkle a little on the head and brush thoroughly through the hair. If anything will make the hair grow, therox will.

"Nothing is more humiliating to a woman than hair on her face. Wild hairs can be quickly and safely removed by applying delatone paste. Mix enough powdered delatone with water to cover the hairs; leave on for two minutes, then wipe off, wash the skin and the hairs will be gone.

"Many suffer now from tired, sore, swollen or aching feet. Nothing will give quicker relief than Mother's Salve. It is easy to use, quick to act, and relieves pain in any part of the body—headache, backache or sore muscles."

Friends and relatives of Mr. and August Jullen, 2105 West First street, were the hosts at a surprise silver wedding anniversary given in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Jullen at the Columbia hall, Twentieth avenue west and Superior street, last evening. SUFFRAGE TALK IS POSTPONED.

Mrs. David Adams of 2314 West Second street received a communication yesterday afternoon from Rev. A. F. Elmquist of Minneapolis, who was expected to speak here May 24 before the West End Women's Suffrage club. Rev. Dr. Elmquist writes that he will be unable to come here on May 24, but would gladly come on May 30.

The women of the club held an informal meeting yesterday afternoon and decided to change the date of the meeting to suit Dr. Elmquist's convenience. The present meeting was postponed and a letter was written to Dr. Elmquist to name another date outside of May 30, as that is Decoration day and the members of the club are not anxious to hold a meeting on that day. He was asked to name an open day early in June.

The next meeting of the club will be held Monday afternoon at the home of the president, Mrs. L. Q. Greeley, 317 North Twenty-third avenue west. Plans for the affair will be made at that time, as a reply is expected from Dr. Elmquist within a few days.

Robert Engstrom Dies.

Robert Engstrom, 21 years old, died of brain fever last evening after an illness of over three weeks. The deceased was single and had been a resident of the West end for the past four years, having boarded at 2013 West Second street, where he died last evening. His parents live at Sundsvall, Sweden. He was a member of the North Star lodge No. 11, Good Templars, which society will have charge of the funeral, arrangements for which will be made some time this afternoon. The body has been taken to the Olson & Crawford undertaking rooms.

WEST END IS ENJOYING ACTIVITY IN BUILDING LINE

There are more buildings now being built and recently completed in the West end, than in any other part of the city. Superior street from Eighteenth avenue west to Twenty-second avenue west is undergoing a decided change at the present time. This is also true of the other streets.

The most prominent of the buildings recently completed is the Woodmon hall on the corner of Twenty-first avenue west and First street. The large hall was built by the Duluth camp, No. 2341, at a cost of $25,000. The dedication will be held the latter part of this month, when Grand Consul A. R. Talbot of Omaha, Neb., will take part in the festivities.

The two-story brick building at 1817-19 West Superior street has also been finished and is now occupied by two saloons. The structure was built by the Minneapolis Brewing company and cost in the neighborhood of $20,000.

David Adams, the veteran West end builder and contractor, is now finishing two houses in this end of the city. Workmen began building the structures early this spring and are now putting on the finishing touches. The structures will be ready for occupancy the first of next month. They are at 2026 West Second street.

Repairs on the old Cody building at 1915 West Superior street have been practically completed. P. George Hanson & Son, who bought the structure early this spring from "Buffalo Bill" William Cody at a cost of $8,500 are now spending nearly $5,000 to repair and improve the building. The old steps, which came out on the sidewalk, have been torn out and replaced on the inside of the building. The entire interior has been remodeled and the upper two floors have been arranged for flats and apartments. The first floor will be occupied the first of the month by the P. George Hanson & Son, real estate dealers. A barber shop will occupy the basement.

The old five-and-ten-cent store at 2022 and 2024 West Superior street has been torn down and work on the foundation for a two-story brick building will start within a few weeks. The building will cost about $20,000 and will be occupied by the Mohaupt Brothers, proprietors of the present ten-cent store at 2020 West Superior street. A. H. Burg & Co., are in charge of the contracting work.

Many large buildings are now being planned for this year. The Swedish Fraternity house, or social center, which is being planned by the Vasa order of the West end, will cost $100,000. The plans for the structure have been drawn by Bray & Nystrom, architects. The site for the building has not been chosen as yet, but will be in the immediate vicinity of Twenty-first avenue west and First street.

Another large building now being planned and for which plans have been drawn by Abrahum Holstead, is the Adams Athletic association building. The structure will cost in the neighborhood of $25,000 and will also be located in the center of the West end.

A number of residences and apartment houses are being built in various parts of the West end. The real estate dealers report a large number of sales and also exceptional building operations among the small property owners.

W. C. T. U. BRANCH IS GROWING

Owing to the growth of the organization, including members from all parts of the city, the West end branch of the Women's Christian Temperance union yesterday afternoon changed its name to the Duluth Scandinavian Women's Christian Temperance union. The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. E. Gustafson, 2308 West Eighth street.

Mrs. Frank Peterson read a paper during the afternoon on "The Effect of Moving Pictures on Children."

Mrs. E. Gustafson and Mrs. Chris Nybro were appointed on a committee to investigate the dance halls in the parks. The many reports of late with regard to these dance halls and the recent petition of the residents in the vicinity of the Lincoln park auditorium asking for the rescinding of the hall license, will be investigated by this special committee.

The members of the union thanked the newspapers for their attitude against the extension of the patrol limits to Twenty-fourth avenue west. A resolution was adopted thanking the newspapers and Mayor McCuen for his veto of the council's ruling. Mrs. Gustafson and Mrs. Nybro were appointed delegates to the district convention of the Union Temperance society to be held next month. Mrs. P. Morterud was elected delegate to the district convention of the W. C. T. U. to be held next month also.

Prefontaine Funeral.

The funeral of Joseph Prefontaine, 60 years old, who died suddenly Monday evening at his home, 1119 West Superior street, will be held at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning from the St. Jean Baptiste Catholic church, Twenty-fifth avenue west and Third street. Interment will be in the Calvary cemetery.

Will Wed in Cloquet.

Miss Esther Skagerberg, who was honored by a number of receptions and showers during the past few weeks, will leave early next week for Cloquet, Minn., where her marriage to Rev. Rudolph Erickson of Chicago will take place next Wednesday evening. Following the marriage they will make a three months' tour of Europe, after which they will make their home in Chicago, where Rev. Mr. Erickson is in charge of a pastorate.

HARD TO LEARN

Takes Hard Experience to Teach People Some Truths.

Many people jeer at the idea that coffee causes the aches and ails they suffer from; and often such people will go on for years sticking steadfastly to the coffee and suffering month in and month out but maintaining "Coffee doesn't hurt me." (Tea is just as injurious as coffee because it contains caffeine, the drug in coffee.)

A lady says:

"I did not learn the real truth until I made the change, but I can now positively state that the headaches I had for about seventeen years were caused by drinking coffee, for when I changed and gave up coffee and used Postum in its place I experienced entire relief. I have not been troubled with headaches since I began Postum.

"This, in brief, has been my experience on the coffee question. Among my friends I have seen many other wonderful instances of the power of this food drink when used in place of the drug drink, coffee.

"Among my friends there are those who tell me of relief from kidney trouble, neuralgia and eczema by leaving off coffee and using Postum and I have even known it to ease rheumatic pains in limbs.

"I really believe these statements for since I quit the coffee and use Postum, I never seem to have an ache or pain and I would not dare go back to coffee again.

"Not only myself but my family use Postum exclusively and we think there is no hot beverage that can take its place. Nearly seven years' steady use of Postum convinces me I know what I am talking about when I say it is food as well as drink and most valuable to build up the system." GIVE PLAYLET FOR CHARITY

West End Women Appear in Performance of "The Dress Rehearsal."

The Delta Gamma club of the West end presented the first production in the new Woodmen hall, Twenty-first avenue west and First street, last evening. The new lodge building was opened the first of the month and the presentation of "The Dress Rehearsal" by the club is the first in the large auditorium.

The stage is well built and the various theatrical features are all included in the structure of the auditorium. The room seats nearly 800 people and is well lighted throughout. The members of the Delta Gamma club presented a delightful performance of the musical playlet, "The Dress Rehearsal." The characters were well portrayed and the musical numbers all scored a hit. The auditorium was crowded last evening.

The portrayal of the school principal by Miss Enid Shaw was well received and proved to be one of the successes of the production. Mrs. J. H. YOUNG BANDIT LIVED HERE

Youth Under Sentence for Daring Holdup Sold Maps in Duluth.

Dwight Day Briggs, a young bandit, who is beginning a term in the Colorado penitentiary for a daylight bank hold-up and robbery recently, formerly lived in Duluth and on the ranges according to the statement which he made concerning his past life before going to prison.

In Duluth Briggs sold maps, making a house-to-house canvass. From here he went to Eau Claire, Wis., and later to Des Moines, Iowa. His parents reside at Medford, Wis.

When Briggs received his sentence, he put on the air of a bravado and boasted of his nerve in holding up a bank in daylight. "I guess the James boys had nothing on me," he exclaimed.

Briggs' only regret appears to be in that fact that he did not make a "cleaning." "There would have been some dead heroes," he said, "if my gun had worked all right that morning after I had robbed the bank. Yes, there would have been a different tale to tell and if that fellow Roe, who shot me in the arm had stood his ground, I would have shot him sure."

Gives Quickest and Surest Cure For All Sore Feet

The following is absolutely the surest and quickest cure known to science for all foot ailments: "Dissolve two tablespoonfuls of Calocide compound in a basin of warm water. Soak the feet in this for full fifteen minutes, gently rubbing the sore parts." The effect is really wonderful. All soreness goes instantly; the feet feel so good you could sing for joy. Corns and callouses can be peeled right off. It gives immediate relief for sore bunions, sweaty, smelly and aching feet. A twenty-five cent box of Calocide is said to be sufficient to cure the worst feet. It works through the pores and removes the cause of the trouble. Don't waste time on uncertain remedies. Any druggist has Calocide compound in stock or he can get it in a few hours from his wholesale house. It is not a patent medicine but is an ethical preparation.

WHAT OTHER CITIES ARE DOING

Activities of Other Municipalities, Which Might or Might Not Be Copied in Duluth.

TO MAKE Nashville, Tenn., the "City Beautiful," is the plan of representatives of twenty-eight real estate firms, the Nashville Real Estate exchange, the real estate committee of the board of trade and various other organizations interested in the city's welfare who are organizing the Home Garden club of Nashville. The primary object of this organization will be to transform the many vacant lots of the city into flower gardens. The idea is to have flowers at the front end of the lots and vegetables in the rear. A superintendent will be selected to direct the cultivation of the soil and under his supervision the various lots will be plowed and harrowed and model gardens will be laid out. Arrangements will be made in the selecting of the plants to secure such kinds as will not require artificial watering. In a few months, when the movement is well under way, it is probable that prizes will be awarded to the person having the most beautiful gardens, and a committee will be appointed to judge the various transformed lots and rubbish heaps. It is probable that the movement will be extended so as to encourage the people of Nashville to beautify their own lots and yards. Prizes will also be offered to citizens having the best kitchen gardens, and especial emphasis will be laid on vegetable gardens.

Duluth has no organized committee to encourage gardening and beautifying vacant lots. Various organizations and The Herald have taken the matter up and are beginning to get good results. In recent years home gardening has taken a strong hold upon people in and about the city and the time is considered ripe for the entrance of such a committee as that which has been organized in Nashville.

In the West end the newly reorganized Commercial club is doing some good work along this line, but it is devoted to that neighborhood only. It might offer a suggestion to some of the other live improvement clubs in the city.

S.S.S. HEALS SORES AND ULCERS

S. S. S. heals Sores and Ulcers in the very simplest way. It just goes right down into the blood and removes the cause, and the place is bound to heal because the impurities and morbid matters which have been the means of keeping the ulcer open are no longer absorbed from the blood. External applications of salves, lotions, plasters, etc., can never produce a cure because they do not reach the source of the trouble. At best they can only allay pain or reduce inflammation; such treatment is working on symptoms and not reaching the cause. Every nutritive corpuscle in the blood is weakened or infected, they cannot nourish the fibrous tissue around the place, but instead they constantly discharge into the flesh around the sore a quantity of impure, germ-laden matter which gradually eats into the surrounding healthy tissue and causes the ulcer to enlarge. Since impure blood is responsible for Sores and Ulcers, a medicine that can purify the blood is the only hope of a cure. S. S. S. has long been recognized as the greatest of all blood purifiers, possessing the qualities necessary to remove every impurity from the blood. While curing the sore or ulcer S. S. S. brings about a healthy condition of the flesh by supplying it with rich, healthy blood, and thus makes the cure permanent and lasting. Book on Sores and Ulcers and any medical advice free to all who write.

ROOSEVELT ATTACKS TAFT IN HIS OWN HOME STATE

Opens His Ohio Primary Campaign at Home of McKinley.

Defends Right of People to Government in Their Interests.

Canton, Ohio, May 15.—Col. Roosevelt in a speech last night, said it was his desire to open his Ohio primary campaign in the home town of the late President McKinley, whom he referred to as "my old chief." He said President McKinley was a man "who all his life long kept in close touch with the common people."

"President McKinley," he continued, "would have been quite incapable of expressing, because he would have been quite incapable of feeling, the deep distrust of the peopel which inspire those who sneer at them as a 'rabble' or a 'mob,' those who lay stress upon their 'fear of tyranny of the majority' and upon their disbelief in the right of a majority actually and not nominally to shape their own destinies and to control the public officials who are, or should be, the servants of the people and not the masters of the people."

Lorimer "Taft's Lieutenant."

Col. Roosevelt renewed his attack on President Taft and the men prominent in directing the president's campaign for re-nomination. He referred to Senator Lorimer of Illinois as "Mr. Taft's lieutenant."

He strongly criticized Representative William B. McKinley, manager of the president's campaign, for referring, the colonel said, in a public statement to the men who opposed President Taft in the Maryland campaign as the "rabble of the cities."

From the writings and public addresses of Abraham Lincoln, Col. Roosevelt quoted liberally. He asserted that the Progressive Republicans today stand for the principles which were advocated by President Lincoln. Col. Roosevelt reiterated many of the declarations made in his speech before the Ohio constitutional convention at Columbus, and defended his course in advocating the recall of judicial decisions.

As to Class Hatred.

Col. Roosevelt said in part:

"We who stand for real progress within the Republican party, have been accused of creating discontent and class hatred. I do not believe that even those who make the accusation believe what they assert. At any rate, the accusations are only true in the sense that they would be true if made of Lincoln and Lincoln's companions, fifty and fifty-five years ago. We do not preach hatred of any man, and we endeavor to act toward all men in the spirit of kindly charity which Lincoln showed.

"But we do preach hatred of evil. We hold that we would be recreant to Lincoln's memory if with supine acquiescence, we permitted evil, whether political or industrial, to continue to sit in the high places and exalt the horn of the unrighteous. Lincoln preached discontent with slavery, and in the same way we preach discontent with industrial tyranny and opposition to any failure of legislator or judge to see that the rights of the wage worker and the farmer are properly safeguarded.

Let Bosses Retire.

"Lincoln preached discontent with President Buchanan and his office-holders and with the bosses of his day. We do not preach hatred of the bosses. We do not hate them, and if they would retire into private life, they would have our cordial good will. We do most emphatically desire that they quit governing us and let us govern ourselves, and when, as is the case too often, they govern us by suppressing our rights to self-government, when they govern us by means of corruption and against our own interests and in the interests of special privilege, then we feel that it is our highest duty, sternly, resolutely, to drive them from public life.

"As for the allegation that I stir up class hatred, I can only answer that there is not a class of this country on whom I war except the class of crooks, financial crooks and political crooks, big crooks and little crooks. Against all these I do preach war. I do try to excite discontent with them, and I shall never cease my efforts until they, in their turn, either cease being crooked, or are deprived of their power to do damage to the rest of us.

No Ordinary Party Contest.

"Friends, I hold that this is infinitely more than a mere factional fight; I hold that this is infinitely more than any ordinary party contest. I insist that we who stand for the principles of Progressive Republicanism, and who therefore stand for making the principles of Abraham Lincoln living principles applied to the living issues of today, are fighting the cause, not only of sound Republicanism, but of good citizenship. We are not only fighting for every Republican who is a good citizen, we are fighting for the fundamental rights of every good citizen without any regard to his politics, throughout the United States, whoever he may be.

"The first of the fundamental differences between us and our opponents is that we do really believe in the people, and that they do not. The other day, on May 7, last, Mr. McKinley, from the National Taft bureau, issued a comment on the Maryland election, and he stated that I only won because I had with me 'the rabble in the large cities.' Now this, of course, merely means that I did not have the support of the big financiers and big politicians without whose support the campaign of our opponents would instantly collapse.

Answers Published Attack.

"Recently there appeared in the Toledo Daily Blade a political advertisement of great length in the form of an attack upon me, and in favor of Mr. Taft. In certain parts of this advertisement, Mr. Taft's views are set forth with rather more clearness than he has generally set them forth himself. The advertisement states that I, Theodore Roosevelt, have declared that I stand both for pure democracy and for constitutional government, and then proceeds to say that these are utterly antagonistic types of government, and that not only pure democracy, but democracy is unsafe; that 'the Roosevelt doctrines of giving the people the final right to decide whether the courts correctly interpret certain features of state constitutions is thoroughly vicious.'

Purpose of Constitution.

"I do not believe that the Constitution was conceived to compel the people to render justice. On the contrary I believe that the Constitution was conceived by the representattives of the people, and adopted by the people, so that the people themselves, without compulsion, could, as is set forth in the preamble of the Constitution, better obtain justice for themselves, and better promote the general welfare. Our opponents believe that the Constitution is something that does not spring from the common people, the plain people; that, on the contrary, it has been imposed upon them, and that they are to be compelled to submit to it, even against their will.

Whose Constitution Is It?

"Whose Constitution is it anyway? It is the Constitution of the plain people. They made it. They fought and died for it. They live under it, and it is for them ultimately to interpret it. When the Constitution was threatened in the early '60s, it was, as Abraham Lincoln said at Gettysburg, the plain people, the common people, whom Lincoln loved, and trusted, who defended it 'with the last full measure of devotion.' The plain people, the people of the United States have purchased their Constitution at this price. Are they now to be told, forsooth, that the rights which the Constitution enshrines, are not near to them, and that they will destroy their Constitution unless some special and select class is set up to guard it?

"Until a couple of months ago, representative government in Pennsylvania was but a device to give weight and importance to the orders of Senator Penrose. The New York Republican state convention which recently met at Rochester represented nothing in the world but 'Boss' Barnes and his lieutenants. One of these lieutenants was a college president, Mr. Butler, who endeavored to give dignity to this convention as a representative assembly, but it represented nothing but the will of the bosses. It was designed to try to get popular credit for the orders of Mr. Barnes, and it was thoroughly misrepresentative of the people. The New York Democratic convention will, in just the same way, represent Boss Murphy and his subordinates. These two conventions have not represented, and will not represent, Republicans and Democrats of New York at all.

Principle, Not Personalities.

"I wish to make the issue one of principle and not of personal abuse.

"I see that Mr. Taft yesterday alluded to me as a dangerous, a neurotic, a flatterer, an egotist, and as engaged in honeyfugling all of you. This will not tempt me into any retaliation in kind. But I wish to point this out to you: Four years ago Mr. Taft had not discovered that I was a flatterer, a demagogue, an egotist and engaged in honeyfugling the people, and yet I stood then exactly where I stand now.

"I forget whether it was yesterday or today that Mr. Taft made a remark, which I do not think was in very good taste, as to the possibility of my having died in the Titanic disaster. He shall have a complete monopoly of calling me a neurotic and a demagogue and jesting about what would happen if I had died on the Titanic, and all the rest of it. I ask your attention to the great issues involved in this fight."

LITTLE DANGER OF FOREST FIRE

State Forester Returns From Tour of Lake and Cook Counties.

W. T. Cox, state forester, who returned from a tour of Lake and Cook counties and was in Duluth yesterday on his way to St. Paul, declares that there is little danger from forest fires, at least until fall. The slashings from winter logging operations have been burned, he says.

At Grand Marias, says Mr. Cox, the state fire ranger has had a boat built for patrol duties along the north shore. It is found that this is the easiest and quickest manner of covering his territory.

Mr. Cox was much impressed with the natural beauties of the section through which he traversed and declared that both Cook and Lake counties had great things in store for the summer tourist. "As soon as the railroad opens up this country, said Mr. Cox, "there ougut to be a big tourist travel."

RICHARD HARDING DAVIS DIVORCE SUIT STOPPED.

New York, May 14.—The suit for divorce begun here in November, 1910, by the wife of Richard Harding Davis, the author, has been discontinued by order of Supreme Court Justice Day.

The application for the discontinuation was made by Mrs. Davis. Mr. and Mrs. Davis were married in 1899. While Mr. Davis was in London and Miss Cecelia Clark was at her home in Chicago he proposed and was accepted by cable. A messenger boy from London carried the engagement ring 4,000 miles to Miss Clark.

CONGRESSMEN IN THE DARK.

Dynamo Belt Slips and Members Have to Grope Way.

Washington, May 15.—Within less than five minutes after the house adjourned last night, darkness fell upon the capitol. Through the murk, members groped their way. Matches, lighted and held aloft made splotches in the general gloom and collisions were frequent. A belt on the dynamo that furnishes the power for the lights and the elevators had slipped.

"It is the judgment of heaven," said former Speaker Cannon when, in groping his way around in the speakers' lobby, he collided violently with Representative Clayton, whose anti-injunction bill had just been passed over Republican opposition. "It should prove a warning to the Democratic party that its ways are not the right ways."

While the lights were out and the elevators remained at a stand-till, capitol police and employes organized into bands of rescuers and, armed with candles or boxes of matches, led panicky bands of visitors and startled members to the exits.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

VERY FINE FOR CROPS

Conditions All Over North Dakota Reported as Being About Ideal.

Soaking Rains All Over State and Other Conditions Help Outlook.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Crop conditions in North Dakota continue very satisfactory, according to reports received from various sections.

On the Missouri slope there has been a very plentiful supply of rain that has had a good effect, a four-day soaking being given the soil, and during that time nearly an inch and a half of water fell.

Prospects for the germination of the grain are of the very best, as dry, warm weather has followed the heavy rainfall. The moisture supply in that district is sufficient for the demands which will be made for some little time.

Central Part Soaked.

In the central section of the state there has been much the same kind of a soaking. In Foster county, since April 6, there has been a fall of 8.15 inches of rain, which seems to be sufficient for carrying the crop for some little time. The soil conditions in Foster county are such that there never has been too much rain, and the farmers are not fearful of being drowned out.

The Red river valley and the northern section of the state also are in good condition. The wheat is well up and it is showing a very fine growth. The farmers now are busy sowing corn, barley and similar grains, wheat seeding, of course, being at an end.

The conditions at present bear out the earlier prospects of a good crop, and with continued weather of the kind that has been doled out, the state undoubtedly will harvest a fine yield. It has been a little too cold in places during the past few days, but this week it has warmed up very materially.

STATE W. C. T. U. TO HAVE INSTITUTE

Annual Gathering of North Dakota Organization at Devils Lake in July.

Devils Lake, N. D., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—A capable staff of temperance workers has been secured for the annual W. C. T. U. institute which is to be one of the features of the twentieth annual assembly of the North Dakota chautauqua which will open here June 29. The W. C. T. U. institute will open July 2 and continue through to July 14. Woman suffrage will be given prominence in the addresses. The state president, Mrs. Elizabeth Preston Anderson of Valley City, will conduct the institute and Col. Bain will be the platform speaker.

July 5 is announced as temperance rally day and the morning program will be opened with a discussion on "What Must North Dakota Women Do to Win the Ballot." Rev. Hugh Quigley of Drayton will follow with an address on "Women as Citizens," and short talks will be called for from those favoring the ballot for women. A reception will be held in the afternoon at the Baldwin cottage and in the evening the entertainment will be at the auditorium where Col. Bain will lecture on "If I Could Live Life Over Again."

Some of the Speakers.

Mrs. Anderson, the state president, will be in charge of the opening day, appointing committees and giving talks on the purpose of the Chautauqua institute. Mrs. Barbara Wyllo of Drayton, state corresponding secretary, will conduct on July 3, her work being on the union's working tools, the various temperance publications. Miss Georgia Mar Chambers of Churchs Ferry, state secretary of young people's work, and Mrs. Lillian B. Smith of Thompson, superintendent of scientific temperance instruction, have two days for work with the children and the remainder of the time will be given to Mrs. Necia Buck of Starkweather, acting president, Dr. J. Grassick of Grand Forks and Mrs. Jean McNaughton Stevens of Towner, for the initiative and referendum, penal and reformatory work, alcohol in medicines and mothers' meetings.

BIG ST. PAUL ROBBERY.

Diamonds Valued at Over $4,000 and $357 in Cash Taken.

St. Paul, Minn., May 15.—The police are working on what is believed to be one of the largest diamond thefts ever "pulled off" in this city.

The theft was discovered Monday when James E. McCarthy, 14 West Sixth street, found that $357 in cash and thirty-five diamonds, weighing more than twenty-six karats and valued at more than $4,000, were missing from his safe.

It is believed the robbery was committed Saturday night or early Sunday morning. W. H. (Reddy) Griffen told the police he believes a clerk in the store took the property. Griffen has an office in the rear of the store.

The police are searching for Samuel Nelshofsky, alias Samuel Nelson.

Marquette, Mich., May 15.—At least twenty-five schools will participate in the Upper Peninsula high school track and field meet to be held at the fair grounds here June 1, under the auspices of the Northern State Normal Athletic association, and a successful meet is assured. From reports that have been received from outside schools it is believed that at least 1,000 persons will attend. It will be the biggest gathering of the students of the schools of the Upper Peninsula for athletic purposes that has ever been held, and it is probable that many records will be broken.

The Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic railway will make a special rate of 2 cents a mile for all the towns on its line and will also advertise the meet extensively. The Lake Superior & Ishpeming and the Munising & Southeastern railroads will also make special rates. The 2-cent rate will be operative on the St. Paul and Northwestern lines as usual. The normal school will furnish transportation for the entrants from the different schools.

What Kind of a Guarantee Do You Want, Mr. Automobile Buyer?

Flanders "20" Roadster, $750

Some of our competitors guarantee their cars for 90 days. All right; that's better than nothing and good enough for some people who don't care. It is even a quarter as good as the Studebaker guarantee.

Then there is another kind of guarantee. A guarantee ashamed of itself, we call it, because all the assurance you have is the car's "records." That is about as good as a promise that wasn't made. The dealer knows his car better than you do and if he won't sign a guarantee, be careful.

This is where the Studebaker guarantee comes to the front. It is as good as gold—a signed warranty bond of The Studebaker Corporation. And it's good for a year because every Studebaker E-M-F "30" or Flanders "20" is worth the price you pay for it. We know what our cars will do and we put down our money on them.

Any Man May Easily Regain

New Vitality

Strong, vigorous vitality, the crowning glory of mature healthy manhood.

Do you know, reader, what this means to you?

If by these few simple inspired words (which every man may with profit read) I should be the means of pointing out to you or other men the straight and sure, if narrow, road to new manhood, new powers, new capacities for a better and more glorious physical and vital development, then in doing this I have rendered a great and lasting service to my fellow beings, and one which is infinite in its power for good.

This self-same VITALITY, this builder of manhood and manly vigor, may easily be regained, and I will tell you how.

Have you ever stopped to consider that it is this VITAL FORCE which makes rugged men the real men that they are? It is this same MAN FORCE which is behind every great achievement in the world today, which gives the flower of our army and navy the courage to meet and face death unflinchingly, which gives the rough and rugged man of the plains that compelling power to rescue at all odds a loved one from some great peril, as our illustration here portrays, and it is this self-same, identical VITAL VIGOR which I must impart to you, reader, if you are not the man you should be.

Therefore, if I give you new vitality, I make you young again and keep you feeling young the balance of your days. By increasing your vital supply, I soon have you answering "Simply feeling fine" to your friends' morning greetings, while they in their turn will secretly marvel at the wondrous change for the better which has come over you. A thoroughly vital manly man is the greatest inspiration in the world; his power and fascination are felt by all women and all men alike who are near him. Nothing but death can conquer the giant of strength and manly vigor. On the other hand, how different with the half-man, the neurasthenic degenerate, who is burning up his vitality in dissipation and excesses! Is there any sight more pitiable, more repellant to one's sense of decency, than the weakling who deliberately kills his manhood and self-respect by acts of willful debauchery? Such a man has neither my sympathy nor can he profit by what of wisdom I can impart. But any man who is willing to make a fair, square fight for the return of his lost vitality and lost manhood, who will promise faithfully and honestly to discontinue any debasing practices or excesses he may be indulging, who will help me thus by helping himself to such, no matter how dependent he may be, no matter how weak and debilitated, no matter what years of folly have passed, to such a man I can offer all the encouragement in the world. Just lead a decent man's life, my friend, and then increase your VITALITY. All else will come.

I make and distribute a vitalizing appliance which I call a HEALTH BELT. I do not want you to get one of these HEALTH BELTS now or tomorrow nor next week, for that matter, but first wish you to write for or call and get one of my little free books. I want you to thus have my whole story of this subject of VITALITY, so that you may judge for yourself. My HEALTH BELT, with suspensory attachment, is a complete treatment in itself; that is, you place it comfortably around your waist nights when you go to bed and wear it all the time when you are asleep. The vitality which it produces and sends into your system hour after hour is felt as it flows in. There is no shock but merely a pleasant, warm, soothing sensation which induces a sound, refreshing sleep. Weak back often disappears at once, and a better feeling is immediately experienced. Two or three months' wear is usually sufficient. The cost is nominal. With special attachments, my HEALTH BELT is used by women as well as men for rheumatism, kidney, liver, stomach, bladder disorders, etc.

BRUCE'S COLUMN

COMMENT AND DIVERS DISCUSSION OF THE MERRY WORLD OF SPORT.

JUST at the present time Jack Curley is busy sending out dope regarding the Flynn-Johnson fight. One of the plaints of the big promoter is that most of the writers who are whaling Flynn and belittling his chances against the black are chaps who have not even seen the Pueblo fireman in action. But Curley might stop and think for one moment. There are records of the two men. True it is that the dope book will furnish some funny light on the ring career of Johnson; but, nevertheless, there is a hunch among the better informed of ring followers that the black is one of the greatest fighters who has ever crawled through the ropes. When here, and since then at various other places, Curley has stated that Flynn was not knocked out in the fight with Johnson at San Francisco. The 1912 dope book was handy and was consulted. There is the K. O. after the fight, just as plain as the efforts of a bald-headed man to make his hair cover a large amount of territory. The fight was held Nov. 2, 1907, and according to the record book was won by Johnson by the knockout.

Curley argues that Johnson was unable to knock out the fireman at that time and that Flynn has improved a great deal since the date of the first fight with the negro. If the premises are right, then Curley has some foundation for his argument; but if Johnson really knocked Flynn out, what is all this stuff that the Chicago promoter is telling us?

We are of the opinion that Flynn is better at the present time than ever before. But if he were three times as good as he was the time he fought Bill Papke and had nothing on the Kewaunee boy, he would not have any chance to beat the Johnson that stood before Jeffries at Reno.

There is always the chance. Jim Corbett, they said, didn't have the slim, blue chance that is accorded a ghost in this material age, against the mighty John L. Sullivan—and yet he was the winner of the fight. Fitzsimmons was accorded a chance against Jack Dempsey, and yet he made the efforts of the Nonpariel look pitiable. Coming down to later years, you may recall that few of you would give Young Corbett a look in on that cold Thanksgiving afternoon at Hartford, Conn.—well, it all runs for Sweeney—he won, and that, too, in a manner that left no doubt as to who was the better man of the two.

There is always the chance, Angus, but if the dope is going to run at all true to form the coming canter, it will be Johnson on the winning end and that by the easiest of margins.

P. S. One of the obstacles against the winning by the black, is the fact that Bob Edgren, the man who picked Jeffries to beat the spade, and Jim Corbett have stated that Johnson should win.

BILLY RIGG used to put coupons in his baking powder and have the cooks in the lumber camps bed the horses with the stuff so they could accumulate enough of the tickets to get a watch. One of the lumber barons complained and Bill reduced the value of the coupons—now they bed the horses twice a day. A good sport will always take a chance.

IF THE weather man will behave during the day there will be an opening at the baseball park. To date the weather has postponed the washing, the housecleaning, the fly season, straw hats, talks of ourselves in the park, pink parasols, the debuts of bleached blondes and baseball. Some crimes, eh, to charge against the weather!

Both teams were ready yesterday. Brother Brown of Winnipeg is of the opinion that he has the best team in the league, and some of his players look broad shouldered and capable. The parade was almost ready to preamble when the rain came and caused umbrellas to go up and expectations to take a contrary course. Wild adjectives that we have known were brought out by the peculiar conduct of the weather, also.

Noah spent a bad spring that year he floated the ark with the thoroughly watered stock; but since then there are few comparisons with the very grievous case that we have on our hands at the present time.

But if the weather will permit, the parade, the speeches and the other festivities will be held today and the opening of the season will be on again.

TELEGRAPHIC dispatches from Las Vegas state that Senator Tripp, father of the bill that permits prize fights in New Mexico, and Mayor Taupert of Las Vegas acted as imaginary posts while the arena was being staked out. We wonder if there is anything in the appearance and general character of these two men that lead to them being selected as imaginary posts.

CYRUS McCORMICK of Chicago has donated $25,000 to the Princeton football team for winning the championship. He has also recommended that part of the money be expended for the erection of a gate at the entrance of the field. Politeness would naturally suggest a litho or bust or crayon etching of Cy somewhere around the old gate. Modesty is one of the troubles with these plutes.

OLYMPIC TRYOUTS WILL BE HELD NEXT SATURDAY

Philadelphia, May 15. — The near approach of the Olympic games is emphasized by the fact that next Saturday is the date for three important try-outs. At London the British Olympic committee will hold the official tryouts for the selection of the track and field team which is to represent Great Britain. At Palo Alto, on the athletic grounds of Leland Stanford university, will be held the tryouts for all the Pacific coast candidates for the American team, while in New York the American candidates for the Penthathon will battle for supremacy.

These three tests will furnish the athletic world with pretty accurate information as to the standard of athletic excellence which will mark the English and American teams. The English tryouts, of course, will be more important than those of the Pacific coast. This is because the English meet will bring together all of the candidates of the United Kingdom from England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales. The Pacific coast tryouts, on the contrary, will represent only a small section of this country, but it should be said that the three states of California, Washington and Oregon will contribute an unusual amount of strength to the American team.

Because of the fact that the American committee recognizes that the main opposition at Stockholm will be that furnished by the English team the deepest interest is being taken in the English games this week. It is pretty generally understood here and in England that the British Olympic committee is depending to a great extent upon the representatives of Oxford and Cambridge for its strength. Four years ago there prevailed an unusual amount of indifference at both these universities, but these games, and in consequence the English team was made up almost exclusively of club men. This time the Oxford and Cambridge men have been brought to see that it is a part of their duty as English citizens to contribute as much athletic strength as they possess. Consequently they have been making this feature of their work of more importance than their own dual game.

At this writing it looks as though Oxford and Cambridge would contribute the first string of men for the 100, the 200, 400, 800 and 1,500 meters runs. In every one of these events these two universities possess men who are probably the equal of the best that the United States can produce. A brief analysis of these candidates shows unusual strength in every one of the five events referred to. In the 100 meters England will have McMillan of Cambridge university, who if he runs to form should be an even choice with Craig, the former Michigan man, running at his very best. McMillan has done 9 4-5 seconds for 100 yards repeatedly and under adverse weather conditions. He seems to be better the faster he goes and can run the quarter mile in fifty seconds or better. This means that he will run the 200 meters fully as well as the 100 meters. The arrangement of the Olympic program this year will make it possible for a man of McMillan's strength to run the 100, the 200 and 400 meters dashes. In the 400 meters the English universities have another good man in Black.

For the 800 and 1,500 meters runs the British will again depend upon two collegians. Their star in the 800 meters is P. J. Baker of Cambridge. Baker has repeatedly run the half mile in 1.57 or better, but has never been pushed. English critics are united in the belief that he can run the distance well under 1.55, and they are equally confident that he can hold his own with Jones of Cornell or Sheppard of New York.

J. KILBANE BEATS BURNS

Featherweight Champion Wins Easily Over Fast Jersey City Fighter.

New York, May 15.—Johnny Kilbane of Cleveland, the featherweight champion, outfought Frankie Burns of Jersey City in a fast 10-round bout at the St. Nicholas Athletic club here last night.

At the ringside Kilbane weighed 122½ pounds and Burns 122 pounds.

Burns had the better of the first and fifth rounds. Otherwise it was all Kilbane's. For the greater part of the battle Burns used only his left arm, while Kilbane used both hands to the body and head with telling effect. The champion's footwork enabled him to evade several well-aimed blows and by side-stepping and ducking Kilbane staggered his man repeatedly. In the fourth Kilbane landed a hard right uppercut which drew the blood from Burns' mouth. Burns kept putting lefts to the stomach, but the blows did not seem to effect Kilbane.

In the sixth round Burns put a hard left to the wind and Kilbane came back with left and right uppercuts to the face. Burns, with left and right swings to the body and on general leading, had the best of this round. From this stage on Kilbane was master. Burns put left to the face, and body in the next session and Kilbane kept jabbing and uppercutting. There was a fast mix-up here with honors in Kilbane's favor. They exchanged lefts to the head and in the eighth Kilbane gave an exhibition of clever blocking until another mix-up occurred.

The champion was very fast in the ninth round, at the close of which Burns was bleeding from the left eye. Kilbane rushed his man in the tenth, sending lefts and rights to the head, trying for a knockout. Burns took punishment bravely and landed several left-hand jabs. Then he tried to mix it, but Kilbane beat him back with rights and lefts to the face and a right hook to the jaw. They were fighting hard at the bell, with Kilbane landing three blows to one. After the battle Kilbane did not show a mark, while Burns was badly cut up about the face.

AUTO EXHIBIT IS INTERESTING

Chalmers Factory Is Demonstrating at Office of Mutual Auto Company.

"An automobile is a wonderful thing—one of the most wonderful pieces of machinery in the world," said H. J. Filiatrault, at whose salesroom the Chalmers "parts exhibit" is being shown.

"Just stop a motor car on the street and lift the motor bonnet. In five minutes there will be a crowd about the car, each man, woman and child on tip-toe to see the works. Everybody is interested in what happens inside a motor because a motor car is the greatest piece of machinery man has ever built for himself. It is almost human.

"And it takes wonders to build a wonder. The place where cars are built is just as interesting as the car itself.

"The Chalmers company was about the first to throw its factory open to the public. The result has been an average of over a dozen visitors a day for the past year. During the summer months, the company has to run special cars to take care of the visitors.

"Not one who goes through the factory but is impressed with the wonders there. In the parts making departments there are, literally, forests of belts and machinery. The most intricate and best machine tools in the world are used in building motor cars.

"Think of a purely automatic machine into which is fed bar steel, and out of which comes a nut, or a bolt with head and threads all out, or a valve bonnet, or a complicated bushing. And that is only one of hundreds. I was admiring a gear machine one day when one of the machinists said to me, 'Say, that machine would talk if it had to.'

"But everyone cannot go to this great factory; and so the Chalmers company has sent the factory to the public.

"In this educational exhibit are shown over 100 of the principal working parts of a Chalmers car. A factory expert shows and explains just how every part is made. He shows how the parts are tested with gauges that measure less than one one-thousandth of an inch. He shows how the moving cylinder parts are balanced to give quietness and smooth operation.

"There are gears, broken in two to show the texture of the steel. There are complicated forgings and wonderful examples of gear cutting.

"Perhaps you who read this have never seen inside a motor car; perhaps you have never been in a modern automobile factory. Here, then, is a really educational exhibit. After seeing these many parts, one cannot but realize that the motor car is the marvel of the age.

"To make the exhibit as complete as possible and really bring the factory to us, there is a pictorial story of the Chalmers plant showing some of the wonderful things I have mentioned.

"I cannot help feeling that this is a great opportunity for everyone interested in motor cars and their building to learn a great deal. Everyone is welcome."

WEATHER SPOILS "MINNY" OPENING

Eau Claire and Winona Play Ragged Five Innings in Rain.

Winona, Minn., May 15.—Eau Claire and Winona opened the Minny league season here yesterday with a five-inning game in a downpour of rain. With a small opening day crowd, a ragged game was played on a muddy field. The short game ended with a five to one score in favor of Eau Claire. Bersing and Benrud were the battery for Eau Claire and Brackett and Chapman for Winona.

The regular Rochester-La Crosse game was declared off on account of the weather and a three-inning exhibition game played, ending with a one to one score.

GIBSON STILL THERE.

Veteran Pittsburg Catcher Is Playing Great Game This Year.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 15.—Before the season started George Gibson was slated for the discard heap. It was pointed out that Gibson has put in his best years in the national sport and was about ready to retire or hit the toboggan with some minor club. But Gibson has fooled his destiny pilots by showing in better class than in past seasons. The vet of the catching corps of the Pirates has been slamming the ball well, has been pegging to bases in the same manner that built up his reputation as the most feared backstop around the circuit, and, all told, is the pivot of the team.

Gibbie was ill last year, which accounted for his falling off in form, but this year he has started like a world beater and as long as he plugs like he is now, George will call regularly for his pay envelope from Barney Dreyfus.

WAS NO MATCH FOR GIBBONS

St. Paul Fighter Administers an Awful Drubbing to Paddy Lavin.

Buffalo, May 15.—Mike Gibbons of St. Paul gave Paddy Lavin of Buffalo a terrific beating in eight rounds of a bout of ten rounds here last night. The referee stopped the bout and waved Lavine to his corner after the Buffalo boy had taken the count of nine five times, three at the close of the seventh and twice in the eighth.

Gibbons took the measure of his man in the first round, putting rights and lefts to the face and uppercutting repeatedly in clinches. Lavin took the count of nine in the third and the bell found him groggy.

Gibbons let up in the next three rounds, but in the seventh went in to finish his man. He jabbed, uppercut and swung at will until the Buffalo boy was just able to hold up his hands. At the opening of the eighth Gibbons protested against further punishing Lavin, but the referee waved them to the center. Gibbons sent Lavin to the floor twice with rights to the chin, and although Lavin was able to stand up at the count of nine, the referee stopped the bout.

WAITING FOR SUNSHINE

Steady Downpour Caused Postponement of the New League Festivities.

Rain, that sticks like a poor relation after the festivities of Christmas have passed into history, put yesterday's proposed opening on the fritz. With the weather willing, the grand opening of the Central International is due for the parade, the band, the speeches and the ball game between Duluth and Winnipeg this afternoon.

There may have been worse springs than the present one, but it will require a veteran of the upholstered chair and the borrowed newspaper type, to recall them. The opening may come today—and it may come at the end of a week or so; few of us have any confidence in the weather or the geek who is responsible for it.

With the Winnipeg team here and the automobiles arranged for the parade, as well as several speeches rehearsed, and with Joe purchasing a new hat for the occasion, the only little detail that remains as an intervention to the hostilities, is the aforementioned and aforecursed weather.

At 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon the directors met by accident over the telephone. Director E. H. Lee was wiring promiscuously in search of President McCuen and they ran into several cross conversations from the other directors. The cross can be used in two ways. It was decided then and there to call off the festivities, which had been thoroughly soaked, for the day, and to await for sunshine and just a little bit of genial warmth.

With the conditions anything like favorable today the game will go and the delayed opening of the new International season will go down into history.

FLICKERTAILS TAKE OPENER

Rain did not prevent the opening of the league season in Superior yesterday afternoon. Grand Forks and the Red Hose hooked up, the Flickertails winning out by the close score of 1 to 0.

Rain reduced the parade somewhat, but there was a fair crowd of fans on hand when Silver Joe Konkle started the season on its way by throwing the first ball across.

The game resolved itself into a pitchers battle between Rhodes and Wilson, neither twirler allowing undue familiarity with his curves. A two-base hit and two passed balls proved the undoing of Rhodes, paving the way for the only run of the game. Superior threatened several times, but could not put the tying run across the pan.

They will be eight feet wide and will cover that part of the streets involved in which walks have not yet been laid. They are Second, Fifth, McKinley, Garfield and Lincoln avennes and the total will involve a large figure.

A special meeting will be held today to consider changes in the paving specifications, bids for which will be opened May 21.

M. H. Alworth of Duluth, one of the owners of property that would be affected if Second avenue were opened as planned, sent a communication to the mayor to the effect that he and his associates had considered the request to open up the avenue, but had decided that it did not appear to be necessary, and they felt obliged to decline the petition.

Ely Man Accused By Woman of Assault Is Found Not Guilty.

Virginia, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The case of John Backa, who shot and mortally wounded his wife, has been placed at the foot of the calendar and will be tried again during the present term of the district court according to E. L. Boyle, assistant county attorney. The defense will not have the trial at the Hibbing term and Mr. Boyle is not willing to have it go over until the next term at Virginia.

The case of Jeftu Kostich has been continued to the term of the court at Hibbing. Peter Peccala and Carmeno Parretto who were charged with illegal liquor selling at the village of Costin have pleaded guilty and are awaiting sentence. On motion of the county attorney the case against Nick Black charged with threatening to use a knife on his wife was dismissed. The husband and wife adjusted their trouble and both desired to live together again. The parties are from Buhl.

The cases against Jack Johnson and Matt Jackson, charged with assault and also Frank Brezich, same offense, have been continued to the Hibbing term of the court. These cases are on appeal from the municipal court at Chisholm.

Ely Man Acquitted.

The jury in the case of Gaspar Skandavich charged with an assault on Barbara Drujah found the defendant not guilty. The complaining witness keeps a boarding house at Ely. During the trial of the case which lasted nearly two days Mrs Drujah was the only woman in the courtroom.

The case of the state against Edward Harju charged with using a knife on Oscar Anderson in a melee in the Frisco cafe in Virginia, is on trial today. The offense is alleged to have been committed on Feb. 7, election day.

The trial of Gust Mattila charged with using a gun at Chisholm has been continued to the next term of the court as defendant's witnesses can not be found. The case of the state against E. F. O'Malley, charged with grand larceny in the second degree, together with Joseph Blake are also continued by request of the county attorney as state witnesses who are wanted can not be found. The case of Valno Salmi, a high school boy, charged with bastardy, will await the return of John Salmi, the boy's father from Florida and there is a probability that this case will be settled out of court.

TO ENTERTAIN COUNTY CLUBS

Chisholm Getting Ready for Annual Gathering There on May 28.

Chisholm, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The St. Louis county Commercial clubs will have their annual outing and business session here May 28. A committee consisting of G. L. Train, Dr. Kirk, Phil Floof, Judge Freeman, S. Sapero and Oscar Arneson appeared before the council at its last meeting and secured $250 for the entertainment fund and this will be added to by public subscription. Three bands, the Oliver, National and the high school bands have been engaged for the occasion and the visitors will be taken aboard flat cars arranged with seats and taken to the Oliver club house at Sturgeon lake, where a "fish fry" will take place, besides other outdoor amusements. During the afternoon they will return here and at the opera house a business session will be held together with a banquet. Mr. McGonagie of Duluth, James Boyle of Eveleth, Attorney Warren Greene of Duluth and C. T. Knapp of this city will speak. Mayor Austin will deliver an address of welcome.

PHONE COMPANY GIVEN WARNING

Chisholm Commercial Club Wants Dropper System Installed at Once.

Chisholm, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Commercial club Monday evening passed a resolution calling on the Range Telephone company to at least start the installation of the central energy system, better known as the dropper system, within thirty days, otherwise steps will be taken to canvass the city and have the telephones removed. This action was taken after several of the business men stated that the telephone company had from time to time promised the improvement and that no action has been taken to make the change.

Messrs. Day of Hibbing and Lister of Virginia, range managers, were here last week and stated that the company has the matter under advisement and that no doubt the change would be made this summer. At the meeting of the Commercial club six-teen members arose and stated that they would request that the telephones be disconnected from their places if the company did not make their promise good within the thirty days designated in the resolution.

People Are Aroused.

The meeting was largely attended and many heated arguments were had over the telephone situation and it is safe to say that unless some change is made within a short time steps will be taken to have a local company organized to care for the patrons. It was stated at the meeting by a prominent business man that representatives of a range company have been at the several cities and were here last week for the purpose of getting a telephone company organized among the range business men and that this matter should be taken up and encouraged.

Biwabik, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.) — The chairman of the different committees are getting things in shape for the Mesaba range firemen's tournament, which will be held here July 24, 25 and 26. Every effort is being made to make this tournament the best ever held by the Mesaba range volunteer firemen.

The local department will give their fourth annual uniform dance Friday evening, May 17. The Biwabik City band will furnish the music The dance will be held at the Finnish Temperance hall. All are cordially invited to attend.

CANCEL POLICIES.

Hibbing Insurance Agents Take No Chance on Risk.

Hibbing, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Because information reached them that a foreign miner, residing at one of the locations near Hibbing, had made two unsuccessful attempts to burn his home that he might secure the insurance money, local agents of fire insurance companies, holding the risks on the property, cancelled their policies.

Neighbors allege that a deliberate attempt was made to fire the building from the outside the first of the week and also that some week ago an attempt to start a blaze on the second floor was thwarted by the prompt interference of neighbors.

HIBBING'S "FINEST" HAVE NEW UNIFORMS.

Hibbing, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—If the sun ever shines again on the Mesaba range consistently and for any length of time, the Hibbing police force will stand forth in the splendor of new uniforms and helmets. The entire squad has received brand new uniforms. The uniforms are like those used by the officers in the larger cities and will give the local force the appearance of a typical Broadway copper.

MANY NOW MOTOR AROUND HIBBING

Owners of Machines Increase Interest in Good Roads and Outings.

Hibbing, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—There are upward of 100 automobiles in Hibbing and during the past week ten new cars have been sold to local people. Most of them went to people who did not own machines before. The automobile has had the effect of placing Hibbing in closer connection with some of the natural beauty spots of this region and incidentally has started a healthy interest in the good roads movement.

Sturgeon Lake Popular.

There will be a considerably increased summer colony from Hibbing at Sturgeon lake this summer and the resorts to the west in Itasca county will also be much favored by people from this city. A movement has been started for the organization of a local automobile club and it is probable that its first run will be to Lake Pokegama, where it is proposed to have a clubhouse. On the day of the run there will be a clam bake and general big time at Pokegama bay. Local motor enthusiasts are anticipating the event with considerable interest.

COLD STORAGE PLANT PLANNED

First Concern of Kind on Mesaba Range to Be Built at Hibbing.

Hibbing, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Burrows Packing company, recently organized with Hibbing business men at the head and capitalized at $50,000 has purchased the abattoirs and plant of the Hibbing Rendering company, south of town, and is preparing to build a cold storage plant here of concrete with modern equipment and located on the right-of-way of the Great Northern.

First on Mesaba Range.

The company is one of the first of its kind on the range. At the present time it is slaughtering about two cars of cattle a week here, besides a car of calves. Today the first car of hogs handled by the new concern arrived.

The promoters believe the business will grow to be an important factor in furnishing the meat supplies for all the large territory of the Mesaba range.

POIRIER STILL HOLDS DOWN JOB

D. D. Morgan, Chosen to Supercede Him, Has Not Assumed Office.

Virginia, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Otto A. Poirier is still acting as city attorney and D. D. Morgan, who was appointed to the position one week ago, has not had his appointment signed by the mayor. The mayor is non-committal as to why he does not sign the resolution.

Mr. Morgan has been neutral in the differences that have arisen, as he was one of the three referees appointed by Mayor Murphy, to give an opinion on the legality of the council doings in regard to the city attorneyship. In any instance Mr. Morgan is not the city attorney, in fact, until after the publication of the proceedings under which he was named and this has not yet been done.

ALLEGES SALOON IS GAMING PLACE

Virginia Man Makes Charges Against Proprietors of Booze Parlor.

Virginia, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.) — A sensation was sprung at the council meeting last night when Landigan & Darcy made application of a renewal of their liquor license. John Andrews stepped up to the clerk's desk and read a copy of a summons and complaint he says he will file in the district court against Landrigan & Darcy to recover $500 he claims he lost in rooms above the saloon which he asserts are used for gambling purposes. The complaint alleged that the place is a well known gambling resort, that the proprietors "sit" in the games, that they have expert gamblers engaged and that they take a divvy from the tables. After this was read Mr. Darcy, who was in the back of the room, shouted vehemently that it was a case of blackmail.

Blackmail Says Boylan.

President Boylan also asserted it was a case of blackmail. The city attorney advised that while the court case had no relation whatever to the city council, it was the duty of the council to make an investigation and if it was found this was an improper place to have a license, the license should be denied. The matter was referred to the police committee.

Alderman McGhee called the printing committee to task for not having printed the parts of the report of Burns & McDonnell on the appraisal of the water and light plant as directed, so it will be available for the people before the election May 25. The reply was that the report is not in such shape that the printers can figure on it and that it will entail an immense amount of work to do this.

The fines for the week in the municipal court amounted to $160.50. The Carle incinerator company of Minneapolis write, deeming to send a representative to the plant while it is in charge of John Rowan, engineer, saying he is incompetent and would not be instructed. Mr. Rowan was in the meeting and said he was accomplishing more than did the representative of the company and with less men employed when the plant was opened. This matter was referred to the health committee.

Tower, Minn., May 15. — (Special to The Herald.) — The Young People's club, an organization formed as its name indicates for the benefit of young people, will be aided by the Commercial club as a result of action taken by the latter organization at its last meeting. The Commercial club by a vote of 8 to 0 decided to help and encourage the young institution, Messrs. McQuade, Erkila and Frederickson were appointed a committee to look over the property of the club and report.

A proposition was received by the Commercial club from a resident of another town offering to ouild a hotel here for the summer trade, if a desirable site were secured but the offer did not arouse much enthusiasm.

Conversation was carried on with them and a tube was forced through the debris to them through which food and hot coffee were forced. Meanwhile the rescue party working in relays kept removing the debris separating the imprisoned men from freedom.

DYNAMITE LAST PARIS BANDITS

Five Police Wounded in Battle at Nogent Sur Marne.

Paris, May 15. — The career of the last of France's notorious bandit gang was dramatically ended this morning, when, after eight hours' battle with police and troops, its leader, Octave Garnier, and his confederate, Vallett, were blown up by explosives in a small village at Nogent-Sur Marne, where they had taken refuge.

Shattered by shots of dynamite, their house fell in ruins when meilenite was exploded under its walls. The police found Garnier dead and Vallet dying. Five policemen were wounded in the battle.

WATCH PANAMA ELECTIONS.

President Taft Appoints Commission to Supervise Balloting.

Washington, May 15.—President Taft has appointed a commission composed of American Minister H. Percival Dodge, at Panama, Col. Goethals, chairman of the Panama Canal commission, and Col. Henry A. Green, commanding the Tenth infantry in the canal zone, to supervise the registration of voters and the subsequent elections in Panama.

The president's action is the result of the request of the government of Panama and the two political parties to exercise such a course.

The 500 old Krag-Jorgenson rifles and 500,000 cartridges for which Dr. Arias, the Panama minister at Washington, applied to the war department several days ago, probably will not be sold to the republic.

It is possible that some of the troops of the Tenth infantry now stationed on the isthmus will be taken into Panama on the day of the registration and the elections in July.

TAFT LETS NIGHT RIDERS OFF EASY

Remits Fines of Eight Men Convicted Under Federal Law.

Washington, May 15.—President Taft has remitted the fines of eight men convicted in the so-called "night rider" tobacco cases in Kentucky, requiring the defendants to pay only the costs of the trial. The men, all members of the Burley Tobacco Growers' association, were found guilty of violation of the anti-trust law and interfering with interstate traffic in tobacco. The fines ranged from $100 to $1,000 apiece. The defendants were John Steers, Perry Stimson, A. C. Webb, Jerry S. Carter, Hugh Lee Conrad, R. Lee Conrad, Frederick J. Conrad and John Caldwell.

FOURTH NORTH CAROLINA DISTRICT FOR ROOSEVELT.

BUT ONE MORE TARIFF BILL

House Will Be Ready to Adjourn By June 15, Leaders Say.

Senators Are Dubious as to Possibility of Such Early Action.

Washington, May 15. — Plans for expediting legislation to allow congress to adjourn prior to the national political conventions, were considered at a conference of leaders of both the house and senate.

The house leaders outlined a program that they believe would conclude the business of the house by June 15. The senate leaders reached no definite conclusions, but the finance committee will meet next Thursday to consider plans for clearing up the calendar.

On the house side, it was agreed the Panama canal administration bill should be disposed of immediately following the passage of the anti-injunction bill. Then will come the naval, military academy, sundry civil and general deficiency appropriation bills.

Another Tariff Bill.

The ways and means committee is to have an opportunity, if it desires, to bring in another tariff revision bill, probably on the cotton schedule. Chairman Underwood said, however, that no more tariff legislation would be started until the senate had acted upon at least some of the bills pending on that side.

"According to our program we will be able to adjourn by June 15," said Chairman Underwood. "Much will depend upon the action of the senate however."

Meantime, on the senate side, Senator Penrose conferred with Senator Simmons, in charge of the tariff bills for the Democrats, in an effort to fix a time for votes on these measures. The question will be thrashed out at a meeting of the finance committee next Thursday.

Doubt Early Adjournment.

None of the senate leaders were sanguine as to an early adjournment. Some senators expressed the opinion that an adjournment on June 15, as planned by the house leaders, was entirely out of the question.

MINORITY IN HOUSE REBELS

Mann, Norris, Lenroot, Cannon and Dalzell Oppose "Gag" Rule.

Washington, May 15. — Revolt against a so-called "gag" rule which forced immediate consideration of the Clayton anti-injunction bill occurred in the house late Tuesday. Minority Leader Mann, Representatives Norris of Nebraska, Lenroot of Wisconsin, Cannon of Illinois and Dalzell of Pennsylvania assailed the attempt to shut off the minority from all chance of successful opposition to the measure, and finally succeeded in forcing a modification giving greater parliamentary latitude.

The Clayton bill principally would revise the laws so as to prohibit the issuance of injunctions except on notification and full investigation, unless public peace was threatened, and would limit to seven days the life of each injunction. Injunctions could only be renewed when cause was shown that such renewal was necessary.

WORDS FOR TAFT; VOTES FOR TEDDY

Maryland Republicans Adopt Resolutions But Will Obey Primaries.

Baltimore, Md., May 15.—Sixteen delegates, eight selected by friends of President Taft and eight by supporters of Theodore Roosevelt, but all instructed to vote for Roosevelt at Chicago, were elected at the Maryland Republican state convention.

Although the Taft men controlled a majority of the 129 delegates, so far as their personal affiliations were concerned, they made no effort to defeat the instructions of the preference primaries, which were for Roosevelt, and a plank was put in the platform pledging him the undivided support of the Maryland delegation. President Taft's administration was indorsed.

The Roosevelt forces yielded the position of national committeeman and pledged themselves to re-elect a Taft man, William P. Jackson.

UTAH'S VOTES WILL GO TO A PROGRESSIVE.

Salt Lake City, Utah, May 15.—The only restriction imposed upon the sixteen delegates, each with half a vote, who will represent the Democrats of Utah at the national convention in Baltimore, is that they shall support a "progressive candidate on a progressive platform." An effort in the resolutions committee to commit the delegates to the presidential candidacy of Woodrow Wilson commanded but two votes.

ORDERS COLORADO IRRIGATION BEGUN.

Washington, May 15.—President Taft has authorized Secretary Fisher of the interior department to proceed with construction of the Grand valley irrigation project in Colorado without awaiting adjuciation of the water rights. The water needed may now be taken in any lawful manner by the secretary.

GREAT LABOR BILL PASSED

Anti-Injunction Measure Is Adopted By Vote of 244 to 31.

Progressive Republicans Unite With Democrats to Carry It Through.

Washington, May 15.—Supported by all of the Progressive Republicans, the house last night passed the Clayton anti-injunction bill, 244 to 31. Every Democrat present voted for it, and the result was announced to the accompaniment of a remarkable demonstration. The legislation is regarded as one of the most advanced steps yet taken in the interests of organized labor.

Throughout the debate President Gompers, Secretary Morrison and a half dozen members of the executive committee of the American Federation of Labor were interested listeners. They occupied a front row in the members' gallery.

The opposition to the measure endeavored to put through a substitute drawn by Representative Sterling of Illinois. This modified the sweeping terms of the Clayton bill, but it was defeated 219 to 48.

It was generally said that the Clayton measure would meet with little opposition in the senate.

The bill amends the law to prohibit the issue of injunctions without notice being served on those affected. Such injunctions would be effective for seven days only, and renewal would be possible only when the court was convinced such action was necessary for the conservation of rights of property. "John Doe" injunctions would be impossible and the rights of "peaceful picketing in strikes or peaceful boycotts" would be recognized.

late for itself, or to select its own officials except a delegate to congress who has no vote. But all the same its business exceeded that of Greece, which has a king, and an army and a navy. It exceeded that of Peru, of the German colonies, of Venezuela, of Ecuador. I am not setting these down as among the great nations of the earth. But, at least, with the exception of the German colonies, they are self-governing and not one of them approaches in commercial importance our own territory of Alaska. Yet we are not permitted the remotest approach to self government."

Denied Self Government.

It does seem curious that at this very moment there should be pending in congress two bills providing for the ultimate complete independence of the Philippines, and yet it seems impossible to get even a fair hearing for a bill giving to the people of Alaska not independence, not statehood, but the same sort of territorial government that New Mexico and Arizona had until a few months ago when they were admitted to the sisterhood of states. It is the more curious for the reason that the white population of Alaska is almost wholly American. It is made up of the type of men who opened up our Pacific coast, who broke their way through the rocky gulches of Colorado, or made the long voyage around the Horn to reach the Golden Gate. Probably there is now no more distinctively American population than the 40,000 whites in Alaska.

"It cost the United States $7,200,000 to buy Alaska from Russia. 'Seward's folly' they called it then. Seward's monument well informed men will call it now. As a matter of general information, which should not be concealed in the columns of the Congressional Record, I wish to present the official statement of what that $7,200,000 has brought to the government.

"We have produced in Alaska from 1867 until 1911, $206,813,594 in minerals, and in sea and fur products the sum of $222,710,036, and we have paid into the treasury of the United States from customs, internal revenue and license taxes, and other cash items $17,117,345.73, making a total production and export from Alaska into the United States of $446,640,984.79.

Wealth From Alaska.

"The total moneys expended by the government of the United States in Alaska from 1867 to 1911 in maintaining the national government there, collecting customs and the revenues, maintaining the courts, the fur seal fisheries, boundary commissions, and generally all items of governmental expense in the Territory of Alaska have amounted only to $35,816,674.25. That leaves a difference between the productions of Alaska and the amount the government of the United States has expended therein of $410,824,310.54. This is the gross sum which the people—the merchants, banks, and the trade in the United States—have received from Alaska over the sum expended in buying and maintaining that territory. All that wealth has been produced by Alaskans, who now ask the poor boon of permission to create an agency there in aid of congress in governing themselves and creating more wealth."

Around the halls of congress the opinion is that the real reason why Alaska cannot get self government or a territorial legislature is because of its richness. Probably no piece of United States territory is being exploited to the extent that Alaska is. Men are building roads, opening mines, developing as far as they can the natural resources of the territory, but at every point they are met by precisely the same obstacles that a man trying to develop some public service corporation in a great city would encounter from the aldermen of the ward in which his property was located. Very much of the railroad capital in Alaska is English. As a matter of fact of the railroads which have opened up that territory practically all have been financed by English capital. Only after the Englishman laid the way did the Guggenheims and others of their kind get in and strive to take the profits of the earlier explorers.

HAVE QUIT "NAGGING"

Retail Grocers in the Field With Live Boosters' Club.

Aim Is Good Fellowship and Promotion of City's Welfare.

The retail grocers of Duluth are already in the "quit nagging" class, and have adopted a policy of "get together, look on the bright side, and boost" as advocated in The Herald editorial columns last evening.

The grocers' organization is a month old, so it has the honor of being first in the field. It is called the Duluth Retail Grocers' Boosters' club, and is solely for the purpose of promoting good fellowship among the grocers of the city, getting them together in a friendly way and promoting the general welfare of Duluth. The members stand ready to get behind any movement that seems worthy.

One meeting has already been held, and a second social gathering will be held this evening at Dormedy's hall, West Duluth.

The grocers already have an organization for business purposes, but their boosters' club is a separate institution. Its aim is to make the members better acquainted with each other, and to get behind any movement that is for the general welfare of the city. The meetings will be held once a month, a different part of the city being chosen each time. At each meeting, in addition to an informal smoker and entertainment, there will be a discussion of some live topic. This evening the backyard garden will be the theme.

The four delegates-at-large to the national convention and sixteen district delegates selected at the primaries will be formally elected. Judge Robert Powell of Jackson will be selected national committeeman.

TELLS OF WALL PAPER "TRUST"

Secretary Yetter of Jobbers Recounts Meeting to Fix Prices.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 15. — The eight defendants, four wall paper manufacturers and four jobbers, on trial in the federal court on a charge of having violated the Sherman anti-trust laws in the conduct of their business, met in Cleveland in May, 1910, according to W. L. Yetter of Omaha, secretary of the National Association of Wall Paper Jobbers, and discussed credits and a proposed raise in prices. The meeting was held, according to Yetter, at the instance of the manufacturers, who had asked the jobbers to name a committee to confer with a manufacturers' committee. The eight defendants constituted the two committees.

J. B. Pearse of Cleveland, according to Yetter, announced at a subsequent meeting of wall paper men here that credits and border prices had been discussed by the committee and also the status of Frank Hall of Weehawken, N. J., whose claim that he had been unable to buy wall paper for his 5 and 10-cent stores had resulted in the institution of the cases against the manufacturers and jobbers.

Yetter's testimony was not concluded. It is expected that the secretary of the meeting of the committees will be examined to ascertain just what passed.

As floor walkers, cash girls and saleswomen the members of the board of directors of the Children's Home will conduct a rummage sale Friday and Saturday at the store room of the new Elks building between Third and Fourth avenues west on First street for the benefit of the home.

An unusually large donation of dresses, suits, coats, shoes, hats, underclothing, furniture and bric-a-brac has already been sent down to the store and is being conveniently arranged there for the sale. Anyone who has anything which they can give for this sale may communicate with Mrs. A. C. The committee on arrangements for this sale consists of: Mrs. George S. Oliver, chairman; Mrs. A. C. Volk, Mrs. C. E. Lum and Mrs. J. H. McKindley, who will be the saleswomen at the sale. The Children's Home ranks high in favor among the charitable organizations of the city and citizens are always ready to do for this institution generously and quickly. The request for donations for this sale has met with a ready response and the assortment of articles should bring in a large sum to the home.

READING RECITAL.

Miss Lucine Finch Will Give Negro Stories and Songs.

Miss Lucine Finch in her recital of unpublished negro stories and religious songs of the Old South, which she will give this evening at 8 o'clock at the Endion M. E. church under the auspices of the Association of Collegiate Alumnae, promises to draw a large audience. Her fame as an interpreter of this fascinating folk lore and of the weird as well as humorous sides of the African nature which she learned from an old negro mammy, has spread throughout the country and it is with the most pleasant anticipation that a large number of her admirers await her appearance here.

The entertainment is heralded as unique and entertaining in a novel and delightful way, and has the added charm of being given by Miss Finch in a quaint costume and in candle light.

This is the first effort to be made by the Alumnae association of this city towards the raising of a fund to be used as a scholarship to send some Duluth girl away to college each year.

THE EVENING STORY

THE PARABLE OF THE SNOWDROP

By Edith McKinna.

The wintry sun was shedding its rays down into a large beautiful garden, in one corner of which, beneath a laurel bush, there grew a solitary snowdrop. It had bloomed there for three long days, and although many people had walked around in the garden not one of them had noticed the little drooping flower.

On this particular morning the little snowdrop was feeling sad at heart, for it had just seen a little boy come bounding down the gravel path shouting in childish glee. He had rushed past the laurel bush without glancing at the little snowdrop, and as the boy's song died away in the distance the little flower hung its head and wept bitterly.

"God sent me down here to bloom on this bare earth that the hearts of young and old might rejoice at the approach of spring," it said, between its sobs. "But nobody seems to care for me. The little boy who rushed past me just now did not think of looking on the ground for a tiny snowdrop—he was too happy with other thoughts. He was free from school, he felt the balmy breeze fan his cheeks, and he was happy he knew not why. Does nobody love me?" cried the snowdrop in great distress.

At that moment the little snowdrop heard footsteps coming down the gravel path. Not the flying footsteps of youth this time, but the slow, tottering steps of age. The little snowdrop listened attentively as the steps came very, very slowly towards the laurel bush, and then, oh joy! stopped in front of it. There was a long silence during which the little flower dare not raise its head. The only sound that broke the silence was the carol of a bird in a nearby tree.

At last, a deep, tender human voice murmured, "Dear little snowdrop, sweet little flower sent from God, the first flower of the year, dear little friend and favorite of my childhood's sunny days, and still my favorite in my declining years, bloom on, little snowdrop, on this fair earth, sweet herald of a happier time—" here the voice quavered and stopped.

The snowdrop had listened to these words with a thrill of joy, and now, raising its head, it looked up. There stood on the gravel path an old man about 80 years of age, with a wealth of curly white hair framing a face of almost divine peace and beauty. His eyes were of deep blue, and a tender light glowed in their depths, as they were fixed on the snowdrop.

The old man bent down and took the little flower between his finger and thumb, and turning its little head up, he looked for a long into its pure face. "Little friend," he murmured rather sadly, "you will go on blooming here, year after year, long after I have vanished from this earth forever. You will delight the eyes of the little children who will live here in the future. Old men will look upon your purity and loveliness, as I have looked, and will rejoice as I have rejoiced. Little snowdrop, bloom on in peace. Remember that the little modest flower very often sheds around it a far greater peace and fragrance than is felt in the presence of a more splendid and stately flower."

The old man smiled very tenderly at the little trembling snowdrop as he said these words, and gently took away his hand. The little snowdrop once more hung its head and wept, but not tears of sadness this time. No, they were tears of joy. The snowdrop had learned a lesson from the old man. Although the snowdrop knew that it had been sent into the world to cheer other people's hearts, yet until then its own heart had been filled with sadness, and so it had perhaps failed in its work.

Just then the sound of flying childish feet were again heard coming along the gravel path, and the same little boy came bounding up, panting and breathless. "Hullo, Grandpa!" he cried, "what are you looking at?" The old man pointed to the little snowdrop without speaking. The little boy looked down at the flower, and then, turning round, he said,

"It's a little snowdrop, Grandpa. Why did I not see it before? I have passed this laurel bush ever so many times, and I have never noticed it. I do love snowdrops, Grandpa."

"You have got a pair of beautiful bright eyes," said the old man smiling tenderly as he gently brushed aside the curling hair from the boy's bright eager face. "And God meant us to use our eyes always; in our work and in our play, in our rambles in the country or by the sounding sea, and in our own gardens. Remember this, my boy, and your life will be all the happier."

The child looked grave for a moment, and then he suddenly bent down and kissed the tiny snowdrop, whispering as he did so, "Good bye, little snowdrop, I will come and see you every day. Good bye just now," and putting his hand into his grandfather's, they wandered slowly down the path together, leaving the little snowdrop with a peace and happiness which it had never known before.

The bird in the sheltering laurel bush seemed to understand, for at that moment it burst into a loud song of praise and thanksgiving to the Almighty.

Twice a day for seven years, Edward Flanagan and Neel Edwards, who are at the Orpheum this week, have indulged in a stage quarrel and a reconciliation. During that entire time they have never had a genuine quarrel.

The act "On and Off" is one of the best known sketches in vaudeville. These two young actors have presented it in every city of any size in America, during the last seven years. It tells the story of two vaudeville actors who have a disagreement on the stage. They leave and go to their dressing room, the curtain being lifted to show them entering their room. Here they quarrel while they remove their make-up. Later a reconciliation is effected. The act is full of bright comedy which is especially appreciated by those who are familiar with the life and habits of stage people.

Duluth will probably be the last city to see this act, as the two men have been rehearsing a sequel to it called "Off and On," which will be given a trial performance in Fort William next week, and if successful will be taken to Chicago.

Flanagan and Edwards are looked upon as the Damon and Pythias of the Orpheum circuit. They are very close chums, and for seven years, while they have been quarreling on the stage, they have maintained a very close friendship. Both are keen sport lovers and have so many interests in common that one of them is rarely seen unless the other is present. Flanagan is a baseball player and amateur boxer of some little note, and Edwards is a most enthusiastic yachtsman, having a boat on Long Island sound on which he spends all his spare time in the summer.

Miss Dudley of Maxwell and Dudley, whose charming singing playlet, "For Sweet Charity," is one of the hits of this week's bill at the Empress, is a charming miss and is ever ready to talk about her work and always has a boost for her fellow performers. "One of Mr. Maxwell's lines in our little playlet is: 'If the people at large did as much for charity as the actor charity would receive a big boost,' " says Miss Dudley, "and I certainly think this is a fact. I do not say this because I am a performer, but because I honestly thing a more charitably inclined class of people than the performers does not exist. I have yet to hear of a performer who refused to donate his or her services to help along any worthy charity and as a rule they will undergo any loss of time and money to perform for charity's sake. Not only will they do this to help out fellow performers, but utter strangers, and I think every one will agree with me in saying that the actor is a generous giver to charity. This may sound like self-praise, but I think facts will bear out my statements." Maxwell & Dudley are presenting one of the most entertaining playlets of the year. The theme of their sketch is different from that of the usual run of vaudeville playlets, the lines are bright and witty, and the singing numbers introduced by them have greatly pleased all who have witnessed their performances this week.

FEE OWNERS VISIT MINES

A party of seven fee owners of iron lands and iron mines on the Mesaba range, representing the major part of what is known at Duluth as the "Murphy, Dorr & Flynn interests," met yesterday afternoon at the Spalding hotel and started on their annual tour of inspection of these properties. The group included r. H. Pearson of Chicago, Temple F. Dorr of Saginaw, W. H. Murphy and James Flynn of Detroit, Arthur H. Fleming of Pasadena, E. C. Whitney of Ottawa and C. A. Werrhaeuser of Little Falls. The party was joined at Duluth by W. R. Van Slyke of Eveleth and John A. Redfern of Hibbing.

The properties which are owned by the "Murphy, Dorr & Flynn interests" are exceedingly rich, including the Fayal, Adams, Spruce and Genon mines. They were purchased in the earlier days of the state by the late Simon J. Murphy, E. H. Flinn and E. M. Fowler of Detroit, together with Temple E. Dorr, for the sake of the timber. No one dreamed at that time of the fabulous mineral wealth that the land contained, and it was purchased simply because it took very little more money to buy the timber with the land than to buy the timber without the land.

DRAGGED OUT BY FARMER

Range Automobile Goes Into Mudhole on Way to Duluth.

Car Sent to Its Relief Not Yet Heard From.

P. R. Vail's automobile was stuck in the mud seven miles from Duluth for over three hours last evening. Young Nicholas Vail, the son of the former senator of Virginia, Miss Lenora Vail and her friend, Miss Ida Jallie, were in the machine, which made the trip from Virginia yesterday.

The party set out for Duluth shortly after the dinner hour. The roads were in pretty bad shape, but there was no mishap until the mudhole inside the city limits of the city was struck. There was no possible way to get the machine out and the dreary and wet houra dragged by.

Finally young Vail succeeded in getting a farmer to bring his team down to the mudhole and pull the mired auto out. The young people reached the St. Louis hotel shortly before 10 o'clock.

Senator Vail came down on the train an dbecame alarmed yesterday afternoon when the party failed to appear. He telephoned Virginia and found that they had left and had not returned to the range city. He then tried to get one of the local automobile companies to send a machine out in search of the young people. The senator was told that the roads were too muddy to take the risk.

With this information Mr. Vail became still more alarmed and called Virginia again on the long distance and ordered an auto from there to start out on a relief expedition. It is thought that the machine from the range is still on the road. Nothing has been heard from it.

Shortly after the seator had finished telephoning the party reached the city.

PLAN FIGHT OVER INDUSTRIAL UNIT

Socialist Factions Will Clash on "Immediate Revolution."

Indianapolis, Ind., May 15.—"Opportunist" delegates to the Socialist national convention, led by Congressman Victor Berger of Wisconsin, are prepared to oppose an effort, when the committee on constitution reports, to commit the party to an indorsement of the "industrial unit" form of labor organization.

This action is sought by the Industrial Workers of the World, headed by William D. Haywood, and delegates in sympathy with the "direct action" campaign of the Industrial Workers declared that would demand Socialist indorsement of "immediate revolution for possession of the means of production," either upon the report of the constitution committee, expected today, or upon the reports of the platform and resolutions committees, which are to be submitted before the nomination of candidates for president and vice president Friday afternoon.

NEW VITALITY IN ELECTRICITY

Came to Duluth Broken Down, Mr. Johnson Claims That He Received New Life.

Praises Natural Method of Healing as Superior to Old Style Doctoring.

When the people of wealth become debilitated and run down in health they go to the high priced sanitariums and health resorts to be built up again. But what about the thousands of debilitated nervous men and women with no vitality or ambition who have neither the time nor money to spare for such luxuries as sanitariums? Such was the case with Mr. Chas. Johnson of Hancock, Mich., who a month ago came to Duluth, completely broken down in health.

In glowing words he states the wonderful cure he received from the treatments with Electro Medicine at No. 26 W. Superior street. Having been barely more than a living skeleton, the Doctors succeeded in bringing him back to life and health after he had given up all hopes. In talking about his case, he says:

"I bless the hour when I heard of the new method of Electro Medicine, I said, there is no use of spending any more money after all of the best doctors have given up my case as hopeless. I realized that it was hopeless, for I felt myself going down steadily. In less than one year I was an old man and though I have reached only middle age.

"I have had indigestion and gradually run down for the last ten years. I was always constipated and at times could not eat. My nerves gave out, my kidneys got sick and the Doctors called it 'Bright's disease.' My headaches at times were so severe, that I thought I surely go crazy. My back was always aching for years, and all these pains irritated me so that I got extremely nervous and could neither sleep nor talk to any one. Finally dropsy settled into my ankles and the eyelids became puffed. I got short on wind and at times the heart palpitated painfully and I surely thought the end was near. I heard so much about the new treatment that I decided to risk the trip. These Electrical Treatments are certainly great, for I felt new life go through my body right from the very first treatment. I certainly had a great amount of poison stored up in my body and was surprised how quickly that got out of my system. I am steadily gaining and feel like a new man and go home healthy and happy. At first, when I read those testimonials in the papers about this new treatment, I thought that none of the people had been as sick as I was, but I have seen with my own eyes that even cancers were cured, and open legs, and many other bad diseases. I certainly can not praise this Electro Medical cure high enough for it has given me back life and vitality."

ADDITIONAL SPORTS

McFARLAND TO MEET CLEVER RAY BRONSON

Indianapolis, Ind., May 15.—As a curtain raiser for the world's greatest automobile race, the 500-mile International Sweepstakes race, to be run at the Indianapolis Motor speedway next Memorial day, May 30, Packey McFarland of Chicago and Ray Bronson of Indianapolis will fight ten rounds in a specially built arena at the Indianapolis American Association baseball park the night of May 29. The fight is to be held under the auspices of the Indianapolis Athletic club.

The articles of agreement state that the fighters are to weigh 138 pounds at noon the day of the bout, which is a compromise weight, Bronson having asked to be allowed to come in at 142 pounds, his regular fighting weight. McFarland at first demanded the weight of 138 pounds at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, but conceded the two hours' time against Bronson's four pounds of weight.

This match is the result of negotiations which have been carried on almost continually since the middle of February, but both men have been insistent and finally the compromise on conditions brought about the signing of the articles and the posting of forfeits. McFarland has been reticent about entering the welterweight class, while Bronson, who lays claim to the welterweight championship, felt that he ought to be allowed to weigh in at the welterweight limit.

The Hoosier and Stockyards favorite have mixed once before, having fought twenty rounds to a draw Sept. 19, 1909, at New Orleans. Both are heavier and faster now than then and the battle will be one of the big pugilistic cards of the warm weather season. The fact that nearly 100,000 persons are gathered from all parts of the United States to witness the great automobile race the next day, indicates that the crowd which will attend this bout will be one of the largest ever seen in an arena of the Middle West.

While no championship hinges on the outcome of the battle, a defeat for Bronson would mean that the welter title was out of his reach in case McFarland cared to claim it and meet the other legitimate welters in the country. McFarland on the other hand would lose a large amount of the prestige he has won in the past two or three years if the Indianapolis welter beats him. Both of the boxers are conceded to be among the most clever men in the ring, and will enter the ring at about even money.

Bronson is 24 years old, and has been fighting about seven years. He stands five feet, four inches, and his normal weight is about 150 pounds. McFarland is 23 years old and stands five feet and eight inches. He weighs normally about 144 pounds. Both of the boys have national reputations, having fought all of the best men in their class, never having been decisively beaten since they became headliners.

McFarland has fought in England, while Bronson made a tour of the world returning about a year ago, having fought in Australia, England and other lands. They are conceded to be two of the greatest ring generals the boxing game knows at the present time.

A huge open air arena will be built at the Indianapolis baseball park, which will allow a seating capacity of about 15,000 spectators. The promoters believe that they will draw nearly the capacity of the park.

BAN JOHNSON TELLS OF AMERICAN LEAGUE

(By Ban B. Johnson.)

From Baseball Magazine for June: The birth of the American league marked the beginning of the most important era in the annals of baseball and its expansion, at the cost of a conflict with the National league, was the forerunner to a period of popularity which the national game could not have attained while conducted as a monopoly.

The issues on which the American league made and won its fight for recognition as the peer of the National league were cleanly played, closely contested games between high class teams, a square deal for players and patrons and a betterment of conditions in the minor leagues.

Sordidness has been subordinate to sportmanship in the operation of the American league from its inception, and its clubs have invested their earnings in the purchase of grounds and the erection of magnificent fireproof stands, pretentious in appearance and equipped with conveniences and comforts for patrons without consideration for cost.

Every western and each eastern city in our circuit except New York, has an American league park owned in fee by the home club and ornamented with capacious structures. The Highlanders' handsome home will be completed in mid-season. The Boston and Detroit plants were dedicated in April.

Viewed from the standpoint of results, none can gainsay that the game's growth in recent years has been largely due to the conditions created by the graduation of the American league from a minor to a major league. When the younger organization became national in scope, baseball was in a stagnant state. The National league, rent by factions and neglectful of its patrons and players, was in so pitiful a plight that it played only a passive part in the war that instilled new life into the sport. After the reorganization of baseball on a peace basis and the adoption of the national agreement popular enthusiasm was evidenced in minor league circles, as well as in the principal cities of the country. As a result of this healthy impetus to the game and of competition between the major leagues, the national association had a membership of forty-seven leagues in 1911, many of which are stable. In some of the minor leagues of the highest classification franchises are held at prices which were considered prohibitive by parties contemplating the purchase of a National league club during the latter part of the last century.

Organized baseball has not reached the pinnacle of success, but it has progressed to such a degree that it covers the field so fully that it is practically impossible for an organization not under the national agreement to achieve success in any part of the country.

An opposition league, launched as a rival to the American and National leagues, would have to build up its playing strength and patronage in cities provided with parks, covering an expenditure of $500,000 or more, and represented by one or more teams of high-class players satisfied with their salaries.

Players Satisfied.

Patrons of this period and the players under contract to major league clubs are not discontented, as they were when the American league asserted its independence and invaded National league territory.

Press and public welcomed us in every city, and ball players greeted us as liberators. We succeeded from the start because of the splendid support accorded to us by baseball enthusiasts in all walks of life, who realized that we had a mission, the failure of which would have a disastrous effect on their favorite sport. That widespread sentiment was the American league's most valuable asset throughout the war period.

The gross capital of the American league in 1901, plus the resources of all its clubs, would not equal the value of the 1912 holdings of several of its individual clubs. The aggregate amount expended in financing the American league during its struggle with the National league would not suffice to equip one club up to the 1912 standard of either of the leading organizations of the country. Moreover, promoters, although provided with ample funds, would discover that there is no demand for a third league. The system under which the American league is operated is not understood by the public. Our methods vary little in theory from those set forth in the constitution of every National Agreement league. We insist on the strict observance of the spirit as well as of the letter of our laws, and absolutely require our club owners to regard the welfare of the league paramount to the interests of the individual clubs.

Our umpires are the representatives of the league and must observe instructions in the discharge of their duties. I exercise extreme care in the selection of my staff, and when I find a competent official I give him substantial evidence of the appreciation of the league and of myself.

The national commission is the cement of the baseball structure. Its province is to compel every league under the national agreement to obey the fundamental laws of the game, to require club owners to respect the rights of each other, to insure to every player fair treatment and to afford to the salaried man prompt and adequate redress for wrong.

The relative playing strength and popularity of the rival major leagues would not be determined by the expression of my opinion. Suffice it to say that the status of the American league in its playing department and its patronage is highly satisfactory to my associates and myself, and that we are confident that another world's championship will be placed to the credit of the American league as a result of the 1912 series.

LONG ODDS ARE MADE AGAINST FLYNN.

New York, May 15.—Tom O'Rourke is very optimistic over the chances of Jim Flynn with Jack Johnson. Thomas was in Omaha a few days ago when the big fight became the leading topic. There were a number of Flynn rooters. O'Rourke chimed in, extolled Flynn, but added: "Just take a little flyer I will bet $5,000 on Johnson against $2,000 on Flynn." O'Rourge was grabbed and the money posted. O'Rourke figures Flynn's chances so good that he expects him to be a 5 to 1 shot.

WALSH AND JOHNSON IN PITCHER'S DUEL.

Ed Walsh and Walter Johnson, generally regarded the best pitchers in the American league, are having a battle of their own to secure the title of "Strike-out King." To date Walsh leads. He has whiffed 46 batters while Johnson claims one less. But Johnson's 45 is really a better total as he has pitched seven games to Walsh's ten.

LAKE AND RAIL RATES UPHELD

Court Enjoins Railroads From Cutting Off Joint Schedules.

Chicago, May 15.—Judge George A. Carpenter of the United States district court enjoined twenty-five railroads today from cutting off rate connections with the Michigan, Indiana & Illinois steamship line and with the Ludington Transportation company. It was stated that on the theory that the boat lines were not common carriers, the Interstate commerce commission had suggested putting a stop to such rates. A formal order, however, had not been made by the commission. Therefore an appeal to the commerce court could not be taken.

Judge Carpenter cited the railroads and the commission to show cause why the injunction should not be permanent.

SOUTH CAROLINA DEMOCRATS MEET.

Columbia, S. C., May 15.—Democrats of South Carolina met today to select eighteen delegates to the national convention at Baltimore, to decide whether they shall be instructed, and, if so, for whom. An uninstructed delegation was not considered improbable.

Five county caucuses had instructed their representatives at the state convention for Governor Woodrow Wilson, six indorsed him, but sent uninstructed delegations, and the thirty-one other counties took no action on the presidential preference.

The contest is between Governor Wilson and Representative Underwood. Both Champ Clark and Governor Harmon are expected to make slight showings.

Spirited fights over the four delegates-at-large were expected between forces aligned with and those opposed to Governor Coleman L. Blease. The opposition has put forward Ira B. Jones, former chief justice of the supreme court, for gubernatorial honors, which are again sought by Blease. The convention consisted of 336 delegates.

FIGHT IN PRESSMEN'S STRIKE IN ATLANTA.

Atlanta, Ga., May 15.—The first violence in connection with the strike of pressmen on William R. Hearst's Atlanta Georgian occurred early today when strike breakers and union men from the Journal engaged in a fight. Three of the union men, including F. B. Brigman, president of the Atlanta local, are in a hospital badly beaten and cut. It is said the strikebreakers are from New York.

The Georgian's former employes, it was reported this morning, would consider returning to work.

A LITTLE REDFISH.

Here exhibited for the first time is a specimen of the redfish, Pseudopriacanthus altus, now at the aquarium. It was received from Prof. Charles B. Davenport, director of the Carnegie laboratory at Cold Spring Harbor, L. I. The specimen is a young one, measuring between two and three inches in length; the redfish attains at maturity a length of about ten inches.

The redfish, which is also known as the short big-eye, is a rather thin and, in proportion to its length, deep bodied fish. Its entire body is a bright red in color, while its fins, excepting the pectoral, are tipped with black, and its eyes, which are exceptionally large, are golden. It is a very beautiful little fish. Its home is in the deeper waters of the West Indies, but, as is set forth in a recent aquarium number of the Zoological Society Bulletin, the young occasionally drift northward in the gulf stream. Specimens have been taken about Woods Hole, Mass., and one is recorded from as far north as Marblehead, Mass., and one from New Jersey, at Atlantic City. As far as known the one here is the first to be taken in New York waters.

This little redfish has been placed at the aquarium in a tank with seahorses, with which it gets along amicably. Rising from the bottom of this tank in the water is a leafless shrub, to whose denuded branches the little seahorses like to cling. A seahorse will wrap its prehensile tail around a branch and there hold on easily. The redfish is about more or less among the branches of the shrub and often remaining quiet and motionless in close proximity to one or another of them it seems to be resting upon it.

Small as it is, this little redfish makes in the tank a patch of bright color that nobody passing could overlook; and the seahorses and the redfish in a tank together contribute an attraction that halts every visitor.

A FISHY FISH TALE.

St. Louis Republic: "I have a new wrinkle in the matter of a fishing yarn," said a St. Louis man who has just returned from his annual trip to the Northern lakes. "Don't smile. I'm ready to support this with affidavits. Heard that before, you say? Well, this is Truth crying in the wilderness.

"I was after bass on Black Lake, Michigan, with a bait casting outfit—light rod and reel and pork minnow on a weedless spoon hook. Standing in my rowboat just at the edge of shoal water, I was working the reeds, dropping into the thick of them at every cast, when I fetched up with a whale of a strike. I snapped back quickly, trying to rush the fish out into clear water, but he had the start on me, and before I could bring full weight to bear he had taken a twist among the reeds and my line parted.

"Well, you know how it is when you lose a strike. It's always the biggest fish that ever smelled bait, and you're ready to stand on your head with rage. Without any clear purpose I poled with an oar and worked right into the weeds toward the spot where the fish had lain. Futile, of course. But so I did.

"I was right over the spot, saying naughty words and poking along with the oar, when there came a silver-green flash from the depths, the surface broke in a shower of spray and a magnificent bass shot into the air. He curved in about a three-foot arch and—landed in the boat with me!

"It was the same bass, still hooked on my minnow. The trailing length of the line had caught among the weeds. I had considerable difficulty afterward in loosening it. He had sulked until stirred up by my oar. Then, starting at full speed, he had been checked and he whirled up through the air like a hummer on a string, and the force of his leap had carried him back to me.

"I await with calmness the equal of that story—among true stories of course.

"Weight? Well, between four and a half and five pounds, and big-mouthed don't grow much larger.

REMARKABLE RENTS.

Answers: One of the most curious rents in existence is that paid yearly to the king by the corporation of London. This consists of six horseshoes, sixty-one nails and two faggots—the annual rental for a moor in Shropshire and a forge in St. Clement Danes.

Another strange rent is paid yearly by the duke of Marlborough in connection with his Woodstock estate. According to the ancient laws the duke must send a new flag, embroidered with the fleur-de-lys, every year to the sovereign of England. To fail in this respect would cause the estate to lapse to the crown.

Long ago St. Olave's grammar school in Tooley street let a field in Horsleydown for a red rose, to be presented on midsummer day annually for several hundreds of years. Some 300 years have yet to pass before this rent can be stopped.

Quite recently the Fulham borough council instituted a rent as remarkable as those instituted in past years. A military band is permitted to practice twice weekly at a certain place in the borough in return for four free performances yearly in Fulham parks.

TOPPING AT STEEL SUIT

Former Director of Tennessee Company Testifies About 1907 Deal.

Also Is Asked About Competition Between Steel Companies.

New York, May 15.—John A. Topping, chairman of the Republic Iron & Steel company, resumed the witness stand today in the hearing of the government's suit to dissolve the United States Steel corporation, to tell more about the organization of the American Sheet Steel company.

Mr. Topping was an official of the Aetna Standard Iron & Steel company, one of the Sheet Steel company's constituent concerns.

Jacob M. Dickinson, counsel for government, took the witness through a list of twenty-eight companies that went into the sheet steel combination and brought out that most of them had been in competition in products which they commonly manufactured.

After testifying that he subsequently became vice president of the Sheet Steel company, Mr. Topping was questioned as to competitive conditions between this and other combinations of the Moore-Reid group and the Carnegie Steel company.

Tells of Competition.

The witness said the National Steel company competed with the Carnegie Steel company to a limited extent.

"The National company was organized to produce crude material for the sheet steel, tin plate and steel hoop companies, and they took about all its products," said the witness. "It sold billets in the open market to some extent."

Judge Dickinson then took up with the witness the Tennessee Coal & Iron company, which was taken over by the Steel corporation during the panic of 1907, Mr. Topping being at that time chairman of the Tennessee Coal & Iron company's board of directors. The government contends the purchase was illegal.

Purpose of Tennessee Deal.

The witness said it was the sole purpose of the syndicate to develop the property. After bringing out from the witness that pig iron manufactured by the company at its plants at Birmingham, Ala., had a market north of the Ohio river and was in competition with Northern pig irons, Judge Dickinson asked:

"In 1907 was there any place in the United States where pig iron could be manufactured cheaper than at the Tennessee Coal & Iron company's plant?"

Mr. Topping said he "wouldn't be surprised" if that was so, but he stated he could not now remember what the exact cost of production at the plant was.

Judge Dickinson then took the witness practically over the same ground upon which he testified last summer before the Stanley Steel Investigating committee, bringing out the financial phases of the syndicate's operations, the earnings of the company and its condition at the time the deal with the Steel corporation was consummated.

Business Was Increasing.

"State whether your business was increasing before this sale to the Steel corporation."

It had increased. This was naturally due to our increased capacity and to the 1907 boom in the steel business."

The Tennessee Coal & Iron company, the witness stated, had the largest ore and coal holdings of any steel company in the country, with the exception of the Steel corporation.

Papers Destroyed or Lost.

The refusal of attorneys of the United States Steel corporation to produce certain papers wanted by the government and the discovery that all other documents which the corporation was subpoenaed to produce had either been destroyed or could not be found, furnished the sensation of yesterday's hearing.

The papers which the corporation attorneys refused to produce are two contracts between the American Sheet & Tin Plate company, a subsidiary of the corporation, and the American Can company, whereby the can company is alleged to have secured its supply of tin plate at preferential prices. D. G. Reid and Judge William H. Moore, directors of the Steel corporation, are also directors of the can company.

"We decline to produce those contracts," announced R. V. Lindabury, chief counsel for the corporation, "on the ground that they would disclose the company's private business affairs with one of its customers."

The refusal would stand, Mr Lindabury stated, until the right of the government to possession of the document shall have been ruled upon by the United States circuit court judges, to whom the testimony in the suit will be certified.

Nature of Documents.

The documents destroyed or missing consisted of contracts between the tin plate company and manufacturers of tin plate machinery, whereby, it is alleged, the use of the machinery by competitors of the Steel trust's subsidiary, was prevented; of an alleged five-year contract between the tin plate company and the Sharon Steel company for taking the latter's output, and of similar contracts, alleged to have been made by the American Sheet Steel company.

Carl V. Wheeler, secretary-treasurer of the American Sheet & Tin Plate company, who had been subpoenaed to produce the contracts, testified that he had himself destroyed the machinery contracts "about 1904."

"By whose authority did you destroy them?"

"My own."

"You exercised your own judgment without authority from the board of directors?"

Destroyed In 1904.

"In this case, yes. There were a number of obsolete papers which I destroyed, and I presume these contracts were among them as I have not seen them since.

"When was that?"

"About 1904, several years ago at least."

The other contracts he said he had been unable to find.

"Did you make a thorough search?"

"I had a search made. They tell me that they can't find them anywhere."

"Well, I instruct you to make a thorough search and if you can't find them, will have those subpoenaed who had them directly in their custody," declared Judge Dickinson, who represents the government.

NO DAMAGES FOR FRIGHT

Mrs. Florence Hallock Fails to Collect in "Rattler" Case.

Mrs. Florence Hallock will not receive any financial recompense for the fright she claims to have received when she opened an advertisement from Abbett's drug store, containing a "Missouri Ratler."

She claims the "rattler" frightened her into unconsciousness, and brought on a nervous breakdown. She sued the proprietor of the drug store for $5,150, but the jury which considered the case in Judge Dibell's room, brought in a verdict for the defendant this afternoon. The case went to the jury shortly after the noon hour, and the verdict was reached before 3 o'clock.

Mrs. Hallock claimed that she thought the "rattler" was an infernal machine sent her by her former husband, and that this caused her extreme fright.

Judge Dibell instructed the jury that they must find that the defendant, Mr. Abbett, was negligent in sending out these rattlers with their advertisements before they could assess damages against him.

In Judge Dancer's room the trial of Mary Caln versus Harry Gould is making good progress. The case, which is one involving a neighborhood dispute at Duluth Heights, will probably go to the jury this afternoon.

CLARK IN LEAD IN NEVADA RETURNS.

Reno, Nev., May 15.—Present reports indicate that the Democratic presidential vote in Nevada primaries is for Champ Clark. CHANCELLOR DAY HISSED

Heated Debate Grows Out of Methodist Report on Bishops.

Voting Interrupted By Charge That Tellers Were Electioneering.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Chancellor James K. Day of Syracuse university was hissed by some of the delegates to the Methodist Episcopal general conference today, when he intimated that the retirement of any bishops from active service might be construed as an effort on the part of members of the piscopacy committee to secure advancement for themselves.

The incident occurred in the debate on the report of the committee recommending the retirement of Bishops Warren and Moore, and suggesting that of Bishop Neely. The committee was deadlocked on the question of the latter action.

A vote was ordered on the report, but was interrupted at its beginning when Rev. Frank Cole of the Arkansas delegation accused the tellers of "electioneering," finally naming Rev. Thomas Mason of his own delegation as having done so. Mr. Mason in a statement denied that he attempted to influence Mr. Cole in the vote, stating that what had been said was said in a joking manner.

Sympathy for Danes.

By a rising vote the delegates today adopted a resolution expressing the condolence of the church to the royal family of Denmark as the result of the death last night of King Frederick, ordered that a cablegram be sent telling of the church's action, and that the Danish flag, draped in mourning, be hung on the speakers' platform.

SEVEN CHARRED CORPSES FOUND

Whole Family Wiped Out By Tragedy in Lyman County, S. D.

Oacoma, S. D., May 15.—The charred bodies of seven persons were found today in the ruins of the home of Chris Peterson near the town of Lundvin, Lyman county.

The bodies are supposed to be those of Peterson, his wife and five children. Whether the seven persons were murdered and their bodies burned or lost their lives in a fire is not known. An investigation is being made.

PLAN TRYOUT IN MICHIGAN

Clark and Wilson Men Will Test Strength in Democratic Convention.

Bay City, Mich., May 15.—Unable, after a night of conference, to agree on any compromise, Woodrow Wilson and Champ Clark partisans prepared to settle their differences today upon the floor of the Michigan state Democratic convention.

Despite the advice of some state Democratic leaders, the Clark and Wilson men declared they were putting the strength of their followers to the test of a vote in the convention. This decision, however, was subject to possible change by the action of delegates in twelve district caucuses, scheduled to precede the convention.

Twenty-four delegates to the national convention at Baltimore, out of a total of thirty to be named, were to be selected in the district caucuses.

Polls of the delegates in twelve district caucuses showed that the anti-Wilson forces controlled eight of the caucuses and had one-half the strength in the ninth district. This indicated that about three-fourths of the delegates were opposed to instruction for a presidential candidate.

FREIGHT STRIKE IN MILWAUKEE

St. Paul Men Go Out and Some C. & N. W. Employes Reported to Have Quit.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 15.—Freight handlers and railway clerks to the number of about 400, connected with the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway system, struck today in sympathy with the Chicago freight handlers. It is reported that fifty freight handlers employed by the Chicago & Northwestern road also struck.

The strikers are picketing the steamboat docks this afternoon and expect to induce others to join their ranks.

A large number of cars loaded with perishable freight are in the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul yards and waiting to be moved.

TENNESSEE DEMOCRATS READY FOR HARD FIGHT.

Nashville, Tenn., May 15.—With four presidential candidates in the field and less than 20 per cent of the 1,361 delegates instructed, the Tennessee Democratic convention met here today to select the entire state delegation, which will have twenty-four votes in the national convention.

Clark, Wilson, Harmon and Underwood supporters have been at work here for several days. Clark managers insist on an instructed delegations and have prepared a resolution proposing that the candidates' names be submitted to a vote of the convention, the one receiving the fewest votes being dropped on each ballot until one receives a majority of the votes and is given the entire state delegation.

Wilson managers declared that if their candidate did not receive exclusive indorsement they have the strength to prevent instructions going to any other candidate.

CHOSEN DELEGATE TO CHICAGO CONVENTION

WILLIAM A. EATON Of Duluth.

IN SIXTH DISTRICT.

Roosevelt Delegation Will Be Sent to Chicago.

Brainerd, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.) — The Sixth district Republican convention which met here this afternoon is decidedly Roosevelt. Meeker county's thirteen delegates, who were credited to Taft, have caucused for Roosevelt. Todd county's twelve delegates, credited to Fa Follette, favor the Wisconsin man as first choice and Roosevelt second. Wadena's eight delegates, considered for Taft, also favor La Follette. As a rule it is believed the La Follette men will swing into line with the Roosevelt majority.

W. D. Joubert of Litchfield will preside at the convention. The resolutions, it is thought will indorse Roosevelt and laud the progressive policies of La Follette as a compromise to the La Follette men.

As district delegates to the Chicago national convention there are in the field E. C. Tuttle of Buffalo, Wright county; T. J. Sharkey of Staples; and Andrew Davis of Elk River. The first two will probably win out.

The resolutions to be presented to the convention commend the administration of President Taft and the Republican administration in general in state and nation as better than anything opponents have to offer, instruct the delegates for Roosevelt, laud the progressive policies of La Follette, commend the work done by Senators Nelson and Clapp of Minnesota, commend the course of Congressman Lindbergh and indorse the candidacy of Alva Eastman of St. Cloud as congressman-at-large. They will undoubtedly be adopted.

AIR-TIGHT FOR TEDDY.

Fourth District Will Send Four Delegates to Chicago Convention.

St. Paul, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Four delegates and four alternates, with one-half a vote each, were selected at the Fourth congressional district convention at Federation hall this afternoon. They were given air-tight instructions to vote for Theodore Roosevelt. If the national convention rules out the half-vote plan, the delegates selected will decide the ones to cast the ballots for the colonel at Chicago.

The Fourth congressional district delegates will caucus tonight on whom they will support for delefiate-at-large at the state convention. Ramsey county usually has been conceded one without a fight. Senator Clapp doubtless will secure the indorsement, although C. W. Farnham, secretary of the state Roosevelt committee, is a candidate. A fight on Senator Clapp in favor of Mr. Farnham is anticipated.

THREE TO RETIRE

Minneapolis, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church this afternoon voted to retire Bishops Henry W. Warren, David H. Moore and T. B. Neeley.

Curlier Needs Repairs.

Vallejo, Cal., May 15.—The cruiser Maryland, punctured below the water line by a torpedo during target practice off Los Angeles recently, has arrived at Mare Island navy yard for repairs.

Roosevelt Men in Control.

Norton, Kan., May 15.—Col. Roosevelt's friends will control the Sixth district Republican convention when it meets here today to name two delegates to the national convention at Chicago. The convention also will indorse William Allen White of Emporia for national committeeman.

He is at St. Mary's hospital, where he was taken immediately after the accident. His parents live at 518 West Second street, Duluth.

Curlers Will Meet.

A special meeting of the stockholders of the Superior Curling club has been called for tomorrow evening at the Commercial club. The purchase of additional land, repairs and improvements to the present structure and the payment of dues are to be taken up at the meeting.

COPPERS CLOSE SLIGHTLY OFF

While many of the copper stocks closed today practically unchanged from the closing figures of yesterday, most of the changes that did occur were downward, though there were no sensational slumps. Butte & Superior was an exception, showing a bulge of nearly a dollar at the close. Carmen also showed some gain. Declines were shown by Calumet & Arizona, Greene Cananea, Butte Alex Scott, Amalgamated and Hancock. The news from the London copper metal market was bearish, spot and futures both closing at a decline of 5s from the closing figures of yesterday.

Paine, Webber & Co., today received from Foster at Boston the following closing copper letter: "The volume of transactions in the local coppers fell off considerably today and the whole list was decidedly dull. Scattered odd lot liquidation caused a slight sagging tendency but on the whole the market showed no change worthy of mention. With metal conditions as strong as they are at present, there is no danger of any material reaction and the return of activity must be followed by higher prices."

Gay & Sturgis today received the following closing letter from I. J. Sturgis at Boston: "We have had a dull and highly professional market again today. An effort to break prices in the general list was partially successful but shortlived. At the close quotations were very little different than last night. The pertinent circumstance that sticks out every day is that no important selling is going on. The public is paying too much attention to the political turmoil and the labor situation and too little to the fundamental evidences of business improvement. Locally the market was dull and uneventful. Stocks are not for sale except in very small quantities. The next change in quotations of consequence promises to be towards betterment."

The Weekly News Letter issued by Thompson, Towle & Co., says:

"We are of the opinion that the advance recorded by copper stocks as a whole has been more than justified by conditions, for since the period of depression in 1911, the price of copper metal has advanced 4c a pound and the world's surplus has been reduced by more than 100,000,000 lbs. Of thirty-eight of the most important copper-producing companies, eight have increased their dividend rate, one of these three times, two companies have paid their initial disbursements, eight are in a position to increase their dividends in the near future, while several others, by the close of the present year should make their initial payments.

"Even in the face of these conditions and the favorable factors which have been influencing the copper share market, the average price of the stocks is still below the high of 1910."

MYSTERY OF THE WEDDING RING.

Chicago Tribune: This is the mystery of the wedding ring. Can you solve it? Nobody as yet has been able to account for its strange convolutions, but maybe you will be more clever.

What makes the wedding ring swing? Why does it swing one way for a man and quite another way for a woman?

Is it the difference in what wise men call "aura?" And a well-known London doctor has recently demonstrated that the aura of the male and female differ widely.

Wedding rings often make the people who wear them, and even other persons, behave in the most unaccountable manner, but few of us have ever seen a wedding ring itself indulge in mysterious performances.

And this is not a trick. Remember that.

It is a scientific experiment, illustrating laws of physics, physiology or psychology.

This is the way to go about it:

Take a silver fork and place it before you on a polished wooden table. The fork should be at right angles from your body, with the handle nearest you.

Seat yourself at the table. Tie a piece of light string, about fifteen inches in length, to a plain gold wedding ring. After the wedding ring has been tied to the extreme end of the string, wrap the other end of the string three times around the first joint of the first finger on the right hand.

Hold the string in place around the first finger with the ball of the thumb of the same hand. Place your right elbow on the table beside the fork, with the forearm in a vertical position, and permit your hand to drop at a right angle from the wrist. This allows the string with the wedding ring attached to hang directly over the fork.

The ring must be suspended about one-quarter of an inch above the fork, and as nearly as possible at its center.

Place your left hand, flat and palm downward, upon the table beside the fork. Do your best to keep your hand steady, and thus prevent the string, with its attached wedding ring, from swinging. In spite of your efforts, you will find that the wedding ring moves.

If a man is holding the string, the wedding ring will commence slowly to sway back and forth along the fork. If a woman holds the string, the ring sways across the fork. With some people the movement is slight, while with others it is marked, but at all times it is unmistakable.

Now, here's the most curious part. If a woman is holding the string, when the movement across the fork has once been firmly established, let a man place his right hand firmly upon her left hand, which rests upon the table. The string will be seen slowly to stop its cross movement, and after a few moments the motion will be reversed. The ring will swing the length of the fork.

A similar change of movement will occur in the event of a man holding the string while the woman places her right hand over his left hand.

Can you account for this mysterious behavior of the wedding ring?

PLANTS AND FOREST FIRES.

London Globe: A remarkable fact in connection with forest fires is that after their occurrence a different vegetation usually springs up. Thus after the burning of the larger timber trees in Australia there grows a crop of wattles—various species of acacia—even in places where none have been known within the memory of man.

In the case of a scrub fire which has swept away the undergrowth leaving the forest trees still alive, but with bare and blackened trunks, the plant to spring up is the warratah.

The warratah has been said to be the handsomest wild flower in the world. In its brilliant color it seems a reflection of the fire which caused its birth. A traveler through the bush writes of it: "Among the charred trees little tongues of flame seem to lick. They are the waratah, each plant bearing on a stem six feet high a single burning red flower shaped like a heart and the size of a man's closed fist. Imagine many hundreds of red stamens, greater in size than those of the tiger lily, packed closely together to make a heart shape and you have the Australian waratah."

Some interesting experiments recently carried out in Australia by Prof. Ewart of Victoria have suggested to him a possible explanation of the above remarkable phenomenon. Experimenting with seeds of acacia fifty or sixty years old he has found that these will germinate if the hard coverings are previously softened or oiled.

In the case of the Australian forest fires, Prof. Ewart thinks that the alkaline ashes produced by the fire may act on the hardened coats of the wattle seeds lying in the ground and soften them. Or the heat may partly char these same hardened seed coats. In either case the seed is able to germinate. Thus the idea seems to be that the covering of a seed may get so hard that the embryo cannot penetrate it, and that it may be preserved in the ground indefinitely in this state without losing its power of growth.

Is there a hint for the gardener? It is said that the waratah is difficult to grow in gardens, but that some have succeeded in growing it by first of all roasting the seeds. And those who grow cannas are in the habit of steeping the seeds in hot water before sowing them. Such effects of a fire are not confined to forests.

After the great fire of 1666 there sprang up on the site of London immense quantities of yellow crucifer-ous flower, hence known as London rocket. It was so abundant that there was supposed to be on this spot more than in all the rest of Europe. And it does not appear to have been noticed there previously.

Another example of the same plant springing up on the site of a smaller fire is given by Baxter in his "British Flowering Plants." A spot in the Oxford botanic gardens on which rubbish had been burning for two or three days was trenched and prepared for a plantation of willows. This was in 1884, and in the following year an abundant crop of London rocket sprang up, "on a part of the garden," writes Baxter, "where I never remember seeing it before."

HAS UNIQUE WALKING STICK.

London Correspondent Chicago Inter Ocean: The problem of what to do with one's love letters, discussed in the newspapers here some time ago, has been solved in a novel way by a British blue jacket.

He carries all his love letters wherever he goes, generally in his hand, but he can never read them again—he has had them made into a stick.

He has made a stout walking stick with a thousand love letters, which he received from the young lady who is now his wife.

The sailor who is responsible for this new and ingenious method of preserving love letters is Leading Seaman H. S. Vinten, of H. M. S. Glory, stationed at Chatham.

Some time ago he read the correspondence which appeared in the newspapers on "What to do with love letters."

Among the suggestions were the following:

Destroy the letters on the day of marriage."

"Never write them."

"Burn them as soon as read."

"Dont keep them; they fill you with contempt of yourself when you read them."

"Cut them into tiny pieces and make them into cushions."

"Have them buried with you when you die."

Seaman Vinten thought he would go one better than any of these suggestions, and the idea occurred to him that he would make his love letters into a walking stick.

"I had been married fifteen months when I read the correspondence," Vinten said, "and I had saved all the letters my wife had sent me, both before and after my marriage.

"They were the accumulation of a four years' acquaintance, and they numbered fully a thousand.

"I had also kept a letter which I received from my mother when I was stationed at Esquimalt, Canada, in 1900. I was then seaman in the sloop Pheasant.

"There was also a letter from my sister saying that her husband was dead, a letter from my father, and one or two other family letters.

"Of course, they took up a lot of space and I decided to make a walking stick of them in my leisure moments.

"First of all, I got a steel rod, about a quarter of an inch in diameter, and made a thread through its length, so as to screw on a nut.

"Then I cut the letters into portions of about one inch square, put a hole in each square, and thrust several of them at a time on the rod just as you file receipts.

"I compressed them by screwing up the nut with a hand spanner, and when they were sufficiently hardened I put more on, and continued until the whole stick length was finished.

"Having treated all the letters in this fashion, I cut off the rough edges with an old razor, then chipped the stick into shape with a chisel and hammer, and finally obtained a perfectly smooth surface with an ordinary plane.

"I finished it off by varnishing the surface, put an ebony handle on it and a silver mount—and there you have the stick.

"You will notice there are gray rings in it at intervals of about an inch. They represent letters written to me by my wife, after our marriage, on gray paper."

The stick is exceptionally strong and formidable and looks very much like a malacca cane. It is about an inch in diameter at the handle end and tapers off gradually toward the ferrule.

TOURMALINE MINE IN MAINE.

Kennebec Journal: F. L. Havey of Lewiston, the most successful tourmaline miner in the state, has just opened another pocket, valued at over $10,000, at his famous mine in Poland. Some of these gems are of a brilliancy surpassed only by that of a diamond. Included in the collection are the pure white tourmalines, which closely resemble the diamond, the pale, medium and dark greens, and in fact all of the most delicate colorings.

From the pocket just opened by Mr. Havey it is estimated that the tourmalines will cut at least 2,500 carats. A year ago last July Mr. Havey found five pockets of tourmalines in his mine valued at $140,000. Among them were many crystals of pure white splashed with red and known as the watermelon crystal.

Can You Imagine $\frac{1}{1000}$ of an Inch?

Take your desk ruler and figure it out.

The inch on your ruler is divided into sixteenths. Take one-sixteenth. Divide that into sixty-four parts.

Got it? Well that is one one-thousandth of an inch.

Can You Imagine It?

Yet 1 one-thousandth of an inch is the coarsest measurement used in building the moving parts of a Chalmers motor. Some parts are accurate to one-half of 1 one-thousandth of an inch.

Doesn't Sound Real, Does It?

Come to our show room any day this week—and this week only—and we'll show you how it's done.

We'll show you gauges that measure that accurately—which explains why Chalmers motor parts are interchangeable.

Incidentally we'll show you the newest and best automobile exhibit ever devised. Something instructive and entertaining too.

You'll enjoy every minute of the time you spend at this exhibition. And if you buy a car at any time in the future, you will save yourself money by what you learn.

This Wonderful Exhibition Will Be Here Only This Week

The regret will be yours if you don't see it. Open from 10 a. m. to 9 p. m.

WHEAT OFF ONE CENT

Favorable Weather Reports Cause Slump on American Markets.

Scarcity of No. 1 Flaxseed Drives Price of May Option Up.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 15.—Continued reports of favorable weather for wheat growing in most parts of the United States and Canada, together with larger receipts on the American markets from the country, caused wheat to take quite a drop on the North American markets today. Duluth July wheat closed a full cent off. May closed a cent and a quarter down and September ⅞c down. Duluth cash wheat closed at the May price and ¾@⅞c over the July price. Durum closed ½c up. Oats closed ½c lower and rye and barley unchanged. Duluth May flax closed 1½c higher and July ⅛c lower.

Wheat again showed a downward trend on the markets of North America this morning, as there were more reports of fine growing weather for the crops on all parts of the continent. Such reports have induced farmers and country elevators to let their wheat go more freely, and as a result the American primary receipts reported today were in excess of those of a year ago. This is the first time this has happened for many days.

Duluth July wheat, which closed yesterday at $1.16¾-⅞, opened today at $1.16¾ asked, and at noon was quoted at $1.16⅛. Wheat was down also at Chicago, Minneapolis and Winnipeg.

Foreign cables were for the most part bearish. Liverpool wheat closed ¼d higher to ⅛d lower. Earlier reports from Liverpool were decidedly bearish. There were more reassuring reports in regard to Russian conditions. Large shipments were expected from Argentina, as the reports from that country were favorable to the bears. There were freer Indian and Australian shipments.

Flaxseed Very Strong.

May flaxseed on the Duluth market was very strong. There is a large short interest on that market, and much skirmishing is going on to get the No. 1 American flaxseed to make deliveries on the May option. This flaxseed is very scarce. Most of the May options are held by the American Linseed company, which is refusing to accept the No. 2 flaxseed, even at a discount. Consequently those who sold this option are in a dilemma. It is almost impossible to get enough of the No. 1 flaxseed to make the necessary deliveries, and in order to buy back the May options they must pay the price that is asked by the interest holding these options. Hence it is not surprising that the Duluth May option is very strong, indeed. It is away above No. 1 Northwestern as sold on the Winnipeg market. At noon today Duluth No. 1 was 32 cents higher than No. 1 Northwestern at Winnipeg, but there is a great scarcity of No. 1 Northwestern. It simply is not available. As to No. 1 Manitoba, that does not grade high enough to be sold for No. 1 American, and the only way to bring it up to the required standard would be to mix it with some No. 1 Northwestern, which is even better than No. 1 American. But the trouble is that this No. 1 Northwestern is not to be had.

Duluth May flaxseed at noon today was up 1½ cents at $2.29½, while July was unchanged at $2.17. Winnipeg May flax was unchanged at $1.97½. Buenos Ayres May closed last night at $1.77⅞, or 1½ cents lower. London Calcutta May and June closed today at $2.27¼, or ⅞c lower.

Trading on the Duluth market was dull today on account of a scarcity of offers. There were nine cars on the track for inspection.

MARKET GOSSIP

The spread between the price of flaxseed on the Duluth and Winnipeg markets is so great that it is exciting much wondering comment. No. 1 American linseed on the Duluth market was selling yesterday 31½ cents higher than No. 1 northwestern on the Winnipeg market. The latter is often worth 5 cents more than No. 1 Manitoba. There is not a great deal of difference between No. 1 American and No. 1 Manitoba, as far as the quality is concerned. It seems at first thought very strange that No. 1 Manitoba does not rush down upon the Duluth market, when there is a margin of about 11 cents, over and above the duty of 25 cents a bushel. The trouble is that No. 1 Manitoba does not possess the weight to grade as No. 1 on the Duluth market, and consequently it has to drop into the No. 2 grade, which has been bringing about 18 cents less than No. 1. This cuts out the profit of importing that seed.

As to No. 1 Northwestern, that is superior, as a rule, to the American No. 1. With a margin of 31 cents between these two kinds of seed on the two markets, the question arises, why does not the Canadian seed rush upon the Duluth market. Some Duluth brokers have a very plausible theory for this. They say the little No. 1 Northwestern that is to be had on the Winnipeg market is in the hands of the very interests that are holding up the price on the American market as a basis on which to sell their oil. By owning most of the No. 1 Northwestern that is available on the Winnipeg market, these interests manage, it is said, to keep the price down at Winnipeg, where they do the bulk of their buying. By saving on their buying at Winnipeg, they can the better afford to spend money boosting the market at Duluth.

American crushers are in a position readily to take advantage of the rebate that the government pays of about 7 cents a bushel for the export of the seed cake, thus making the net duty about 18 cents a bushel. Others who bring the Canadian flaxseed into the country to mix it with American seed and sell the whole quantity to the crushers as American seed, are obliged to pay the full duty of 25 cents a bushel and after the mixing has taken place they have no means of obtaining a rebate, or making any export rebate benefit them in the least in the price they obtain for it.

Grain dealers on the Duluth board of trade have been receiving most optimistic reports in regard to the condition of rye in the western part of Minnesota, the eastern part of North Dakota and other rye-growing regions of the Northwest. From the news that has thus far been received of the crops, the Duluth dealers express the opinion that the harvest of rye in the American Northwest will be the largest in history. The plant stood the winter weather well and is now looking fine. The acreage is large.

At present the price of rye is very high. It has been selling on the Duluth market in the neighborhood of 90c a bu. While by no means one of the most important grains handled on the Duluth market, it is nevertheless a very considerable feature of the Duluth grain business. Of last year's rye crop it is not expected that Duluth will handle during the present crop year as much as 800,000 bu, but Duluth dealers fully expect to see a full million bushels of rye from the crop of 1912 go through this market. With a large Northwestern harvest the price of rye is almost certain to come down. This will reduce the cost of rye flour, and thus the good rye crop will be a factor tending strongly in the direction of bringing about a reduction in the cost of living.

CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Is Bearish on Better Outlook for Crops.

Chicago, May 15.—Improvement reported in the winter crop outlook swung the wheat market around today to the bear side. The weather in all directions was favorable for growth, and in Kansas was said to be ideal. Cables counted also against the bulls, Liverpool sending word of larger shipments promised, especially from Russia and Argentina. Opening prices were ⅛c to ⅜@½c down. July started at $1.12⅜ to $1.12⅝, a loss of ¼@⅜c to ⅝@⅞c, touched $1.12⅞ and declined to $1.12⅜.

Freezing temperatures reported from nine stations in the Minneapolis district brought about a subsequent upturn. A reaction, however, due to heavy selling by a prominent speculator, took the market lower than before. The close was weak at $1.11¾@1.11⅝ for July, a loss of 1½@1⅝c from last night.

Delay in planting held corn fairly steady. In addition, receivers complained of the poor quality of the receipts, but the weakness of wheat was felt to some extent. July opened a shade to ⅛@ off at 77c to @77@77⅛c, rallied to 77⅛@77¼c and then fell back to 76⅞@77c.

Buying afterward on the part of a leading house led to a rally. The close, however, was easy, with July ⅛c net lower at 77c.

Oats slipped down because of the absence of demand. Offerings were only moderate. July started unchanged at 52⅞c, sold at 53c and sagged to 52⅝c.

A good call for lard tended to give firmness to provisions. Otherwise, orders were about evenly divided on both sides of the market. Initial transactions ranged from 5c lower to 2½c advance, with July options $19.55 for pork, $11.10@11.15 for lard and $10.67½ for ribs.

STOCKS ARE IRREGULAR

General List Closes With Mixture of Gains and Losses.

Low Priced Industrials Are Bid Up in the Last Hour.

New York, May 15.—Some substantial gains were made in the opening dealings on the stock exchange today. Lehigh Valley advanced a full point with gains of as much and more for Canadian Pacific, International Harvester, American Sugar and International Paper preferred. Reading failed to follow Lehigh Valley's rise, soon reacting from its slight advance. United States Steel on moderate dealings advanced a fraction above yesterday's close. Elsewhere gains were confined to less important stocks. American Car opened with a slight loss, which it soon extended to a full point. A feature of the initial dealings was the sharp rise in the foremost subsidiaries of the American Tobacco company.

Prices fell back generally in the first half-hour, the movement suggesting further profit-taking under cover of the rise in the specialties. Union Pacific, United States Steel and other standard shares soon yielded more than their gain, and Lehigh Valley's rise was lost, as also was that in International Harvester, American Sugar and Canadian Pacific.

American Can displayed increased weakness and Rock Island preferred declined a point. Following a brief period of dullness in which feeble rallies were attempted, another selling movement sent prices lower than before and by 11 o'clock, material losses from yesterday's closing were shown.

Signs of liquidation by traders and other professionals whose operations made possible the market of the past two months were clearly evident today. More than likely, the selling began some time ago, but today's indications were unmistakable. Before midday Reading, Lehigh Valley, American Can and other stocks which have been most prominent, lost all their early rise and were quoted under yesterday's lowest prices.

Most of today's selling centered around United States Steel which constituted the backbone of the previous day's market. The stock fell to within a fraction of the preceding day's low, and while the selling was not especially extensive it seemed to emanate from what is technically known as "good sources."

Standard shares like the Harriman and Hill issues, the Grangers and trunk lines were relegated to inactivity or heaviness, while the most obscure issues enjoyed brief periods of prominence. By mid-day the market had lapsed into dullness, with set recoveries from the low level. Bonds were easy.

Traders who sold the coalers short in the morning were given a severe twist soon after midday when the prices of Reading and Lehigh Valley were marked up materially on reports from the coal fields that the outlook was good for an early settlement of the labor troubles. Reading, which had fallen to 174⅞, climbed to 177⅞, and Lehigh Valley also mounted 2 points above its low level. Canadian Pacific added several more points to its recent sensational rise, the price touching 267½.

A further rise in Canadian Pacific to 269 and another upward move in certain of the specialties constituted the features of the early afternoon. The usual market leaders, such as United States Steel, Reading and Lehigh Valley, were not much ahead of their rallies of the noon hour and there were one point gains in Erie, Pittsburg, C. C. C. & St. Louis and several other issues.

The market closed irregular. The last hour witnessed a further bidding up of the low-priced industrials, while such standard shares as Union Pacific, United States Steel, Amalgamated Copper, Reading and Lehigh Valley were selling on a parity with or under yesterday's final quotations. Illinois Central, with a rise of 2 points, made some more recovery from last week's depression, but the general list showed a mixture of gains and losses.

THE PRODUCE MARKETS.

Butter has gone back to 34 cents for the best creamery in prints. Although the pastures have been getting greener and the Western output of milk, cream and butter has been great, the Eastern demand for butter has been so great that the break in the price, expected to occur about this time, has not materialized, and butter is still selling on a winter basis. It is thought, however, that it will cheapen very soon, as the weather in all parts of the country is very favorable for pastures. Cheese continues to cheapen as factories start up to begin the cheese manufacturing, as is the custom, in the spring.

Quotations given below indicate what the retailers pay to the wholesaler, except the hay list, which gives what the farmers receive from the jobbers.

Aberdeen, Wash., May 15.—Two Republican conventions will be held in Aberdeen today. The Taft Republicans will assemble in a theater at 1 o'clock and the Roosevelt men will meet at the same hour in a nearby hall. The Roosevelt men first will assemble outside the theater and demand admittance.

JUSTICE OF PEACE IS UNPOPULAR OFFICE.

Madison, Wis., May 15.—That the office of justice of the peace has fallen from its former high estate in many Wisconsin communities is apparent from returns of the April elections received by the secretary of state. In Crawford county alone nine newly elected justices refused to qualify. In greater or less degree failure to qualify is typical of the returns from many other places, most of them rural communities. Not even the prerogative of the marrying power that attaches to the office to counterpoise the meager income from a justice's fees servcs to make it popular.

QUEER WEATHER DEVICES.

One of the oldest and simplest ways of telling whether the air is dry or moist is to suspend a piece of seaweed out of doors, or even in an apartment where there is no artificial heat. The weed is crisp and dry at the approach of fine weather, while it is flabby and moist when rain is likely.

A common toy, the Swiss weather-house, is really quite trustworthy in its forecasts, says the Strand. The woman of course, emerges from the little house in fine weather, while the man comes out when wet conditions are to be expected.

In a medium state of the atmosphere both figures stand just inside the house. The movements are due to the twisting of a cord of catgut, a substance which is highly sensative to changes in the humidity of the air.

Two very singular weather devices are those in which a frog and a leech are employed. In the former case a glass jam-jar is filled to about two-thirds its capacity with water. A little wooden ladder is constructed, and this is placed inside the jar.

A frog will live quite happily in such a position for a few weeks, and it will be found that in fine weather the creature will climb out up to the top of the ladder. In stormy weather, however, the frog prefers to remain under the water.

Even more reliable as weather prophets are leeches. A single leech is placed in a broad glass bottle with a piece of perforated bladder or leather over the mouth. On the approach of fine or frosty weather the leech remains almost motionless, curled up at the bottom. When rain or wind is coming the creature rises to the surface, while a coming thunderstorm will cause it to be much agitated; at times the leech will even leave the water altogether, so sensitive is the animal to an electrical disturbance.

The chameleon barometer is a curiosity which has puzzled many people but its construction is really very simple. The animal changes color according to the weather, being pink in damp conditions, purple in a variable state, and bright blue when the air is dry.

A cardboard mouth is prepared, and this may be lettered in sections, Fair, storm and change. The chameleon is sketched out on blotting-paper, and then immersed in a solution of chloride of cobalt, to which are added chloride of sodium and gum arabic. Any chemist will make up the mixture.

A more beautiful chemical hygroscope is formed of a flower made of white blotting-paper which has been immersed in the cobalt mixture. The blossoms show many varying shades, from bright pink to sky blue, with the changes in the degree of dampness in the atmosphere.

A somewhat curious storm glass was introduced by the late Admiral Fitzroy. This is formed of a glass tube, stoppered, but with a small hole through the cork. Into the tube has been poured a mixture of camphor, nitre, sal ammoniac, alcohol and water. The changes in the state of the atmosphere are indicated by the production of feathery growths, these extending upward at the approach of a storm and retreating to the lower part of the tube in quiet weather.

DEFINITION OF A CHINAMAN.

Case and Comment: New Zealand not long ago found that the Chinese were doing a very large proportion of the laundry work and had thrown out of employment the women workers in some of the laundries.

In New Zealand a laundry is a factory within the meaning of the factories act, so it occurred to a lawmaker that he could settle the difficulty of this Chinese competition by a neat amendment in the interpretation clause of the act above mentioned.

An amendment was therefore drafted and printed and sent with the utmost seriousness and good faith to the crown law office for consideration; it contained a provision in these words: "For the purpose of this act (the factories act) a Chinaman shall be deemed to be a girl under 18 years of age."

EARLY DAY KANSAS ENTERPRISE.

Kansas City Journal: The Kansas spirit was perhaps as dominant among the merchants ot the early days as it is now. After the Quantrell raid, which was one of the most atrocious butcheries of the Civil war, the Lawrence merchants rose to the emergency. Their ads in the local papers showed their spirit. One of them read: "Through famine, fire and blood. The Pioneer drug store still survives. Still in their ashes live the vonted fires."

Another ad read:
"Sacked in '56.
"Stood the drouth of '60.
"Totally destroyed by Quantrell in '63.
"And defies all competion in '64."

FORMER DIPLOMAT IS ACCUSED OF TREASON

—Copyrighted by Edmonston.
H. PAULEUS SANNON
of Haiti.

—Copyrighted by Edmonston.
MME. SANNON,
Wife of Ex-Minister.

H. Pauleus Sannon and his wife were a black cloud on the Washington social horizon for some time during the last administration. It has always been the custom for Haiti to send a white man to Washington, but the president of the black republic had heard, no doubt, of the Booker Washington luncheon, and he sent along a minister of shiny blackness. Morever, his wife, Mme. Sannon, was equally black. They remained in Washington only a short time. The members of the diplomatic corps do not share the prejudice of some Americans against the negro as a social equal, and when the minister attended the diplomatic dinner at the White House he was treated with every courtesy. His wife was escorted by the Norwegian minister while he went in with the diplomats to whom no ladies were assigned. Sannon is now under arrest in Haiti, charged with conspiring against the government in the interests of Gen. Simon.

CHAUFFEURS EXAMINED

Knowledge of Gears, Carburettors, Valves and Road Laws Tested.

Nearly 140 Applicants for Licenses to Operate Automobiles.

The council chamber was crowded with applicants for chauffeur licenses who appeared to take their examinations this morning.

The examination is being conducted by Joseph A. Maloney, secretary of the state board of examiners. Mr. Maloney said that he brought with him seventy applications which had been filed in the office of the secretary of state and estimated that about an equal number of applications would be turned in here.

The tests were comparatively short and the questions differ considerably from those which were given the applicants who took the examinations several months ago. They bring out the driver's technical knowledge of the car and his familiarity with the state laws governing its operation.

The questions are given to the applicants verbally by the secretry, from twenty to twenty-five men writing at the same time. As soon as he has finished with one bunch he has the next set ready and starts them within a few minutes. The examination will continue until all have been tried out as to their fitness to operate the gasoline carts for hire. The tests will not be concluded until late this afternoon, and if necessary, Secretary Maloney says that he will remain in the city over tomorrow.

Each of the applicants is required to pay a fee of $3 and to file two photographs of himself with his application. The licenses expire Dec 31 of each year and can be renewed on the payment of a fee of $2. Owners of automobiles are not obliged to take any examination to determine their fitness to operate their machines.

The state furnishes those who pass the examinations successfully with metal badges which they are obliged to wear pinned on the outside of his clothing or on the cap.

"THE GOOD OLD DAYS."

Forty-two years ago today, William McEwen of Duluth Heights came to Duluth for the first time.

The ice was thick just outside the harbor and the Keweenaw, an old-time side-wheeler, had a hard time to break through and finally land her passengers.

To those who think the present spring late, it might be said that at that time of the year forty-two years ago, the people were just beginning to expect the break-up.

With Mr. McEwen on the trip were Thomas Dandling and Robert Carr.

Thomas Bowers, Jacob Zimmerman and James Dingwall were also passengers of the boat. They have since died.

BOY SCOUTS FLOURISH.

Many of the Organizations Already Formed in North Dakota.

Dickinson, N. D., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—That there are about seventy-five Boy Scouts organizations in North Dakota according to the report made by Rev. A. C. Hacke, scout commissioner of the west Missouri river district of North Dakota and scout master of the Dickinson troop, at the annual meeting of the Dickinson council of Boy Scouts of America. Fifty of these are active and are both encouraged and financed to a certain extent by the state Sunday School association. Rev. Mr. Hacke's report also shows that the North Dakota councils are increasing in membership and doing the required scout work.

The council elected new officers at this gathering as follows: P. S. Berg, president; E. J. Hughes, vice president; A. C. Hacke, scoutmaster and commissioner; D. D. Mars, secretary; M. L. Ayers, treasurer. Rev. F. H. Farrand and A. T. Crowl were elected to unexpired terms on the council and two more vacancies will be filled at the next meeting. Plans are under way to provide play grounds for summer use and a club room for the winter for the scout boys.

MENOMINEE CIRCUIT COURT IN SESSION.

Menominee, Mich., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The May term of the Menominee circuit court opened with a light docket of cases before Judge Flannigan. Joseph Hnilicka was fined $100 and $10 costs for selling liquor without a license. Nicholas Lauerman pleaded guilty of burglarizing the residence of Samuel Crawford. Lauerman made a desperate resistance when the police attempted to take him and was not captured until many shots had been exchanged. He has not yet been sentenced.

FATHER GIVES CUTICLE TO SAVE HIS SON.

Hancock, Mich., May 15.—An operation for the grafting of skin from one person to another, one seldom performed in the Copper country, was successfully undertaken by Doctors Scallon, Roberts and Anderson at St. Joseph's hospital a few days ago. John Oikkonen of South Range submitted to the transfer of skin from his thigh to the right arm of his 8-year-old son, who was badly injured several weeks ago by a team running over him.

J. A. STETSON
FARM AND MINERAL LANDS
MORTGAGE LOANS

Deerwood, Minn., May 1, 1912.

Business Manager,
The Duluth Herald:

It may interest you to know that out of several hundred newspapers in which I am advertising farm lands I am getting by all odds the best results from The Duluth Herald. Some of the answers I get are from Iowa, Nebraska, California, Washington and other remote points.

From one short description I have got as many as 32 answers. The results from my advertising of Cuyuna range iron lands in The Herald have been better than I could possibly expect.

Perhaps two of the reasons why I get such splendid service from The Herald is because it is doing so much to acquaint its readers with the grand agricultural opportunities in Northern Minnesota and has the best news service of any newspaper from the Cuyuna iron range.

My hat's off to The Herald as an advertising medium. It gives me results ten to one over any of the daily newspapers of Minneapolis and St. Paul.. Sincerely yours,

J. A. STETSON.

SAY TAFT WILL QUIT IF HE LOSES IN OHIO PRIMARY ELECTIONS

PRESIDENT IS SILENT

Refuses to Comment on Story Printed in the Cleveland Papers.

Says Roosevelt Cannot Get Enough Votes to Be Nominated.

Nation's Chief Executive Takes Day of Rest From Campaigning.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 16.—President Taft today refused to comment on a story printed in the local papers regarding a rumor that he would quit the race if he lost out in the Ohio primaries.

In a statement issued today President Taft said the claim of Theodore Roosevelt that he controlled 522 delegates to the Republican national convention at Chicago is without foundation. The president said that if Mr. Roosevelt were to get all the delegates yet to be chosen he could not be nominated.

The president met with Senator Burton and other local leaders during the morning. It was expected he might see Secretary of State Knox, who spoke here last night in the president's behalf.

Taken Day Off.

Today was largely one of rest for President Taft. His special rolled into the city shortly after midnight and was stopped at Gordon Park. Consequently, when he looked out of the car window this morning, his gaze rested on

FURNITURE RATE RAISE SUSPENDED

Commerce Commission Ruling Affects Several Hundred Roads.

Washington, May 16.—Increases in the transportation rates on furniture in carlots between points in Central Freight association and Western Traffic association territory, averaging about 15 per cent, are suspended by the interstate commerce commission from June 7 until Sept. 3. The suspension affects several hundred roads, including all those operating westward out of Washington, D. C.

HOLDS WHARVES PUBLIC TERMINALS

Commerce Commission Makes Ruling on Railroad Properties.

Washington, May 16.—The interstate comerce commission today held that where a railroad has a wharf to which its tariffs offer delivery, and at which part of the shipping public is served, the wharf becomes a public terminal, and if all shippers are not given access to it by the boats they choose to employ, it becomes the carrier's duty to make deliveries at other docks at the same rate.

This decision was given in the case of the Mobile chamber of commerce against the Mobile & Ohio railroad and other carriers. It affects not merely the railroad-operated wharves and docks at Mobile, but applies in principle to all rail carriers doing a connecting business with water lines anywhere in the United States. The commission's order in the case is effective July 1.

The above decision, it is claimed by members of the Duluth traffic commission, does not directly affect Duluth.

In Mobile, for example, a shipment of freight might be received, consigned for transhipment to some point in Florida. The railroad would refuse to deliver this freight to any steamship line with which it did not have an agreement as to rates. An independent steamship company might offer a lower rate from Mobile to Florida, but the railroad would refuse to deliver to that steamship company, and the handling charges in Mobile would eat up the difference in the freight rate.

This condition, it is claimed, does not exist in Duluth. One of the members of the traffic commission stated today that a shipper in Fargo, for example, might have a shipment of freight for Buffalo, and he could choose the steamship line to which he wished it consigned. The freight would be turned over to that steamship line here.

The decision does not remove Duluth's need of a public dock, it is claimed. At the present time Duluth has no public dock where shipments of freight originating locally, or consigned to local people, can be received. The package freight lines handle such business at the cold storage warehouse dock.

WILL MAKE THE SPEECH NOMINATING ROOSEVELT

W. A. PRENDERGAST.

Dayton, Ohio, May 16.—Col. Roosevelt said here last night that Comptroller William A. Prendergast of New York city would make the nominating speech for him at the convention.

OPEN 124TH ASSEMBLY

Presbyterians Begin Their General Meeting at Louisville, Ky.

Three Candidates Prominent for Election as Moderator.

Louisville, Ky., May 16.—With a sermon by the retiring moderator, Rev. John F. Carson of Brooklyn, to be followed by the election of a new moderator, nearly 2,000 churchmen of the Presbyterian church in the United States of America organized their 124th general assembly in Louisville today, the first in many years to be held south of the Mason and Dixon line.

Three men, with a fourth who at any other than a church assembly would be called a "dark horse," were prominently named as candidates for the highest honor in the gift of the assembly, that of moderator. It was expected that Rev. Dr. Mark A. Matthews of Seattle would receive a larger vote on the first ballot than either Rev. Dr. James G. K. McClure of Chicago or Rev. Dr. Frank Woodford Sneed of Pittsburg.

This would make it necessary, according to the rules of procedure, for Dr. McClure or Dr. Sneed, whoever received the lowest vote, to withdraw, leaving the two others before the assembly. In case several ballots had not resulted in an election, it was expected that the name of Rev. Dr. William G. Taylor of Rochester, N. Y., would be put before the assembly.

Two Are Southerners.

Dr. Sneed and Dr. Matthews are Southerners, both having been members of the Southern Presbyterian church before going to northern churches. Dr. McClure is president of Wytheville, Va., May 16.—Today may decide the fate of Floyd Allen, the first of the Hillsville courthouse assassins to be brought to trial. Joseph Wysor, chief counsel for the prosecution, who was making the closing address in Allen's case when court adjourned last night, resumed speaking today and it was expected that the case would go to the jury within a few hours.

WIDOW ELECTED WYOMING MAYOR

ADMITS HE IS MURDERER

Tony Schnider Says He Killed Mrs. F. J. Page to Get Her Money.

Morrison County Crime Is Cleared By Confession at Little Falls.

Little Falls, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Tony Schnider alias John Kropel, this morning confessed here to the murder last Sunday of Mrs. F. J. Page of Austland, near Pillager, Morrison county. He was arrested yesterday charged with the crime. Robbery was his motive, but he failed to get any money because Mrs. Page had deposited in the bank on the previous day certain funds which she generally carried with her. Mrs. Page disappeared Sunday, failing to return home after Sunday school exercises. Her husband began a search for her the next morning, and found her body in the woods in Rail Prairie township. Her throat had been cut and there was evidence of assault.

Seen at Ironton.

Suspicion became directed toward Schnider, or Kropel, and search for him led to the discovery that he had disappeared. Yesterday he was seen at Ironton, but he disappeared from there before the officials could arrest him, and was seen running along the railroad track in the direction of Crosby. As he entered Crosby he started to walk rapidly through the streets. Mark Rail, a neighbor of the murdered woman, who had accompanied the authorities, saw the man coming, and whipped a revolver from his pocket and took him into custody. Sheriff Armstrong, County Attorney Cameron and Luther Snow, who formed the remainder of the party, came up and the man was brought back here. Nothing was said to him on the return trip regarding the crime for which he was wanted, but he voluntarily mentioned Mrs. Page's name. He was locked in the county jail here and admission denied every one.

Schnider seems somewhat demented and hardly realizes the enormity of the crime with which he is charged. The next step to be taken has not been announced.

CLARK MEN CLAIM MICHIGAN VICTORY

Delegates Chosen at State Convention Are Not Instructed.

Bay City, Mich., May 16.—The Democratic state convention here sent uninstructed delegates to Baltimore Wilson's managers tried for instructions, but lost, and the Clark Michigan men hailed the result as victory for the Missouri candidate, claiming 22 of the 30 delegates are Clark men.

The platform denounces the Payne-Aldrich tariff, Republican extravagance and Taft's vetoes of legislation by the Democratic house. It favors limitation of stocks and bonds of all corporations to actual investment; advocates conservation of national resources; favors a national income tax, election of United States senators by direct vote, and a senatorial and presidential preference primary.

FUNDS ARE UNLIMITED

Lavish Expenditures By the Managers of Roosevelt's Campaign.

In One County of New York His Votes Cost About $5 Each.

(By Willis J. Abbot.)

Washington, May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Within the week the question of Taft vs. Roosevelt will be determined. Among politicians here the feeling is strong that all the outlook, all the political signs, points to the renomination of the president. Nevertheless they do not underestimate the political acumen nor the financial resourcefulness of Col. Roosevelt. If money can win a nomination and the following election, Col. Roosevelt has this one cinched. The expenditures of his lieutenants in Illinois, New York and Massachusetts indicate their possession of unlimited funds. These being facts, and they are facts of public record, one wonders how the colonel can thrust himself forward as the candidate of the common people and of the impoverished masses. "Beyond doubt," as a distinguished senator, Republican by the way, remarked this morning, "Col. Roosevelt is the most remarkable, the most unusual personal figure in our political history since the Civil war. Some of the things he has done would have driven any other man out of public life. They are roasting Champ Clark now for his remark, made probably in a spirit of humor, that the practical monopoly in both bauxite and the manufacture of aluminum which the company legally enjoyed upon the expiration of its patents for making aluminum in 1909, has been maintained by unlawful agreements and unfair methods toward competitors.

The extent of other bauxite deposits in the United States is not known now, but it is pointed out that there are inexhaustible quantities abroad which Practices are Unlawful.

The government concedes that the company's ownership of more than 90 per cent of the known deposits of bauxite (base of aluminum) in the United States and Canada, suitable for the manufacture of the metal, is "not within itself" unlawful. It is charged however, that the practical monopoly

However, when the cold-blooded game of politics begins, it will not be what Taft believes or what Roosevelt has said that will carry the day. The real issue will come in the committee on credentials of the Chicago convention. In almost every state instructed

WINNING WHITE PLAGUE FIGHT

Reports Show 18.7 Per Cent Decrease in Deaths in Last Decade.

New York, May 16.—In the decade from 1901 to 1910, the death rate from tuberculosis in the United States fell from 196.9 for each 100,000 persons to 160.3, a decrease of 18.7 per cent, while the general death rate, including all causes of death, declined only one-half as fast, or at the rate of 9.7 per cent, from 1,655 to 1,495.8.

These figures are given out in a statement today by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis. They are based on data abstracted from the reports of the United States bureau of the census and cover the registration area in this country. The decline in the tuberculosis death rate in the last ten years means a saving of 27,000 lives a year at the present time.

ALUMINUM TRUST GOING

Suit for Injunction Is Filed With Assurance of Peaceable Settlement.

Dissolution Is Not Asked, But Illegal Acts Are Alleged.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 16.—The federal government today filed a civil anti-trust suit against the Aluminum Company of America, which will be the basis for an agreed decree designed to restrain the so-called Aluminum trust from monopolizing the manufacture of aluminum and its products, including cooking utensils.

In a petition in equity to the United States court for the Western district of Pennsylvania, the company is charged with being a monopoly restraining interstate and foreign commerce in violation of the Sherman law. It was declared to have acquired substantial control of the aluminum industry in the United States, and to have charge of the unreasonably high prices of its products.

Dissolution of the corporation is not sought, but the court is asked to issue nine broad injunctions against alleged unlawful contracts, combinations, conspiracies, and practices.

THROW WILSON MEN TO BRYAN?

Wolfe of La Crosse Says Effort Is Being Made in Wisconsin.

La Crosse, Wis., May 16.—Attempts to line up the Wilson delegation from Wisconsin to the Democratic national convention in favor of William Jennings Bryan are being made, was the announcement made today by William E. Wolfe of La Crosse, one of the delegates at large and head of the Wilson delegation.

Thomas Fleming of Milwaukee, elected without instructions but counted for Wilson because of the majority for Wilson in his district in the primary, is said to be at the head of the movement. The proposition is to indorse Bryan as second choice, before the convention meets, and to go to him early in the balloting. Delegate Wolfe has replied that he will insist on the delegation's supporting Wilson until released by him, and not considering a second choice until then.

Methodist Conference Adopts Recommendation of Its Committee.

Amusement Question Up for Discussion at Minneapolis.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The episcopacy committee of the Methodist Episcopal church today recommended the election of eight new bishops of the church. The report was adopted by the conference practically without discussion, and voting on the bishops probably will be begun tomorrow.

Automatic retirement by time limit for bishops of the Methodist Episcopal church, which has been advocated by delegates to the general conference of that denomination in session here, will probably be favorably acted upon by that body. Additional impetus was given the project by the pathetic appeal made by Bishop David H. Moore in his address

MILWAUKEE FEELS FREIGHT STRIKE

Chicago Railroad Officials Say They Are Sure of Success.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 16.—The strike of clerks and freight handlers in Milwaukee is said this forenoon to be affecting only the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul system and that only 150 employes are out. The main grievance is said to be that the men are required to handle freight which should be taken care of in Chicago.

It is said that the crisis will be reached tomorrow, when a conference is to be held between the representatives of the strikers in Chicago and the Milwaukee men. The Milwaukee employes, it is said, want among other things an increase of $5 per month in wages, an increase of 1 cent per hour for men paid by the hour, double time for Sunday work, half holiday Saturday, time and a half for overtime, and semi-monthly payment of salaries.

Railroad Men Optimistic.

Chicago, May 16.—Railroad officials today were sanguine regarding conditions in the strike of the freight handlers and declared the work of moving commodities in the freight houses was proceeding normally.

The officials of the Freight Handlers' union declared they had made no move to declare the strike off and that they were confident of ultimate victory.

There was no disorder at any of the freight houses where the new men employed by the railroads worked. Police guards continued to be kept about the freight houses.

FORMER PURE FOOD CHIEF IS HAPPY DAD.

Washington, May 16.—With the bureau of chemistry still without a chief, a possible hereditary successor to Dr. Harvey W. Wiley arrived in Washington today when the former chief chemist of the United States became the father of a boy, his first born. All former official trials and tribulations were forgotten and there was unalloyed joy in the Wiley household. Dr. Wiley, who is 67 years old, was married to Miss Anna G. Kelton a year ago.

Eighth District Men Unite on Larsen for Delegate-at-Large.

Anti-Eberhart Sentiment Prevails—Gordon Favorite for Governor.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The state Republican convention had not reassembled by 2:45 p. m. Resolutions will be reported asking the state central committee to provide for a direct primary plan on the governorship.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

Minneapolis, Minn., May 16.—With nearly all counties in the state represented and with a working majority for Roosevelt, the Minnesota Republican state convention met in the Armory here at noon today.

The Eighth district delegates were early on the ground and did effective work for O. J. Larson for delegate-at-large. Despite the friction at the convention yesterday nearly all delegations from the Eighth were behind Mr. Larson, and his name found ready favor with delegations from the other districts as they arrived. The West hotel headquarters of the Roosevelt organization was filled with politics last night and this morning. There were conferences in nearly every room and in every corner of the lobby and galleries.

Sam Y. Gordon, candidate for governor, was in his new headquarters and William E. Lee and L. C. Spooner also had rooms open and were personally on hand to greet visitors.

Governor Eberhart's interests were cared for by Ralph Wheelock, his secretary; J. A. O. Preus, insurance commissioner; Guy A. Eaton, state oil in-

Queen Louisa Thanks Those Who Shared Her Grief.

Hamburg, Germany, May 16.—The body of King Frederick VIII of Denmark, who died here under pathetic circumstances Tuesday night, was started on its journey to Copenhagen at 8 o'clock this morning.

A short and simple funeral service was held in the rooms of the hotel before the casket was carried down the stairs by twelve municipal employes attired in quaint, fifteenth century costumes. They wore black doublets, knee breeches, white stockings, black plumed hats and swords. As the procession passed out other officials in mediaeval costumes lined up on each side of the door.

GLEANED ALONG THE POLICE RUN

Volumes upon volumes, each word a tear, could be written upon scenes which take place within the walls of Duluth hospitals, could the facts be known.

Now and then a whisper of them reaches the ears of the outer world. Awestricken, the world listens, absorbing with interest the fragments of tragedies without understanding the greater tragedies which are never heard.

Within their walls are enacted the saddest, the most pathetic, the most heart-rendering tragedies of real life. There, upon their deathbeds, men and women confess the sins of their lives, the wrongs which they have done others when they might have done good or acted differently. There they sob their repentance, and with the helping ministrations of the kindly preachers of the gospel, they make their peace with their Maker.

Probably more than any other, the courts in the grinding of the legal mills, are the principal channel through which such news filters to the outside. The police court furnished such an instance but a few days ago, when a man of the cloth told of the dying confession of a young woman who had done wrong. It was with great reluctance that he did so, but the court held that under the circumstances it could not be regarded as a privileged communication. He and the others who have intimated knowledge of matters of that kind hold the mas sacred trusts, to be divulged to no curious ears.

Occasionally other cases of a similar nature filter through, in roundabout channels. But it is the exception when they become generally known, and in the majority of instances it is much better that such is the case.

Not so very long ago a young married woman passed away at one of the local hospitals. Who she was is not especially material; the lesson of her life is the same. She repented too late. Last fall she left her husband and ran away with a man who was friendly with her and her husband. They fled westward together. Hundreds of miles from friends and relatives she was taken sick. She had to undergo an operation. Through lack of attention it was not successful. Her condition became worse. Realizing that she had not a great while to live she made her way back to the city from which she had thoughtlessly fled but a few months before. When she arrived she was too ill to go to her home. She had to go direct to the hospital. Every effort to save her life was made, but she was beyond human aid. A day or two before she died she summoned her husband to her bedside. With the shadow of death hovering over her another of the innumerable tragedies of life was enacted. She told him what he already knew and begged and received his forgiveness. While she lies beneath the sod the heart of the husband is filled with bitterness towards the man who caused her to leave him. Should he ever return another tragedy, violent and impassioned, may be enacted, whereupon the whole, sad story would probably come out through the courts.

The proprietor of the hotel and another boarder said that they had seen Stiefel wearing the buttons. Stiefel maintains that his arrest was caused because Chollette was "sore" at him because he recovered a judgment against him for wages due him. He claims that he owed him $5 and that the judgment which Chollette had to pay over was $13. The case will be finally disposed of this afternoon.

They pleaded guilty to disorderly charges in police court yesterday afternoon and were sent to the county jail for thirty days each.

BY RIGHT OF POSSESSION

Mrs. Mary Cain Claims Ownership of Property Worth $30,000.

Says She Has Grown Crops on It for Seventeen Years.

Twenty acres of city property on Duluth Heights, valued at $1,500 an acre, and on record as being the property of the Highland Improvement company of which Charles P. Craig is at the head, is claimed through adverse possession by Mary Cain, who is prosecuting a lawsuit in district court against Harry Gould, claiming that Gould allowed his cattle to tramp over her gardens and ruin her crops and that he had taken down the fences surrounding the property. She is suing for $1,500.

The first inkling that the Highland company had of the adverse claim on this property by Mrs. Cain, was when the Cain-Gould case was instigated. In her complaint against Gould, the plaintiff asserts that she is the owner through adverse possession of the property and that she has occupied and used it for growing crops for the past seventeen or eighteen years.

The case has been on trial for two days and is now in the hands of the jury. Judge Dancer, who instructed the jury today, declared that in order for the plaintiff to recover damages to her crops that she must establish title of the land under adverse possession as opposed to the record title now held by the Highland Improvement company, which has paid taxes and assessments on the property for several years.

If the jury finds that Mrs. Cain has come into a title to the land through adverse possession for the past fifteen years, damages to the crops which were grown on the land may be assessed against the defendant, Gould, according to the instructions given by the court.

If Mrs. Cain fails to establish her claim to adverse possession, the jury must return a verdict for the defendant. The verdict of the jury will not in any way affect the relations between Mrs. Cain and the Highland Improvement company as the latter is not a party to the action.

Witnesses were on the stand yesterday afternoon for the defense to show that Mrs. Cain had at various times during the past few years secured permission from the Highland company to make use of the vacant property to grow her crops on. This testimony was introduced for the purpose of discrediting her claim to a title to the land.

OIL FROM SUNFLOWER SEED.

Consular and Trade Reports: Experiments are now being made at some of the crushing mills in Hull as to the fesibility of extracting oil from sunflower seed and using the residue as an ingredient in the manufacture of feed cake. Large consignments of seed have recently arrived in Hull from Odessa, the sunflower being extensively cultivated in Southern Russia.

When crushed the sunflower seed yields on the average of 30 per cent of oil, while the yield of soya bean oil is 18 per cent. The oil is limpid and pale yellow in color and it is believed it will prove valuable in soapmaking, the manufacture of varnishes and for culinary purposes. The residue from the crushed sunflower seeds has been manufactured into cakes and experiments are being made to ascertain whether the cake thus made is suitable for feeding purposes. A small quantity of these cakes has been shipped to the continent.

CELEBRATION BY CURLERS

Eighth Annual Dinner of Western Club Most Enjoyable Affair.

Trophies Won During the Past Season Are Presented.

The eighth annual banquet of the Western Curling club at the Dormedy hall last evening swept all the other seven banquets off the boards. The arrangements were excellent, and the various features of the evening were well received by the 250 curlers and their wives who attended the affair.

The evening's entertainment was opened by an invocation given by Rev. B. L. Opdahl, following which the guests enjoyed the banquet prepared and served by the Ladies' Aid Society of the West Duluth Baptist church. After the dinner George J. Mallory, who presided at the meeting in place of Frank H. Wade, president of the club, gave a short talk on the success of the organization and introduced Edward Holland as toastmaster for the evening.

A. G. Anderson of New Duluth was the first speaker on the program and he gave a short talk in behalf of the New Duluth Curling club. His talk was followed by several Scotch songs rendered by James Myron. The songs were in a humorous strain and scored a success last evening. William Dinham spoke in behalf of the Duluth Curling club. His address bristled with humor and he took occasion to score off the various West Duluth curlers who took part in the Northwestern bonspiel last winter. Mr. Dinham spoke in place of Stephen H. Jones, president of the Duluth Curling club, who was unable to be present at the banquet.

Melvin Olson, E. J. Zauft and Charles Iltis all gave short humorous talks on the various members of the club. Following the special addresses Mr. Holland then began the series of talks on the presentation and acceptance of each trophy won during the past season at the Western Curling club rink. Six trophies were won during the winter. They are Esterly, Commercial club, Henricksen, Burns Lumber company, Union Match and Bagley Jewelry company.

The Winning Rinks.

The winning rinks for the past season are as follows: Esterly—Brown, Jr., Quinn, Dr. C. R. Keyes, H. C. Brown, skip; Commercial club cup—Kent, Burns, Macauley, Ashley, skip; Union Match cup—Rude, Nygren, Raymond, Dr. W. E. Judson, skip; Bagley cup—Anderson, Getchell, Ehr, T. F. Wieland, skip; Burns Lumber company cup—McDonald, Kilton, Wade, Jr., F. H. Wade, skip; Henricksen cup—Pond, Mallory, Scott, L. R. Clark, skip.

The trophies were presented last evening in the following order: Burns Lumber company, by E. E. Burns to Kenneth McDonald, who responded in place of Frank H. Wade; Esterly Jewelry company, by J. A. Knapp to H. C. Brown; West Duluth Commercial club, by L. A. Barnes, who spoke in the absence of A. G. Macauley, to Frank M. Ashley; Union Match company, by J. Blechl to Dr. W. E. Judson; Bagley cup and jewelry, by John Murphy to T. F. Wieland; and the Henricksen Jewelry company, by Mr. Henricksen to George J. Mallory, who accepted the trophy in place of L. R. Clark, who is ill at the St. Luke's hospital.

After the presentation of the trophies, the hall was cleared of the tables and dancing was enjoyed for the remainder of the evening. Blewett's orchestra furnished the music. Following are the various committees of the club, which had charge of the banquet last evening: Reception—Edward Holland, Stanley Gilpin, W. M. Evered, Melvin Olson, Dr. W. E. Judson, Charles Raymond, William Sullivan, Charles Iltis and H. C. Brown; decoration—T. F. Wieland, E. Gustafson, Leon Iltis, Thomas Wilkins, Thomas Quinn and Neil J. Buckley; entertainment—George J. DULUTH INDUSTRIAL HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Seniors at the Duluth Industrial high school are planning an active subscription and advertising campaign in behalf of the first annual funds for which are now lacking. The students at the head of the magazine have figured that with the present advertising space sold and the probable sales, there will be a deficit of at least $75.

The students do not wish to give up the idea of an annual for the year and are anxious to make the one this year a success. S. A. Foster, principal of the schools, has entered into the work of the seniors and is now assisting in the canvass for advertising. So far the business department has secured pledges for $75 worth of space. This amount with a likely sale of 200 copies of the annual will bring the total receipts to $175. The estimated cost of printing and binding the book is nearly $200.

That there shall be no deficit whatever, is the plan of the seniors. Roy Williams, business manager of the annual, is now arranging for a general canvass of the West Duluth and Duluth business men.

Should the business men not come to the assistance of the class, the members are planning to charge admission to the senior class play, which will be given the week of June 10. In this way the class expects to make up the probable deficit of the annual. Clifford Stowell is editor-in-chief of the Industrial Echo, the name of the annual, and he has been assisted by Misses Anna Neupauer, Florence Salter and Mildred Simmons and Isadore Abhahamson as associate editors. The Echo is expected to be out the last week of the present school year.

Mrs. Howe and Miss Williams of the Affiliated Collegiate Alumnae spoke to junior and senior girls yesterday afternoon. Following the addresses the freshman girls served a tea and luncheon to the junior and senior girls and the visitors. The girls who served the luncheon were: Misses Pearl Holmes, Lazira Boutin, Ellen Cashin, Marie Brotherton, Katherine Roche, Elsie Larrive, Helen Wenner, Bessie McKinnon, Olga Hallene.

ALL PRICES GO SMASH!

Sensational General Break Marks Close of Chicago Market.

Ten Million Bushels of Wheat Dumped in Within Two Days.

Chicago, May 16.—A sensational break in prices was witnessed during the last fifteen minutes of trading today on 'Change. Wild selling of a stop-loss character sent wheat prices tumbling down as much as 4¾c a bushel, compared with last night. Corn lost 2¼c, oats 2⅜c and pork 80 cents.

The excitable action of the market was due to the fact that heavy sales of wheat on the part of two prominent concerns for the last two days gave the trade too much of a load to carry. In the end the resulting weakness spread to other staples, and led to a general smash in prices. It was expected that as much as 10,000,000 bushels of wheat had been unloaded on the market within forty-eight hours, and that half of the huge total had come on from a widely known speculator.

The severest break was in May wheat, the delivery most closely associated with the big cash holdings which have for more than a year been a constant menace to speculators who attempted to gauge the course of the market.

One theory of the collapse was that the interests which had so long controlled the bulk of the actual supply here had finally been forced to abandon the idea of a profit, and had decided to throw the whole wheat overboard and save as much of their principal as possible.

MICHIGAN ROAD IS FINED $1,000

Pleads Guilty to Falsifying Shipping Record on Merchandise.

Grand Rapids, Mich., May 16.—Changing its plea of not guilty to one of guilty, the Chicago, Kalamazoo & Saginaw Railway company today was fined $1,000 in United States district court for falsifying shipping records on merchandise from points near Kalamazoo. The goods were billed as from Kalamazoo, allowing the railroad a share of the through freight rates, whereas, if correctly billed, a switching charge only could have been collected. The fine was paid.

Mrs. A. Hopkins, 225 East Ragle St., East Boston, Mass., writes: "Years ago I learned what a good medicine Hood's Sarsaparilla is. When spring came on I was thoroughly exhausted and obliged to take my bed. I thought I would rather die than be so tired. I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and before long was perfectly well. Since then, spring has never come without my having Hood's Sarsaparilla."

LOEB HOUSE IS DAMAGED

Fire Causes Loss of $12,000 in East End Residence.

Was Being Redecorated and Was Not Occupied By Owners.

The handsome residence of Louis S. Loeb at 1123 East Superior street was badly damaged by fire about 3:30 o'clock this morning. It is estimated that the loss will be about $12,000, covered by insurance.

The blaze is believed to have been caused by defective electric wiring, as the fire started in the ceiling near a set of wires in the rear of the house.

Mr. Loeb's home was being completely redecorated and painted and for that reason was not occupied by the family. A caretaker had been left in charge and he was awakened by the crackling of the flames near the head of his bed. Hurriedly picking up his clothes he made his way safely to the street and turned in the alarm. The fire department was on the scene in a short time and saved the property from complete destruction.

The rear of the house was almost completely gutted, the front rooms being all that escaped the fire, while they and their contents were badly damaged by the smoke and water. A large quantity of furniture in the house was practically ruined. Much of the building will have to be rebuilt and all of the painting and redecorating will have to be done over again. Mr. Loeb stated this morning that it is too early for him to have ascertained the damage definitely, but he said that it would run to at least $12,000, and perhaps $15,000.

This forenoon the department put out a small blaze in the residence of Mrs. C. Lindstrom at 113 West Fourth street. The loss was trivial. The house is owned by Al Wagner.

TEMPERANCE MASS MEETING

There will be a temperance mass meeting in Duluth Tuesday, May 28, at the First M. E. church, when P. A. Baker, national superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league will speak.

Mr. Baker is being brought here by the local members of the Anti-Saloon league, and all Duluth people interested in the cause of temperance are being asked to co-operate in the meeting. At the present time Mr. Baker is in the limelight because of an attack made upon him by U. G. Robinson, editor of the national prohibition paper.

ROOSEVELT FORCES IN FULL CONTROL IN STATE CONVENTION

spector; and others of the amministration.

Sentiment Anti-Eberhart.

The Roosevelt victory in the state was a blow to Eberhart. The men in control of the convention here are anti-Eberhart, and the delegates report anti-Eberhart sentiment in their counties for the most part. Most of the sentiment seems to be pro-Gordon, but Lee has a large following, while Spooner's candidacy does not appear to be taken very seriously. If the delegates here may be said to reflect the sentiment accurately the fight on the progressive side is between Gordon and Lee, with Gordon having the advantage.

There is much talk of Sam Iverson as a compromise candidate to be offered by the state organization, and the proposition is favorably received in many quarters.

J. A. Larson in Chair.

The convention was called to order by James A. Larson, assistant secretary of state, to whom the calling was delegated by Chairman E. E. Smith of the state central committee.

Mr. Larson in his speech to the convention highly praised Theodore Roosevelt, his speech being greeted with cheers.

State Senator Jules E. Haycroft then was introduced as temporary chairman.

"I appreciate," he said, "that this convention probably is the last called for such a purpose. The trend toward the presidential preferential primaries, and they are bound to come.

"When we think of the Michigan and other similar state conventions this year, it is no wonder that the convention system is passing, and when we note the states in which the will of the people was expressed we see why the latter method should be adopted. Some provision must be made in this state to provide for the popular vote of the people."

Praise for Roosevelt.

In talking of Roosevelt's candidacy he said:

"With such a leader I believe defeat is impossible. He has courage and backbone; he is hated by plutocrats and feared by wrong doers. Nominate him and march on to victory."

He declared Roosevelt has done more to defeat the bosses than any other ten men.

W. H. Newton of Hennepin county was elected temporary secretary unanimously.

The expected fight on the permanent chairmanship did not develop, the La Follette delegate, Henry Feig, having withdrawn.

The convention, practically unanimously agreed to making the temporary organization permanent.

All Delegates Seated.

A motion was made that a committee on credentials be appointed and R. C. Dunn of Princeton moved that the committee be dispensed with as there wer no contests. The convention finally adopted a motion declaring the delegates mentioned in the newspapers as elected to the convention entitled to seats.

The chair was authorized to appoint a committee on resolutions from each congressional district.

The chair was also authorized to appoint a committee of ten from each congressional district and a committee on apportionment of delegates and presidential electors.

Marcus Brown of Dakota county objected to a motion that all resolutions be referred to the resolutions committee. F. J. McPartlin of Koochiching county expressed the same sentiments. The opposition was based on a belief that it was a move to head off resolutions prepared by the La Follette supporters. It was laid on the table.

Caswell for Committeeman.

Palmer Hughes of Hennepin and F. S. Lycan of Beltrami county were chosen assistant secretaries.

Jas. P. Boyle of Eveleth had the honor of putting up the name of I. A. Caswell for indorsement for national committeeman before the convention. Although it was understood that a contest was contemplated by friends of Frank B. Kellogg, Mr. Kellogg's name at his request, was not presented to the convention and Mr. Caswell was unanimously indorsed.

E. G. Haxe, Brown county; George D. Reed, Rice; G. L. Caldwell, Ramsey, A. A. D. Rahn, Hennepin; E. J. West, Benton; J. F. Rosenwald, Lac qui Parle; John Saarl, St. Louis, and A. G. Anderson, Otter Tail, were appointed on the committee on the apportionment of delegates.

Committee on Resolutions.

E. H. Canfield of Rock county; E. H. Smith, Mower; A. D. Stewart, Redwood; Peter L. Lloyd, Blue Earth; C. P. Drepenbrock, Goodhue; George T. Olson, Nicollet; A. R. Wilkinson, Washington; E. E. Young, Ramsey; L. T. Lincoln, L. T. Swift, Hennepin; F. T. White, Sherburne; W. T. Stone, Hubbard; T. T. Ofsthein, Polk; Henry Rines, Kanabec; W. E. Culkin, St. Louis; J. T. Johnson, Otter Tail; Magnus Brown, Dakota, and Clinton Luce of Freeborn were named on the committee on resolutions.

The convention adjourned until 2 o'clock while the resolutions committee was in session.

The Roosevelt delegates got together this morning and decided on a delegate slate which is expected to go through.

Candidates Proposed.

The candidates popularly supported are M. D. Purdy of Minneapolis, Senator Moses E. Clapp of St. Paul, O. J. Larson of Duluth, J. F. Jacobson of Madison, Senator A. L. Hansen of Ada and William O'Brien of Eden Valley.

The slate may not go through the convention, but it is expected to. P. V. Collins of Minneapolis is a candidate and his name may come before the convention.

La Follette Men Busy.

During the recess, predictions of a warm contest on the resolutions were freely made. The tabling of the "gag rule" motion during the early part of the convention left the field clear for contests on the floor, and the La Follette men expected to take advantage of it. They want recognition in some form, and it was said they might introduce a resolution declaring for La Follette for second choice. It would have no chance of adoption, but would give La Follette delegates opportunity to declare themselves. Three La Follette men were placed on the committee on resolutions, out of eighteen members.

DEBS LIKELY TO HEAD SOCIALISTS

Seidel Has Large Following and Russell May Get Second Place.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 16.—Discussion of the platform and the report of the committee on international relations was the most important business before the national Socialist convention here today. The provisions of the platform have been carefully guarded and the planks probably will not be known until they are introduced for discussion.

The international relations committee, it is said, will ask the committee to strike a "hands off" attitude on the part of the United States in regard to Mexico. Senor De Lara, the delegate from Mexico to the convention, already has asked the convention to take such action.

Debs Is Favorite.

Eugene V. Debs of Terre Haute, Ind., at one time head of his party for the presidency, is expected today and probably will be the choice for the nomination in the next campaign. Emil Seidel of Milwaukee, however, has a large following among the delegates.

Charles Edward Russell, it seems, will get the second place on the ticket. The nominations are scheduled to be made tomorrow.

Roosevelt carried every congressional district, as well as the state at large, and will have the entire Nebraska delegation to the Chicago convention. Clark won in four districts and the state at large, while Harmon carried the Second and Third districts.

The primary law is not clear, however, concerning instructions, and it remains for the Democratic national convention to say whether the delegates from those districts shall be bound by the vote of the state.

THE TALKER AND HIS JOB.

The Mediator: Conversation has lost many a man his job. The man who spends a part of his working hours in conversation decentralizes his energies, weakens his ability to concentrate and pours sand into the machinery of the institution.

The man who puts "the punch" into his work is not the man who gossips with the man at the neighboring desk, or who hangs around corridors and corner cigar stores indulging in idle conservation.

The man who makes the toilet room of an office building a social resort never gets to the top of the ladder. The toilet orator may be popular with the drones of the institution, but it is always observed that he has neither influence nor money to lend. He is generally the kind of a man who tries to use a "pull" to get a raise.

Failure in life is the result of the abuse of opportunity and maligning. It is the man who keeps busy who keeps healthy, and only the healthy in mind and body rise to the top.

Some men are so busy looking for help that they forgot to help themselves.

The only "pull" that counts in getting closer to the goal of success is the "pull" that comes from personal effort on one's own behalf, ability and push.

The man who expends his energies in expatiating on the merits of this or that baseball club robs himself of the energy required to seize opportunities and advance.

MANILA'S ANCIENT FORT.

A score of miles down the bay from Manila, right at the very front door of the archipelago, lies hidden on Corregidor island a veritable hornet's nest of masked batteries. According to the Overland Monthly, these batteries make the Port Arthur implacements of yesterday seem like mere old fashioned toys, and paper ones at that.

The Gruson turrets, made of concrete and steel and sunk on rock foundations, natural or artificial, in the deep, resembling huge gray turtles sticking up out of the water with protruding gun barrels for necks, occupy El Fraile and other small islets in the vicinity, while old hump-backed Corregidor is covered from crest to shore line with guns, a honeycomb of underground cement tunnels, pits and runways, wireless equipment, electrical apparatus, searchlights and other contrivances to aid in repelling an enemy.

When it comes to age and romantic history, however, old Fort Santiago is far ahead of Corregidor. Manila's walled city, a town in itself, consisting of several city blocks with paved streets, business houses and large dwellings, is surrounded by a stone wall about thirty feet high and from thirty to forty feet thick.

The walls once were skirted on the outside by a deep moat, filled with water, having draw bridges at the various gates. Most if not all of the moat has now been filled in, but no doubt the walls will stand for years if for no other reason than for their historical interest.

Of this vast yet crude system of defense Fort Santiago stands as the key. What the Tower of London is to England, what the Vatican is to Rome, what the Bunker Hill monument is to the United States, Fort Santiago is to the Philippine islands.

The Spanish invaders made Manila their headquarters in 1571 and began to fortify it about twenty years later. The first stone construction was the circular wall, which is still standing. Since the American occupation of the fort its armament has been taken away and the buildings within the parks have been converted into barracks and storerooms.

Commodious office buildings have been erected on top of the walls along and overlooking the Pasig, and here the commanding general of the Philippine division has his headquarters. In one of the beautiful parks within the fort is located the military arsenal, with its big steam and electric workshops.

Some of the maps and plans of the fort are now in the British museum, in London, where they were carried after the British conquest of Manila. The fort, mostly in its present form, has stood for 300 years. There are all sorts of stories floating about concerning secret chambers in the walls and wings.

So far as the secret chambers are concerned, there is some truth in the rumors. The filling of the old moat closed many of the entrances to these chambers, probably forever. When the wall in Calle Aduana was removed, an inner chamber was found filled with human skeletons.

Natives have a wholesome terror of the old place, and absolutely no desire to see anything below the surface of the thick old walls. Americans who, with electric lamps, have started explorations have given up, owing to the foul air, crumbling passages and other hindrances.

Only three flags have flown above Fort Santiago. For 328 years the Spanish ensign was unfurled to the tropic breeze, except for the brief time the British flag supplanted that of the rightful lords. The hoisting of the third flag is well known to all Americans.

HOW TO BE A WEATHER SHARP.

Christian Herald Almanac: The following formula of weather signs was adopted by the Farmers' club of the American institute some years ago, and it has been found to give satisfaction:

1. When the temperature falls suddenly there is a storm forming south of you.
2. When the temperature rises suddenly there is a storm forming north of you.
3. The wind always blows from a region of fair weather toward a point where a storm is forming.
4. Cirrus clouds always move from a region where a storm is in progress to one of fair weather.
5. Cumulus clouds always come from a region where a storm is forming.
6. When cirrus clouds are moving rapidly from the north or northeast, no matter how cold it is, there will be rain within twenty-four hours.
7. When cirrus clouds are moving rapidly from south or southeast there will be a hailstorm on the morrow, if it be in the summer, and if it be in the winter there will be snow.
8. The wind always blows about a storm in a circle; when it blows from the north, the heaviest rain is east of you; if it blows from the south, the heaviest rain is south.
9. The wind never blows, even moderately, unless rain or snow is falling within a radius of 1,000 miles.
10. Whenever heavy white frost occurs a storm is forming within 1,000 miles north or northwest of you.

WOMAN IN OFFICE THIRTY YEARS.

Kansas City Star: A woman once held the office of postmaster of Columbia, Mo., for thirty years. It probably was the longest term of any woman officeholder in the state.

Mrs. Anne Gentry distributed the mail carried to Columbia in stage coaches from 1838 until 1868. She received as her pay one-half of the proceeds of all the stamps she sold. Mrs. Gentry was the daughter of Nicholas Hawkins, a soldier in the Revolutionary war, and the wife of Col. Richard Gentry, who was killed in army service in Florida.

Col. Richard Gentry was postmaster of Columbia in 1837 when the secretary of war issued a proclamation calling on Governor Boggs of Missouri for 600 volunteers for service against the Seminole Indians in Florida. The first regiment for that service was raised in Columbia by Col. Gentry. Afterward four more companies, two of them consisting of Delaware and Osage Indians, were recruited and added to the first. Col. Gentry took the companies to Florida in October of that year, and there, soon after, the colonel was killed in battle.

Thomas Hart Benton, United States senator, was Col. Gentry's closest friend. He at once used his influence to have the widow appointed postmistress of Columbia, and obtained the appointment from Almos Kendall, the postmaster general at that time.

Mrs. Gentry conducted the postoffice and a tavern together. It stood in the very center of the town and was known as Gentry's tavern. The mail came to Mrs. Gentry by a stage which covered the route from St. Louis to Independence. It was supposed to arrive every day, but floods and other troubles sometimes made the interval between mails two or three weeks.

Another woman succeeded Mrs. Gentry in the postoffice at Columbia. She was Mrs. Frances Lathrop, wife of the first president of the University of Missouri, and mother of Gardiner Lathrop of Kansas City.

ANIMAL SENSE DANGER OF STORM.

Covina correspondence Los Angeles Times: Horace Smith, a prospector, who annually make a visit to the Covina valley from the fastnesses of the Sierra Madre mountains, says taht the tree squirrels, skunks and practically all other animals found in the interior wilds have forsaken the mountains and have come down to the foothills, where they are burrowing deep in the earth to protect themselves from a great storm that is brewing. The prospector is borne out in his statement by several old mountaineers who have noticed the same thing.

"I have noticed this fear on the part of animals several times in my mountain experience,' said the prospector, "and each time there has been a storm in the interior mountains."

JANE AUSTEN'S SAILOR BROTHER.

Pall Mall Gazette: The house of commons has declined to abolish prize money, and, indeed, when one remembers the great people who have enjoyed and been encouraged by it one is not sorry. Jane Austen's sailor brothers were rewarded for their valor in this way. Charles Austen was lieutenant of the Endymion, under Capt. Philip Durham, in 1809.

On the occasion of the capture of the Scipio the encounter took place in a violent gale; but in spite of wind and weather he put off in a boat with only four men, and boarded the vessel. Jane Austen writes to tell her sister, Cassandra how he spent his prize money: "Charles has received £30 for his share of the privateer, and expects £10 more; but of what avail is it to take prizes if he lays out the produce in presents for his sisters? He has been buying gold chains and topaz crosses for us. He must be well scolded. I shall write again by this post to thank and reproach him. We shall be unbearably fine."

TAFT WILL NOT LET UP

Says This Is No Time for Roosevelt to Oppose Personalities.

Hoarseness Keeps Many in Ohio Crowds From Hearing Him.

Sandusky, Ohio, May 16.—President Taft will not let up in his attack on Col. Roosevelt as long as he is in the campaign for renomination.

No matter whether Mr. Roosevelt ceases his personal attack on the president or not, Mr. Taft intends to keep up his campaign of criticisms of the former president and outline the achievements of the Taft administration. Mr. Tuft emphatically declares that it is no time now for Roosevelt to preach the doctrine of "no personalities."

"Having called me everything in the category of bad names that are mentioned in polite society, Mr. Roosevelt now wishes to indulge in less emphatic expressons," sad Mr. Taft at Bucyrus.

Not Bandy Epithets.

"Well," he continued, "I don't want to bandy epithets with him, but I do wish to meet his unfounded charges.

"Mr. Roosevelt is now going about Ohio saying that he will not condescend to personalities with me," Mr. Taft shouted at Mansfield. "If he had reached that conclusion two months ago I should not be here to talk to you at all. But, having applied to me every name in the calendar and now coming back to Ohio and fearing its effects, he says, 'let's have no personalities.' I am here to answer the charges that he is continuing to make, although he does not roar so loudly and does not use so many epithets. Our merchants don't forget those things."

"May Be Puzzle-Witted."

At Galion the president said: "I may be puzzle-witted, but I know the difference between plain truth and plain fiction, and there are some people that I don't think do."

He had been talking about Mr. Roosevelt.

Mr. Taft spoke twelve times yesterday. He started with the handicap of unusual horseness; seemed to conquer it after a time, but later it returned in worse form than ever and at some towns he could only speak for a few minutes. During the day the president was applauded frequently by large crowds.

"I deny, my friends, that Theodore Roosevelt and his election are esential to the happiness of the American people," said the president at Marion. "You would think from the way he talked that we were a very oppressed people. Well, I have no doubt there is room for improvement, but I think we are getting along fairly well and we are not in a condition of dissolution so we need a critical operation in the form of Theodore Roosevelt for a third term."

Opposition to a Ball Game.

At the same town he ran as a counter attraction to a ball game and made an apology.

"I wish I had time to enjoy myself as a fan," he said.

The president spoke in the local opera house, filled to the doors. He was taken in by way of the stage entrance and after he and his party were admitted hundreds made a rush to get in and the police had to draw their clubs.

Mr. Taft spoke with difficulty and only a part of his audience could hear him.

All records for fast running on the trip were broken on the journey from Elyria to Sandusky. The special train made the thirty-five miles in less than thirty minutes.

could be placed at the disposal of competitors for aluminum manufacture, if the restraints upon the trade were removed.

History of Unfair Deals.

The history of the aluminum cooking utensil industry in the United States, says the petition, "is a history of shipwrecks, caused chiefly or contributed to by the arbitrary, discriminatory and unfair dealings of the defendant."

The agreed decree which is to be entered within a few days, will follow the government's prayer for restraints upon the company. This aagreement, obviating a prolonged battle in the courts, was the result of several weeks of negotiations between the department of justice and the corporation.

William T. Chantland, special assistant to the attorney general, is in charge of the case, which he developed for the government. The bill also is signed by Attorney General Wickersham, Assistant Attorney General Fowler, and United States Attorney Jordan of Pittsburg.

Stock Dividend 500 Per Cent.

The Alumnium Company of America, incorporated in Pennsylvania, originally as the Pittsburg Reduction company, has grown, it is pointed out, from a $20,000 capitalization in 1888 until its assets now are estimated at $27,000,000. A stock dividend of 500 per cent or $16,000,000 was declared in 1909.

In addition to its extensive raw material bauxite holdings, the government declares that the company produces practically 80 per cent and consumes substantially 100 per cent of the alumnium used in making aluminum manufactures; substantially 100 per cent of the crude and semi-finished alumnium for the United States and Canada; more than 70 per cent of the aluminum cooking utensils in the United States; controls the manufacture and sale of over 50 per cent of aluminum castings for this country, used primarily in the automobile industry; and more than 70 per cent of all aluminum goods and novelties of general make in this country.

Illegal Contracts.

The defendant company is charged with entering into illegal agreements with the following corporations of individuals:

With the General Chemical company, Norton company and the Pennsylvania Salt Manufacturing company, forbidding these "three potential competitors" from engaging in the manufacture of aluminum and from selling bauxite to any one except the defendants.

With the so-called Swiss or Neuhausen company of Europe, the largest European aluminum corporation, preventing importations and exportations and dividing territory and trade so that the American company controlled the busiess on this side of the Atlantic and the European corporation on the other.

With Gustave A. Kruttschnitt and James C. Coleman, both of Newark, N. J., who are alleged to have agreed not to manufacture or sell aluminum east of Denver for a period of twenty years from Nov. 16, 1910.

Threats Alleged.

The company is alleged to have threatened, harrassed, impeded and discriminated against independents and to have attempted to impress competitors so completely that they were at the mercy of the defendants for their supply of raw material.

The court is asked to enjoin the defendant corporation aganst the continuance or repetition of any or all those unlawful contracts and practices, and from purchasing or combining with any independent concern engaged in the aluminum industry.

for Roosevelt there are contests filed on behalf of the Taft delegates, and as the Taft forces control the national committee by about three to one the outcome of these contests is perfectly evident.

There is, however, one phase of this contest which cannot be ignored. The Roosevelt votes in overwhelming numbers come from states which are likely to give Republican electoral votes. The Taft delegates come to a very great degree from normally Democratic states.

More than once I have commented on a parallel situation in the Democratic party. Governor Wilson's delegates thus far chosen come almost wholly from Republican states. Champ Clark's successes in such states as Kansas and Nebraska mean nothing in the final show down.

In Benton's "Thirty Years' View of the United States Senate" any one interested in the proposition will find a very serious discussion of the question whether the representation of the state in a national convention should not be based upon the vote given by that state to the political party concerned. While reasonable enough, the change in system could not be worked out easily. It is simple enough to say that the old-time "solid South" states ought not to dominate the Republican party to which they never give any electoral votes, but what about Missouri and Kentucky, which now and again break away from their historic Democratic lineage? On the other hand, New York has not given its electoral vote to a Democrat since Cleveland's last term. But no Democratic candidate during the political life of men now active has been elected without New York—nor will one be.

New York will have ninety votes in the Baltimore convention. Will any sane man say that their value should be underestimated because four years ago the state went against the Democratic nominee?

Roosevelt's Costly Campaign.

Supposing that Roosevelt by chance should be the nominee. Everybody knows that his expenditures in his preliminary campaign have been so extravagant that the report of them, if given publicity, as they must be under the law, will wholly destroy his insistence that he is the candidate of the plain, common people.

In the county of New York Mr. Roosevelt spent $70,000, and as a result got almost 15,000 votes—or about $5 per vote. This assertion is not based upon mere newspaper reports, but upon sworn statements submitted to the New York officials. The heaviest contributors were Frank Munsey of the Steel trust and George W. Perkins of the insurance trust, only recently a partner of Pierpont Morgan. The amount of money spent, according to the sworn reports for advertising in certain newspapers, ran up into the tens of thousandas of dollars. There has probably been no more profligate campaign of expenditure of money than that which has been waged by the Roosevelt forces. It is a most extraordinary thing that a man able to gather and to expend for political purposes money to this extent should still be able to delude the public with the idea that he represents the working classes. Mr. Roosevelt does it and does it successfully.

If you talk about Roosevelt in Washington, even Republicans who are willing in the event of his nomination to support him will stand and say "He is a wonder. He has the American people absolutely convinced of his devotion to the popular cause. It makes no difference what you or I may think of the Roosevelt ethics, or the Roosevelt morals, he has the public, and he is the one man that the Republican party can elect."

That is the growing view of the Republican politician. The Democratic politicians are beginning to believe that with the third term issue, the denunciations of him by the president of the United States and the fact that his nomination would necessarily compel the Republicans to repudiate their administration of the government for the last four years, Mr. Roosevelt can be easily beaten.

the faculty of the McCormick Theological seminary, Chicago.

Nearly 900 commissioners, that is, ministers and ruling elders with commissions to represent the various presbyteries, compose the general assembly and it was expected that fully 90 per cent would be present either today or tomorrow. Besides the men commissioners hundreds of women are here to attend sessions of the church organizations.

Sermon By Moderator.

At the opening session the retiring moderator, Rev. J. F. Carson of Brooklyn preached from the text from Haggai 1, 7-8: "Thus saith the Lord of hosts: consider your ways. Go up to the mountains and bring wood, and build the house; and I will take pleasure in it, and I will be glorified, said the Lord."

He said in part:

"The prophetic call to the church is a summons to a frank and fearless facing of actual conditions. The temper of criticism is alert in our day, and the church seems to be the special object of its attack. We are told that it has lost its hold upon the life of today. I would remind you that such things have been said about the church in every age. But, despite all the criticism, the church abides and today stands forth with as fine and fair a front to her work, with as genuine and generous an enthusiasm for her work as she ever had.

Strengthen Religious Life.

"Yet there are conditions in church life and work that call for serious consideration. The tone of religious life needs strengthening. If what we see on the surface is true to fact there are many who keep up the outward semblance while the fire has gone out on the inner altar.

"The prophetic call to the church is for deeper and more genuine Christian living; for more of the religious homelife, with its family altar, its Bible and its psalm; for more religious training of the child in the knowledge of the Scriptures and in the love of God, for more emphasis upon the church as the center of religious worship, a more faithful attendance upon the public services of the sanctuary and upon the meetings for social prayer.

"The comparatively small number of accessions to the church on confession of faith sound a note of warning and appeal. The stated clerk of the general assembly is authority for the statement that 'of our 10,051 churches, 3,739 or 37 per cent, reported no additions on confession of faith, to their membership during the year 1911.

"The evangelistic fire must be kindled in every church. After much talking about 'the enthusiasm of humanity,' 'the service of man,' 'social ministry,' and other freezing abstractions, we must come back to the Master's love of men.

"The church has become so overlaid, if not stifled, by a congeries of societies and guilds and movements that it is lost sight of except when criticized for failure to support innumerable movements.

"The spiritual function of the church must receive a new emphasis. Our danger today is not that we will neglect the social and practical side of Christianity, but that we will treat too lightly the spiritual and mystical.

Report on Temperance.

The permanent committee on temperance of the church presented its report today.

The receipts for the year were $33,866 and the disbursements $29,543. More than 1,000 temperance meetings have been held by representatives of the committee in twenty-eight states; and the equivalent of more than 25,000,000 pages of literature has been distributed in connection with the year's temperance campaign.

Of the consumption of liquors the report says:

"The indications are that there has been a slight increase in the consumption of all kinds of liquors during the past year. The total per capita consumption exactly equals that of 1907, which was the highest in our history. The argument that the more beer that is used the less spirits will be consumed, is by no means sustained by the facts.

"The urban districts which are under license are increasing in population much more rapidly than the rural districts, which are chiefly under prohibition. The drift of population is towards the cities. This in part explains why the consumption of liquor increases per capita while at the same time prohibition territory increases."

Portest Against Canteen.

The committee renews its protest against the project to restore the sale of beer at the army canteen and says that investigation of the army posts at Fort Monroe in Virginia, Fort Leavenworth and Fort Riley in Kansas and Fort D. A. Russell in Wyoming showed that in every one of these places beer was sold in open definance of the law of congress and the will of the people and in every instance the percentage of alcohol was larger than the internal revenue bureau permits to be sold without the payment of the beer tax, and in some instances it was several times as large. Beer is also openly sold in Fort Sheridan, and no doubt in other places, the report said, and concluded:

"This seems to be an attempt to carry out the reported threat of the brewers—that the recreation rooms, gymnasiums, libraries, etc., secured by the temperance people from congress at a cost of several hundred thousand dollars, would be turned into beer halls. Whoever is responsible for these and other almost incredible conditions, should be brought to justice."

a tree and flower-studded expanse of green.

The president breakfasted aboard his car, later leaving for a downtown hotel, where he was expected to meet some of the local leaders. The latter had planned for Mr. Taft to address a shop meeting shortly before noon and one in the afternoon, but this had not been definitely decided upon in view of his desire for rest.

Tonight the president will address a mass meeting in Central armory.

"Calle His Bluff."

Greenville, Ohio, May 16.—"I called his bluff," said Col. Roosevelt today of President Taft. He was speaking at Greenville on the Canadian reciprocity bill, saying the president had attempted to show that the ex-president was with him in the fight for reciprocity.

Col Roosevelt said that when he at first favored the bill, he had not known its character.

"When I learned later that it worked to the advantage of the beef trust and the millers' trust, because it let in raw material free and kept up the duty on the finished products, I had to put myself against it," the colonel continued.

"When I found the president deliberately was using my support of the measure to influence the people against me—well, I just called his bluff, if I may be permitted to use such an expression.

"I know it's hard to give up your time from the plow to go to the polls," said the colonel to the farmers in the crowd, "but if you don't get into this fight, the professional politicians will take advantage of it. This is your government and you have got to take some trouble about it."

Talked to Thousands.

Piqua, Ohio, May 16.—When Col. Roosevelt reached Piqua he found a crowd of several thousand persons awaiting him in the public square.

"All we want," said Col. Roosevelt, "is justice. I wish to see the government of the nation co-operate with the government of the states to help the farmers as has not hitherto been done. I wish to see the farmer not only get all that is possible from the soil, but get the profit from the money which is paid by the consumer and not have the profit go into the pocket of someone between the farmer and the consumer."

EIGHT WILL BE BISHOPS

yesterday to the conference, after he had been voted retired.

Moved By Moore's Plea.

Delegates are discussing Bishop Moore's plea to save the bishops mental anguish by setting an age limit when they may be retired. Such a resolution is now before the committee on episcopacy and will be reported out by that committee.

More lively discussion was predicted for today, when the amusement question, which had been made the order of the day, should come before the conference. Both a majority and minority report will be made, the majority favoring the retention of this paragraph in the discipline and the minority urging its removal.

Change Educational Funds.

The conference adopted the report which compels the giving of 20 per cent of the educational fund raised by the annual conferences to a general educational fund, to be established. The measure was fought by a representative of the smaller churches and colleges of the middle west on the claim that it would work a hardship to their schools.

The report of the Epworth league was presented last night. It told of large increase in the number of charters issued to chapters of the league, which now nearly correspond in numbers to the regular pastors of the church.

Missionary spirit and progress in the German Epworth league was commended in the report, and special approbation was awarded to the work of the Epworth league in the colored conference, where the growth and work was declared to be remarkable. Substantial gains in the Junior league were reported, and the conference was informed that financial independence had been attained by the league as a whole.

Missionary work in Mexico, India, China and the Philippines was declared to be progressing with the organization of new leagues and the translation of Methodist literture.

Epworth League Service.

The report closed with these words: "The Epworth league comes before this general conference prepared to do a larger service than has hitherto been deemed possible. Yet all that has been done brings to view a vaster field of usefulness for which larger resources and further development are imperatively needed."

Bishops Henry W. Warren of Denver, David H. Moore of Cincinnati and Thomas B. Neeley of New Orleans were retired from active work in the church by a large majority in each case. The vote was: Bishop Warren, for retirement 449, against 344; Bishop Moore, for retirement 524, against 269; Bishop Neeley, for retirement 496; against 297.

With the passing of Bishop Warren, who often has been called the "Nestor of the Episcopacy" and the "Abraham Lincoln of Religious Life," there comes to an end fifty-seven years of active work here, thirty-two of which he has been a bishop.

Civil War Veteran.

Bishop Moore, who attended the rank of lieutenant colonel during the Civil war, has been in the ministry since 1860 and has been in his present office for twelve years.

Bishop Neeley entered the ministry in 1865 and has held the office of bishop for eight years.

When the vote was announced the silence was oppressive. Then, through the secretary, Bishop Moore, who had sat upon the platform during the ordeal, begged leave to speak a few words. He touched upon his years in the service and advocated the automatic retirement of bishops at 70 years of age.

"It is more pleasant to have one's head cut off and rolling in the basket than to live as I have for ten days and watch the keen, descending edge of the guillotine," he said. "I am going back to the home of my childhood, back to my children's graves, and show the people how far the gulf stream of youth can run into the Arctic ocean of old age."

When he had completed, the sound of weeping throughout the hall was audible, while upon the platform many had hidden their faces in handkerchiefs. With one accord, the entire assemblage swept to its feet and amidst the waving of handkerchiefs sang "Blest Be the Tie That Binds."

The night session was given over to the Epworth league representatives, addresses being made by Bishop John L. Nuelson of Omaha, Rev. J. Chitamber of India, Rev. John Butler of Mexico City, and Dr. Edwin M. Randall, general secretary.

MOVE DEAD KING'S BODY

three youngest children of the late king, who had traveled with him and the queen from Nice, came immediately after the mother. All appeared to be deeply affected.

Thanked by Queen.

Queen Louisa, just before the casket was moved, left the rooms of the hotel of her own accord, and with a voice breaking with emotion, addressed a few touching phrases to the members of the Danish colony, who, with a large number of citizens of Hamburg, had assembled on the staircase.

Her majesty reminded them of the pleasure her husband had always found in visiting Hamburg, and thanked them for their kindness and consideration since his death. The incident was totally unexpected and many of those present were weeping when the queen finished.

A military escort was waiting outside the hotel, and saluted as the casket was borne out, while great crowds of silent spectators gathered along the route to the station notwithstanding the drizzling rain.

Another guard of honor was drawn up inside the train shed and presented arms a sthe casket was placed on the funeral car.

DISCORD AT HINCKLEY ON INDORSING LARSON

Resolution Is Adopted But Reconsidered and Then Withdrawn.

Roosevelt Instructions Are Adopted in All Minnesota Districts.

Hinckley, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The only element of discord in the Eighth district convention here yesterday came through the resolution indorsing Oscar J. Larson of Duluth for delegate-at-large. When that became an element of discord, it was promptly withdrawn from consideration. A charge of steam-roller methods, made during the debate on the resolution, was not sustained. Had Mr. Larson's friends been minded to use steam-roller methods, they could have maintained the indorsement, which was given by a vote of 75 to 54, but rather than have a charge of the kind against them, they withdrew the resolution of indorsement and Mr. Larson will go before the state convention as a candidate for delegate-at-large with only the indorsement of St. Louis county, though with the support of a majority of the Eighth district representation.

One reason for the objections to Mr. Larson was that he was not known. He was made known. After the resolution indorsing him had been withdrawn, he was called upon to address the convention and he made an impression that won him votes. He pointed out the fact that the people rule in St. Louis county, that the old organization was powerfully entrenched and had given way only when the people arose in their might and crushed it. He declared that he was a candidate for delegate-at-large only because he had been urged to do so and because he would be delighted to have an opportunity to cast a vote for Theodore Roosevelt at the Chicago convention.

Was Not Binding.

The resolution indorsing Mr. Larson was really a harmless affair. The delegates from the several counties could not be bound by any resolution adopted by the district convention. They knew that, but the objectors believed that they were being manipulated at the instance of the St. Louis county delegates and, as F. J. McPartlin of International Falls expressed it, "They objected to indorsing any man as a Roosevelt man, by Taft methods."

The first contest on the resolution came in the resolutions committee, made up of Victor Power of Hibbing, T. G. J. Pease of Anoka, T. G. Johnson of Two Harbors, Frank Hense of Aitkin and A. B. Colburn of International Falls. Mr. Colburn declined to sign the resolution and made a minority report to the floor of the convention, declaring that no delegation could be bound by the resolution and it would serve no useful purpose.

The Kanabec and Mille Lacs delegations, which had been instructed for La Follette and had not previously had a chance to record their vote, supported Mr. Colburn in his attitude and the second to Mr. Colburn's motion to lay it on the table came from the Kanabec delegation. Henry Rines of Mora, speaking for the Kanabec delegation, and the chairman of the Mille Lacs delegation, said that they were instructed for La Follette and could not vote for any Roosevelt man for delegate-at-large. George H. Spears of Itasca county declared that the resolution would not be considered binding, even if it were carried.

When the vote on the motion to lay on the table was taken, the division showed Carlton, Isanti, Kanabec, Koochiching and Mille Lacs in favor, and Aitkin, Anoka, Lake, Pine and St. Louis against. The resolution was then adopted by the same vote, 75 to 54.

Resolution Reconsidered.

F. J. McPartlin then started the real fireworks by charging that steam-roller methods were being used. He declared that the Koochiching county delegation would not be bound by the resolution and would, in consequence of the methods used in adopting it, carry their protest to the floor of the state convention by opposing Mr. Larson.

Lack of harmony was farthest from the thoughts of the members of the St. Louis county delegation and Mr. McPartlin's speech brought prompt action. James P. Boyle, in a ringing speech, moved a reconsideration of the resolution. His motion was carried and then Victor Power, chairman of the resolutions committee, withdrew the resolution from consideration.

Except for the friction over that resolution, the convention was harmonious throughout. There were threats of storms during the morning. The Carlton county delegation arrived with a candidate for delegate in the person of Charles Morse of Cromwell. Aitkin county wanted representation on the national delegation, either through a district delegate or by an indorsement of a candidate for delegate-at-large. D. M. Gunn of Grand Rapids, a Taft man without a chance in the convention, appeared as a candidate for delegate and his friends tried to work up some sentiment for him. They failed and his name was not presented to the convention.

Irving A. Caswell, manager of the Roosevelt campaign in Minnesota, and a resident of Anoka county, was on hand and there was some talk of him for a district delegate. He refused to consider it and the Anoka delegation substituted the name of W. H. La Plant, who was elected. There was no opposition to W. A. Eaton of Duluth as the other district delegate. Charles Morse of Cromwell, Carlton county, was chosen as one of the alternates and H. P. Webb of Sandstone as the other. No other names were presented to the convention.

Taft and La Follette Men.

The Taft men, who numbered a few from Itasca and Carlton counties, did not assert themselves at any time except to vote against the resolution indorsing Mr. Larson. Kanabec asserted themselves by moving for a roll call on the resolution instructing the delegates to vote for Roosevelt, but the roll call was not granted. They did vote against the resolution, however, when the yea and nay vote was called for. They also voted against the Larson resolution.

There was no contest on the organization of the convention. After J. Y. Breckenridge of Pine City had called the convention to order and read the call, E. H. Krellwitz of Aitkin and George W. Empey of Pine City were chosen chairman and secretary respectively, and that organization was later made premanent.

The credentials committee gave all counties except Cook their full representation. Cook county was not represented. The credentials committee was made up of Henry Rines, Kanabec; J. P. Craig, Pine; Fred Vibert, Carlton; Frank Lang, Koochiching; D. E. Stevens, St. Louis.

While the credentials committee was in session, Senator James P. Boyle of Eveleth made a characteristic speech, in which he hailed the victory of Theodore Roosevelt as a new era, in which the rule of the people will be the rule of the nation. He declared that the day of the bosses who conduct their business behind closed doors and do not consult the people, has passed and that Roosevelt is responsible for the fact. W. E. Culkin of Duluth and George H. Speers of Grand Rapids also gave short talks. Mr. Speers, who was on the uninstructed delegation from Itasca county, declared that success at the polls is the most important thing to be considered and whatever the result at Chicago, every Republican should turn in to elect the nominee.

The Resolutions

Following are the resolutions adopted by the convention:

"Resolved, That we, the Republicans of the Eighth congressional district of the state of Minnesota in convention assembled at Hinckley, county of Pine, pledge our loyalty to the Republican party, under whose beneficent rule the American people have become the most prosperous and greatest nation in the world.

"In the pending contest for the Republican nomination, we have no desire to disparage the candidacy of any man seeking that honor, but we firmly believe that because of the great problems now confronting the nation the Republican party should nominate for the presidency of this country that man who is now and always has been so gallantly fighting the great cause of industrial and social justice, which can only be attained through the free rule of the people.

"We therefore instruct the delegates elected by this convention to represent this congressional district at the Republican national convention to be held at Chicago, to support and vote for Theodore Roosevelt for the Republican nomination to the presidency and to continue so to do until his nomination is secured."

GEORGE D. McCARTHY.

SIXTH DISTRICT DELEGATES.

Andrew Davis of Elk River and E. C. Tuttle of Buffalo.

Brainerd, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Sixth district Republican convention spelled Roosevelt and harmony, and the harmony was secured even if Hon. Frank White of Elk River had to fight to get it in the resolutions and in the convention. The convention was called to order by Hon. Alvah Eastman of St. Cloud. Harry West of Foley was elected chairman, and C. A. Allbright of Brainerd secretary. Hon. Frank White moved that a committee on resolutions be appointed, the delegation from each county to present the name of a member and the following were appointed: Benton, M. C. Roberts; Cass, P. J. Keating; Crow Wing, A. D. Pouk; Douglas, Louis Evans; Hubbard, J. W. Jackson, Meeker, J. Y. Winnings; Morrison, Frank W. Lyons; Sherburne, Frank T. White; Stearns, A. M. Wells; Todd, William Wolke; Wadena, Charles Kelly; Wright, J. T. Alley. The credentials committee was selected in the same manner and embraced a man selected by each delegation as follows: Benton, Andrew Thoen; Cass, N. B. Wardon; Crow Wing, J. T. Hale; Douglas, J. G. Lewis; Hubbard, F. D. Long; Meeker, D. M. Nelson; Morrison, C. Bolander, Sherburne Ervin S. Wagner; Stearns, A. F. Steffen; Todd, T. J. Sharkey; Wadena, Mathew Williams; Wright, O. C. Chamberlain. A committee of three on permanent organization was selected and embraced J. E. Cooling of St. Cloud, Col. C. H. March of Litchfield and Dr. N. D. Chance of Little Falls.

The Resolutions.

The committee on resolutions submitted the following:

"The Republicans of the Sixth Minnesota district in convention assembled believe that under Republican rule this country has attained to the highest place among the nations of the world.

"We recommend the zeal and patriotism of the chief executive of the nation, President William H. Taft, and recommend to the voters of the country for their consideration the principles and the candidates of the Republican party.

"The delegates of the Sixth congressional district of the state of Minnesota, representing as they do the overwhelming sentiment of the Republican voters of said district expressed in caucuses and conventions throughout the district, believe that the time has come for the party to take advanced ground on the great public questions of the day; therefore be it

"Resolved, That we heartily indorse the candidacy of the foremost citizen of this country and all the world, Col. Theodore Roosevelt, for the next president of the United States.

"Under him we believe that the door of opportunity will never be shut in the face of the man that toils and produces or the man that invests, that all will have a square deal and an equal chance in the struggle for existence.

"The delegates selected by this convention are therefore instructed to work and vote zealously at the Chicago convetnion for the nomination of Col. Roosevelt.

"We also commend the work and zeal of our Senators Nelson and Clapp in furthering the interests of the state of Minnesota.

"We further heartily commend the course of our congressman, the Hon. C. A. Lindbergh, and indorse his candidacy for re-election in November.

"Believing that the great Sixth district has within its precincts another distinguished citizen, who would well and ably represent the state of Minnesota in congress, we heartily indorse the Hon. Alvah Eastman of St. Cloud for congressman-at-large from the state of Minnesota and recommend him to the serious consideration of the whole people of the state as a man in every way fitted to represent the whole state in that capacity.

"Believing that we have within our district many men who are ardent admirers of Senator Robert M. La Follette, we have no hesitation in commending him for the great work he has done throughout the whole country for the cause of the common people and we believe that he can do still greater work in constructive and progressive legislation if he is allowed to continue his service in the senate of the United States.

"In closing, we beg leave to submit that the country is still here, the nation still lives and that the cause of the people is not advanced by ill-advised or hasty legislation, but that all matters for the common good should be worked out carefully, and only adopted after due deliberation and that as citizens of a great country we continue to insist on a 'square deal' for all."

Minority for La Follette.

After the reading of the majority report the following minority report on resolutions was brought in by W. Wilke of Todd county and J. W. Jackson of Hubbard county:

"We indorse the progressive principles of the Republican party in general, and in convention assembled believe it is time to take advanced ground on all public questions, therefore be it resolved that we indorse the candidacy of Robert M. La Follette."

On motion, the minority report was laid on the table indefinitely. The majority report was then accepted without debate.

Nominations were declared in order for delegates to the national convention and E. C. Tuttle of Buffalo, Andrew Davis of Elk River, A. F. Day of Todd county, Ole Amundson of Douglas county and T. J. Sharkey of Staples were placed in nomination. The vote resulted: Tuttle, 96; Davis, 100; Day, 29; Amundson, 29; Sharkey, 4. The election of Andrew Davis and E. C. Tuttle was made unanimous.

As delegate-at-large to be voted on at the state convention, William O'Brien of Eden Valley was recommended. The alternates were unanimously elected, T. J. Sharkey of Staples being the alternate of E. C. Tuttle and A. M. Opsahl of Brainerd being the alternate of Andrew Davis.

On motion of W. E. Verity, the chair appointed a congressional committee: A. H. Turriten, Benton; J. E. Lundrigan, Cass; Dr. R. A. Beise, Crow Wing; E. E. McCrea, Douglas; O. C. Perske, Hubbard; J. Y. Winnings, Meeker; Carl Bolander, Morrison; Dr. O. C. Trace, Sherburn; J. R. Jerrard, Stearns; J. C. Miller, Todd; W. E. Verity, Wadena; A. H. Grant, Wright. The committee elected as officers: A. H. Grant, president; E. E. McCrea, secretary, and W. E. Verity, treasurer.

ROOSEVELT TAKES NINTH.

C. L. Stevens and Frank S. Lycan Are Chosen Delegates.

Thief River Falls, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Ninth district Republican convention, which met in this city yesterday afternoon, was controlled by the Roosevelt delegates with the La Follette men strong seconds, and the smallest county in the whole district, Red Lake, representing the only Taft sentiment prevailing. The convention was marked by harmony throughout and chose two Roosevelt delegates to the national convention, C. L. Stevens of Warren and Frank S. Lycan of Bemidji. It also chose two Roosevelt men as alternates, Representative Mattson of Roseau and Dr. Leach of Becker county. The resolutions were conspicuous by their failure to indorse the actions of the present administration. The evident purpose of the convention was to avoid creating discord and to present a united front in the next state and national campaign.

First District.

Rochester, Minn., May 16. — First district Republicans, in convention here yesterday, selected H. J. Harm of Albert Lea and Tollef Sanderson of Harmony as delegates to the national convention. Instructed for Roosevelt. The alternates are H. L. Bach of Owatonna and C. H. Robinson of Wabasha.

Seventh District.

Stillwater, Minn., May 16.—Warden Henry Wolfer returned yesterday from Montana, where he has been for more than a week. While absent, several papers mentioned him as a dark horse candidate for governor.

Mr. Wolfer emphatically denied any such aspirations. He said that he had never expressed himself to friends as desiring to be a candidate, and in fact would not under any circumstances be a candidate. He further said that he had work to do here that is taking all of his time and his best efforts, and that he will continue on the job for the present.

Ancients' Care of Hair

Womanly Charms in 15th Century Depended on Glossy, Even Colored Hair

Women of the 15th century, according to a recently discovered manuscript on beauty, gave particular attention to their hair, and gray or faded locks were regarded as beauty disfigurements, greatly to be shunned.

People having faded or gray hair usually resort to injurious dyes or "shaders," and a muggy, variegated effect results. A harmless, unfailing treatment for restoring the color to brunette hair is to comb it nightly with the comb slightly moistened in barsicum tea. This tea is made by steeping a small, original package of barsicum in one pint of water. Faded blonde hair should be washed with arbane tea, made by pouring one pint of boiling water on an ounce of arbane. If hair be auburn, washing in an infusion of plain cambia brings back the original color.

For a Clear Skin And Brilliant Hair

Freckles and tan disappear as if by magic after a few applications of a plain spurmax lotion. This can be prepared at home for a trifling sum if you will get 4 ounces of spurmax and dissolve in ½ pint witch hazel (or hot water), to which is added 2 teaspoonfuls glycerine. The daintiest complexion will be benefited by this lotion, and skins that are rough, blotchy or oily will grow smooth, clear and radiantly beautiful.

A quick-drying and extremely satisfying shampoo can be enjoyed by using canthrox. A teaspoonful of this dissolved in a cup of hot water is enough for a thorough cleansing of hair and scalp. This shampoo is delightfully refreshing, and its occasional use protects the hair from streaking or growing brittle when exposed to the sun and winds of summer months.

DR. REITMAN TARRED.

Vigilantes Put Emma Goldman's Manager Out of San Diego.

San Diego, Cal., May 16.—Dr. Benjamin Reitman, manager for Emma Goldman, was kidnaped by a squad of vigilantes here late at night and taken to a ranch several miles north of this city, where he was tarred and driven across the desert. The letter "I. W. W." the initials of the Industrial Workers of the World, around which the San Diego "free speech" fight centers, were first painted on Reitman's back. Reitman was kidnaped in an automobile, while Emma Goldman was appealing to the police to protect her from a crowd which had surrounded her hotel. Answering a request by Miss Goldman, Chief of Police Wilson went to the hotel and was closeted with her when the crowd seized Reitman who was on the street.

Reports that Reitman was "feathered" and that the vigilantes set fire to the feahers, burning him severely, could not be verified. It is believed that Reitman secured a jumper and overalls at a ranch house near Esconido and boarded a train for Los Angeles.

SAVING YOUR HAIR MEANS HERPICIDE FINALLY---WHY NOT NOW

If you want to free your head of dandruff and stop falling hair, you must sooner or later resort to Newbro's Herpicide, so why not now?

By using Herpicide first you save worry, which is desirable; you save money, which is a consideration, and you save your hair, which is the most important of all.

Read the experience of Mrs. S. A. Lee, of 110 South Fourth street, Richmond, Va., which is typical:

"Four years' residenec in India ruined my hair until it was but two inches long and very thin. I tried everything in Europe and America without benefit until I was induced to use Herpicide. My hair is now long, soft and silky and natural color, while before it was quite gray."

You can avoid all the difficulties encountered by Mrs. Lee by starting the use of the right remedy first—Newbro's Herpicide.

One application is all that's needed to convince you of the value of Herpicide as a scalp prophylactic and hair dressing. It eradicates and causes to disappear every trace of dandruff. The hair stops coming out and instead takes on a sheen, luster and luxuriance that is beautiful to see and a surprise to your friends. The itching stops instantly.

Herpicide is put up in two sizes—50 cents and $1.00—and sold by all dealers on a money back guarantee plan.

Applications may be obtained at all good barber shops and beauty parlors.

If you will send ten cents in postage or silver to cover cost of packing and mailing to the Herpicide Company, Dept. S., Detroit, Mich., you will receive a trial size bottle and a booklet telling all about the hair. Lyceum Pharmacy special agent.

WILL OUTLINE THE STREET IMPROVEMENTS NEEDED IN WEST END

J. W. Preston, former member of the board of public works, will speak on street improvements at the regular weekly meeting of the West End Commercial club tomorrow evening. The recently organized club is now planning on improving several streets in this end of the city and this is the first talk on the subject.

Mr. Preston will give a detailed talk on the various necessary improvements in the West end. He will recommend the changes to the members of the club, who plan to immediately take up the most practical suggestions. The paving of Twenty-first, Twenty-eighth, Twenty-third avenues west and First street from Piedmont avenue to Grand avenue on Thirtieth avenue west will all be considered by the members of the club.

The committee on the white way for the West end will make its first report. The members of the committee have been talking over the plan with the business men on Superior street. The white way will extend from Garfield avenue to Twenty-third avenue west and was suggested at the last meeting of the club by A. B. Anderson.

William Anderson, secretary of the club, said yesterday that several new members will be taken into the organization at the meeting tomorrow. About fifteen applications have been received by Mr. Anderson from various business men throughout the city. The club now numbers in its membership residents of every part of Duluth. Mr. Anderson estimated the active membership at the present time as 150.

The garden committee, through its chairman, Dr. O. A. Oredson, will make its first report on the progress of the present garden and clean-up campaign in the West end. The members of the committee have been speaking before the school children with regard to the prize garden plan. The various features of this contest will be gone over by the committee, so that every member of the club will fully understand the subject. It is the desire of the committee to not only get the children interested in gardening, but to start a homecroft movement throughout the West end.

MINNESOTA IS FOR WILSON.

Charles A. Towne of New York and George Fred Williams of Massachusetts, we learn from political advices, are about to inundate Minnesota with a flood of oratory in behalf of the Champ Clark candidacy for the Democratic nomination for the presidency.

These gentlemen have plenty of oratory in stock, and their reputations as dispensers of silvery phrases will insure them audiences.

But it is to be doubted if the cause they represent will receive much comfort in Minnesota. Certainly it is to be hoped that it will not.

Speaker Clark is a very attractive gentleman in many ways. He has been a congressman for a long time, and when the Democrats gained power in the house they made him speaker as a tribute to his seniority of service and his staunch Democratic partisanship. You can say a lot of good things about Champ Clark without saying that it would be a wise thing for the Democrats to nominate him for the presidency.

And most assuredly it would not be a wise thing to nominate him as the Democratic candidate for president. If a majority of the voters were Democrats, perhaps Clark's nomination might not be so unwise, if it could be assumed that as president he would do credit to his party and his country. But a majority of the voters are not Democrats. Therefore the Democratic party must nominate somebody who can make more than a partisan appeal.

Champ Clark would make utterly no appeal to the large independent vote, certain to be largely augmented by Republican voters whether Taft or Roosevelt is nominated, which decides presidential elections. He is highly vulnerable, because of many unguarded acts and speeches, and during a campaign with him as the leader the Democrats would have to defend many things, from his published indorsement of Peruna and his bitter scoring of Cleveland to his absurd remarks about the annexation of Canada and his strange alliance with William Randolph Hearst and his corps of scurrilous writers who have been kept busy in a guerilla fire of bitter rhetoric aimed at Woodrow Wilson. Even the fact that though the speakership is the highest office next to the presidency, and under Cannon it was the most conspicuous office, Clark as speaker was all but obscured in the public vision by the chairman of the ways and means committee within a couple of months, would not be overlooked by his opponents.

The character of the Clark support, not to speak further of the Hearst following, which should load him down hopelessly, is shown by the fact that in Minnesota the handful which had been for Harmon because, rightly or wrongly, they considered him a reactionary candidate, has turned to Clark.

The nation wants a progressive president. It doesn't care much whether he is labelled Republican or Democrat, so long as it believes him to be truly progressive. Though the votes Clark has gained in some states show that many Democrats believe him to be progressive, his active partisans in many places show that those close to him and close to reactionary forces do not regard him as progressive enough to hurt.

Minnesota has just indorsed Roosevelt because Republican voters believed him to be progressive. Can Minnesota Democrats afford to reject the most truly and constructively progressive candidate of them all for a man like Clark, with such followers as Hearst and those who foisted Parker on the party?

Minnesota hasn't waited to hear from Massachusetts or New York before making up its mind. The Democratic rank and file in this state is manifestly for Governor Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey, and they are for him because they recognize that he represents, more truly than any other man whose name is before the people, the progressive and constructive impulse that will decide the election in November. If Roosevelt is nominated, as now seems probable, Clark would be a plaything for him. There is but one man who can beat him, and that is the man on whom Minnesota Democrats have fixed their hopes—Woodrow Wilson, the man who made over New Jersey and the man who can make over the nation.

No Matter What the Score.

But then, we must remember that one game doesn't make a season.

JUDGES AND BUSINESS.

The judiciary committee of the house of representatives is investigating charges against Judge Robert W. Archbald of the Federal commerce court.

These charges are ugly, and it is to be hoped that investigation will show them to be untrue. If it shows them to be true, Judge Archbald should be punished so severely that no judge for a long time will be tempted to do what he is charged with doing.

At the best, this case illustrates the awkwardness of having judges engage in private business.

Judges ought to have no private business. They ought to be judges and nothing else. If the people, by making their terms short and their salaries low, force them to engage in private business to take care of their families and their declining years, that is a mistake on the part of the people.

In the case of a Federal judge, appointed for life, there is no such excuse. The salaries may not be very large, but they are large enough to support a family, educate one's children and give them a start in the world, and to pay life insurance premiums. And that's about enough. When others are doing it, judges may wish to engage in business or investments in the hope of building a fortune to leave to their children. But the children, in nine cases out of ten, will be better off without it; and as no judge can say when a case involving one of his investments may come before him, certainly he will be far better off with no business relations to affect his judgment, consciously or unconsciously.

Perhaps it isn't yet possible, but a judiciary free from any relationships with business interests of any kind is much safer than a judiciary free from the recall.

Tee-Hee!

The St. Cloud Times publishes a headline "The Two Ts Are Stumping Ohio." There's a fine sample of going from first to last—for initial purposes.

THAT'S THE WORD!

The Duluth Retail Grocers' association has organized a "Boosters' club."

That's fine! We like that word. We like the spirit of it. It is the spirit of Duluth, the spirit that is weaving a growing present out of a glowing future. Its other name is optimism, its middle name is "hustle."

That's what every civic organization in Duluth really is—a Boosters' club. The Commercial club is a Boosters' club. The Greater Duluth club is a Boosters' club. Every gathering of citizens is a Boosters' club. They can't help being Boosters' clubs when they stop to think of the tremendous advantages nature has given Duluth, and of the irresistible and businesslike way the city, its people and its organized activities are going about it to make use of these advantages, to see that none get away, and to get back those that did get away—temporarily.

Every citizen is—or ought to be—a Boosters' club of his own.

There is so much to boost for, and so much to be gained by boosting, that there is no room for carping criticism, no room for discouragement, no room for faint hearts, no room for knockers.

The grocers have taken this step to let the people know that they are interested in the common welfare, as of course they are as Duluth citizens and Duluth business men. Their example in forming a Boosters' club should be followed wherever it is possible.

A city of boosting and boosters is a city of destiny; because the only destiny really worth while is that attained by positive and direct effort and achievement.

Let's have some more Boosters' clubs.

If You Lisp It.

Lawyer O'Meara says Evelyn Nesbit Thaw's baby boy is "a myth." With all due respect to counsel, it would seem nearer right to say it is a "mithter."

THE COMMON LOT.

Tuesday night a man walking in a street in Hamburg, Germany, dropped to the sidewalk, stricken by a mortal illness.

Nobody knew him, but he was a man and a brother and therefore entitled to such help as human sympathy could offer. So a passing automobile was hailed and the unfortunate man was hustled to a hospital, where it was found that he was dead.

Not an extraordinary case. In these days of hard and fast living, many men die suddenly. Death takes its victims where it finds them.

But it happened that this man was a king—King Frederick of Denmark. So the tragedy took on unexpected importance, and the news was flashed over the world.

Men die, and kings are men. The common heritage of death fell to Frederick of Denmark as it has come to many a man less conspicuous. It comes to all, and no royal robes are proof against its inevitable advance, no sceptered hand may stay its ruthless clutch. It was tragic that a king should die so, unknown, alone and unattended; but so is it tragic when plain Joe Smith is stricken. For kings are but men, and men may be kings if they will—kings over fate and rulers over self—but death levels all. In six feet of earth there is real democracy, if not elsewhere.

Might Cause Confusion.

But of course it would be more or less disconcerting to have to refer to a man as "ex-president-president-elect."

THE MINNESOTA PRIMARY.

Though The Herald and the St. Cloud Journal-Press are not far apart in their views on the Minnesota primary, in spite of the pleasant joint debate we have been enjoying there still is a slight misunderstanding.

The Herald would not bar the primary election against any party member who wishes to file for office. Still less would it let any committee or convention or any other self-selected authority say who shall file and who shall not.

Our suggestion that an amendment be adopted providing for nominating candidates before the primaries by petition is intended to be supplementary to and not substituted for the present provisions.

The object is to open the way for other initiative than that of the candidates themselves, leaving the way still open for candidates who wish to file on their own initiative. The idea simply is that often men could thus be induced to be candidates for office who never would consider the thought of deliberately seeking the office, as they must under the present law.

With this amendment, with another amendment extending the primary to state officers and presidential candidates, and accompanied by a good corrupt practices act, the present primary election law is satisfactory.

They Don't Feel Qualified.

There is one class of people who do not discuss the Richeson case to any extent—those who don't believe in capital punishment.

ET TU, BRUTE?

"In Minnesota," declares the News Tribune, "if was time that there was such a change in Republican party management. The old order has become monotonous and stale. It was doubtless just as sincere and patriotic as the new order will be, but it had failed to recognize that old things pass away and new things are inevitable."

Really, now, that isn't pretty. After our (so to speak) esteemed contemporary had labored vehemently to preserve the old order in Minnesota Republicanism, after it had held its finger in the leak in the standpat dyke as the boy did who saved Holland, and after it had risen always with alacrity to the defense of the machine whenever it was attacked, to turn complacently and take a kick at its mangled remains when the new order had swept it to death is base ingratitude.

Nor is it a good way to gain a seat in the band wagon.

Clarence Darrow would stand a whole heap better chance for publicity if he could postpone his trial until about the middle of next November.

It would be interesting to know how it happened that Fostoria, Ohio, named as its committee to welcome Roosevelt a clergyman, a physician, a life insurance man and an undertaker.

CRITICISM—A DULUTH ALLEGORY

It is a question if criticism, unduly prolonged, especially without being accompanied by constructive suggestions, is not being sadly overdone. The period for criticism has given way to the period of constructive work, and that work is being done by well-organized, well-manned and well-equipped civic bodies. Constant nagging about conditions which these organizations are busy correcting by negotiations will not help in the least, and they will inevitably result in creating a wrong impression, both at home and abroad, of the conditions and prospects of Duluth.—Herald editorial, May 14.

Mr. Noostrib strolled into Miss Duluth's parlor and sat him down comfortably, as became a self-sufficient friend of the family.

Miss Duluth responded cordially enough to his greeting, and turned a pleasant face toward the visitor.

"By the way, Miss Duluth," said the caller after he had looked about the room, "did you ever notice that that mole on your right cheek is a good deal of a blemish? You ought to have it taken off right away."

Miss Duluth hadn't noticed it before, but she blushed in confusion at this opening of the conversation.

"And while we are talking in a friendly way, my dear," continued the visitor, "I don't like the way you dress your hair. Of course you did the best you could with your slight knowledge of the fashions, but if I were you I'd fuss it up a little more in the back and sides, and pull it down over your forehead a trifle more."

Miss Duluth uneasily placed one hand on her head, as though to ascertain by the sense of touch if the charge were true.

"Don't you think, too," pursued the visitor relentlessly, "that if you went to a beauty specialist he could make your nose a little straighter? To my taste, it turns up just a bit too much. Pug noses are not in fasion now, you know."

Miss Duluth put her hand back in her lap and gazed at the visitor in dismay, waiting for the end of the list of her delinquencies.

"Of course I am telling you all this as a friend of yours, and you must understand that I am doing it for your own good. If I didn't tell you about these things you might not know them, and of course you wish to look your best."

"Of course," said Miss Duluth, meekly.

"That dress you are wearing," continued the visitor, smugly, with increased confidence and growing self-satisfaction, as one engaged in an occupation he found much to his liking, "might be all right for Podunk, but if I were you I'd hurry out and buy an outfit with a shorter skirt that clings more closely around the—ahem! —limbs, and with a few more fussy ornaments on the front of the waist. Your shoes are very serviceable, of course, but in our set the ladies wear higher heels.

"And I noticed as I came in that the lawn looks rather bare. You have some fairly decent shrubs and a bed or two of flowers, but you ought to have scattered about some of those handsome iron dogs and deer that Mr. Gotrox has bought for his front lawn. And this chair, too; it's comfortable enough, I suppose, but we must consider looks and the tastes of the cultivated. I'd replace it at once with something more ornate and fancy. That bric-a-brac on the fireplace mantle is a good touch, but I'd get a little more of it, and by all means have a few china shepards and shepardesses and one of those roundtop glass things with dead flowers and grass in it.

"I think that's all today. I have had such a pleasant visit, and you are such an appreciative hostess that I like to come often. I will drop in again tomorrow and tell you some more."

"Do. Good day," said Miss Duluth, faintly. After the visitor had gone she sat thoughtfully for awhile, discouragement and discontent darkening her countenance more and more as the thoughts inspired by her visitor grew gloomier.

A knock at the door made her start uneasily.

"Mercy!" she exclaimed, "I'm not fit to be seen, and I suppose I never will be."

But it was too late. The maid opened the door and announced Mr. Optimist, who came in like a breath of fresh spring air, seized her hand, shook it heartily, put his hat on the floor and seated himself near the window.

"What a beautiful outlook you have," he said enthusiastically, as he looked out the window. "Everything is so fresh and clean and green. Your front yard is in perfect taste, too. So many people nowadays make the mistake of cluttering up the home-ground landscape with frivolous and misfit miscellany. I like your place immensely."

"Do you?" said Miss Duluth, cheering up a bit. "I was just thinking that there ought to be more decoration in the front yard."

"A single touch more would spoil it," declared Mr. Optimist, "It's exactly right. If you keep it up you will have a home that will be the envy and admiration of the neighborhood.

"I notice, too, that you consult comfort in your home furnishings—comfort and simple good taste. This chair (it was the same chair the former visitor had occupied) is the most comfortable thing I have sat in in ages. Where could I get one like it?"

Miss Duluth told him.

"And how well you are looking!" he exclaimed, turning to his hostess. "I never saw you looking so well. You may not know it, but you have very beautiful eyes."

Miss Duluth colored again, but seemed not ill pleased.

"If you don't mind my saying these things, I might add that your complexion is fresh beauty itself, that the piquant tilt in your nose is exquisite, that that tiny little mole on your right cheek is a quaint touch such as the fair ladies of older times used to put on with courtplaster, that you dress your hair in the style that is most becoming to you, and that your taste in dress is excellent. Of course it may sound rather bold in me to say these things, but I believe in telling people about it when I think things like these about them. I trust I have not offended?"

"No, indeed," said Miss Duluth, cheerily. "On the contrary, I needed just such a visit as I am having from you. To tell the truth, I have just had a visit from somebody who believes, like you, in telling what he thinks, but who contrived to make me feel like the dowdiest and most ungainly girl in the world, and who left me miserable."

"Don't you believe him. The person who gets to dwelling on other people's faults all the time gets so he can't see anything good or pleasant. It's a very unfortunate way to get into, and for my part I am glad I have cultivated the habit of looking on the pleasant side and dwelling on pleasant things. When I find unpleasant things, I turn right in and make them right if I can, and if they can't be made right, I believe the thing to do is to think so much about the pleasant things that you forget about the evil things that can't be changed right away.

"Don't you ever let anybody with the fault finding habit give you the wrong perspective of yourself. Fault finding is a habit, and a very bad one. People that get it think they are doing a public service, when really all they do is to promote discouragement, and indifference grows out of discouragement.

"My dear young woman, you are positively beautiful, and your surroundings are ideal. I wouldn't change an item for the world. Just make the best possible use of the beauties nature has given you, and give pessimists and pessimism the cold shoulder. I must go now, but it has been a pleasure to see your bright face and to sit awhile with you."

"Goodby, Mr. Optimist," said Miss Duluth, in parting. "You have done me so much good! Come again. Come tomorrow if you can. I'll be at home always—to you."

And after the visitor had gone Miss Duluth sang cheerily as she went about her household tasks.

THE OPEN COURT

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest, but discussions of sectarian religious differences are barred. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

REQUEST SHOULD HAVE PROPER BACKING.

I desire to express my gratitude to you for the prominent space given to your forceful description of the play entitled "Monte Carlo Girls," given at the Lyceum theater Sunday, May 12, and further for your excellent editorial on the same topic. I would suggest that your assertion "Let there be no more of this" will not in any way prohibit a recurrence of just such plays at the same theater, unless effective action is taken to make the present ordinance, which this "show" violated, effective.

It seems as if the management of the Lyceum theater has been trying to see just how far the city officials and the public at large would permit the violation of this ordinance ever since it has been passed. There have been numerous plays presented this season, which a self-respecting man would not attend had he been advised of the character of the play to be presented. The public expects to see clean and enjoyable shows at its leading theater, and is not getting value received when such objectionable shows are presented. I hope that The Herald will join with the effort which is now being made to bring about an active and efficient enforcement of our theater ordinance. Very truly yours,

JARED A. P. NEAL.

Duluth, May 15.

AN ANSWER TO OPTIMO.

To the Editor of The Herald:

I am a booster and I hope an optimist. I like Duluth better than any other spot on the map for our home. We chose it after having visited many parts of the United States.

However, because I love it, and want it as near perfect as possible, I want to see reform in many lines.

In order to bring about results we must have agitation, suggestions and education, which never should be mistaken for knocking.

Along with the "week of prayer idea" and "loving our neighbor as ourselves," (which I agree with heartily), let us have common sense and get out and hustle to clean up our streets, alleys and vacant lots.

Have the street cars cleaned more often and more thoroughly; stop the spitting on sidewalks and floors; also have the many holes repaved on our streets and avenues.

There is little use of more paving if we don't keep in repair what we have.

In fact have a general house cleaning in this beautiful spring time, so we will be ready for our tourist guests.

There are other things to be done but these are what stare us in the face continually.

This is not knocking only stating facts that confront us. We must realize conditions and have civic pride awakened before we can sit idly by and say we and Duluth are O. K.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1892.

•••The Herald today begins the publication of an eight-page paper daily, this increase in size having been necessitated by the great demand for advertising space by the merchants of Duluth who recognize that The Herald is the best advertising medium, because its circulation is the largest and of the best quality.

•••Leonidas Merritt is the author of an article in the May number of the Northwest Magazine on the opening up of the Mesaba range and what it means to Duluth. He says that when he first came to Duluth in 1856 he heard from E. F. Ely and others of the great iron belt lying north of what is now Duluth.

•••L. H. Kempton has been made superintendent of the Pennsylvania Iron company. He will have charge of all their property on the Mesaba range.

•••R. S. Munger, Donald Grant, H. W. Wheeler, C. F. Howe, the chemist, and several others left on the steamer Monarch last evening for Port Arthur. From there they will go to a piece of property in which Mr. Munger is interested and on which there is a valuable deposit of lead.

•••Dr. Ringland announced to his congregation at the First Presbyterian church that, in view of the refusal to accept his resignation, he had decided to remain and that he also would accept the six months' vacation offered him.

DULUTH AND THE HERALD.

Apply It From Afar.

Stillwater Gazette: Wisconsin has a hen that won't do a thing but lay eggs that look like a dumb-bell, with the white at one end and the yolk at the other. The Duluth Herald man says it would seem natural to apply another form of the verb "lay" to that yarn. That might be all right if it was applied to the right man when the story was told. Some of these Wisconsin hen fruit raisers may be sensitive men.

Why This Fear?

Virginia Enterprise: Duluth voted for the recall, the initiative and referendum, but if we mistake not the recall provisions will be safeguarded in the Duluth charter from the onslaught of the agitator.

One Result.

Gheen Record: The Duluth voter has now the initiative, referendum and the recall. The wise use of these political checks will tend to draw better men into politics.

The Club.

Chisholm Tribune-Herald: Duluth adopted the initiative and referendum at Tuesday's special election, and the saloon men helped in making it so near unanimous by their tactics in attempting to extend the patrol limits into a section of the city where strong protests were made. The members of the council will have more respect for the wishes of the people in the future with the recall hanging over their heads.

Times Change.

Mahnomen Pioneer: The initiative and referendum, those old Populist ideas of twenty years ago, coupled with the recall, which even the Populists did not dare add to their creed, was adopted by the city of Duluth as an amendment to the city charter at a special election held Tuesday. The proposition carried every precinct in the city but two. Times change and the world moves.

No Proof Needed.

Thief River Falls Times: Whether or not Minnesota will adopt the presidential primary is still a matter for doubt but the Duluth Herald continues in its persistent way to urge the adoption of the system in this state. The presidential primary is still only an experiment and maybe, after all, it would be best for Minnesota to wait until the other states have proved its worth. There is no doubt, however, but that The Herald will accomplish the end if it is proven that Minnesota would be better off with the presidential primary.

A Sword Well Used.

Willow River Farmer: The most remarkable political event of the season so far, is the fact that St. Paul, at the municipal election Tuesday, adopted the commission form of government and Duluth on the same day by an overwhelming vote adopted the recall, initiative and referendum as amendments to the city's charter. These two facts indicate the tremendous interest the people are taking in practical politics and also shows what they can do with that two-edged sword—the ballot.

The Dandelion Breeders.

Omaha World-Herald: The Lincoln Evening News prints the following editorial on the burning issue of the hour:

"Under the present policy of non-interference with those property owners who allow their lawns to become breeding grounds for dandelions, there will be very few good lawns left in Lincoln within a few years. Experience has proved that it is an impossibility for any man living close to a dandelion-infested lot to try to keep a good lawn. Either the dandelions will take it, or he will eventually kill the grass in his efforts to eradicate the pests. One large head of a dandelion will mature several hundred small winged seeds. Wherever one finds a lodgment in the soil it immediately sprouts, and before fall it will have formed a root strong enough to withstand the winter and come out next spring with blossoms of its own. Down in Wichita there is a move for the adoption of an ordinance imposing a fine on every person, renter or property owner, who allows a dandelion to go to seed, because it is almost useless to try to keep one's lawn free if the neighbors are careless about the pests on their own premises."

Cut this out and pass it on to your dandelion-breeding neighbor. If you are nervous about making the presentation in person, mail it to him in a strong, securely sealed plain envelope. If the case is an aggravated one, put on a special delivery stamp for emphasis.

A few days ago this great family journal gave vent to a powerful commentary on the dandelion question, and we are pleased to say we have been hearing from it ever since. Hundreds if not thousands of citizens who had been indifferent to their duty have grasped the family butcher knife and started to dig. Let the good work go on! Let there be formed a public opinion so ferocious and determined that it will make life a burden to the dandelion breeder who thinks more of his own indolent comfort than he does of his neighbor's rights and his neighbor's lawn!

We cannot think that the battles of Bunker Hill and Yorktown were fought, as Jerry Howard would say, and the horrors of Valley Forge endured, merely to the end that our blood-bought liberties should finally be smothered in a dandelion jungle. We feel that the spirit of '76 still lives, and that despite the let-well-enough-alone tories of today, it will triumphantly uproot from American soil the hated dandelion even as our ancestors uprooted King George.

If the commission form of government is half what Ralph Sunderland and John Paul Breen have cracked it up to be, it will take hold of this dandelion evil and deal with it sternly. If they can fine dandelion breeders in benighted Wichita, why can't we both fine and imprison them in enlightened Omaha?

Those Who Love Justice Possess It.

From Hugues Lamennais' "Words of a Believer:" The laborer beareth the burthen of the day, exposed to the rain and sun and winds, that he may by his labor prepare that harvest which shall enrich his granaries in autumn.

Justice is the harvest of nations.

The workman rises before the dawn, he lights his little lamp and endures ceaseless fatigue that he may gain a little bread with which to feed himself and his children.

Justice is the bread of nations.

The merchant shrinks from no labor, complains of no trouble, exhausts his body and forgets repose, that he may amass wealth.

Liberty is the wealth of nations.

The mariner traverses seas, trusts himself to wave and tempest, risks his body amid the rocks and endures heat and cold that he may secure repose in his old age.

Liberty is the repose of nations.

The soldier submits to many hard privations, he watches, fights and sheds his blood for what he calls glory.

Liberty is the glory of nations.

If there be on earth a people who think less of justice and liberty than the laborer does of his harvest, or the workman of his daily bread, or the merchant of his wealth, or the mariner of his repose, or the soldier of his glory—build around that people a high wall, that their breath may not infect the rest of the world.

When the great day of judgment for nations shall come, it will be said to that people:

"What hast thou done with thy soul? There is neither sign nor trace of it to be seen. The enjoyments of the brute have been everything to thee. Thou hast loved the mire—go, wallow in the mire."

And that people who rising above mere material good, have placed their affections on the true good; who, to obtain that true good, have spared no labor, no fatigue, no sacrifice; shall hear this word:

"For those who have a soul there is the recompense of souls. Because thou hast loved justice and liberty before all things, come and possess forever liberty and justice."

So Ignorant.

ACQUIRING WISDOM

Organized Labor Learning to Fight Intelligently, Says English Visitor.

Thinks England Is Holding Own in Race With Germany.

"Organized labor the world over is becoming wise," is the observation of F. Waldo Scott, an Englishman who is traveling in the United States for pleasure and a study of industrial conditions over here. Mr. Scott is registered at the Spalding and will go from Duluth to the Copper country, perhaps returning here for a brief stay.

"During the recent coal strike in England,' said Mr. Scott, "repeated attempts were made to enlist the sympathy of the public by leading the striking coal miners into some act of violence. But the laborer of today is not only becoming wiser, but he is also becoming more willing to rest his case with the judgment of the public. The English miners refused steadfastly to be led into any overt act.

"I happened to be stopping at Manchester during the greater part of the strike, and am therefore familiar with some of the incidents. The miners organized football teams and most of their time was put in with this sport. They seemed content to wait until the end was reached by some fair means.

"At the present time there is work in England for any man who cares to work. I should say that the industrial condition of England is somewhat better than it has been for the past few years. Some say that we are losing our place in the commercial world and that we are unable to give employment to our working men; but I am of the opinion that the active campaign of developing markets for the manufactured goods of England, will in the end improve the demand for every class of goods manufactured in England, hence increasing the demand put of the factories and the demand for labor.

"It is true that thousands of Englishmen are leaving England and seeking homes in Canada, but I do not believe that the loss is one that is in any way alarming. Literally speaking Great Britain has millions of working men, quite enough, I believe, to keep us abreast with our greatest rival in Europe, Germany.

"You know that Germany is forced to seek colonies as an outlet for her immense number of subjects. But though there has been an immense amount of emigration from Germany—consult the statistics of your own ports of entry—the industrial pace maintained by Germany is the envy of Europe at the present time.

"I believe that the condition of the laboring man in Europe is being gradually improved. In England the agitation of the labor leaders has accomplished a great deal, while in Germany and France public sentiment is taking concrete form, just as it is in your country, I imagine from what I have observed since I have been in the United States.

"But to return to the remark I made in the beginning, regarding organized labor beginning to get its bearings. It is true that able and true leaders of the labor cause are framing legislation that aims at the real needs of the working man, and that the great mass of the laboring men, speaking of England, are becoming intelligent enough to understand the first great principals in the fight for what has been known through the years as the rights of the laboring men."

MAY INJECT LIFE INTO CAMPAIGN

Hanna's Arrival Expected to Liven Up North Dakota Politics.

Fargo, N. D., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Congressman Hanna will reach Fargo either this evening or tomorrow. As he is a candidate for the nomination for governor considerable political interest attaches to his home-coming. His arrival is expected to inject some life into the campaign, which has dragged badly since the presidential preference primaries nearly two months ago.

Under the corrupt practices act slate making is strictly forbidden. This accounts for the failure of the stalwart faction of the Republican party to hold any meetings.

The stalwarts have Congressman Hanna out for governor, State Treasurer Olson, Superintendent of Public Instruction Taylor, Commissioner of Agriculture Gilbreath and Railroad Commissioner Mann, the latter three for renomination, and Capt. Henry for secretary of state. They have no candidate for attorney general, for insurance commissioner, for state auditor or for lieutenant governor. Men may yet announce their candidacy for these places. The Insurgents have indorsed Mann, Taylor and Olson and have nominees of their own for other places.

TWO FROM BISMARCK.

Col. Little and Edward Hughes in Race for Senator.

Bismarck, N. D., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—No state senatorial candidacy that has yet been announced is as interesting as that of Col. C. B. Little of Bismarck. Col. Little was a prominent member of the state senate for several years, but dropped out four years ago to become a candidate for United States senator, when he participated in the four-cornered fight between Marshall, Hansbrough, Johnson and himself, and was defeated.

The announcement is doubly interesting in view of the fact that Edward Hughes of this city has also entered the race. The fight between them is looked upon as a disruption of their own forces, as both candidates have heretofore been identified with the same faction.

TWAIN'S BOYHOOD HOME DEDICATED

Presented to City of Hannibal, Mo., as Memorial Place.

Hannibal, Mo., May 16.—The boyhood home of Mark Twain, which stands on a small plot of ground 20½ by 65½ feet, on Hill street, in Hannibal, was publicly dedicated as a memorial to the humorist yesterday.

The old home was built by Mark Twain's father, John Marshall Clemens, in 1844. The building is in the old part of the city, and the other buildings on adjoining lots are in perfect harmony with the antiquated appearance of the old home. In the same block with the old home is the boyhood home of "Huckleberry Finn" (Tom Blankenship), and less than a block away is Holliday's Hill.

The home was recently purchased by Mr. and Mrs. George A. Mahan and deeded to the city of Hannibal to be perpetually maintained as a memorial to Mark Twain, and before deeding the house to the city, Mr. Mahan had it thoroughly repaired, care being taken to preserve the old home exactly as it was when Mark Twain lived in it.

A bronze tablet, modeled by Miss Angelica Schuyler Church of New York, has been placed on the wall of the front room downstairs. The bust and head of Mark Twain shown on the tablet are pronounced by his friends to be the best ever made of him. A marker has been placed on the outside of the building, near the front door, which reads as follows:

: The Boyhood Home of Mark Twain. :
: Erected in 1844 :
: by his father, :
: John Marshall Clemens. :

In addition to the tablet there has been placed in the front room a life-sized photograph of Mark Twain, presented to the home by the executors of Clemens' estate, Jarvis Langdon, Edward E. Loomis and Zoheth S. Freeman

UNCLE SAM TELLS ECUADOR TO PAY

Washington, May 16.—The United States has made strong representations to the government of Ecuador that it must settle with the American-owned railway running between Quito, the capital, and Guayaquil for services rendered as well as the subvention the government allows.

The bill against the government has been piling up for some time and includes the cost of transportation of troops during the recent revolution, but the requests for payment from all sources have been ignored by the government.

State department officials refuse to discuss the steps which might be taken in the event Ecuador pays no attention to the American note.

ROOSEVELT CLAIMS 500

Says Nothing But Crooked Work Can Beat Him at Chicago.

Meets Attack Based on Brownsville Affair By Reading Taft's Report.

Dayton, Ohio, May 16.—In the opinion of Theodore Roosevelt, the campaign for the Republican nomination for president has now been decided. He dictated this statement:

"The number of delegates necessary to nominate is 539. Of the delegates already elected, without counting the contested delegates, I have more than 500. Of the delegates yet to be elected I am confident I will receive enough to insure my nomination on the first ballot."

In speaking at Kenton, Col. Roosevelt said:

"Of uncontested delegates that have been elected we now have a considerable majority over Mr. Taft. On the present showing it would be impossible to nominate him except by unfairly and improperly seating delegates who have no claim to sit in the convention."

Brownsville Case Brought Up.

In his address at Springfield on the second day of his Ohio campaign Col. Roosevelt criticized President Taft.

"A certain Lorimer congressman from Illinois," said he, "who is supporting Mr. Taft as his chief, Senator Lorimer, did, has come into Ohio, bringing a number of members of the two companies of the colored regiment which were discharged on account of the riot at Brownsville. These men are brought here by the Taft managers to assail me for what I did at Brownsville, to get our colored-fellow citizens to vote against me.

"I always accept full responsibility for what I do. I did take the action at Brownsville, and my judgment in taking it has been ratified over and over again by every competent man who investigated the matter; by tribunal after tribunal.

Recommended by Taft.

"I want to call your attention to the fact that the Taft managers at a time when Mr. Taft is in the state himself, without one word of protest from him, are trying to use that incident to my discredit and to his advantage. Now, I acted on the recommendation of Mr. Taft when he was my secretary of war."

Col. Roosevelt held up a copy of the annual report of the secretary of war for 1906, and read an extract from it in which reference was made to the Brownsville affair.

"There is Mr. Taft's own report, upon which I acted," he continued. "I do not shift any responsibility upon Mr. Taft. I take it all. But Mr. Taft should be responsible for his action, too. Mr. Taft recommended to me, as I have read to you, from his report, that these men should be dismissed for a heinous crime. Does Mr. Taft now say that when he made that report to me and submitted it to congress, he said what was not true? If he says so, let him give his reasons for his change.

"With Guarded Moderation."

"More than that, he has for three years been president and he could have reinstated every man of that regiment if he thought that the action I took on his recommendation was wrong. Mr. Taft, in my judgment, cannot and will not affirm that his action then taken was not proper. And, therefore, I hold that is wrong—and I am speaking with guarded moderation when I say it is 'wrong'—for Mr. Taft, without a word of protest, to allow his managers to import into the state of Ohio, while he is himself in Ohio, men why try to persuade our colored fellow citizens that I and not he should be blamed for what was done.

"I accept the full responsibility for what was done, and I do not intend that he shall shirk the responsibility for what he did."

In several of his speeches, Col. Roosevelt charged that he was being opposed in his campaign by Democrats as well as by members of his own party.

House in Parliamentary Tangle.

A tangled parliamentary situation, which arose in the house in the absence of the official parliamentarian, forced that body to adjourn last night. The situation arose just as the bill regulating the status of the Philippine friar lands was placed on its passage. Finally Speaker Clark sent a call for Representative Garrett and the latter moved that the house adjourn. The speaker, before announcing the adjournment, explained that he found himself "somewhat at a loss to rule on a point that went to the very fundamentals of the business procedure of the house."

Lynch, president of the organization. The result of the vote will not be tabulated completely until tomorrow night.

Oppose Amendments.

St. Paul, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The ballot in the local typographical election here gives James M. Lynch of Syracuse, N. Y., 166 votes for the presidency, and Fred Barker of Spokane, Wash., 157 votes.

The proposition in the matter of increasing the pay of the president was voted down by a ballot of 142 to 114. A proposition to increase the pay of the secretary treasurer was defeated here, by a vote of 150 to 99.

COOL OVER MOST OF THE COUNTRY

Washington, May 16.—Unseasonable weather prevails generally throughout the country excepting in the extreme northwest, with temperatures from 10 to 15 degrees below what they ordinarily are at this time of the year.

This unusual cool weather is accompanied by showers over the eastern half of the country, due to two storms, one from the west today over Ohio and one from the Gulf of Mexico, central over North Carolina. Weather bureau officials said the temperature would remain comparatively low and predicted it would be cooler tonight in the upper Ohio valley and the South Atlantic states.

COUNT IS CO-RESPONDENT.

A. H. McCullough Granted Divorce in Chicago Court.

Chicago, May 16.—Allan Horton McCullough obtained a divorce from Mary Louise McCullough yesterday after McCullough had testified that Count Alexander de Beaufort, who recently was sued for divorce by the former Miss Irma Kilgallon, daughter of a wealthy steel manufacturer, had visited Mrs. McCullough in her apartments.

McCullough testified that the count and Mrs. McCullough were in each other's company before he and Mrs. McCullough parted. Later, McCullough testified, he went to the vicinity of his wife's apartments and met the count as he was leaving at 2 a. m. A fight followed and McCullough was arrested. The assault case was dropped.

The deposition of Frank Pascoe, formerly valet to the count, said Mrs. McCullough frequently called the count on the telephone and that she had been in his apartments.

This Week's Sunday School Lesson

WRITTEN FOR THE HERALD BY REV. J. S. KIRTLEY, D. D.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON, MAY 19.

Matt. V., 17-26; The Old Law and the New Life.

CONNECTION.

We are still in that wonderful sermon in which the Master sets forth the fundamental principles of the kingdom. He is terribly revolutionary. Those principles are now changing the whole world. Old laws were made for old conditions. New life brings on new conditions. What once seemed necessary may now be not only useless, but a positive injury.

LESSON.

I.

How the Old Is Fulfilled. 17-20.

"Think not that I came to destroy the law or the prophets; I came not to destroy, but to fulfill. For verily I say unto you, Till heaven and earth pass away, one jot or one tittle shall in no wise pass away from the law, till all things be accomplished. Whosoever therefore shall break one of these least commandments, and shall teach men so, shall be called least in the kingdom of heaven. But whosoever shall do and teach them, he shall be called great in the kingdom of heaven. For I say unto you, that except your righteousness shall exceed the righteousness of the scribes and Pharisees, ye shall in no wise enter into the kingdom of heaven."

1. PERMANENCE.—The law of Moses was not abrogated by Jesus and never will be, even though the ceremonies are left behind. In that law was a soul and Jesus knew that soul. He dug down and got out the foundation principles under all those laws and fulfilled them, filled them full. Not a single righteous demand was overlooked or neglected by Him, nor does He allow any one of us to despise them. He fulfilled them all in Himself in two ways. He was the one to whom they looked forward, the lamb to be slain for their sins, of whom all the sacrifices were a symbol, the true temple in whom man and God could meet, the real manifestation of God of whom the Chikinah in the temple was a figure. All the arrangements of the ceremonial laws were to get the people ready for Him. Now that He was come they had no need of such things. The other way in which He fulfilled them was by showing the people the essential principles involved in them for their direction and culture. The main point is that all that was in the old law was to be accomplished in Him and He would discover to them the very life of those old laws. One who could violate the requirements of the laws of Moses despised God. Such a one was sure to teach others to violate them; teach by example if no other way. It is still true that the greatest in God's kingdom are those who perceive the truths under those requirements and treat them reverently as God's truths, even as Jesus did; the greatest are those who see how they are fulfilled in Him.

2. REALITY.—Our righteousness must be real and not spectacular as was that of the Pharisees. To do what God's law requires in order to get a reputation for being good and then use that reputation to get wealth and influence is the way the leaders among the Jews had come to do. They had looked forward to the coming of a kingdom of great splendor in which they would be the biggest men, but life told them that they would not even get into that kingdom unless they dropped their spectacular righteousness and got it into their hearts, in the form of love and peace and honor and kindness. The more ostentatious religion has become the less religious it has always been. To the people whom they had duped the Pharisees appeared to be the highest types of good people, but Jesus said they were the worst. From that day to this the egotist and the morbid egoist, the highly conceited man has always been the most cruel, the most unscrupulous, the most vicious man.

II.

The Source of Wrong Doing. 21-26.

"Ye have heard that it was said to them of old time, Thou shalt not kill; and whosoever shall kill shall be in danger of the judgment; but I say unto you, that every one who is angry with his brother shall be in danger of the judgment; and whosoever shall say to his brother, Raca, shall be in danger of the council; and whosoever shall say, Thou fool, shall be in danger of the hell of fire. If, therefore, thou art offering thy gift at the altar, and there remembereat that thy brother hath aught against thee, leave there thy gift before the altar, and go thy way, first be reconciled to thy brother, and then come and offer thy gift. Agree with thine adversary quickly, while thou art with him in the way; lest haply the adversary deliver thee to the judge, and the judge deliver thee to the officer, and thou be cast into prison. Verily I say unto thee, Thou shalt by no means come out there till thou have paid the last farthing."

1. MOTIVE.—Jesus goes back of the overt act to the impulse, or feeling, or motive out of which the act comes. Murder comes out of murderous anger; if there were no such feeling there would be no anger; the one who cherishes such feelings is tampering with fire. It may blaze out into the deadly deed any minute. One who does that is guilty of murder in the embryo state. That being the case, great care should be given to the inner thoughts lest they grow into sin. No expression of such feelings is safe, even though it be no more than saying "raca," which is a Hebrew word of contempt, or "thou fool," a still stronger word. The idea is that any expression of such anger, in any kind of word, subjects one to the severe judgment of God. Two duties are plain—to watch the thoughts with a view to making them exactly right; watch your relations to your fellow-men and keep them amicable, lest harm come out of them. In our day we have laws protecting more completely against the violence of an enemy. In His day immediate reconciliation with one who had aught against a man was a more urgent duty of that man, though it is just as important, ethically and religiously, that one suspend everything else, even an act of worship, to be reconciled to another. Haste is necessary, to prevent bad results and to secure a right spirit.

The adversary needs the act of conciliation as well as you do. Make peace with him at any cost save that of principle. Stop praying long enough to do it, if that is needed. Stay away from church in order to do it, if necessary, though that would not often be required. Deny yourself any pleasure, even that of a very important religious duty, in order to be at peace with your enemy, even if he is a friend.

2. RESPONSIBILITY.—No one can ever escape responsibility for what he has done. If there is an account against him he will have to settle it, to the last penny, in the courts of heaven, and usually while here on earth. We can compromise with men, but not with God. We can wear out our debts with each other, but not with God. Let no one imagine he can escape a settlement for the wrongs he does another.

WHAT THE MASTERS SAY.

A good lady, belonging to another communion, once remonstrated with Dr. W. B. Robertson. She said: "I hear you are introducing some dreadful innovations into your church service." "Indeed," he replied, "what innovations have we introduced?" "Oh," she said, "I hear that you read the commandments at the communion." "Is that all you heard of?" was the reply. "We have introduced a far greater innovation than that." "What is it?" said the good lady in some alarm. "We try to keep them," he replied.—Pollard.

Wesley was once attacked by a highwayman, who demanded his purse. Wesley did not resist, but calmly said: "If you ever come to regret this, as you doubtless will, I beg you remember, 'The blood of Jesus Christ, His Son, cleanseth from all sin.'" Several years afterward a man took Wesley by the hand as he came out of church and said: "Do you remember the time you were robbed in a certain place?" "Yes," said Wesley, "I shall never forget that." "Well, I was the man that robbed you and the words you spoke to me made me a Christian and an honest man."—Dixon.

PERTINENT QUESTIONS.

1.—Why it is right for us to live by the law of love?

2.—What is the essence of the law of love?

3.—Why is the teaching of error so wicked?

4.—Why is it so very wicked to speak a word of contempt of any one?

5.—Why should the injured one take the initiative in peace negotiations?

6.—Can one fail to suffer for any wrong one does to anybody?

OWNERS of advertising billboards in San Antonio, Texas, are complaining because of an ordinance recently enacted by the city council, which, among other provisions, prohibits the erection of a billboard on or facing any public park, square o rmunicipal building. To comply with this law, numerous billboards on Alamo, Main and Military plazas and other public squares in the city must be removed. It is claimed the ordinance seeks to put the billboard people out of business. The ordinance further specifies the size of billboards that may be erected, the material to be used, and how they s..all be placed. It provides that no sign board, water tank or oil tank may be erected within 200 feet of any railroad crossing within the city limits.

Duluth has a billboard ordinance requiring that they be not built closer to the sidewalk than their height. It is indifferently enforced, some of those scattered throughout the city complying with this regulation and others being right next to the edge of the sidewalk. The feature prohibiting the erection of billboards facing any public park, square or municipal building might well be incorporated as part of the local ordinance. Such a provision would probably preclude fights such as was put up by residents at Lester park a year ago to secure the removal of unsightly billboards in that part of the city.

CLARK HAS MAJORITY FOR NEVADA CONVENTION.

Reno, Nev., May 16.—Returns from the primary election in Nevada show Champ Clark will have in the state convention 134 delegates, Wilson 21, while 35 delegates are not reported yet. Clark carried Clark, Esmeraldo, Nye, Washoe, Churchill, Elko, Humboldt and Storey counties, except one precinct in Washoe. Wilson carried Sparks and precincts in Washoe county, Ormsby and White Pine counties.

TWO CONVENTIONS IN WASHINGTON

Roosevelt Men Control One and Taft Forces the Other.

Aberdeen, Wash., May 16.—Republicans of Washington split and held two state conventions here, supporters of Roosevelt controlling one and adherents of Mr. Taft the other. A complete list of delegates to the Chicago convention was named by each.

The Taft convention met with 488 delegates present, and eight counties, including Spokane, Snohomish and Walla Walla entirely unrepresented. It was in session two hours. Twenty-five policemen guarded the theater.

The Roosevelt delegates, to the number of 560, held a convention in a nearby hall. There was no disturbance. The Taft convention adopted a platform eulogizing President Taft and denouncing the "reckless doctrine" of the recall of judges, and instructed the delegates to vote for Taft as a unit and to vote for him until released by him.

The Roosevelt convention's platform instructs the delegates to the national convention to use all honorable means to secure the nomination of Theodore Roosevelt for the presidency, and "if it be clearly shown in the convention that Roosevelt cannot be named, then the delegates shall be free to use their efforts to nominate Robert M. La Follette or some other Progressive candidate."

MAKE IT EASY TO VISIT DULUTH

First of Summer Excursions Will Be Held Early in June.

To bring Duluth into closer touch with outside towns, particularly on the range, is the aim of the excursion committee of the Greater Duluth club, which met yesterday afternoon and made plans for the first of a series of semi-monthly excursions.

The first excursion will run from the range to Duluth and will be held about June 10. The art exhibition will be open at that time and it is expected that there will be a number of other attractions for excursionists.

The committee, in anticipation of other excursions this summer, decided to get into touch with the presidents of the Soo, Great Northern, Northern Pacific, South Shore, Missabe and Iron Range railroads.

President McGonagle of the Missabe and President House of the Iron Range road will be personally interviewed by the committee in the near future.

The committee expects to get into communication with the presidents of the other railroads named with the view of ascertaining if they expect to be in Duluth in the near future so that a conference with the committee may be arranged. If not, other means will be provided so that the committee can wait upon the presidents of the various lines.

While arrangements are pending, the committee will direct its activity toward securing information concerning the population served by the different roads in the various towns and an estimate of the number of people who would be likely to take excursion trips of this kind. These facts will be presented to the railroads.

The committee has in mind the promoting of the "get-acquainted" idea and the excursions are being planned with that object in view. The committee is composed of: Bernard Silberstein, George A. French, Bentley P. Neff, John J. Moe, Miron Bunnell, Stillman H. Bingham and M. K. Stack.

TITANIC'S BOAT FOUND.

Three Bodies on Floating Relic Buried at Sea.

New York, May 16.—A message received by the White Star line from the steamer Oceanic en route to New York, reported the picking up by the liner of a collapsible boat from the sunken ship Titanic, containing three bodies.

The message from the Oceanic reads: "May 13, latitude 39.56 north, longitude 47.01 west, picked up collapsible boat containing three bodies. Committed same to deep. One apparently Thomson Beattie, passenger; one sailor, one fireman, both unidentified; also coat with letters in addressed Richard N. Williams; one cane, Duane Williams. A ring also in boat, inscription "Edward and Gerda." "Commander."

The collapsible boat referred to in the message, it was stated at the White Star offices here, is the one mentioned by Officer Lowe in his testimony before the senate committee, from which he took into his boat twenty men and one woman, leaving on board three dead bodies.

SOUTH CAROLINANS WILL GO UNINSTRUCTED.

Columbia, S. C., May 16.—South Carolina's eighteen delegates will go to the Democratic national convention uninstructed. The vote in the state convention on which the test was made, resulted 178 to 162. The supporters of Woodrow Wilson made a strong fight to obtain an instructed delegation.

A Dainty, Delicious Delight

for the Summer days when the palate is tired of heavy meats and soggy pastries

Shredded Wheat Biscuit and Strawberries

Being made in Biscuit form it is so easy to prepare a delicious, wholesome meal with Shredded Wheat and berries or other fruits. The porous shreds of the Biscuit take up the fruit acids, neutralizing them and presenting them to the palate in all the richness of their natural flavor. Heat the Biscuit in the oven to restore crispness; then cover with strawberries or other fruits and serve with milk or cream, adding sugar to suit the taste. More nutritious and more wholesome than ordinary "short-cake" and so much easier to prepare—requires no baking and no cooking.

Shredded Wheat is made of the whole wheat steamed-cooked, shredded and baked in the form of crisp golden brown Biscuits, ready to serve with milk or cream or fresh fruits.

FLAYS DRUGGISTS AS LAW BREAKERS

North Dakota Enforcement League Secretary Says They Break Anti-Liquor Law.

Fargo, N. D., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Secretary Watkins of the State Enforcement league, in a statement to the public, excoriates the druggists of the state who have permits. He claims that many of them are openly violating the state prohibition law and are selling liquor as defiantly as blind piggers.

He insists that many of them have heretofore escaped prosecution by the surrender of their permits, but that in the future he will not only have the permits of offenders annulled, but will collect the $1,000 bond they have up for good behavior. His statement is the bitterest made against the druggists by any prohibition worker.

Minot Commission Heeds Complaint Against Dance Halls.

Minot, N. D., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—No more grizzly bear, turkey trot, nor even the moonlight waltz with the lights turned low for the youth of this city. Veiled women detectives under instructions from Capt. Scarlett, humane officer, visited the public dance halls and their evidence before the city commission has resulted in the passing of a city ordinance on its final reading which bars girls under the age of 18 from attending public dance halls unattended and also prohibits moonlight dancing. The ministers of the city urged the passing of the ordinance.

TWO LOSE WEALTH.

One Minus Big Draft, Other Separated From $200 in Moorhead.

Moorhead, Minn., May 16. — Peter Schroder, an Iowa farmer, reported to the police of Moorhead and Fargo Tuesday the loss of a draft for $1,000 issued by the Farmers' Saving Bank of Van Horn, Iowa. He is of the opinion that it fell from his pocket accidentally while in Moorhead on Monday night. Payment was at once stopped upon the draft, but Mr. Schroder needed the cash at once for a deal which he was contemplating carrying out.

A man giving the name of Austin and claiming Wisconsin as his home, reported to the police the loss of his roll, containing about $200. He was somewhat under the influence of liquor at the time and was having a meal with three companions. He pulled out his money to settle the score when one of his companions grabbed it and made for the door. One of the other men grappled with the money-snatcher and later allowed him to go after being told that he did not have the money. The fellow who grabbed the money has apparently made his escape, but the other three men are here and possibly some arrests may follow.

KNEW THE DEAD KING.

Madison Professor Tells Something of Dead Monarch.

Madison, Wis., May 16. — That the succession of Christian X as king of Denmark will have a soothing effect on the strained relations between Germany and Denmark is the opinion of Prof. R. B. Anderson of this city who was United States minister to Denmark from 1885 to 1889.

Prof. Anderson was well acquainted with the dead king and has many pleasant recollections of the succeeding monarch. Christian X, who will succeed Frederick VIII, is married to a German princess and this will have a soothing effect on the strained relations between the two countries.

Both the dead king and his queen took a great interest in the Danes in this country and on many occasions remembered them. The death of Frederick will not have any important influence on Danish politics or on the Danish situation in Europe, according to Prof. Anderson.

CLOSES STORE TO VISIT PORT ARTHUR.

Grand Rapids, Wis., May 16—Friends and business associates of John E. Daly were surprised to find the doors and windows of the Daly drug store tightly boarded and a sign above the entrance announcing: "Closed for thirty days. Gone to Port Arthur," early Tuesday morning. Mr. Daly conducted the pharmacy as usual on Monday and closed at the customary hour. During the night the establishment was barricaded and no further explanation given intimate friends or the curious public. Daly's clerks have been personally notified of a thirty days' leave of absence on full pay.

Pretty Mothers

Health is the foundation of all good looks. The wise woman realizes this and takes precautions to preserve her health and strength through the period of child bearing. She remains a pretty mother by avoiding as far as possible the suffering and dangers of such occasions. This every woman may do through the use of Mother's Friend, a remedy that has been so long in use, and accomplished so much good, that it is in no sense an experiment, but a preparation which always produces the best results. It is for external application and so penetrating in its nature as to thoroughly lubricate every muscle, nerve and tendon involved during the period before baby comes. It aids nature by expanding the skin and tissues, relieves tenderness and soreness, and perfectly prepares the system for natural and safe motherhood. Mother's Friend has been used and endorsed by thousands of mothers, and its use will prove a comfort and benefit to any woman in need of such a remedy. Mother's Friend is sold at drug stores. Write for free book for expectant mothers, which contains much valuable information.

IS KILLED IN MEXICO.

Well Known Diamond Drill Man Loses His Life.

Ishpeming, Mich., May 16.—(Special to The Herald)—William Burder of this city received a letter yesterday from Michael A'Hern of Denver, Colo., informing him that his son, Ben Burder, had been killed in Mexico. No particulars as to how death occurred were given, but it is assumed that he sustained a fatal injury while he was at his work. A'Hern wrote that he had been injured on the 5th, and died on the 7th. Mr. Burder was engaged in diamond drill work. He had been in Mexico for some months.

Mr. Burder was one of the best known diamond drill men in the United States. He engaged in the business here when a boy in 1884, under his father, who then had charge of the diamond drills and machine shop work for the Cleveland-Cliffs Iron company at the Cliffs Shafts property.

Mr. Burder, who was 47 years of age, was born in Canada. He came to this country with his parents when he was 18 months old. The family remained in Negaunee from 1867 to 1873, when they moved to Ishpeming, which has been their home ever since.

Besides his widow, he leaves his father and sister, living here, a brother, John, in Calumet, and a brother Elmer, in Tucumcalr, N. M., railroad engineer.

CASE AGAINST ST. PAUL MAN MAY BE DROPPED.

Dickinson, N. D., May 16.—It is probable that the criminal action against Joe Lawler of St. Paul, president of the Lawler Live Stock company, who was extradited from Minnesota, recently on a charge preferred in the Stark district court, will be dropped. The last doctor said it was no use for me to take anything as nothing would restore me to health again. So I began taking Lydia E. FIND BODY OF MARKEN

Corpse of Missing Eveleth Man Discovered Floating in Pond.

He Had Either Fallen From Embankment or Committed Suicide.

Eveleth, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The body of Isaac Benson Marken, who mysteriously disappeared on Easter Sunday, was found Wednesday by William St. Jean. It was floating in a small pond near the Leonidas mine. Deputy Coroner Helps, who took charge of the remains, held a post mortem examination with local physicians, and it was agreed that the man either fell off the high banks into the water or committed suicide, there being no indications of foul play.

Owned Spruce Property.

Marken owned a house in the Spruce location next to the Spruce school house, and boarded there with his tenant, John Kvamstrom. The family claim that he had been acting strangely for some time. His parents, who live in Sweden, and are well to do, sent the man $50 a few months ago. No relatives in America are known. The body will be buried at Virginia.

SECTION 27 IS TO BE STRIPPED

Big Contract to Be Awarded on Mesaba Range By Great Northern.

Hibbing, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Several local stripping contractors have submitted bids for the removal of the overburden on section 27, the new Great Northern property which is to be stripped this year. It adjoins the Monroe-Tener mine.

In Large Contract.

There are about 4,000,000 yards of dirt to be moved and ordinarily the work would require about three seasons to complete, but if the physical conditions are such that a large number of shovels can be worked the job could be finished in a much shorter time. The pit will be about a half mile long with an average width of 1,000 feet. It is expected that the contract will be let some time next week.

VISITING NURSE MAY BE EMPLOYED

Eveleth Council Is Considering Proposition of Helping Pay for One.

Eveleth, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Eveleth will employ a visiting nurse if the city council will meet the Associated Charities half way in providing the expense. The council last night appointed a committee to present the proposition to the city council at the next meeting Tuesday night. The nurse would visit all homes among the foreign location, searching out cases of infectious and contagious diseases and report same to the board of health. Such families would also be instructed in matters pertaining to sanitation and cleanliness, the proper care of infants and ventilation. The death rate of infants among the foreigners is at present very large, and the health officers declare that nearly all cases are the result of improper nourishment.

Asked to Join Movement.

The charity board also considered a communication from the Russell Sage Foundation fund, in which it was asked to join in the movement to do away with the heartless practice of unloading by one city onto another of public charges that fall into the hands of the charity department of every city from time to time. The board is asked to enter into an agreement not to send to another city any person dependent on public charity, without first notifying the charity board of such city that such action is intended.

ALMOST FRANTIC WITH ECZEMA ON HANDS

Began with Itching. Spread Fast. Fingers Fairly Bled, Cried Night and Day. Tried Cuticura Soap and Ointment and Was Entirely Cured.

Redondo Beach, Cal. — "Eight years ago I got eczema all over my hands. My fingers fairly bled and it itched until it almost drove me frantic. The eruption began with itching under the skin. It spread fast from between the fingers around the nails and all over the whole hands. I got a pair of rubber gloves in order to wash dishes. Then it spread all over the left side of my chest. I cried night and day. Then I decided to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment, but without much hope as I had gone so long. There was a marked change the second day, and so on until I was entirely cured. The Cuticura Soap we have always kept in our home, and we decided after that lesson that it is a cheap soap in price and the very best in quality. My husband will use no other soap in his shaving mug.

"I have always used Cuticura Soap and no other for my baby, and he has never had a sore of any kind. He does not even chafe as most babies do. I feel that it is all owing to Cuticura Soap for he is fine and healthy, and when five months old won a prize in a baby contest. It makes my heart ache to go into so many homes and see a sweet faced baby with the whole top of its head a solid mass of scurf, caused by the use of poor soap. I always recommend Cuticura, and nine times out of ten the next time I see the mother she says 'Oh! I am so glad you told me of Cuticura.'" (Signed) Mrs. G. A. Selby, Jan. 15, '11.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold everywhere. Sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. book. Address, "Cuticura," Dept. T, Boston. Tender-faced men should shave with Cuticura Soap Shaving Stick.

CAMORRIST DIES IN PRISON.

Others Mutiny in Cells at Viterbo—Abbattemaggio Reviled.

Viterbo, Italy, May 16.—Pasquale Gargullo, one of the Camorra prisoners, died in prison yesterday of heart disease. The other Camorra prisoners mutinied, creating a great disturbance. Enrico Alfano, known as Erricone, sprang upon Gennarro Abbattemaggio, the informer, shouting:

"You killed my brother and Valpariel. Now you have killed Gargullo—All three of them were fathers of families. May God punish your infamy!"

CLOUDY

The clouds finally cleared and Duluthians welcomed a bright, sunshiny morning today. The weather man does ot expect it to last, however, and predicts a return of the cloudy conditions.

A year ago today it was cold and raining.

The sun rose this morning at 4:30 and will set this evening at 7:37, making fifteen hours and seven minutes of sunlight. Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"During the last twenty-four hours light to copious rains fell over the Mississippi and Ohio valleys, the Lake region, Atlantic and Gulf states in connection with the barometric depression centered over the Ohio valley. Temperatures are rising over Western Canada and North Dakota as a result of the low pressure overlying Alberta. As yet this disturbance has not caused any rain, but its easterly movement will be attended by more or less cloudiness at the head of the Lakes during the ensuing thirty-six hours. Light to killing frosts occurred last night in the Dakotas, Western Minnesota and Nebraska."

AMUSEMENTS

TONIGHT'S ATTRACTIONS.

LYCEUM—Albini.
ORPHEUM—Vaudeville.
EMPRESS—Vaudeville.

"BLACK ART" IS PRESENTED

Albini's Performance Mystifies Audience at the Lyceum Theater.

The magic art works of Albini, utterly mystifying any who are not themselves adepts at such illusions, were the main feature in a fine vaudeville program given at the Lyceum theater last evening by the Albini-Avolo company. The performance with some variations will be given each afternoon and evening during the remainder of this week and next Sunday.

None of Albini's performances excited greater wonder than the appearances and disappearances of Madame Sans Gene. Three trunk trays were piled up on the floor, one above another, all filled with dress goods. Not one of the three was large enough to conceal a child of 6, much less a grown person. A bottomless and lidless trunk, through which everybody could see the back wall of the stage, was placed down over the trays. All was then placed upon the trunk, the front was opened, and lo, out stepped the pretty actress in full stage attire, leaving an empty trunk.

A platform, the floor of which was about two and a half feet above the floor of the stage, so that all could see under it, was shown. At each corner stood a brass pole, supporting rods from which hung four curtains, one at each of the four corners. The curtains were waved around, to demonstrate beyond question that they concealed nothing, and to make the proof the more convincing, the platform which moved on wheels, was turned round and round, and all the audience could see the back of the stage between the poles. Then the curtains were drawn down, so as to conceal the space above the floor of the platform, and a few moments later were drawn aside. Behold there was a furnished bedroom, illuminated by a lighted chandelier, and Madame Sans Gene arose from the bed, stepped out upon the stage and smilingly disappeared back of the scenery.

But the most remarkable feat of all was performed just before the entainment closed. The actress was placed at full length upon a table, and covered with a cloth. The table was then apparently moved out from under her, leaving the human form as appearing under the cloth, suspended in the air. The form ascended and descended under obedience to Albini's dictates and his magic wand. After a time he touched the cloth with the wand and it collapsed, showing that there was nothing under it. Albini with a smile rolled the cloth up in his hands, and the curtain went down.

From time to time Albini condescended to explain some of his simpler tricks. And simple enough they seemed when explained.

Aside from the feats of magic, perhaps the most entertaining number of the progrram was the xylophone performance by the four Avolos. Several popular and classic selections were delightfully rendered. The closing piece of music was Charles Avolo's composition, "The Avolo March."

"Onetta, the little Arab," delighted the audience with her dervish whirlwind dance, and her novel feat of picking up a chair by the back with her teeth and swinging it about while she performed various contortions.

The program also included singing by the contralto soloist, Mlle. de Vallance, singing, dancing and bag-piping by the three Stratton brothers, a ventriloquist and dancing doll performance by Colley and May, songs, dances and character changes by the four Allen sisters, and a mimic performance by Tom Grantford, whose best feat was his imitation of various pieces of a band.

Amusement Notes.

What is heralded as the most expensive vaudeville shows ever presented at the Orpheum is billed for the closing week in the Duluth theater.

Manager Billings received the bookings for next week yesterday and he stated this morning that the bill was the most costly vaudeville show ever given in the Duluth Orpheum, exceeding in the famous Annette Kellerman show of last season.

The headline act for next week will be "Madame Butterfly," one of David Belasco's productions, and the first he has made for vaudeville. It is written from the story on which the grand opera was based. Next on the bill will be Percy Waram and company presenting one of W. W. Jacob's sketches, "The Bosun's Mate." Leona Thurber and Harry Madison will return presenting a new version of their sketch "On a Shopping Tour." The other acts will be presented by O'Meer's Sisters and company, Harry Atkinson and Clemons and Deane. The bill will be the closing one for the Duluth theater, and after the performance a week from Saturday night, the theater will be closed until Aug. 25. There will be five more performances of this week's bill, tonight, Friday afternoon and night, and Saturday afternoon and night.

Eddie & Mae Shaw are presenting one of the singing, talking and dancing specialties of the year at the Empress this week. Mr. Shaw appears as a messenger boy in their offering and is given ample opportunity to display his ability as a dispenser of slang. In speaking of the free manner in which the vernacular is now used by the American people, Mr. Shaw says: "This little act of ours is taken from an incident in real life which I happened to observe. The messenger boy in the incident was a genuine Brooklyn 'hick' and he had a flow of slang which would make the most rabid baseball fan look to his laurels. After hearing this young fellow talk, I decided to use some of his slang in my act, but while it made a hit with me, it didn't seem to go well with my audiences, for the reason that they could not understand it so I was forced to leave it out of my act. A few months ago I decided to try it again and did so, but with different results, for my audiences simply 'ate it up.' I don't know whether the English language is deteriorating or whether the people are discovering the fact that it is easier to declare oneself by the use of slang. It is a common thing to hear college professors and graduates use slang nowadays and I doubt if there is anyone who does not use slang in some form or other. Baseball, I think, is the chief cause of slang being used. When a man wishes to express his approval or disgust of a certain play at a baseball game, he wants to do so quickly, and with out a waste of words, so is forced to descend to the use of slang. In consequence, baseball writers all over the country are busy coining slang phrases and if they keep up the pace they have set in the past few years, the English language will soon sound much different from what it does even at the present time."

FIRM FOUNDATION

Nothing Can Undermine It in Duluth.

People are sometimes slow to recognize true merit and they cannot be blamed, for so many have been humbugged in the past. The experience of hundreds of Duluth residents, expressed publicly through newspapers and other sources, places Doan's Kidney Pills on a firm foundation here.

L. P. Schneider, 210 W. Fourteenth St., Duluth, Minn., says: "The public statements I have given in praise of Doan's Kidney Pills still hold good. In 1898 I said that for a considerable length of time, I had suffered from pains in my back. My condition finally grew so bad that I could not stoop or lift without being tortured. It seemed as if a sharp knife were piercing me. I could not lie in one position long without becoming stiff and sore. The kidney secretions passed irregularly and contained sediment. I found no relief until I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. They drove away my trouble and during the twelve years that have since passed, I have never had any serious recurrence."

LATEST SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

PEGGERS RIDE OVER SOX IN THE OPENER

Slaughter of Home Team Is Preceded By Parade to Grounds, Band Concert and Mayor McCuen's Speech.

DESPITE the parade, despite the fact that it was opening day and an occasion upon which common courtesy should have permitted the home guard to win, Winnipeg inaugurated the local launching of the Central International by drubbing, walking on, humiliating and otherwise mistreating the White Sox. When the hostilities ceased the score was 10 to a lonely, forlorn 2, with the Peggers riding safely and serenely on the long end.

With the exception of the weather and the result of the game, the opening of the 1912 season was auspicious. There was a band and a parade. Headed by the Third Regiment reliners of sweet strains and patriotic airs, Mayor McCuen, President Harry Blume, E. H. Lee, George Lucore and other officials of the club rode in the bell cow of the autos. Following behind in various machines of various makes, came the hopefuls.

At the ball yard the scene was shifted to one of busy activity. While the players warmed up and by scampering around attempted to combat the rigors of the weather, some of the public-spirited in the bleachers assisted in the digging out and the general rescue of marooned autos.

The outfield was about as sticky and muddy as a Kentucky farm after the recent rampage of the mischievous Mississippi, and those drivers with the reckless hardihood to attempt to cross, met with a temporary fate much worse than that of Eliza; when that dark beauty attempted to cross the ice.

Mayor Talks.

Around the 3:30 hour the mayor made a talk in which he stated that after the choking and otherwise subduing of many difficulties the league had been launched. He also stated that the local officials hoped to give the fans good, clean baseball, in return for which the patronage of the Duluth fans was asked. With good attendance the present season the mayor expressed the hope that we could invade the Twin Cities next season.

Applause greeted the genial doctor's christening of the season. Then a nice and new ball was tossed out to him and he posed for a second while two cameras clicked as one and several hundred hearts marked time—and the band also played some patriotic air.

Then "Doc" wound up and let her go. She came swift and true and cut the very heart out of the plate. Two men sitting back of the press stand swore that the ball had "something" on it. It had some break all right, all right. Clothier missed it by a mile.

Then Johnson took the mayor's place in the box, it is said to relate, for they might have left "Doc" in, and the game was on.

Clothier whiffed and the crowd cheered. But wait. Freer doubled to right and Altman impersonated a target. McMurdo doubled to right and Freer scored the first official run of the official season. Three official groans were also heard. Kirkham singled and Altman and McMurdo were over. Glass was safe when Leber fuzzled his offering, but was forced at second by Shea.

Kuehn got to first when Shea let the third strike get away from him, but was forced at second and nothing materialized. Winnipeg took the bit in its mouth in its second and three more grew on the score board. Hirsch stopped one with his carcass. Clothier singled to right and Hirsch was over when Freer hit past short. With Altman down McMurdo hit safely and Clothier and Freer came trooping home.

With the exception of O'Brien's walk it was quiet for us in the second, while the persistent Peggers also stopped scoring in their half of the third. A double play by McMurdo unassisted chopped us down in the latter half of the third. The enemy renewed the attack in the fourth.

With two soldiers dead, Altman singled to the old favorite spot in right and galloped homeward when the ever-hitting McMurdo doubled to center. Kirkham tripled to deep center and the second run of the inning was over. It might be apropos to add, before the story has progressed further, that Hoffman replaced the suffering Johnson after one was gone in the second. Yes, Hoffman was also hit somewhat.

Skipping blithely along to the sixth, where Clothier opened with a walk, went to second on Altman's ground out and to third when Hoffman pegged wild to second and scored on McMurdo's fourth hit, we come to further trouble on the part of the enemy.

Our only cause of joy and scores came in the eighth. In this round, after Leber had been retired on an infield hit, Sours walked, went to second on a wild pitch and to third on O'Brien's infield out. He scored when Blum lifted the pellet far over the left field fence.

In the ninth the Peggers added one more for general results, adding further injury. With one gone McMurdo doubled, went to third on an infield play and came home on Krueger's double. Thus endeth the chapter.

Winnipeg looks the goods. Brown has a bunch of ball players who appear to know the baseball primer. One swallow does not make a summer—this being especially trite and true in Duluth—and for the reason it is also apparent that one game does not furnish dope on a team. There will be other days and other games. Therefore judgment on the White Sox is reserved.

RED HOSE TAKE SECOND CONTEST

Finally the Superior bunch won a ball game. The Grand Forks aggregation was defeated by the score of 6 to 4. Chase was on the mound for the Red Hose and was opposed by Myers, the Flickertails getting but seven blows off the Chief's delivery. The home guard gathered nine blows off the delivery of the Flickertail flinger, bunching hits and runs in the fourth frame. Ford led the assault with three hits.

TIGERS TAKE LAST OF SERIES FROM NEW YORK.

New York, May 16.—Detroit defeated New York in the last game of the series, 8 to 4, making it three out of four. Warhop was knocked out of the box in the fifth. Willett was wild and hit hard, but good fielding, particularly by Bush, helped him over numerous dangerous places. Just as Detroit went to bat in the fourth, Cobb jumped into the grandstand and thrashed a spectator. Manager Jennings said after the game that the man had applied opprobrious epithets to the player. Cobb was immediately put out of the game. Perry, who took Cobb's place in this inning, struck out for the third out, leaving three men on bases. Score:

GRAND FORKS PREPARES FOR BASEBALL SEASON.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—There will be an old-time baseball celebration in Grand Forks next Monday when the Duluth White Sox come here to open the season with the Grand Forks team. The re-establishment of league baseball in Grand Forks is an event that will attract one of the biggest crowds in local baseball history, and the club officials are making their plans with the object in view of giving the Flickertail fans their money's worth.

There will be the time-honored baseball parade, and Mayor M. F. Murphy will cast the first ball over or at the plate. And then there will be a few talks, and the game will be under way.

The baseball park is in course of construction and will be completed by Monday.

O'BRIEN SENDS FOR SOUTHPAW

Darby O'Brien stated today that he had wired for Monty Woods, a southpaw who was with Rochester for a while last season. The pitcher had some trouble with Corbett, the manager of the Medics, and failed to finish out the season. According to Darby this Woods man had a lot of stuff and will add to the strength of the White Sox.

At the present time there is not a left-handed flinger on the local club. Apparently the Winnipeg club is one that needs a southpaw to subdue it, and the Orator is not wasting time in his efforts to land a port wing flinger. It is expected that Woods will report to the local club by the latter part of the present week.

BADGER STUDENTS ON THE HEELS OF EHLER

Madison, May 16.—George E. Ehler, director of athletics at the University of Wisconsin, has been hanged in effigy; "Big" John Richards, football coach, has resigned, and now the students and alumni have gotten into action to straighten out the athletic war at Wisconsin. The result will be that Coach Richards will withdraw his resignation, and will be on the job when the football candidates report next fall. That Coach Richards has already made up his mind not to leave, and that the heads of athletic departments have decided to "make up," comes from reliable sources.

It is believed that the resignation of the popular football coach will tend to force the faculty here into a little more liberal athletic policy, and if that comes true the friends of intercollegiate athletics will feel that they have gained a point.

Director Ehler was brought to Wisconsin by a faculty which was unfriendly to intercollegiate athletics in its various forms. The faculty was particularly antagonistic to football, which is more popular than any other sport here. On selecting Mr. Richards, however, Mr. Ehler played into the hands of the friends of football. Richards came here with dreams of restoring football to its old standing at Wisconsin. For a time, his enthusiasm was contagious, and even the faculty showed a disposition to be more friendly. But this proved a temporary change of heart, and the last few weeks Richards has bumped up against many obstacles which tended to weaken his baseball team and injure the chances for a good football team next fall. He finally decided that he could not beat the opposition here and resigned. His resignation caused a storm of protest on the part of students and alumni. This opposition has become so strong and influential that Coach Richards will be asked to remain.

It is known that when "Big" John came here that President Van Hise told him that Wisconsin was friendly to an athletic policy which would furnish athletic activity to a larger number of students. He also told him that Wisconsin would expect to win its share of victories. It is known that Richards has written a letter to President Van Hise in which he has stated that, under the present athletic policy, Wisconsin cannot hope to hold its own with the other great universities of the Middle West.

WOLVERTON IS SOLID WITH FANS

New York, May 16.—Harry Wolverton, fighting hard with a team that has proven the biggest disappointment in the major leagues this season, is a hero on the long white way.

It is seldom that the manager of a losing ball club and especially the manager of a team from which so much was expected and so little received, is idolized, but Wolverton surely is that.

On Broadway and the many streets that run off Broadway, where the sporting fraternity gathers and where nearly everybody thinks he knows more baseball than Harry Chadwick ever dreamed of, they are sympathizing with Wolverton.

Funny, Isn't It?

This is rather a strange condition in the world's largest city, where they claim life is a hard battle with little sentiment mixed, but the sympathy is here for Wolverton and strong in its presence.

Wolverton came here following Chase, who had in his turn followed Stallings, and both of them were failures as managers. Wolverton was the man picked as the chosen leader and the man who would certainly lead the Yanks to a pennant.

One and Then a Heap.

One defeat followed another for Wolverton, but it was not the fault of Wolverton, for the Yanks certainly have been demoralized by accidents and sickness.

The sternth of a team is in its substitutes and in this case there were not enough efficient substitutes to take the places of the regulars who were knocked out. That was not Wolverton's fault, for he had just arrived and had not even been able to pick a regular nine before disaster got to him.

Not Wolverton's fault.

No manager can prevent illness or accidents. Generally the public overlooks this, but not so here on Broadway. They take it into consideration, conclude that Wolverton is making a game struggle with every odd against him and lionize him instead of criticizing him. Such a condition is rare and one would expect to find it here as quickly as discovering champagne in the barren part of the Sahara desert.

CENTRAL WINS FROM CATHEDRAL

At the grounds on Thirty-second avenue west yesterday the Central high school baseball team made its debut for the season, defeating the Cathedral high school by the score of 10 to 6. The hilltop boys hit for a total of thirteen swats, while Watkins held the Cathedrals to but two blows.

The lineup of both teams was shifted considerably during the game, as both captains wished to try out various candidates for the team. The playing was remarkably free from errors, considering that it was the first game of the season, the raw weather and the condition of the grounds.

Erne Looked Like Novice.

Philadelphia, May 16.—Packey McFarland of Chicago and Young Erne of this city fought six rounds here last night, and the Chicagoan made the local boy look like a novice. From the beginning of the fight until the sixth round the spectators continually shouted "take 'em off" "frame up!" etc. It looked as if McFarland was not doing his best, but with the beginning of the closing round he cut loose and jabbed and uppercut Erne so persistently that he almost had him out at the close.

Woman's Realm

Gifted with a remarkably musical voice and the art of true impersonation, Miss Lucine Finch gave the audience which completely filled the Endion M. E. church last evening a delightful evening of darky songs and stories, which will linger in the memory of everyone present for a long time.

Dressed in long flowing robes of satin, Miss Finch sat framed between two tall bay trees and tall candles, which shed the only light in the room, and told her old "Mammy's" stories and sang the true negro songs with a charm which held the attention and interest from the first to last words.

Her stories and songs portrayed the childlike faith and working of the negro mind as well as some of the tragic aspects which lie behind the life of the race, and Miss Finch gave them in so true a presentation of her old Mammy's telling that her hearers were held as under a spell and the startling and almost shocking statements in her negro versions of Bible tales passed as unconscious sacrilege on the part of the old mammy and were overlooked. The use of every day phrases applied in her story of the Creation which was perhaps the favorite of all who heard her last evening, was convulsing.

The blending of the sublime and holy with the most commonplace produced the most surprising effects and the audience went from one laugh into another. "I'm a natural born maker so I got to make, and I'm a natural born creator so I got to create," said the Lord, so he started out to make the world, and the story goes on from the first day when he made the light through the whole week with the making of the darkness so the "arch-angels and the angels could sleep at night." Then came the firmament and the "separations," then the sun, moon and stars, "the elements yesterday and vegetables today," and then the making of the animals to eat the vegetables and man to name the animals and then woman 'cause "man was lonesome for some one to 'spute' with."

Her songs, "Little Davy, Play Your Harp" and "Who's Gwine Live When I Am Dead, Up Behind the Sky?" and many others were full of the peculiar rhythm and melody of the music of this race and were peculiarly charming. Miss Finch said that she had considerable difficulty in learning these songs as the negroes seldom sang them the same and she said so to one old man who was teaching her, and his response was: "It don't make no difference where you go honey, as long as you stay on the keyboard."

Miss Finch read "The Tar Baby" and "What Happened to Simon Peter for Fishing on Sunday" at the high school chapel exercises yesterday morning and delighted the students with these and the songs, "Little Davy, Play Your Harp" and "Noah and the Ark."

The entertainment last evening was given under the auspices of the Collegiate Alumnae of this city for the purpose of starting a scholarship fund for girls and a good sum was netted for this fund.

FARCE A SUCCESS.

Amateur Actors Please Large Audience.

The young people who took part in the amateur production of "The Worsted Man" last evening at the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A., given for the benefit of St. John's English Lutheran church, made a name for themselves as amateur actors of ability, ofr every part was well handled and the entertainment as a whole was a delightful success.

Stanley Lamb, who directed the production, was excellent in his leading role and every other actor made a good impression.

The extra features introduced during the evening were also pleasing. Stanley lamb in his buck and wing dancing and his two duets with Misses Mable Knutson and Olga Olssen deserves special praise. Their songs were "I Love You" and "Oh You Beautiful Doll." The "My Hero" song from "The Chocolate Soldier," by the chorus and a beautiful soprano solo by Elizabeth Donovan, "Planning," were both very good. Henry Lavick's orchestra played during the evening most creditably and Miss Lydia Arndt and Henry Lavick responded with encores after their piano and violin solos.

The actors were: Stanley Lamb, Elizabeth Donovan, Anna Olssen, Myrtle Johnson, Beatrice Oie, Mamie Knutson, Jessie Johnson, Agnes Knutson, Olga Olssen and Clarence Johnson.

Surprise Party.

A surprise party was given in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Michalek, 322 Sixth avenue east, last evening at their home in celebration of their wedding anniversary. Edward Schubisky,	Joseph Burke,
Frank Burke,	Leo Zivicki,
John Burke,	Charles Kugler,
Messrs.—

Farewell Party

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kauppi, 3 Sixty-third avenue west and Miss Eleanor Johnson entertained about seventy-five guests at a dancing party last evening at Odd Fellows' hall in compliment to Mrs. Albert C. Callow, who will leave soon to join her husband in the West. During the evening the musical numbers "Goodbye Sweetheart" and "A Dream" were delightfully sung by the guest of honor and Prof. Mustoner of Hancock, Mich., and Judge Jackola of Calumet, Mich. Miss Emma Hill also added musical numbers which were pleasing.

MUSICAL CONCERT AND PROGRAM

CAMPAIGN OPENS.

Y W. C. A. Start After $8,000; Young Women Pledge $140.

Twenty-five workers started out from the Young Women's Christian association this morning on the eight day campaign for $8,000 after a short service of prayer led by Miss Frances Crittenden, city secretary of the Northwest territorial committee and a short talk by Miss Trimble giving a few instructions on the work.

The return from this first morning's canvas are piling up and the report of the first day's work, which will be made at 5 o'clock, promises to be encouraging. A large clock set in one of the windows of the association will register the amount raised each day and will be set at 1 o'clock each afternoon. All returns brought in after that will be counted on the next day's report.

Last evening at the young women's banquet $140 was pledged by the young women present and each girl took two cards out to try to get two more pledges. They will also work for 500 members, the $500 coming from this to be turned into the campaign fund.

"I think one of the chief characteristics of the Young Women's Christian association," said Miss Frances Crittenden at the young women's banquet, which was given at the association building last evening to some one hundred young business women of the city as a preliminary to the campaign which has started for $8,000 this morning to interest them in the work, "is its power to grip people. The association certainly has been a benefit to me. It has made me feel more than any other force, my relations to others and my obligations to other people in this world. And it is just this earnestness, this force which grips people. Women seldom take up Y. W. C. A. work as a fad, they take it up because they love it and it draws all kinds of women. Two of the things which I like especially about the Y. W. C. A. is its inclusiveness and its exclusiveness. In the first place it is the only institution in the world which is devoted entirely to the interest of young women, but it is inclusive also in that it has a place for every woman and girl and will fill her needs."

Extent of Work.

Miss Crittenden spoke of the broadness of the work and the places where the associations are to be found. "When you realize that in the tent cities in the hopfields of Oregon, the mining towns, mill villages, factory districts of the crowded cities, the immigrant stations on Ellis island, the wineries of California in all these places branches of the Young Women's Christian association are to be found you begin to realize what a far reaching institution it is and it is not only national but world wide.

"It is impossible to define the Y. W. C. A., because to the busy girl who works downtown, it is a rest room; to the girl with the small salary it is a place to get good rooms and good food at a small rate; to the stranger in town it is a refuge and home; to the timid country girl a place for delightful comradeship; to the girl of foreign parentage, a place to learn American ways in pleasant and safe surroundings, and to many other girls many other things. And yet when you get the full meaning of the association you will scorn to think of it as any one of these things because it is so much more than all of them together."

Campaign Work.

Mrs. R. H. Passmore spoke, with an inimitable blend of humor and practical suggestion, of the work of campaigning for funds and membership telling the life story of Raymond Robbins and of his work in Chicago.

The spirit of interest and enthusiasm displayed by the young women present at the banquet last evening, the singing of well known songs the words of which had been cleverly arranged to bear on the association work and the greeting of Mrs. R. H. Passmore and Miss Frances Crittenden, territorial workers from Minneapolis, and Miss Nettie E. Trimble, general secretary of the local association and Mrs. W. A. McGonagle, president of the association with a song as each was introduced, were a pleasing demonstration of the goodfellowship which abounds there.

THE JOURNEY'S END

By Mabel Greenwood.

When Charlie Deacon came back from years of service in the Philippines, he was met by his mother who kissed him tenderly, though she felt a great pain at her heart when she saw how thin and wan he had become.

"It is good to see you, mother," he said languidly, as he stepped into the motor car waiting outside the station. "Tell me about yourself, dear," she said. "Are you quite well?"

"Perfectly, mother darling."

"And you have not got engaged, or anything like that? Mother must be the first to know even if you are a great gun in the government service and all that."

"Oh, mother! what nonsense you talk! Do I look like the happy accepted lover?"

As mrs. Deacon looked at her son she noted the lines of suffering, the signs of mental struggle, the weariness.

They pulled up at the old stone doorway, and in a few minutes Charlie Deacon stood in his own big bedroom. He looked out through the oriel windows across the splendid park and woods. His home! His property! His house! And he would not have cared just then if they were all mouldering to dust. The door opened but he did not hear. Mrs. Deacon came softly across the room and slipped her arm around him.

"Charlie, come and sit down." She pulled him down into a big chair and knelt beside him.

"Could not mother know?" She did not look at him as she spoke, or the expression on his blanched face would have shocked her. She wished she had waited and asked him if he was in mood for company. And to have Blanche Henderson there—Blanchhe whom he used to adore!

"You won't think me very unkind if I tell you nothing just yet?" he said.

"Of course, say nothing, my dearest." Mrs. Deacon said as she left him; but her heart felt very heavy as she went down to the drawing room alone.

When the master of the house was heard crossing the hall Blanche Henderson slipped away through the conservatory.

"I told you Blanche was keeping me company, did I not?"

Mrs. Deacon was perfectly aware that she had not told him, but she felt quite nervous of telling him in the ordinary way.

"How long has she been here?" he asked.

"Only a few days, dearest, and she will be gone soon."

Charlie made no response, and presently his mother was called away. What a home-coming, to find the one woman he wished to avoid under his own roof! He had met Blanche Henderson again—Blanche, with her thick coils of auburn hair, her lovely face, her graceful pride of manner. For three glorious weeks they had been betrothed, and then the crash had come. Envy and malice had been busy with Blanche's name, and idle fictitious reports of her many lovers had reached his ears. He had come home a disappointed, heart-sore man.

As he was crossing the hall to go to the library, he met Blanche.

"I am so surprised to find you here!" was all he said.

She raised her beautiful face to his, and said proudly—

"I met your mother in town. She was lonely. She wanted me here."

They stepped into the drawing room and he closed the door.

"You must have known I should not care to meet you!" he said.

"Oh, yes, I knew!" She was swinging her scarf to and fro.

"Only I did not worry my head about that!" she went on. "You had a bad opinion of me—a false one—and the sooner you apologize and see how wrong it was, the better!"

"It is all very easy to talk," said Charlie slowly. "I have no intention to reopen that old trouble. It is enough that we are here together without beginning hostilities."

She laughed but her brave heart began to beat painfully.

"For you to beg my forgiveness for having listened to idle gossip is scarcely starting war again," she said.

Something spiritless and dejected in his gait as he walked to the open window smote her suddenly with a new pain.

"Oh, well," she said, presently, "we do not want to quarrel before your mother, so we had better declare a truce while we are in public!"

Three days after Charlie returned returned home he saw Blanche Henderson across the lawn to the park and slowly followed her.

"I saw you go," he began stiffly, "so I followed to say 'Goodbye.'" He held out his hand, but she did not take it.

"Why?" she asked unsteadily.

"I am going to town and then to Manila."

"I—I am driving you from home?"

"Perhaps." His stern grave face shocked her.

"I will go myself, tomorrow," she said, "will that do?"

"Thanks; then I need not deprive my mother of my company as yet," he said.

She had turned away, but she paused.

"You evidently think me so poor as to be glad of your grudging hospitality."

"Nothing of the kind," he began.

"Then so friendless that I would stay with you hear rather than no one?"

"You can think what you choose," he said quietly.

Blanche did not answer. The hope within her had begun to die. At first it had seemed easy to explain that he was mistaken in believing cruel talk about her, but the thing now seemed beyon her powers.

"Then goodby!" she said at length.

A weary look was in her face and Charlie noticed it. "Will you go to Palm Beach again this winter?" he asked, scarcely knowing why.

"Decidedly not."

"But don't you vow vengeance on the people who spread those reports?" he asked huskily.

"No."

"Why?"

"Because anybody who knew me would know they were untrue; and as for the rest of the world, I should not care a straw."

He came nearer; the clear honest truth shone from her eyes, and his heart gave a bound of joy.

"Blanche, I wonder if it's too late? Could you ever forget and forgive?"

She tried to speak, but the tears were running down her face.

"I—I don't know," she sobbed.

He caught her in his strong arms and kissed her lips, her eyes, her hair.

"Oh, is it true? Is it all right between us?" she was saying.

"My angel! my darling! 'Journeys end in lovers' meetings.' Where's this little mother of mine? Come along and tell her she will have a daughter now. Now kiss your future husband, Blanche, darling, for he has almost forgotten what it feels like!"

And she kissed him.

NO SIGNS OF ANY RICHESON REPORT

Boston, Mass., May 16.—There were no indications early today that the findings of the alienists in the case of Clarence V. T. Richeson, the condemned poisoner of Avis Linnell, would be at once laid before Governor Foss. The executive council, to which must be referred whatever recommendations the governor may make, was in session today, concerned with other business.

At the Charlestown state prison it was said the young Virginia and former Baptist preacher rested well last night and that his breakfast was eaten with apparent relish.

Richeson received a long visit this forenoon from the Rev. Herbert S. Johnson, pastor of the Warren Avenue Baptist church, who will act as his spiritual adviser. When the minister left the death house his place was taken by William A. Morse, the prisoner's attorney, who conferred with Richeson for some time.

After leaving the prisoner Mr. Morse said Richeson's calmness and control were noteworthy. Mr. Morse professed to be sanguine of Governor Foss referring to the executive council the petition for commutation of sentence.

The old jail has been repeatedly condemned, and recently when it was inspected the authorities were told that it would be permanently closed if conditions were not remedied. It was built years before Cloquet had any modern provision for sanitation.

BREAK LED BY CHICAGO

Bears Make a General Wheat Raid on North American Markets.

May Flaxseed Remains High But July Has Slump—Trade Fair.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 16.—A more bearish day on the wheat markets of this continent has seldom been seen. There was a great slump near the close, led by Chicago. The Duluth July option had a break of 1¾c, but that was small compared with the loss in Chicago July, which was 3⅜c to 3½c. Duluth cash wheat closed ½c to ⅝c over the July option. Durum closed ½c off, oats 2⅜c lower, rye 2c higher to unchanged and barley 2c higher. Duluth May flax closed unchanged, but July was 2½c lower.

Good weather conditions over the greater part of this country and Canada for the growing wheat and other crops had a bearish influence on the markets of this continent today, and wheat went down, in spite of rather bullish news from across the Atlantic. Wheat on the Liverpool market closed ¾d higher to ¼d lower. The main bullish influences on that market were poorer Platte and Canadian wheat, reports of lower crop prospects in India, bullish reports in regard to the Russian crop and the expectation of lighter Argentine shipments. Wheat was unchanged on the Buenos Ayres market at the close last evening. Today there was a holiday at Buenos Ayres, as well as at Paris, Berlin and Budapest.

The better weather reports in the United States seem to have induced farmers to bring their wheat to town, while they can get a good price for it. The American primary receipts today were away in excess of what they were a year ago today.

Duluth July wheat, which closed yesterday at $1.15⅜@1.15¾ bid, opened today at $1.15⅞ bid and at noon was quoted at $1.16⅜ asked. Wheat sagged this morning also on the markets of Chicago, Minneapolis and Winnipeg.

July Flaxseed Lower.

While May flaxseed was very strong on the market of Duluth this morning, July was weak and showed a decided tendency to decline. At noon May was unchanged at $2.29½ but July was down 2¾c at $2.11. There is a great scarcity of No. 1 flaxseed to satisfy the May option, and it need cause no surprise if those who are under the obligation of making delivery of No. 1 flaxseed this month should yet find a way of doing so by bringing Canadian flaxseed upon the Duluth market. It is very hard to get the No. 1 northwestern, but that is the only flaxseed that can be used to mix with the No. 1 Manitoba to bring it up to the grade that will make it pass for as good as No. 1 American. At noon today No. 1 northwestern was up ¼c at $1.96⅜ asked, for May delivery. With such a vast margin between that and the price of No. 1 on the Duluth market, even though No. 1 northwestern is scarce and is said to be controlled largely by interests that do not want it to go to Duluth, it would not be at all surprising if some of this fine seed should soon find its way across the border and over the tariff wall into the Duluth market.

There seems to be no anxiety on the part of those who have sold the July option that they will be against the same difficulty as now confronts those who have sold the May option. There was good trade in the July option on the Duluth market today. Offers were somewhat better than the demand.

Just now there is very poor sale for the lower grades on the Duluth market. Those who hold them are therefore all the more anxious to get the fine No. 1 northwestern from Canada to bring up the grade of the cheap flax and make it fit, if possible, to satisfy the pressing May options.

MARKET GOSSIP

Grain dealers of Duluth see wealth for the Northwest and good business for Duluth in the grain prospects of the Northwest, as they have thus far shown themselves this season.

"The prospects for a magnificent crop in the Northwest are better now than they have been for many years at this season of the year," remarked C. W. Patterson, manager of the Amenia Elevator company, today. "Some people complain of this cool weather. Such people do not know what is good for them. It is giving the grain a chance to stool well and that means a good, hardy, flourishing plant later on. The ground is in excellent condition.

"Some have laid great stress on the decrease of wheat acreage in the Northwest this year. It is true that the acreage has decreased five to twenty per cent. But that means nothing, as far as volume of business is concerned. The land that would have been planted in wheat, but could not because there was not enough fall plowing, will be planted to coarser grains, which may be sown later. There will be more oats, barley and flax. Many farmers, who have been accustomed to sow little else than wheat, year after year, will find as much or more profit in the other grains.

"The wheat is practically all seeded in the three Northwestern states of Minnesota and the two Dakotas. There is plenty of time to get in other grains. Not much flaxseed has yet been put in, but it is not well to put in flaxseed much before the first of June.

"If the Northwest fulfills its promise of yielding an abundant grain harvest this fall it will mean much to the commercial prosperity of Duluth. Duluth grain handlers will be just as well off in spite of the decreased wheat acreage if that is made up by more business in oats, barley and flax."

A. D. Goodman, general manager of the Duluth Universal Milling company, remarked: "With bad crops in the more easterly winter wheat-growing states, and with an abundant yield of grain in the Northwest, Duluth will reap a plentiful harvest of business. The partial failure of the winter wheat crop will make wheat high and if there is plenty of wheat in the Northwest, this part of the country will get the double benefit of high prices for what it has to sell and plenty of that commodity to place upon the market. It will mean an excellent grain business for Duluth. Moreover, it will mean prosperity in the country that is tributary to Duluth."

CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Prices Go Up on Indications of Overselling.

Chicago, May 16.—Signs that pit traders had overreached themselves in going too unanimously to the short side of the market caused wheat prices today to take an upward bound. In connection with the fact that the exportable surplus in the United States is far below the average considerable attention was given to damage reports from Russia and to advices from India that the yield there would be materially reduced. On the other hand, Washington sent word that the Southern hemisphere had 65 per cent more wheat in sight than last year and that there was no need to fear a pinch in the world supply. Opening prices were a shade to ⅜c lower, the latter for May. July started at $1.11 to $1.11⅛, a loss of a sixteenth to ⅛@⅜c, and then rose to $1.11⅝.

Afterward the market suffered a sharp decline as a result of free offerings oy longs. The market then became decidedly unsettled, seeming to have no leadership. The news was demoralizing with May 4⅜c net lower and July off 2⅜@2½c, the latter month finishing at $1.08⅜.

Cold, wet weather had a bullish effect in the corn crowds. Offerings were light. July opened a shade to ⅛@¼c higher at 77¼c to 77¾@77⅜c and advanced to 77⅝c.

A reaction ensued owing to predictions of a large total acreage. The close was ragged in consequence of the late break in wheat. July finished 2⅜c down at 74⅞c.

Buying on the part of prominent firms gave strength to oats. July varied from ⅛c off to ¼c up at the outset, selling from 52¼c to 52⅝c and steadied around 52½c.

There was a good commission demand for provisions. An advance at the yards furnished the immediate incentive. First sales ranged from 5c lower to 10c gain, with September delivery $19.47½ to $19.52½ and July $11.22½ to $11.25 for lard, and $10.77½ to $10.80 for ribs.

DECLINES IN STOCKS

Selling Movement of Big Proportions Occurs in the Afternoon.

All the Leaders Fall Several Points and Close Is Heavy.

New York, May 16. — Price changes at the opening of the stock market today reflected an irregular undertone in a mixture of gain and losses. Advances were limited largely to the specialties, including American Malting, International Harvester, American Hide & Leather preferred, United States Cast Pipe and some other low priced issues. Canadian Pacific made an opening decline of 1¾ points, with some heaviness in Union Pacific, United States Steel, American Can and American Smelting.

Heaviness became more marked in the course of the first hour, especially in the leaders, Union Pacific, Reading, Lehigh Valley, United States Steel and American Smelting all declined a point or more, while yesterday's weakness in American Can and Chicago & Northwestern was renewed.

International Harvester, however, rose 3 points, much of which was promptly lost. The movement in general was uncertain with further signs of profit-taking in the active issues.

The moderate gains of the first hour was followed by more activity toward the close of the morning session but the irregular undertone was unchanged save for some hardening of the copper shares particularly Amalgamated Copper.

This probably had its basis in the big decrease of European stocks of the metal, coupled with some revival of domestic demand at recent high prices. The official figures of this country's foreign trade for April which constituted a record, failed to exert any effect upon the market which was subdued to continued pressure in the potential issues.

Canadian Pacific cancelled its decline of 2 points and gained something in addition, touching 270. Absence of any definite news connected with the convention of the hard coal miners was perhaps the main reason for the heaviness of Lehigh Valley and Reading.

Stranger roads derived little or no benefit from overnight advices of very favorable spring wheat prospects in Minnesota and North and South Dakota. In fact, St. Paul remained unquoted at midday.

Bonds were steady with a sharp rise in Brooklyn Transit convertible 4's.

Early heaviness gave way to weakness in the afternoon, Union Pacific, Reading, Lehigh Valley and United States Steel going off 1 to over 2 points with corresponding declines in other high grade issues. The activity was greatest on the declining scale and strengthened the theory of inside liquidation.

A selling movement of formidable proportions overtook the market in the second hour of the afternoon with the precipitate decline all around. All the leaders fell to a level which left them from 2 to 4 under yesterday's close. Canadian Pacific yielding more than its gain, and the list manifesting acute weakness all around. Rumors of a refusal by the coal miners to agree to the terms outlined by their representatives were partly responsible for the reversal, from which the beginning of the last hour brought but slight relief. The market closed heavy. In the last hour where the selling movement seemed to have exhausted itself Reading recovered 2 points from its extreme decline, American Can 1½ and Lehigh Valley, United States Steel and Amalgamated Copper a point each, while Union Pacific rallied only fractionally.

GRAIN BOATS ARE SCARCE

Owners Seem to Prefer Ore Cargoes at Present Rates.

Delay at the Elevators in Buffalo Harbor the Reason.

With the emptying of local elevators, tonnage for grain from Duluth to Buffalo is becoming scarce.

Yesterday the tempting offer of 1¾c from Duluth to Buffalo, a quarter of a cent above what the rate has been for some time past, failed to bring any response.

The boats loaded with grain are piling up at Buffalo. Yesterday about thirty of them were awaiting their chance to unload. In the neighborhood of 8,000,000 bushels of grain were afloat in Buffalo harbor.

There is still from 3,000,000 to 5,000,000 bushels of grain at the local elevators and this is to be moved at once. Tonnage is needed badly and because of the poor dispatch at Buffalo, vessel owners are steering clear of grain to some extent.

The net freight on 1,000 tons of ore from Duluth would be in the neighborhood of $4,000. The same boat would get about $6,500 freight from a cargo of grain, but the boat would be liable for shortage and the towing bills from one elevator to another and in and out of the different harbors, would count. With the time lost in waiting to unload, the expense and the shortage, if any, the vessel owners seem to prefer ore and this is proven by the many boats which are now arriving light from lower ports for this commodity.

If coal cargoes were plentiful, the season of navigation for 1912 would be in full swing. The first shipments are expected about June 1.

Passenger boats will begin making Duluth on June 1.

KEPT DIARY OF CAROUSALS

Young Woman Committed to Asylum Following Gay Career.

A rather mysterious notebook has been found among the personal effects of Miss Ada Messer, aged 24, who was committed to the state hospital for the insane at Fergus Falls, recently.

The young woman was brought into probate court several days ago, after she had been picked up at the Soo union station. Her memory was gone and all she appeared to know was that she had come from Michigan.

After having been sent to the hospital her mental condition improved. She notified attendants to send to Duluth for her baggage which was held at the Soo station and gave them checks to identify the grips.

Before the luggage was forwarded, the grips were opened and examined under the direction of the probate court which is attempting to definitely establish the girl's identity and to locate her parents.

Among other things was found a note book in which there were notations of the names of a few prominent men. The name in the front of the book which would indicate to whom it belonged was given as Gene Griffeth, Superior, Wis.

Whether the notebook is the property of the young woman in the hospital or not, is a question which is puzzling the authorities who have her case in charge.

The notebook is said to contain a diary of carousals and midnight escapades involving well known men of this city. Just how much credit can be placed in it is purely a matter for conjecture.

BACCHUS CHECKMATES PLANS OF DAN CUPID

Dan Cupid's plot was well planned and probably had it not been for the rude interruption of Bacchus, the wily god of wine, Dan would have "got by" with it. But Bacchus was on the job and blasted the hopes of the little blind god.

And today, wedding bells will not ring as per schedule for one flaxen-haired youth, who yesterday had matrimonial eyes on a motherly mannered maid, who appeared to be at least ten years his senior.

A sad but urgent duty devolved upon F. E. Smith, marriage license dispenser at the courthouse yesterday afternoon. Mr. Smith really hates to be instrumental in withholding from any one the time-honored document which is necessary to launch a matrimonial venture, but yesterday he deemed it a necessity.

To make a long story short, a young man whose name is thought to be Andrew Larson was disappointed by the marriage license clerk when he applied for a license at the clerk of court's office. Andrew wanted to marry Melinda Olson, who came to the courthouse with him.

But Andrew had a bad breath and navigated an uncertain course when he fetched up to the counter for his license. Miss Olson, who was his escort, occasionally had to take him in tow, all of which did not go unobserved by the custodian of the license book.

"Gimme a marriage license, ol'man—hic—I want to marry her," he directed indicating Miss Olson to Mr. Smith. Mr. Smith at first hesitated to have anything to do with Andrew but finally cnanged his plans.

"Just write your name and that of the woman you intend to marry on this piece of paper," he told Andrew.

Now Mr. Larson never took any prizes for penmanship even in his sober senses and he had so much trouble in making the pen follow the outline of his name that it was several minutes before he handed back the paper.

Mr. Smith was unable to figure out the heiroglyphics and was just about to throw away the paper when the would-be bride came to the rescue. She supplied the missing letters in Larson's name and wrote her own name on the slip.

After debating in his mind for a moment, Mr. Smith said that he was sorry but the county was all out of licenses and that it would probably be two or three days before a fresh supply would be in.

"All right ol'man—don't mention it" said Larson as he and the would-be Mrs. Larson walked out of the room. "They never came back" said Mr. Smith discussing the case this morning.

RAILROADS

LONG AND SHORT HAUL LAW HOLDS

Colorado Railroads Are Refused Permission to Increase Local Rates.

Washington, May 16.—The interstate commerce commission has denied the application of the Denver & Rio Grande and the Colorado Midland for permission "to charge higher rates to intermediate points than are contemporaneously in effect to more distant points on their line," the denial applying particularly to all westbound traffic originating at the Missouri river, the Mississippi river, Chicago and similar rate territory.

The commission held that if the long and short haul provision did not apply to the traffic involved in the proceeding, then all of its action in respect to that provision would go for naught.

VISITING OLD FRIENDS.

W. S. Chadwick Returns to Railroad Business After Brief Absence.

W. S. Chadwick, traveling passenger representative of the Great Northern railway, is in the city today. "Chad" is the same old boy as he was in the halcyon days of the G. A. M. B. Y. C. club, of which he was the moving spirit.

For a while he was out of the railroad game, but he couldn't stay away, and now he is back in the business in which he has spent the greater part of his life.

Few railroad men are better known in the Northwest than Mr. Chadwick, and none is better known at the Head of the Lakes. For years he was engaged in the railroad business in Duluth.

Mr. Chadwick comes here on a special business trip. He is lining up some business for the special train trip to the Northwestern Development congress, which will be held in Seattle during June. The Great Northern is sending out a special train and Mr. Chadwick says that there will be a number of representatives from Duluth making the trip.

Railroad Notes.

Thomas J. Randall, traveling passenger agent for the New York Central Railroad company, was in the city today, calling on local railroad men.

"Buck" Stevenson of the Lehigh Valley system was visiting local railroad men today.

A. F. Sullivan, traveling freight agent for the Chicago and Alton, was in Duluth today.

WOMEN'S CLUBS MEET.

Gathering at Bottineau, N. D., to Increase Club Membership.

Bottineau, N. D., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Representatives of forty women's clubs in the northwestern part of the state, who gathered here yesterday for their annual meeting, are expected to take action today which will place their clubs, representing a total membership of about 1,500 to 2,000, in line with the movement for pure foods, better sanitation and in active support of the anti-tuberculosis campaign. Mrs. J. E. Stevens, lecturer of the State Tuberculosis association, reached here last night and she is in charge of the plans relative to those features.

Yesterday afternoon and evening the delegates were Bottineau's guests at receptions.

VICTIMS OF THE TITANIC STARVED

Theory of Death of Those Found in Boat Advanced By Physician.

New York, May 16.—Death from starvation, thirst and exposure was the end of the three men from the steamer Titanic whose bodies were in a collapsible boat picked up last Monday by the steamer Oceanic, in the opinion of Dr. R. S. French of the Oceanic medical staff. One of the corpses was believed to be that of Thompson Beattie, a passenger; the others probably were members of the Titanic's crew. The Oceanic docked here today.

Dr. French's opinion is based on the finding of small bits of cork in the mouths of the dead men, which he believes they chewed to allay the pangs of hunger. News of the finding of these bodies was reported briefly by wireless last night.

Mme. Marcelle Navritil of Nice, France, arrived on the Oceanic to claim her two children, Michola and Edmund, who were rescued from the Titanic, while their father perished. The widow was met at the pier by her cousin, Miss Rose Brunc of Elkins Park, Md., and Miss Margaret Hays of this city, who for weeks cared for the little survivors.

WARNED TO KEEP PEACE ON MEXICAN BORDER.

Washington, May 16.—Commanders of troops along the border today were instructed by the war department to exercise diligence to prevent American troops situated directly adjoining the border line from precipitating friction with the Mexican troops, either rebels or federals.

This is the result of the recent reports of soldiers being fired upon from the Mexican side and hoisting their hats on their rifles to attract Mexican fire.

STATE SUPREME COURT HOLDS ELWELL LAW CONSTITUTIONAL

WILL GIVE IMPETUS TO ROAD BUILDING

IMPORTANT DECISION

St. Louis County Already Has Three Petitions on File.

Half Cost of Trunk Highways Borne By the State.

The supreme court of Minnesota today held that the Elwell good roads law is constitutional.

The decision means that the good roads committee of the Northern Minnesota Development association and the counties interested will be able to go ahead with their plans for a trunk road system in the northern part of the state. The application of the Elwell law to road building was halted by the suit testing the constitutionality of the law.

The petitions for the Duluth and Moorhead, the Duluth and Twin Cities, and the Duluth and St. Vincent roads are already on file with the state highway commission. The petitions for other roads in the plans of the development association committee are now being formulated.

C. M. King, president of the association and chairman of the good roads committee, said on a recent visit to Duluth that a favorable decision from

BOYS SMOTHER IN BOX OF FEED

Missing Lads Who Disappeared April 29 Found By Father.

Cincinnati, Ohio, May 17.—The country-wide search for Robert and Urban Nichols, brothers, aged respectively 6 and 4 years, who mysteriously disappeared April 29, ended when their bodies were found in a stable near their home here today.

The bodies were found in the stable of which their father was in charge. It is believed the boys were playing around the stable, fell into the feed box, head first, and sinking into the feed, perished. Their bodies were found by their father.

There had been wild rumors that the children had been kidnaped and detectives ran down clews which led to different cities.

RICHESON IS NOT YET TOLD

Slayer of Avis Linnell Ignorant of Failure of Petitions.

Declared Sane, He Must Die Next Week—Story of His Crime.

Boston, Mass., May 17.—Clarence V. T. Richeson, the slayer of Avis Linnell, slept quietly in his cell in the death house at Charleston state prison last night, ignorant that the governor had refused commutation of his sentence.

The announcement of the decision of the alienists that he was sane and that the governor would not urge clemency was left to be made to the prisoner today. It was expected that the task would fall on either the condemned man's counsel, William A. Morse, the prison chaplain, Rev. Herbert W. Stebbins, or his spiritual adviser, Rev. Herbert S. Johnson.

Up to 2 o'clock this afternoon the former minister had not been told of his doom.

The execution of Richeson probably will take place early next week. There is a sentiment against a Monday morning execution as occurring so close after Sunday, which has been recognized by the warden of the prison. An exception may be made owing to the highly nervous state of the condemned, and it is not improbable that Richeson may go to the chair Monday morning.

The time within the week of May 19 is entirely at the warden's discretion and only the legal witnesses will know beforehand at what time the sentence of the law will be carried out.

NO BISHOP ON SECOND VOTE

Methodists Have Chosen Only Dr. Stuntz Thus Far.

Shifting of Church Officers Raises New "Political" Questions.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—No election resulted from the second ballot of the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church on bishops, the result of which was announced today. D. G. Downey of New York was first with 383; W. O. Shepard, Chicago, second with 378; and M. S. Hughes of Pasadena, Cal., third with 369. Necessary to elect, 527.

With the election on the first ballot of Homer C. Stuntz of New York, secretary of the foreign mission board, as a bishop, and with four of the others who received more than 200 votes in the first ballot yesterday holding church offices, general conference "politics" has been given an impetus in another direction. Dr. Stuntz received 577 votes. The other members among the eight highest yesterday who hold positions which it is in the power of the conference to fill, or who have places which it is considered an honor to attain, and their respective votes on the ballots are:

WOMAN SLAIN FOR HER GEMS

Murder Victim in Los Angeles Is Identified By Her Hat.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 17.—Murdered for her diamonds and jewelry is the theory of the police in the case of an unidentified woman found in a bungalow on Arlington street a week ago, and who, the police declared today, was either Mrs. C. Dillon or Miss Constance McCoy of Chicago.

The woman and a man arrived here some time ago and registered as Mr. and Mrs. C. Dillon, Chicago. The woman then wore several diamonds and had considerable other jewelry. None of these valuables were on the body.

A post card has been found near the Arlington street bungalow addressed to Miss Constance McCoy and signed "I. J. Denelon." It was postmarked Chicago, but the date was not clear.

Mrs. Wright Baldwin, a milliner, recognized a picture of the dead woman's hat as one she had sold three weeks ago. It had been delivered to a couple known as Mr. and Mrs. Dillon of Chicago. Published descriptions of the victim fitted the woman. The couple disappeared May 7, two days before the body of the woman was found in the vacant house. Detectives will open the vault where the body was placed in order to attempt identification.

LAST OBSTACLE TO ADOPTION OF COMMISSION PLAN REMOVED

FINAL PLAY BY GOVERNOR IN EXTRA SESSION CALL

GROWTH OF MOVEMENT

Six States From Which Women Might Be Sent to Congress.

Massachusetts Recount Shows 17,000 Taft Ballots Were Thrown Out.

(By Willis J. Abbot.)

Washington, May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—In view of the primaries in California, where women voted equally with men, the growing strength of the suffragist movement in the Western states is well worth consideration.

What woman, "in her hour of ease, uncertain, coy and hard to please," will do in either a primary or a final election no mere man may hope to guess in advance. Only a few days ago some 10,000 women with one or two hundred male sympathizers marched down Fifth avenue, New York, in a parade that impressed all beholders. From Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont down to the humblest cigar shop worker, they

SUBSTITUTE SUGAR BILL IS REPORTED

Senate Committee Opposes Excise Measure Passed By House.

Washington, May 17.—The senate finance committee today authorized a favorable report on the Lodge substitute for the house free sugar bill, and an unfavorable report on the so-called house excise income tax bill, which proposed a tax on incomes in excess of $5,000 a year. The Lodge sugar bill would eliminate the differential and duties standard from the tariff and leave the duties otherwise practically as at present.

SMOKED OUT, SAYS LYNCH

Democratic Leader Comments on Call for Extra Session.

Declares Raising of the Gross Earnings Tax Must Be Considered.

Brainerd, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—"Unless Governor Eberhart includes in his call for an extra session a consideration of the gross earnings tax, the session will not accomplish all it should for Minnesota. This state has the highest passenger and freight rates in the United States, and something should be done to bring the rates to the level of Iowa, North Dakota and Wisconsin. Eberhart, I guess, must have been smoked out, or he would never have called a special session."

This emphatic statement was made today by Fred B. Lynch of St. Paul, Democratic national committeeman for Minnesota, while on his way to his summer home at Gull lake near Brainerd.

Mr. Lynch further said that the gross earnings tax would be taken up by the Democratic members of the legislature.

AAD QUARTETTE IN VAUDEVILLE

Duluth Shrine Singers Make Hit in Theater at Seattle, Wash.

Seattle, Wash., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Aad Temple quartet of the Duluth temple of Nobles of the Mystic Shrine made a decided hit with their singing at the Orpheum theater here last night. The evening's entertainment was designated as a "Shrine night" in honor of the visiting Shriners, and some of the visitors were asked to take part in the program. The Duluth boys gave several numbers and won hearty applause.

Eberhart Machine Hopes to Avert Defeat That Is Impending.

E. T. Young and R. C. Dunn May Enter Fight for Governorship.

Delegates Look Upon Call as Victory for The Duluth Herald.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Governor Eberhart will call an extra session of the legislature to meet in St. Paul, June 4.

In the call, which will be issued in a few days, the governor will name a state-wide primary to apply to all state offices, a corrupt practices act and reapportionment, as the matters to be taken up.

The announcement by the governor came on the heels of the action by the state convention yesterday in instructing the state central committee to provide means for a direct vote on the candidates for governor. The enthusiasm with which that section of the resolutions was received in the convention indicated the temper of the delegates, and undoubtedly brought about the governor's announcement.

The calling of the extra session descended with the suddenness of lightning on the delegates gathered in Minneapolis. They gasped, and then began to figure. The state central committee, althought not directly responsible to the state convention held yesterday, cannot afford to disregard a mandate of the party expressed in such unmistakable terms as that adopted yesterday. There was certain to be a primary on governor, anyway. The anti-Eberhart sentiment among the convention delegates was most disturbing to the Eberhart supporters, to the governor and to Ed Smith. There must have been hurried work done at

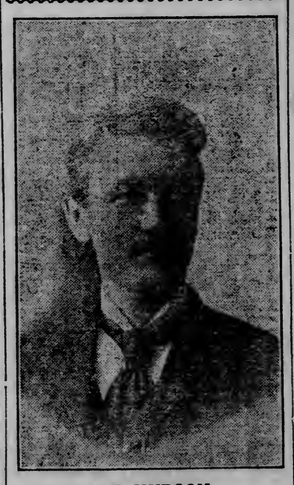
LEGALITY IS UPHELD BY SUPREME COURT

HEAD OF DULUTH CHARTER COMMISSION



T. T. HUDSON.

DULUTH IS READY FOR IT

Members of the Charter Commission Are in Favor of Change.

Meeting Will Be Called in Near Future to Discuss Situation.

The last obstacle to the adoption of the commission form of government in Duluth has been removed.

The state supreme court today held that commission form for Minnesota cities is perfectly legal and that there is no clause in the state Constitution which prevents in any manner the institution of the commission plan, for which The Herald instituted a campaign several years ago. This campaign has been vigorously followed up since that time.

The opinion was handed down in the case wherein the validity of the commission plan of government for Mankato had been attacked.

The general belief is that with clear sailing ahead Duluth will proceed to adopt the new plan of government, which has proved itself such an unqualified success in other municipalities of the United States. The matter has been thoroughly discussed in the city, both by officials and the public, and the sentiment has been found to thoroughly support the change.

That the people are strongly in favor of the more advanced progressive lines which are being taken up by other cities is shown by the overwhelming vote which was cast in favor of the initiative, referendum and recall at the special election which was held May 7 last, little more than a week ago. The amendment was carried by a vote of 4 to 1. At the last general city election the people carried the amendments which spread the payment of assessments for street improvements over a period of three years, allow the park board to give band concerts and extend the limit

Dooms Hillsville Clansman to Die in Electric Chair.

Verdict Is Reached After All Night Deliberation and Reinstruction.

Wytheville, Va., May 17.—Floyd Allen, first of the Hillsville mountaineers tried for the Carroll county courthouse murders, was adjudged guilty here today and will pay the penalty of his crime in the electric chair at Richmond. The jury was out all night and it was not until after 10 o'clock this morning that the twelve men reached an agreement.

When court opened today the jury was called in and the foreman questioned by Judge Staples. The jurors declared there were a number of points of difference existing in the panel and it was doubtful whether a verdict could be reached.

Jury Cautioned by Judge.

Judge Staples declared the case was one of such magnitude he felt he must send the jury back with a few words of caution and advice. He said that when a number of men were thrown together in intimate isolation for a long period of time with all their thoughts and attention centered upon one matter, it was but natural there

Settlers From Iowa Are Buying Farms Near Grand Rapids.

L. M. Bolter, a prominent business man of Grand Rapids, Minn., and president of a chain of banks in Itasca county, was at the Spalding today on his return from Minneapolis, where he has been making arrangements for a university extension course to be held in Grand Rapids next month.

Mr. Bolter talked enthusiastically over the business prospects of Itasca county. He said business was generally improving through the county and the bank deposits were showing a healthy increase. He said that county was this year receiving more attention from settlers than it ever did before. He stated that last week fifteen settlers from Iowa took farms near Warba and that one land owner at Goodlands had recently sold 5,000 acres of land to various farmers, who intended to settle there this year.

WANTS BOARD ON WISCONSIN LANDS

Madison, Wis., May 17.—That the adoption of a new state land policy, by which the 8,000,000 to 10,000,000 acres lying idle in Wisconsin could be developed and made productive would be the greatest agency to develop Northern Wisconsin, is urged by Dr. Charles McCarthy, chief of the legislative reference library, in a statement today. For the last three months an independent investigation of the land problem has been prosecuted by the state board of public affairs. Dr. McCarthy, who is in close touch with the inquiry, believes that an administrative land board should be created by the next legislature to supervise contracts between settlers and the land agents.

BIG MEETING AT SEATTLE

Northwest Development Congress Will Be Held June 5 to 8.

J. H. Dight Wants Duluth to Send Party in Special Car.

John H. Dight, cashier of the First National Bank of Duluth, and one of the vice presidents of the Northwestern Development league, today expressed the earnest hope that Duluth business men will send a large delegation to the annual meeting of the league, which will be held at Seattle, June 5, 6, 7 and 8.

"I should like to see the Commercial club, the jobbers and business men of the city in general take an active interest in this meeting, the Northwestern Development congress," remarked Mr. Dight today. "The work of the league means a great deal to the future of Duluth, and I for one intend to go. I hope there are many who feel about it just as I do. Last year the Commercial club put forth some good efforts, and the result was that Duluth had a delegation that required a special car. The convention was held at Helena, and twenty-five leading citizens of Duluth were there. If we get eighteen this year, I think that will be enough to secure a special car from the Great Northern. An agent of the Great Northern is in the city now, working up the project. This special car could be run from Duluth to Grand Forks, and there be attached to the special Great Northern train from the Twin Cities."

The Great Northern railway will run a special, making stops at Grand Forks, Devils Lake, Minot, Williston, Havre, Great Falls and other important points, and returning by the way of the Northern Pacific and Helena, giving jobbers an opportunity to visit their customers at many of the principal cities. It has also been arranged to run the train down to Portland for a day, June 10, at the Rose festival.

The scope of the work in hand reaches from the tip of Lake Superior to Puget sound, and there are visible results in this section from the wide dissemination of facts about Northern Minnesota.

The conducting of the land show is not the only work done by the league. Under its incentive the governors' special train visited the Central and Eastern states early last winter, spreading the story of the attractions of the northern tier of states. There has been no let up in the work, and by the business men giving hearty support to the idea of united action, the league's influence can be heightened and widened.

The territory served by the association is that from which Duluth derives a large part of its business, and the greater the development of these states, the greater will be the growth of Duluth.

TOURISTS TO BE NUMEROUS

Duluth Hotels Are Receiving Reservations From Eastern People.

That Duluth is going to have one of the best tourist seasons that has ever been known at the Head of the Lakes, is the opinion of the various hotel men of this city. Early reservations for rooms are already being made by Eastern people.

E. H. Lee of the Spalding stated today that a large number of reservations have already been made for rooms at the Spalding during July and August. These are the two months in which the largest part of the travel comes.

The St. Louis hotel is receiving reservations. J. A. Hickey, manager of th ehotel, is expected back from the East within a day or two, and it is stated that he has been assured of a large tourist travel to Duluth. Reservations for several large parties of tourists nave been made at the St. Louis.

Manager Michaud of the Holland stated that the prospects were bright for the biggest tourist season that Duluth has known for a long time. Like the other hotels, the Holland has also received a number of reservations.

Hotel men say that the anxiety of the tourists to be sure of rooms is the best indication that there will be heavy lake travel the present season.

Inquiry at the steamship offices bore out the opinion of the hotel men. Steamship passenger men say that there is every prospect for a very heavy tourist travel this season.

There are several large conventions in the West this year, which will increase the travel by Duluth via the lake route. It is also stated that special inducements are being made for Western travel this season by the various railroads, and that Duluth will receive the benefit of this, as many people will come this way by the lake route, taking the train at this point.

RETURNS FROM SOUTH.

A. L. Ordean, president of the First National bank, accompanied by Mrs. Ordean returned yesterday from a three months' tour through the South. They visited points in Florida, Georgia and Alabama.

Mr. Ordean declined to discuss the political situation, this morning. "I don't want to get involved in any political discussion," he said, "but Mr. Roosevelt is certainly throwing the country into a turmoil. Business conditions seemed very good in the cities I visited."

Vienna, May 17.—Emperor Francis Joseph today received in audience the Panama Pacific exposition commission, headed by John Hays Hammond. The emperor greeted the members of the commission cordially.

WHAT OTHER CITIES ARE DOING

ANTICIPATING that travel by aircraft will become universal, Gen. T. Coleman du Pont, of Wilmington, Del., well known in Johnstown, has announced he will install large compass dials along the route of the boulevard that he is arranging to build through Delaware at a cost of more than $2,000,000 and present them to the state. The dials will be of such dimensions that they can be read by aviators from a height of 1,500 feet at least. This suggestion was first made by the War department to the general. In addition, the donor is communicating with the Belgian government to get data for building aviation landing places. The compass dials will be placed on structures twenty-five feet above the ground. The boulevard will be 103 miles in length.

The proposition is anticipating progress at a faster rate than is probable in Duluth for some time to come. The city has a range of hills which would make excellent sites for such compass dials, or for aeroplane landings, and it is not likely that any one would offer the slightest objection to their erection provided some citizen footed the bills. The state or the city would also be quite willing to accept them if the donor would guarantee that they would not necessitate any expense. No one here expects that any will be built here for a year or two, anyhow.

GATES BUYS MEMBERSHIP IN MINNEAPOLIS BOARD.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 17.—Charles G. Gates, the multi-millionaire who recently purchased a site for a $100,000 home here, has become a member of the Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Gates paid $3,600 for a membership and it is believed that he intends to deal heavily in the local grain market. It was also announced that Mr. Gates intended to make his home in Minneapolis for several months each year.

MINNESOTA FOR WILSON

Manager of New Jersey Governor's Campaign Confident of Success.

W. H. Williams and George Fred Williams Differ With Him.

E. A. Purdy, secretary of the Woodrow Wilson Club of Minneapolis and manager of the Wilson campaign in Minnesota, believes that all Minnesota districts, except the Fourth and Fifth, are safe for Wilson.

In the Fourth district, the Lawler-O'Connor faction, which was for Harmon but is now for Clark, appears to have the upper hand, while the Fifth district primaries May 27 will furnish a contest, the outcome of which cannot be safely predicted.

Mr. Purdy said yesterday at Minneapolis that, so far as he could judge from his reports, Clark will not be a factor, except in the Fourth and Fifth districts. In the Third district some of the old leaders are with Clark, but there is also a militant faction of young Democrats, who are expected to control the district.

In the First district, such men as H. L. Buck of Winona, James Carley of Wabasha and Senator T. E. Cashman of Owatonna are for Wilson and are working hard. Little Clark sentiment has appeared in the Second district thus far. In the Seventh district, J. R. Keefe of North Redwood, A. Anderson of Madison, T. O'Connor of Renville and J. M. Freeman and J. R. Landy of Olivia are among the Wilson leaders who have influence.

The Sixth, Eighth and Ninth districts are regarded as safe for Wilson by Mr. Purdy.

William H. Williams, manager of Champ Clark's campaign in the state, takes a different view. Without specifying as to the basis of his claim, he declared yesterday: "We have as good as won in every district except the Eighth, and we'll get that."

G. F. Williams Arrives.

George Fred Williams of Massachusetts opened his speaking campaign in Minnesota with an address at Minneapolis last night. Tonight, he will be at Red Wing, and tomorrow night, he will speak at Winona. He will make four speeches next week, as follows: Monday, Austin; Tuesday, Albert Lea; Wednesday, Owatonna, and Thursday, Mankato. Mr. Williams will then go to South Dakota for a campaign, which will keep him in the West until June 6.

The Massachusetts man is a Clark enthusiast, and his predictions are roseate for the speaker's candidacy. He declared yesterday that as soon as the favorite son votes have been cast, Clark's real strength will be made evident and the ultimate nomination of the speaker is certain. He said that Bryan assured him personally that he would not seek the nomination, nor accept it, and if Bryan remains out of the race, Clark has the best chance, in Mr. Williams opinion.

Towne May Not Come.

W. H. Williams said that Charles A. Towne, formerly of Duluth, will come to Minnesota and open his campaign for Clark in Duluth on the evening of May 20. Mr. Towne, if he comes to the state, will remain about a week, traveling through the Eighth and Sixth districts and closing with a speech at St. Paul. It is understood that some of Mr. Towne's friends have attempted to head off his campaign for a cause to which his old district is hostile and that he may not come to Minnesota.

The St. Louis county Democratic primaries will be held Saturday, May 25. The Hennepin county primaries will come on May 27, and other primaries throughout the state will be held between May 24 and May 27. The county conventions will be held May 29 and the state convention will meet here June 6.

Much Clark Money.

E. A. Purdy, in talking at Minneapolis yesterday, charged that the Clark people are spending money with a generous hand in order to bring about Clark's nomination, but the Wilson sentiment is so strong in the rank and file of the party that the New Jersey governor should be nominated. He said:

"The grand victory of Governor Wilson in Texas has proven an inspiration and the New York headquarters received cable advices to the effect that Porto Rico had instructed her six delegates for Governor Wilson.

"Wheeling and Ohio counties in West Virginia went overwhelmingly for Wilson last week notwithstanding the open opposition of United States Senators Chilton and Watson.

"Reports we are receiving from Michigan are of an encouraging character as well as from other sections of the country. We have not been at all discouraged by the results of the recent primaries and the losses have been more apparent than real. In Illinois, the Clark people had been working and organizing and spending a great deal of money for several months. We are told they had seventy people in the state for a period of seven weeks. In Massachusetts and Maryland the same thing is true.

"The friends of Governor Wilson have simply not had sufficient money to meet legitimate and necessary expenses while the opposition seems to have boundless money and we are told by responsible parties that the Underwood people spent $100,000 in Georgia and large amounts in Florida. There will be, however, enough instructed delegates, Wilson first and second choice delegates, to nominate him in the convention. I certainly believe the sanity of the party will be sufficiently demonstrated at Baltimore by selecting a man who can win and in my judgment that man is Woodrow Wilson."

CONTESTS IN TWO SOUTHERN STATES

Texas and North Carolina District Republicans Are Split.

Dallas, Tex., May 17.—Contesting delegates to the national Republican convention were named in two congressional districts yesterday, and in two other districts the delegates were instructed for Roosevelt. Separate conventions were held by the supporters of Taft and Roosevelt in the Eighth and Fourth districts.

In the Eighth district, at Houston, C. A. Warnken and Spencer Graves were chosen as delegates by the Taft following and W. A. Mathews and E. M. Adkinson, were named by the adherents of Roosevelt.

At Burnett, in the Fourteenth district, the Roosevelt convention elected G. N. Harrison and Robert Penninger delegates to Chicago. The supporters of President Taft, at a separate meeting named a delegation instructed for the president.

The Twelfth and Sixteenth district conventions instructed for Roosevelt. In the former, held at Fort Worth, C. C. Littleton and Eugene Greene were elected delegates.

The Sixteenth district convention at Sweetwater named L. S. McDowell and U. S. Stewart delegates.

Two Seats Selected.

Raleigh, N. C., May 17.—Two sets of delegates were elected to the Republican national convention in contesting conventions of the Third district held in Goldsboro. The regularly called convention elected Marion Butler and W. S. O'B. Robinson as delegates, instructed for Roosevelt.

An unseated delegation from Carteret county, with additions from other counties, held a convention and elected John I. Mazengo and A. L. Wilson, uninstructed, but understood to be for Taft.

How Wrinkles Are Actually Rubbed Out

Woman's curiosity discovered that wrinkles and "crow's feet" can be erased with ordinary Chinese ice-pencils and a delightful smoothness and clearness given the skin. To use, rub the ice-pencil the long way of the wrinkle, then gently massage. This gradually erases wrinkles, because the fatty tissues on each side of the furrows are soon absorbed, while the tissues under the creases are given life and energy.

Because of their slight astringency, Chinese ice-pencils are used to tighten flabby muscles and remove "chops." To contract the muscles, rub plenty of the Chinese ice on the skin, then massage from point of chin to ears. It is surprising how quickly Chinese ice-pencils correct skin defects, as well as give a rich tint and embellishment to the complexion. You can buy a Chinese ice-pencil at any drug store for a small sum, and using one quickly demonstrates its worth.

GIFT FROM RAILROAD

Northern Pacific Will Donate Riparian Rights on Lake Shore.

Park Will Ultimately Be Established on Made Ground.

The Northern Pacific railway had practically agreed to donate to the city all its riparian rights along the lake shore from Second avenue east to Ninth avenue east. This announcement was made yesterday afternoon at a special meeting of the park board at the city hall.

This will mean much to the city in the efforts which have been made to acquire a lake shore park. The plan is to fill in along the shore line for a considerable distance out into the lake, inside the lines of navigation, eventually providing about 90 acres of made ground. The city now has riparian rights along what is known as Cullum park, terminating a short distance east of Fourteenth avenue east.

The whole will be turned into a large dumping ground for dirt and stone from excavations and other materials. The water over most of the ground is said to be comparatively shallow and it is believed that much of the fill can be made in a few years.

The railroad will reserve a strip about 200 feet wide for its own use, giving it a right-of-way of approximately 300 feet.

The sentiment of the board appears to be that the cost of acquiring the riparian rights along the east shore of St. Croix avenue from the canal to the railroad would be too expensive to attempt. The property is very valuable and the indications are that eventually the strip of water between the park property and the east shore of St. Croix avenue will become a small harbor.

Central Breathing Spot.

The establishment of this park will be one of the biggest things which the city has accomplished in its history. It can be made a breathing spot of much beauty. It will be accessible to thousands of people in the central part of the city and will add much to the attractiveness of the view to people on incoming and outgoing boats.

A few years ago a proposal was made that the government build a breakwater out into the lake opposite the foot of Sixteenth avenue east to protect the inner harbor. It was abandoned because of the expense. But hopes of its completion are still entertained and when this is done the fill of the lake shore park could be extended to it, adding many times to the park area.

The board has also determined to secure by condemnation a park at Oneota, near the Jerome Merritt school. The proposed site contains about an average city block, traversed by a small ravine and creek and dotted with natural shade trees. It is one of the prettiest spots in the city. The district is building up rapidly and such a park would be made use of by hundreds of people.

the court would cause the road work to go along with new impetus and that a great amount of work would be done this year.

The action on which the supreme court's decision was given was brought by F. H. Murray, mayor of White Bear, who questioned the constitutionality of the act which was passed at the last session of the legislature.

Court's Decision.

The supreme court's decision upholds the constitutionality of the law without qualification. An old law in this state gave municipalities the right to levy and collect assessments for local improvements upon property benefitted. The court holds that counties are municipal corporations within the meaning of the constitutional provision and adds:

"There is no difficulty in extending this rule to the present case."

Under the Elwell law, roads may be laid out by counties acting jointly and, if the petitions are approved by the state highway commission and road-building standards set by the commission are adhered to, the state will pay one-half of the cost of the roads, the county one-fourth, and one-fourth may be assessed against the property benefitted or may be paid by any organization or municipality. The law also allows anticipation of state aid for ten years, and the plans of the development association contemplate taking advantage of that provision of the law.

Values Increased.

"The land of the farmer who is given a good road to market where before he had a poor one," the court holds, "certainly is enhanced by the improvement. So is the land of every other owner who is thus given easy access to the cities or towns where he sells his produce and makes his purchases. The general public receives a benefit wholly different in character. The benefit to the motorist of the cities in having good roads for his pleasure runs is an example of the general benefit. Lands not in the territory reached by the highway, and whose owners cannot use it, receive no special benefit.

"The law in question does not attempt to say what lands are benefited, but leaves the determination of the district as well as the distribution of the assessment to the viewers, and ultimately to the courts. It is right that lands tributary to the highway should pay a part of the cost thereof, over and above what the public pays, for they receive a benefit over and above what the public receives. The principles applied to the spreading of assessments, parks, for paving cities, for laying sidewalks, would be entirely erroneous if applied to fixing the district or spreading the assessment for rural highways. But this is a question that does not concern the validity of the law, but rather the validity of the action that the viewers and the board of county commissioners may take into the matter. If they proceed upon an erroneous principle or make a demonstrable mistake of fact, there is a remedy by appeal.

The Prosperous Farmer.

"The farmer now has his automobile, his traction engine, and his telephone. He has all the facilities for reaching the best markets at the right time except the good roads. We think it can fairly be said that the establishment and maintenance of rural highways that give the owner of land easy and convenient access to his markets enhance the value of his land, and constitute a special benefit different in character from the public or general benefit. It is true that at no time have farm lands been assessed for roads except that, in assessing damages, benefits to the land have been deducted from the amount awarded to the land. This is a recognition of the fact that a highway may be a special benefit to land outside of the cities and villages. It would seem that if there are local benefits that can be set off against damages awarded to the landowner, by the establishment of a highway, the same local benefits are sufficient to warrant an assessment. The weight of authority today seems to be the effect that a highway may be a local improvement, and that an assessment of land specifiy benefited may be sustained."

LEAVES EASEL FOR CELL.

Artist Is Arrested at Work, on Safeblowing Charge.

Chicago, May 17.—Green fields and lilac scented dales called Joseph Pulaski, an artist, to the open country near Auburn Junction, Ind., yesterday. Carefully he erected his easel and stretched his canvas.

"Sweet spring is come," he hummed, as with a long, sweeping stroke he began to lay out a green background.

"And I have come, too," said a coarse voice behind the light-hearted painter; "come to arrest you on a charge of blowing a safe belonging to the F. G. Smith company on May 6."

It was a Chicago policeman speaking. He snapped a pair of handcuffs on the painter and a few hours later the artist was held under bond of $3,500 for a hearing on May 24.

"It is an outrage," Pulaski declared. "I paint for a living."

He formerly worked for the piano company. Police say they obtained their information regarding his alleged crime from safe blowers, who aver they know him.

the state capitol yesterday, in order to catch the delegates with the extra session announcement, before they left Minneapolis.

The Governor's Announcement

The announcement appeared in an extra edition of one of the Minneapolis papers last evening and was the sole subject of discussion around the hotel lobbies. It was generally regarded as a final play on the part of the governor, in the hope of gaining some personal favor. The situation reflected by the convention delegates is such as to give basis to the conjecture that the extra session call is a drowning man's grasp at a straw. The governor's announcement follows:

"With reference to the resolution adopted by the Republican state convention favoring a state wide direct primary, I have always favored the direct primary and believe that this method is the only way in which the people are enabled to express their real preference, and I believe that conditions in this state warrant me in calling an extra session of the legislature for the purpose of enacting a state wide direct primary law for the nomination of all officials, a stringent and effective corrupt practice law and a reapportionment law.

"The constitution does not enable me to prescribe what other legislation shall be considered by the legislature, but I have confidence in the wisdom of that body, and do not believe that it will take up any matters not in the public interest.

"I shall therefore call the legislature to meet in extra session on June 4 next. This will give the legislature ample time to pass a primary law before the date fixed for the state convention. If necessary the state central committee can meet and rescind the call for the convention so as to leave the legislature unembarrassed. So far as my candidacy for governor is concerned I will be glad to submit it to the direct action of the people."

The reasons behind the governor's action are not far under the surface. Anti-Eberhart sentiment is general, but Ed Smith's organization, though somewhat crippled by its defeat in the presidential contest, is not out of the running. Eberhart consequently has some support in the different counties, through the organization, and the funds to finance a campaign under the direct primary will be readily forthcoming, it is presumed.

Victory for The Herald.

Many of the delegates in Minneapolis last evening regarded the call of the extra session as a victory for The Duluth Herald, which first started the movement for an extra session last year. In discussing the extra session call, the delegates said that the sentiment created by The Herald during its campaign of the last year undoubtedly had much to do with the governor's move.

The field is split. Gordon seems to have the upper hand, but Lee has a certain amount of strength in the districts in which the county option men are influential. Spooner is not much of a factor, but some people believe he will get some support as against Gordon in the Seventh district. The suggestion that E. T. Young be a candidate is seriously offered by certain Ramsey county Progressives and is being considered by Mr. Young. Common talk is that Fred B. Snyder of Minneapolis will announce his candidacy as soon as he returns from Europe. He has sailed for home and is expected in Minneapolis soon.

A new development yesterday was the talk that R. C. Dunn of Princeton is considering again becoming a candidate. Mr. Dunn was not a delegate to the state convention, but he was very busy around the lobby of the West hotel. He denied that he is to become a candidate for governor, but men close to him say that he has privately admitted that he is considering the matter.

The governor and his advisors undoubtedly figure that in a split field, with a state-wide primary, the Progressives would kill each other off and allow Mr. Eberhart to slip through. The primary on governor was certain to be held after the state convention's action, and the calling of the special session is intended to provide safeguards, and also to give the impression that the governor has just learned there is a sentiment for the extra session and is willing to give the people what they want.

Call Comes Too Late.

The demand for an extra session is not more insistent now than it was six or eight or ten months ago, and the impression prevailed among the delegates in Minneapolis last evening that the call comes too late to aid the governor in his campaign.

The governor's figuring on his chances in a divided field under a direct primary may be upset by the terms of the primary bill which the legislature will adopt. Henry Rines of Mora, one of the representatives in attendance at the state convention, said last night that he is in favor of a bill which will give an opportunity for the voters to express first and second choice. He would have a requirement that a candidate shall have 40 per cent of the total vote as first choice in order to gain the nomination, and if no candidate receives 40 per cent of the vote as first choice, the total of the first and second choice votes will govern. The man having the greatest total of first and second choice votes would be declared the nominee.

Mr. Rines said that he is certain a bill with such provisions would receive ready support in the legislature and that any bill which passes will have such provisions.

May Be Other Legislation.

The legislation which will be considered at the extra session cannot be confined to the matters on which the governor bases his call. The distance tariff bill and the county option bill may be expected to make their appearance. It is understood that a civil service act for state departments also will be produced, and of course a bill increasing railroad taxes.

Charges of extravagance in the state departments are expected to result in a resolution providing for an investigation of certain departments. There was talk of that among some of the delegates at Minneapolis last night. An investigation might stir up some unpleasantness, but the people interested in it believe that it is necessary.

The state capitol was almost deserted yesterday. Only the clerks absolutely necessary to conduct the business of the state were in the offices. The heads of departments and the first deputies with political influence were at the Minneapolis armory, mixing with the delegates. There was little consolation for the governor's friends in the attitude of the great majority of the delegates.

Sam Y. Gordon's Duluth headquarters will be opened May 20, with Cleon T. Knapp of Chisholm in charge. Mr. county will probably go to St. Louis county to make speeches later in the campaign.

William E. Lee is undecided whether to go to St. Louis county again. He knows there it little positive sentiment for him in that county and he may confine himself to districts in which he believes he has a better chance.

L. C. Spooner says that he will probably go to Stf. Louis county later in the campaign.

GEORGE McCARTHY.

ADMITS 'ROLLING' WOODSMAN

Marinette County Woman Gets Three Years for Robbery.

Marinette, Wis., May 17.—Mrs. Kate Gendron of Wausaukee was found guilty of "rolling a woodsman" for $50 and was given three years in Waupun by Circuit Judge Quinlan. After her sentence she made a confession in which she admitted getting $20 of the $50, but claimed the actual robbery was committed by another woman.

She then created a sensation by implicating a man named Louis Beach of Milwaukee. Beach was arrested and bound over.

Prominent Doctors Use and Prescribe

the great tonic stimulant and body builder which aids digestion, enables one to get all the nourishment from the food eaten, quickens circulation and promotes longevity.

The statements following are a few of the many thousands received from leading Doctors in all parts of the country extolling the virtues of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey.

A Very Valuable Medicine.

"Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is a very important and valuable medicine. In cases of faulty metabolism—that is, a change in the condition of the cells, constructive and destructive—of the intestinal canal, a loss of the vital forces and impairment of the digestive function—I have met with the most brilliant success and satisfactory results with the administration of the 'Duffy Remedy.'" Andrew Jas. Park, M. D., 520 East 50th St., Chicago, Ill.

"I Use It Myself."

"Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is well known to me, and often prescribed by me. In fact, I use it myself and in my family, as occasion needs."—Dr. D. T. McPhail, 616 Madison Ave., New York City.

In Pneumonia and Typhoid.

"In pneumonia and typhoid fever, when the heart begins to show the strain to which it is submitted, Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey gives the most satisfactory results; debilitated conditions, convalescence—in fact, wherever tonic stimulation is called for, this medicinal whiskey is attended with best results." A. P. Dellett, M. D., 462 East 158th St., New York City.

Absolutely Pure.

"I have tested Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, chemically and clinically, and I am prepared to stand by it. As a medicinal agent it is alone in the market. The purity of your product is assured and can be absolutely depended on." Dr. J. H. Littlejohn, Dunham Medical College, Chicago, Ill.

Consumption and Stomach Troubles.

"Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey has stood the test of years. It was used in my father's family twenty years with great success, and now, during my practice of 12 years, I have used it and will always continue to use it. Its value is indicated in tuberculosis and as a stomachic.

"I do not hesitate to give you a statement of facts in regard to its usefulness in malnutrition, weakness and exhaustion from long continued fevers." Horace B. Coblentz, M. D. 649 Florida Ave., N. W., Washington, D. C.

Prescribed It 20 Years.

"I have prescribed Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey for the sick and old for over twenty years, always with satisfactory results. I believe it is the purest and best on the market." George H. Stoppey, M. D., Fort Valley, Ga.

VEGETABLES STILL LOWER

Strawberries More Plentiful and the Price Is Cut in Two.

Old Potatoes Go Higher—Butter Cheaper—Price of Beef Strong.

Spring vegetables and fruits have cheapened considerably within the last week. The local market is not so dependent for these supplies on the South as it was. As the season advances the garden produce comes from more northerly regions, and now considerable quantities of green vegetables are coming from gardens of Southern Minnesota. Duluth is now being supplied with its rhubarb, green onions, asparagus, spinach and radishes from the truck farms of the southern part of this state. Illinois rhubarb, which was on the market a week ago at the wholesale price of $1.10 a bushel, has given place to Minnesota rhubarb at $1 a bushel. Louisiana spinach, which a week ago was selling at Duluth for $1.50 wholesale, has been supplanted by Minnesota spinach at $1.10 a bushel. Minnesota radishes have dropped from 75 to 60 cents a dozen bunches. Asparagus on account of cool weather is scarce and high.

Strawberries are at little more than half the price they commanded a week ago. A 24-quart crate of Louisiana strawberries a week ago brought $5, but now a 24-quart crate of Arkansas strawberries sells for $2.75. The berries are of excellent quality. The weather has greatly improved for the shipping, and the berries that are now coming are far more plentiful besides being much better than those that were on the market last week. No more Louisiana berries are coming, but all those on the market now are from the Arkansas gardens. The berry movement on the Duluth market has increased vastly as the lower price has placed them within the reach of the means of a large number of people.

Pineapples have also cheapened. These are still coming from Cuba. A crate that a week ago brought $4.50 now goes for $4.

The price of Florida tomatoes has not changed. The quality of these tomatoes is still very fine.

The Louisiana cabbages are cheaper. The large crates have declined from $4.50 to $4. The quality is good and the price is quite reasonable for this time of the year.

Wax beans, new carrots and new beets, all of which are from Louisiana, are temporarily quite scarce on the market, and the prices are high. The beans are at the same price as a week ago. The beets and carrots have risen from 60 to 80 cents a dozen bunches. It is thought, however, that trade conditions will soon adjust themselves so that all of these products will cheapen very materially.

Florida peppers have declined from 50 to 40 cents a basket, head lettuce from $2.50 to $2.25 a bushel, Florida celery from $1.25 to $1 a dozen bunches and egg plants from $2.25 to $1.75 a dozen.

Old potatoes are higher than they were a week ago, having risen from $1.15 to $1.20 a bushel. Those that are now coming upon the Duluth market, however, are of excellent quality, being the very best that have been received from last year's crop. New Southern potatoes are still strong, and as long as this is the case, there will continue to be an aggressive demand for the old potatoes and the price will remain high.

Old carrots and beets are higher, the beets having risen from $1.40 to $1.50 a bushel and carrots from $1.25 to $1.50 per bushel, at wholesale.

Oranges have not changed from the price they commanded a week ago. The quality is still very fine. No finer oranges can be obtained at any time of the year.

Apples are still strong. They have not changed materially in price from what they were a week ago. Jonathans, however, which do not keep so well at this time as they did earlier in the season, are being sold out, and the price has declined from $3 to $2.50 a box.

Butter is cheaper than it was a week ago, the best creamery being 2 cents lower at the wholesale price of 31 cents. The West is producing larger quantities of milk, cream and butter with the advance of the season and the improvement of the pasture lands, but the demand for butter in the East has been so strong that the radical break which was hoped for about this time has not occurred. It is expected that within the next few days there will be an increase in the price of butter. But it is only a question of time when the increasing supply will bring down the price, for it cannot stay at such figres as it is now commanding. Most grades of cheese are 1 cent lower than they were a week ago, as the factories are increasing the quantity of cheese on the market and storing it away for next winter's consumption. Eggs have not changed in price. The wholesale price is still 19 to 20 cents, very high for this time of the year.

The wholesale prices of poultry have not changed from what they were a week ago. The stock of frozen fowls is running very low, but this factor is offset by the increasing quantities of live poultry brought in from the farms. Wholesale dealers expect the price to decline steadily from this time on for some weeks.

Meat prices are the same on the local market as they were a week ago, but the wholesale price of beef will probably be raised next week. In Chicago live beef is bringing a higher price than it has at any time during the last twenty years.

INSPECT ROAD TO NEW DULUTH

City Officials Favor Putting It in Shape for Street Cars.

Several city officials and Thomas A. Wood, attorney of the street railway company, yesterday went over the route for the proposed extension of the street car tracks to New Duluth.

They also continued on to Fond du Lac, where the engineering department is making plans and estimates for a bridge crossing the St. Louis river at that point. When this bridge is completed it is believed that much of the trade which now goes to Superior from Carlton county will be diverted to this side of the bay.

The members of the party were greatly pleased with the prospects for future growth in the western suburbs of the city and the country tributary to them. They believe that the funds for putting the road in shape for street car travel to New Duluth should be included in the next budget. The engineer recently estimated that the cost would be $20,000.

The city officials who made the trip included City Engineer John Wilson, O. G. Olson and A. J. Meldahl of the board of public works and Aldermen Bernard, Hicken, Hogan and Jordan.

Unit Rule Adopted By Convention Muzzles Wilson Men.

Burlington, Iowa, May 17.—Iowa's twenty-six votes in the national Democratic convention will be cast for Champ Clark for president despite the fact that eight district delegates are Wilson men.

Chicago, May 17.—Savatore Pocorari, an alleged member of the Camorra, has been arrested by Deputy United States Marshal Edward W. Northrup. The boy was shot by his captor when his father refused to comply with the demands for ransom.

DENY VICTIMS STARVED.

White Star Officials Discredit Theory of Bodies Found on Boat.

New York, May 17.—Officials of the White Star line discredit the theory that the bodies found in the Titanic's collapsible boat were those of victims who had starved to death.

"With reference to the boat picked up by the Oceanic," a statement says, "the White Star line repeats what it stated, that Officer Lowe, before the senate investigation committee at Washington, testified that he took from the boat twenty men and one woman, leaving in it the bodies of three men, who, all the passengers said, were dead, and who he was certain were dead some time before he abandoned the boat."

As to the bits of cork found in the mouths of victims, an official of the line expressed the opinion that these fragments were washed on board by waves after the boat was set adrift.

"The sea was full of floating cork," he said, "and finding of these particles does not, in my view, lend credence to the starvation theory."

DENY TAFT MAY QUIT

Friends in Cleveland Say He Is Too Bitter Against Teddy.

President Resumes His Campaign Tour in Ohio.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 17.—Refreshed by a comparatively quiet day here President Taft left Cleveland early today to take up again his speech making tour of the state. Friends of the president were confident that he was more determined than ever to make the struggle for Ohio's forty-eight delegates to the Republican national convention as strenuous as possible.

Although Mr. Taft declined to discuss reports published here that he might abandon the fight for a renomination if he should lose in the Ohio primaries, men close to him place no credence in such a report. They point to the fact that hundreds of delegates to the convention are instructed and pledged to Mr. Taft and that the Taft workers throughout the country have put up their best fight for him.

Too Bitter to Quit.

They figure also on the bitter resentment the president has shown toward Col. Roosevelt, and few of them would concede that he would ever withdraw in favor of his predecessor.

Talk of Mr. Taft's retirement from the race in favor of a dark horse in case he loses Ohio is also discredited by his friends, in spite of his declaration yesterday that the result of the primary in this state would determine the choice of the Chicago convention.

The president's schedule for today called for speeches at Lorain, Bellevue, Fremont, Fostoria, Tiffin, Carey, Upper Sandusky, Kenton, Findlay, Bowling Green and a night address at Toledo.

of the budget. Before that, amendments were adopted providing that the city pay for street intersections and storm sewers and that a wheelage tax be levied. All are considered distinctly progressive measures and the advocates of the commission plan state that they show that the citizens of Duluth would heartily indorse the commission form. In addition to that they point out that the recent bond issue for the establishment of a municipal electric light plant carried by a substantial majority.

Favor the Plan.

The members of the charter commission have expressed themselves as favoring the commission plan of government. A special committee was appointed some time ago to make a complete investigation of the matter. The committee went so far as to draft an outline of a proposed new charter for the commission plan. But before the work of rounding it out was started it was decided that in view of the fact that the constitutionality of the matter was a debated question, it would be wise to wait until either the supreme court had ruled upon the test case then before it or the people had passed upon the constitutional amendment legalizing the commission form.

The supreme court announced its ruling today, eliminating all doubt as to the constitutionality of the commission plan for Minnesota cities. T. T. Hudson, chairman of the charter commission, said that he could not speak for the members of the commission when asked for a statement this morning. He stated that he was pleased to learn that the supreme court upheld the constitutionality of the new form, and that he believed the other members of the commission would hold like sentiments. He was of the opinion that with the announcement of the ruling a meeting of the commission or of the special committee of the committee would be called within a short time to discuss the situation. He was unable to state what action would be likely to be taken.

But with the sentiment of the people urging the adoption of the change, the opinion is that the commission will take steps without loss of time to prepare a charter embodying the change for submission to the voters. Such a charter would contain a chapter incorporating the initiative, referendum and recall beyond any question. Without them the people would refuse to turn the government of the city over to a commission consisting of three or five men.

The Decision.

"Article III of the Constitution, providing that the powers of government shall be divided into executive, legislative and judicial branches," the opinion written by Associate Justice P. E. Brown says, "does not apply to municipal governments, and neither its expressed intention or its spirit can be read into article IV, section 36."

The section of article IV referred to empowers cities and villages to frame charters for their own government, and provides that "it shall be a feature of such charters that there shall be provided, among other things, for a mayor or chief magistrate, and a legislative body of either one or two houses; if of two houses, at least one of them shall be elected by a general vote of the electors."

Whereupon, all the attacks which have been made on commission government in Minnesota, on the ground that an office cannot perform both legislative and administrative acts are silenced. The Mankato charter was attacked on four special counts, as follows:

"The mayor being the chief executive officer of the city, is made a member of the council and is permitted to participate in all the legislative and other powers given the council.

"The council, being the only legislative body provided for in said charter, contains also the mayor, the chief and only executive of the city provided thereby.

"The council of five members is given legislative, executive and administrative duties and functions.

"The council is given other than purely legislative powers."

Quoting from an opinion of Chief Justice Start given in a previous case, the opinion written by Judge Brown says:

"'When the language of the Constitution is positive and free from all ambiguity, courts are not at liberty to resort to the refinements of legal learning to restrict its obvious meaning.' That this is the true canon of construction in applying constitutional provisions cannot be doubted. We again declare that we must accept the Constitution as it reads. But from this canon of constitutional construction we cannot slip so readily into the position into which the relator seemingly unmindful of another great canon of law, has slipped, and declare that because of the constitutional requirement that the so-called home-rule charters must provide for a mayor or chief magistrate and a legislative body,' the legislature, whose will, except as restricted by the Constitution, is equally the will of the people, may not authorize the freeholders of a city to invest their mayor or chief magistrate with power to participate in the deliberations of the local legislative body, and to give the latter the power to participate in the administrative functions of the city.

"We must not forget that the legislature is the voice of the sovereign people, and that, subject only to such limitations as the people have seen fit to incorporate in their Constitution, the legislature is vested with the sovereign power of the people themselves."

AMUSEMENTS

TONIGHT'S ATTRACTIONS.

LYCEUM—Albini.
ORPHEUM—Vaudeville.
EMPRESS—Vaudeville.

Amusement Notes.

The work of Albini continues to mystify audiences at the Lyceum. Albini has been seen in Duluth before, in vaudeville, but never with his own company, and never with such an elaborate act as his present one. His illusions are startling and the remainder of the vaudeville bill is excellent.

Lulu Glaser, in the latest Viennese importation, "Miss Dudelsack," will be the notable attraction at the Lyceum next Monday and Tuesday nights. The scenes of the operetta are laid in picturesque Scotland with its highlands, heather, brilliant plaids, bagpipes and ancestral halls. Miss Glaser has the role of a bonnie Scotch lassie, called Miss Dudelsack by a doting foster-father who brings her up in ignorance of her noble birth. It is said that the part is by far the best in which this charming comedienne has appeared since "Dolly Varden." The music is said to be of a very high order and is of the Viennese school of which "The Spring Maid" and "The Merry Widow" are examples. The supporting company consists of twenty light opera artists, several of whom have sung in grand opera, both in this country and in Europe. There is also a splendid chorus of picked voices and a special orchestra. Prominent in the cast are Thomas Richards, David Torrence, George Graham, Arthur Hyde, Bernice Whittier, Rosetta Nier and others.

This week's vaudeville bill at the Orpheum contains many names that are prominent in amusement circles, both in vaudeville and the so-called "legitimate." Miss Marguerite Haney, appearing in "The Leading Lady," has become well known in musical comedy lines, and was featured in the "Paris Folies Bergere" last summer. Ralph Lynn, who is seen in her support, played leading comedy roles for years in the London Gaiety theater, under George Edwardes. Ray L. Royce is well known as a character actor, his part in "York State Folks" making him famous in this country. Edward Flanagan and Neel Edwards are two of the best known vaudeville performers in the country, and their act, "On and Off," has been a standard comedy turn for years. Even better known than Flanagan and Edwards are Carl Henry and Nellie Francis, who have been favorites in first class vaudeville for more years than either care to admit.

Three more performances of this week's bill will be given—tonight, tomorrow afternoon and tomorrow night. Sunday afternoon the last bill and the most expensive bill ever presented in the theater will open. It will be featured by David Belasco's own production of "Madame Butterfly," the most costly feature act on the Orpheum circuit this season. Two other acts of special importance on next week's bill are "The Bosun's Mate," pany, and the old favorite act of Thurber and Madison.

The patrons of the Empress are promised another excellent bill of vaudeville for the week commencing with Sunday's matinee. The feature attraction for the week will be Rapoli, the world-famed European juggler. This man comes heralded as the greatest exponent of the art of juggling who has ever been sent to Duluth by the Sullivan & Considine circuit. He is said to juggle a variety of articles ranging from toothpicks to cannon balls with an ease and grace that is wonderful to behold. Rapoli was imported direct from Europe for an exclusive tour of the Sullivan & Considine circuit and since his first appearance on the circuit he has created a sensation. "An Up-to-Date Invention" is the title of the vehicle chosen by Rose Sharon and company in which to display their talents. This playlet is said to be one of the most humorous vaudeville playlets of recent years and it is expected that it will be one of the hits of the coming bill. Good child impersonators are rare, but among the few good ones is Snowie Maybelle, who is said to be exceptionally clever in this particular line. Miss Maybelle tells a budget of child stories which are said to be highly entertaining. Kelley and Litman, presenting a comedy singing and talking specialty, and the Delzaros, sensational gymnasts, complete the list of attractions for the week.

BEN. REITMAN TOO ILL TO TALK OF ASSAULT.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 17.—Ben Reitman, manager for Emma Goldman, is so ill he could not talk of his experiences with the kidnapers of San Diego, who tarred him. Reitman, through Miss Goldman, denied any intention of starting legal proceedings against those who attacked him.

"What's the use?" Miss Goldman exclaimed. "Justice would not be meted out to his assailants."

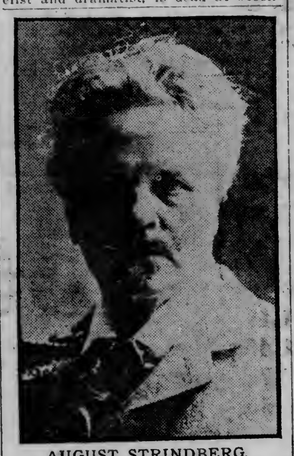
OBITUARY

August Strindberg, the Swedish novelist and dramatist, is dead at Stockholm. He was one of the best known of Sweden's literary men.



AUGUST STRINDBERG.

Wilbur Richardson, aged 52, said to have been one of the head engineers in connection with the building of New York's first subway, died in Milwaukee, Wis., May 15.

Louis Henry Ayme, consul general at Lisbon, died May 16. Mrs. Ayme is visiting her daughter, Mrs. J. L. Schalkenbach, at Oshkosh, Wis. Mrs. Ayme had learned only a day or two ago of the illness of her husband and was preparing to hasten to Lisbon to join him. The remains will probably be brought from Lisbon to New York for burial.

Thomas H. Dickson, 71 years old, who had suffered for years of heart trouble, is dead at his home in St. Paul. Mr. Dickson, until ten days ago, had attended to his duties as local freight agent for the Northern Pacific. He had been connected with that department since 1881. Prior to that time he did similar work for the Great Northern. Mr. Dickson was a member of the board of trustees of Macalester college, and was several times its president. He was president of the St. Paul Freight Agents' association, a director of the Y. M. C. A., a member of the Loyal Legion, having served in the navy during the Civil war, a member of the home missionary committee of the presbytery of St. Paul and an elder in the Macalester Presbyterian church.

SUGAR OUTPUT UNDER CONTROL

Julius A. Stursberg Testifies in the Suit to Dissolve the Trust.

New York, May 17.—The alleged methods pursued by the sugar refineries companies to gain and obtain control of the sugar industry in America were described today by Julius A. Stursberg, up to 1887 treasurer of the Brooklyn Sugar Refining company. Mr. Stursberg was the first witness of the day in the taking of testimony before a special examiner in the government's dissolution suit against the so-called sugar trust.

Mr. Stursberg said that although the refineries company trustees held the stock of the Brooklyn company, that concern was permitted to run its own affairs with the exception of fixing its output. This was fixed by the trustees, he said. These trustees also instructed other companies whose stock they held as to how much sugar they could produce.

The witness was one of the eleven but did not, he said, remember the name of the other ten. District Attorney Wise read a list of the directors of the American company in 1891, and the witness said that the following directors had served as trustees of the refineries company: Henry O. Havemeyer, Theodore Havemeyer, F. O. Matthiesen, John E. Parsons, John E. Searles, Jr., Joseph B. Thomas, William Dick, Charles O. Foster, Charles H. Senff and himself.

The Store That Sells Wooltex Suits and Coats.

ROTH BROS CO.

Superior, Wisconsin. Tower at Broadway.

What the Ladies Say:

One Duluth lady was heard to remark in our store the other day, "Well I have been here about all day, I like it so well I don't care to go home."

Another one said, "I have only spent about ten dollars, have paid car fare and lunch and am still a couple dollars ahead." Another lady expressed herself this way, "Am sorry I did not know about this store before, could have saved ten dollars on my daughter's suit as well as the ten I saved on mine."

A lady with a small boy that was teasing for something, she said, "Jimmy, you are a nuisance; if you don't stop teasing for ice cream I will leave you at home next time." Then aside to her friend, "Poor kid, can't hardly blame him; I never tasted such delicious cream in my life." But this remark pleased us most of all, "The most accommodating lot of clerks I ever saw."

This lady framed into words the unexpressed sentiments of hundreds of others. It stands for dependable merchandise at a saving in price shown in a polite and pleasing manner. Why not use this store more frequently—get the habit.

LOVE AT FIRST SIGHT COOLED VERY QUICKLY.

Love at first sight prompted Rosalie Wauters to marry Bernard Wauters two years ago at Brazil, Iowa, and that marriage was an unhappy one from the first, according to the story which Rasalie tells in papers filed in a divorce action which she has started in district court here against her husband. They were married June 2, 1910.

Rosalie is now 23 years old. She declares that she never knew peaceful married life when she was living with her husband. In less than two weeks after the marriage vows were taken she says that her husband began to abuse her.

Wauters, she claims, is a coal miner, and now resides at Brazil, Iowa. He is 24 years of age. She alleges that she married him on a very brief acquaintance and that they immediately started housekeeping. Two weeks later, she claims, he began to make life miserable for her.

On June 30, less than a month after their wedding, she claims that she was driven from their home and that since that time they have lived apart. She asks for the divorce on the grounds of cruel and inhuman treatment and also for desertion.

Judge Dancer has limited the time in which Wauters may file an answer to June 24.

Amelia Kwiatkowski, aged 32, today filed a suit for divorce against John Kwiatkowski, aged 34, whom she married at Warsaw, Russia, about four years ago. She charges cruelty and asks the court for alimony and the custody of their one child, aged 3.

COMPETITION NEEDED, JUDGE GARY DECLARES.

New York, May 17.—Judge Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the board of directors of the United States Steel corporation, said today at the second general meeting of the American Iron & Steel Institute that "several labor leaders had for years been waging war on the steel industry, but had not yet succeeded."

He congratulated the members present on their reputations and prosperity.

"Competition is necessary," said the judge, "but I do not believe in destructive competition, and neither am I in favor of secrecy. I think the public should know what we are doing; I have no spirit of defiance toward the laws of the country."

Touching briefly on politics, Judge Gary said: "The name Progressive is not dangerous. Because a man is called a Progressive it does not mean he is a demagogue or a Socialist, or an anarchist."

Tonight a banquet will be held.

WINNIPEG SCENE OF NEXT REGATTA.

Winnipeg will be the scene of the next regatta of the Northwestern International association. This was made clear today upon the receipt of a telegram of "Con" Riley, president of the association, who stated that inasmuch as the Winnipeg Rowing club has decided not to send a crew to England, the original plans for holding the regatta at Winnipeg would be carried through.

The decision of Winnipeg not to send a crew to the English Henley and to the Olympic games means that the Winnipeggers will have one of the strongest senior eights that has ever represented the Canadian club.

CUSTANCE WAS "HIT" AT CONCLAVE

Duluth Man Kept in the Limelight With a Novel "Act."

A. F. M. Custance and the Aad Temple quartet were the "hit of the piece" at the big Shriners' conclave at Los Angeles.

A national gathering of Shriners' can produce some unique entertainment features. When any one man, or body of men, can get more than a small share of attention at a conclave, they must have something to "put across."

Reports from Los Angeles are that "everybody was wild about Custance." Ably assisted by and ably assisting the Scottish Rite quartet, he was right in the limilight from star tto finish.

Mr. Custance's props consisted of a toy piano and a diminutive monkey. The piano and monkey were carried in a suit-case. On the quartet's serenading trips, Mr. Custance set the stage with the piano and the monkey, the monkey wearing a large sign, "It's Cool in Duluth," and the quartet sang to the accompaniment of Mr. Custance's young piano.

The stunt was original, the boys can sing, and they all kept Duluth on the map. The Shriners will be home next week.

DISCOVERY IN GARPIKE INTERESTS SCIENTISTS.

Berkeley, Cal., May 17.—The garpike, a predatory fish of the Mississippi valley, one of the most remarkable creatures known to science for various reasons, has been discovered to possess another element of the unusual in a strange gland in the head, which exists in no other organism of the animal kingdom and which has no known use.

It is something like the vermiform appendix in human beings. Not so much in structure is this so, but in that it is apparently a vestige of evolution.

The garpike is one of the few remnants of a class of fishes which were abundant in prehistoric ages. Therefore it has been the subject of much intensive study by biologists and zoologists because of the light its organic structure casts on evolutionary processes.

In the course of such a study the new gland was discovered by Asa C. Chandler of the zoological laboratory at Cornell university. The organ was made the subject of further study at the University of California during the last semester by Prof. C. A. Kofoid and Prof. J. F. Daniel. The results of their investigation have just been made public in a bulletin issued from the university press at Berkeley.

At large—J. W. Wright, Mecker county; E. G. Hage, Brown county; W. H. Putnam, Goodhue county.

The representatives of the Republican party of Minnesota, delegates to the state convention yesterday at Minneapolis, firmly established the progressive character of the party in Minnesota.

The six delegates-at-large are instructed to vote for Theodore Roosevelt for president, "first, last and all the time." Progressive leaders were indorsed. The presidential primary, direct election of United States senators, a corrupt practices act and the state-wide primary were hailed as progressive measures to which the party in Minnesota gives its hearty support. The only reason the initiative, the referendum and the recall were not also indorsed was that many of the delegates believed that they are state issues and should not be included in the resolutions of a convention dealing purely with national issues.

The only real fight of the convention was on the resolution indorsing the initiative, the referendum and the recall. The resolution was introduced in the form of a minority report from A. D. Stewart, E. G. Hage of Hanska, Magnus Brown of Dakota county, Peter Bowen and W. T. Stone. It was offered by Mr. Stewart, who consented to stand aside until the majority report had been adopted, and then offer his report as an addition.

No Second Choice.

The minority report included a provision that the delegates to the state convention should vote for Robert M. La Follette as second choice in case the nomination of Theodore Roosevelt should appear impossible. That provision was stricken out on an yea and nay vote, the objection being made that it was inconsistent with the resolution already adopted instructing the delegates to vote for Roosevelt, "first, last and all the time."

Jacob F. Jacobson of Lac Qui Parle objected to the wording of the resolution on the initiative, referendum and recall, which referred to the Oregon law as a model. "We can make our own laws in this state," said "Jake." "We have made them in the past and we can make them in the future. We don't have to indorse anything that Oregon has done." Mr. Stewart consented to dropping the reference to Oregon and then the vote was on the amended resolution.

The first break came early in the proceedings when one of the Ramsey county delegates moved that the minority report be laid on the table. Delegates jumped up all over the hall, yelling: "Withdraw that motion!" It was the first real divided convention demonstration that had been made and it lasted for some minutes with Chairman Haycraft pounding with his gavel and refusing to recognize anybody. When recognition was finally given, it went to Mr. Jacobson, who demanded the withdrawal of the motion. He declared that in a progressive convention all should be given a fair hearing and that a motion to lay on the table savored too much of steam-roller tactics. The motion was withdrawn by the Ramsey county delegation.

After a debate in which several delegates took part, the principal objection being to the fact that the resolution dealt with purely state issues, cries of "Question" forced a vote and on the yea and nay vote, Chairman Haycraft declared the minority report lost. There were calls for a division. At first Chairman Haycraft was not disposed to grant a roll call, but he thought better of it and said that, although the chair did not believe there was any necessity for a roll call, he would grant it in the interests of harmony. The roll call resulted in a vote of 478 for the minority and 605 opposed.

St. Louis for Resolution.

The vote was a complex one. The La Follette delegates voted solidly for the report and they were joined by many Roosevelt delegates, who were ready to waive their prerogative of being the controlling faction and were willing that the La Follette people should score a victory in order that the party might be on record for the initiative, the referendum and the recall. The St. Louis county delegates were of that faction and voted solidly for the resolution. Hennepin and Ramsey county voted against it, the chairman explaining that they thought the matter one for the next state convention.

There were war rumors in the air all day yesterday, but few of them developed anything in the convention. Differences were settled for the most part in caucuses and conferences and the Roosevelt men went into the convention with a program that was almost complete and went through without a hitch. There were no contests on delegates on the floor of the convention, P. V. Collins, who was left on the slate, being content with his defeat before the committee. W. I. Nolan, who was talked of as the candidate of the La Follette men, did not allow his name to go before the convention.

The national committeeman indorsement, which was loaded with danger of a break in harmony Wednesday night, proved to be harmless. The Eberhart men were anxious to head off the indorsement of Caswell and they suggested the indorsement of Frank B. Kellogg. Mr. Kellogg was at the West hotel Wednesday evening and expressed himself as favorable to Roosevelt, the La Follette men were ready to join with the Eberhart people in indorsing Kellogg, but Caswell developed such strength that the ... was useless and Mr. Kellogg asked that his name be not presented. A. A. D. Kahn, who was also considered for committeeman, was sidetracked by the Hennepin county delegation, which decided to support Caswell. The motion to indorse Caswell was made by Senator James P. Boyle of Eveleth and was carried without debate or dissent.

Change in the Slate.

During the morning, the name of William O'Brien of Eden Valley in the Sixth district was on the slate for delegate-at-large and he was expected to be elected. When the committee on apportionment of delegates, alternates and presidential electors, reported, it was found that Mr. O'Brien had been recommended for alternate and the name of Former Senator E. K. Roverud of Caledonia had been substituted for O'Brien's on the delegate slate. Mr. O'Brien's friends were satisfied with the change and no objections to it were made on the floor.

A Grant county delegate, friendly to P. V. Collins, made a motion that Mr. Collins be elected a delegate at large and that the report then be referred back to the committee for an adjustment. He found no support and the motion was not put.

Mr. Collins made a plea for himself. He declared that he had stood by the farmers in the reciprocity fight, had worked incessantly for Col. Roosevelt and thought that he should be a delegate. He declared that he did not want the "empty honor" of being a presidential elector at large and withdrew his name. He was not allowed to withdraw when the report was first adopted, but later he resigned and his place was filled by Senator J. W. Wright of Litchfield.

In the apportionment of elections among the congressional districts, the delegates at large were apportioned to the First, Fourth, Fifth, Seventh, Eighth and Ninth districts, and the alternates to the Third, Fourth, Sixth and Eighth districts. Each congressional district was given a presidential elector and of the three electors at large, one is from the Second, one from the Third and one from the Sixth district.

One of the noisiest demonstrations of the convention, perhaps even more noisy than that which greeted the mention of Col. Roosevelt's name, came when the section of the resolutions instructing the state central committee to provide a means for a popular expression of the voters on the candidates for the governorship, was read. It seemed that every delegate in the hall was on his feet as soon as the reading of the section was concluded. Hats, handkerchiefs and papers were waved wildly in the air and the delegates shouted and yelled in prolonged glee. There wasn't a question for a minute as to the fate of that section of the resolutions.

The Resolutions.

No objections were made to any of the resolutions reported by the majority of the committee and they were adopted without a dissenting vote. The resolutions follow:

"Resolved, That we indorse the candidacy of Theodore Roosevelt for president and hereby instruct the delegates selected by this convention to the Republican national convention to vote for the nomination of Theodore Roosevelt, first, last and all the time.

"Resolved, That we unreservedly indorse the principles of Progressive Republicanism as expounded by Theodore Roosevelt, Robert M. La Follette and other great Republican leaders of the Progressive cause.

"Resolved, That we unqualifiedly indorse presidential primaries and insist that the election of United States senators shall be by direct vote of the people.

"Resolved, That we demand the immediate repeal of the Canadian reciprocity treaty.

"Resolved, That we demand the purification of the ballot by the enactment of a more thorough-going corrupt practice act.

"We congratulate the people of Minnesota on their determined and unfaltering efforts in support of the Progressivism adopted by such leaders as Theodore Roosevelt and Robert M. La Follette and we point with pride to the fact that in the face of great odds, the lack of proper legislation, and the oppression of bossism, the spirit of patriotism prompted them to speak for themselves in the recent contest; and be it further

"Resolved, That it is the sense of this convention that in all future contests for nomination to public, office, the people shall be allowed to express their preference in such a manner as shall give each individual an effective voice in the affairs of government; and therefore, be it further

"Resolved, That the Republican state central committee be instructed to provide suitable means for each voter to express by ballot his individual preference for governor of Minnesota at the coming Republican primaries.

"Resolved, That we place ourselves on record as in favor of the creation of an industrial commission by act of congress for the purpose of acting in the settlement of disputes between capital and labor."

seemed to be obsessed by the same idea—"votes for women."

The movement is, of course, world-wide, but it is fair to state that in the United States alone has it attained anything like success. And it might be worth while for the English suffragettes to recognize the fact that in this country it has progressed without the expedients of smashing windows, chaining excited women to the ankles of statues in the national capital, or in any way interfering with the orderly course of legislation.

Women Vote in Six States.

There are today in the United States six states from which women might be sent to congress if they were able to win in the election—as any man has to win. For twenty years women have had a voice in national conventions as delegates. Naturally, it has not been a controlling voice, for the women delegates have been but few. Nevertheless, the principle of woman's part in the national government is established here, and her share will doubtless grow.

What mere man, the long-time monopolist of all political privileges, has to worry about is not the invasion of his political field by womankind, but their assault upon his industrial field. Already office business is practically monopolized by women. They have displaced the man stenographer, bookkeeper and general factotum. They have done it because of their ability, and possibly because of the fact that they are willing to work for smaller wages. At the same time the American woman has ceased to be the merely clinging vine of the days of Lucy Larcom and the writers of her time. I hazard the opinion that today in the United States there are at least 3,000,000 women who, not merely because of their intellect, but because of the fact that they are self-supporting, are wholly justified in seeking and receiving the right to unlimited suffrage if they desire it.

The Corrected Massachusetts Vote.

It is interesting to note that, although the Massachusetts returns as first announced showed a beggarly majority for Taft over Roosevelt of 4,000 votes, the corrected returns up to the moment of writing show that 17,000 Taft ballots were thrown out because of an apparent irregularity. The Massachusetts primary law, like nearly all of the direct primary laws, is badly drawn and enables the unscrupulous politician to take advantage of it for his own benefit. For example a man who is not known to have been in any shape or manner friendly to Taft got his name put on the ballot as a Taft elector by petition. The result was that the ballot showed nine Taft delegates when only eight could be lawfully elected. Many Taft voters in the "Old Bay State," not having been warned, simply voted for the nine. Every ballot so marked was thrown out and there is a certain impression among politicians in Washington, including representatives from Massachusetts, that the ninth man was aided in putting his name on the ticket by the Roosevelt forces in order to invalidate the Taft ticket. Even after these ballots were thrown out, Taft carried the state. There are indications that out of this apparent political chicanery will grow a feeling of hostility to Roosevelt in Massachusetts that will not aid him in the wholly improbable event of his nomination. For example, a well known Republican of Springfield, Mass., W. H. Brooks, said here in conversation the other day: "While Roosevelt will have the delegates from my state, I do not believe that he can carry it in the election if he is the party nominee. The business men think him too extreme, and the general public believes that he has not given to President Taft, his long time personal friend, that square deal of which he talks so much and so seldom observes. President Taft is popular in Massachusetts. Just who on the Democratic side might carry the state against Roosevelt I could hardly say. Speaker Clark carried the primaries but the vote was extremely light. In fact neither party polled in the primaries more than 29 per cent of the registered vote of the state. For this reason I do not believe that the primary vote is at all indicative of what will be the final vote in the presidential election."

FUNERAL OF SPANISH-AMERICAN WAR VETERAN.

The funeral of William A. Harbour, 44 years of age, who died Wednesday at St. Mary's hospital, will take place tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock from the First M. E. church, Third avenue West and Third street, with interment in Forest Hill cemetery.

Mr. Harbour was well known in Duluth, having resided here many years. He has been head janitor at the new courthouse since it was opened. He was a veteran of the Spanish-American war, serving as master-at-arms under Capt. Richard Wainwright and participating in the battle at Santiago. He was present at the sinking of the Spanish ships Furor and Pluton.

Deceased was born at the Isle of Wight Aug. 4, 1863. He went to sea and in 1892 became a citizen of the United States. He enlisted in the navy and rose to the rank of master-at-arms, the same position he was tendered at the outbreak of the Spanish-American war.

DEMAND FOR PROTECTION

Canadian Government Under Pressure By Steel and Lumber Interests.

Cabinet Would Have the Subject Handled By Tariff Commission.

Ottawa, Ont., May 17.—The government is receiving many demands for tariff changes. The steel and lumber industries are persistent in their efforts to obtain more protection for these industries. Both political parties are combining to elect an independent representative to the Dominion commons for the Kootenay district, with the sole instruction that he remain independent of both sides until such time as the lumbermen are satisfied that their interests are carried out. The vacancy in Kootenay was brought about by the appointment of the sitting member to office. British Columbia wants the markets of the prairie provinces. It can get it by raising the tariff to shut out American lumber.

The steel men have many backers all over Canada and they will not take no for an answer, more especially as their demands for a bounty were turned down last session. What they want now is relief through the tariff, which will be more permanent than a sliding scale of bounties for a few years. They had the benefits of these bounties for about fifteen years, but they ended over a year ago when the Laurier government refused to renew them. The pressure from the Western supporters of the Borde. government was specessful last session in preventing their renewal, but the steel interests have never stopped in pressing their case.

The defeat of the etariff commission by the senate is to them no reason why they should wait until next session when the bill will again be brought up, and it is not expected that it will again be rejected by the senate. The steel men say a statutory law is not necessary for a commission, as the same thing can be accomplished by an order in council. The Laurier government appointed several commissions to deal with the tariff, but they were all named by the executive. A royal commission can be appointed at any time, not only to deal with the tariff, but any other subject. There is a number of such commissions now at work on a variety of subjects all over the Dominion.

The only reason for not appointing such a commission is that there is not sufficient time before the meeting of parliament to make a thorough investigation into the working of the tariff so as to bring in a bill making a general revision. There are many Conservatives who think that the best policy to pursue at the present time is to let well enough alone. There are no real grievances among manufacturers, as they are all doing well and most of them working overtime. Even the steel industry is not suffering, and as for the lumbermen of the west, it is generally regarded that they ought to be satisfied with the advantages they now have over the Americans in competing for the business of the prairie provinces. To raise the duty upon the lumber for the farmer's shack in the west would be met with strong opposition.

Death of Commissioner Mabee.

The death of Justice Mabee, chairman of the railway commission of Canada, removes from the public service a man whom Canada can ill spare. Justice Mabee was operated upon for appendicitis. He was the third chairman of the commission, and despite the fact that his two predecessors were men of exceptional talent and long experience in public life and at the bar, it will be freely admitted that he was even more successful than they in filling the onerous duties of the office and particularly in standing out determinedly for the rights of the people as against the great railway corporations of the country. He was emphatic and prompt in his decisions and would not brook the pressing for delays and adjournments. Railway companies soon learned that Justice Mabee was not to be fooled with in that way, and the result was that they readily accepted the situation and made the best of it. The West will miss him more than any other part of the dominion. For years the people west of Lake Superior have been clamoring against the unfair burden of freight rates which they were carrying as compared with the East, and he was engaged in solving this great problem at the time of his death. He was regarded by all as the commission itself on account of his speedy and accurate decisions, and it will be no easy matter to get one who will fill his place.

A. G. Blair was the first chairman of the commission. As minister of railways, Mr. Blair brought the commission into existence. He was not at one with the government of Sir Wilfrid Laurier in the original plans for the construction of the Grand Trunk Pacific railway and resigned his portfolio. He remained in the government for a couple of weeks after putting in his resignation to put the bill for the railway commission through parliament, although it was not known at that time that the minister had resigned. It was a hard fight that Mr. Blair had with the different railways to get the act passed, but he was equal to the occasion, and when the time came to get a chairman. Sir Wilfrid selected Mr. Blair, notwithstanding the opposition of the premier's colleagues because of the minister's action in opposing the new transcontinental bargain. Every one agreed that Mr. Blair made an excellent chairman, but for reasons which he never fully explained, he resigned on the eve of a general election, although he took no active part against the government and never estranged himself entirely from Sir Wilfrid, although not in accord with some of the other ministers.

When Mr. Blair resigned, Justice Killam of Manitoba was persuaded to take the place. He was an excellent man for the job and gave entire satisfaction. He was taken suddenly ill after a few years' service and died within a short time. Mr. Mabee was then persuaded to take the position. He was a lawyer of great eminence, a judge of the high court of justice of Ontario and was well known to many of the people of the United States as a member of the international waterways commission, to which he was appointed in 1905. He was only 53 years old at the time of his death.

A Hindoo Protest.

The Hindoos in Victoria, B. C., who have been refused permission to bring in their wives have been making a protest to the British government, but that will not be of any avail because the Canadian government is master of the situation. A protest has also been lodged against the deportation of two women which will, of course, be forwarded in the ordinary way to Ottawa to be dealt with. The great point is that in cases of this kind imperial citizenship is at a discount. The Hindoos are just as much British subjects as are the Canadians, and the refusal of the British Columbian authorities, or, rather, the Dominion immigration department, to allow the men now resident in this country to bring in their wives, is resented by a large number of people in Eastern Canada. The labor interests on the Pacific are the opposing force. The fact that they are British does not weigh any more with them than if they were Chinese or Japanese because they affect the labor market and conditions of living just the same as if they were foreigners.

It is contended as against these labor protests that much imperial mischief might result from such humiliation heaped upon a proud and self-respecting race. The exclusion of men's wives is said to be worse in principle than the exclusion of the men themselves. But there are other anomalies in British citizenship, since a man may be a Canadian citizen without being a British citizen. That, however, is being remedied, or, at any rate, efforts are being made in that direction. The new arrivals in the West from the United States who have sworn allegiance to the king are alien Americans when traveling in India, Australia or even England. But no matter what these inconsistencies may be, a Canadian government cannot very well ignore the views and representations of the British Columbia people who are in the main strongly opposed to Oriental immigration of any kind.

SOMETHING MAN HAS NOTHING TO SAY ABOUT.

Tacoma, Wash., May 17.—Because, he alleges, her bread was like bricks and her biscuits like stones, T. R. Dunkerley attempted to ptu his cook out of the house. Dunkerley, who is a small man, says the cook refused to go and threatened him. He procured a peace warrant for Jane Doe West. He was told to return and order his cook from the house, and if she refused to go, to call a constable. Soon he called up and said the warrant would have to be served.

Constable Fred Shaw was met at the door by a quiet, inoffensive looking stout woman, who said she was the person he was seeking. She admitted she had refused to leave, saying she had been given the position by Mrs. Dunkerley, who is on a visit to North Yakima and who had ordered her not to leave under any circumstances.

Shaw returned to police court and told the circumstances. Mrs. Wert probably will not be arrested for some time, at least, not on Dunkerley's warrant.

NEW AFRICAN RAILROAD LINE

French Enterprise Proposes a New Route to the East.

New York, May 17.—A Paris letter to the Sun says: France will hold the key to the East if the present gigantic project of the trans-African railroad is carried out. From London to India in less than five days is what M. Gautier, senator and former minister of public works, promises if French genius, French enterprise and French money succeed in building the new railroad across Africa which a group of wide-awake Frenchmen is planning. In time alone the new railroad would mean a saving of 70 per cent, or nine days, in the trip from London to Bombay.

Americans built the trans-American, Russia the trans-Siberian, and, says M. Gautier, France must build the trans-African line, which will open up a new world, unite the East and the West, and make Africa prosperous. As is well known, France finances Russia, and so one may say she financed the greatest of Russian enterprises, the trans-Siberian railroad, the prosperity of which has gone beyond the most optimistic hopes, for on it traffic doubles every year.

The promoters of the African project estimate the distance from Dieppe to the Eastern coast of Africa at 10,000 kilometers. The traveler could leave London, say, on a Sunday evening, and would arrive in Juba on the Indian ocean on the following Thursday, and be in India on Saturday. Naturally, two sea trips confront him, across the channel and across the Indian ocean, but from Gibraltar to Morocco it is planned to transport the trains on ferryboats. The trains would be especially built for travel in hot countries.

Such an undertaking as the construction of the trans-African railroad would not be too great for France to carry out. The total cost would be 3,000,000,000 francs, and this "is in our power to pay," says M. Gautier, who has an accurate knowledge of French financial resources.

From Senegal, from Guinea, from Dahomey, from the Ivory coast, from Congo, from Morocco, Algeria and Tunis connecting lines would necessarily be constructed and would add to the traffic of the railroad. Abyssinia, with her 10,000,000 inhabitants, could run a line from Yuba to the capital.

The success of the trans-African line would change the whole trend of European travel with the Far East. The Mediterranean would become a vast Latin lake, from which passenger boats would little by little disappear.

The route for the projected railroad is from Tangiers to Larache, running along the coast thence to Fez and Taza, afterward toward Figig, Touat and Agadir, then along straight to Lake Tchad, from where it runs along the Chari in its course across Bagirmi, climbing through Abyssinia to find the terminus on the Red sea.

PLAGUE OF RATS IN MINING TOWNS

Suspension of Work in Mines Sends Rats After Food.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., May 17.—The suspension of mining in the anthracite region the last six weeks has brought about a plague of rats in most of the mining towns. Rats are to be seen everywhere. They have overrun the cellars and outbuildings in the towns of Warrior Run and Sugar Notch. When the mines are working the rats, which are of great size, make their home in the underground workings. The miners make pets of them and feed them from their pails.

The average miner is superstitious enough to believe that if the rats remain in the workings there is no danger of an accident. Instinct seems to tell the rat when a fall of roof is threatened, and he takes his departure. When the collieries were shut down and the miners no longer brought their dinner pails into the workings, the rodents were left without food. Hunger compelled them to make their way into cellars and outhouses. Their coming was unexpected, and they devoured everything in the larders the first night. Then they invaded chicken coops, and did not hesitate to attack the biggest chickens in the flock. In a hennery at Warrior Run the rats killed a twelve-pound rooster. There was a hard battle, as the rooster put up a good fight. Nearly all the feathers were torn from his body. The fatal wound was in the neck, where one of the rats bit him and sucked the life blood.

Owners of henneries now stand guard over their properties, and rats are being killed by wholesale.

LIFE OF OHIO YOUNGSTER SAVED BY BANANA PEEL.

Columbus, Ohio, May 17.—His life saved by a banana peel, Harry Nagle, the 4-year-old son of a Columbus man, today enjoys the best of health.

Young Harry, accompanied by his mother, left a Pennsylvania train at the union depot here. The mother turned to watch for some friends that were supposed to meet her and the little tot initiated an exploring expedition. He toddled to another track, on which a switching engine was backing into the station, and was about to jump from the platform, when the mother screamed.

The child ignored her cries and was about to jump in front of the engine, when he stepped on a banana peel and fell. He was unharmed.

S.S.S. CURES ECZEMA, ACNE, TETTER ETC.

While Eczema, Acne, Tetter, Salt Rheum, etc., are troubles which affect the skin, their source is far deeper than the outside cuticle. These affections are caused by irritating humors, or uratic acid in the blood. Such impurities inflame and irritate the delicate net-work of fibrous tissue which lies just beneath the surface of the outer skin, and the inflammatory discharge thus produced is forced out through the pores and glands, and is continually kept up while the blood remains infected. This exudation causes the formation of scales and crusts so often seen in Eczema, and when they are scratched off the flesh is left raw and more susceptible to other infection. It can very readily be seen then that to produce a cure the circulation must be purified and cleansed. This S. S. S. will do. It goes down to the very bottom, removes all humors and impurities, neutralizes the excessive acids of the system and in this way removes the cause of disease. Local applications can only soothe the irritation and assist in keeping the skin clean; they never produce a cure because such treatment does not reach the blood. S. S. S. restores to the thin, acrid blood all its lost properties, makes it pure and rich and enables it to nourish the skin and keep it soft, smooth and healthy. A DEATHBED REPENTENCE.

Governor Adolph O. Eberhart has decided to call an extra session of the Minnesota legislature, to meet Tuesday, June 4, for the purpose of passing a statewide primary law, a reapportionment law and a corrupt practices act.

Better late than never, so far as the good of the state is concerned. There should have been an extra session last winter, not only for the statewide primary and reapportionment, but for a presidential preference primary and an increase in railroad taxes. The proposed extra session comes in the heat of a campaign, and it will be that much harder to get clear, logical action out of a gathering of men with their faces turned toward the home districts where their political fortunes are in issue. Nevertheless, even if it is belated, The Herald is glad there is to be an extra session.

When an extra session was proposed to increase railroad taxes, Governor Eberhart refused to call one on the ground that there was no need of one, that there was no demand for one, that nothing would come of it, and that it would cost too much. Yet a failure to act on railroad taxes at an extra session means an unnecessary delay for two years, and the total loss of two years' increased revenues.

When an extra session was proposed for reapportionment, Governor Eberhart refused to call one, in spite of the fact that he had promised the Northern Minnesota Development association to do so if the legislature failed to act at the regular session. His reasons were that there was no demand for an extra session, that there was no need of one, that the legislature would refuse again to provide reapportionment, and that it would cost too much.

When, with the presidential contest impending, an extra session was proposed for passing a presidential preference primary law, Governor Eberhart refused to call one for the same reasons.

There is no more need of an extra session now than there was then, though there is just as much need. There is no more demand for an extra session now than there was then. The legislature is no more likely to act now than it was then. The session will cost as much now as it would have cost then, if not more because of the political complications that are certain to enter in the midst of a campaign.

The governor, Ed Smith and the state machine were against an extra session in part because the railroads objected to having their taxes increased, in part because the liquor interests did not want reapportionment, in part because of the fear of these and other special interests that popular legislation decreasing their power in politics might be adopted.

But above all, they were against an extra session because they feared that a statewide primary law would be enacted, and that Eberhart would be forced to go directly to people with his campaign for renomination.

And now an extra session is to be called by Governor Eberhart for the express purpose of enacting a statewide primary law.

Does it seem a little hard to understand? It's really very simple.

In the first place, the Republican party of Minnesota, in convention assembled, formally demanded that the state central committee provide machinery by which the voters could express their choice for the governorship at the caucuses. This demand, which the committee refused for the presidential caucuses, could not be ignored when made by the duly delegated representatives of the party, and the machine has lately had a demonstration of what the people can do when aroused.

In the second place, the revelations of Eberhart's weakness made at yesterday's Republican state convention showed the need of some quick and positive action to rehabilitate him in public confidence.

But beyond these things, there is another and a greater reason for the change of mind that has taken place in the machine that governs Minnesota's governor, and this has to do with political tactics.

There is a multiplicity of candidates for the governorship, and there will be more candidates before there are less. The state machine can be depended upon to see to that.

Under the convention system, a multiplicity of candidates would be a menace to Eberhart. Every candidate who could get one, two or a dozen counties away from him would add so many more delegates to the opposition, which could be expected to unite finally on some other candidate than Eberhart.

But under a statewide primary, a multiplicity of candidates is a great advantage to a weak governor. The more the merrier. They will split the opposition, and Eberhart's total in the state might be larger than that of any other single candidate, even though he had but twenty-five per cent of the vote.

There is a way to beat that game, however. This is through the "second choice" primary, which prevents the nomination of a minority candidate. That provision should be made anyway, but the eagerness with which the machine, like a drowning man clutching at a straw, grasps the statewide primary plan, shows that there is peculiar need of it now.

And of course it would be folly to have an extra session without proposing an increase in railroad taxes. A majority of each house is pledged to this reform, and this state is in no position, with the highest state tax rate in forty years, to throw away the millions of dollars that will be lost if no action is taken at the special session.

THE COMMISSION PLAN—DO IT NOW!

There is no longer need of delay in taking up the commission form of government for Duluth.

The supreme court today handed down a decision in the Mankato case, involving the commission plan charter of that city, holding this modern system of business-like city government constitutional.

A year and a half ago The Herald began an active campaign for the commission plan, receiving strong support from the people of Duluth.

The charter commission took up the matter and appointed a sub-committee to investigate the commission plan charters of other cities and to draft one for Duluth.

A doubt was raised as to the constitutionality of the plan. This held up action on it in Duluth. The legislature submitted to the people a constitutional amendment removing this doubt. While Duluth was considering a plan of bringing a test case to settle the point, a test case was brought from Mankato. It is this case which has just been decided.

Duluth need wait no longer. The commission plan is legal, constitutional and above all it is modern, wise, business-like and efficient.

Duluth needs it. Duluth's people want it. Why not go ahead and provide it, giving the people an early opportunity to adopt it?

The commission plan does away with selection of candidates for partisan reasons and substitutes selection for fitness.

It does away with the ward plan of government and substitutes a commission elected from and responsible to the whole city and all parts of the city.

It does away with partisan government and substitutes business government.

It does away with overlapping of authority and failure of authority to reach necessary ends, and substitutes a simple, co-ordinated and efficient commission in which full responsibility is definitely fixed.

By the initiative, referendum and recall, already adopted in Duluth, it assures popular control.

It puts city business on a plain business basis. It eliminates unnecessary expenses and needless wastes.

In almost every one of the two hundred cities in which it has been adopted it has worked out valuable public benefits.

It gives as good public service for less money, better service for the same money, and usually better service for less money.

A cheaper and a better city government is what the commission plan provides.

Duluth wants such a government. There is no obstacle in the way. Let's have it.

He Who Laughs Last.

Ha, ha, ha ha ha ha-ha-ha-ha-ha——hummmmm!

THE Y. W. C. A.

The Young Women's Christian association, which is engaged in an emergency campaign to raise eight thousand dollars, has justified its existence.

Here are a few facts which prove this: It has 1,100 paid members; 625 girls meet weekly in clubs and classes for education, recreation and improvement; 137 girls meet weekly in homemaking clubs and classes; 230 women and girls attend gymnasium classes each week; 125 women and girls use the swimming pool each week; 3 weekly Bible classes are conducted; 350 meals are served daily; 80 young women live in the association building; 3,000 women and girls were helped last year by the travelers' aid department; 150 women and girls without money were given free lodging last year; 650 free meals were served to needy young women last year.

And here are some pointed reasons why the Y. W. C. A. exists in Duluth and why it should be continued and heartily supported:

Because there are now 6,100 wage-earning young women in the city.

Because a home is needed for the protection of young girls away from home, and especially for those on small pay.

Because an organization is needed that unites young women of all conditions in life, of all religions and those of no creed, into a sisterhood for mutual helpfulness.

Because training is needed for home life, a business career and for service to others.

Because women in business life need a downtown home for rest and recreation.

Because hundreds in industrial centers long for a fellowship, a broader outlook and inspiration for right living.

Because all young women need development in their social, physical, intellectual and spiritual lives.

These reasons, which we take from a circular explaining the reason for the present campaign, appeal powerfully to imagination and sympathy.

They should appeal powerfully to the philanthropic instincts of those in a position to help.

Necessary Requirement.

A. J. Baker of Texas has a hankering to be a vice presidential candidate. He'd better hurry up and let the people know his personal peculiarity so they can judge whether they want him in the shoes of Buttermilk Charley and Sunny Jim.

IN KENTUCKY, TOO!

Our impressions of Kentucky courtesy have been rudely jarred.

Ex-Governor Beckham lately came out with a letter in which he intimates pointedly that Col. Henry Watterson is "absolutely devoid of honor and wanting in every instinct of a gentleman."

Col. Watterson promptly responded by calling the ex-governor a "vulgar blackguard" and a "blatherskite whose public life was full of reproach and scandal."

And there is much more of the same on both sides.

Can it be that these Kentucky gentlemen are the unfortunate victims of a joint delusion that they are Col. Roosevelt and President Taft, engaged in a struggle for the presidency?

Down in Madison, Wis., they have a charitable organization called the "Attic Angels." Queer title, that, for a body that aims to help the lowly.

Taft claims there is a conspiracy against him. Sure there is. It is proved every time there is a state primary. And sometimes when there isn't.

Anyway, President Taft is learning a whole new vocabulary that will come in handy if he ever resumes the practice of writing court decisions.

HOW ABOUT DARK HORSES?

By SAVOYARD.

A long time ago a solitary horseman as he traveled along a lonely road came upon two large snakes in mortal combat. Each had the tail of the other in his mouth and was in process of swallowing his enemy. The struggle was long, desperate, insatiate. The traveler was amazed, fascinated by the encounter, and he determined to see it through. About sundown each reptile had conquered, succeeding in devouring the other. Both had disappeared, and to all seeming human vision each was annihilated by the other. This traveler was a truthful man, and that was the tale he told at the village tavern that night.

And that is the sort of a struggle the president and the ex-president appear to be engaged in a political way. Each seems bent on the annihilation of the other. Taft says Roosevelt was a sham reformer; Roosevelt says Taft is a hopeless reactionary. If Taft can compass the defeat of Roosevelt he will exult in his revenge. If Roosevelt can destroy Taft he will gloat over the feat.

If it were the G. O. P. of a third of a century ago short shrift would be given these two. Blaine and Conkling were face to face in the Republican national convention at Cincinnati in 1876. The nomination of either meant disaster. It seemed as though the plumed knight would get the plum, notwithstanding the sunstroke and the "Mulligan letters." Then it was that the sober second thought came to the leaders of the G. O. P. They brought in the "dark horse," Hayes. He had beaten Thurman, Pendleton and Allen in Ohio, and now, plug that he was, he was to take the track from Blaine and enter the race against Tilden. That is the way the Republican party treated its spoiled children in the days of its grandeur.

Four years later, Blaine and Grant were in a desperate struggle for the mastery. The hatred of the one faction for the other was not so virulent, the bitterness not so vulgar, as we see it between the factions of 1912, but the G. O. P. thought more of victory than it did of Grant or Blaine, or Grant and Blaine, so it took both gentlemen down and gave the nomination to a dark horse. And right now that identical situation confronts the party of Lincoln. Do the Taft folk think more of their favorite than they do of the Republican party? Do the Roosevelt people care more for their idol than they care for national victory?

There are forces at work in the Republican party that may accomplish wonderful results. They are going about with lanterns seeking a dark horse, who would give some hope of victory. Report has it that William Barnes of New York is at the head of this movement. He is the grandson of a man who nominated and elected two presidents, and, by the narrowest margin, failed to nominate another man who would have been elected had he been selected to head the ticket. Mr. Barnes, Republican leader though he be, successor in that station of Roscoe Conkling, is the nephew of Smith M. Weed, the last trusted of all the counsellors of Samuel J. Tilden. He knows the game thoroughly. He is a politician practical in every particular, and what is now become much to the point, Mr. Barnes is respectable, eminently so, and he is commander-in-chief of the "Old Guard" of the G. O. P. He will be a conspicuous figure at Chicago—the first and foremost personality of the convention.

There is talk of Justice Hughes as a dark horse. Of course the movement in his behalf must be initiated by the Taft people. He is no reactionary. He was governor of New York and accomplished some noted reforms over the opposition of powerful combinations organized from both parties. If the American people were satisfied that he would make as good a president as he was a governor, there is little doubt that he would be drafted from the supreme bench and made the Republican nominee.

But everbody says that Hughes does not want to be president and would not accept the nomination if it came to him by acclaim, and some of the men who love the Republican party more than they love Taft, or Roosevelt, think they see a splendid dark horse in Theodore E. Burton, who comes from the state of dark horses—Hayes and Garfield. With the Democrats moderately sane, Ohio will be a doubtful state if the Democrats show ordinary sagacity and have for adversary either the president or his predecessor. But Burton would take Ohio out of the Democratic column. He would carry the state beyond question.

Certainly Burton was the ablest man on the Republican side of the house in every congress he sat after the retirement of Tom Reed, and certainly he has been the ablest man on the Republican side of the senate every day he has been a member of that body—abler than Hale, or Lodge, or Heyburn, or Root. It is a mystery that he did not get to be leader of the house, and it can only be explained by taking into account the innate and inveterate modesty of the man. If he were as self-assertive as Champ Clark, or Mann of Illinois, or Beveridge of Indiana, or Bailey of Texas, or Heyburn of Idaho, he would be the unchallenged leader of his party in the American senate.

But he is something more than a bucketful of brains. He has character. His integrity has not been suspected for one moment, though he was many years head of the river and harbor committee. It is true that he was beaten by Tom Johnson for mayor of Cleveland, but at that time Tom could have beaten for that office R. B. Hayes, or James A. Garfield, or William McKinley, or John Sherman, or Mark Hanna, or any other Republican Ohio ever produced. Indeed, he could have beaten Teddy Roosevelt himself.

A good many folk think that when the G. O. P. gets to Chicago June 18, it will be confronted with this proposition: "A dark horse or defeat." We all know what the party of Grant would have responded to that. And if the party of 1912 has not parted with the abundant sagacity it showed for more than two-score years, it is quite likely to order, June 18, 1912—"Rise up, Teddy Burton, it's your time at bat."

WE REFUSE TO ANSWER.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Here is another easy problem to solve:

In the year of two-three-o-o-two,
Some beings who'd been in a stew,
Since the year two-two-two,
Were all given their due—
A sum of mills—same for each—was found due.
Now had their number decreased
By two-elevenths of their number at least,
The whole number of mills,
Equally apportioned by bills,
Would among their nine-elevenths have meant
That to each there would still have been sent
A whole number of mills, in payment of bills.
Now this is the problem to do—
And quickly it's done, it is true:
What numbers, the smallest, for beings and mills
Will to all the conditions be true?

HAS ONE ANSWER.

To the Editor of The Herald:

The problem of finding the pig's weight, which appeared in this evening's issue, may be solved as follows:

The lesser weight on long end of board must be 139-160 of the greater weight in both weighings. The question boils down to "what number holds same proportion to 160 as 160 does to 139?"

Answer 160-139x160—184.1727 lbs.
Less woman's weight 139. lbs.

Weight of pig 45.1727 lbs.

Yours respectfully, J. A. M.

"Mob Rule" in Kansas.

Kansas City Star: In this week's number of the Saturday Evening Post, Walter Roscoe Stubbs submits an article to show how Kansas has prospered under "mob rule," meaning, of course, the rule of the direct primary.

Better laws for the people, more stringently enforced than ever before, better conditions in the state government, greater efficiency in the public service, the elimination of the control of railroads in politics, the control of public service corporations and the reduction of freight and passenger rates have resulted from the progressive movement in Kansas, Governor Stubbs declares.

The standpatters in both political parties have fought every advance that has been made, while the progressives of both parties have united to bring about the conditions that exist now and with which the very large majority of the people are well satisfied.

And the thing that has enabled the Progressive Republicans and Progressive Democrats to accomplish so much has been the direct primary law. Without it progressives could not have nominated their candidates nor enforced the proper legislation.

If that is "mob rule" the standpatters will have to make the best of it, so far as Kansas is concerned, for the people of that state have no idea of going back to the old order. If either party fails to live up to the progressive standard the voters will take the party that stands with the people. The direct primary has destroyed the influence of the party whip.

Progressive Economy.

For simon-pure economy she surely set the pace.
She made her own cheap dress at home and trimmed it with old lace;
And then to match the lace she bought a forty-dollar hat,
And a twenty-dollar parasol to harmonize with that.

To give the hat a jaunty cast, she needed much new hair,
And then her gloves were out of tone,
And so she got a pair;
And next she bought some dainty shoes
—ten dollars more or less—
And last a sixty-dollar gown—then threw away the dress!

THE GOVERNORSHIP.

What's This?

Fergus Falls Journal: In case there should be any doubt about Otter Tail county going for the governor, all that will be necessary will be to send some of this money up to Col. L. E. Davison, the oil inspector, and he will have no difficulty in rounding up a carload of delegates and bringing them down to outvote the delegates from the precincts where caucuses have been held. Meantime, the state tax rate is the highest ever, and continues to climb. The people eventually pay the freight.

Will It Work?

St. Hilaire Spectator: Eberhart is now trying to ride two horses by trying to climb on the rear of the Roosevelt band wagon, observes W. G. Hunt in his Sunbeam. "Anything to get that coon," is the principle of the governor.

The Governor's Love.

Northfield News: Governor Eberhart entertained the Minneapolis Elks recently with the popular skit entitled, "I Love You Only." Of course, the real title of the ditty was, "I Love You Only When You Vote."

No Joke.

Fairmont Sentinel: The Minneapolis Journal makes it out that Governor Eberhadt is a joke. But it's no laughing matter to the people of Minnesota.

What a Question!

Montevideo Leader: Sam Gordon stands squarely in opposition to the brewery-owned saloon. Where does Eberhart stand on that important question?

Some May Sink.

Cambridge North Star: Someone ought to have the Eberhart ship inspected and see if he has a sufficient number of lifeboats aboard. A great many will be needed on July 2.

Dead Willing.

Pine River Blaze: The "Old Man" of the Menahga Journal insists that Gordon was given a place on the ticket two years ago for the sake of harmony. That's right, Kelley. Ed Smith and his gang would be perfectly willing to make a similar deal this year for the sake of "harmony."

He Would Learn.

Northfield News: Governer Eberhart should employ Chester A. Congdon of Duluth to tutor him before he takes the stump in earnest. There are a few things about the state's finances Governor Eberhart does not know.

He Couldn't Tell a Lie.

George Washington, the school books say, could never tell a lie,
Although he was a married man, but they don't tell us why.
We'd like to know the inside facts and how it was, forsooth,
That George could ever get along by sticking to the truth.

If he should run for president, and party leaders wrote
A platform he could stand upon to catch the party vote,
Would he say he'd carry out each plank right in its place,
Or would he throw it in the air and pull out of the race?

Would he assure each candidate for every job in sight
That there was not a doubt but he'd get the place all right?
Or would he give up and resign his job right on the spot?
Perhaps he couldn't tell a lie, but times have changed a lot.

—St. Joseph Gazette.

Life's Presidential Candidate.

Life: We beg leave to present the name of William Howard Taft for the presidency in 1912. Here is one of the few men who are not only willing but anxious to accept this great responsibility. He is so anxious that he will take long trips and make long speeches regardless of whether any one is listening to him or not. He is conscientious and a devotee of baseball. If he makes mistakes, he may not be willing to rectify them, but he is willing to apologize.

We need a man in the presidential chair who loves courts and loves judges. Mr. Taft loves both of these things from the bottom of his heart. They typify his ideals on earth of what we may expect to meet afterward in Heaven under a just God. That is a great deal. This man should be carefully considered.

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1892.

•••D. V. Scott of Carlton was in the city today and brought samples of iron ore found near the village. They were found about six inches below the surface and are of good appearance. Assays run as high as 65 per cent of iron and considerably below the Bessemer limit in phosphorus. The ore runs in a vein and there are outcroppings for a distance of half a mile.

THE MINNESOTA PRIMARY.

St. Cloud Journal-Press: The Duluth Herald informs the Journal-Press that it (The Herald) is not advocating the abolition of parties. The Journal-Press had not the slightest intention of misrepresenting its esteemed contemporary; and perhaps read too deeply between the lines, when The Herald said:

"So far not much good to the nation has come out of party organizations. They have served chiefly as convenient machinery by which special privilege-seeking interests could control the governmental processes. These interests were always ready with campaign funds, and with money as the key they have little difficulty in entering the citadel of government through the back door of party control."

In a later issue it says:

"However, while it is entirely logical and proper to decide national elections on national issues, it is entirely illogical and absurd to decide state elections on national issues; and now that the Journal-Press speaks of it we can see no possible objection to abolishing partisanship in state elections. We certainly do believe that the application of the short ballot idea to state governments, so that only the governor, lieutenant governor, legislature and supreme court would be elected by the people, and the governor would appoint all state officers and become personally responsible for their behavior in office, with the adoption of the initiative and the referendum to check the legislature, and the adoption of the recall to check both the legislature and the governor, would be a long step toward efficiency and economy in state government. However, it is a step that will not be taken immediately."

By which it will be seen that the Journal-Press did not so greatly misrepresent The Herald. Neither has it any quarrel with the position taken by The Herald.

The question which is being discussed by the Journal-Press and The Herald is to better the present primary law. Both agree that it should be improved, and both agree that the present plan of permitting any man to get on the official tickets as a party candidate simply by filing as such, when there is no demand for him, and often crowding out better men, should be eliminated.

The Herald plan is to have candidates circulate a petition, and we presume secure a certain per cent of the voters of his party. This would be an improvement of the present law, but personally we do not consider a petition as very representative of the real wishes of the people.

The Journal-Press suggested that each party hold conventions and candidates receiving say 30 per cent of the delegates, have their names placed on the primary ballot, and the nominations to be made by the people. Any man worthy of being a candidate of his party would easily secure 20 per cent of the delegates of his party. We would also retain the present feature of the law permitting the filing of independent candidates.

We would also make more stringent provisions to prevent the members of one party voting for the candidates of the other party.

If we are to have political parties, the members of each party should have the fullest and freest right to select their own candidates. We object to the present law because the people really have little to say about the selection of their party candidates.

If any mistakes are made by any party in presenting candidates the voters of all parties have their remedy in the final election by the Australian ballot, where each man can vote as he pleases.

If parties are to be abolished, then the ballot as provided by the commission form of government should be used and we are not sure but that will be the final solution of the whole question so far as the states are concerned.

The Journal-Press would not unduly emphasize party control—but if we are to have political parties let the members of the party have the privilege of selecting their own candidates, and not be forced to choose between a few self-seekers. The greater number of citizens who take part in the selection and election of candidates the better for the state and nation.

We favor any plan that will most surely accomplish this result. That is the reason why we advocate a statewide and preferential presidential primary.

A Due Process Exhibit.

New York Globe: Mr. Albert M. Kales of the Chicago bar has collected some good samples of the workings of the due process clause. Here are eight of them—laws which the Illinois supreme court has held void on the ground that they violated the state constitution by depriving somebody of liberty or property without due process of law:

An act compelling mine owners to weigh coal mined and to pay miners on the basis of such weight.

An act regulating the keeping of truck stores by owners of coal mines and owners of factories.

An act forbidding the employment of barbers on Sunday.

A loan shark act, regulating the assignment of future wages as security for money borrowed and requiring the assignment to be recorded and to be signed by the borrower's wife.

An act penalizing employers in the importation of workmen from another state by reason of deceit touching the matter of the existence of a strike or the sanitary condition of the employment.

An act requiring owners of mines to provide a washroom at the top of the mine for the use of the miners.

An act prohibiting more than six persons sleeping in one room in a lodging house.

An act prescribing an eight-hour day for women in certain occupations.

The Illinois supreme court has held that these acts took away liberty or property without due process of law.

The Cowardice of Money.

Toledo Blade: Nine out of ten Americans who have acquired their fortunes through their own efforts have made their way by the exercise of boldness more than by the strength of their wills. They have tried. They have dared. They have taken chances. Knocked down, they have climbed again to their feet and gone through the self-same process of playing their wits with fate. No story of American life is more romantic, more inspiriting than that which has to do with the rise out of lowly origins of some of our commercial and industrial leaders.

But there is a pitiful side to the picture. Once these men have acquired power and fortune they begin to tremble. Their courage oozes out of their shoes. They fear change as they once welcomed it. They put their energies into upholding the order of the times as in their bold youth they gave their whole soul to the joyful business of assaulting the order established by their predecessors. They have ceased to march and now entrench their camps.

In the present political campaign, the rich men of America are not studying, not thinking of the merits of the issues raised. They are thinking of their treasure chests. They are thinking of their position in the world. And since it is now become their habit to quake at every passing breeze of change, they grab up their money bags and pack like so many rabbits in a drive about the banner of the man who stands for an unchanging world. Money does make cowards of them all.

The Lesson of the Titanic.

Louis F. Post in the Public: It cannot be from any lack of democratic instinct that beneficiaries of privilege are selfishly indifferent to the heart-sickening perennial tragedies of our industrial life. These folk are like all other folks; they have the same mixed impulses of selfishness, generosity and fairness, not very different can any of them be from those of their own class who went down on the Titanic. If they are careless of the awful industrial tragedies, or cold toward them, it must be because their democracy is not awakened. On that doomed vessel, along with their brethern of all classes there, those children of privilege, face to face with the tragic, were as democratic and as brave as any. But the industrial tragedies—these they do not feel, these they do not see, these are unreal to them, these they face, if they face, them at all, only as conditions for charitable relief and not as preventable disasters of the social seas. The thrilling fact never stirs them, that they themselves flourish luxuriously upon the very tragedies that submerge their brethren in an ocean of servitude and poverty. What they lack is not democracy, but imagination.

Let the privileged see the industrial tragedies they thrive upon, make them realize the tragical cost of their selfish luxury, and their icy greed will melt in the heat of their democracy. Real as their selfishness is, truly as it helps to make poverty and crime, it is no more basic or controlling with their class than with any other. Men of the kind who go bravely to death in sinking ships when rescue appliances are inadequate for all, will as bravely give up their industrial privileges, once they understand that privilege for some spells disaster for others. Let their imaginations be fired, and they will feel their brotherhood and think of its responsibilities. Their sense of democracy will do the rest. And their imaginations can be fired, but not through calls to a war of classes, however, peaceable in form. They must be fired by appeals to the democratic sense of brotherly rights and duties as opposed to undemocratic privilege and the unbrotherly classes that privilege produces.

Counter Irritations.

Life: They say our Charles Murphy is for Mr. Underwood. It is awful for Mr. Underwood to have Mr. Murphy accept him, but, after all, it isn't so bad as it is for Champ Clark to find his chief backer in Mr. Hearst.

J. F. McConnell, Greencastle, Ind., president De Pauw university, 215.

Other candidates who received 200 or more votes on the first ballot are: Matt S. Hughes, pastor, Pasadena, Cal., whose brother, Edwin H. Hughes, now is a bishop, 299; W. O. Shepard, district superintendent, Chicago, 299; N. Luccock, pastor, Kansas City, Mo., 212; and Andrew Gillies, pastor, Minneapolis, 210.

Candidates for Vacancies.

Of the 244 candidates voted upon on the first ballot it is expected that with the continuing of the balloting scores will be dropped as their complimentary votes go to what are termed the "real candidates" for the seven remaining appointments as bishops.

Numerous candidates, it is said, are out for the various positions, which probably will be made by the election of some of the present holders to the position of bishops or "general superintendents," which title was created at the Baltimore conference when the term "presiding elder" was changed to that of "district superintendent." This latter title may be abolished before the conference closes, as several memorials have been presented to committees on the subject.

Hear Governor Eberhart.

Governor Eberhart of Minnesota addressed the conference and declared the great work of the church was to make the rural life more attractive and the city life more wholesome.

A resolution to have the delegations change seats every week so that those in the rear could have a chance to sit in the front of the house, was voted down, as was also a suggestion that the standing committees be made smaller.

A reception to fraternal delegtaes from the colored Methodist Episcopal church, African Methodist Episcopal church, Zion, and the African Methodist Episcopal church, was held last night.

Football Question Raised.

Among the overtures from synods and presbyteries are:

From the Bellefontaine presbytery, asking action calling upon college presidents to consider the influence of intercollegiate football on students.

From the Portland presbytery on the subject of union among Presbyterian, Congregational and Methodist churches.

From mthe Bellefontaine presbytery, asking the assembly to incorporate bodily the latest metrical version of the psalms in the Presbyterian hymnal.

From the presbytery of Kansas City, asking the assembly to use for immediate purposes some of the Robert Kennedy legacy to the church extension board.

From the Presbytery of Chester, asking for the exclusive use of the Holy Scriptures as the text in all Sabbath school institutions, and that all comments and explanations thereon be in harmony with the standards of the church and the Word of God.

Wells County Fair Plans.

Fessenden, N. D., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—July 8, 9 and 10 are the dates selected by the board of directors of the Wells County Fair association for the annual fair. T. L. Quarve, H. B. Crinklaw and Jacob Bohnet were named an executive committee to begin preparations at once. Plans for strong entertainment features are under consideration.

JURY FINDS FLOYD ALLEN GUILTY IN FIRST DEGREE

should be a tendency to different views and positions.

Judge Staples declared the jury had not been sworn to do other than to reach one conclusion—the guilt or innocence of the accused. He said if the jurors lost sight of that issue in any private individual opinion, they would do wrong to themselves, an unintended violence to their obligation, and grave injustice either to the commonwealth or to the accused.

Get the Wrong Form.

The jury again retired and it was but a short time before announcement was made an agreement had been reached. When court reassambled the foreman read the verdict of "guilty as charged in the indictment."

Judge Staples held that was not the proper form. The foreman then explained that the verdict was one of guilty in the first degree, the penalty being electrocution.

Floyd Allen was charged specifically at this time with the murder of Commonwealth Attorney Foster, prosecutor in the Carroll county court at Hillsville, last March, when a former trial of Floyd Allen on a minor charge culminated in the killing of five persons—Presiding Judge Thornton, L. Massie, Prosecutor William Foster, Sheriff L. F. Webb, Miss Elizabeth Ayres and Juror Augustus Fowler.

The tragedy created a panic in the little mountainside town of Hillsville, where the inhabitants always regarded the Allen clan with terror.

Leader of Clan at Large.

Arrests of several of the Allens followed the shooting, but five of the principals escaped to the mountains. Rewards for their arrest resulted in three being taken, but Sidna Allen, leader of the clan, and Wesley Edwards, his nephew, still are at large.

The other prisoners, it is said, will be tried immediately.

Thompson Richeson, at the time of his arrest pastor of Immanuel church of Cambridge, was sentenced to die in the electric chair, was the confessed murder of his former sweetheart, 19-year-old Avis Linnell of Hyannis, a pupil in the New England Conservatory of Music, in Boston. This girl stood in the way of Richeson's marriage to Violet Edmands, a society girl and heiress of Brookline, both through an engagement which still existed between the two and because of the condition in which Miss Linnell found herself. The girl was deceived into taking a poison given her by Richeson, which she believed would remedy that condition, and she died in her rooms at the Boston Young Women's Christian association on the evening of Oct. 14, 1911, the day on which invitations were issued for the wedding of Richeson and Miss Edmands.

Baptized His Victim.

Richeson first met Miss Linnell when he became pastor of the Baptist church at Hyannis in 1909. He was 33 years old and she 17. Her father was Edgar Linnell, a contractor and builder. The girl joined Richeson's church, was baptized by him and became a member of his choir. In a short time she displayed a diamond ring and told friends that she was to marry the young minister.

In June, 1910, Richeson had trouble with his deacons, caused by his impetuous manner and violent language. He also got into trouble over the loss of $50 which a caller had forgotten and left in a purse in his study. He insisted he had been robbed of the money, but it was learned he had sent a similar sum by money order to a woman in Salt Lake City, Utah, buying the order in a nearby town. He shortly resigned his pastorate and went to Immanuel church, Cambridge.

Urging that by cultivating her voice she would be that much more help to him in his work, Richeson induced Miss Linnell to leave home and go to the Boston conservatory. He persuaded her to room at the Y. W. C. A. and they met frequently after she had gone to Boston.

Wooed Brooklyn Heiress.

But the larger sphere and new atmosphere in which he found himself led the minister to pay court to Miss Violet Edmands, daughter of Moses Grant Edmands, a prominent Baptist layman and trustee of the Newton Theological seminary, from which Richeson had graduated. Miss Edmands was prominent socially, was wealthy in her own right and also was entitled to a share in an estate of $800,000 left by her grandfather. Entrance to her exclusive home in Brookline was easy for the young man as pastor of the church which her family attended.

One day Richeson borrowed the ring he had given Avis Linnell, saying the stone needed resetting. He never gave it back. Soon afterward the newspapers announced his engagement to Miss Edmands, but he denied it to Miss Linnell and her family as a "newspaper fake," and they believed him.

On the day the invitations for this wedding were issued, Richeson took Miss Linnell out to dinner. That evening she was found dying in a bathroom of the Y. W. C. A. dressed in her bathrobe, her feet in a tub of hot water and a fresh change of clothing beside here. Half an hour later she died in great agony.

Denied Her Acquaintance.

As a near friend, Richeson was notified of her death, and at first he denied knowing her. Before hanging up the telephone receiver he admitted an acquaintance and asked, "Did she say anything before she died?" He was assured to the contrary.

The autopsy revealed that she had died of poison and her condition led at first to a theory of suicide. This was denied by her family and the police and newspapers at once began an investigation. Several incidents bearing on the case developed, among them the following:

On the day following the girl's death, Richeson, in his prayer at the regular church service, referred briefly to the death of a near friend. That afternoon, at the home of a parishioner, he was able to eat but little and spent hours lying on a couch, saying that he was overcome by the death of a "dear friend." That night he went to the home of Miss Edmands, to whom he was to be married a week or two later, and stayed there in seclusion until his arrest.

Her Only Man Friend.

Avis Linnell was found to have had no male friend except Richeson. The dinner together on the day of her death became known through a woman who had heard him make the appointment over the telephone. Richeson's landlady told of his having borrowed a bowl from her, later returning it with a caution that it had better be well washed because it had "had poisoned paste in it." A druggist told of Richeson's buying some cyanide of potassium for him "to kill a dog that was about to have puppies." A confectioner told of selling Richeson some candy like some that was found in Miss Linnell's room after her death.

Richeson's arrest was made only after the police had been refused admittance to the Edmands home, had watched outside it all night and had threatened to break in the door next morning. He was arraigned on Oct. 31, the day set for his marriage to Miss Edmands. Meanwhile he wrote to his congregation, asking them to suspend judgment on him until he had been tried. On Nov. 1 he sent his resignation as pastor, but it was rejected after a stormy session. Soon he was indicted on five counts. Another resignation was accepted by his church on Nov. 24. At his arraignment he had pleaded not guilty and his trial was set for Jan. 15 of this year.

Meantime the police set about looking up his life from the very date of his birth and established the following facts:

He was born at Rose Hill, Va., thirty-five years ago; attended school at Amherst Courthouse, Va., and later went to Carrolton, Mo., to work for a brother and attend an academy there; three years later he entered William Jewell college to study for the ministry, meanwhile supplying in neighboring pulpits; during his college days he became engaged to a professor's daughter and borrowed money from her, but she developed tuberculosis and went to Sale Lake city, where she still lives; he was expelled from William Jewell for cheating in examinations shortly after being ordained pastor of the First Baptist church of St. Louis, Mo. For a time he worked as a street car conductor and was prominent in a strike there.

Involved With a Widow.

While a pastor in Kansas City, Mo., Richeson became involved with a widow, and fainted one Sunday on seeing her enter the church. Her brother called at his rooms later and Richeson left town, writing to his trustees that he was "driven out by jealous women."

At another of his services three young women rose simultaneously and each demanded whether he intended to marry her; the sensation the incident caused led to a request for his resignation. There also were rumors of his interest in women after he began his pastorate in Massachusetts in 1909.

On Dec. 20, last year, Richeson mutilated himself while in his cell in the Charles street jail, in Boston. Public sympathy turned from him with that act, which was generally construed as an admission of guilt, and at Hyannis, Miss Linnell's home, he was hung in effigy, with a placard on the dummy with the words: "Guilty. Read Luke xvii, 2." A conference of Baptist ministers was called in Boston and Richeson was deprived of his title of "Reverend."

Confessed His Guilt.

Richeson confessed his guilt in a statement written by him on Jan. 3, this year, and given out by his counsel three days later. It was addressed to his lawyers, and read:

"Deeply penitent before my sins, and earnestly desiring as far as in my power lies to make atonement, I hereby confess that I am guilty of the offence of which I stand indicted. I am moved to this course by no inducement of self benefit of leniency. Heinous as is my crime, God has not wholly abandoned me, and my conscience and manhood, however depraved and blighted, will not admit of my still further wronging by a public trial her whose pure young life I have destroyed.

"Under the lashings of remorse I have suffered and am suffering the tortures of the damned. In this I find a measure of comfort. In my mental anguish I recognize there is still, by the mercy of the Master, some remnant of the divine spark of goodness still lingering with me. I could wish to live only because within some prison's walls I might, in some small measure, redeem my sinful past, help some despairing soul and at last find favor with my God."

On Jan. 9, Richeson pleaded guilty and was sentenced to be electrocuted in the week of May 19. His lawyers have done their utmost to secure a commutation of his sentence, claiming insanity due to abnormal traits, which they admitted would not be legal ground for leniency, but might be regarded as having a unique character that would warrant clemency. Richeson himself sent a petition in formal tone, and some acquaintances filed affidavits with Governor Foss alleging traits of insanity in his family.

Governor Foss had the privilege of recommending clemency before the executive council, but he first appointed three alienists to examine Richeson. They reported that Richeson was sane, both at the time of the crime and at present, though he was near insanity through fear, and on their report the governor decided not to make the recommendation for clemency.

SPEND $1,307,000 ON MISSISSIPPI

Commission Telegraphs From St. Louis to Washington for Funds.

St. Louis, Mo., May 17.—The Mississippi commission met here this morning to complete arrangements for bank and levee improvements to cost $1,307,000. A telegram was sent to the chief of engineers at Washington last night asking for that amount, following a special meeting at which plans were made to combat the unusual flood conditions in the Mississippi valley.

Work on the levees will commence as soon as the allotment is granted by the government, which is expected in a few days. The money will come out of an emergency appropriation made by congress April 30.

The first work, according to announcement this morning, will be around Cairo, Ill., and the Reel Foot lake district. Levee reinforcements at Hickman, Ky., and New Madrid, Mo., will be taken up next. The work will extend from Cape Girardeau, Mo., to the Gulf of Mexico.

SLUM GIRLS TO VISIT FINE HOME

Unusual Experiment in Sociology to Be Undertaken in St. Louis.

St. Louis, Mo., May 17.—A most unusual experiment in sociology is about to be undertaken in St. Louis. According to the plans ten little girls are to be taken from their squalid homes in the worst section of the slum district of this city and brought into one of the beautiful homes of the West end for one day each week. There, under careful observation and discriminating guidance they are to be allowed to develop whatever talents they may possess.

The idea is that by studying the individual and helping each according to her disposition and natural inclinations, and at the same time giving her the benefit of instruction along whatever lines in which she seems to show special aptitude, a greater good can be accomplished than by trying to help this type of girl as a class.

The originator of this plan is Mrs. Jessie A. Cost of No. 6041 Waterman avenue, an earnest and tireless charity worker. It is to her home that the girls are to go.

Mrs. Cost will supervise their work and play during their weekly visits and teach them simple, homely industries, such as sewing on buttons, darning stockings and mending frocks. Later she will instruct them in the art of cutting and making their own garments.

They will be encouraged to bring their old garments for repairs, and each new garment made will belong to the one who makes it. Mrs. Cost will pay their carfare both ways and will furnish all material for their work. She will encourage friendly rivalry by rewarding good work and make them mutually helpful by allowing each in turn to act as instructor in something she has learned herself.

The educational side of the experiment will be accomplished through reading. One of Mrs. Cost's friends will read aloud to the children while they work, always selecting stories that will carry something of value to their untaught minds.

FOR DEAD OF THE TITANIC

Thousands Shed Tears at Impressive Services Held in London.

Dead March in "Saul" Follows Singing of "Rock of Ages."

Out of the sunlit streets, gay with the beauty of life, there came into the dim twilight and into the great hush of St. Paul's cathedral a vast crowd of men and women, moved by an emotion as poignant as unshed tears, says the London Chronicle.

These people of life came to think of death. They came to express their pity for a great human tragedy which for a little while, in its awfulness, has made our brotherhood close its ranks like little children who cling together in fear and grief.

These people of all classes, of spiritual belief and unbelief, came out of the streets of London to pray for those who have passed through the waters of death and for those who have been left behind to weep. Seldom within living memory has any service in St. Paul's spoken so directly to the hearts of the people who listened and who answered with tears.

The Comradeship of Grief.

Outside the newspaper placards were telling in grim, black letters, the awful tale of the Titanic. Out of the long silence there had come the first tidings of how brave men died and of how love and chivalry shone above the black terror of it all. It was with these messages speaking to them that the great crowds streamed toward the steps of St. Paul's and surged into its nave.

The great doors were closed an hour before the service. The cathedral was full and many were left outside. It was a vast black multitude, ten thousand in all, upon which shafts of light poured down from the high windows. But here and there those glancing rays fell upon colored ribbons and the flowers in women's hats, even red ties worn by men whose hearts were in mourning. What did it matter how people came dressed?

The lord mayor came in state, preceded by his mace bearer and officers, and there were aldermen is their scarlet cloaks, but no one raised his head to see this passing pageantry, eclipsed by the spirit of haunting sadness.

Relatives of the Lost.

In the church were some relatives of those who were lost, among them Herbert Stead, brother of the great journalist. The French ambassador's presence expressed the profound sympathy of France, and the consul general of the United States was not the only American who mourned for his countrymen and ours under the roof of St. Paul's.

Then as the dean and canons and choir of the cathedral took their places the organ burst forth, and thousands of papers rustled like the leaves of a forest stirred by a great wind. The whole congregation rose and sang the first hymn, but though a multitude was singing it was very soft and low.

Rock of Ages, cleft for me.
Let me hide myself in Thee.

The grand words of the hymn rose tremulously. It was almost like a whisper set to music, and there was a sob in the voice of the people.

After the intoning of the lesson there was a great silence for a little while. Then suddenly there was a vague, soft noise. It was as though great birds were fluttering their wings outside the windows of the cathedral. The noise increased. It was the sound of a mighty wind.

Recalled the Scene of Death.

Louder and louder it grew as the ruffle was played on the massed drums, until the vast cathedral was filled with a tempest of prodigious sound as though all the winds of heaven were rushing over the heads of the people, as though the sea were rising in fury. Then came the boom of great guns, the echo of tremendous thunder, and great gashes as though the sky were rent.

That music of the drums was magnificent and awe-inspiring. It was the story of the Titanic in its last agony. Through the dim light between the pillars one saw that mighty ship struck by a mortal blow. One saw it stagger and reel above the waters. One heard the dreadful voice of nature pronouncing its doom. One heard the groans of its people, the last great noise as it sank into the depths, and then the gradual stilling of the engulfing waters that reigned over the scene of the dreadful tragedy.

The Dead March in "Saul."

Now, as when soldiers and heroes go to their graves, the dead march in "Saul" was played, and again the drums thundered as though great guns were being fired in the last salute to men who have found victory in death.

There were many persons weeping while that tune of death was played. There were soldiers and sailors in St. Paul's who have heard it played for dead comrades, and they, too, stood erect, with tears streaming down their cheeks, not ashamed of tears. It may be said in all sincerity that the hearts of all these people were stirred to their uttermost depths by thoughts deeper than may be put into words, by a human pity touched by the divine spirit of compassion.

HUSBAND'S COLD FEET CAUSE OF A DIVORCE.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 17.—Because John G. Wilfer, a wisp of a man weighing 120 pounds, a prominent merchant of Hazelwood, defiantly and vengefully placed his cold feet on his 300-pound buxom wife's warm back after he had returned home from business and found no fire burning in the bedroom, Judge Cohen in common pleas court granted Anne M. Wilfer an absolute divorce.

At the hearing of the case Mrs. Wilfer recited a long story of alleged abuses at the hands of her husband. Yet all these indignities, Mrs. Wilfer claimed, paled into insignificance in comparison with "placing his ice-cold feet on her warm back."

Wilfer claimed that all their troubles were due to his mother-in-law, who came to live with her daughter, and immediately attempted to assume supervision of his life and the household. Because he would not sign a paper placing his wife's property, valued at $50,000, in trust, Wilfer says, his mother-in-law became a disturber and a menace to his home.

READY TO QUIT TAFT

Southern Delegates Prepared to Abandon the President's Candidacy.

Taft Leaders, Fearing a Stampede, Are Making Desperate Efforts.

Washington, May 17.—That the Southern delegates are prepared to abandon the candidacy of President Taft and turn to the support of Theodore Roosevelt is indicated in correspondence made public here by Senator Dixon, the Roosevelt manager. It became definitely known that John C. Capers, South Carolina's Republican national committeeman, has enlisted in the fight for Colonel Roosevelt. It became definitely known that John C. Capers has a strong influence in the South outside of his own state, and his advocacy of the Roosevelt candidacy has made a profound impression on the Taft management, which now is fearful of a stampede among the delegates in the Southern states.

Of the delegates claimed for Taft 198 come from the South, Alaska, District of Columbia, Hawaii, Porto Rico and the Philippines. In the list is South Carolina's block of eighteen delegates. According to information obtained by Senator Dixon thirteen and probably fifteen of the South Carolina delegates have decided to support Col. Roosevelt.

Major L. W. C. Blalock, Goldville, S. C., Roosevelt manager for that state, wrote Senator Dixon as follows:

Expects Fully Thirteen for Colonel.

"The delegates from South Carolina, under the leadership of federal officeholders here, were, with few exceptions, instructed for Taft, but under conditions which prevented them from having a fair understanding as to Col. Roosevelt's actual or prospective candidacy. National Committeeman John G. Capers and myself, representing Col. Roosevelt's interests in South Carolina, confidently expect thirteen of the eighteen delegates, and probably fifteen to vote for Roosevelt at Chicago."

More significant than the letter received from Major Blalock was one that came from C. G. Garrett, editor of a negro newspaper in South Carolina. Mr. Garrett wrote from Kansas City, where he is in attendance as a delegate to the African Methodist Episcopal conference. His letter says:

"I find everything in this section of the country for Col. Roosevelt for president. The effort to stir up prejudice against him on account of the Brownsville matter has fallen flat. The colored voters throughout Kansas, Missouri and Iowa and all of the states represented here seem to know that the colonel is their friend, and are willing to trust him.

Predicts Colonel Will Win.

"It seems a foregone conclusion in this part of the country that the colonel will be nominated on the first ballot and defeat the Democratic candidate for president in November."

A prominent member of the Virginia delegation, who voluntarily pledged himself to the Taft candidacy, has announced privately here that sentiment in his district is so overwhelmingly for Roosevelt that it would be political suicide for him to go counter to it.

Reports of Taft defections among the Alabama, Georgia, Mississippi and Louisiana delegations are current in Washington, and they are generally credited by both Taft and Roosevelt leaders. If President Taft should lose the Southern delegation en bloc, a contingency feared by his managers, doubt is expressed that he would permit his name to go before the convention.

Desperate efforts are now being made by the Taft managers to hold the Southern delegates, but men close to Director McKinley concede that if Ohio goes for Roosevelt, as now seems probable, the Taft cause in the South will be lost.

The Roosevelt estimate of delegate strength in Ohio was raised during the day from thirty-two to forty.

"More likely it will be more than forty," declared Senator Dixon, speaking at Roosevelt headquarters. "That isn't cheating either; I guess, perhaps, when we give out advance estimates, nowadays, it is understood that we mean what we say. Our mistakes in forecasting results, all along, have been on the side of conservatism. Get 'em, compare 'em with the returns, and see."

Even in some of the inner Taft circles there are serious stories that the president may lose every congressional district in Ohio, but one, in Cincannati.

WOMEN WANT MORE OF THEIR SEX AS POLICEMEN.

Oakland, Cal., May 17.—Appropriations for policewomen for Oakland are to be included in the next budget of the city of Oakland if the women of several organizations interested in the matter have their way.

Mrs. Alice Stebbins Wells, the first policewoman of Los Angeles, who has proved so efficient, made addresses in forty California cities during March under the auspices of the State W. C. T. U. and as a result policewomen are being demanded in many cities. San Francisco women are demanding three. It is the belief of those interested in the movement that policewomen are needed just as the law requires women matrons of the county jails, and women to accompany girls to the Whittier school, and just as women probation officers handle girls in the juvenile courts. They believe the idea that men may handle women and girls is a back number and in bad taste, to say the least.

The policewoman is not thought of primarily as an arresting officer at all, but her special duty is to watch over the girl in the city and the temptations and pitfalls which lead girls astray.

It is said that no one in Los Angeles more heartily approves the institution of the policewoman than the policemen themselves who wonder how they got along under the old system.

Some Nice Day This Summer Take Your House To Pieces

FIGURATIVELY speaking, of course. As a matter of fact, all you need to do is to look into the outside walls. Then you'll know why you burn fifteen tons of coal every winter, and shiver half the time at that. A little wood and a little brick, a bit of plaster and a sheet of building paper.

Lovely chance to keep the cold out with walls like that. Still, a lot of people build them like that. Somebody, every now and then, starts a fire with kerosene. Haven't taken the time to know better.

Leading architects and builders, and just plain men and women who have taken the trouble to know better, and aren't afraid of insulation because it sounds scientific, insist on walls being built with

LINOFELT

They insist on Linofelt because it is the only material which actually does what building-paper is supposed to do. If you want only a wind-break—which is all you have with building-paper—why don't you build with newspapers?

What you do want is wall insulation, walls that cut off the passage of heat, cold, and sound. That means a Linofelt-ed house —because Linofelt will save 40 per cent on your fuel bills every winter.

—because Linofelt will keep your house cool in summer
—because Linofelt does deaden sound. (A bell heard 200 feet through a plain wood box can be heard only two feet through the same box when Linofelt-ed.)

You don't start your fire with kerosene. Then learn about Linofelt, the wonderful flax fibre sheathing; get the basis for our assertions; right now drop us a postal or call up our local agent. You can use Linofelt in your present house right now, at small expense and wonderful gain—ask our agent how.

THOUGHT HE HAD WHALE WHEN MONSTER TROUT BIT.

Penn Yan, N. Y., May 17.—The largest trout in weight that has been caught in Lake Keuka in the past four years, and the longest ever caught to the local fishermen's knowledge, has been landed by Jeremiah Wald of Branchport.

The fish weighed 17 pounds and 2 ounces, was 35¾ inches long and measured 5¾ inches across its back.

For one hour and five minutes Wald worked hard to land the fish and on six different occasions he had it within six feet of the boat, when it would make a dash for liberty.

The rival of this fish was caught about four years ago on the branch near where this one was landed. It weighed 19 pounds and was 37 inches long.

WALTZING FOR 17 HOURS, WOMAN A RECORD-BREAKER.

Richmond, Ind., May 17.—Waltzing continuously for seventeen hours and three miutes without once leaving the floor was the record made by Mrs. Isabelle Bass Logan of Richmond, one of the participants in the Marathon dancing contest held under the auspices of a local fraternal order.

Mrs. Logan, with Oren Etter as a partner, began the waltz at 9 o'clock in the morning. Four other couples entered the contest, but they dropped out from fatigue during the afternoon.

At 9 o'clock that night, after twelve hours' dancing, Etter was forced to withdraw, and Mrs. Logan with a second partner, Mr. Williams, continued the waltz until three minutes after 2 o'clock next morning.

It is said that a world's record for continuous waltzing was made.

Taking the United Kingdom as a whole, the marriage rate is about 10.5, the birth rate 25.3 and the death rate 13.9 a thousand.

The DOCTOR'S ADVICE

by Dr. Lewis Baker

The questions answered below are general in character, the symptoms of diseases are given and the answers will apply to any case of similar nature.

Those wishing further advice, free, may address Dr. Lewis Baker, College Bldg., College-Ellwood Sts., Dayton, O., enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope for reply. Full name and address must be given but only initials or fictitious name will be used in my answers. The prescriptions can be filled at any well-stocked drug store. Any druggist can order of wholesaler.

"An unhappy woman" writes: "What can I do to reduce my weight. I weigh entirely too much for my own comfort. It is also very embarrassing at times. I would like a reply."

Answer: The safest, quickest and best remedy that I know for reducing flesh, and one that I know to be harmless, is: Aromatic elixir, 5 ozs.; glycol arbolene, 1 oz. Mix, shake well and take a teaspoonful after each meal for three days, and then double the dose. Continue until your weight is reduced properly.

"Howard" writes: "What can I take for headache, dark spots before my eyes, dizzy spells and also constipation?"

Answer: Constipation is the cause of all your trouble, but I can cure you if you will follow my directions. Get at the drug store three grain sulpherb tablets (not sulphur). These are packed in sealed tubes and contain full directions. These little tablets purify the blood, the bowels and liver are stimulated into healthy action and will gradually cure your trouble.

"Little Girl"—To cure your child of bedwetting get tincture cubebs, 1 dram; comp. fluid balmwort, 1 oz., and tincture rhusaromatic, 2 drams. Give 10 to 15 drops in water about one hour before meals.

"Angella Mae"—The chronic ailment, leucorrhea, with which you have suffered has reduced your flesh and strength. Begin taking three grain hypo-nuclane tablets at once, obtained in sealed packages with full directions. Also use locally as an injection with syringe the following: Mix one ounce of tannic acid and two ounces of antiseptic vilane powder. Use a teaspoonful to a quart of warm water twice daily.

"Kathryn" writes: "If you know of anything that will stop premature baldness, cure dandruff and itching scalp, I should appreciate a reply."

Answer: The following simple remedy will cure dandruff and promote a luxurious growth of hair. Ask for plain yellow minyol which can be had in 4 oz. jars and use regularly according to directions. I have seen the most astonishing results from its use that I heartily recommend it to all who suffer with any disease of the scalp.

"Mrs. A. F." writes: "Really if I could find a true remedy to increase my weight, I should be the happiest woman alive. I am so thin and scrawny, it is a shame. Why can not I be like other women? I do not work hard and have pretty good health."

Answer: You can "be like other women" if you will follow my advice, which is to use three grain hypo-nuclane tablets packed in sealed cartons with directions, and most widely prescribed by intelligent physicians everywhere. They improve the nutrition, add red blood corpuscles to the blood, improve the complexion, but thorough and regular use must follow to get these good results.

"Mr. Ben" writes: "My joints are becoming so stiff from rheumatism that I can scarcely walk. Is there any help for me?"

Answer: Of course there is help for you and for all others who suffer from rheumatism. Take the following and you will be entirely cured. Iodide of potassium, 2 drams; sodium salicylate 4 drams; wine of colchicum, ½ oz.; comp. essence cardiol, 1 oz.; comp. fluid balmwort, 1 oz.; and syrup sarsaparilla, 5 ozs. Mix and take a teaspoonful at meal time and again at bed time.

"Mary J." says: "Every winter I have a cold which lasts till spring. I have tried several doctors' prescriptions but they do no good so I ask you what to do."

Answer: The best medicine to relieve colds and coughs is made by mixing the contents of a 2½ oz. bottle of essence mentho laxene with honey or home made sugar syrup. Full directions for making are given on the bottle and also how to take. You will find this will cure your cough in a very few days and it is perfectly harmless and pleasant to take.

"Miss A." writes: "I have a very bad case of dyspepsia. I am afraid to eat a hearty meal. My breath is bad and I am cross and irritable most of the time."

Answer: If you will get the following tablets and take according to directions which accompany the package, you will soon be rid of all distress in your stomach. It will also help your constipation. They are called tablets triopeptine and are packed in sealed cartons. If this trouble is allowed to stand it will cause appendicitis, so begin taking at once.

"Helen" writes: "Please tell me what to do to gain an appetite. I cannot eat and am thin and nervous."

Answer: You need a good system tonic and the best one that I could tell you of is: Syrup of hypophosphites comp. 5 ozs., tincture cadomene comp. 1 oz. Mix and always shake well before using. Take a teaspoonful before meals for several weeks and you will gain an appetite and whole nervous system will be restored to its natural state.

WOMAN SITTING AS A JUSTICE

First One in California Has the Job of City Recorder.

San Francisco, Cal., May 17.—The first woman to hold a judicial position in California was chosen the other night to dispense justice at Daly City, the little municipality just over the San Francisco line, in San Mateo county.

The first action of the Daly City's new Socialist board of trustees was to choose Miss Clara Alice Jess as city recorder. Daly City is a city of the sixth class, and, under the state law, the city recorder has concurrent jurisdiction with justices of the peace and also in regard to police matters.

Miss Jess is a quiet, little woman, youthful, small of stature and sweet-faced. She has worked as stenographer in law offices in this city for several years, and has put in her leisure time reading law. She seemed rather overwhelmed by the honor shown her by the trustees, and stated that she did did not foresee any trouble in making the citizens of her town behave.

"I regret one thing only," she said, "and that is that with all my powers as judge of our municipal court I will not be able to perform marriage ceremonies. As soon as I was asked if I would accept the appointment I thought how funny it would be to have a woman justice of the peace celebrating marriage ceremonies, but on looking it up I found the law did not give me that power.

"I hesitated about accepting because I was afraid it would interfere with my work, but it is really something to be the first woman to sit as a judge at a trial in this state. I rather wanted that honor."

As quite a great deal of litigation was brought before Miss Jess' predecessor in office, it is probable that much real work will be connected with her honor.

On being reminded of the work of the two women juries to sit in San Francisco, she said, "I hope I shall be able to try all sorts of cases. But I am not of necessity prejudiced against tradesmen, and I don't think women as a general thing are, although that was the effect of most of what was said about those trials. I shall try all cases brought before me in accordance with law and justice.

"No," she laughed, "I won't give men the worst of it. You see, men appointed me."

KANSAS STUDENTS BEING TAUGHT TABLE MANNERS.

Manhattan, Kan., May 17.—After being tried last spring, the course in table etiquette for the men students at the state agricultural college proved such a success that it has been decided to give the course a permanent place in the curriculum of the college. Already more than 100 students have been enrolled in the course. The students who are not taking the course refer to those who are as the "sword swallowers," but the latter will nevertheless begin earnestly the work of learning to be graceful hosts, to carve and serve a meal, and to know the various uses of knives, forks and spoons.

The junior girls in the department of domestic science will cook and serve the meals for the course in table etiquette. Luncheons and dinners, formal and informal, make up the five meals to be served each week to the class. One, a woman instructor, is always hostess, and the three young men will take turns at being the host.

The girls who prepare the meals work in small kitchens adjoining the big dining room, three to a kitchen. Each table has its separate kitchen, so that a different menu is served every day. The girls are allowed $4 a week for the five meals, and they must do their own planning and buying. A little book, "Table Etiquette and Service," is used as a text book.

BABY ARTIST EXHIBITS.

Three-Year-Old Shows at Royal Drawing Society.

London, May 17.—London has just unearthed the youngest artist in the world. He is David Walton, the three-year-old child of a Teddington man, and so fast has he progressed in his art that he is an exhibitor at the show of the Royal Drawing society.

The budding Michaelangelo has produced an extremely clever portrait of himself, a glass of lemonade, a design of a spring from his toy engine and a rose. Although they took rather crude placed beside the work of his more mature fellow members, they show that the boy has remarkable ability.

He commenced to draw with charcoal when he was only eleven months old. His parents, without pushing him too fast, encouraged him in every way. They had his nursery papered in brown paper to a certain height upon which the child artist could draw as much as he liked. From charcoal he went to pencil, colored chalk, pen and ink, and, finally, last January, he took up water color.

In speaking of his son, Dudley Walton said to the writer:

"The child has always been fascinated by moving objects. He sits for long periods watching the steam issuing from a kettle spout. The working of a duck's neck also attracts him. In drawing he likes to depict something in motion."

CASE OF MEASLES

Developed By Indiana Bridegroom and He Is Quarantined.

Washington, May 17—Fate and an unfeeling but faithful officer of the district health department played a mean trick on Cupid when they caused C. S. Tumbleson of Fort Wayne, Ind., to be placed under quarantine while enjoying his honeymoon in this city.

Mr. Tumbleson and Miss Ruth Rildnour, also of Fort Wayne, were married in that city and came to Washington on their bridal trip. They were welcomed at the home of William Johnson, a cousin of the groom, who is secretary to Representative Cline of Indiana. Next morning the happy bridegroom was taken ill. The bride, upon summoning a physican, learned that her husband had a case of measles. Following the health regulations a placard was nailed upon the Johnson door and all persons warned to keep away.

ARE LOOKING TO AMERICA

British Capitalists Seek Enterprises for Investing Their Money.

Indications for Record-Breaking Year for Business Here.

New York, May 17.—The reduction of the Bank of England rate of discount to 3 per cent last week was received all through the financial world as the official certificate of ease in money, and it was promptly followed by the banks of India in a reduction to 5 per cent in that country, instead of the 6 per cent which had been charged by them for the last several months.

This reduction of the English rate was not regarded as significant in the financial world as to peaceful conditions therein, but was accepted as indicative of smooth sailing in the political affairs of Europe as between the nations. The rate now charged by the bank is lower than at any time since the German-French-British entanglement over the affairs of Morocco last summer.

One of the marked featuers of the English business situation is the continuance of the sales of landed interests by the nobility and the wealthy middle classes, and the increasing desire of English investors to place their capital in enterprises in America, Africa and Asia, rather than in those in the United Kingdom.

Can Suggest No Remedy.

The addresses of Premier Asquith and Chancellor Lloyd George to the Bankers' association last week, through which ran an unmistakable tone of caution and anxiety as to the consequences of the undeniable industrial discontent and the restlessness of all classes of British labor, can be taken as representing the ministry's knowledge of that feeling of doubt as to the future which possesses the higher classes and the investors.

Neither Asquith nor George appeared to possess any remedy, nor were they able to point out clearly and definitely any solution of the problem which they so clearly stated as existing.

As with that dread physical disease, cancer, those physicians and surgeons who know the most about it are the ones who are least likely to predict a positive cure.

Premier Asquith and Lloyd George have for years been political specialists upon the kingdom's industrial disorders and after all their study of conditions and their knowledge of the science of government, it is very evident that while they have loaded down to the breaking point the capital of the kingdom, they are well aware they have not advanced far in the cure of the poverty, distress and misery which exist among the masses of the people of Great Britain.

One point they made very clear, and it applies to our own conditions, as well as those of the British kingdom; it applies to every nation where business is transacted, and that is that general increases of wages and general advances in prices are additional imposts upon the entire community, upon all the people, and must be paid by them.

There will always exist in business affairs the desire for profit, and individual and organized effort of certain classes to obtain that profit, and it has become a duty among statesmen under the modern plans of business to adjust such matters as far as it lies in legislative power, judicial process or executive action.

All Classes Organized.

In Britain all classes are organized, each to advance their own interests, and the people of the United States are rapidly following in precisely the same lines.

From bootblack unions to agricultural societies, from barbers' lodges to bankers' associations, from the Italian fruit venders' meetings to the merchants' associations, from unskilled labor alliances to the most powerful manufacturers' combinations, there is earnest and persistent effort to obtain a little more profit for their own several, separate and distinct shares.

There are constant appeals to governmental forces to gain some advantage, to maintain some advantage already held, to prevent some advantages being taken by others, constant calls for readjustments, for powers to even up, to treat fairly; organization of one class begets organization of another class, and governmental intervention is called for, approved, resented, opposed, and finally forced upon those who exercise its powers.

Great Britain and the United States are meeting problems that past ages never met and never solved, and the science of government in this era is far more intricate, far more profound, is compelled to be far more exact in order to meet the age's sense of justice than ever before in the history of the world.

From the addresses of Premier Asquith and Chancellor George it can be seen they recognize fully the difficulties, but have found or determined upon no remedy.

They can use the governmental power to an extent that will impoverish the wealthy if they remain in Britain, but their words already evidence their doubt of being able to enrich the poor.

Different in United States.

The phases presented in the United States by these questions are different in many respects from those to be dealt with in Great Britain. If we do not meet here the extreme inequalities which have there maintained for ages, and the readjustments required will, therefore, be not so severe, yet it must be recognized that our very ablest and most experienced men in public life have no easy task before them in their efforts to solve these rightly and at the same time safely.

The world abroad does not doubt that our republic will solve peacefully, and British, Dutch and French capital is at the command of our financiers and managers of great enterprises in the United States.

There is not here the slightest touch of pessimism as to the trade of this country during the coming twelve months.

Railway men are preparing for increased traffic, and are ready to make large additions to rolling stock and provide for betterments in all directions.

Manufacturers in all branches, whether in metals, textiles, fibers, woods or other branches, are really enthusiastic over the orders that are being placed by their customers.

In every branch and field of mining in the country, save in the anthracite fields of Pennsylvania, there exists unprecedented activity, good wages for the employes, fair profits for the employers, because the outputs are bringing higher than usual prices.

Building operations throughout the United States were never upon so extensive a scale as at the present time, and skilled labor in every field of labor is fully employed and in steady demand for additional work.

It looks like a record-breaking business year throughout the Union.

GIVES HIS FARM AWAY BUT IS UNAWARE OF IT.

Newcastle, Ind., May 17.—When John Hagner, a well known German farmer living southeast of the city, visited the county treasurer's office to pay his taxes, he was surprised to learn that, so far as the records were concerned, he did not own a fine 200-acre farm which he has been tilling for a number of years. In fact, there was nothing on the records to show that he owned any land at all, and no taxes were charged up against him.

An investigation was started, and after some time a peculiar situation was discovered. Some time ago Hagner decided to make a will so as to provide for the future of his four children after he was dead and gone. He secured the services of a local attorney and what Hagner thought was his last will and testament was drawn up and signed by him, leaving the farm to his children after his death. Instead, however, the paper Hagner had signed proved to be a warranty deed conveying the land to the children.

It will now be necessary for Hagner to bring a friendly suit against his children to have the deed set aside and the land again placed in his name, and steps to this end have already been taken.

GIRL'S NOTE IN A SHIRT POCKET WINS A HUSBAND.

Hazelton, Pa., May 17.—Miss Della Brennan of Harwood has gone to Omaha, Neb., to be married to Rodney Jewell, whom she had never seen and with whom she became acquainted through means of a note she placed in the pocket of a shirt she made at a factory where she worked.

A correspondence sprung up, pictures were exchanged, and finally the couple decided to wed. Miss Brennan arranged to be identified at the station by a ribbon on her sleeve. She and Jewell have already arranged for a home at Omaha, which they will occupy after marriage.

The young woman has been employed for several years in one of the largest manufacturing establishments in the state, and in bidding her friends and the scenes of her childhood adieu, said that she was marrying for a home and that she thought that if the man proved as he had represented himself, she would readily learn to love him.

At any event, she said, the experience would be well worth going so many miles to obtain.

NEW CODE OF ETHICS FOR FUNERAL CABBIES.

Harrisburg, Pa., May 17.—This part of the world is getting entirely too high-toned for cab drivers since the Capital Funeral Directors' association met here. The association decided that any drivers employed by any member of the association, while on funeral duty, must not:

Chew tobacco.

Smoke tobacco.

Use cuss words (even if a coal cart be driven across the line of procession.)

Call or talk to each other from box to box, except when absolutely necessary.

It is permissible, however, for any cabby on funeral duty to carry the makin's or a plug of eatin' tobacco in his pistol pocket so that he may assuage his appetite the moment he is off duty; at least, the directors' association hasn't forbidden this, so long as the weed is kept out of sight.

A Woman's Earnest Advice

One who has suffered from lack of blood tells how she was cured and earnestly advises other sufferers to try the remedy that cured her—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

Bloodlessness is one of the greatest enemies of growing girls and young women. So stealthily and gradually does it afflict them that the disease is often well advanced before it is detected. Therefore it is important to note the first symptoms and check the thinning of the blood.

There is new strength for tired girls and women in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People; they make new blood that dispels the "always tired" feeling and the continual backaches. They banish headaches, low spirits, palpitation of the heart and fits of nervousness.

The case of Mrs. C. M. Bentley, of No. 412 State street, Boone, Iowa, is so similar to that of thousands of growing girls, that her cure by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills offers timely advice. She says: "When between the age of fifteen and sixteen, I began to suffer from anaemia. I was run down in health through overstudy before the attack and this condition together with my age was probably the cause of my sickness. I became emaciated and did not have a particle of color. Although I had no appetite, I had a craving for chalk and other things that I could grit in my teeth. My stomach was in a very bad condition and gas was constantly forming on it. I had severe headaches all of the time, had no ambition and could just drag around. I kept growing worse and had to quit school. The doctor told me that I was bloodless and was going into consumption. After being under his care for some time and finding that I was not getting much benefit, I decided to take a blood tonic. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were recommended and I began to use them. In a short time I began to take on flesh and have an appetite. I continued with the pills until cured and I earnestly recommend them to all who suffer from thin blood."

A helpful booklet, "Building Up the Blood," will be sent free to any address on request.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have repeatedly cured anaemia, indigestion, neuralgia, St. Vitus' dance, rheumatism, lumbago and sciatica. All druggists sell them or they will be sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50 by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

NOTE—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills do not act on the bowels. If a gentle laxative is needed, send for a free sample of PINKLETS, the little pink laxative pills designed to be used with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills when necessary.

A Permanent Cure For Chronic Constipation

Although those may dispute it who have not tried it, yet thousands of others, who speak from personal experience, assert that there is a permanent cure for chronic constipation. Some testify they were cured for as little as fifty cents, years ago, and that the trouble never came back on them, while others admit they took several bottles before a steady cure was brought about.

The remedy referred to is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It has been on the market for over a quarter of a century and has been popularized on its merits, by one person telling another. The fact that its strongest supporters are women and elderly people—the ones most persistently constipated—makes it certain that the claims regarding it as a permanent cure for constipation have not been exaggerated.

It is not violent like cathartic pills, salts or waters, but operates gently, without griping and without shock to the system. It contains tonic properties that strengthen the stomach and bowel muscles so that in time medicines of all kinds can be dispensed with and nature is again solely relied on. Among the legions who testify to these facts are Mr. Herbert Timm, 404 Idaho St., Oshkosh, Wis., and Caroline Mayard, Chatfield, Minn., and they always have a bottle of it in the house, for it is a reliable laxative for all the family from infancy to old age.

Anyone wishing to make a trial of this remedy before buying it in the regular way of a druggist at fifty cents or one dollar a large bottle (family size) can have a sample bottle sent to the home free of charge by simply addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 405 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. Your name and address on a postal card will do.

ON THE IRON RANGES

GRAND RAPIDS TO WELCOME EDITORS

Itasca County Village Preparing to Entertain Scribes in June.

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—A program of entertainment for the editors of Northern Minnesota when they meet here June 21-23 for the annual outing of the editors comprising the Northern Minnesota Editorial association, is being worked out. There will be something doing all the time. The visitors are expected to arrive Friday, June 21, and that day will be entertained by automobile rides to the paper mills and other points, with a banquet in the evening. The visitors will be taken to the Northeast experiment farm the next morning and will also play the annual baseball game.

Superintendent and Mrs. McGuire of the experiment farm have promised the editors a strawberry and cream dinner under the pines at the state farm.

To Visit Coleraine.

Saturday afternoon the editors will leave the state farm by auto and go to Coleraine, where the Oliver Iron Mining company will take them on an "observation special" through the pits, dump and other works of the mines and to the ore washing plant, one of only two of the kind in the world. The party will then be banqueted by the citizens of Bovey and Coleraine at Bovey, after which the return to Grand Rapids will be made in autos by moonlight.

Sunday will be spent on Pokegama lake, one of the most beautiful lakes in the state. The party will be taken to Cohasset in automobiles and there launches and steamboats will be awaiting to take the party up the lake. Lake trips, bathing and fishing and a general good time will be provided at the lake.

An invitation is extended to the editors to join the bunch in Grand Rapids, and all are requested to get to Grand Rapids early, so as to take in the doings Friday, June 22, as every day will be filled with interesting features from early morning to late at night, and Friday's doings will not be the least of these—there will not be a dull moment from the time the editors strike town until they leave.

INJUNCTION IS HARD ON VILLAGE

Restraining Order Prevents Village From Proceeding With Improvements.

Hibbing, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—There is general disappointment in the village of Alice over the granting of an injunction out of the United States district court at Duluth, preventing the village council from levying more than $10,000 taxes for municipal purposes during 1912. An effort will be made at once to secure a hearing on a motion for the dissolution of the injunction, which was issued upon the representation of George L. Burrows, a Michigan man, who is one of the fee owners of the Scranton mine.

Residents of the village assert that the process invoked by the plaintiff is merely a move to delay improvements to the village streets, the installation of an electric lighting and sewer system, and has for its ultimate intention the coercion of residents there into annexation with the village of Hibbing.

In 1911 the village had an assessed valuation of $2,585,239 and the tax levy was 14.1 mills. It is contended that this is not proportionately greater than in any of the towns on the Mesaba range and is much less than in some of the larger ones. For instance the levy for the corresponding year is shown to have been as follows in the following towns and cities: Virginia, 41.8 mills, Tower 43.6 mills, Eveleth 25.7 mills, Ely 56.6 mills, Chisholm 25.6 mills and 22.1 mills in two districts.

Another Step in Fight.

The injunction just issued against the village is another step in legal proceedings begun on a writ of quo warranto in August of 1910, when the legality of the incorporation of the village was attacked. Attorneys for the village at that time filed an answer in which the attorneys for the Scranton Mining company demurred and the case was submitted to the supreme court on a stipulation of the facts. The decision was in favor of the village. In August of 1911 George L. Burrows, through his attorneys, Washburn, Bailey & Mitchell of Duluth secured an injunction ex parte, which was granted ex parte out of the United States district court limiting the sum that could be levied for taxes to $10,000. Since that time it is claimed by the people of Alice that five different applications for a hearing on a motion to dissolve the injunction have been made, but it has never been convenient for the court to hear the matter and it has gone by default. Judge Morris now has an application before him to fix a time for a hearing on such a motion and may designate a date when it will come on before some other of the federal district judges. Since the date the injunction was issued nine months have elapsed without the village getting a hearing, according to the contention of its attorneys.

RESTORE GRAY HAIR TO NATURAL COLOR

By Common Garden Sage a Simple Remedy for Dandruff, Falling, Faded, Gray Hair.

The old idea of using Sage for darkening the hair is again coming in vogue. Our grandmothers had dark, glossy hair at seventy-five, while our mothers are gray before they are fifty. Our grandmothers kept their hair soft and glossy with a "Sage Tea," which also restored the natural color.

One objection to using such a preparation was the trouble of making it. This objection has been overcome by the Wyeth Chemical Company of New York, who has placed on the market a superior preparation of Sage, combined with Sulphur and other valuable remedies for dandruff, itching scalp, and thin, weak, falling hair.

The beauty of the hair depends more on its rich, even shading than anything else. Don't have dry, harsh faded hair, when a simple, harmless remedy will bring back the color in a few days; and don't be tormented with dandruff, itching scalp and loose, falling hairs. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy will quickly correct these troubles, and give color, strength and beauty to your hair.

Get a fifty cent bottle from your druggist today, and prove this to your own satisfaction. All druggists sell it, under guarantee that the money will be refunded if the remedy is not exactly as represented.

DESERTED WOMAN HAS TOUGH TASK

Finds It Hard to Provide for Children Without Aid of Spouse.

Hibbing, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—To mother, feed and clothe four children is proving a task too which Mrs. Edward Jacobson of Hibbing, deserted by her husband several months ago, is unequal. She does not wish to see her little ones sent to the state school at Owatonna, and although she is in a delicate condition, for more than five months she has kept up an unequal struggle against odds before which most people would have given up weeks ago.

All through the winter Mrs. Jacobson has managed to keep her little family together. There have been times when there wasn't food enough to go around, sometimes there has been insufficient clothing for the children, but the woman has never complained. The landlord in the house they have been occupying has received no rent since last October and through his interest the case of the woman and children was called to the attention of the local humane officer.

An effort has been made to locate the husband and father, but so far has been unsuccessful. The authorities who have been investigating believe he has gone to Canada. He was last heard of at International Falls.

Humane Officer McKercher is expected to arrive from Duluth today to make some disposition of the case. Mrs. Jacobson says she will never give her consent to have her children sent to a state institution.

MANY ATTENDING FARMERS' MEETING

Institute at Bear River Draws People From Hibbing and Vicinity.

Hibbing, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—A large number of Hibbing agricultural enthusiasts, headed by J. F. Wilkie, the Bear River bonanza farmer, left this morning and last evening to attend the farmers' institute to be held today at Woodmen hall at Bear River under the auspices of the Farmers' club. Superintendent McGuire of the Grand Rapids experiment farm will be the principal speaker on a program, having both afternoon and morning sessions. A picnic dinner will be served at noon. Incidentally the meeting will be made the medium of boosting for some county roads that are much desired in that section. A number of automobile parties left Hibbing this morning for the institute.

WHITESIDE SHIPPING.

Stockpiled Ore Being Taken From the Buhl Property.

Hibbing, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Ore shipping has begun from the stockpile of the Whiteside mine in the Buhl district. It is estimated to contain 200,000 tons. The mine was one of the first on the range to begin loading ore at the shaft for the season of 1912. There has been a considerable increase in the ore movement over the D. M. & N. this week, but a number of the mines have not been able to work up to capacity on account of a shortage of labor. This condition is temporary, however, and arrangements have already been made to overcome it. The shipments over the Great Northern at present exceed those on the Missabe.

CAMPAIGN AGAINST FLIES.

Hibbing Health Department Going After the Insect Pests.

Hibbing, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The health department is getting things in shape for a vigorous campaign against the house fly pest. Literature is to be circulated among all the foreign speaking people at the locations admonishing them to "swat the fly." The campaign is to be made early and every effort made to interest the people in co-operating with the board. The present health department has been one of the best in the history of Hibbing and has done much to improve local sanitary conditions. The general health of the city has never been better than at present and the city's fine detention hospital has been practically empty for months.

CUYUNA RANGE MINE ENCOUNTERS FINE ORE.

Hibbing, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Local stockholders in the Iron Mountain mine on the Cuyuna range are elated over news that the shaft is well into an excellent grade of ore. The company has been offered orders for a large volume of its ore to be delivered to a Pittsburg furnace this year, and representatives of Eastern capital were at the mine yesterday to look it over for a clientage who are contemplating its purchase.

GRANT MINE SHIPPING.

Hibbing, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Grant mine at Buhl was added to the list of shippers from the Mesaba range today. Last year this property shipped about 300,000 tons of ore and this year it is expected that this figure will be doubled. Two steam shovels are now working at the mine. One is taking ore and the other is removing overburden.

McDonnell Sizing Up Work.

Hibbing, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—P. McDonnell, the Duluth contractor, is here looking over the specifications for the street paving and the various routes for the proposed change in the outlet to the sewer system. Mr. McDonnell will be a bidder on both jobs.

EVELETH TO VOTE ON NEW CHARTER

Expected Council Will Call Special Election for That Purpose.

Eveleth, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—One of the official acts of the city council at its regular semi-monthly meeting next Tuesday evening, it is expected, will be to authorize City Clerk McIntyre to issue the call for a special election to vote on the adoption of a new charter, which embraces the commission form of government.

In September a charter commission consisting of fifteen members, was appointed by the district court to draft a new charter. The members of the commission all qualified forthwith and from that time until March 30, when the completed draft of the charter was handed to Mayor Saari, the commission met weekly and for a time semi-weekly and spent many hours at each session in considering municipal regulation.

Study Other Charters.

After going over the charters of St. Cloud, Mankato and other similar cities which were working under the commission form, the charter commission decided upon a similar form.

To comply with the state law the city council is obliged to call the special election in this case within ninety days from the time the charter was placed in the hands of the mayor. This will bring the date some time prior to July 30. In the meantime copies of the proposed charter will be printed and circulated so that all voters may read and study the same if they desire to do so.

IS HURT MAKING FLYING SWITCH

Monroe Miner Badly Injured While Shunting Ore Cars.

Chisholm, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Radovich, a miner at the Monroe, was severely injured at the underground mine yesterday. He was the switchman and in making a flying switch on a chain of ore cars one left the track and caught him against the wall and severely bruised him about the hips. He was taken to the Rood hospital at Hibbing and has a fair chance for recovery.

Boy Hurt by Dynamite Cap.

Louis, the 4-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Jacobson at the Croxton mine, had his left hand badly lacerated by playing with a box of dynamite caps. He took one of the caps and placed it on a stone and with another stone struck it, with the result that he will loose two of the fingers and possibly a portion of the hand. Dr. Smith was summoned and dressed the wound and states he has hopes of saving a portion of the hand. Two boxes were found near the house where they have been for two years and under tests every cap exploded.

Miner's Injuries Fatal.

Funeral services were held here yesterday for Ell Bangnov, known also as Blanovich, a miner employed at the Brunot mine at Mountain Iron, who died yesterday from the effects of losing both legs when run over by an ore train. He was 25 and unmarried.

TWO HARBORS MAY BUY OUTSIDE COAL

Council Considering Proposition of Shipping Fuel From Down the Lakes.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The proposition of the city buying coal down the lakes and shipping it here for the municipal coal yard is being considered and may be decided upon. The council considered the matter at a special meeting this week. A letter was received from President House of the Iron Range road to the effect that the company would handle coal over its dock for 25 cents a ton if the coal could be dumped direct into the cars for delivery to the trestle, and 37 cents a ton if the coal had to be dumped onto the railroad company's dock and rehandled into cars. In addition to this charge there would be a switching charge of $4 for each car switched to the trestle regarless of the kind or size of the car. The communication also stated that the company would be willing to lease the necessary ground for the erection of a trestle of a capacity of about 3,0000 tons for a nominal sum annually, upon the condition that the city would be obliged to move the trestle from the company's property and the lease terminated upon sixty days notice.

This last provision was not looked upon with favor by the council as it was thought that it might work a hardship upon the city if they receive notice of the termination of the lease at a time when the trestle was stocked with a large amount of coal, and it was decided that a committee be appointed to wait upon Mr. House in regard to this particular feature of the agreement contemplated.

Mr. Tubman spoke against the proposed measure and intimated that if such a proposition was again entered into, means might be taken by interested parties to prevent the city from carrying out its plans.

To Submit to People.

President Esse stated that the intention was to learn whether contracts for the purchase of large coal could be entered into and if arrangements could be made to handle the coal, and for what price such coal could be bought and sold for, and when such details were arranged to put the matter to a vote of the people in the form of a charter amendment, which would authorize the city to legally carry out such a proposition.

President Esse stated that by such arrangement the cost of coal consumption at the water and light plant would be reduced $1,500 annually and that both hard and soft coal could be sold to the retail trade at a slight profit and at a lower rate than the local dealers are charging.

IT STARTS AS KIDNEY TROUBLE

Bright's Disease commonly starts as kidney trouble. In fact, the patient does not know when the change is effected, for it appears to be "nothing but kidney trouble" all the time. But when the Chemist finds albumen he knows the truth. Patients can begin to think of Bright's Disease when kidney trouble hangs on for six months.

But there is this important fact for the patient to consider—if the inflammation of the kidneys hangs on longer than the sixth month it is declared incurable whether it becomes Bright's Disease or not. Hence the reason why it is such a dangerous thing to let kidney trouble run. The deaths are now nearly 90,000 and steadily increasing.

The appearance of any kind of kidney trouble should put the patient on guard. He should live carefully and if he does not find early signs of yielding should commence treatment.

Hence isn't it of tremendous importance to the kidney patient to know of the only thing that is getting recoveries in kidney disease after the sixth month. Ask for booklet showing the results Fulton's Renal Compound is getting in chronic and supposed incurable cases.

CLOUDY

The fair, cool weather continues and conditions are not just right for a canoe trip on the bay. The weather man may decide to send some warm spring weather later, but just now he is engaged in supplying a coolness that is quite exasperating in its long continuance.

Fair weather prevailed a year ago today.

The sun rose this morning at 4:29 and it will set at 7:39 this evening, giving fifteen hours and ten minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"During the last twenty-four hours further rains fell over the Southern and Eastern lake region, Ohio valley, extreme Eastern Canada and all of the Atlantic states in connection with the disturbance centered over the upper St. Lawrence valley. The depression overlying North Dakota has caused warmer weather over most of the Northwestern states and light rain in Western North Dakota, Alberta and Southern Saskatchewan. The easterly movement of this low pressure condition will result in cloudy to threatening weather at the Head of the Lakes during the ensuing thirty-six hours and light showers are probable Saturday."

General Forecasts.

Virginia, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Alexander G. McKnight of Duluth addressed a meeting of the Progressive league in the council chamber last night. He recited the work of the Municipal Ownership league of Duluth and what had been accomplished in Duluth, and predicted that the local league would be successful in attaining its end. Bert Fesler of Duluth and Victor L. Power of Hibbing will address meetings in the Fay opera house or the Finnish Temperance hall.

Hibbing Is Prosperous.

Hibbing, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Clearings of the local banks indicate that the month of May will probably establish a record for the volume of local business done during the year 1912. So far the business thus indicated has been ahead of any month this year, while February and March were better than average months, judged by the standards of past years. Business in Hibbing is generally looking up and the coming summer is expected to set a new record.

CHISHOLM CARD PARTY.

Mrs. Joseph Austin and Mrs. J. J. Hayes Entertain.

Chisholm, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mesdames Joseph E. Austin and J. J. Hayes entertained at the latter's home at Five hundred yesterday afternoon. The guests arrived at 1 o'clock for luncheon. The dinner tables were decorated with a color scheme of pink. A crystal candle holder was placed at the center of each of the tables at which four plates were placed.

The favors were dainty baskets filled with almonds to which individual handpainted name cards were attached, and a pink carnation at each place. The rooms were decorated in pink and green. Mrs. F. L. Austin won first honors, a brass fern dish; Mrs. G. L. Train, second honors, a brass vase; Mrs Oscar Arneson, the consolation prize, a pair of handpainted salt and peppers. A large number of guests from Hibbing, Virginia and Eveleth were present.

The board of education has purchased $1,000 worth of playground equipment for the schools, consisting of swings, etc., which will be placed on the play grounds west of the high school building.

HAS FINE FARM.

William Houlihan of Grand Rapids Reclaims Fine Place.

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—William Houlihan, who some three years ago went onto his splendid farm, has purchased the Larson property on Sixth street and Foley avenue, and expects to remove to town soon with his family.

Mr. Houlihan has leased his farm to P. Peterson, an experienced dairyman, recently from Litchfield. The farm consists of about 230 acres, of which between 160 and 200 acres are cleared, affording plenty of pasture and tillage land. About fifteen cows are at present being milked on the farm.

Mr. Houlihan went onto the farm some three years ago when the place was the characteristic cut-over land, and applying his energies, and considerable funds, he has made a farm of the place which is considered more valuable than most Southern Minnesota farms. Most of the land now cleared has been cleared in the time he has been on the place. The buildings are all electric lighted.

Mr. Houlihan says that there is no work he likes better than his farm work, but that he is almost compelled to move off owing to the difficulty in getting efficient help, especially for household work. The farm, however, promises to be a paying proposition, and the crops of potatoes corn, wheat, oats and other small grains, vegetables, in fact most everything except bananas and oranges, which are raised there only go to strengthen the proof of the agricultural adaptability of this section of the state.

The occasion brought in a large number of outside business men, who were variously interested in the letting of the contracts and the Hill hotel was crowded to capacity for a couple of days.

It is expected that work will be commenced in a couple of weeks and as soon as tracks can be laid to the grounds, materials will be shipped in and the work rushed to completion as fast as possible.

Additional men will be started at work as soon as possible and the work will be pushed as fast as possible.

Improving Sturgeon Lake Line.

Hibbing, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Swan River Logging company has started a force of men at work on rebuilding and rebalasting a cut-off of its Sturgeon Lake line between that point and Chisholm. The new route will considerably shorten the haul of logs from the headquarter's camps to the landing at Mississippi.

The telephone line to Jesse Lake and Big Fork is being installed, and within a short time the settlers north of here will be able to transact a good deal of their business without making a trip to Deer River. Manager Smith of the exchange here will in the near future have lines connecting all farmers and settlers of the north country with the line here.

Many gathered at the M. & R. depot yesterday morning and gave Z. A. Cochran, editor of the Big Fork Settler, a grand send off. DOG HAS STRIPES OF A SERGEANT Mascot of a French Regiment Won Distinction in Morocco.

Paris, May 17.—A dirty brown mongrel dog named Bataillon, is the first of his kind to receive a morocco medal and a sergeant's stripe for distinguished services in action. He belongs to the Twenty-second colonial regiment, now at Hyeres, just returned from Africa.

Some two years ago, while troops were embarking aboard a transport at Toulon, bound for Morocco, where trouble with the natives was cooking up, two mongrels, much the worse for abuse, slipped aboard and became stowaways. The canines evidently had "framed" it up that they would risk an eye; they couldn't be worse off and since soldiers and pets have a great inclination for each other, here was probably the chance of a lifetime. And it was. It was the great adventure. The regiment adopted both dogs.

They landed at Casablanca, wagging their tails in delight. It was going to be great sport. When the enemy was engaged the two dogs always were to be found on the firing line, running from one man to another, seemingly bent upon encouraging them, which they did hugely. With bullets singing about they'd lick their friends' hands and emit little barks of enjoyment. Each carried a canteen on his back, with water for the thirsty wounded.

Pompon—that was the other dog's name—was killed one day at the head of the troops. He was buried with full military honors. Batallon (Battallon), however, returned home with only a nip out of his ear. On his collar now are a sergeant's stripes, officially bestowed upon him along with the "Morocco medal," given to soldiers who have deported themselves, under fire, in soldierly fashion.

Batallon is more than ever the pride of the regiment. An outcast and a stowaway when he left Toulon, he now struts through the streets, when on leave, a returned hero.

Good things to wear advertised in this week's Saturday Evening Post

Even at the Head of the Lakes it's finally time to think of shedding the heavy underwear.

STEPHENSON UNDERWEAR advertised on page 26, has long been one of the strong numbers in The Columbia Underwear Section. It is especially popular with a very large number of railroad men—that is, the men on the road, not the office force. They in turn, like all office men, are much interested in POROSKNIT and in B. V. D. Underwear, descriptive announcements of which are found on pages 41 and 50, respectively.

SUMMIT SHIRTS are here for both men and women.

FAULTLESS PAJAMAS and NIGHT SHIRTS (advertised on page 64) are always found at The Columbia in ample selections.

BARKER BRAND warranted linen collars can be had at The Columbia only. They are guaranteed linen, but sell 2 for 25c, just like the other kind.

Other good things mentioned this week are President Suspenders, Paris Garters and Boston Garters.

MARINE

ALONG THE WATER FRONT

Local Elevators Have Handled 20,000,000 Bushels of Grain.

Twenty-Five Vessels Awaiting Chance to Unload at Buffalo.

There is at present about 5,425,000 bushels of bonded grain in storage at the local elevators.

Since the grain began coming to Duluth about the middle of last February, nearly 20,000,000 bushels have been handled through the elevators at the local port.

The rush at Duluth is now over although about twenty-five boats are in blockade at Buffalo waiting their turn to unload. The railroads at Buffalo are doing their best to relieve the situation, but the boating grain is piling up and it will be ten days before the situation is relieved, it is stated. But few boats, compared to the number of a few days ago, are now taking grain down the lakes and this helps the situation at the other end.

But little bonded grain is now being received at Duluth. While it ran as high as 2,000,000 bushels per week about six weeks ago, the amount now received each week does not average over 500,000 bushels. All the grain now being received is that which has been on the road for some time.

The lower tariffs given by the railroads have expired and what bonded grain is left in Canada is being shipped by way of Fort William and Port Arthur as boats have relieved the elevators at these points greatly since the opening of navigation.

Some idea of the immense amount of business done at the Duluth elevators during the rush can be gathered from the statement that one house alone had as many as 136 different grades of grain in the elevators.

There is still a good deal of grain in Canada for exportation, but it will nearly all go by way of the Canadian head of the lakes.

There is at present about 5,980,000 bushels of American grain in storage at Duluth.

Taking Ore.

Claiming that they can make more money at taking ore, vessel owners are now lining up for ore tonnage. The Eastern mills are calling for this commodity and tonnage is in demand. The ore industry suffered while the grain rates were high, the work was plentiful and there was no congestion. The congestion at Buffalo, which caused loss of time is also responsible for the refusal of a number of vessel owners to tie up with grain contracts.

While the situation is relieved to a very great exttnt, tonnage is still in demand for grain, but is hard to get. The rate has been steady at 1½ cents for some weeks past, but 1¾ cents is said to have been offered with but few takers. A boat was chartered yesterday at 1½ cents, it is stated, but this is the only charter reported in some time.

But one boat loaded with grain left the local harbor in the last twelve hours.

A great deal of lumber is going out of the port of Duluth. The demand is brisk for this commodity and it would go much faster if there were more boats engaged in transporting it. Local dealers say that they are behind in their shipping.

No hard coal has as yet been received, and it is probable that there will be but very little before June 10. Soft coal is coming in slowly.

Ore Shipments.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The oreshipments from this port show a good increase of nearly 100,000 tons over last year. On Tuesday of this week, the ore receipts at the dock here for the season to that date aggregated 523,957 tons as compared wth 433,700 tons for the same date last year, an increase of 90,257 tons. The receipts for May, 1912, as of the same date were 415,225 tons as compared with 280,652 for the same date in May the year previous. The weekly schedule governing the shipments of the corporation ores beginning May 13 is 206,430 tons or an increase of 60,000 tons over the previous schedule in effect to that date. Such weekly schedules are arranged according to the tonnage which the steamship companies are able to handle. There are about thirty-five crews on ore and it is altogether likely that ths number will be increased in order to handle the busines anticipated.

While the figures showing the probable lake shipments of lumber from Two Harbors are not yet completed yet it is estimated that such shipments will exceed 45,000,000 feet. Cook and Ketcham of Tower, and the Skibo Timber company will be the largest shppers.

There is also about 19,000 cords of pulpwood now piled in the yards here which will be shipped by lake during the coming season, the first boat for such shipment being received here Monday last. George H. Spurbeck has the contract for loading the pulpwood on the boats ready for shipment.

STRAW HAT SEASON HERE

Mayor Proclaims Arrival of Date for Wearing Summer Lids.

Nobody Need Fear Arrest for Donning Last Year's Skypiece.

Hear ye, hear ye, the straw hat season is hereby officially declared to be opened.

Old Sol has actually shone two days in a row and J. Pluvius hasn't shed a tear in this neck of the woods for forty-eight hours.

Wherefore, with his famous smile—in fact his face was wreathed in smiles—Mayor McCuen, as legal head of the police department, proclaimed that straw hats may be worn without fear of arrest; Dr. McCuen, as head of the St. Louis Medical society and medical advisor, said that they may be worn without imminent danger of pneumonia; Baseball Magnate McCuen, as savior of the White Sox, welcomed them as the one feature wanted to make the home team a pennant winner.

So get out the old straw bonnet with any old colored ribbon on it, and join the glad procession. Lacking the skypiece which did such valiant service last summer—when it had a chance—the retail merchants will not get mad if you offer to exchange some hard-earned cash with them for a new one.

The gay heralds of summer have not become common on the streets yet, but this is believed to be due to the fact that neither the mayor, the president of the medical society or the moving spirit of the baseball team had given them official sanction. But like the commission form of government, the last obstacle to their adoption in Duluth has been removed. The proposition has not yet been put up to the supreme court, but they have been declared legal by so eminent a collection of authorities that no doubt remains but what their ruling will be upheld if brought before the highest court in the state. And even were the matter to go to the supreme court a ruling wouldn't be handed down until winter was with us again—for it sure does look as though summer were on the road—and the bonnets wouldn't see any service until a year hence.

Now that it is safe and the official proclamation has been cried from the housetops, it is expected that the downtown streets will look like the board walk at Atlantic City before the week is out. Incidentally, tomorrow is Saturday, which means that it will not be long before eyes are gladdened by the happy sight.

It's apt to "stay 'ost" unless you advertise for it.

Leo is the winner, not Frank

In last night's paper we erroneously announced that Frank McNally, 5 Munger Terrace, Duluth, was the winner in the recent prize contest for a good name by which to advertise our newly introduced $14.50 suit for young men.

Leo, who is 16, and goes to the D. C. H. S., did not feel very nice about our mistake, but it was his own fault. His letter was typewritten on the business stationery of his brother Frank, who is in the life insurance business, and as Leo forgot to sign his name to it, we naturally credited it to Frank McNally.

The name adopted is

The "Columbo"

Letters were received from a great many young fellows not only in Minnesota and Wisconsin, but some came from North Dakota and Michigan. In the neighborhood of 300 names were proposed. Many of the best ones had to be eliminated because they are already in use in connection with articles of wearing apparel.

Those Duluth and Superior boys who looked at the suits before submitting a name, wrote some very complimentary notes about them. Nobby, nifty, dressy, quality, fit, economy and style are words that were largely used in forming a name. One young Finlander from North Dakota proposed "Werraton," which means in English, "You can't find any better." This name might have been adopted if people would pronounce it right, that is with the stress on the first syllable, but we were afraid some might say, "We're rotten." That wouldn't do for the best young men's suits ever offered at such a moderate price.

Clothes makers are waking up to the importance of making the boys' stuff as good as the men's.

The Columbia Boys' Section, occupying almost the entire second floor of The Columbia Building, is one of the strongholds of our ever growing trade, and this season our showing is better than ever.

Suits from $1.95 up to $18—a range within which the wife of the section man, the brakeman, the engineer and the "boss over them all" can be pleased and suited with equal facility.

Fancy gray mixtures, cheviots, cassimeres; tweeds in tan, brown and blue and new fabrics, patterns and styles never before shown.

Coats, either full or close-fitting. Extra trousers.

Long Trouser Suits are now in a separate "Young Men's" Department on our Main Floor.

Everything boys wear and a few good things for their mothers and sisters, such as ladies' shirts, waists, sweaters, slip-ons, hosiery and street gloves.

Hats for Men

We tell the modest truth when we say that The Columbia has far the largest and most complete line of Hats and Caps in this section of the earth.

When you think about a hat or a cap, just think of The Columbia, where the assortments are kept complete by constant arrivals from Importers and Eastern makers.

This is a picture of the Wanahcan

To be found only at the Columbia; a dainty stiff hat at $4, worn by many of the best dressers you see on Superior street.

This illustrates the Alcyon

One of those nifty young men's hats we show this spring. One of the popular fuzzy kind. Light weight, in a gray shade, $3.

Among other new and different hats for young men, we mention the SIGMA, that stunning $3 novelty in Felt Hats (soft), with white or purple stitching. Then the rakish HOME SPUN ($3), a fold over hat for negligee wear and the new arrival, the BURROWS ($3), finding immediate favor with young men.

Just received another shipment of POLO HATS for LADIES ($2) and of stitched cloth hats for men, in young men's as well as in conservative shapes.

CAPS, of course. No better assortments anywhere. All our patterns are exclusive.

HOME GUARD WINS EASILY

White Sox Defeat the Peggers in Fast Game By 6 to 2 Score.

Old Faithful Worman Keeps Hits of the Cousins Well Scattered.

Yesterday the baseball worm turned and smote the enemy. Darby's nether whites routing the Canadian club strong brand by the score of 6 to 2. Old Faithful Worman was the mound nominee for the matinee, and though he was touched tenderly for ten blows during the soiree, it might be stated that he kept the bludgeon work of the Peggers fairly well stretched out over the nine innings.

Some sizzling fielding kept the dairyman out of danger and the enemy out of range of the score pan during most of the engagement. In the second little Leber ran back and garnered a fly and then turned, like Lot's wife, and heaved for the platter, getting Krueger on his way home. Blum also gave an exhibition of clever and artistic bag play.

Winnipeg got a double in the first, but like the vote for Taft, it was scattered and harmless. We started bravely in our half, Kuhn was safe on Altman's muff of this high one, McGraw beat out an infield hit and when Shea kicked the ball around the diamond Kuhn came scampering home. Menicee was safe when Moe threw his dinky one far over the head of Mac-Murdo, McGraw rounding up at third on the erratic heave. With Leber down McGraw crossed on Sours' infield out at first.

We gathered unto the run bin two more in the second. Blum walked and was sacrificed along by Erickson. Worman surprised the assembly by singling, scoring Blum. Worman was sacrificed by Kuhn and McGraw's double scored the rabbit.

A lone chalk mark came in the third through Leber's sharp single past second, Sours' sacrifice and the swiping of third by Leber and a wild heave to third on O'Brien's pop-up to Shea, the catcher throwing wide of the bag in the attempt to get Leber going back.

Our last came piking across in the industrious fifth. In this merry round Mors, McGraw walked, and with Menicee down Leber went to second and McGraw to third on Krueger's wild heave to the first sack. McGraw tripped in on Sours' long fly to Freer.

Not content to avert the calcimine and the humiliation of the dreaded goose egg, the cousins scored again in the ensuing round. With one on the mortality list, MacMurdo ambled, advanced to second on an infield out and rang home one on the run register when naughty Krueger doubled out in McGraw's territory.

So endeth the second chapter. The playing was fast and snappy, in direct and startling contrast to this work of the day previous. Grand Forks is with us today and there should be some tall twisting of the Flickertail.

FLYNN IS GROWING.

Pueblo Fireman Tips Beam Over Two Century Mark.

East Las Vegas, N. M., May 17.—Jim Flynn, the Pueblo fireman, will be anything but a little fellow when he squares off with Jack Johnson in their battle on July 4. Though he weighed only 156 pounds when he met Johnson in San Francisco on Nov. 2, 1907, he has since added much flesh to his frame. Flynn weighed 210 pounds when he reached LasVegas last Thursday.

Flynn, wearing a light gymnasium suit, tipped the scales at 215. He is out to beat the 218 or 220 notch when Tommy Ryan arrives and takes hold of him May 25.

Tommy Cannon of Oklahoma City, Okla., has been appointed official announcer of the contest. He has served in a like capacity at all the big shows held at Convention hall in Kansas City of late years.

SCOUTS AFTER COLLEGE MEN

New York, May 17.—With the closing of the college season near at hand baseball players on several of the university teams are planning today to join the professional ranks for the summer. Major league scouts have reported several sterling players with whom the clubs are negotiating.

Representatives of three major league clubs looked over the work of Pitcher George Davis of Williams college last Wednesday when he was shutting out the Princeton varsity team. Davis received several offers after the game and he asked time to consider them. The New York and Chicago American league clubs and the Pittsburg Nationals want his services. Catcher Sierrett of Princeton, will in all probability join the Chicago Americans.

The crack pitcher Hyatt of West Point will take a furlough of three months this summer and pitch for the Detroit club. Willett of the Detroits went to West Point and saw Hyatt perform and reported to Hugh Jennings that he would be a success.

Major league scouts are trying to get the signature of Catcher Mayport of the University of Vermont to a contract.

SCULLING GAME BEING REVIVED

Several Professional Rowing Races Have Been Planned for Present Season.

New York, May 17.—Professional sculling, for many years practically obsolete in the United States, is expected to be revived this year as a result of the arrangement of a match between William Haines, the professional rowing coach of Boston, and "Eddie" Durnan, the champion professional sculler of Canada. The two are to engage in a three-mile rowing race on Toronto bay, Canada, on Wednesday, July 10, for the championship of the United States and Canada.

Country-wide interest has been aroused in the match. It is probable that other professional races will follow the Haines-Durnan match. Already James Wray, coach of the Harvard crews, is in the field for professional sculling honors. George Lee, a Boston rowing enthusiast, and a friend of Wray, has offered to wager $1,000 that Wray is the peer of Durnan and Haines. He has posted a forfeit of $100 for a match between them. Lee would prefer a three-cornered race, but, in the event of the other contestants being unwilling to this arrangement, will accept a match with either individually.

Student of Hanlan.

Haines and Durnan are to row for $1,000 a side. Durnan is the idol of the rowing enthusiasts of Canada, where he is considered a second Edward Hanlan. He learned much of what he knows about sculling from Hanlan, who was one of his stanchest friends. In late years Durnan has coached many of the Canadian crews, and some of the scullers who have competed in the United States in the national regatta for championships.

Last summer he refuted the belief that his sculling days were over by defeating J. L. Hackett in a three-mile race for the championship of Canada on Rainy river. Durnan was hard pressed, but he always had the race well in hand. His friends asserted at the time that his exhibition of sculling and speed showed him to be as good as ever.

In 1907 he rowed G. Towns for the professional sculling championship of the world, but was defeated.

Another Match.

The winner of the Haines-Durnan race will probably be matched to meet the victor in the R. Arnst-E. Barry race in August. Arnst is the champion sculler of the world and Barry holds England's title.

Arnst captured the title in 1908 when he defeated W. Webb. In the following year he vanquished him the second time and since has crossed the line in front of G. Whelch, "Harry" Pearce and also Barry.

Last September Barry successfully denfended his title against W. H. Fogwell. Should Barry win the championship of the world and be matched with the winner of the Haines-Durnan race the event would be rowed in England. A victory for Arnst would mean holding it in Australia probably.

Arnst has never yet been defeated in a championship race.

CEREMONIES WERE POSTPONED

Rain Interferes With Opening of Boston's New Baseball Grounds.

Boston, May 17.—Rain caused a postponement of the dedication exercises at the Boston Americans' new $350,000 baseball grounds, Fenway park, and of the opening game of the Boston-Chcago series. The many baseball notables here participated, however, in a dedication banquet.

Among those present were Presidents Ban B. Johnson of the American league, Barrows of the International league, Al Tierney of the Three-Eye league, Charles A. Comiskey of the Chicago American club, Charles H. Ebbetts of the Brooklyn Nationals, Noyes of the Washington club, and nearly a score of other persons promnent in the baseball world.

Weather permitting, the dedication exercises will be held tomorrow.

LUKE McCARTHY ANOTHER JOKE

Conqueror of Morris Is Slow and Lacks Any Ring Skill.

Chicago, May 17.—Luther McCarthy may have knocked out Carl Morris at Springfield, but the evidence of an unprejudiced eye witness who was at the ringside on the occasion of the downfall of the "white hope" from Oklahoma is that the Springfield wonder will require a lot of adjustment before he measures up to the standard of a world's champion.

According to reliable information Morris took McCarthy as a joke and stepped into the ring about as fit to make a reputation as a blind man to see the Montreal baseball team win a pennant. Morris, said witness avers, was puffing and blowing after the first round. His opponent, in good condition, showed nothing beyond the punch. He is described as being slow, with little boxing skill and owning a sleep producer that is telegraphed before it is let loose.

Johnson Too Clever.

Johnson, with his wonderful blocking skill and arts of defense, would only have to be half himself to toy with an opponent of this description.

World's champions in pugilism are like all other surpassing things: They don't grow, but must be developed in the rough school of experience. While Manager Bill McCarney may have an asset, as a financial proposition, in McCarthy, it will require very careful matchmaking to keep him so.

That the Johnson-Flynn bout will go through now seems to be a matter entirely up to the authorities of the state of New Mexico. The forty-five round fight bill, as nearly as can be learned, is desirable to the bulk of the population of the state, owing to the desire of the residents to advertise the commonwealth.

CHICAGO PROMOTERS TO HOLD TEST BOUT

Chicago, May 17.—Whether or not the professional game of boxing can stand on its own feet without encountering complications in the Illinois state statutes is to be decided definitely shortly with a "test bout." Promoters bent on prying off the lid that has been clamped down for an indefinite time announce that they are planning a match between boxers of known ability and that the fight will take place in some hall on the South side.

Find Out Exact Status.

This announcement, which will either set the sport back on its own footing or dispose of any possibilities of its resumption until the present state law is changed, follows a thorough examination of the statute which governs the pugilistic game in the meshes of articles on this particular subject has failed to uncover anything that might be considered a "ban" on any bouts, according to the promoters and on the strength of their discoveries this proposed battle will be arranged for settlement within the next two weeks.

These "hopes" of the game also see a loophole in the fact that the constitutionality of the present state code has never been tested. The promoters admit knowing of the several provisions made by the legislature with the aim of prohibiting boxing exhibitions of any variety in the state, but they claim that the law might wither under the fire of a court decision. In this event the ring sport might flourish until a new code could be framed up to stand legal attacks.

Plan on Twenty-Round Bout.

Plans as now formulated call for a scheduled twenty-round engagement. A purse will be hung up for the contestants and admission will be charged. In this way the promoters are sure they will encounter opposition that at least will bring the case into court for final settlement. As a first step an application for a charter has been forwarded to Springfield, and upon its receipt an athletic association, which is to be a permanent organization, will be formed.

REAL ROWING WORK WILL BEGIN NEXT WEEK

This week has been the best since the start of rowing, as the warming up of the weather and the comparatively smooth water have enabled Coach Ten Eyck to give his charges some real workouts. Last night the two eights had one of the longest spins of the season, going far up the shore line past Oatka.

Jimmy is speeding up the stroke a trifle, though the slow measure is still held and the men are being especially coached on blade work and the body swing. Starting with the coming week the stroke will be speeded up some and the work of getting some speed out of the old boys will start. The rowing mill grinds slowly, but it is also true that it grinds exceedingly well.

The work of the Minnesota Boat club eight against the University of Wisconsin will be watched with especial interest by Jimmy Ten Eyck and the members of his rowing school. The local men know that St. Paul has the habit of coming back and that the senior and junior eights are liable to be very strong the present season. Therefore the consuming interest with which the result at Madison is being awaited.

Here it is getting along past the middle of May—even though we have had no spring—and some of the grind of the season is going to be on the program. The morning work is scheduled to start within a few days. With that it is good night to ice cream, dancing, soft lights in the parlor and other indoor sports. The candidates will be answering Ten Eyck's taps at six bells every night and dewey morn. It's a gay life.

Hare and Mahan will be here within a week or so. With the coming of these two, there may be a shift in the eight. James has a multitude of candidates for the eight of the veteran variety. There are Thompson, Thorburn, Lathrup, Kent, Sele, Quimby, Grant and one or two others, and there will be Hare and Mahan. Out of this bunch it is expected that the D. B. C. is going to have an eight that will come under the Wabasha street bridge at St. Paul ahead of the procession.

Speaking of St. Paul and bridges and other things, it might be stated that there is no certainty that the regatta will be held on the placid bosom of the Father of Waters. That murky Red river, up Winnipeg way, may have the honor of holding the regatta, after all.

With the decision not to take their crews to the Henley and the Olympic games, comes the announcement that Winnipeg may hold the rowing fest. In the end it will make little difference to the locals. There is little difference in the courses.

COMMITTEE MAY BAR COBB AND SCHULTE

Cincinnati, May 17.—Shall previous winners of the Chalmers baseball trophy be eligible in future competition for the trophy?

This is the question which is just now vitally interesting all members of the Chalmers trophy commission.

The discussion was started following suggestions from Ty Cobb of the Detroit Tigers and Frank Schulte of the Chicago Cubs, last year's winners of the Chalmers trophy, that they be eliminated from all future competition and that the rules of the trophy commission be altered so that a man who has once won the trophy shall not again be eligible to competition.

Harry P. Edwards, the trophy commissioner from Cleveland, and M. F. Parker, the commissioner from St. Louis, were the first to take a stand in the matter. Both of these baseball experts have suggested in letters to Chairman Ren Mulford that Cobb and Schulte be eliminated from competition for the major prize, which is a motor car. Both Edwards and Parker feel, however, that all players should be voted upon on their merits and that if Cobb and Schulte are judged the most valuable players in their respective leagues again this season, they should be given some recognition by the commission. In a letter to Chairman Mulford, Commissioner Parker says:

"The proposition to eliminate the men who have already been awarded machines is all right, out in my estimation it would be unwise to prevent their being voted upon. The Chalmers trophy is popular because it is the best method yet employed to decide the real supremacy of baseball in an individual way. To do anything to impair this feature would be to lessen its value. I would suggest that the voting be done without consideration of where machines have been awarded. Then it would be possible to award the automobiles to those receiving the highest vote, providing they had not previously won the trophy, or, in the case of their having previously won machines, the cars could be given to those nearest to them who had not won machines. In case the choice should fall on a player who had already won a car, he should be awarded a cup, shield or medal suitably inscribed so that he would get the honor of his achievement, and the machine would go to the nearest man to him. This would still leave the Chalmers award showing the real champion player of each season."

Commissioner Edwards suggests that "the commission might award the automobile to the second highest man, if he had never captured the trophy, and give the winner, in the case of his being a repeater, some medal emblematic of his feat."

Jack Ryder, trophy commissioner from Cincinnati, takes quite an opposite stand.

"With regard to the suggested elimination of former winners of the Chalmers trophy from succeeding competitions, I am very much opposed to it and think that it would defeat the project from the standpoint of sportsmanship," said Ryder. "The object of this competition is to determine who is the best all around man in each league year after year. If the same man, in the judgment of the commission, is the best man in his league for two or more years, he should be entitled to the honor which comes from being so chosen. I do not think that the same man will be chosen twice in succession very often, but, if he should be, it would be unfair to deprive him of the honor because he had been selected the year before.

"There may be some merit in Mr. Parker's suggestion, but I believe that all players in both leagues should be voted on in accordance with their merits and without regard to previous winnings. The idea of the competition is to determine in the fairest tessible means who is the best all around player in each league every year. If any player can win more than once, so much greater the credit to him. If Cobb, for instance, goes along this year as he did last year and outclasses all other players of the American league, it seems to me that it would make something of a farce of the whole commission idea to award the car to some one else who was known by all to be inferior to Cobb.

"At any rate, if the purpose of the commission is to be preserved, I think it is essential that all players should have a chance at the trophy each year, without regard to previous winnings."

Chairman Mulford of the trophy commission has submitted the suggestion of Cobb and Schulte to all the commissioners and has asked for their opinions. Following the general discussion of the proposition to eliminate previous winners, the matter of changing the rules in accordance with the suggestions from Cobb and Schulte will be put to a vote. Up to the present time, the reports to Chairman Mulford from the commissioners have been about equally divided.

D., where he had been attending a baseball meeting, to his home at Deloraine, Man., John Gowanlock, a wealthy merchant, was instantly killed late yesterday. The automobile which he was running became stalled on a hill, and then, backing down, went over an embankment at a steep point, turning over. The machine fell on Gowanlock, pinning him to the ground.

To Enforce Discipline.

At a meeting of representatives of the Duluth, Winnipeg, Grand Forks and Superior clubs, held here last evening, by-laws were adopted looking toward the enforcing of discipline in the league. It is proposed, according to the sentiment expressed last evening, to run the league on a business basis and to tolerate no rowdy work.

BASEBALL NOTES

The United States league has an umpire named Callem, which is appropriate to say the least.

Joseph A. Bessey, who caught for New York in the late 60's died recently in San Francisco.

Some one has doped out that second base is the only position that has not developed a major league manager.

No need to worry about the Athletics. This time last year their percentage was given lower than it is at present.

W. J. McGinnis, who was an umpire in the Mink league last season, holds an indicator in the Kansas league this year.

Mike Grady, former Kansas City and St. Louis player, will play first base for Salina in the Kansas circuit this season.

The Reds may be a huge joke but so were the Baltimores in 1894—for a while. The joke sometimes is on the other fellow.

Frank Killen, star left hander with the Pirates a good many years ago, has the fever and thinks he would like a job in the United States league.

The Gotham papers are so carried away over the showing of the Giants that they now refer to them as "The McGraw Empire State Limited."

Jimmy Barrett, last year at the head of the Milwaukee team, is working out at the Detroit ball park and says he means to get into the game again.

A six-club international league is to operate in Michigan-Ontario territory, with teams in Mount Clemens, Port Huron, Windsor, Sarnia, Pontiac and Chatham.

Dick Speer, formerly of Wichita and once with the Detroit American league team, has been made manager of the Muskogee team of the Oklahoma State league.

Ball players who go dashing like mad towards concrete stands will learn some day that these structures are built to stand more than the shock of a human being.

In the St. Louis-Cincinnati game of May 6, played at St. Louis, 30 players were used, which some say establishes a record for number of men in one game in a regular season.

Pitcher Shack of Cleveland, in the United States league, struck out eleven in a game with Chicago. He went into the game in the sixth inning when everybody was hitting.

Will Oriet, shortstop of the Missoula team of the Union association, is a brother of Frank Oriet, who caught for Detroit in 1883-4 and was put out of the game with a badly broken hand. He is now a contractor in the Northwest.

Out in Denver the chamber of commerce got out a big button bearing the un-Websterian word "Penant Day." This mistake is explained by Denver papers, which say it has been so long since Denver had a pennant that they have forgotten how to spell the word.

Manager Wallace of the St. Louis Browns says that when he put First Baseman Kutina behind the bat in hopes of making a catcher out of him Kutina watched the bat instead of the ball and the result was that he got most of the pitches on his anatomy instead of in his mitt.

The second annual race of the Washington State league opened May 2. Bad weather handicapped training and none of the parks were in shape because of rain, but the various team managers promise good ball when they get to going. King Kelly is the manager of the new Aberdeen team.

Ping Bodie, the Sox slugger, is attracting a lot of attention with a stop-look-listen suit which he is wearing. The garment is of material similar to that used in awnings. Bodie has been notified not to wear it in the dining room as it interferes with the service, and Ping is forced to wear his tuxedo at meal time.

John McCambridge, a young ball player, who was with Mansfield in the Ohio-Pennsylvania league a short time in 1911, was killed at Erie, Pa., Sunday, May 5. His home was at Youngstown, Ohio. He was a pitcher and had signed to play with a semi-professional team this year, having given up organized baseball because he did not wish to forfeit a good position he held.

The United States league is too fast for some of the veterans—most any league would be. Claud Ritchey has been released by the Pittsburg club of the Independent organization and Bugs Raymond has had the curtain drawn on his efforts to pitch for Chicago. Another player released by Pittsburg is Jack Himes, formerly a first baseman in the Tri-State and other minor leagues.

Signals of distress have been hoisted by at least three clubs in the United States league, according to the agents of organized baseball, who are watching the outlaws closely. It is said that the sixteen games played by the Uncle Sam circuit did not net more than $7,000 in receipts, the bulk of this amount being taken in by the Richmond club. The big league men look for a bust of some kind before December day.

PLANS MUCH ROAD WORK

Crookston Automobile Club Takes Initiative Looking to Better Highways.

Co-operating With Polk County Board and Township Officers in Work.

Crookston, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Crookston Automobile club has become interested in good roads project this year to a degree that will result in more permanent road building than has ever been done in any ten previous years in Polk county. This does not mean the construction of new roads altogether, but the transformation of mere semblance of roads—piles of dirt into real roads, well rounded off, from which the water will run quickly, though some absolutely new roads will be built as connecting links in the state highway projects.

The county commissioners of Polk county will expend $6,000 on the section of road leading from Crookston to Maple lake, the nearest summer resort to Crookston, twenty-eight miles. The section of the road nearest Maple lake is good now, the subsoil containing gravel sufficient to make the road building very simple, and in addition there are gravel ridges which are followed.

The road east of Crookston has always been bad in spots in wet weather. The three townships interested made appropriations, the business men of Crookston made a $750 donation and the total, with the commissioners' appropriation of $6,000, will finish a perfect highway, graveled to the east line of Polk county.

Automobile Club Raises $4,000.

The automobile club has done more than this. A fund of $4,000 additional was subscribed, and $2,500 of this has just been expended for a gasoline tractor, a double-bladed road machine, two road rollers, which will arrive within a week and be put to work on the various main roads leading into Crookston and kept at work steadily all summer. Wherever a township makes special effort to build good main roads, the tractor and other machinery will be sent to assist them, thus encouraging all road work, and it is believed that 100 miles of roadway can be kept in practically perfect condition with this equipment.

The move has aroused great interest among the farmers, and their co-operation has been most readily secured. Many of the surrounding townships have voted $200 additional to the regular appropriation this year through the efforts of the Automobile club, and the general interest in road building means a realization of the benefits of many completed state highways within the next two years.

KILLS BEAR THAT WEIGHS 560 POUNDS

William McNutt Brings Down Giant Bruin on Couderay Reservation.

Couderay, Wis., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The largest black bear ever seen or killed in this section was shot yesterday by William McNutt five miles from here in the Couderay Indian reservation. The carcass weighed 560 pounds, measured 9 feet 6 inches from tip to top and 7 feet from tip to tip of his front paws when lying stretched out on his back.

Mr. McNutt is a watchman over some lumber camps and shot the bear from the door of his camp. He expects to have the hide mounted on account of its enormous size.

EXPERT TO SHOW WORK FOR HEALTH

State Board of Health Bringing Dr. Hoag Into the State.

St. Paul, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Under the direction of the state board of health, Dr. E. B. Hoag, medical supervisor of schools at Berkley, Cal., and an expert in work among children, will come to Minnesota Aug. 1, to spend a year in a campaign for medical inspection in the schools of this state. Contract with him has been made and he has advised Dr. H. M. Bracken, secretary of the board, that he will be here.

Diseases of the eye, ear, teeth and general physical condition of pupils, as well as examination for infectious and contagious diseases, will be discussed in all parts of the state by the California expert. He will endeavor to carry his campaign of education and instruction into cities, towns, villages and even the country districts. Investigation has shown often dull students are dull because of unhealthy condition of their bodies and heads, that bad teeth causes indigestion, weak eyes induce headaches and similar troubles serve to distract minds of pupils from their study.

"Dr. Hoag will not work among pupils locally," said O. H. Pierson, assistant secretary of the board of health. "He may select one in each place he goes, to illustrate the need of work to be done, but will devote the greater part of his time to telling of the importance of medical inspection and of what may be accomplished."

Dr. Hoag is author of a number of treatises on medical inspection and is looked up as an authority on the subject.

TAME DEER IS SHOT.

Reckless Hunter Wounds Fine Presque Isle Animal.

Marquette, Mich., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The biggest and finest buck on Presque Isle staggered up to Keeper Robert Hume Tuesday evening at feeding time with a bullet hole in his right shoulder, and it is now feared it will die. The incident has filled Mr. Hume with righteous indignation and if the person who fired the shot is detected it will go hard with him.

During the summer the deer leave the island occasionally to seek other feeding grounds. During the hunting season, however, they are fenced in on the island. Their haunts are usually about the lakes back of the powder mill, west of the Lake Superior & Ishpeming shops and near the city's power dam. Shots were heard all last summer in that direction and many deer did not return. Now it seems that the gunners have taken up the same practice. The wounded buck is a large one and did not succumb immediately to the gun shot, but dragged itself home, starved and bedraggled, presumably to die near its keeper.

CROOKSTON AFTER 1913 U. C. T. MEET

Campaign Launched for Convention at Banquet Given F. X. Gravelle.

Crookston, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—At a big Commercial club dinner last evening, at which F. X. Gravelle of Duluth, state organizer of the U. C. T., was a guest of honor, the proposition of going after the 1913 annual meeting of the U. C. T.'s of the Northwest, which meets this year in Red Wing, was discussed, and plans outlined for making the capture certain. Strong support has been promised from Duluth, St. Paul, Minneapolis and many other large centers. Many commercial travelers made short addresses.

A report of the Williamsport credit plan to encourage new industries was also submitted by a committee consisting of Charles Loring, Edward Peterson and J. E. O'Brien. The plan is to raise a fund of $300,000 to be in charge of a special organization, which will make thorough investigations and provide for credit, backed by the organization, in a sum determined by a special committee of experts.

As soon as Levy discovered that Rutledge was traveling about the district with goods in his possession that were decidedly adverse to his job he gave chase and caught Rutledge at the Gladstone hotel, where an exchange in grips was effected and the whisky salesman received back his property.

How to Be Beautiful

("Parisienne" in Woman's Realm.)

"To have a clear, soft and velvety complexion, massage the face, neck and arms daily with a solution made by dissolving an original package of mayatone in eight ounces of witch hazel. It prevents facial blemishes and makes the skin lovely, smooth and fair.

"A dry shampoo is better than washing the head, and there is no danger of catching cold. Mix four ounces of powdered orris root with an original package of therox, sprinkle a little on the head and brush it out well. It refreshes the scalp and makes the hair clean, light, wavy and lustrous.

"Hairs on the face mar a woman's beauty. They will vanish quickly if delatone paste is applied. Mix enough powdered delatone and water to cover the hairs; apply and permit to remain two or three minutes; then rub off, wash the skin and the hairs will be gone.

"For sores, skin eruptions, pimples, eczema and similar beauty destroyers, try Mother's Salve. It heals cuts, burns, scalds without leaving a scar, and is recommended for obstinate sores."

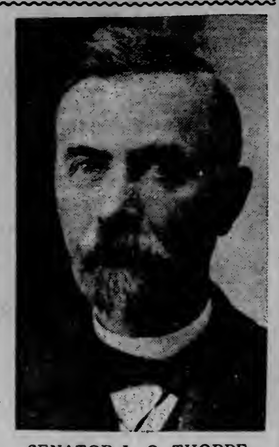
SPEAKERS AT THE NORWEGIAN INDEPENDENCE DAY CELEBRATION

REV. H. K. MADSEN.



SENATOR L. O. THORPE
Of Willmar.

ARE INVITED TO DULUTH

Many Delegates to Minneapolis Conference Will Attend Gathering Here.

Following the Methodist conference at Minneapolis, which ends Monday, May 27, the ministers of the Red River valley district of Norwegian-Danish M. E. churches will meet the next morning, May 28, at the First Norwegian-Danish M. E. church, Twenty-fourth avenue west and Third street. The convention is an annual one and will extend throughout the week.

Prominent pastors throughout the country, who are at present attending the Minneapolis conference, will come to Duluth and take part in the annual Red River valley district convention. Foremost among these is Rev. August Peterson, district superintendent of the Pacific coast district of the church. Rev. Mr. Peterson organized and founded the First Norwegian-Danish M. E. church in the West end in 1892, and was in charge of the pastorate for several years following.

The older members of the church remember Rev. Mr. Peterson and are now planning a number of receptions and entertainments in his honor during his stay in the city. Rev. Edward Erickson, pastor of the local church, is now arranging a program for the week and is being assisted in the work by the following committee appointed by the congregation: John J. Moe, P. George Hanson and A. O. Anderson. The election of officers of the district and plans for the year are among the important features of the annual gathering here within the next two weeks.

Rev. John Thorleson of Christiania, Norway; Rev. John Larson of Copenhagen, Denmark, and Rev. L. Tweed of San Francisco, Cal., are among the world prominent ministers who will visit in Duluth during the local convention. Mr. Moe, who is attending the Minneapolis conference as lay delegate for the church in the central district, has extended an invitation to every minister of the Norwegian-Danish M. E. church to spend several days here immediately after the Minneapolis meetings adjourn.

GREATER DULUTH CLUB MEETING

W. A. McGonagle Will Be Principal Speaker at May Gathering.

W. A. McGonagle has been announced as the principal speaker of the May meeting of the Greater Duluth club, which is to be held next Thursday evening at the new Woodmen hall, Twenty-first avenue west and First street.

Other speakers already announced are Miss Mary McFadden, who will talk on suffrage; Mrs. W. A. Kaake, on what club women are doing; W. I. Prince and Frank Randall.

John J. Moe is in charge of the banquet and meeting. Mr. Moe extended the invitation of the West end to the Greater Duluth club at its last meeting. The banquet will begin at 6:30 o'clock and covers are to be laid for 400. Representative residents from all parts of the city are to be invited to the affair.

PULPIT STATEMENT INVITED CRITICISM.

Rev. A. F. Elmquist, pastor of St. John's Lutheran church of Minneapolis and former pastor of the Bethany Swedish Lutheran church, Twenty-third avenue west and Third street, has aroused considerable discussion during the past week by telling his congregation last Sunday that "Mother's day was a piece of foolish nonsense."

Many church women and Governor A. O. Eberhart immediately replied to Rev. Mr. Elmquist's statement. Mr. Elmquist is a strong advocate of women's suffrage. He has taken a prominent part in the movement and is to speak in the West end sometime next month. An invitation has been extended to him by the West End Suffrage club.

Governor Eberhart, in speaking of the statement made by Dr. Elmquist, said:

"It is hardly necessary to point out the reason or justification of Mother's day. A man who made statements of that kind could do it with but one idea in mind—notoriety. His statements are not worth considering, only that a man who uses his pulpit to make remarks of that kind needs to be given a knock or two. In my opinion, Mothers' day is one of the most important days in the year. It is nationally observed. Governors of every state in the Union issue proclamations, and the outburst of one pastor isn't going to alter it."

WILL CELEBRATE DAY OF FREEDOM

Norwegian Residents of Duluth Will Observe Independence Day.

Rev. Hans K. Madsen, presiding elder of the Chicago district of Norwegian-Danish M. E. churches and former pastor of the First church in the West end, and State senator Thorpe of Willmar, Minn., arrived in Duluth this morning to take part in the ninety-eighth annual celebration of the independence of Norway this evening. The arrangements will begin at 8 o'clock at the Duluth Central high school assembly hall.

The Normanna Male chorus, the Varde club and the Sons of Norway have had charge of the celebration and committees representing each organization have been arranging the various features during the past few weeks. Rev. Mr. Madsen will be the principal speaker of the evening and this is his first appearance here in several years. State Senator Thorp is well known in Duluth and is one of the most prominent Norwegians in the state.

The Normanna Male chorus will open the celebration with a medley of songs, Mayor J. A. McCuen will give the opening address of welcome. Rev. Edward Erickson of the First Norwegian-Danish M. E. church, West end, will be chairman of the evening and will introduce the speakers to the audience. Flaaten's orchestra will furnish the music and Mrs. A. Flaaten and Miss Valborg Gunderson of Superior will render violin solos. A comedy Norwegian playlet will also be presented by the members of the three societies in charge of the celebration.

Jens Jacobson is chairman of the celebration committee, which is made up as follows: Normanna Male chorus, S. Haug, S. Sodahl and E. Sande; the Sons of Norway, Thorwald Hanson, C. Groting and J. Thoreson; Varde club, Jens Jacobson, L. Fossum and S. Jacobson. Thorwald Hanson is secretary of the committee and Berger Sande is treasurer.

The Rebecca Guild of St. Peter's Episcopal church, Twenty-eighth avenue west and First street, was entertained in the guild rooms last evening by Mrs. L. G. Hallquist.

Rev. Edwin Stromberg of the First Swedish M. E. church, Twentieth avenue west and Third street, conducted the regular weekly prayer meeting last evening.

Miss Ellen Holmes of Winnipeg, Man., left for her home yesterday after spending the past week with her aunt, Mrs. A. W. Snyder of West Fourth street.

GIVEN VERDICT FOR DAMAGE TO GARDEN.

Mrs. Mary Cain was given a judgment for $75 against Harry Gould by a jury in district court which brought in a verdict late yesterday afternoon in the Cain-Gould case which has been on trial before Judge Dancer for the past two days.

Mrs. Cain claimed that Gould's cattle broke down her fences and destroyed her gardens and crops. She claimed adverse title to twenty acres of valuable land, of which the owner of record is the Highland Improvement company.

The verdict of the jury in no way establishes Mrs. Cain's title to the land, because the Highland Improvement company was not made a party to the action. The verdict moreover, was only for damage done on two lots owned by Mrs. Cain.

Mrs. Cain laid claim to the rest of the land through the fact that for the past seventeen years she has occupied the property and has used it for garden purposes.

SEE JOKER IN PANAMA BILL

Claim It Would Give Canadian Railroad-Owned Steamship Monopoly.

Washington, May 17.—The Panama canal bill, providing for the administration of the canal zone and the operation of the canal itself, was introduced in the house yesterday. As a result of more than seven hours' debate, opponents of certain provisions of the measure affected to discover a "joker," which they claimed would give to Canadian railroad-owned steamships a monopoly of the traffic through the Panama canal at the expense of American railroad-owned vessels, which would be barred under the terms of the measure. They prophesied as a result the commercial overthrow of Boston, Seattle and Portland, Or.

A bitter fight seems certain to result over the provision which would prohibit railroad-owned vessels from passing through the canal. The Pacific coast delegation in the house heretofore had been unanimously in favor of the proposition. Their future course will be the subject of a conference.

Woman's Realm

Like a great big department store with almost everything one could think of in stock, the rummage sale for the benefit of the Children's Home opened this morning in the store room of the Elks building, 315 West First street, and by noon the stock was so far depleted that the members of the board of directors who have charge of the sale said they could use more articles if people could send in more for the sale tomorrow.

With plenty of room the articles were assorted into departments and men and women by the hundreds found just what they needed and wanted and the money for the home poured in rapidly. Before the time for the doors to open a crowd of shoppers had collected at the door and all day a steady sale kept up almost depleting the stock.

Beds, writing desks, chairs, tables, chests and other small articles of furniture were to be found in one department. Hundreds of hats, piles of shoes, and great mounds of clothing for women offered dresses for house and street, suits, under clothing, waists, aprons, as well as for children, whole suits of clothing and extra pieces for men. Lace curtains, old books, pictures, bric-a-brac, kitchen utensils and hardware were all offered in the various departments where women of the board as sales ladies and cash girls waited upon the customers assisted by other women and girls.

Many people interested in old fashioned furniture hunted for relics in the store today and book lovers were interested in the books. On the whole the sale proving a success and more donations will be gladly received by the women of the board.

WILL REMAIN IN DULUTH.

Miss Trimble As Permanent Secretary of Y. W. C. A.

That Miss Nettie E. Trimble, who has been acting general secretary of the Young Women's Christian association here for the past few months, has consented to remain at the head of this association for one year at least, is an announcement which has been received with delight by both the members of the association and the citizens of Duluth who are interested in th work of the association, for her earnest work and wide experience as well as her genial disposition have made her many friends during her stay.

This announcement was made at the tea yesterday afternoon for the workers in the $8,000 campaign at the association following the day's canvass, when the report for the day was turned in, showing the amount of $1,119 pledged as a result of the first day's work.

A special feature of the campaign is the endeavor to interest women of independent means, and the team in charge of this special work, with Mrs. W. C. Agnew as its captain, has set as its mark to work towards, twenty $100 subscriptions from women. Six subscriptions of $100 each have already been received, three of them from women whose interest in the association has never been particularly manifested before.

Miss Trimble said this morning in speaking of her acceptance that she was looking forward to the year with pleasure as she felt that the atmosphere of regard and appreciation in which the local institution is held makes it very pleasant, and the feeling of cooperation and helpfulness is so strong that I know I shall enjoy it very much.

"We are planning," she said, "to have two campaigns led by outside workers during the year. One will be an industrial campaign which Miss Francis Crittenden and a new worker to be appointed will lead with the motto 'Know Your City,' and Mrs. Emma F. Byers, one of the national workers, will lead a campaign in Bible work which will be the first work of the kind undertaken by the national board and with these two movements to forward the work the association here should be strengthened and built up materially."

SPEAKERS COMING.

Missionary Workers Will Talk at Rally.

The national speakers for the Women's Home Missionary society who will be guests in Duluth for the week and who will speak at the missionary rally to be held at the First M. They have been among the speakers at the Methodist conference being held in St. Paul, which has ben attended by the following people from Duluth: Mrs. E. K. Copper, Mrs. J. E. Goodman, Mr. and Mrs. Watson S. Moore, Mrs. Harriet L. Carey, Mrs. James Kelley and Mrs. C. F. Ellison.

THE EVENING STORY

ETHEL'S ECONOMIES

By Alice Walsh.

The worm had turned. I have ended an abominable and degrading tyranny. We loved each other to distraction a year ago. She drew the most bewitching "black-and-white" sketches a year ago. I wrote the most profound articles—chiefly about Hegel—a year ago. I have them still. She cheered me on and urged me on to sit up at nights and write more, and I said she was degrading her talents by consenting to illustrate "The Frocks of Lady Betty."

In our innocence we resolved to be married and to set up housekeeping together. We figured it out, and proved in the most conclusive manner possible that it cost considerably less to keep two people than to keep one. She said that she could cook the most delightful suppers out of nothing at all, and that all we required to be happy were a spirit lamp and serviettes—"not paper ones, but real serviettes"—and flowers for the table center.

Our flat, she said, would become a center of light and leading, and the refined taste with which it was furnished would gradually attract all that was artistic and intellectual to our humble roof. The artistic taste Ethel declared, would be satisfied by her scheme of decoration in pale green, and the intellectual mind would be delighted and even satiated by my dissertations on Hegel, while every one would be satisfied by the pleasing suppers cooked out of nothing at all.

By not smoking myself, Ethel said I would be able to present each of my gentlemen guests with a real Porto Itico cigar, which are sometimes sold as cheap as six for a quarter.

"And, dearest," she said, feeling for my hand in the dark, "we won't buy any furniture on the installment plan, will we?"

On that point Ethel was firm and I agreed with her.

The secret of Ethel's housekeeping is soon told. She was a devoted reader of one of the journals which tell you how to make a practical sideboard out of an old hansom cab, or any odds and ends that you may have about you. The genius of this remarkable woman lay in discovering a use for things for which they were not intended. In these papers, which now became her chief mental food, it was clearly shown that all you required to be happy were several orange boxes and an odd barrel or two, with a considerable amount of "Liberty" fabric. Our furniture consisted of nineteen orange boxes and a barrel.

With her own hands that best of women decorated the door of what she called her salon with several Watteau-like landscapes. Then she fell on the floor in my absence and painted it a subdued but artistic green. This was a great secret, and I was carefully locked out until the scheme was finished. On being admitted, I found that she had decorated the floor with three Japanese mats. A novel and recherche cabinet stood in the corner. Further investigation revealed the fact that, while the front was artistically draped with figured silk, the back was undoubtedly the back of an old orange box.

One chair, slightly damaged, occupied the place of honor, but our deficiencies in this respect were amply compensated for by the fact that there were numerous stools and Ethel subsequently revealed to me that the basis of these consisted of a number of boxes procured from the grocer and elegantly draped with art fabrics.

We subsequently found that most of our guests preferred to stand, which they said was the natural and healthful way of resting.

I afterwards discovered that there was much competition among the ladies as to who should arrive first, the lady who did so thereby securing the only chair.

Most of the pictures were original drawings in "wash" which had been unfeelingly rejected by some of the best editors.

Encouraged and stimulated by this example, which I admired—a year ago—I fell on my own "den" and did my worst on that. I manufactured a set of pigeon-holes out of a cocoa box. And then Ethel showed me a paper describing how to make a pedestal writing desk out of two soap boxes set on end and joined by a slab of wood. Ethel covered the boxes with art fabric, and I glued a piece of cloth on the top and enjoyed the feeling of a householder.

Following her excellent example, I wished to decorate my room with numerous typewritten letters received from editors, regretfully declining my valued contributions. This I felt would give a literary flavor to the place, but, as Ethel frowned at the suggestion and said that my sphere was not the artistic, I reluctantly abandoned the idea.

Then Ethel sent me out late at night to steal a drain pipe—for her resources were unfailing. When, after eluding several policemen, I arrived with this, she handsomely decorated the drain pipe with lilies and tied a ribbon round what I may describe as its throat, and set the finished work up in the lobby as a practical umbrella stand.

Unfortunately, owing to the fact that the drain pipe was open at both ends, you could not put your umbrella into it if it had been raining, and when it was wet I had to carry the umbrellas of my guests into the kitchen and stand them up in the sink. But then, as the best of women said, you cannot at once be artistic and practical.

Unhappily, the appetite of this excellent woman grew by what it fed on. She could not keep her hands from picking and stealing, and I had to lock things away. There was a slightly heated discussion when I returned one afternoon and found a soft felt hat, to which I was much attached and which I had worn for years, disguised as a covering for a flower pot, with a ribbon tied round its waist. This I felt was carrying artistic taste too far, but when I said so, Ethel, whom my language moved to tears, showed me the paper which had suggested this nefarious idea, and said that she had only been prevented by the necessity of peeling potatoes from painting it with flowers.

But the crowning misfortune came one afternoon, when she rushed in, breathless and panting, and embraced me warmly.

"Dearest," she cried, "I have just ordered a writing chair for you! It's coming at once. I cannot bear to see my poor old hubby sitting on that cheap thing. And, dear, I have bought it out of my own money!"

I thanked her warmly and told her she was too good for me. At that moment I heard a noise like "Iser rolling rapidly," and a man came in trundling an apple barrel.

"But what—" I said.

"Dear," she exclaimed, "it's your chair! Am I not good to you?"

And then the best of women produced a paper which demonstrated in the clearest manner possible how to convert a barrel into an easy chair.

All you had to do was to saw the thing through at a height convenient for sitting on, remove the portion cut through, and nail a board across the abyss for a seat, and there you had a real armchair with a practical back. Afterwards you stuffed the back with old cushions and your wife draped it with art fabrics.

I was forced to admit, when I had mastered the details, that the idea seemed an excellent one, and I went out and bought a saw and fell to work on the barrel.

I do not blame Ethel; I blame the abominable paper. I admit that when completed the thing bore a considerable resemblance to a chair of eccentric pattern, and Ethel called it the seat of the scorner, because, she said, I wrote such nice, dear, sweet, sneering articles. But afterward the subject became painful—especially painful to me.

Our first misadventure occurred with Mr. Whirter, who is large and stout. On his coming I explained all about the chair to him, and urged him warmly to sit in it.

"Why buy furniture," I said, "when you can make your own? Why encourage cabinet-makers and other products of an effete civilization when, with a barrel and a saw and a dollar's worth of art fabrics, you can make a chair that is at once ornamental and useful?"

Mr. Whirter, who was much struck by my arguments, sat down. Afterwards, although he admitted that the idea was an excellent one, he said that the chair was perhaps made for a thinner man and attempted to extricate himself. By this time however he was so firmly wedged into the back that when he attempted to rise he lifted the chair with him and bore it about. Uniting my efforts to his, we succeded in extricating him, but unfortunately tore away some of the art fabric with which the back was covered.

Mr. Whirter, who was very nice about it, said that no blame could be attached to the chair, which was an excellent thing, but designed possibly for a smaller man.

Gradually I was forced to admit that the seat of the scorner was hard, and I passed some uneasy hours in it, but could not give it up for fear of hurting the feelings of the best of women. I assured Ethel every night that nothing could be better, and that a barrel as a chair—properly draped—was a great improvement on the inferior substitutes manufactured by hide-bound pedants and sold to an unsuspecting public.

But an end comes to all things. When writing my articles I placed my feet either on the mantelpiece or on the desk, which I believe is especially designed for this purpose, and tilt my chair well back, so as to elevate my feet and depress my head. Unfortunately, a barrel does not lend itself readily to this attitude, and one day I perhaps carried things too far. I was laid suddenly and violently on the floor, while the barrel, into which I was firmly wedged, rolled my nearly senseless body round the room.

At that moment Ethel was fortunately out. I arose wounded but still full of courage, and reduced the thing to a shapeless mass. Ethel subsequently found me breathing hard and sitting among splintered staves and torn shreds of fabric.

I said that the fall had broken that excellent chair, and reduced it to the condition in which she found it, and that no one, not even I, was clever enough to repair it. Ethel, who was greatly distressed, did not insist on my attempting.

The worm had turned; I am a free man. Never shall I submit to this grinding tyranny.

I had written thus far when Ethel came in a little flushed, and her eyes were dancing. She had just discovered a way of making something out of my cigar-boxes. Decidedly it seems a good idea.

DROWNS IN THE HARBOR

Body of Sailor on Steamer Pathfinder Found Near Dock.

Believed to Have Walked Into Water on Way to Ship.

That Emil J. Siewart fell in the bay at the Zenith Furnace company's dock while attempting to get in the steamer Pathfinder is the belief of the police, who found his body near the boat this morning.

Siewart is about 25 years old and leaves a mother living at Milwaukee. A half filled bottle of whisky was found on Siewart's person when his body was searched at the Flood & Horgan undertaking rooms this noon. A small memorandum book gave the young man's name and also requested the notification of his mother, Mrs. Martha Siewart, 840 Humboldt avenue, Milwaukee, in case of any accident. The book gives Siewart's address as 128 Muskego avenue, Milwaukee.

Siewart had been down town during the evening and when he was not found this morning on the Pathfinder a search was started and a crew of men sent out by the furnace company to drag the bay near the plant. It is believed that Siewart was walking on the dock and stepped off, falling into the water. Siewart was a deckhand on the steamer.

The body is being held at the undertaking rooms until word is received from Mrs. Siewart, to whom several telegrams were sent by the police authorities.

BOOSTERS HOLD MONTHLY BANQUET.

C. P. Craig gave a most enthusiastic address at the second monthly banquet and meeting of the new Boosters' club of the Duluth Grocers' association, held last evening at the Dormedy hall, Central avenue and Ramsey street. More than 100 retail grocers attended the affair. James E. Foubister presided at the meeting as toastmaster.

Mr. Craig gave considerable praise to the grocers of Duluth for their effective work in the past. He also urged every member of the organization to take part in the various movements for the welfare of Duluth instituted from now on.

In conclusion, Mr. Craig urged backyard gardening as a means to beautify a city. Other addresses were made by Charles S. Mitchell, who spoke on the improvements of the moral conditions in Duluth, and Charles Kauppi, who advocated a road from West Duluth to the steel plant. He said that the surrounding land about West Duluth would be settled more quickly if there were good roads, and speculators were not holding out for large prices.

The banquet was prepared and served by the Ladies' Aid Society of the First Swedish Lutheran church.

May Be a Hoax.

West Duluth police are still at a loss to account for the following note found on the Seventy-first avenue bridge yesterday afternoon by several boys returning home from school:

"Dear People—It seems that everything is going wrong with me. I find it necessary for me to exterminate myself, and after deep thought I find this the best plan. Sorry that I had to come to such a conclusion. You will find my body in Fairmont park creek, up above where the creek runs into the park.

"A. D. T."

The boys immediately brought the note to the police station and Lieut. Wilcox has detailed two men to search the creek in the vicinity of the bridge. No information has been secured as yet and it is the belief of the police here that the entire affair is a joke.

LITTLE FOX TERRIER IS MADE TOWN'S MASCOT.

Grandview, Wash., May 17.—A diminutive fox terrier drifted into Grandview a short time ago and since his arrival has divided his time between a local drug store and the Northern Pacific depot. Tramp is the name applied to him.

A few mornings ago a record crowd left here to attend the Yakima blossom festival. Tramp likes crowds and followed to the depot without attracting attention. Soon after Grandview was left, passengers noticed Tramp seated in a car seat alone.

The conductor inquired for the owner. Several women explained that the dog was a tramp and asked that he be allowed to remain on the train. The conductor yielded.

At North Yakima Tramp paid no attention to the Grandview crowd and trotted up Yakima avenue. Just what he did to amuse himself during the day is not known, but when the train was ready that night there was Tramp, ready to return to Grandview. On the return trip he attracted considerable attention, for those who saw him wondered how he spent the day and how he happened to be at the depot at the right time.

Since his return he has been popularly voted the town mascot as long as he chooses to hold the office.

More men are "henpecked" by seemingly adverse circumstances than by their wives. A little advertising may help you to boss your own circumstances.

John Tanney, 70 years old, a ward of the county at frequent intervals for some years past, passed away yesterda at the poor farin.

For over a quarter of a century the old man has been in and about Duluth. For years he worked as a laborer at various jobs during the spring and summer months and as a woodsman during the cold months of the winter.

Like others of his kind he led rather a precarious existence, living much of the time from hand to mouth. At times he would come to town with the gangs, with his pockets wadded with cash, and let it flow as freely as water while it lasted. A "good fellow," a good worker, a liberal spender when he had the money and always bighearted, he reached the zenith of his life and drifted towards the sunset without a dollar laid away for a rainy day.

Then he began to feel the weakness which accompanies old age. He became afflicted with rheumatism, which crippled one leg, stiffening it so that it was with difficulty that he could make his way about. He was taken in charge by the county authorities and given treatment at the county hospital. From time to time he left, but as invariably as the departure, was the return. He was too far gone to be able to help himself to any very material extent.

The last time he came back was nearly ten months age. At the age of three score years and ten he was past the stage where he could make his own living. Yesterday he died at the institution which has known him so long.

As he was kept by the county during the last years of his life, so will he be buried by the county. He will be laid away in the paupers' field at Greenwood cemetery, along with the scores of other human derelicts and unfortunates who have died as wards of the public.

Arthur Moore, a well-dressed, clean-looking young fellow, 21 years old, was brought into police court this morning to answer a charge of vagrancy. He pleaded not guilty and his trial was set for this afternoon.

Moore strenuously denied that he is without visible means of support. He said that he has been working steadily, and only last Wednesday drew a sum of money due him from a railroad company. He said that his folks are in Ireland and that he came to this side eight years ago, when he was 13 years old.

"The policeman says that you use morphine; how about it?" said the court.

"That is not true," he replied, "More out of curiosity than anything else I have 'hit the pipe' a few times, but I am not addicted to the habit. I haven't touched it for a month."

"If he keeps on satisfying his curiosity," said the old policeman, who happened to be standing near by, "he'll be a dope fiend as surely as he's in the courtroom now. It'll be a little more, and then a little more, and with a little bit more the stuff will have such a grip on him that he will be unable to shake it loose. Many a stronger-willed man than he appears to be has gone the same route before him."

John Liedes and John Leades were both in the grist this morning to answer charges of drunkenness. The names sound just alike. The second John answered both times the name was called. Twice he pleaded guilty to the charge against him. Then it was noticed that he was up the second time. A brief scrutiny of the grist disclosed the second man and he vehemently protested that he was not drunk. The difficulty straightened out, the court gave the man who had twice pleaded guilty a suspended sentence and set the trial of the other for this afternoon.

Joe Olewski pleaded guilty to assaulting Ed Miller in a saloon yesterday when he was brought into police court this morning and paid a fine of $5.

It appears that Miller was arguing with a much smaller man than himself about church matters and threatened to do things to the diminutive one, when Olewski went up to him.

"If you are going to fight, fight a man your size—me for instance," he is reported to have said. Whereupon, it is claimed, that he suited action to the word and struck Miller several blows. Miller swore out the warrant and caused his arrest.

Joseph Holder put up a "good front" when he was brought into police court this morning to answer a charge of vagrancy. It was his first offense and his story sounded reasonable and he was allowed his liberty.

CLOQUET'S CREAMERY IS WELL UNDER WAY.

Cloquet, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—W. K. McNair is contemplating building a new home on Chestnut street, and C. L. McNair may later in the season make some very extensive changes in his residence in Park place. Several Duluth people are looking over sites at Chub lake with a view to building summer homes there.

The new creamery is well under

Charles Dana Gibson has come back to Life. This week's issue has a center page cartoon by Mr. Gibson, in his old manner. A young man is sitting in his office reading the account of her wedding abroad, while his secretary—needless to say a Gibson girl—is gazing at him in a consolatory manner. Other pictures by Mr. Gibson will appear in Life regularly.

CAUSES CONSTERNATION.

"Bear Cat" Danced By Young Officer and Los Angeles Girl.

Omaha, Neb., May 17.—Miss Nora Fortman of Los Angeles, created a sensation at the military ball at Ft. Crook some nights ago by dancing the "bear-cat" with a dashing young officer, and she created consternation at the summer opening of the staid and most respectable Country club by repeating her racy dance with a young society man.

The older officers and the ladies are still dazed, while the president of the Country club says: "It will not happen again!"

At the close of the dance the younger men rose as one man and made a rush for Miss Fortman's program.

The young lady, who is visiting friends in Omaha, has been wearing mourning since her arrival in the city.

DIGGING FOR BODY OF MAN MURDERED YEARS AGO

Looking for the body of a man believed to have been murdered thirteen years ago, the chain gang this afternoon began digging up the ground under the sidewalk in front of 334 and 336 Lake avenue south.

Thirteen years ago, Nicholas Simi, a blacksmith, left his home to go down town to work. That was the last seen of him. Since then the members of his family have sought in vain for some clew to his whereabouts.

Recently a man who gave his name as Isaac Johnson visited the members of Simi's family, and unfolded a strange story to them. He told them that one of the old time characters of Lake avenue and the Bowery, who recently died, used to weep every time he passed 334 and 336 Lake avenue. He would point to the ground and say "The body of Nick Simi lies there under three feet of dirt. He was killed for no reason whatever." Mr. Johnson stated that little attention was paid to the remarks of this man, as it was thought he was slightly demented, but recently Mr. Johnson heard more of the disappearance of Simi thirteen years ago. He then went to the members of the family with the story, and they reported to the police. The police immediately began an investigation. They learned that a few years ago a woman named Sipan Silja, on her deathbed asked that the widow of Nicholas Simi be summoned. It was then late at night, and she died before her request was complied with.

Putting this story with that told by Johnson, the police were convinced that there was a good chance of finding the body of Simi at the point mentioned. This afternoon the services of the chain gang were enlisted, and a search for the remains of Nicholas Simi began. It will take several hours to dig up all the ground to a depth of three or four feet. Up to 3 o'clock this afternoon no bones had been found.

St. Paul, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The supreme court of the state of Minnesota today handed down a decision affirming the lower courts in overruling a demurrer filed by the Great Northern Railway company in an action brought by Clarence H. Venner, a minority stockholder, against the railway company and others, to compel the restoration of ore properties valued at $34,000,000 to the railroad company from the other defendants.

WHEAT AND FLAX LOWER

Wheat Off a Shade on Leading Markets of the United States.

Big Cargo of Canadian Flaxseed Coming—Duluth Price Off.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 17.—Wheat closed a shade lower on the principal markets of America today, though it was a shade higher at Winnipeg. Duluth May and July closed unchanged to ½c lower. Cash wheat was ½c over the May and July price. Durum was ½c off, oats ⅛c off, rye 3c lower and barley unchanged. Duluth May flaxseed closed ½c lower and July 1¼c lower.

Wheat took another drop this morning on the markets of North America. There was no sign of any reaction from the previous declines, except the fact that May wheat in Chicago went up. That seemed to be due to a local cause, for May wheat was about as weak as July at Duluth, Minneapolis and Winnipeg. The good weather reports were the main factor in putting down July wheat. The decline took place this morning in spite of a falling off in the primary receipts, as reported today, in comparison with those of a year ago.

Duluth July wheat, which closed yesterday at $1.14¼ asked, opened today at $1.14¼, and at noon today was quoted at $1.13⅝ asked. There were lower quotations at the same time on July wheat at Chicago, Minneapolis and Winnipeg.

Foreign cables were almost without exception lower. Liverpool wheat today closed ½@¾d lower. The principal bearish factors were the expectation of larger Argentine shipments and the anticipated opening of the Dardanelles, which will release a vast amount of Russian grain. The decline was partly checked to some extent by the confirmation of the report of drouth in the provinces of Victoria and South Australia, by the prediction of light world shipments other than American, light shipments from Russia and Australia and the poor grading of Platte and Canadian wheat.

Canadian Flaxseed Coming.

The Duluth flaxseed market was a great deal of a waiting one today. There is a large cargo of flaxseed on its way from Port Arthur to Duluth on the Chill, belonging to the Duluth Shipping company. It is bonded seed and amounts to about 100,000 bu of various grades. The owners are American people. Many Duluth brokers and others endeavored to get more particular information about this seed today, but the shipping company's officials would tell no more, as their clients had given them no permission to announce the particulars. What the Duluth dealers were most anxious to know was whether the seed was going to be taken out of bond and disposed of on the Duluth market.

Some think there is a great deal of No. 1 northwestern in the cargo. If that is so, it may be used to mix with the inferior seed that is now available at Duluth and bring the grade up to American No. 1, which will be good to make delivery on the now phenomenally high May option.

It is not believed that the flaxseed is meant for export to European countries, for in that event there would be no imaginable purpose in heading the boat for Duluth. The cargo has been consigned for one of the Duluth elevators.

Today the margin between Duluth May and Winnipeg May flax became wider than ever. Duluth May at noon today was ½c off at $2.29 asked, but Winnipeg May was 8c off at $1.92½. Buenos Ayres May flaxseed closed Wednesday night unchanged at $1.77¾. London Calcutta May and June flaxseed closed today unchanged at $2.27¼.

There were ten cars of flaxseed today on the track for inspection at Duluth. Minneapolis was bidding 1c under the Duluth May price.

MARKET GOSSIP

The statement below, published by Dornbusch of London, in regard to the flaxseed that is being threshed this spring in North Dakota and Saskatchewan, is declared by some Duluth grain brokers to be an accurate statement of existing conditions, while others say the quality of the flaxseed that is coming in is not nearly so good as the Dornbusch statement makes out. The statement is as follows:

"Threshings of the North American linseed that had been under the snow all the winter are turning out very satisfactorily, the seed being in splendid condition, and, so far as regards Canadian quality, it is even grading No. 1. The Northwestern seed also is not only equal to what was threshed in the autumn, but is superior to the average received during the winter. This will prove good news to the American crusher, who had been fearing their dependence for the future more or less upon imported seed, although not to anything like what were required last year."

Minneapolis, Minn., May 17.—James A. Patten of Chicago, credited by market reporters of that city with causing "remarkable somersaults" on the board of trade, made an emphatic denial last night that he had sold 5,000,000 bushels of wheat. Mr. Patten is here to attend the banquet of Methodist Episcopal church schools, which was held last night in connection with the general conference.

"I did sell wheat on which I was long yesterday," he said when shown the report from Chicago. "But it was more than 75 per cent less than the amount stated in the Chicago story. I made a prediction that the country was in a splendid condition, and it is getting so that when I prophesy people take my word for it, and some one starts something on the market. These untrue reports make me angry."

The Modern Miller, St. Louis, says: "Advices continue to come of further improvement in the soft winter wheat crop, but in many localities, principally in the northern part of the wheat belt, the plant shows poorly, the cold delaying the growth, and many fields are becoming weedy. A further advance in the condition of the hard winter wheat crop is reported. In Texas the army worm infests some fields, but little if any injury is reported. Cutting of wheat in Texas is expected within two or three weeks."

CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Pit Is Excited But Fluctuations Tend Toward Moderation.

Chicago, May 17.—There was plenty of activity and excitement in the wheat pit today but fluctuations tended to keep within moderate bounds. European markets reflected only to a slight degree the big break in prices here yesterday and this fact had a steadying influence. Nevertheless, liquidating sales were still in progress, and quotations suffered a further decline. It was an open question as to whether the majority of the so-called pyramid lines had been unloaded or not. The opening ranged from ⅝c lower to ⅛c up. July started at $1.08⅛ to $1.09 the same change from last night as the market taken altogether. After a number of rapid swings within those limits, a fall to $1.07⅞ ensued, but but was followed by a rally to $1.08⅛.

Stop loss selling, attributed to heavy calls for margins forced prices again lower, this time to a material extent under the minimum reached during the early trading. Reports of good flour business and some renewal of cash wheat demand aided later in rallying the market. The close was firm with July at $1.08⅛@1.08¼, a loss of ⅝@¾c from last night.

Bull leaders in control of the May corn option lifted the price of that delivery 1¼c to 2c and thus afforded support for distant futures. This maneuver, however, did not prevent a sharp setback on account of stop-loss selling when wheat for a time showed acute weakness. July corn in which trading was most active opened a shade lower to ⅛@⅝c higher at 74⅞c to 75¼c, dropped to 74⅛, and recovered to 74½@74⅝c.

Selling on the part of country longs together with absence of spot demand brought about a fresh downward movement. The close, though, was firm in sympathy with wheat at 74¾c for July, ⅛@¼c under last night.

Commission houses executed liberal orders on both sides of the oats market. Feeling was decidedly nervous but sentiment about evenly divided. July started unchanged to ¼@⅜c down at 49⅝@49¾c to 50c, rose to 50¼c and then reacted to 50c.

Provisions at the outset displayed some bearish inclination but soon turned strong on account of a belief that most of the weakly-held property had been sold out. First sales varied from 10c decline to 27½c advance with September options $18.70 to $19.00 for pork, $10.92½ to $10.97½ for lard, and $10.42½ to $10.50 for ribs.

LOSSES ARE RECOVERED

Sharp Decline of Canadian Pacific Feature of Stocks' Opening.

Decided Reaction Set in Later and the Market Closed Steady.

New York, May 17.—A decline of 3½ points in Canadian Pacific was the feature at the opening of today's stock market. International Harvester declined a point, with further weakness in the United States Steel, Union Pacific, Reading and St. Paul. These losses were partly offset by the one point advance in Brooklyn Rapid Transit and a fractional rise in Lehigh Valley.

Wabash issues were extremely weak in the first hour, with further declines in American Cans. Lehigh Valley rose a point and there was some irregularity and dullness elsewhere.

Decided recovery from its reactionary trend of the first hour was shown by the market with the approach of noon. Lehigh Valley rose 2 points with 1 point advances for Union Pacific, United States Steel and American Can while some of the less important issues also gained a point or thereabouts.

Early weakness in Wabash issues was partly explained by poor earnings, the same reason applying to St. Paul, which has also been affected by the recent decline in Chicago & Northwestern. A further advance in copper metal here and abroad to the highest price of the present movement was neutralized by a decline in exports of the metal from this port. Texas company was up 5 points. Bonds were easy.

The market closed steady. Standard stocks shaded some more in the dullness of the last hour while Brooklyn Transit went higher. Texas company extended its gain to 7 points and Texas Pacific rose 1⅞.

HEARS ABOUT MONEY TRUST

House Committee Is Told of Financing of Coffee Curtailment.

Herman Sielcken of New York Tells of Activity in Brazil.

Washington, May 17.—The first illustration of the activities of the so-called "money trust" given to the house investigating committee was testimony that three New York banking institutions, the National City, J. Pierpont Morgan & Co., and the First National, lent financial assistance to the government of Brazil to limit the output of coffee and maintain prices of coffee at a profitable figure, for the benefit of Brazilian planters and American and European coffee dealers.

This testimony came from Herman Sielcken of the New York firm of Crossman & Sielcken, large dealers in green coffee.

Mr. Sielcken was on the stand more than three hours and his testimony was the first oral information given to the committee.

Saw Patriotic Motive.

Mr. Sielcken attributed to the National City bank a patriotic motive for its investment. He regarded the loan by the bank as of great benefit to the United States, and said that the bank made the loan reluctantly to exploit American trade with South America.

"My business has been pried into by the attorney general and by grand juries, and my connection with this valorization plan has been criticized directly and indirectly by the counsel for this committee," said Mr. Sielcken with some heat.

The witness said that unless something had been done to help the planters of Brazil, there might have been a revolution. The price of coffee had gone so low through over-production that the Brazilian government exercised its right to encourage planters to diversify their crops. He said that while a tax had been put on the planting of coffee, the Brazilian government and the state of San Paulo had not tried to prohibit the planting.

Price Increase Inevitable.

"Which would have been the worse, revolution in San Paulo or for the consumers of this country to pay much more for all of their coffee?" asked Samuel Untermeyer.

"You would have had to pay that anyhow," said Mr. Sielcken.

He argued that coffee would be still higher if the valorization scheme had not been put into operation.

The big loan by which the valorization scheme was floated, was 15,000,000 pounds sterling. English, German, French and Belgian bankers took 13,000,000 of it through J. H. Schroeder of London, who sold to the National City bank 2,000,000 pounds sterling. This amount was pro-rated between the Morgan bank, the National City and the First National.

To Encourage Commerce.

Mr. Sielcken made a statement attributing to the National City bank a display of earnest desire to encourage the commerce of the United States with South America.

"They wanted to see our flag there," he said.

Mr. Sielcken's testimony was heard at this time out of the order originally planned by Judson H. Ferrar and Mr. Untermeyer, counsel for the committee, in order to permit Mr. Sielcken to go to Europe. Chairman Pujo announced at the conclusion of the hearing that the future course of the committee would be determined by counsel, and that no other witnesses were to be called immediately.

TRY BARON FOR PRINCESS' MURDER

Italian Court Will Conduct Sessions Behind Closed Doors.

Rome, May 17.—The trial of Baron Vincenzo Paterno, a former cavalry lieutenant in the Italian army, who on March 2, 1911, murdered Princess Guila Trigona di Sant 'Ella, lady-in-waiting to Queen Helena, and afterwards attempted to commit suicide, was begun today before the assize court.

The lawyers for the defense are endeavoring to obtain a postponement so the accused may be examined by experts as to his mental condition. They also insist on the calling of the duke of Aosta, the count of Turin, the minister for war, and the under secretary for foreign affairs as witnesses. The judge has refused the latter demand.

The entrance of Paterno in court caused a sensation. He is a wreck and almost unrecognizable. Every movement he made was an effort to conceal his face from the public.

The court has decided to try the case behind closed doors.

SOCIALISTS TO NAME LEADERS

Platform Is Adopted at Session Lasting Late Into Night.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 17.—With the platform out of the way, the national Socialists' convention expected to name late today its candidates for president and vice president of the United States.

Eugene V. Debs of Terre Haute, Ind., who has headed the party ticket in a number of campaigns, was expected again to be the presidential candidate, although Emil Seidel, the former mayor of Milwaukee, is looming up as a formidable opponent. Charles Edward Russell probably will get second place on the ticket.

The report of the constitution committee, scheduled for today, is said to be revolutionary and was expected to bring out a warm debate.

The platform adopted at a session which continued until midnight advocated the industrial and political demands, plans for collective ownership and aid for the unemployed as drafted in the platform of four years ago.

"Capitalist concentration" and "soulless industrial despotism" are held responsible in the platform for the higher cost of living, increasing burden of armaments, poverty, slums, child labor and most of the insanity and crime.

It is charged that the anti-trust railroad restrictions, prosecutions, indictments and investigations based upon such legislation have proved to be utterly futile and ridiculous.

BIG SUBMARINE NOT YET FLOATED

Thousands See Unusual Predicament of Naval Vessel.

Atlantic City, N. J., May 17.—The submarine boat Tuna, which ran aground yesterday on a sandbar three miles out to sea while en route to Bridgeport, Conn., lies easy today and there is reason to believe the boat will be got off without serious damage. The sea is much quieter, though a stiff breeze is blowing. The haze which enveloped the sea has lifted and thousands of people are on the sand hills watching the unusual spectacle.

Four boats of the life-saving service are standing by, ready to render assistance if necessary. A revenue cutter is expected from Norfolk, and when this arrives it is thought the work of pulling the submarine into deep water will be an easy matter.

The boat is 160 feet long and very heavy. From the shore it resembles a big box floating on the surface of the ocean. The five men who refused to leave the craft can be seen from the shore through glasses, walking on the whale deck of the boat.

The submarine is the second largest ever built. Capt. Dannehauer, who is in command, was an ensign in the navy before he resigned from the service of the government. The boat cost $450,000.

OCONTO SICK OF THE SANE FOURTH

Merchants Say It Lost Them Money and Want Law Repealed.

Madison, Wis., May 17.—State Fire Marshal T. M. Purtell is much exercised over a reported attempt at Oconto, Wis., to repeal the sane Fourth ordinance, as a result of which last year, it is said, scores of people celebrated in other cities where the law was not so severe.

The absence of many Oconto people was noticed by the Oconto merchants, who were instrumental recently in instructing the city attorney to draw up an ordinance repealing the fireworks ordinance.

LATE KING'S BODY AT COPENHAGEN

Royal Personages Follow Hearse on Foot to the Castle.

Copenhagen, Denmark, May 17.—The Danish royal yacht Dannebrog arrived at noon at the Toldboden wharf, near Amallenborg palace, bringing the body of the late King Frederick VIII from Travemuende. The coffin was borne ashore by twelve officers and placed in a hearse.

A procession was then formed, headed by a large force of cavalry. King Christian X of Denmark, King Haakon of Norway and many other royal personages followed the hearse on foot. Then came carriages containing Dowager Queen Louisa, Queen Alexandrine and several of the princesses.

On arrival at the chapel of Christianborg castle the coffin was borne in by officers and placed on a catafalque. The nobles surrounded the casket and knelt for some moments in silent prayer. Before leaving the chapel each kissed the Danish flag which had been spread over the bier.

THREE BODIES ARE TAKEN FROM MINE

One of Victims Intended to Quit Next Monday to Work on Farm.

Ironwood, Mich., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The body of Charles Nellimack was taken from under the debris at Norrie mine, caused by the cave-in Monday night, early yesterday morning. Nellimack was going to leave the mine and go on a farm next week, only intending to work until next Monday.

The body of Thomas Rusick was taken out last evening about 7 o'clock, and another body, which is thought to be Peter Vilja, was recovered today.

The rescuing parties worked under great difficulties, the ground being soft and running, so that not much headway could be made.

North Branch Carnival.

North Branch, Minn., May 17.—The money having been pledged for the proposed carnival, the following committee has been appointed to manage the affair: Committee on order: G. W. Rowell, J. P. Holmberg and O. W. Herried; grounds, S. E. Edelstein, Alfred Johnson and John A. Satterstrom; advertising, O. W. Fagerstrom, W. E. Stoothoff and H. J. Anderson.

Menominee, Mich., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Even with their increased capacity the Menominee River Sugar company will be unable to take care of all the business which comes to them this season. Orders have been sent to all agents to make no more contracts. This year is to be the greatest in the history of the plant.

La Follette Spent $1,339.21.

Madison, Wis., May 17.—The personal campaign committee of the La Follette candidates for delegates to the Republican national convention, by its secretary, Benjamin Reynolds, has filed its expense statement in the office of Secretary of State Frear, showing a total expenditure of $1,399.21. Receipts of the committee by contributions total $1,785.50.

BOUNTY FOR DEAD SIOUX

Record of State's Offer of Rewards for Scalps Is Dug Up.

Every Such Trophy Brought In Worth $25 to Its Holder.

St. Paul, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Digging through some rusty volumes in the files of the Minnesota Historical society, Attorney Smith has discovered that this state once offered a bounty of $25 for Sioux Indian scalps. After the massacre of 1862, while the state's backwood settlers were shooting at Indians as though they were deer and while the Sioux were cutting white men into thin, irregular slices, Adjt. Gen. Oscar Malmros issued what was known as General Order No. 41, providing a bounty on nice, cleanly cut scalps. The order was issued on July 4, 1863—the anniversary of the nation's Declaration of Independence—and was approved by Governor Henry A. Swift. The order said:

"The continued outrages of the Sioux Indians in the Big Woods, and in the rear of the United States outposts for the border defense, render it imperatively necessary that extraordinary measures should be adopted for the more complete protection of our frontier and the extirpation of the savage fiends who commit these outrages.

Volunteer Scouts.

"It is therefore ordered that a corps of volunteer scouts be organized immediately for sixty days, unless sooner discharged, to scour the Big Woods from Sauk Center to the northern boundary line of Sibley county.

"The corps shall be composed of one captain and from forty to sixty men, who shall be divided into squads of not less than five men under the immediate command of their own chosen leader, subject to the order of the captain of the scouts.

"Persons desiring to enlist in this corps will report immediately by letter to this office. As soon as one squad of not less than five men has been formed, they will at once enter upon active service, without waiting for a mustering officer. Each squad will be mustered in for pay as of the date when they entered into active service as aforesaid. The leader of each squad will report frequently his movements, and place where letters may reach him, to this office.

Paid $1.50 a Day and Bounty.

"Men volunteering for this service will have to arm, equip and subsist themselves at their own expense and will be paid for their services at the rate of $1.50 per day. A compensation of twenty-five dollars will also be given to anybody for each scalp of a male Sioux delivered to this office.

"None but experienced hunters, scouts or marksmen will be accepted. Every organized squad, and the captain of scouts, as soon as the company is fully organized, will communicate and act in concert with the United States forces stationed on our frontier.

"By order of the Commander-in-Chief,

"OSCAR MALMROS,
Adjutant General."

Commenting upon the condition of the Sioux after the massacre, Governor Swift said, in his annual message to the state legislature:

"Hunger and destitution have followed like avenging angels upon the track of the fugitive assassins to intrack of the fugitive assassins to insure the punishment left incomplete by the forces sent out against them. In all probability, many of them will perish this winter from cold and starvation, and it should not be forgotten that under the circumstances, the destruction of large quantities of provisions and clothing upon which they had relied for their winter's support and protection, by the troops under Generals Sibley and Sulley, must be regarded as scarcely less fatal to them than the more sudden and sanguinary havoc of the sword.

Urged Strict Protection.

"Without the means of replenishing their exhausted supplies of ammunition, it may be presumed that they are in no condition to renew the war in force upon our frontier settlements, while our present attitude of defense is maintained. But there can be no complete security for our border population, until these bands of murderers are confined within limits rendered impassable by the powerful arm of our government, or extirpated from the face of the earth."

PLAN CAMPAIGN ON WEEDS IN WISCONSIN.

Madison, Wis., May 17.—Hundreds of thousands of dollars will be saved annually to the railroads of Wisconsin and other states if the experiments now being conducted by the agronomy department of the Wisconsin college of agriculture to exterminate weeds prove successful. The experiments have to do with the killing of weeds along the various railway tracks by a systematic spraying of a liquid.

ANTI-TAFT FACTION OF GEORGIA G. O. P. MEETS.

Atlanta, Ga., May 17.—The anti-Taft faction of the Republican party in Georgia will have a convention here today to elect four delegates-at-large and four alternates to the national convention to contest the right of Taft delegates elected in March. It is understood the convention will instruct for Roosevelt.

TIME HAS COME TO STOP DESTRUCTIVE CRITICISM OF THE CITY

SUBSTITUTE NEEDED IF "LOAN SHARKS" ARE TO BE OUSTED

Attorney Gives His Experience Defending Victims of Agents.

Honest Borrowers Pay the Losses of Those Who Default.

Legitimate Business Cannot Be Maintained on 10 Per Cent Basis.

The ultimate salvation of the so-called loan shark victim does not rest only in the abolition of the "sharks," according to Assistant County Attorney Warren E. Greene, who a few weeks ago launched a campaign against the loan shark business by announcing that he would protect the interests of the loan shark victims in the courts free of charge.

Since that time Mr. Greene has had several cases brought to his attention and all have been settled out of court on terms entirely satisfactory to his clients. His dealing with these cases, he says, has forced him to the conclusion that Duluth as well as any other large city, not only needs to get rid of the loan shark business, but that it needs some sort of an organization to take its place.

Without any sort of a money lending organization in operation, the honest poor man who is now often driven to the loan shark, would have no resort and conditions would not be remedied. What is needed, says Mr. Greene, is an association, promoted either by private capital or perhaps by public spirited citizens as a semi-

MADE CRAZY BY TITANIC STORIES

North Dakota Woman Taken Before Commission at Grand Forks.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The story of the Titanic disaster, of which she read nearly fifty columns, caused Mrs. Mary Solberg of this county to go insane. Her story was brought out before the county commission on insanity yesterday when she was arraigned. The name of a victim, identical with that of her brother intensified her interest in the affair, and she became violently insane. The woman was arrested by Grand Forks police, and she declared to them that she had come here to "change her shoes."

KILLS HERSELF OVER GIRL'S ELOPEMENT.

Chicago, May 18.—Despondent because her daughter recently ran away from home and married against her wishes, Mrs. Catherine Guth, 45 years old, committed suicide today by cutting her throat with a razor. She was found dead by her husband, Peter Guth.

PREPARING FINAL BLOW

Mexican Government Getting Ready to Crush the Rebellion.

Final Stand of Orozco May Be Made at Chihuahua.

El Paso, Tex., May 18.—The Mexican federal government, by a series of maneuvers that are expected to come to a climax in the next three days, hopes to deal so crushing a blow to the insurrecto movement in the north as to disperse the army of rebels.

While Gen. Orozco, with 5,000 rebels, is holding strategic positions between Rellano and Jimenez, and Gen. Huerta, with an equally strong force of federals, is only fifteen miles away today, pressing northward to attack the insurrectos, sharp fighting is looked for all the way to the American border. Juarez probably will fall into the hands of the constitutional government again.

Communication by wire and rail south of Juarez will be severed within two days by advancing columns of federals. Chihuahua, where there are hundreds of American residents, will be cut off from both the north and the south, and the government plans to drive Orozco back into that city and

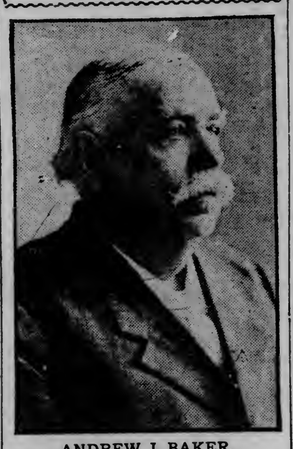
WANTS TO BE NAMED FOR VICE PRESIDENT



ANDREW J. BAKER.

Dallas, Tex., May 18.—A. J. Baker of Texas says he is going to Baltimore to capture the nomination for vice president. Mr. Baker is heavily handicapped. The nomination for vice president has always been a bone thrown to some disappointed candidate for higher office or a bribe to get an undesired man out of the way. Still Mr. Baker believes that if he can get the indorsement of Texas, he ought to capture the prize. Mr. Baker was at one time state land commissioner of Texas.

SUNDAY GOLF IS ATTACKED

Report Urging Sunday Observance Made to Presbyterians.

National Capital's Failure in This Respect Is Denounced.

Louisville, Ky., May 18.—"One hundred thousand caddies are kept from Sunday school by golf, according to the report prepared by the committee on Sabbath observance for presentation to the 124th general assembly of the Northern Presbyterian church today.

"Sunday sports blight character," continues the report. "Nine-tenths of those who enter prison started by Sabbath breaking."

Recommendations of the committee, of which James Yearance of New York is chairman, provide the assembly reiterate its "strong and emphatic disapproval of all secular uses of the Sabbath, all games and sports, in civic life as also in the army and navy; all unnecessary traveling and all excursions, and urge upon all employers of labor and captains of industry to recognize the laboring man's need of his weekly rest day and thereby insure his greater efficiency and happiness and the greater prosperity of both capital and labor."

The committee turns the spotlight on Washington, severely scoring the capital for "continued and increasing laxity in Sabbath observance." The Sunday newspaper also is condemned.

WELL-DRESSED MAN IS MURDER VICTIM

Body, With Pockets Rifled, Found on Tracks at Evanston.

Chicago, May 18.—The body of a well-dressed, unidentified man was found on the Chicago & Northwestern railroad tracks a half mile north of Evanston today. His watch was missing and his pockets had been rifled. The police are investigating a theory that he was lured to the spot, robbed, and his body thrown on the tracks. He wore cuffbuttons with initials "B. R. D.," and in his pocket was an empty envelope addressed to David Churchill, 4114 Sheridan road, Chicago. On one of his fingers was a ring from which the diamond setting had been removed.

NO CHOICE ON FIRST BALLOT

Democratic Votes at Baltimore Will Split Seven Ways.

Clark Claims 391, Wilson 273 and Underwood Only 90 Delegates.

Washington, May 19.—With more than two-thirds of the delegates to the Democratic national convention elected, control of the Baltimore gathering remains as much in doubt as it did several weeks ago.

Claims made today by the managers of the different candidates at the headquarters in Washington made it clear that none of them expects to control the convention through instructions on the first ballot.

The Democratic convention will consist of 1,094 delegates. Under the two-thirds rule applying to Democratic presidential nominations 729 votes will be necessary for any candidate who se-

ROOSEVELT IN TRIM AGAIN

Voice Is Better and He Warns Ohioans How to Vote for Him.

Columbus, Ohio, May 18.—Col. Roosevelt, who made addresses to record-breaking crowds here last night, left at 8 o'clock this morning for Delaware, Ohio. He is scheduled to make a half dozen speeches today, the stops including Mansfield, Akron and intermediate points. This evening he will speak in Cleveland. He is bearing up well under the strain of his tour of the state. His voice, which was slightly husky yesterday, was said to be in good condition this morning.

Denounces Blind Ballot.

Delaware, Ohio, May 18.—"There is but one feature of the entire Ohio situation which makes me have any doubt at all," said Col. Roosevelt here today, "and that is the fact of the blind ballot. We tried to have the Republicans' state central committee put on the ballot the names of Mr. Taft, Mr. La Follette and myself. The committee refused because it did not want you to express your preference.

"The committee believed it could fool you and I want you to fool it. I want you to find out, before you go into the booth, who the Roosevelt candidates are. Now, mind you, you won't find my name on the ballot. You won't find it there because the Taft managers wouldn't put it there."

Col. Roosevelt spoke to a large crowd, which included several hundred students of Ohio Wesleyan university. Senator Dixon, Col. Roosevelt's campaign manager, met the colonel in Columbus and came with him as far as Delaware.

MURDERER ASKS GRAVE BY MOTHER

Richeson Becomes Hysterical When Told Father Objects to His Wish.

Sleeps Under Influence of Opiates After Violent Outbreak.

Execution Is Expected to Take Place Early Tuesday Morning.

Boston, May 18.—A deep sleep, under the influence of opiates, shut out a world of agonies from the troubled mind of Clarence V. T. Richeson during the earlier hours today.

The fortitude of the former clergyman, who awaits death by electrocution next week for the murder of Avis Linnell, gave way last night. The collapse came while the condemned man was alternately beseeching his counsel to have his body interred beside that of his mother in Virginia and hysterically raving over the fancied persecution of the two guards forming the death watch.

The attack follows out the conclusions of the alienists who recently examined. Richeson, and who declared that, although sane, he was subject to periodical spells of emotional disturbance or hysterical delirium. It was claimed such attacks would be of short duration, however.

Took the News Calmly.

Richeson learned definitely for the first time yesterday that he must meet death by electrocution. Through the day he bore himself with outward

METHODISTS KEEP BAN UPON DANCING

Minneapolis, Minn., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—By a yea and nay vote of 446 to 305, delegates to the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church late today voted not to accept the minority report of the committee on state of the church, which provided for the striking out of that paragraph of the discipline which prohibits dancing and kindred amusements. The majority report, which favored the retention of the paragraph, then was adopted.

LITTLE GIRL SPONSOR FOR BIGGEST WARSHIP

CLAUDIA LYON,
Daughter of Cecil Lyon of Texas.

BIG WARSHIP IS LAUNCHED

Texas, Greatest Sea Fighter in the World, Belongs to America.

Is First to Carry 14-Inch Guns—Has Unusual Armament.

Newport News, Va., May 18.—With the launching here today of the superdreadnought Texas, the American navy counted as its proud possession the biggest and most powerful battleship the world has ever seen.

Other nations are trying desperately for the honor of owning the greatest warship, built will be months after the Texas and her sister ship, the New York, which will be launched at the New York navy yard in July, have taken the water before the monster ships planned to outsize them and now under construction in European ship yards will be waterborne.

It was deemed fitting that these two exemplars of the highest skill of the shipwright should bear the names of two warships which covered themselves with glory during the Spanish-American war.

Displaces 28,367 Tons.

The Texas, with all of her stores aboard, will displace 28,367 tons, or 1,000 more than the great dreadnought Arkansas, now about ready for commission. She is 573 fett long, 95 feet 2½ inches beam, so that she will have almost 15 feet to spare in passing through the Panama canal locks. Her

DULUTH BECOMING A CITY OF SCOLDS

What Has Been Done in Ten Years Along Public Spirited Constructive Lines.

Has More Good "Talking Points" Than Any Other Municipality in United States.

Gary has a steel plant.
Spokane has water power.
Des Moines has a farming territory.
Los Angeles has a climate.
Kansas City has wonderful railroad facilities.
Seattle has a harbor.
St. Louis has a big jobbing territory.
Rochester has manufactures.
San Francisco has a picturesque location.

Duluth has all of these. It has more "talking points" than any other three cities in the United States, and among the progressive business men of the city there is a growing feeling that the time has come to drop petty criticisms of the city, quit fault-finding and picking flaws, and to advertise some of the good points.

While certain Duluth people have been complaining that the steel plant would never come, it has been in course of construction.

While others were complaining of the wretched railroad service of Duluth, half a dozen new lines of road have been built into the city and the Duluth Traffic Commission has been quietly pulling brick after brick out of the unfair rate structure, and building in its place an equitable structure that will restore to Duluth her natural advantages.

While others have been complaining of the lack of a farming community around Duluth, some farming enthusiasts have been proving that Northern Minnesota is the greatest dairying and truck gardening country that lies out of doors.

While others have been complaining that the city was intent only on business and money making, and its citizens were cold-blooded, it has built the finest Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. and Children's Home that any city of its size can boast, has organized an Associated Charities, built a county tuberculosis sanitarium, a city contagious hospital, and a score of other charitable institutions.

While many citizens are complaining because a northeaster blows for two or three weeks in the spring, other cities are beginning to realize that Duluth has the grandest all-year round

EBERHART'S LAST HOPE

Governor's Desperate Effort to Save Himself, Says Frank Eddy.

Extra Session Final Attempt to Mend His Falling Fences.

St. Paul, Minn., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Frank M. Eddy, ex-congressan, and former bosom friend of Governor Eberhart, whose friendship was broken when the governor refused to sanction a presidential preference primary, declares the governor's decision to call an extra session is the last effort on his part to bloster up his failing fences. "The call is issued," Mr. Eddy says, "more to help his own chances than from a matter of principle." Louis Betz, former Democratic city comptroller, agrees with Mr. Eddy, that it is "last desperate effort of a drowning man."

Mr. Eddy says:

"The situation is very amusing to a disinterested observer of politics. There was just as much demand for state-wide primaries before the state convention, yet the governor failed to call one.

"A bill of this character was pending during the whole of the last session of the legislature, but the governor did not urge its passage.

Attempt to Mend Fallen Fences.

"The Minneapolis convention, however, developed the fact that it would

LEGISLATORS SUMMONED

Governor Eberhart Calls Special Session for June 4.

Says People Demand Statewide Primary Law and Reapportionment.

St. Paul, Minn., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Governor Eberhart returned from his short speaking trip this morning and immediately issued the call for the special session of the legislature.

The proclamation follows:

"Whereas, there exists throughout the state a clearly expressed demand for the immediate enactment of a state-wide primary law applicable to all state officers, an effective corrupt practices act and a reapportionment law, now therefore, I, A. O. Eberhart, governor of the state of Minnesota, firmly believing the best interests of the state so require, do hereby issue this proclamation summoning the members of the two houses of the legislature of this state to convene in extra session at the capitol at St. Paul, Tuesday, the fourth day of June, A. D. 1912, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, for the purpose of enacting a state-wide direct primary law applicable to all state offices, together with an effective corrupt practices act and reapportionment law."

Virginian Declares He Is Not Going to the Electric Chair.

Wytheville, Va., May 18.—In his cell, surrounded by guards, Floyd Allen, last night broke out into a tirade of defiance of the law.

"I'm not going to the electric chair," he shouted. "I've still got some friends in Carroll county."

The guards are fearful that Allen may repeat his attempt at suicide and one or more are always locked in the cell with him.

MEIKLEJOHN CHOSEN AMHERST PRESIDENT.

New York, May 18.—Alexander Meiklejohn, dean of Brown university, was yesterday elected president of Amherst college. Dr. Meiklejohn is to succeed Rev. George Harris, D.D., who has been president of Amherst since 1899, but who at the age of 68 years recently decided to retire. Dr. Meiklejohn is a graduate of Brown university, class of '93, and his specialty is philosophy.

MANY CONTESTS IN TEXAS G. O. P.

Last of District Conventions Are Held at Waco and Corpus Christi.

Dallas, Texas, May 18.—The last of Texas' Republican district conventions to select delegates to the national convention will be held today at Waco and Corpus Christi. Although the Ninth district already has held a convention at Victoria, instructing for Taft, the chairman of the district executive committee has issued a call for a convention to be held at Yoakum today.

Of the six conventions held yesterday, one, the Thirteenth, instructed for Roosevelt, while the five others resulted in split conventions and two sets of delegates were named. In the First district Taft men were in control and the Roosevelt faction bolted, while the reverse happened in the Fifth and Third districts.

In the Second and Fourth two separate conventions were held. Taft-McGregor men outnumbered the Roosevelt followers in the Second, while the Lyon-Roosevelt faction controlled the temporary organization in the Fourth district.

NORWEGIAN CELEBRATION

Day of Independence Is Observed With Appropriate Services.

Rev. H. K. Madsen, Mayor McCuen and Senator Thorpe Speak.

Duluth Norwegians yesterday celebrated the national independence day of their native land, closing the day with a meeting at the assembly hall of the Central high school.

The history of the nation on the Scandinavian peninsula was commemorated in song and story, dating back to the early days when the Vikings roamed the seas conquering, pillaging, and fighting, imprinting an influence upon the world which remains today.

Various able speakers delivered patriotic addresses which were interspersed with musical numbers which were received with bursts of applause. Rev. E. Erickson acted as the presiding officer and after a few opening remarks appropriate to the occasion he introduced Mayor McCuen as the first speaker. The mayor dwelt upon the important part which has been played by the Norwegians in the history of this country, from the time of its discovery to the present day.

Senator L. O. Thorpe of Willmar told of the million-dollar memorial fund which the American Norwegians will present to Norway in 1914. Part of it will be used to restore the Trondhjem cathedral and the interest of the balance will be used as a relief fund for those who suffer through storm, flood, wreck, fire or other disaster.

Rev. H. K. Madsen summarized the early history of the Vikings from the first records of their wanderings and conquests down to the present. He praised those in this country for their reverence and respect for their native land and its traditions but called upon them to remember that they are citizens of the United States, to which they owe loyalty and the best that is in them.

The Normanna chorus maintained the high reputation which it has established in Duluth in the several numbers rendered by it. The soprano solo by Mrs. Donna Riblette Flaaten and the violin selection by Miss Valborg Ganderson completed the musical program. The exercises were closed with the singing of "America" by the chorus and the audience.

Mrs. K. Evans, 1214 Twelfth street, Superior, Wis., says: I have just finished a course of Dr. Mitchell's Electro Magnetic treatment. I was in very poor health, was weak, all run down, just able to walk, had a large tumor in my right side for a long time. Many doctors advised an operation, but I was too weak I had a feeling I would die on the operating table. Hearing of Dr. Mitchell and of the wonderful cures he was performing I went to Duluth, found his office full of patients waiting for treatment. They all said Dr. Mitchell's treatment was helping them. After taking treatment the tumor disappeared and all my pain and the catarrh of my head, stomach and bowels does not bother me any more. I will be glad to substantiate this statement. All forms of asthma, catarrhal conditions, nervousness, rheumatism, paralysis, stomach, liver, kidney, bowel and blood diseases, eye, ear and throat and all other physical and mental ailments cured by Dr. Mitchell. BIG WARSHIP IS LAUNCHED draft will be 28 feet 6 inches and speed 21 knots, which would have been high speed for a cruiser a few years ago.

It is a remarkable fact that the 27,000-horse power required to maintain this speed will be developed in the case of the Texas by twin screw vertical, triple expansion engines of the old type instead of by turbines, which have been almost universally adopted abroad in all naval constructions. This machinery is installed because of the conviction of American naval engineers that the reciprocating engine is the most economical and reliable for battleship practice.

Built in Thirteen Months.

The Texas presents some features of interest entirely apart from her great size. In the first place, her launching comes just about thirteen months from the date her keel was laid; a remarkable performance for American shipwrights, and a practical demonstration of their ability to turn out warships as rapidly as any nation in the world, under proper incentive.

In the second place, the Texas will be the first ship in the world to carry 14-inch guns. She will have ten of them distributed in five turrets arranged on a central line from stem to stern. The biggest guns now afloat in the American navy are the 13-inch rifles of the famous old Oregon type, while the best that the British navy can do is to point to their 13.5-inch guns on their latest battleships.

In addition to these monster guns the new American ship will carry no less than sixteen 5-inch rifles, in place of the little 3 and 4-inch guns that were formerly regarded as sufficient for the secondary battery. The increasing size and power of the torpedo boat destroyers and the enormous speed of the chain-lightning cruiser have brought about this doubling of the power of the secondary battery, which must be relied upon for very quick work in meeting these attacks.

Clothed With Armor.

The Texas will be clothed with armor in plenty; not only over her vitals, but even the ordinarily exposed ends of the ship, but in conformity with the new rule adopted by the navy department the details of its thickness and general disposition are withheld from publication lest the information might be of profit to a possible future enemy.

The Texas, after she is in the water, will be far from complete and she will not be ready to go into commission until Dec. 17 next year. As she emerges from the builders' hands her total cost will be about $10,000,000.

The launching of the great ship drew to the yards of the Newport News Shipbuilding company, a notable gathering of distinguished persons. Though President Taft was prevented by his absence in the Middle West from attending, he was represented by Secretary Meyer, who came down from Washington with his family and Naval Aide Lieut.-Commander Palmer on the presidential yacht Mayflower.

Claudia Lyon Sponsor.

There was a liberal sprinkling of senators and representatives; most of the heads of the great naval bureaus; Governor Colquitt of Texas, with a numerous delegation from that state; Governor Mann of Virginia, with his staff, and last but not least little Miss Claudia Lyon, daughter of Col. Cecil Lyon, Republican national committeeman from Texas, sponsor of the Texas.

MURDERER ASKS GRAVE BY MOTHER

calmness. Little by little the import of the decision he had heard began to impress itself upon him.

Someone of those who entered the death chamber imparted to the prisoner the fact that his father did not care to have his body taken to Virginia for burial. Richeson at once gave way to his emotions, and implored of his counsel, William A. Morse, that arrangements be made so that he might lie beside his mother in the family lot.

As the day wore on other incidents occurred to disturb the condemned man. The discussion between Richeson, his counsel and spiritual advisers turned upon the execution, and the prisoner begged both Mr. Stebbins, the prison chaplain, and Rev. Herbert S. Johnson, his chosen adviser, to walk to the chair with him.

Begged Minister's Attendance.

Richeson also expressed a wish that Mr. Morse should be present during the last few minutes, and further exacted a promise that either one or the other of the ministers would remain constantly with him until he died.

In the meantime Richeson did not eat his dinner or supper.

It was nearly twelve hours after he learned that he must die next week that Richeson burst out in a paroxysm of grief and hysteria. He threw himself on his cot and moaned and shrieked. His arms and shoulders twitched, his face was drawn in agony, and from time to time, as his glance fell on the two guards set in death watch over him, he would scream out in horror, crying "They're watching me! They're watching me!"

Warden Bridges, who was notified and hurried to the death house, sent for the prison physician. That official was not at home, and Dr. Frederick L. Lyons of Charlestown was called.

Administered a Sedative.

When Dr. Lyons arrived Richeson was still more or less hysterical, but apparently unconscious. Dr. Lyons administered a sedative and the prisoner went to sleep about 2 o'clock, remaining in a deep slumber until a late hour.

There will be an advance announcement of the hour of Richeson's execution. Beyond the statutory provision that it must take place between midnight and sunrise, the warden of the state prison has discretion extending over the week designated by the court for infliction of the death penalty.

May Die on Tuesday.

It is thought the execution will take place Tuesday morning.

A light breakfast was carried to the prisoner's room by one of the attendants shortly after 8 o'clock. At that time Richeson still was sleeping and the food was taken back to the kitchen of the prison hospital.

Chaplain Stebbins remained near the little iron cot upon which the condemned man rested, ready at a moment's notice to offer him consolation.

Rev. Dr. Johnson drove into the prison yard about 9 o'clock and went into the death house a short time afterwards. Dr. Johnson did not awaken Richeson, but remained by the cot after a short conference with Warden Bridges and the chaplain.

force him to surrender or take to the hills.

Chihuahua is likely to be the last stand of the rebels.

Will Surround Juarez.

The arrival of a federal column at San Ignacio, forty-five miles east of Juarez today was the first warning of a well organized campaign in the rear of the main rebel army. It is planned to surround Juarez and destroy the connecting link of insurgent forces with the United States.

Three columns of federal volunteers are converging on Juarez with the purpose of forcing its surrender. One column of 250 men has marched up the Rio Grande and is now at San Ignacio. Another federal force numbering 600 men is approaching the city from the west and a third detachment is marching from the southwest.

The capture of Juarez is expected to put a stop to the smuggling of munitions of war and provisions.

be impossible for Mr. Eberhart to be nominated at the July convention under existing conditions. A council of war was held, and the call for an extra session issued as a forlorn hope. In the first place it will give the governor's friends more time to reorganize their broken columns. In the second place, none knows better than the governor that an overwhelming majority of the Republicans are against his renomination, but they hope that by getting a large number of candidates in the field he may slip in as a plurality candidate. But if the opposition is alert it will provide for the first, second and third choice.

"It is manifestly clear that the governor called this extra session to help his own chances, and not from principle. If he had earnestly desired the passage of such a law it would have been passed last session and the state would have been saved the tremendous expense of an extra session."

Probable Length of Session.

Opinions of state officials differ as to how long the legislature probably will be in session. A majority predict that because this is crop planting time and business in the rural districts is rushing, and because of the further fact that no pay is earned by law makers for attendance, the session will not last longer than two or three weeks.

I. A. Caswell, the new Republican national committeeman, predicts, however, that the session will last throughout the greater part of the summer.

"When sentiment of the senators and representatives was learned some time ago," said Mr. Caswell, "there was much disagreement as to which were the important measures which would come before them for consideration. Some believed a bill prohibiting breweries owning saloons the most important question to be settled. Some believed that reapportionment was the most important. Others looked upon the passage of a state-wide primary bill as the most urgent. My opinion is, that when the session gets to going, it will last the full ninety days. It will take thirty days alone to pass a reapportionment measure."

Julius A. Schmahl, secretary of state, predicts that the extra session will not last more than two weeks. James A. Larson, his assistant, places the time at one month. Attorney General Smith says three weeks. S. G. Iverson bellys twnty days sufficient time. All predicate their statements, however, with the qualification that only a reapportionment bill, a state-wide primary bill and a corrupt practices act will be considered.

SHEPARD IS IN THE LEAD

Likely to Be Second Bishop Chosen at Methodist Conference.

Change in Cities for Episcopal Residence May Be Made.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The fourth ballot for bishops of the Methodist Episcopal church, the result of which was announced this morning, resulted in no election. W. O. Shepard of Chicago received 486 votes. Necessary to choice, 526.

With seven bishops still to be elected by the general conference in session here, there are now twenty men who, according to the present balloting, have a following of more than 100 votes. At the head of the list is Mr. Shepard, who leaped to the fore yesterday with a gain of 79 votes, and who probably will be the second of the eight men to be chosen at this session for the highest honor in the church.

Downey Gaining Little.

Although Dr. D. G. Downey, a member of the New York East conference, was high man on the second ballot and second man on the first ballot, in which Dr. Homer C. Stuntz of New York was elected, he gained but three on the next ballot, while T. S. Henderson of Brooklyn, N. Y., who also is a member of the New York East conference, made a gain of 34 votes, now having a total of 180.

Near the top of the list is Dr. Matt S. Hughes of Pasadena, Cal., whose brother, Edwin H. Hughes, already is a bishop of the church. Dr. Franklin Hamilton, chancellor of the church's school at Washington, D. C., who has been polling a heavy vote in the conference, also his brother, John W. Hamilton, in the college of bishops.

Change Residential Cities.

While the episcopacy committee is said definitely to have decided early in the week on the new episcopal residences, it is said that at a meeting last night the decision was reconsidered, and that Zurich, Switzerland, may get the place instead of Copenhagen or Rome. The cities in the United States in which it is said that the committee will recommend that bishops' residences be established are: Atlanta, Ga., Detroit, Mich., Pittsburg, Pa., Kansas City, Mo., and Helena, Mont.

IS LYNCHING AN ACCIDENT?

Louisiana Negress Sues on Policy Held By Her Husband.

Baton Rouge, La., May 18.—Whether to be lynched is the same thing as falling victim to an accident, is an interesting question which the courts of Louisiana have been called upon to determine. The point came up here today, when the widow of Frank Miles, a negro, who was hanged by a mob in Shreveport for writing an insulting note to a white woman, filed preliminary proceedings against an insurance company. The payment of an accident policy carried by the mob victim is demanded.

The petition does not specify that Miles was the victim of an accident, but recites that he was found "hanging from the limb of a tree in the rear of the baseball park with a rope tied about his neck."

WILBUR WRIGHT IS LITTLE BETTER

Brother Orville Is Summoned Back to Dayton From Washington.

Dayton, Ohio, May 18.—Wilbur Wright, the aeroplane manufacturer, is but little improved, according to the statement of his physician, Dr. D. B. Conklin, shortly after 10 o'clock today. He had a restless night and his temperature still remains at 104, his respiration being about 30. He has occasional delirious periods and Dr. Conklin says that while there seems just now to be no occasion for immediate alarm, the situation is grave.

Orville Wright, his brother, who left for Washington Thursday, has been summoned home and is expected to reach here early Sunday morning.

SUBMARINE IS PULLED OF COAST SANDBAR.

Atlantic City, N. J., May 18.—The collier Lebanon and the revenue cutter Itasca have pulled the stranded submarine boat Tuna off the sand bar, where she struck on Thursday while running under water from Newport News, Va., to Bridgeport, Conn. At 11 a. m. those watching from the shore saw the submarine, which is three miles out in the ocean, slide into deep water.

DELIGHTED AT DECISIONS

W. J. Stevenson Comments on Elwell Law and Commission Government.

One Mill Amendment Needed to Make Former Really Effective.

Assistant Attorney General William J. Stevenson, formerly of Duluth, is delighted with the Elwell law and commission government decisions handed down by the supreme court yesterday.

Mr. Stevenson arrived in Duluth last evening on state business. This morning he expressed himself as well pleased with the decisions and said that the same applies to all members of the attorney general's staff.

To Mr. Stevenson goes the credit for the Elwell law victory. He had charge of the case for the attorney general's office and made an argument which was pronounced a masterpiece by all who heard it. The supreme court in a former case, decided twelve years ago, had held that a public highway was not a local improvement in the sense that adjoining property might be assessed for benefits. A reversal of that decision was required to uphold the constitutionality of the Elwell law. Minnesota stood with only two or three states in the decision of twelve years ago. There has been a reversal of sentiment on the point and the court reversed itself, although two members of the present court were of the court that made the former decision.

To make the Elwell law really effecive, the adoption of the 1-mill good roads fund constitutional amendment at the next election is necessary in Mr. Stevenson's opinion. He also believes that the Virginia bonds should be sold in order to provide funds to take up county bonds issued for the building of roads under the Elwell law.

"As the legislature is empowered by the constitution as it stands to levy only one-fourth of a mill for the state roads fund, the fund is necessarily small," said Mr. Stevenson. "No county may be given more than 3 per cent of the total fund, and the annual aid to the counties is not what it should be. If R. C. Dunn's proposed amendment should be adopted the legislature will have authority to levy up to 1 mill for the roads fund and adequate aid may be provided."

Mr. Stevenson is heartily in favor of the sale of the Virginia bonds in order that the state may have money to loan to counties. If the Elwell law is taken advantage of generally, as is expected, the counties will require funds and the bonds offered will be a good investment for the state.

CITY WATER AND SEWAGE

Survey of Conditions Will Be Planned By State Officers.

Monthly Analyses Will Be Reported to City Health Department.

Definite plans for a survey of the water supply conditions in Duluth will be made next week, when Dr. H. M. Bracken, secretary of the state board of health, and Dr. Mullin, who will probably be given charge of the work, will come to Duluth for a conference with members of the board of water and light commissioners.

The survey was suggested at a meeting of the board some weeks ago. The analyses of the water, obtained monthly by the board, show that the supply is now in good condition, but there is some question of the effect of continued discharging of sewage into the lake. Members of the board are anxious to satisfy themselves as to the probabilities of contamination, and the survey is intended to determine just what the probabilities are.

The matter was referred to Commissioner George D. Swift for correspondence with competent authorities. Mr. Swift reported at the meeting of the board this week that he had had correspondence with Dr. Bracken, and that the secretary of the state board of health and Dr. Mullin will be here during the coming week for a conference. Members of the board expect that Dr. Mullin, who is on the staff of the state board of health, will be put in charge of the survey.

Arrangements have been made between the city health department and the water and light board, whereby the monthly analysis of the water supply, heretofore arranged by the water and light board, will hereafter be made under the direction of the health department.

Dr. E. W. Fahey, health commissioner, has made arrangements with the state board of health whereby an official of that board will come to Duluth monthly, select his own samples and make the analysis, reporting to the health board and the water and light department. The health department has now been officially connected with the analysis arrangement heretofore, the matter being entirely in the hands of the water and light board. The analyses have been made by the bacteriological laboratory of the University of Wisconsin, from samples sent by the water and light department. The selection of the samples by the official who is to make the analyses will further authenticate the reports.

PLEASED WITH CANDIDATES

Socialists of Duluth Well Satisfied With Debs and Seidel.

Duluth Socialists are well pleased with the candidates selected at the national convention of the party held yesterday.

John A. Keyes of Duluth, one of the most prominent members of the party here, states that the national ticket is, in his opinion, the strongest the Socialist party has ever placed in the field.

"Debs is a very strong man," declared Mr. Keyes, "and he is a man who commands the respect of the thinking people of this country. Mr. Seidel is also one of the strong men of American progressive politics."

Most of the Socialists in Duluth are of the decided opinion that the national ticket will poll more votes than ever before.

VALUE OF SPLIT LOG DRAG PROVEN

A split log drag, one of the few used in road maintenance in St. Louis county, was taken over the road between West Duluth and New Duluth yesterday.

H. V. Eva, secretary of the Commercial club, and Dr. B. M. Rastall of the University of Wisconsin were out in the club's automobile yesterday. Mr. Eva said this morning that the split log drag had worked wonders on the road to the steel plant and that it might be used to advantage on other roads in the vicinity of Duluth.

The road to Pike lake is not in good condition and a split log drag would materially improve it. Ruts and holes would be readily filled and the road generally evened off if a drag were used by a competent man.

Ohave Zion Gate.

The Ohave Zion Gate, O. K. of Z. will hold its next regular meeting at Foresters' hall, Room B, corner Fourth avenue west and First street, Sunday evening at 8 o'clock.

The feature of the meeting will be two addresses to be given by Mrs. M S. Hirshfield and A. M. Shulman. The subject of Mrs. Hirshfield's address will be "The Achievements of the Jews in the Nineteenth Century," and the subject of Mr. Shulman's lecture will be "The Duties of the Zionists."

Dr. Horace M. Kallen's lecture will be taken up and debated on, and some of the work he has outlined for the local gate will also be taken up. Dr. Kallen has left a good impression on the Jews in this city, and very likely the society will again invite him to speak to the local Zionists in the very near future.

Evelyn Thaw Will Sue Her Husband's Relatives for $15,000

EVELYN THAW.

Evelyn Thaw is going to sue for $15,000 which the Thaw family owes her. At one time her attorney made an agreement with the Thaw family by which she was to receive $15,000 a year. The first instalment was paid in checks of $10,000 from the family and $5,000 from her husband. But before she could cash these checks, payment was stopped and the agreement was cancelled. Evelyn has a baby to support and she proposes to go on the stage for the purpose of earning money for it. The Thaw family have been paying her $5,000 a year to keep off the stage, but she can make a great deal more than that in the theatrical world and she proposes now to profit by her notoriety. In recent years she has given some attention to sculpture and art for which she showed some talent, but they have not proved remunerative.

ROUTE TOURS VIA DULUTH

Duluth Hotel Man Does Some Independent Boosting for City.

J. A. Hickey, manager of the new St. Louis hotel, returned today from his trip to Boston and New York, elated with the success he met in securing the routing of a number of summer tours by way of Duluth. Mr. Hickey has the promise of the managers of the Cook, Raymond and Gates tours to include Duluth on the points of stoppage.

"I have some very good things lined up for this city," said Mr. Hickey today. "Some of the details cannot be given out at the present time. However, I am of the opinion that I have started something that is going to help boost Duluth this year.

"Business in the East this spring has been affected by the weather. Weather conditions down in New York and the other Eastern states have been the worst in years. This has naturally affected business generally.

"This year the different tourists agencies are sending a large number of people East from Pacific coast points and also from places further inland. I have made arrangements with some of these agencies to route their tourists via Duluth and think the working out of the idea will add materially to the number of people that will visit here this year."

RAILROADS

VOTE TO STRIKE IN ALL CANADA

Machinists and Boilermakers May Go Out to Help G. & P. Men.

Winnipeg, Man., May 18.—At a mass meeting last night of union machinists and boilermakers, it was voted to call for a general strike throughout Canada of those unions, in sympathy with the machinists and boilermakers of the Grand Trunk-Pacific railway, who have been out for eight months. The Winnipeg trades council unanimously indorsed the movement.

RATES ARE READJUSTED.

Travelers From Ashland Now Pay More Money.

Ashland, Wis., May 18.—The Soo and Northwestern railroads, following the lead of the New Haven road in readjusting passenger rates has made some changes in local passenger tariffs, small in amounts but amounting to considerable in the aggregate.

The new rates went into effect at Ashland Thursday on the Northwestern, Omaha and Soo railroads, and in nearly all cases the rates are lower to winners by the readjustment. People who go to Odanah will be forced to pay 20 cents instead of 19 cents as formerly charged and the travelers to Mellen, Glidden, Butternut and in fact most of the stations on the lines running into Ashland will be forced to pay the extra cent and in some cases 2 added to the cost of the tickets.

MICHIGAN CENTRAL AND CHAPIN & CO. INDICTED.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 18.—The Michigan Central Railroad company has been indicted for false billing of shipments, by the federal grand jury which also indicted Chapin & Co. of Milwaukee in the same connection for soliciting concessions from the railroad. Chapin & Co. have a plant at Hammond, Ind.

WILL CONSIDER ORDINANCES

The ordinance rescinding the ordinance extending the patrol limits 200 feet west of Twenty-fourth avenue west is due to come before the council Monday night for final passage.

It was the extension of these limits and the application of T. Pinsonnault for a transfer of his saloon to 2403 West Superior street which caused such a furore a short time ago. The mayor vetoed the transfer of the license and it is not believed that any fight will be made against putting the limits back where they were.

The ordinance requiring wood to be sold by the cord and ice by the pound is in the hands of the committee and may come up for action. It is not believed that anything will be done with the bids recently opened for the remodeling of the police station.

A representative of the National Playgrounds association will address the aldermen to interest them in the campaign which is being conducted throughout the country in behalf of the children.

Southern Baptists Pick St. Louis.

Oklahoma City, Okla., May 18.—St. Louis was selected as the meeting place of the Southern Baptist convention in 1913.

MAIN AGAIN STOPPED UP

Park Point Citizens Again Having Trouble With Gas Supply.

Board Will Probably Lay New Main on Aerial Bridge.

Will an eight-inch gas pipe, weighing one and one-half tons, too greatly increase the surface exposed to the wind on the aerial bridge, or otherwise adversely affect the structure?

The question will be up to the city council by the board of water and light commissioners next Monday night.

The gas pipe running under the water in the canal has again developed a "trap." The pipe has raised through the action of the water or of the bottom of the canal, and water in the pipe cannot find its way to the water drip farther down in the main. The result is that the gas must be forced through and does not flow freely.

Last year a similar condition developed and the water and light board spent about $1,000 in repairs. That the repairs were only temporary is shown by a recurrence of the condition now. The same amount would probably be required to send a diver down to examine the pipe and relay part of it.

An eight-inch pipe, weighting only one and one-half tons, could be installed around the superstructure of the bridge, at a cost of not to exceed $850. It would be permanent, which is another consideration. The board is anxious to avoid another interruption of the gas supply to the point and will apply to the council for the right to run the pipe over the bridge. It would not only be an economy, but a permanent remedy, and unless the city engineer should decide that the eight-inch pipe would expose too much surface to the wind, the permission would probably be granted by the council.

At the meeting of the board of water and light commissioners this week, a contract was awarded to the Marshall-Wells Hardware company for the furnishing of couplings for the new gas feeder main from West Duluth. The contract price is $2.60 for each coupling.

A petition was also received by the board for an extension of the water main in Olney street from Fifty-ninth avenue west for a distance of 400 feet east.

PLEADS GUILTY TO LARCENY CHARGE.

Byron R. Green, aged 25, who was arrested at Milwaukee recently and brought to Duluth to answer for wholesale robbery at the Kelley Hardware store of this city, where he was employed a few months ago, pleaded guilty to grand larceny, second degree when brought before Judge Dancer in district court today at noon.

Green is accused by the complaint of stealing $200 worth of goods from his former employers. In realty, the police and authorities say, he actually made away with about $1,000 worth of goods. He was allowed by the county attorney to enter a plea of guilty to second degree grand larceny, instead of first degree grand larceny.

When Green was arrested at Milwaukee he was peddling cutlery and small hardware, some of which bore the stamp of the Kelley Hardware company of this city. This excited the suspicion of the Milwaukee police, who arrested him and wired the local police for advice.

The Kelley Hardware company had not missed the articles and had had no reason to suspect Green of being dishonest. An investigation was made which developed the fact that several articles had been stolen and that pointed to Green being the guilty one.

Green was brought to Duluth and when arraigned in municipal court he waived examination and was bound over to the grand jury. There was enough evidence, it is said, to sustain an indictment charging first degree grand larceny.

Judge Dancer deferred pasing sentence on the young man at this time. He will be brought before the court later for sentence. The maximum penalty is five years.

THEIR NAMES.

Gabrielle E. Jackson tells the following story in her recently published book for girls, "Peggy Stewart:"

Peggy's father has just returned from an extended absence and his daughter is showing him over the estate. They come to one of the cabins in which lives the family of Joshua Jozadak Judal Jones.

"I want you to see this family," explained Peggy to her father. "They might all be of one age, but they are not—quite. Come here, boys, and see Master Captain," called Peggy to the three pickaninnies who were peeping around the corner of the cottage.

"Hello, boys. Whose sons are you? Miss Peggy tells me you are brothers?"

"Yas, sir, we is. We's Joshua Jozadak Jubal Jone's boys. I'se Gus, de ol'es'."

"And how old are you?"

"I'se 9, I reckons.'

"And what is your name?"

"My name? Gus, sah."

"That's only half a name. Your whole name is really Augustus, remember." The "Massa Captain's" voice boomed with the sound of the sea.

"And your name?" continued the questioner, pointing at number two.

"I'se jist Jule, sah," was the shy reply.

"That's a nickname, too. I can't have such slipshod, no account names for my hands' children. It isn't dignified. It isn't respectful. It's a disgrace to Miss Peggy. Do you hear?"

"Yas, yas, sir; we, we hears," answered the little darkies in chorus.

"Please, sah, wha's the name ef 'tain't Jule?" Augustus plucked up heart of grace to ask.

"He is Julius, Jul-i-us; do you understand?"

"Yes, sir; yes, sir." Another dime helped the memory box.

"And your name?" asked the "Massa Captain" of the quaking number three."

There was a long, significant pause, then contortions. At length, after two or three futile attempts, he blurted out:

"I'se—I'se Billyus, sah!"

There was an explosion of laughter. Then Neil Stewart tossed the redoubtable Billyus a quarter, crying, "Ypu win!" and walked away with Peggy, his laughter now and again borne back to his beneficiaries.

Song Birds and Their Leaders Flit to Europe

OTTO WEIL AND ALFRED HERZ.

With the flitting of the songbirds from the Metropolitan opera house, goes Alfred Herz, the conductor of German operas. Herr Herz will be very busy all summer abroad, for he is one of the most competent conductors of Wagnerian opera in the world, and no operas are so popular as Wagner's on the continent as well as in America. Otto Weil, high in the executive department of the Metropolitan opera house during many administrations, was another seagoer on the ship with the eminent conductor and Mme. Gadski.

MUCH DISTURBED OVER REVOLTS

Outbreaks in Portuguese Colonies—Most Serious Are in the Malay Archipelago---Natives Are Very Fierce and Warlike---Grave Situation Also in Portugal.

Lisbon, Portugal, May 18.—The government is greatly disturbed over revolts which have broken out at Timor (Malay Archipelago), Macao (China), Goa (Portuguese India), and Bihe (Africa). The most important outbreaks are at Timor and Macao. According to official telegrams all the natives of Timor are in complete revolution against constituted authority. They number several thousand, and being of the Malay family, are described as very fierce and warlike. Many of them, however, are educated and both read and write Portuguese.

They are well armed with rifles and have field guns which were captured from the Portuguese troops. Their chief stronghold is at Manufae, situated in the heart of the mountains, some of which range as high as 5,000 feet in altitude. They have, however, descended towards the coast and approached near to the capital, Dilly, which at last accounts they were attacking. The Portuguese have already lost a considerable number of men and a number of civilians who were assisting the regular troops were also killed. The government has ordered forward an expedition of about 500 men with fourteen field guns.

The Dutch government has sent several notes to Portugal, protesting at the revolt on the ground that it is extending to Dutch territory. The Dutch are inclined to blame the Portuguese for the outbreak which they say results from the fact that the authorities have doubled the taxes which the natives are unable to pay. It is understood that Holland has made another proposal to purchase the Portuguese part of Timor, but it is entirely probable that Portugal will refuse the offer.

The situation at Goa in India is scarcely any better. The natives of Satary have carried their rebellion to practically all the Portuguese territory. They have seized several Portuguese forts. As the troops were unable to resist the rebels, the natives had an opportunity to pillage and murder freely. Entire villages are described as smoking ruins. Hundreds of people have been killed or have disappeared. Women and girls have been seized in the villages, taken to the mountains and turned into domestics or slaves. The priests are held for ransom. The government is sending a punitive expedition of 200 men with six quick-firing guns, pointing out at the same time that it is impossible to send more because of the necessity of fitting out the expedition to Timor. Another difficulty in the way of sending out expensive expeditions is the heavy drag upon the treasury of the republic whose condition does not permit of any considerable expenditure.

With the colonial situation unsatisfactory, the internal political situation here is rapidly giving rise to many fears and people are openly talking of the possibility of a "coup d'etat." The conservative party, under the leadership of Dr. Antonia Jose d'Almeida has declared open war on the government, which is controlled and supported by the Democratic party headed by Dr. Alphonzo Costa. This struggle of parties is so acute that the government is continuing with great difficulty, and by the constitution parliament cannot be dissolved. The "coup d'etat" is being arranged by leaders of the Democratic party. Their idea is, with the assistance of the government, to enter parliament by force and expel Dr. Almeida and his followers, replacing them by Democrats who shall be loyal to the government. The Democrats believe that this could be accomplished with little if any bloodshed. Should this move be carried out, it is recognized that Dr. Costa would be practically the dictator of Portugal, as it is likely that the president of the republic, Dr. Manuel d'Arriaga, who is an intimate friend of Dr. Almeida, would be immediately deposed and Dr. Costa or some representative of Costa chosen president.

The question of the treatment of political prisoners is being heatedly discussed in the newspapers. This is due to the disclosure that the inmates of Limeiro fortress, the central prison of Lisbon, have been often placed in dungeons with little air or light, as a means of forcing them to reveal their supposed secrets. Although these dungeons are wet and damp, prisoners are only allowed to wear a light shirt and trousers. Their food was bread and water. It is charged, moreover, that when they refused to disclose their secrets, they were beaten with sticks made from rawhide, which leave terrible wounds. These revelations, which came out through newspaper interviews with some of the prisoners, have caused a great sensation and have induced the government to promise to begin an inquiry and to put an end to any cruel treatment.

The British and Portuguese governments are now in negotiations for the protection of the port of Lisbon. The idea is to make it a strong base for naval operations. The old fort of Almada, situated across the Tagus in front of Lisbon, will be demolished and reconstructed with the latest improvements and armed with heavy artillery. The forts of Bom Sucesso and Sao Juliao de Barra will be likewise improved and fitted out with new artillery. These improvements form a part of the defense of the Portuguese coast and the strategic triangle of Madeira, Lagos and Cape Vert, which has been included in the provisions of the Anglo-Portuguese alliance.

SOCIABLE BIRDS.

My first experience of the fearlessness of the California bird came to me at second hand, writes a correspondent of "Suburban Life." It also came near getting a small boy into trouble. After we were settled in a little home the said small boy went to school on his bicycle, down a busy avenue, with street cars running to and fro constantly. Before he had made the journey many times the child came home one evening and said:

"I wish the birds would leave me alone."

"What birds?" I asked.

"Why, those little blackbirds you see around," he answered. "When I'm riding to school they come down and try to peck my hat off."

The child had always been a truthful child, but my faith in his veracity was shaken. I gently expressed a doubt, but the boy backed up his assertions vehemently.

"They do it every morning," he persisted, and I had to let it go at that.

Later on, in speaking of this particular breed of bird to a neighbor, the boy's statement was justified.

"Those little birds certainly are daring," said the neighbor. "I've seen them try to take a piece of bread or cake from a child's hand—and not such a small child, either. They don't seem to have the ordinary fear of morals, probably because they are never molested here in the city."

One morning, going out to the front door, I found a caller. He was a tiny fellow, riding a tricycle.

"Hello!" he said.

"Hello!" I answered. "What's your name?"

"Henry," was the reply. "I live over there," pointing to a house some distance across a vacant lot, and on another street.

"And what are you doing so far away from home?" I asked.

"I want my little sister's shoe. It's in your yard."

"How did it get in our yard?"

"A bird took it off my mamma's clothesline and brought it over."

And sure enough a search of the yard disclosed the little white shoe, which the bird had pulled from the line and brought over to us. The boy's mother had seen the feathered thief, and watched it till it dropped its booty in our back yard.

The tameness of the gulls at the seashore is another source of wonder and delight. When we go to the beach we save the scraps of our luncheon and use them as a coaxer for the gulls. Sitting on the sand, piece by piece the scraps are thrown around us, and by and by we have a circle of the beautiful and graceful birds all on the alert for another piece, but equally on the alert for the approach of anything which might be called an enemy.

At last, when they have found out that no aggressive move is made, the creatures will approach almost within reach of our hands. On the piers where people are fishing, the gulls will sit in rows, waiting for a chance at discarded bait or fish. People pass constantly to and fro near them, but they show no fear. Rules regarding their protection are very strict, and perhaps this is why they have learned to be so fearless.

In some localities in the city's outskirts telephone and other wires will be covered, for a block or more, with small birds. What they find to eat in the city is a problem, but they thrive. Some of them are beautiful songsters, and all seem to have cultivated a friendly and fearless disposition.

HOW TO MAKE A FAN WITH A JACKKNIFE.

Strand Magazine: To make a fan with a jackknife you must first have a piece of soft, fine-grained wood, about nine inches long, three-quarters of an inch wide, and half or five-eighths of an inch thick. Five inches of this length is taken up by the handle, which is neatly carved and made decidedly artistic by leaving a round globe or sphere in the topmost notch, which is entirely free and movable. From the remaining four inches of the stick the fan itself is made. Before this is done the wood is placed in water for a few minutes, which somewhat softens it and makes it more pliable. Then carefully—and very carefully, mind you—the fan part is split into thin partitions, there being some twenty-one in all in the fan. Before they are separated the stick is again plunged into water, and the parts then carefully separated so as to prevent them snapping at the notch or joint. One has only to add that this particular fan will open and shut, to show that its creator is master of his work.

FINGER NAILS UNCUT FOR TWENTY-SEVEN YEARS.

Strand: A celebrated Chinese priest, resident in Shanghai, is a good example of the length to which the natives of this country will go in order to gain notoriety and draw the money. In the case of this individual, his holiness and "Good Joss" are apparently gauged by the length of his finger nails, the longest of which is 22¾ inches in length, being, as far as can be learned, a record for this country of long nails. When not on show he is so mindful of his treasures that he wears them in guards made of hollow bamboo, and great precaution are taken that they do not get broken. They appear to be a money-making concern, as, in a conversation with the writer, he stated that up till the present year he has had plenty of business, and worshipers at his temple have been very numerous. It is only to be hoped that the ministers of the gospel at home do not attempt to copy his idea to draw the backsliders, as he states that it took him twenty-seven years of careful cultivation before they reached their present length.

SWEETENED WATER TO CATCH BEARS.

The Strand: A trio of bears escaped from a circus traveling in California and the farmers in the vicinity all armed themselves with shotguns and prepared to defend their stock. Fearful of losing his menagerie for good, the proprietor of the circus offered a reward to any one who would return the three truants in safety, and a young man who had seen them performing decided to win the reward. He had noticed that they were very fond of sweetened water, and it was one of their tricks to drink it out of bottles; so he took a number of flasks of the same mixture in his car, and set out to find them. He was just in time to prevent a body of farmers from shooting them, and when he explained his plan, the enraged rustics allowed him to try it. Therefore, a careful advance was made upon the bears, while the bottles were extended invitingly; and the animals took the bait so eagerly that there was no difficulty in luring them to the car. Once there, they were securely chained, but they had no desire to leave as long as the sweet water lasted.

KING GEORGE'S WORK ROOM.

Strand: The room in which King George transacts his business is conveniently placed for his private suite, and he makes it a rule only to receive official visitors in his "office," inviting such personal friends as call upon him to join them in his private smoking room. This is one of the most handsomely fitted up of the whole of the private suites of the palace, and was carried out by the direction, and under the personal supervision of the late King Edward. It is not very large and is a thorough "man's room" in every sense of the word, containing mostly testimonies to his majesty's skill with rifle, gun and rod. Occasionally the king will suggest, during the course of a busy morning, that Lord Stamfordham, Col. Sir S. Ponsonby, or others of his secretarial staff should suspend their duties for a short time and accompany him to the smoking room, there to have a chat over a brief smoke. The king does not smoke to anything like the same extent as his late majesty, of whom it is on record that he never was seen on his way to his bath room of a morning without a cigar in his mouth. It is very rarely that the king smokes anything stronger than a cigarette, though when he is traveling on the sea, as in the case of the Medina voyage, he will light a briar pipe with obvious enjoyment. He could never, however, be called a heavy smoker, and this may be accounted for in some respect by the fact that the queen does not like the smell of tobacco in any room she enters.

DRAINAGE OF THE ZUYDER ZEE.

The Mundus: A great project is again before the people of Holland—the draining of the Zuyder Zee. The sea, which as every one knows, is at the north of Holland and covers an area of 50,000 hectares, a hectare being practically two acres and a half.

Just half a century ago a scheme to drain the southern portion of the sea was first mooted and although it received considerable support, the opposition was greater, but now an association has been formed and a bill will be introduced into the chamber. The promoters see that with an increased population, means must be taken to enlarge the country and this reclamation of the sea is suggested as capable of accomplishment. If the sea is conquered there are several lakes which can be dealt with later.

THE FIRST SILK STOCKING

Manchester Guardian: It appears that Henry II when preparing for the marriage of his sister in 1559, first gave the idea for silk hose and was the first to wear silk knitted stockings at that epoch-making event. A hundred years later one Hindres established a factory for stockings in the Bois de Boulogne.

This was the first factory in France. It was a success at the start and when it received protection from the then ministers it was a kind of gold mine. In 1666 the venture was turned into a company. From it arose the Society of Stocking Makers. At this time ribbed stockings were made in England, but it was not until nearly a century later that such wear was introduced into France. The idea, to use a vulgarism, "caught on," and factories were established in Paris and at Lyons.

AN OBSTACLE TO PROGRESS.

Kansas City Star: A tourist in the mountains of Tennessee once had dinner with a querulous old mountaineer who yarned about hard times for fifteen minutes at a stretch.

"Why, man," said the tourist, "you ought to be able to make lots of money shipping green corn to the Northern market."

"Yes, I orter," was the sullen reply.

"You have the land, I suppose, and can get the seed."

"Yes, I guess so."

"Then why don't you go into the speculation?"

"No use, stranger," sadly replied the cracker, "the old woman is too lazy to do the plougin' and plantin'."

DEBS HEADS SOCIALISTS

Emil Seidel of Milwaukee in Second Place on the Ticket.

Anti-Violence Clause and Woman Suffrage Adopted By Party.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 18.—Eugene V. Debs of Terre Haute, Ind., was nominated as a candidate for the presidency of the United States by the national Socialist convention.

Emil Seidel, former mayor of Milwaukee, was named for the vice presidential nomination.

Mr. Debs was not in the hall when the result of the ballot was announced, but Mr. Seidel in a few words thanked the delegates and promised that he would make the campaign "as lively as the capitalist parties had ever seen it."

Mr. Debs was opposed for the presidential nomination by Mr. Seidel and Charles Edward Russell of New York. After the result of the first ballot, which was Debs 165, Seidel 56 and Russell 54, had been given out, Mr. Seidel moved that the nomination be made unanimous, and it was seconded by Mr. Russell.

Many candidates, including Kate O'Hare of St. Louis and Anna Agnes Mahley of Seattle, were named for second place, but only Mr. Seidel, John W. Staylon, and Dan Hogan remained to be voted on. Mr. Seidel on the first ballot received 159 votes, Hogan 73, and Staylon 24. Mr. Hogan's motion to make Seidel's nomination unanimous was seconded by Mr. Staylon.

Declined by Harriman.

Job Harriman of California and Duncan McDonald of Illinois, were nominated for the presidency but declined to let their names stand. Under the rules of the convention no nominating speeches were allowed.

Aside from the nominations, the only other business of the convention at the afternoon session was the adoption of a section of the constitution which placed the party as taking a decided stand against "violence as a weapon of the working classes." The session was the most heated of the convention, and the section was not adopted until after several hours of debate, which many times ran into personalities.

The section was opposed by the "direct action" forces, who have been espousing the cause of the Industrial Workers of the World, and was favored by the so-called "yellow" or conservative faction of the party. Bernard Berlyn of Chicago, in speaking in favor of the section, denied he was "yellow," and related his experiences in Colorado, where he was sent into various sections which he said were "regarded as unhealthy" for Socialists, and concluded by saying: "I would go to hell if told to make a Socialist speech." He said violence did not gain the working classes anything.

Compared to Goldman.

Congressman Victor L. Berger of Milwaukee declared those who opposed the section belong with Emma Goldman, and are trying to hide behind "political faction."

"There is no bridge between Socialism and anarchy," said Mr. Berger. "Those who stand for 'political faction' are near the bomb thrower and the dagger wielder. The trouble is, there are anarchists in the party who are trying to hide under the guise of the I. W. W."

Suffragists scored in the convention when they amended the section of the constitution pertaining to membership in the party to read "and unrestricted political rights for both sexes."

The adoption of the amendment followed heated debate and the voting down of a similar change in the constitution as introduced by a New York suffragist. The amendment was carried by a vote of 135 to 86.

"Club for Capital."

Anna M. Mahley, delegate from Washington, in speaking to her amendment, declared that if the Socialist party did not take up and advocate woman's suffrage, the capitalists, recognizing that it was bound to come, would espouse the cause and use it as a club to defeat the Socialists. She declared equal suffrage was opposed only in the convention by "half-baked politicians," and singled out Delegate W. E. Rodriguez of Illinois for her especial attack.

CEMETERY DRESSING ROOM FOR A SCHOOLGIRL BRIDE.

Norfolk, Va., May 17.—When Miss Eula Parson Cherry left the home of her parents to go to school she wore short skirts and her hair in a braid down her back.

The girl met several of her schoolmates a short distance away and they went to Cedar Grove cemetery, where Miss Cherry, aided by her companions, put on a long skirt and had her hair done up in a manner more befitting a girl intending matrimony.

About the time she was ready to leave the cemetery an automobile stopped at the gate, the girl jumped in and took a seat by the lone male passenger, John Edmunds. The couple then drove to Moyock, N. C., and were married.

The bride is just 16 and her husband is 40.

OKLAHOMA HAS NEW OFFICIAL

Interests of Defective, Delinquent and Dependant Looked After.

McAlester, Okla., May 18.—Oklahoma has the distinction of having in its official family the only public defender in the United States. The creation of the office was due to the work of Miss Kate Barnard, commissioner of charities and corrections of this state.

From the work of the department Miss Barnard learned that many wrongs might be righted if poor persons had the means to pay for legal services. With that in view she prepared and presented to the legislature the bill which was finally passed creating the office of public defender.

The Opposition to the Bill.

There was opposition to the bill. Dr. J. H. Stolper, general attorney of the department of charities and corrections, had been looking after the affairs of Indian minors whose estates were pending in the several county courts of the state. He discovered where they were being robbed of their inheritance. He had caused many deeds fraudulently obtained to be canceled and had sent to the penitentiary many widely known men. Some had held federal positions and had strong connections at Washington.

It was in the national capital that the fight began. The Oklahoma legislature and the officials of the state were Democratic. The Democratic party was being held responsible for the protection of the Indians. Finally the federal authorities cooperated with the officers of the state. The office of public defender, it was seen, would widen the scope of this work and make it possible to reach cases beyond help under the conditions.

Governor's Veto Too Late.

It is alleged that the public defender bill did not become a law, as it was vetoed by the governor. The bill passed the house Feb. 16, passed the senate March 11. It was presented to the governor that night just before the legislature adjourned. The governor vetoed the bill, it is said, March 24, after he had held it beyond the time fixed by the Constitution.

Miss Barnard took this view of it and appointed Dr. Stolper to the position. Since the announcement of his appointment the pleas for help reaching him give some idea of what the possibilities of the office are.

A class of cases of which many come before him is illustrated by one at Woodward. A young man had his mother committed to the asylum on the ground that she was insane. He then sought administration of her estate, so as to get control of her property. She appealed to Dr. Stolper that she was not insane. He obtained a writ of habeas corpus and at the hearing it was shown that she was perfectly sane. Her estate, valued at about $30,000, was restored to her.

The bill as it now exists gives the public defender the right to inquire into, and it makes it his duty to look after the interests of all minor orphans children in the state. The defective, delinquent and dependent may rely on this public official to look after their affairs.

CHANGES THE DATE OF THE COTTON REPORT.

Washington, May 18.—The senate has passed the house bill changing the date of issuance of the cotton acreage report of the department of agriculture to the first Monday in July of each year. Heretofore the law required that it be issued in June. A section relating to condition reports was eliminated in senate committee and the bill therefore must be agreed to in conference and signed by the president before it becomes a law.

LA FOLLETTE SAYS HE WILL BE NOMINATED.

Bowling Gren, Ohio, May 18.—Speaking to a large crowd here last night, Senator La Follette declared he had the key to the presidential nomination at Chicago; that past history indicates the Republican party never would nominate two men so near together in the race as Roosevelt and Taft, and he was the likeliest nominee of the party.

Senator La Follette divided honors with President Taft here. He arrived about half an hour before the president and was compelled to wait until after the latter's speech before he could deliver his talk to a crowd of any size.

CHICAGO SUFFRAGIST PARADE IS POSTPONED.

Chicago, May 18.—Suffragists of Chicago will not hold their big parade during June, as they had planned. It will be held later, however, it was announced. Some one said that if the parade invaded the Republican convention, as had been suggested, it should be a national and not a local affair. This brought Miss Belle Squire to her feet in a hurry.

"I'm not in favor of honoring the Republican party in that way, because they always have been so very mean to us," she said.

PLANNED TO PAY JUDGE

W. P. Boland's Brother Testifies in the Archbald Inquiry.

Tells of Litigation But Recalls No Request By Jurist.

Washington, May 18.—C. G. Boland of the Marion Coal company of Scranton, Pa., brother of W. P. Boland, author of charges against Robert W. Archbald of the commerce court, was a witness yesterday before the house committee on judiciary, inquiring into the allegations against the jurist.

Boland gave testimony relating to negotiations participated in by Judge Archbald to settle out of court litigation between the Marion Coal company and the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western railroad, and to dispose of the interests of the Bolands in the Marion Coal company to the railroad company. In this connection Boland declares that G. M. Watson, a lawyer who led in the negotiations, had declared that Judge Archbald should be compensated for his part to the extent of $10,000 or $15,000.

Did Not Ask for Pay.

Though Boland admitted that he did not know that Judge Archbald had asked for any compensation should the proposed sale of the Marion property be consummated, he declared Watson had told him the jurist should get compensation, as should certain officials of the Lackawanna railroad who were aiding in the transaction.

Boland told of his refusal to discount a note for $500 signed by Judge Archbald for Edward J. Williams while litigation of the company was pending in the commerce court. Later, he said, Williams had told him he had made a mistake in refusing to discount the note, and that he could have saved the Marion Coal company court costs had he acted differently.

Conference on Sale.

The witness said that the Bolands sought to dispose of their interests in the company to get rid of litigation, and that Judge Archbald offered to help them settle their difficulties out of court and aid Attorney Watson to dispose of their interests. They authorized Watson to offer their interests for $100,000, Watson to get $500 commission.

A conference was arranged, Boland said, by Judge Archbald with officials of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western, at which Watson raised the price to $140,000 or $160,000, which President Truesdale of the railroad company refused to pay, ending the negotiations.

As to Watson's reasons for increasing the price $40,000 or $60,000 in excess of the Bolands' offer, the witness said Watson told him certain persons had to be paid if the deal went through, among them Judge Archbald.

Williams Recalled.

Edward J. Williams was recalled to allow him to correct his testimony about a letter bearing his signature, addressed to Charles F. Conn of the Laurel line at Scranton, in which Judge Archbald was referred to as "the party.' Williams said he now recollected that William P. Boland had dictated the letter. Formerly he testified that he thought Judge Archbald might have written it. W. P. Boland, he said, urged him to see Conn, who contemplated buying the Katydid dump, and hurry the deal along.

William L. Pryor of Scranton said he knew nothing of this letter, but that he had attested the assignment contract, in which Judge Archbald was referred to as the "silent party." Pryor judged from conversation he had overheard between the Bolands that Judge Archbald was to "receive some remuneration" for the settlement of suits in the federal court to which the Bolands were parties.

The hearing was adjourned until Monday on acount of pressure of business in the house.

SUBSTITUTE NEEDED IF "LOAN SHARKS" ARE TO BE ENDED

charitable enterprise. This organization would loan money at a reasonable rate of interest.

Suggested by Editorial.

"The idea came to me through an editorial published in The Herald a few weeks ago," said Mr. Greene today. "I have been turning the matter over in my mind since then and have come to the conclusion that some such organization as this is the ultimate solution of the loan shark problem."

Mr. Greene told of the first case which he took up after announcing that he would defend victims of usury free of charge. The case, he said, was typical of others which he investigated and disposed of, and illustrates the honesty of the class of people who fall victims to the loan shark traffic.

The case involved a young married woman, who was a cripple. She hobbled into his office on her crutches and told a pitiful story of want and destitution. It was just before Christmas time, she said, when she applied for a $40 loan from a local shark. She and her husband were then in particularly hard circumstances and needed to raise that amount of money to cover expenses incurred by sickness.

The little woman told a straight, forward story of how she had borrowed the $40 and how she had signed an agreement by which she promised to pay back $40 with $20 interest for six months. The installments were $10 a month and the interest figured on a basis of 100 per cent. She had paid back $20 when she fell down on her payments. It was at this point that she came to Mr. Greene with her case.

Afraid of Publicity.

Before she would put the case in his hands, she exacted a promise from him that the case would not go into the courts except as a last resort, her object being to evade publicity. She then stated that she did not wish to evade a lawful debt and said that she was willing to repay the balance of the $40 and a lawful rate of interest. She insisted on this, although she was informed by Mr. Greene that under the law she was not obliged to pay back another cent as the note which she gave bore usurious interest.

Mr. Greene said that the terms proposed by the woman for settlement were agreeable to the loan company from which she secured the money and that the sharks showed no disposition to have the case dragged into the courts as Mr. Greene had first proposed, but which he could not do without disregarding his client.

In an interview today with regard to the situation and as to his ideas with reference to its solution, Mr. Greene said:

"A few weeks ago, the papers announced that I would be willing to handle any of these cases which might be brought to my attention, free of charge. The result of that announcement has been that several people have called to see me concerning their difficulties with the so-called loan sharks.

Stories All Alike.

"In every case the story has been very much the same. The borrowers had been in hard straits, generally by reason of sickness, and have been obliged to have money to tide them over their difficulties. They had gone to the loan office and in return for cash had given a note or mortgage bearing interest running anywhere from 40 to 150 per cent.

"After hearing their experiences, I have informed them that under the law such a note is void and that they are not obliged to pay back any part of the money which they have received. In every case they have refused to take advantage of the law. They have said that the money is not theirs and have insisted on paying it back with a proper interest.

"It is needless to say that such an attitude betokens a high sense of innate honesty. Furthermore, they do not want the publicity which would be incident to the institution of a suit to declare the note void. In fact, in almost every case an assurance of secrecy had to be given before they would give me the facts. This attitude is, of course, very natural for a self-respecting person, and has to be respected. But it presents a difficulty. Their wishes are not in accord with my own notions of what should be done. But I am not at liberty to disregard their honesty or recklessly drag their names before the public against their wishes. Without doing so, I am happy to say that I have been able in every case to obtain what my clients have desired and in a way entirely to their satisfaction.

No Other Place to Go.

"The loan men take advantage of two certain conditions. First, the fact that poor and honest people must at times borrow money, and second the fact that such people have no place where they can get that money at legal rates with such security as they have to offer. After all is said, the fact remains that when this necessity arises the people have to go to the 'loan sharks,' not because they wont to, but because there is no other place to go. As far as I have been able to find out, there are no lenders in the city who will lend on the security offered at a legal rate of interest.

"I have conversed with several men who are engaged in the legitimate loan business, not the so-called loan sharks, and they tell me that a loan business cannot be maintained on a 10 per cent basis; that experience has shown that it results in failure, and they point to the statutes of Wisconsin and Michigan, both of which provide a rate of 24 per cent per annum for this kind of loan business. The trouble, of course, lies in the fact that there are many persons who borrow and either through dishonesty or necessity will not or cannot repay. The security obtained is rarely sufficient and the lender has to stand the loss. This is merely another way of saying that the honest borrower is paying for the dishonest one, but it is an existing condition.

"I have been told that there is a company in St. Paul which loans on a legal percentage. I am also told that they are losing money. Now, of course, I am not sufficiently acquainted with the business to tell whether it could be run safely on a 10 per cent basis or not, but whether it can or cannot, something ought to be done. The poor man who is honest and has to have some money ought not to be driven into the loan shark's hands. There should be some place where he can get money inside the law. It is not a mere matter of business with him. It may be a matter of life and death.

"With this condition existing, the suggestion of The Herald that a company be organized by public-spirited men meets the difficulty. If such a company can make the business pay, very well, if not, let it be considered a semi-public charity. I know of no charity which would do more actual and practical good. These people who have come to see me are honest. They have self-respect. They are good citizens. The company would never lose a nickel on them. It would simply mean that the losses which the dishonest would cause the company would be borne by the company instead of the honest borrowers.

"I think that this is a matter which might well be handled by the public welfare committee of the Commercial club or some such body. In the meantime, I wish it understood that I am always ready to do what I can in the matter, and am glad to prosecute their cases either by suit or otherwise."

Are too great a strain on the kidneys.
Backache, headache, dizziness,
Kidney troubles, urinary troubles follow.

A Duluth citizen tells you how to cure them.

J. H. Tomlin, 112 W. Palmetto St., Duluth Heights, Duluth, Minn., says: "When I worked on the street railway in 1908, I publicly recommended Doan's Kidney Pills. At that time I said that I had suffered for two years from kidney complaint. I finally became so bad that I had to quit work for days. My back was painful and at night I was nervous. When I got up in the morning, I felt tired and worn out and I was made miserable by a kidney weakness. I have no doubt that the constant jar received while riding, caused my trouble. Nothing helped me until I used Doan's Kidney Pills. They cured me and I have not had much trouble from my back or kidneys since. I always have a box of Doan's Kidney Pills in the house."

ASTOR GUARDIANS TO READ COLONEL'S WILL.

New York, May 18.—Former Supreme Court Justice Henry A. Gildersleeve, Langdon P. Marvin and A. Perry Osborne, the three temporary guardians for Madeline Force Astor. William Vincent Astor and Muriel Astor, respectively, appeared in the surrogate's court late yesterday and heard the subscribing witnesses to the will of John Jacob Astor swear that they had seen the will signed. Mr. Gildersleeve said that while he did not expect any contest, he had not read the will and that no decree admitting the will to probate would be signed until the temporary guardians had read it and decided whether they wished to enter objections.

Mogen, representative of the Crookston Lumber company in Koochiching county, the crew which has been lifting the saw logs out of Bartlett lake to be shipped to Bemidji has made a record. During the first day thirty-six cars were loaded between 6 o'clock in the morning and 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon. Thirty men with two steam hoists did the work, and it is considered quite an achievement.

WARNING BY ROOSEVELT

Effort to Control Convention By Force Will Mean Party Ruin, He Says.

Colonel Draws Thousands to Hear Speech at Columbus, Ohio.

Columbus, Ohio, May 18.—President Taft's theory of constitutional government, said Col. Roosevelt here last night, "is that it is a government administrated by Lorimer, Guggenheim, Barnes, Gallinger and the like in defiance of the will of the people, that it is a government under which the people are defrauded of their rights by these men."

The former president said that Mr. Taft was mistaken in asserting that the success of the cause for which he stands now seems assured. The Chicago convention, he continued, "will not be controlled by fraud and force."

Crowds to Hear Roosevelt.

These statements were made by Col. Roosevelt in his speech at Memorial hall. The building was stormed by a crowd of thousands which filled it to its capacity and streamed out into the street. Before going to the hall, Col. Roosevelt made an address at Glenleg park. During the day he traveled across Southeastern Ohio.

Col. Roosevelt began his address by saying he should receive the support of every Ohio Republican who wished to vote at the primaries for a Progressive.

"I came into this fight," he said, "only because it had become evident that unless I did so there was not the slightest chance of any Progressive winning the Republican nomination. The reactionaries recognize this clearly. As a matter of fact, they are not primarily for Mr. Taft at all. Every Republican in Ohio who votes for any man except myself is strengthening the reactionary cause.

Taft and the Convention.

"Yesterday Mr. Taft said he believed he would win the nomination because he believed the Chicago convention will be organized by the friends of constitutional government. I ask you to remember just who these 'friends of constitutional government' are, upon whom Mr. Taft relies. They are his campaign manager, Mr. McKinley, Mr. Lorimer from Illinois, Mr. Penrose from Pennsylvania, Messrs. Guggenheim and Evans from Colorado, Mr. Gallinger from New Hampshire, Mr. Barnes from New York and Mr. Keating from Indiana. So I could go on indefinitely.

"When Mr. Taft says that the Chicago convention will be controlled by men such as Lorimer, Barnes and Penrose, and by the delegates fraudulently seated from states like Washington, where they would be avowedly seated, not because they represent the people, but because they do not represent the people.

No Control By Force.

"Mr. Taft is mistaken. The Chicago convention will not be controlled by fraud and force in this manner. The attempt so to control it will be unsuccessful, and if successful it would merely mean the ruin of the Republican party.

"I hope you will remember, from now on, just what Mr. Taft means by constitutional government. Mr. Taft's theory of constitutional government is that it is government administered by Lorimer, Guggenheim, Barnes, Gallinger and their like, in defiance of the will of the people, and imposed by them on the people; that it is government under which the people are defrauded of their rights by these men. He believes that these men, to the exclusion of th people, should be given the guardianship of the Constitution, which the people themselves made to protect their own interests against just such men and to secure justice for themselves and for all men."

Hurt By Cave-in.

La Moure, N. D., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Harry Parsons suffered a badly lacerated arm as the result of the earth suddenly caving in while he was at work in a ditch twelve feet deep. Had it not been for the fact that another man was near at hand he might have lost his life.

Mankato, Minn., May 18.—Ambrose Trusty celebrated his 100th birthday anniversary on Tuesday. He is getting feeble, but comes downtown from his home in West Mankato occasionally.

THE GOVERNOR MIGHT HAVE TAKEN THE BULL BY THE HORNS.

MINNESOTA POLITICS

Progressive Test for the Minnesota Legislature—Second Choice Attachment to Primary Bill Will Block Governor's Game—Eberhart Candidacy Not Helped By Extra-Session Call

Governor May Be Checkmated.

The progressive nature of the Minnesota legislature will be put to the test at the extra session to open June 4. If the legislature is really progressive, it will effectually block any attempt of a reactionary to slip through a split field of Progressives to a nomination.

Governor Eberhart undoubtedly had something of that kind in mind when he called the extra session. He looks for a primary law that will give the nomination to the candidate having the greatest number of votes, even though he should have only 25 per cent of the total. Under such a law, the governor's chances would be greatly improved. In a convention, the different candidates would be able to estimate their strength before the opening. There would be combinations. A majority would be necessary to nomination and the governor would be at a disadvantage on account of the probability of the Progressive strength being concentrated on some one candidate.

In a primary there can be no combinations. It will be each man for himself and no man can accurely estimate his strength. Nobody will feel like pulling out in favor of some other man, and the governor probably figures that 25 per cent of the total vote under a straight, first-choice primary, with a large field of candidates, would mean the nomination.

The straight, first-choice primary is not the proper primary for contest in which there may be five or six entrants. Eberhart is from the Second district. Gordon is from the Seventh, as is Spooner. Lee is from the Sixth. T. Young is from the Fourth, Fred Snyder from the Fifth and Bob Dunn from the Eighth. If all should get into the race, which is extremely probable, each district might be expected to cast a certain number of votes for which local pride would be responsible. In making a second choice, a man in a district having a local favorite might be expected to express a broader preference than in making his first choice. On that account the second choice is important.

There are two methods by which the second choice may be made a factor in the nomination, and by which any one reactionary candidate may be prevented from slipping through a split field of Progressives.

Under one system, that proposed by Representative Henry Rines of Mora, a candidate would be required to get 40 per cent of the first-choice total to get the nomination. If no candidate should get 40 per cent of the total vote, the first and second-choice votes for each candidate would be added together and the candidate having the greatest number would be declared the nominee.

Under the other plan, if no candidate should have a majority, the candidate having the lowest number of first-choice votes would be dropped from consideration and the second-choice votes of those who voted for him as first choice would be added to the first-choice votes of the other candidates. The process would be continued until some one candidate showed a majority of the total vote, giving him the nomination. Either plan would permit the nomination of minority candidates.

The Progressives in the legislature will stand for some such measure. They will unalterably oppose any attempt to pass a straight first-choice primary with no restrictions, and the governor may find himself caught in his own trap.

Call Comes Too Late.

The impression prevails that the governor is too late with his extra-session call. Coming at this time, it has every ear-mark of being a bid for popular favor. The will of the people on the extra session was expressed many months ago. If the governor had been minded to obey it, he would have called the session then. At this late hour, his call smacks of death-bed repentance and appears to have been forced by the hostility of the delegates to the Minneapolis convention. The sentiment reflected by that gathering was so wholly anti-Eberhart that it was up to the governor to make some play in the hope of reinstating himself in the good graces of the people.

Two months ago, the governor dismissed the extra session matter from consideration. Under date of March 28, he wrote to W. T. Coe of Minneapolis:

"Yours of March 26 requesting the calling of an extra session of the legislature received. The question of calling an extra session of the legislature of this state has been before the people in one form or another practically ever since adjournment of the last regular session, and it is a matter of common knowledge in this state that the sentiment is overwhelmingly against the calling of such extra session. This I know of my own knowledge to be a fact.

"It is true that extraordinary conditions may arise which would justify the governor in calling an extra session of the legislature, even without consulting the wishes of the people, but certainly no such conditions have arisen in this state since the adjournment of the last regular session, and I must therefore respectfully decline your request."

Death-Bed Repentance.

The governor's call for an extra session has been received with mixed sentiments by members of the legislature and others interested in proposed legislation. The futility of the move as a political coup is recognized by everybody. Press comment shows that the impression prevails that the governor's candidacy will not be helped, for the legislature will provide a second-choice provision that will block the governor's chances of defeating the divided Progressive strength.

The governor may be placed in an embarrassing position by other legislation than that recommended by him. If the distance tariff bill, a bill increasing the gross earnings tax, a state civil service law and some other measures should pass and be put up to him for signature, he would be in a peck of trouble. Certain measures that may come up are extremely distasteful to Mr. Smith and the interests behind him, and the governor might be put under the necessity of offending the interests backing him or proving false to the people. What the governor would do under the circumstances is a question.

Commenting on the extra session call, the St. Paul Dispatch says editorially:

One reason that is freely assigned is that the governor hoped, by answering the demand of yesterday's convention with an immediate call for an extra session to enact a state wide primary law, to promote his own political fortunes. If that be true, there is room for serious question as to whether he will accomplish the desired result. Extra sessions are usually trouble makers for those who call them, especially when the doors are open for the entrance of measures of every kind. Nor is it clear, from the attitude of the members of yesterday's convention, that the governor can hope to gain materially by submitting his chances under a primary law. One thing the call does accomplish, however, and that is it throws politics of Minnesota into a state of turmoil and confusion, the outcome of which it is impossible to forecast.

The comment of the Minneapolis Journal is:

Governor Eberhart announces that he will call an extra session of the legislature to meet on June 4. It is the desperate act of a beaten man. With his back to the wall he strikes out with the first act of his political life that has some semblence of courage. Two things he and his adviser hope for from this sudden and theatrical act:

First—To gain some measure of popularity by a sensational deed that seems to consult the will of the people.

Second—To get a direct primary law that will give him a chance to slip in with a plurality over three or four opponents.

Governor Eberhart heard no demand for an extra session until his own chances became desperate. Last winter he could find no warrant in public sentiment for calling the legislature together. Now, some seven months before a new legislature is to meet, when his own political fortunes are in the sorriest of plight, he takes sudden action. What is the excuse? The demand of the state convention yesterday on the Republican state committee for a preference primary on governor. Yet the convention's demand was a reasonable and practicable one. The committee could readily have provided for such a preference primary without the heavy expense of an extra session. But such a procedure would have left the state convention to make the final decision, and the certainty that the opponents of Eberhart and the inachine would combine in the convention for the overthrow of both was evidently the consideration that brought the governor and the boss to the desperate alternative of an extra session.

Victory for Attorney General.

The decisions of the supreme court upholding the constitutionality of the Elwell good roads law and the commission form of government are signal victories for the state attorney general's office.

The good roads law victory goes to William J. Stevenson, former special counsel to the St. Louis county board and now an assistant attorney general. Mr. Stevenson made a masterful argument in support of the law. He was under the handicap of appealing for a reversal of a former decision of the court, but his argument prevailed and the court reversed itself in its decision yesterday.

A Pretty Wise Lunatic.

R. M. Patterson of Chicago, who offered to give $1,000 to charity if a board of aliens didn't declare Col. Roosevelt insane, has increased his offer to $5,000. It isn't likely the colonel will be submitted to examination. For a supposedly insane man he shows a wonderful facility and coherence of expression. His Ohio speeches might be taken to require Mr. Patterson to dig up the $5,000.

Nethaway May Run.

Judge J. C. Nethaway of Stillwater may be a candidate for attorney general. The judge is anti-Eberhart, but hasn't attached himself to any one of the Progressive candidates now in the field.

BITTER CUP OF AN INVENTOR

Originator of the Explosion Engine in Want in Paris.

Paris, May 18.—Lest he die in want, an appeal has been addressed to the French government to come to the aid of Fernand Forest, the inventor of the explosion engine.

All over the civilized world great, silent automobiles roll in princely luxury, thanks to the explosion engine. The aeroplane is a possibility and an actuality because of this same machine; submarines are propelled by it and at least one great liner glides along, funnelless, its engine being of the explosion variety. Other great ships of the same kind are being built and competent authorities say the propelling power of all ships will one day be the explosion engine.

The Red Ribbon But no Money.

But the man who invented this engine is old and poor, here in France. He is honored; the French government decorated him with the Legion of Honor in 1910; but he is almost in need; he has a hard time of it keeping the wolf away from the door.

Forest has a large family and his home is typical of the very poor mechanic, which the inventor is. While thousands are reclining luxuriously in their $5,000 50-horse power motor cars, this humble workman, plodding to his daily toil, dodges these cars, the engines of which he invented. A more perfect example of the irony of fate could not be found.

President G. Du Mourier of the Association of Small Fabricants and Inventors, has appealed to Senator Reymond, president of the committee on military aviation, to use his influence in obtaining some sort of financial recognition by the government of Fernand Forest's great work. It is an open secret that France is going to rely to a large extent, in the next war, on its aeroplanes. Newspapers have been engaged for weeks raising a fund by popular subscription for the purpose of presenting aeroplanes to the army. Several newspapers each have headed their own lists by the donation of three aeroplanes. Public schools have donated machines; the Paris working girls are raising a fund for another. In short, the country is aviation-mad while the man who invented the explosion engine, without which the aeroplane would be worthless, or still a dream of the future, is totally ignored, a poverty stricken mechanic.

Aid Sought From the Government.

As far back as 1881 one of Forest's first explosion engines was given a place in the Museum of Arts-et-Metiers here. Since then the engine has changed somewhat its outward form, but the principle remains identically the same. Still it was only after waiting thirty years that the inventor was given the slightest official recompense; and this was the rather hollow glory of a knighthood in the Legion of Honor. That would not fetch him and his large family meat and bread and clothes and a roof. Those are some of the things Du Maurier points out to the government. He urges that Forest be recompensed in a manner similar to Philippe Lebon, Nicephore Niepce, d'Humbersin, Daguerre, Graham Bell, Gramme and others.

WHERE BOSTON DIFFERS.

"Did you ever think how much the temperament of a city is expressed in its street cars?" queried a man of an observant turn of mind. "I have just returned from a trip to Boston, and never before have the essential differences between that city and my own New York been so impressed on me as by my observations in the street cars.

"The first thing I miss in Boston is the familiar 'Step lively!' Instead I am exhorted 'Move as quickly as possible, please.' How could any one shove and push and crowd after that?

"Once in the car I find myself still surrounded by an atmosphere of consideration and of correct English. In our own subway we are laconically ordered 'Use both doors.' In Boston we are requested, 'Kindly leave by the nearer door.'

"This atmosphere is further maintained by another sign in the car. 'The passenger is requested, the conductor is required, to name the value of any coin or note tendered in payment of fare.' Can you imagine a passenger being requested to do anything in a New York street car?

"At Dudley street station, the principal transfer point for suburban cars, there are large placards on every platform: 'Women first, please.' I must admit that I did not observe that these had any appreciable effect on the scramble when the cars came in, but it certainly indicates a kindly spirit on the part of the man who is responsible for the cards.

"Pay as you enter cars have recently been installed on some of the Boston lines, so recently that they are still more or less of a novelty. But if you go to Boston do not make the mistake of calling them pay as you enters. Such a thing would mark you immediately as a provincial. In Boston they are called 'pre-payment cars.' Of course that is just as good a name for them as we have, perhaps a little better, and yet wouldn't you know that Boston would call them pre-payment cars, and we would call them pay as you enters?"

THE KINGDOM OF NEPAL

Westminster Gazette: The ancient and interesting little kingdom at the foot of the Himalayas to which the king went for his shoot is nearer to being an independent territory than any other of the Indian states.

Since the Eighteenth century it has been ruled by the Gurkhas, who furnish to the Indian army some of the most perfect soldiers in the world. For practical purposes the country is almost as closely secluded from Europeans as Tibet, to which in many respects it is akin.

The Teral, where King George is now encamped, is the low lying jungle tract bordering on the Indian plain, a region extraordinarily rich in wild animals, including elephants, the capture of which is a highly organized and valuable industry.

The Maharaja of Nepal, whose death by the way occurred on Dec. 11, was a titular sovereign only, the real ruler being the hereditary prime minster, who visited England a few months ago. He has the title of maharaja, and is entitled to a salute of nineteen guns.

One result of the jealous exclusion of foreigners, which the Indian government thoroughly respects, is that very little is known of a great part of Nepal, and that much of the available information as to social and economic conditions is mere guesswork. For some couple of hundred years the rulers have been our very good friends, and the force of 8,000 men headed by Jung Bahadur in the mutiny was of inestimable service.

HOARDED GOLD IN CHINA.

London Standard: Sales of gold have undoubtedly been made by the Chinese authorities and from cables which are now coming to hand from China it would seem that there is some prospect of the movement assuming rather large proportions.

No one has ever known the extent of the hoarded wealth of the late Empress Dowager, though all kinds of rumors have been current as to the accumulation of colossal sums. Now that by reason of the present disturbed condition of the country the meeting of the interest charge on the debt must impose considerable strain it would certainly not be surprising if sales were effected of some of this hoarded gold if only with the object of facilitating the prompt payment of the coupons on the foreign debt, a matter concerning which the Chinese government has always displayed scrupulous care.

At present the only amount definitely known to have left China in the shape of gold is £150,000, but there were reports in the city yesterday that something like another half million had been despatched though there seems to be some doubt as to whether the destination is Berlin or London.

A CUT FLOWER EXPRESS.

American Travelers' Gazette: A train which runs every day in the year between Toulon and Paris is known as the "rapide des fleurs"—the cut flower express.

This train carries nothing but cut flowers in baskets and pasteboard boxes for the Paris market. The violets of Hyeres, the roses and carnations of Antibes and the Roman hyacinths of Olhoules and Carqueironnes are on the flower stands of Paris in eighteen hours from the time they were growing on the shores of the Mediterranean. A good many are shipped also to the cities of Germany and Belgium and even as far as Vienna and St. Petersburg. The packages are handled by a special train crew that sorts them out like mail matter. The speed at which this "cut flower express" runs is greater than that of any other train in Europe, and it is almost invariably on time.

ONE BOOK ENOUGH FOR FAMILY.

Indianapolis News: A book agent will attempt to sell his book under many adverse circumstances, and in many cases he will succeed, but there are times when he sees that a graceful retreat is the better part. An agent tells the following story:

"I approached a farmer in a poor community and began showing my book. He listened with interest, but when I finished the first lap of my speech said he couldn't read. Of course that put a new light on the matter, but I didn't give up, for we meet many customers who can't read. I told him of the great help it would be to all his children and his wife, and he still was interested.

"I thought I was making progress, but I wasn't. I had finished my speech with the usual peroration that is designed to make the customer enthusiastic and make him sign for the book—a thing few will do without considerable persuasion. Instead of taking the pencil he said:

"'It's a good book, all right and all that, but I can't read. My daughter, she can read, but she has a book.'"

BEAVERS' WORK.

Our Dumb Animals—The beavers not only cut down trees for the purpose of making dams, but also use the small upper branches as a storage supply for food for winter use. These branches, from two to four inches in diameter, are cut into lengths of two or three feet and then by wonderful engineering ability are carried beneath the water and into the beavers' houses, or the burrows, with which the bank of every beavers' dam is honeycombed. Here they are carefully stored. The green bark is the staple article of food throughout the winter.

The dams are of varying height and length, according to the particular location. I found a dam in Mesa county, Colorado, which was just six feet from bottom to top and impounded a body of water six feet or more in depth and covering an area of several acres. This dam was perfect in construction. It was composed entirely of willow business as no large timber grows in the vicinity.

"AHEAD OF THE GAME"

Y. W. C. A. Workers Average More Than $1,000 a Day.

The committee raising a fund of $8,000 to make up a deficit and provide maintenance funds for the Young Women's Christian association, is $7 ahead of the required daily average.

Up to noon today $3,007 had been raised. The sum represents three days' work, as the committee did not work this afternoon.

The campaign will cover eight days. It began Thursday, when $1,119 was raised. Yesterday, $1,125 was added, and the amount for today is $763.

Members of the committee are meeting with a hearty response from the business men, and also from the women of Duluth. Several women have subscribed $100 each, and many men have followed with like amounts.

The plea is made that the association is a public institution, doing a beneficent work and should be supported by public subscriptions. The deficit last year came about through the association's efforts to provide a good home and wholesome amusements for girls at a minimum of cost, and the generosity with which Duluth people are responding to the appeal for aid shows a general appreciation of the work of the association.

NOW IS TIME FOR ACTION

Citizens Favor Immediate Steps to Secure Commission Government.

Decision of State Supreme Court Has Removed Last Obstacle.

Duluth citizens approached on the subject today believe that now is the time to take steps toward providing a commission form of government for the city.

The decision of the supreme court yesterday in the Mankato case clears away the last obstacle. The fate of the constitutional amendment to be submitted at the general election in November is a matter of no consequence. There was some question as to the constitutionality of the commission plan under the constitution as it stands, but the supreme court has cleared away all doubts.

A sub-committee of the Duluth charter commission worked for several months last year, obtaining information on the commission government and formulating a charter amendment which would allow the adoption of the commission form of government in Duluth. When questions were raised as to the constitutionality of the new form of municipal government in the state, the sub-committee suspended work. It is expected to report now and advocates of the commission plan are urging immediate action. A special election would be necessary to amend the charter.

"I believe that a commission, which may be kept responsive to the will of the people through the initiative, the referendum and the recall, would give a much more economical and efficient government than the system we now have in Duluth," said Charles E. Adams, special counsel to the county board. "Duluth should immediately take steps to frame a charter amendment that will provide a commission government on lines suggested by the experience of other cities. Economy and efficiency should be the aims of all municipal government and they can be best attained by the commission plan."

K. M. Nicoles is a strong advocate of the commission form of government and prompt action to secure it.

Mr. Nicoles was asked whether he thought the commission form of city government would be a good idea for Duluth.

"I don't think it, I know it," said Mr. Nicoles.

"It is quite impossible to get competent men to run the city affairs upon the present salaries. Some of these men have in hand the expenditure of millions of dollars. The city should be placed upon a firm business foundation."

L. A. Barnes, former alderman of the Eighth ward, said this morning that the decision of the supreme court yesterday should encourage the citizens of Duluth to act at once and begin an active campaign for prompt action. "Every Duluthian should get out and show the charter committee that we need and want this commission form of government," said Mr. Barnes. "Now that all obstacles have been removed, I am quite sure that the charter committee will take action. Although the voters of Duluth may be in favor of commission rule, it is up to them to prove it to the charter committee."

Thomas Olafson, member of the charter committee, before which the matter is now pending, did not care to say anything on the subject this morning. "My position will not allow me to talk," said Mr. Olafson, "but if Duluth wants commission government, it must get out and begin work at once. All obstacles have been removed by the state supreme court, which should encourage the voters of this city to take an active interest in the subject at once."

GLEANED ALONG THE POLICE RUN

When the police asked Flossie Doe for the address of the place she is keeping her child shortly before noon today she burst into tears.

The first thought that came into her mind was that the authorities would take the small boy away from her, perhaps send him to some institution, whence he would be placed with some strange family and lost to her forever.

"If I tell you I will never see him again," she sobbed. "I don't want to lose him. I am paying for his board at a good place and he is being well taken care of. And if I tell you he may find out what I am doing. It would break my heart. He thinks the world of me and the people who are taking care of him do not know where I get the money to pay for his upkeep and education."

Needless to state, Flossie Doe is not the woman's true name. She has another, and possibly one or two more. What they are doesn't count much. To publish them would shatter about the last hope of happiness she has left. Her story is like that of scores of other women. She found herself with a baby and without a husband to help her support herself or the child. Alone and desperate she forgot to think of herself and entered a resort. Last night she was taken from one of the dozen or more dotting St. Croix avenue.

The police suspected that she had been a party to a white slave transaction. The investigation which was made this morning, showed that while there was some ground for the suspicion it was not nearly sufficient to warrant prosecution. While being questioned the facts about the child were learned. They wanted to make sure that it was in proper surroundings. She finally gave them the address of the family with whim she had placed it. Her tears and real fear of separation showed that she was wrapped up in the boy, despite the life which she was leading.

The family which has the boy in custody is perfectly respectable and no attempt will be made to move him.

Speaking of the case afterwards one of the officers remarked that in a great many instances women who have fallen show absolutely no regard for their offspring. On the other hand, he said, that the public has no conception of the number of the unfortunate women who are using the money which they earn by selling their bodies to raise and educate children.

William Payatta, the man in the case, was also subjected to a sharp cross-examination. He was released, however, upon his promise to make himself scarce about the head of the lakes.

Drink was responsible for the death Thursday night of Emil J. Siewert of Milwaukee, who had shipped as a deckhand on the steamer Pathfinder, which was lying at the dock of the Zenith Furnace company at West Duluth.

Siewert and two other men from the boat had been uptown drinking Thursday night. When the saloons closed they made their way back to the boat. The trio walked abreast along the coal dock. Siewert was on the outside, following the edge next the water. Opposite the end of the boat he stumbled across a guy rope which he did not notice in his drunken condition. Toppling over he struck his head against the side of the vessel. The blow probably stunned him and he sank without a struggle.

The two men with him did not make a move to help him or summon assistance. They hurried on board the boat and went to their bunks. Siewert was missed the next morning and the story came out.

Had the dead man's companions been sober they might have been able to save him, or they could have roused other men on the boat and tried to rescue him before it was too late. But instead they stole away and left their companion to his fate without making an effort to as much as raise a finger to save his life.

The residence of Hyman London of 521 East Seventh street was damaged by fire to the extent of about $600 about 12:30 o'clock last night. The loss is covered by insurance. The blaze started under a range on the second floor. Mr. London was alone in the house, sleeping downstairs, and he made his escape without difficulty.

Frank Sullivan, who has been in police court a dozen times the last few months, looked rather different than usual when he stood up this morning to answer a charge of begging. A closer examination showed that he must have been caught in a very heavy wind since he made his last appearance. The whole of the stubby, red beard which hid the lower part of his face had been shorn, leaving him with only a mustache. He pleaded guilty to the charge against him and got $15 and costs or fifteen days. Frank tried to beg off, but he had put up the same story too often to get a hearing.

Arthur Moore, the young man who was up yesterday morning to answer to a charge of vagrancy, was given his liberty when he was brought into court in the afternoon. The court told him that if he did not quit toying with the dope he will soon be so far gone that little or no hope will be left for him. He said that he is going to work at the first opportunity.

Casper B. Brooks of the West end was brought into police court this morning to answer a charge of keeping a house of ill fame in that part of the city. He pleaded not guilty and his trial set for Monday afternoon. Bail was fixed at $150.

Brooks' wife, giving her name as Barbara Brooks, got $15 and costs or fifteen days in the county jail when she was adjudged guilty in police court yesterday afternoon of being drunk.

Peter Agneta and Ethel Lund, arrested yesterday afternoon on disorderly charges, were given suspended sentences after they had told their stories in police court this morning.

It was reported that Agneta had been hanging around the postoffice making remarks to women. It appeared that the young woman who made the complaint had been sent to talk to him by her sister, and that he had not spoken to her first. The police think that the sister had a mistaken notion of the situation.

Both Agneta and the girl cried when brought into the court room. They said that they are engaged to be married and were only waiting until Agneta got to work before having the ceremony performed. With the understanding that they would have the knot tied without loss of time they were given their liberty.

Perl McNeil was arraigned in police court yesterday afternoon on a charge of trespass. He pleaded not guilty and will be tried Wednesday morning. The complaint was sworn out by P. C. Galloway.

Morris Rachlin pleaded not guilty in police court yesterday afternoon when he was arraigned on a charge of assault preferred by his wife. He said that if any one had been assaulted it had been him. Rachlin declared that only a few days ago his wife had collected a pile of dishes and thrown them at him. "She hit me with every one of them," he asserted. His trial was set for Monday afternoon and he was released on his own recognizance.

The case against E. G. Rafferty, a sailor, was dismissed in police court yesterday afternoon. Last fall Le Roy Zigger swore out a warrant for him, charging him with having assaulted him on board the steamer Calumet while it was lying at a local dock. Rafferty heard about it when he returned this spring and giving himself up asked for a trial. The whereabouts of Zigger was unknown and as the other witnesses had disappeared, he was released.

The mystery surrounding the disappearance of Nicholas Simi thirteen years ago is as deep as ever. Nicholas, who was a blacksmith living with his family, walked downtown one night and dropped out of sight as completely as though swallowed up by the earth.

From time to time the police have heard rumors connecting two men, one now dead, with his murder. The reports said that he was buried between the two buildings at 334 and 336 Lake avenue south, underneath the sidewalk.

Recently these reports reached the ears of his family, who still live in Duluth. The daughter came to headquarters and asked for an investigation. She wished to ascertain definitely if the body had been disposed of in the manner given by the rumors.

In compliance with her request the chain gang, under the direction of the police, spaded up a large quantity of ground in the locality where it was claimed the murdered man had been hastily buried. But no skeleton or as much as a trace of a human bone was discovered.

Chief Troyer says that he remembers Simi's disappearance perfectly. It caused quite a sensation at the time, but the mystery was never solved. Nor was it brought any nearer solution by yesterday's examination of the ground said to contain Simi's remains. And it probably never will be.

TEDDY UP ON FREIGHT CAR

Climbs There When Platform at Marion, Ohio, Fails to Hold.

Tells People Taft Is Incapable of Understanding His Ideas.

Marion, Ohio, May 18.—Standing on top of a freight car at Marion, Col. Roosevelt attacked President Taft severely today.

When he reached Marion, Col. Roosevelt found several thousand person wedged into the open space near the railway station where he was to speak. The platform which had been erected for him collapsed shortly before he arrived, and Col. Roosevelt mounted the steps of a building beside the broken platform. Only a part of the crowd could see him, but nearby was a freight car. The colonel climbed up the iron supports on the side of the car. The crowd shouted.

"I couldn't stand on the platform," said the colonel from his perch, "because the platform broke down. It wasn't my platform. Mine won't break down."

"I notice that yesterday Mr. Taft attacked what I said about the tariff. What is proposed is perfectly feasible. Mr. Taft says he does not understand my proposition. I don't think he is capable of understanding it.

"Mr. Taft has forgotten the plain people who gave him office and to whom he is responsible. He is well meaning, but means well feebly.

"Mr. Taft has acted against the interest of the farmer and the wage earner.

"Mr. Taft has discovered now that I am dangerous to the people. Mr. Taft never discovered that I was dangerous to the people until I discovered that he was useless to the people."

Two passenger coaches remained on the further bank, the middle of the train only dropping. There were no fatalities.

WHAT DULUTH IS DOING---AN ANSWER TO THE KNOCKER.

The Herald hopes that every citizen of Duluth will read the review published tonight of the work that this city is doing in many lines to lay the foundations, broad and deep, of a city that shall be not only great but good; a city that is not only good to make money in, but good to live in; a city that is alert, aggressive, confident and progressive and that is constantly broadening its opportunities and its enterprises.

No resident of Duluth can read that review without experiencing a new feeling of pride and hope and confidence. No citizen can read it without asking himself what share he is having in these many splendid lines of work that are making for the Ultimate Duluth which is to be built out of the most splendid advantages nature ever gave a city. No unfortunate citizen who has fallen into the unhappy habit of picking flaws and criticizing and complaining can read it without wondering what under heaven he has been carping about.

The Herald has made this review for a purpose—a purpose that has been hinted at in editorial and other articles published lately.

The time has come to shift the emphasis in Duluth from criticism to optimism.

There was a time when, possibly, there were more things to criticize and pick flaws in than to boast about.

Now there are more things to brag about than there are to pick flaws in.

The city isn't perfect yet. There is much work yet to be done, but the big thing about the present situation is not that everything is done, but that practically everything is being done. Duluth is carving out its destiny with the master hand of bold enterprise, and fate can have but one answer to its demands.

Some of us have unconsciously fallen into the habit of laying too much emphasis on flaws and too little emphasis on beauties. It was well meant, of course; but it is a mistake. The cumulative effect of so much fault finding, so much insistent pointing at things needing correction, is discouragment. Many are likely to get the notion that if there are so many things that need correction, Duluth must be in a very bad way. It is certain that such an effect has been created.

Doubtless The Herald has been at fault in this way. It will be at fault in that way no more. Too much agitation of evils needing remedy is getting on people's nerves, and The Herald proposes to dwell in the future more on the good things about Duluth, and the good work that is being done, than on the bad things and on the work that needs to be done.

The adoption of a policy of optimism and boosting instead of a policy of pessimism and nagging, does not mean that anybody is to settle down with the assurance that everything is all right and that nobody need work any more. The biggest, the most optimistic, and the finest thing about Duluth is the work it is doing and that it is going to do. There are organized agencies to reach practically everything that needs attention, and these agencies are working steadily and energetically, with the support of a population of boosters.

Instead of confusing the popular mind and disturbing the work that is being done with constant criticisms and nagging suggestions, after surveying the splendid work that is being done, the substantial achievements already made and the rosy outlook for the future, let every Duluthian join in boosting Duluth as the best city in the world, the best city to live in, the best city to do business in.

No city in the country has done more in the last five years in a wide sphere of civic activity. No city today has surer prospects, or is working more energetically to realize them. Let's shift the emphasis from criticism to optimism, and let's all work and "boost."

All Together!

Now that the supreme court says we may, let's hop to it.

TO BE ENVIED OR PITIED?

William Vincent Astor, by the death of his father in the Titanic tragedy, falls heir to an estate of about a hundred million dollars.

In a few months he will be of age, and then he will come into control of this princely fortune.

Probably lots of people are envying this young man. A hundred million dollars would be rather a convenient thing to have—providing you made good use of it. If it turns out to be merely a temptation to idleness and dissipation, that young man would have been luckier if he had been born a bricklayer's son.

Poverty often seems a handicap, but it is no such handicap as an inheritance of a hundred million dollars.

Young Mr. Astor will be a very extraordinary young man if he amounts to anything with these millions to drag him down. He need not engage in any useful occupation. He need not learn anything more than he needs to fit him to be a "gentleman"—by which is meant a man who can idle gracefully, spend money freely, entertain liberally, and kill time as agreeably as it can be killed without work to make it interesting.

The young man of his age with an inheritance of poverty must hustle. His bread and butter and clothing and shelter must be won by hard work. In striving to get these things, he must engage in productive work that benefits society. If he has enterprise and ambition, he can excel in the line of work he chooses. He may invent new processes that will help humanity from now to the end of time. Fame, glory, contentment, even fortune—all are within his grasp if he cares to reach for them.

But young Mr. Astor, with his inheritance of a hundred millions, has his bread and butter and clothes all provided. Thousands have toiled and suffered and died before their time that he might have these things assured to him for life. He never will know the pleasure and contentment there are in successful achievement. He never will feel the thrill of joy that comes when human determination breaks down barriers, throws off handicaps, and scales the heights of ambitious effort.

William Vincent Astor is a very unfortunate young man.

Literally.

All well with the Elwell law.

THE LOGICAL CANDIDATE.

The Republican nomination is going to Roosevelt or Hughes. Democrats who have been figuring on an easy victory with Taft as the nominee will have to prepare themselves for a hard fight.

The way Roosevelt, with the organization and the odds against him, is sweeping the country, shows that he has a powerful hold on the affection and confidence of the people. If, Taft's defeat being inevitable, the Republicans should center on Hughes, the fight would be harder still because Hughes would get many Republican votes which Roosevelt will lose, and the independent vote would inevitably go to him unless the Democrats nominated a candidate who appealed to them.

Clark wouldn't appeal to this vote. Wilson would.

Collier's puts it correctly: "The rational course of the Democrats is to name the man who would take a large slice of the independent vote; would be backed by perhaps a majority of the great magazines and great independent dailies; would appeal to the young men; would take many thousands of the La Follette type of Republican radicals. Wilson has said of himself that he wishes to bring about radical changes by conservative means, and he described himself truly. Were it not for the bitter opposition of the machines, the money power, and William Randolph Hearst, Wilson would be nominated; and much more than any other Democrat, he would cause the Republicans to sit up nights and think."

There can be no gainsaying that reasoning. You can't get away from it.

The issue against Clark is greater than Clark himself. It is this: Can he appeal to the independent vote? Can he appeal to the disaffected Republican vote? Can he survive, in a presidential campaign, the blasting influence of the Hearst support? Can he live down the unfortunate utterances, scattered through his whole career, that will rise to dog his footsteps?

Clark won in Massachusetts, and Hearst's Boston paper is generally given the credit.

Wilson lost in New York, and Hearst's New York papers, Murphy of Tammany Hall, and the reactionary forces of New York Democracy did it.

Clark won in Illinois, and Hearst's Chicago newspapers, with their constant bitter, deadly, venomous abuse of Wilson, did it.

Clark won in California, and Hearst's newspapers in San Francisco and Los Angeles claim and cheerfully are given the credit.

Would the Democratic party be so foolish as to turn its organization over to a Hearst candidate?

Would the country, if the Democrats were so unwise, turn its affairs over to an administration supervised by Hearst and nominated and elected by Hearst?

Neither seems possible.

Certainly the Minnesota Democracy, which has set its hearts and its hopes on Wilson, will not submit to control by a Hearst-Clark-Murphy-O'Connor alliance, when it has the opportunity to cast its vote for a candidate like Woodrow Wilson.

Clark appeals to Democratic partisanship, and not even to all Democrats. Wilson appeals not only to Democrats, but to patriotism, to citizenship, to the independent vote, and to the young men. There ought to be no difficulty about making a choice between them.

They Have a Familiar Ring.

Extra session? Extra session? Seems somehow as though we had heard those words before.

THEY'RE ON US.

Not long ago, when meat prices were soaring—that's a little indefinite, because they seem to be soaring all the time, but we mean the latest soar—The Herald told how to beat the game with a back yard garden.

In so doing it used these words, evidently in a moment of abstraction: "But if you have twenty square feet, more or less, in your back yard, you can beat the game."

To which the Crookston Times, quoting the editorial in full, says: "The idea above suggested is an excellent one, but the editor of The Herald probably meant twenty feet square. A spade, rake and hoe would not be necessary for twenty square feet, as a good back comb would answer the purpose. However, most back yards have all the room necessary."

The joke on us is admitted. The next time the Crookston Times comes to Duluth it may have its choice between an ice cream soda and a cigar.

On the Face of the Returns.

Maybe "Bwana Tumbo" doesn't sound so much like "awful tumble" as some people thought it did.

A VICTORY FOR GOOD ROADS.

The decision of the state supreme court upholding the Elwell road law will mark the beginning of an important epoch in the development of Northern Minnesota.

Broad plans for a system of trunk highways, made to fit local needs as well as general needs and to provide outlets for local traffic, have been prepared by the Northern Minnesota Development association, and these will now be carried out. In fact it is likely that the vast public service these plans will provide when carried out had much to do with determining the supreme court's decision. For this work much credit is due C. M. King of Deer River, who as president of the Northern Minnesota Development association and as chairman of its good roads committee, has worked faithfully and intelligently upon it. The able work of Assistant Attorney General W. J. Stevenson, who handled the case for the state, should not be forgotten.

The Elwell law provides for co-operation between state, county, local subdivision and the owners of land benefited by road-building, and permits immediate results by its provision for ten-year instalments secured by bonds.

No more important road legislation has been enacted in many years than this, and it is a piece of great good fortune to the state, and especially to Northern Minnesota, that the supreme court has held it to be valid.

And Such a Light!

One great light shines through Governor Eberhart's belated call for an extra session of the legislature. Its center is the fact that he wouldn't call one to help the people get fair and just representation in the state government, nor to help them get justice against railroad oppression, nor to help them show whom they wanted for their president. But he will call one, regardless of expense, if he sees in it a chance to save his own political hide.

PUTTING THE PRESIDENT BEYOND REACH.

The Chicago Journal, enthusiastically falling into the chorus of praise of the proposed constitutional amendment fixing the presidential term at six years with no re-election, thinks that the Clayton amendment ought to be entitled "an amendment to restore the dignity of the presidential office, and to permit presidents to attend to public business."

It would be better to entitle it "an amendment to put the president beyond the reach of the popular will." That would illustrate its effect more accurately.

Everybody wants the president to be dignified, and everybody wants the president to attend to public business.

But public needs and the people's will ought not to be sacrificed to dignity. The country doesn't want a president so dignified and aloof that he cannot hear the people's cry of need; and that's the kind of a president the Clayton resolution would make possible.

And some president is going to find out that the best way to manage a campaign for re-election is to attend strictly to the public business and to keep on doing things for the people.

The melancholy failure of President Taft's attempt to substitute a personal campaign before the people for real accomplishments for the people is going to make it very unlikely that any other president will make the same mistake.

The four-year term, with the privilege of re-election if re-election is deserved, keeps the president responsive to the public will.

The six-year term with no re-election would make the president utterly unresponsive to the public will.

Absurd!

Missouri reports a folding-bed victim. What? A state as backward as that produce a nominee for the presidency?

A CHAMPION OF THE DANDELION.

The Toledo Blade has taken up the cudgels for the dandelion. It says:

"Today, the dandelion is given a show. Its warm spring prophecy is welcomed. No longer do you behold angry householders kicking viciously at the golden rosettes beside the front walk. There is an appreciation of the dandelion's taste in grouping, its skill in breaking the monotony of green, its true decorativeness.

"There is still no inclination to harbor and encourage the plant at seeding time, when it feathers forth on a pipestem and sends out carriers loaded each with an energetic colonist. But a change of heart may come toward this phase of the dandelion's life also. It, too, may overcome prejudice. For the sense of beauty is growing quite as vigorously as the dandelion itself grows."

That's all very well, and the Blade says it prettily. But we doubt if any growth of the sense of beauty will develop many defenders of the dandelion.

There is a brief period in spring when the dandelion, smiling on the lawn, awakens pleasant thoughts and brings a response in cordial friendship. Its yellow blossom is the first harbinger of the wave of bloom to follow later, and it does, indeed, break pleasantly the "monotony of green," if there can be such a thing. A few dandelions, say two or three to the square yard, would actually embellish a lawn.

But the dandelion family is not content with such a slender showing. It is hoggish, and must have it all. It spreads its saw-toothed leaves thickly over the soil, choking out the grass. It sends its roots deeply and far. A lawn in which the dandelion is given its will presently becomes an ugly stretch of ground full of unsightly holes, bare places and clumps of dandelion leaves hardly more sightly.

You may admire the dandelion for many things. It has a cunning way of spreading its seeds—attaching them to winged barbs which fly in the wind. It accommodates itself to conditions. If you clip your lawn the dandelion adopts a low habit and keeps its blossoms down where the lawnmower can't reach them. It can stand more cruelty than almost any other plant. You can pull it up, and it will grow up again from the root—unless you have cut it deeply enough. It is full of crass virility, and reproduces itself more persistantly and copiously than almost any other plant.

You may admire it for its hardiness, its enterprise and its indomitable persistence. But, except a few days in early spring, it is nothing but a pest. It will find no friendship in the "growing sense of beauty," which God speed; for a sense of beauty recoils from the ravages made by this enemy of good lawns, and revolts at the monotony of yellow bloom and jagged leaves and hoary seed-heads which it will create if it is given its way.

Armour & Co. have been indicted on a charge of shipping meat without its being inspected by government agents. Is it possible? And we have just been hearing how alive that meat inspection outfit has been to the public's welfare.

THE OPEN COURT

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest, but discussions of sectarian religious differences are barred. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

"THE WAGES OF SIN."

To the Editor of The Herald:

Elbert Hubbard once said, as nearly as I can remember, something which ran like this: "Promiscuity leads to dissolution, disease, death and the grave."

None may violate the perfect laws of nature and escape the penalty. Nature abhors excess, and vengeance again for another countless time was meted out a few days ago, the victim this time being a young woman. She had come to the city, sophisticated far beyond her years, spoiled almost beyond uplift, with a flame for finery and indulgence burning within which only collapse or death might quench; and she found, as young, attractive women ever will find, the social wolves ready to feast upon her weakness.

It is not my purpose to severely censure the men; it is not my aim to pity the woman. Each was guilty, one with the other; yet of those men who were married, surely the blister of conscience must be stinging!

She was a sexual pervert and having no legitimate outlet easily found assuagement in such relations as socially, at least, are not recognized. Had she known, that nature, last of all, must not be trifled with, she would doubtless have lived a life more restrained, though perhaps not wholly within the pale of morality. Nature penalizes only for promiscuity and ignorance, society for discovery.

The story of this girl is as old as the sexes. It will repeat itself again and again, if not here, then elsewhere.

It was perhaps just as well to give it publicity. Let the guilty ones who read quake; let the innocent of the affair take warning.

Surely none who read of the girl's fate but must pause and consider that the "white way" of the night surely must lead to the "blind" alley of oblivion, or what may be worse, a period of painful, miserable dissolution. "The wages of sin is death!" It was a cry of warning then; it is a blast of warning now. It is not necessary to interpret religiously. The cry was uttered by one who, having sinned against nature by violating her laws, discovered that, if it is no more, the wages of sin is death to morals, mind and body at the least.

I should have liked to be more frank but I feared you might think me over bold. Perhaps I have been that already.

Yours very sincerely,
Duluth, May 17. H.

CARRYING PACKAGES ON STREET CARS.

To the Editor of The Herald:

In the papers a few days ago appeared an article to the effect that the Duluth Street Railway company would enforce a new ruling prohibiting passengers from carrying parcels, packages and similar articles to their homes on the street cars.

We sincerely hope that this rule will not be enforced as the now friendly relations which exist between the street car men and the Duluth public will be seriously strained should the street car men be compelled to quarrel with the passengers which would surely result from the enforcement of this rule.

Recently the street car men began to agitate for more wages and humane working hours and a sanitary waiting room. Nothing as yet has been granted by the officials.

An increase of five cents per hour in wages for this class of men in your city is equal to the advent of some new industry.

Yours for a Greater Duluth.
STREET CAR MEN'S COMMITTEE.

Shadows on the Shore.

The doubtful dawn came dim and wan,
And dimmer grew the day;
The kildee whistled among the weeds,
The blue crane clanged in the river reeds,
And a mist fell wild and gray.

At dawn she stood, her heavy hood
Flung back, in the ferryboat,
To watch the rebel raiders ride,
Her rebel love with his men beside,
His kiss on her mouth and throat.

Like some wild spell the tempest fell,
Like some dark curse night came;
For hours she heard the warring dead
Whose batteries opened overhead
With thunder and with flame.

And now again in the wind and rain
She toiled at the creaking oar.
Oh, what had she heard in the night and storm?
Whose voice was that, and whose the form
That galloped to the shore?

Across the stream, in the tempest's gleam,
Who sent that wild halloo?
In the lightning's glare, who was it
The wind and rain in his tossing hair,
And his gray cloak torn in two?

Through rain and blast oar fast! oar fast!
Row down the rushing tide!
Look where he rides in the lightning's glow!
And hearken now to his far halloo!
But only a horse, with head hung low,
A blur of blood on the saddlebow,
Comes nickering to her side.
—Madison Cawein in Harper's Weekly.

Making School Worth While.

Saturday Evening Post: Five thousand school children in Oregon already grow all the popcorn and melons they can consume and something of a surplus to sell, which brings them pocket-money. Through efforts of the state bankers' association, the state fair board, the agricultural college and the public schools, 75,000 pupils are going into an agricultural and industrial competition this year. They will raise melons, vegetables, grain, pigs and poultry; do carpentry, sewing and cooking. A great many prizes have been provided, and there will be a great exhibition of the products.

More and more—and very properly—we debar school children from stunting, uneducative work that merely saps them. More and more we must give them real educative work to do. This would be worth while if only for the sake of relieving school from its dreadful numbing monotony; but it is worth while on higher grounds. There is infinitely more true education in raising a melon or making a pie than in learning by rote that "a verb that makes an assertion by coupling an attribute complement to the subject is called a copula." The melon and the pie justify themselves and satisfy the mind. The reason for every step taken is apparent in the product. Life certainly has far more to do with melons and pies than with copulas.

An Able Financier.

Kansas City Star: A Leavenworth business man found a forgotten coal stove in his basement. He called a junk dealer and asked him "How much?" The junk man offered $1.50, and the owner straightway wanted $2, chiefly for fun. They haggled awhile, and the second-hand dealer departed stoveless. "He'll be back," said the merchant.

In a half hour the junk man returned and offered $1.75, which was refused. Then a bright idea struck the junk artist. He brought out $1.50, and jingling the coins temptingly, said:

"Tell you vat I do. I gif you $2 for de stof, and charge you feefty cents to haul him avay."

Patched Up.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch: She (tearfully)—Henry, our engagement is at an end, and I wish to return to you everything you have ever given me.

He (cheerily)—Thanks, Blanche! You may begin at once with the kisses!

They are married now.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

A Good Profession.

St. Paul Dispatch: Dean Woods says there are three good jobs for every expert turned out at the state school of agriculture, which cannot be said of the departments of medicine or law. That kind of argument is one of the most convincing that can be offered in favor of scientific methods in agriculture.

The Country is safe.

Hibbing Tribune: Don't worry over the political situation. All of the candidates are pledged to save the country.

Quickly.

Little Falls Transcript: The state food commissioner has issued bulletins in three languages warning dealers against handling bad eggs. No language has yet been known that can put one really wise to a rotten egg. Only intimate association can do this.

Political—By All Means.

Northfield News: According to the Long Prairie Leader this is the year for smashing machines and it is of the opinion that Minnesota's turn comes next.—Political or automobile?

Campaign Thunder.

Fairmount Sentinel: The president and ex-president have supplied the Democrats with enough campaign material to win a dozen elections.

Some Needed Reforms.

Anoka Union: Lower state taxes, limited appropriations, less office holders, more economical administration is what the people of the state of Minnesota should demand and should exercise care in selecting members of the legislature who will pledge themselves to carry out these demands.

Why Allow Them?

Fairmount Sentinel: If the corporations insist upon naming both candidates for president there are a lot of good Democrats who will either go fishing on election day or vote the Socialist ticket as a protest.

Credit Freely Given.

Thief River Falls Times: The influx of settlers into this particular section of Minnesota continues to remind one of the rush to the California gold fields in 1849, except in that the present rush is not a mushroom boom. The N. M. D. A. can justly take the credit.

THE FLOWER GARDEN.

Woman's National Weekly: The gladiolus bulbs should be planted soon.

One of the most satisfactory plants you can have is sweet alyssum.

Blooming plants need more water and sunshine than before the bloom appears.

Young fuchsia slips, petunias, coleus and oleander root finely in a jar of water.

Pansy seed should be covered very lightly and shaded a little from the hot sun and drying winds.

The double daisy can harly be excelled as an edging plant in summer or a pot plant in winter.

Examine the plants every few days for insects and pests and destroy them as quickly as discovered.

Dahlias are as easily grown from seeds as sunflowers and the seedlings begin to bloom in midsummer and continue until frost.

The early spring is the best time to transplant roses. Pot grown roses may be set out at any time during spring and early summer.

By slitting you can find the "worms" which enter the stalks of Zinnia and some other plants, and after they are found they can be destroyed.

The various peppers are quite desirable for a summer hedge as the pods assume various shapes and colors and are valuable in cooking and on the table.

The roses which are seriously troubled with mildew should be discarded and replaced with healthier ones, although a mixture of lime and sulphur applied to the foliage with a drip bag is recommended as a good remedy.

Fresh manure is not the best of fertilizer for the garden.

Don't let your flower garden run all to beds or all to walks, and vary the shapes of both.

The larkspurs are a very pretty garden flower, being rich in color, delicate and very showy.

A charming little flower is the forget-me-not, being fragrant, graceful and exquisite in color.

The presence of the song birds in the flower garden should be encouraged as they are great destroyers of insects.

The coziness and coolness of the front porch is greatly enhanced by a trailing or clinging vine of some sort. There are many kinds from which to make a selection.

Verbenas are desirable for beds and are easily raised from seeds. The seedling plants bgin to bloom in a few weeks and keep up the display until late in the autumn.

The "African mignotte" is a recent importation from South America, the plant of which grows eighteen inches high and produces numerous spikes of curiously formed flowers.

Much valuable information as well as pleasure can be derived from a study of the seed catalogues of reliable houses, even after the flowers have begun to grow. Save your catalogues.

A beautiful annual is the nemesia hybrid, being both showy in the garden and excellent as pot plants. The plants grow a foot high and bloom very profusely throughout the season.

The morning glory still occupies a popular place as a quick growing and beautiful vine for either foliage or flowers. It is easily grown and very ornamental, especially during the early morning hours.

The latter part of next month should find many blossoms in the flower garden and from then until the beginning of rigorous winter it will be a constant source of pleasure and delight if it gets the proper attention.

The Secret of Roosevelt's Success.

Atlantic: History will not repeat the charge of Mr. Roosevelt's enemies that his preaching was insincere. No missionary ever believed his dogma more absolutely. But the non-partisan cannot maintain that his service was without thought of self. A modern psychologist tells us that genius is but the channel through which huge natural forces run. He that lets the winds of heaven blow through him is doing heaven's work in the world. Not so with Mr. Roosevelt. He is no simple mouthpiece of some world's desire. With him cause and personal advantage are blended into something one and indivisible. To him truth is not truth more naturally than he is truth's exponent. Those who know Mr. Roosevelt can scarcely doubt that his perfect identification of his own triumph with the triumph of his cause is the great secret of his self confidence and of his success. Into the world of practical affairs he has introduced a force not unlike the wonderful power of men who have felt themselves partners of God; but into the spirit world, itself, Mr. Roosevelt has never penetrated. For him the moral world, and the world of successful men, sum up the universe.

The Guggaboo.

You cannot conceive how the guggaboo works,
Through the long dreary hours of the night,
Sitting all scrooged up in his dark, dark cave
By lugubrious candle-light.

How he screws up his brow in an intricate knot
And in agony pulls his thin hair,
Trying all of the time in a wabbly way,
To discover the "how, when and where."

The "how, when and where" of the "what?" you will ask,
"And what did the guggaboo find?"
Why I'm sure I don't know, for I never inquired
The contents of the guggaboo's mind.
—Raldo R. Johnson.

SATURDAY NIGHT TALK

If Dreams Came True!

One of the most beautiful of the Old Testament stories tells how the Lord appeared to youthful King Solomon in a dream asking what gift he most desired. It was a notable test and right nobly the young monarch met it. Turning away from riches, fame, pleasure of other forms of material good, Solomon chose an understanding heart. In the presence of his great responsibilities he wanted the gift of wisdom.

The fulfillment was as generous as the promise. "Behold, I have done according to thy words." The gift of wisdom came upon Solomon abundantly. He became the wisest of the children of the East. To this day his name is a synonym for the power of clear discernment.

Do you realize that we all go through about the same program in our own lives? There were three parts to Solomon's experience; an offer, a choice, the bestowal of the gift desired. And if plain John Smith will examine his career he is likely to find these three phases measurably duplicated.

Life says to everyone who takes it at all seriously, "Ask what I shall give thee." Here are certain treasures offered—take your pick. Different possibilities lie before you, various careers are open, there are many lines of work or study in which you may engage. What do you want of life? What do you desire it to give you?

A rich man was once solicited by a friend to contribute toward a certain charity. The applicant received back a blank check signed and dated with the words on a slip of paper, "Fill it in for what you want from me." In some large and general way it seems to me that life makes an offer like that to us all. What do you demand of your earthly experience? What seems to you the supreme good?

Solomon had to make a choice and everyone has to. Out of the gifts that life has to offer we are each practically forced to a selection. The bent of a personality may sometimes be seen quite early. Aims and ambitions are often apparent long before school days are over. The lad "plays store," sails boats on the pond, reads solid books, and we say, here is a coming merchant, or a sea captain, or a scholar. This girl we say, will be a musician or an artist or a home-maker. No hours are more fraught with destiny than those in which purposes and ideals are taking shape. For good or ill human souls are choosing every day.

In our lives, too, like that of Solomon, the gift chosen is the gift received. After discounting all apparent exceptions to the rule I am strongly inclined to believe that life plays fair with the sons of men. There is a general appropriateness in the gifts that are bestowed upon us. Think it over, gentle reader. The one who for a lifetime through makes money his thought by day and his dream by night generally secures a comfortable balance in the bank. Cleaving to learning one is at length numbered with the scholars. He who strives through all the years for health or fun or fame generally gets his wish.

If dreams came true! The nub of the matter is that dreams generally do come true. A dream is nothing but a picture of your thought life. As Montaigne says, "I believe it to be true that dreams are the true interpreters of our inclinations." In this glass you may behold the reflection of your ideals, your aims and your longings. Gaze here upon the mental picture that you are all the time making actual.

Make the dream then, whether it be of the night or of hours of day-time musing, high enough. Let it take into account the nobler powers of your spirit. Propose to yourself a career that isn't going to cramp and smother the soul at the last. Remember you may be lord of that inner empire that rules all else, for, "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he."

THE PARSON.

Parcels Post a Bother.

Life: A recent newspaper report stated that one of the express companies made a profit of more than $60,000 in one month from packages that, through error, had been paid for at both ends.

Almost everybody has experienced the chagrin of prepaying express charges on a package, only to learn that these charges were collected at the destination. Probably only about one person in ten has taken the trouble to get the money back from the express company. The wonder is that only $60,000 profit is collected in one month.

The first expressman who discovered that he could collect at both ends without being thrown into jail (or even receiving a protest from the shipper) ought to be put on the same plane with the man who first ate an oyster. He is one of the unrecorded heroes of history.

It seems a pity that the parcels post idea, with its blatant economy, should obtrude itself upon our express companies and, possibly, interfere with this great work. To pay three times as much for transporting a package as it is worth, and then to have this same amount collected from the trusting friend at the other end to whom you have consigned your gift—all this is the highest kind of art. Why should it be interfered with?

Mr. Hitchcock is right. He says it will take some time to demonstrate a parcels post, probably feeling that if the matter is allowed to rest we will soon forget all about it, and thus the express companies will be enabled to continue upon their highly artistic careers.

Republican Consolation.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: The Tribune, New York's leading Republican organ, takes pleasure in criticising the World and the Evening Post—which it classifies as "Democratic newspapers"—for their opposition to the Champ Clark candidacy. These two newspapers have urged that Mr. Clark is wholly unfit for the presidency, and that his surprising strength is due to the general lack of understanding of his caliber.

With this text the Tribune goes at some length into the antecedents of Mr. Clark, extolling his achievements, and declaring that the people know him far better than they know Harmon, Wilson, Underwood or Marshall. The conclusion is that he would be a stronger candidate than any of the others in the field.

Were it not for the Tribune's well known partisan bias the exposition might carry weight. As it is, it is interesting merely as an interlude in this newspaper's daily editorial anguish over the Republican chaos. With Republicanism in the throes of dissolution, as the Tribune views it, it is not unnatural to grasp at straws. The possible nomination of Mr. Clark looms as a faint hope on the June horizon.

Surprise for Greeley.

Lippincott's: In his younger days, while filling the humble position of printer's "devil," Horace Greeley was sedulously courting the minister's daughter. Her father did not look with favor on the young man's attentions.

One day, however, the good man was unwontedly gracious and invited the future editor to come to church the next Sabbath, as he felt sure the sermon would be of special interest to him. Sunday morning found young Horace dressed in his best, seated in the pew beside the fair object of his devotion. Sermon time came, and his dismay may be imagined when the minister, looking straight at him, impressively announced as his text, "Lo, my daughter is being grievously tormented by a Devil."

An Ordeal.

Judge: "Bach" Smith had been invited in to look at the new-born babe of friend Jones, and having forgotten the sex of the infant prodigy, here was his masterpiece of an opinion:

"Well, well, but he's a fine little fellow, isn't she? How old is it now? Do her teeth bother him much? I hope he gets through its second summer all right. She looks like you, doesn't he? Every one says it does." And then fled precipitately.

THE ASPERITY OF IT

By SAVOYARD.

What is there in this politics that makes men hate one another so? It has been so from the beginning. History furnishes innumerable examples of it. Spain cut off the heads of Egmont and Horn. In politics they were not in accord with the court at Madrid. Alva was the satrap who perpetrated both political murders. He had applauded the heroism of those two nobles when, under his command, they had contributed so gloriously to the victory Spain gained over the chivalry of France at St. Quentin. And now there was come a day when the Netherlands were in something like revolt, and although Egmont and Horn protested their loyalty and had committed no treason, the court of Spain brought them to the block and Alva commanded at their execution. He stood for all that was ruthless in war, all that was intolerent in politics. His heart bled for these two young men. He shed tears of sincerest sorrow; but he cut off their heads all the same. And all because of different views of the political situation.

Then there was Jan Van Olden of Barnevelt. He was a patriot, a statesman and a sage. He and Maurice of Nassau, son of William the Silent, greatest soldier the Dutch have given to war, came to disagree about politics. The struggle was long and bitter, but in the end the man of the field cut off the head of the man of the closet, and that other hero of the House of Orange, William III of England, was just as ruthless against far better men than he when in a political controversy he devoted to the slaughter the De Witts.

Of course we have become too civilized for the minor murder of political adversaries; but the hatred remains and faction is virulent. Nor is it confined to either party. We see and hear more of it on the Republican side of the hedge, but there is a-plenty of it in the Democratic camp. There is no longer any emulation in either party. All is faction, dissension, cabal. It was bad enough when the party abandoned Grover Cleveland in 1893 and left him to save the public credit with little Democratic aid; but that was mild, indeed, compared with the virulence that is now abroad in the Democratic camp.

The "interests," that have no politics, are trying to run both parties, and so far they have succeeded in astonishing degree. Wilson is the only man they fear. He is the one man predatory wealth is bent on defeating. Mr. Wilson was in Maryland a few days ago and made a speech that challenges the serious deliberation of every American. It was a lofty thought, a plea for equal rights to all and special privilege to none. It was such a speech as no other candidate for president of either party could make; but it did not change a vote. Faction was rampant and the machine in charge.

Unless they choose a dark horse it is impossible to conjecture how the Republicans are going to avoid a split that must inevitably result in two tickets. And venturesome as may be the suggestion, even that might not make certain the election of the ticket nominated at Baltimore. Quite likely the house of representatives would be required to determine the result, as was the case when John Q. Adams was chosen in 1824-5. At this time the house is equally divided—voting by states—and if the next president is to be chosen by that body, as provided by article XII of the Constitution, there will be room for a situation the most complicated in our history. The Insurgent Republicans would have the balance of power. Would they vote for anybody the Democrats will name against Roosevelt? It is almighty doubtful.

Roosevelt was made for faction. He delights in it, revels in political turbulence. He has astonished everybody except himself. Last February he was a thoroughly discredited man and his political future to all ordinary seeming hopeless. In May he appears to have regained the mastery of his party. In Massachusetts he got more Democratic votes in the primary than both the Democratic candidates. If we are to judge from the primary he would carry Illinois in November even if these were two Republican tickets. On the west side of the Mississippi he would be invincible in the rotten borough intermountain states. He would be a dangerous man in Tennessee and in North Carolina if any confidence is to be put in reports from those two Southern states. Kansas is on her head to vote for him, and so are California, Oregon and Washington. He would sweep New Mexico and Arizona and Oklahoma would fall into his net as now appears.

Taft is an infinitely better man than Roosevelt. He is thoroughly honest and absolutely sincere. He is the best friend of the South the Republican party ever made president. Unfortunately, he is no politician, while Roosevelt is the most consummate political manager of his time. Taft is no judge of men; Roosevelt is never deceived in his instruments and makes them fetch and carry for him from sun to sun. While Taft is a far better man than Roosevelt, the ex-president is a much greater man than his successor.

Roosevelt deliberately chose Taft to be president and he employed steam roller methods as no other man ever had before. Roosevelt knew Taft then as well as he knows him now. Is it not possible that he deliberately selected as his successor a political blunderer in order to bring about the present situation? Roosevelt knows all about the tariff, and his real views on the subject are little if any different from those held by the late John G. Carlisle; but though seven years president he never said a word about the tariff that was made by the manufacturers for the manufacturers. Taft knew nothing about the tariff, but he sought to reform it. He made a great mistake and chose for the work men who made it more oppressive and more odious than it was before. As for reforming the tariff, Roosevelt could have accomplished it and would not. Taft would have corrected the thing but could not.

But Taft is wiser now, and if he shall be re-elected president he will do his utmost to give us the most decent tariff that ever came from the Republican party. On the contrary, if Roosevelt shall be the next president he will let the tariff severely alone as he did before. No man better than he knows where the "fat" comes from that buys elections for "the Party of Great Moral Ideas." He is a practical man. He says so himself. He told Harriman that is what he is, and he knows that you can't run a campaign without "fat."

And on the Democratic side of the hedge "fat" is mighty. Where does it come from? We know whence the little dab Woodrow Wilson has did not come. Wilson could have had a barrel. He has not had a gallon.

"I saw a want ad the other day that I intended to answer, but was prevented. Perhaps it may appear again today." Such a remark helps to explain why some ads ought to have more than one publication.

WILL LEVINGTON COMFORT,
Author of "Fate Knocks at the Door."

THE IMPORTANT TIMBER TREES OF THE UNITED STATES. A Manual of Practical Forestry. By Simon B. Elliott, member of the Pennsylvania Forestry Reservation commission and associate member of the Society of American Foresters. Boston: Houghton Mifflin company. $2.50 net.

This is an authoritative, practical and exhaustive handbook of everyday forestry for the use of farmers and land owners as well as of foresters, students of forestry and lumbermen. The author has been a life-long student of the subject, and has made a thorough study of forestry problems both in this country and Europe, but fortunately he has managed to keep his book free from technicality and confusing details. The work is helpfully arranged, clearly written and fully illustrated from photographs. The topics treated included such as these: Where and What to Plant; When to Harvest; The Woodlot; Life History of a Tree; Present Condition of the Forests; Restoration and Treatment of Forests; Difficulties in Reforestation; Will Planting Trees Ever Become Profitable?; etc. The second part takes up all the principal trees of North America individually, and an appendix contains much useful miscellaneous information.

FREIGHT CLASSIFICATION. By J. F. Strombeck. Boston: Houghton, Mifflin company. $1 net.

This work is a study of underlying principles of the classification of articles for the purposes of freight transportation. Each article of commerce is arranged into a classification by means of which the rate of freight is determined. In preparing this essay it has been the aim of the writer to treat the subject in a scientific way, showing how the economic laws apply to classification of freight, and at the same time use terms and illustrations that can be understood and appreciated by a layman. If the reader should at times feel a lack of definiteness, he must remember that freight rates have not as yet been reduced to an exact science, and no general and positive rules can be made. Each and every case must be considered by itself and the rate fixed after a weighing of all factors involved. The difficulties confronting the spreading of the revenue requirements of the carriers over the traffic carried through the medium of the classification are carefully set forth. The freight classifications are very important documents and all shippers should understand the methods used in fixing the classification and through it, the freight charges. The work is clear, careful and informing.

GEN. JOSEPH WHEELER and the Army of Tennessee. By John Witherspoon DuBose, author of "The Life and Times of Yancey." New York: The Neale Publishing company. $3 net.

As a prelude to an interesting biographical and historical work we got some very entertaining discussion of the Confederate war. The author evidently is more or less "unreconstructed." We learn from him that in the beginning of the war the North sympathized with the "rebellious." We learn, too, that among the causes for the failure of the Confederacy were the facts that Secretary of the Treasury Memminger and Secretary of War Seddon were Union sympathizers whose acts were not in it, and who could not, therefore, do the work they should have done. There are many other evidences that the author is one of those ardent admirers of the Lost Cause whom it is a pleasure to indulge if it gives them pleasure to imagine that the war is not over.

After Mr. DuBose has got his Secessionism out of his system he writes a very readable account of fiery Joe Wheeler and the operations of the Army of Tennessee.

THE WAR OF THE SIXTIES. Being Echoes From Both Sides. Compiled by Capt. E. R. Hutchins. New York: The Neale Publishing company. $3 net.

Captain Hutchins has gathered into this large volume upwards of a hundred reminiscences by soldiers and sailors of the Union and Confederate armies and navies. The spirit of the book is that of an assemblage of men, once enemies, now friends, gathered around a camp fire, vying with each other as to which can tell the best story. Real incidents of the war are told with zest, and anecdotes, history, humor, pathos, love, courage, sacrifices are commingled in these records of hard fighting, daring captures, hairbreadth escapes, wounds, hospitals, ambulances, camp fires, sentinels, countersigns—all the varied properties of war time. It makes a very human and very interesting volume.

FATE KNOCKS AT THE DOOR. By Will Levington Comfort. Philadelphia: J. B. Lippincott company. $1.25 net.

When Will Levington Comfort wrote "Routledge Rides Alone," he stood on the plains of modern fiction, though he towered above many who stood there with him. When "She Builded Her House" appeared, those who had been charmed by his former book found a different author. It was the product of a mind that had soared to greater heights; a mind that had forsaken the plains for the airy elevations of idealism. "Fate Knocks at the Door," Mr. Comfort's third book, shows that he is still mounting, and that the plains and the great bulk of the fiction-reading public are not for him. He is above the clouds, far above those who look only to the plains for the literature that whiles away a leisure hour, with even a little food for thought to temper the bald plot of the story.

From Mr. Comfort's viewpoint, he may have been right in leaving the plains of fiction for the heights of esoteric intellectuality, but one regrets the loss from the crowd of a really good writer, who could have appealed to the many, but chose the few. "Routledge Rides Alone" is intensely intellectual, but not oppressively so. From the viewpoint of the ordinary fiction reader, the two books that followed are not for him, but only for those in the charmed circle of comprehension.

There is a question as to how far a writer may go successfully in the embellishment of fiction. Many great lessons have been taught through the medium of the story. Many great movements have been given impetus by the messages conveyed by writers of fiction. The fiction-reading public is not ready to accept too much at one sitting, however. When the spiritual life, Hindu mysticism, new views of Christianity, woman's rights and potentialities, music and painting are all given space between the covers of one book dealing more with character sketches than with a story, many to whom writers look for their clientele will turn aside. Mr. Comfort may not write to sell, but if he would write to reach all, or a majority, his power would be greater.

Leaving that aside, "Fate Knocks at the Door" is a really great book, and it will appeal as such to all who are ready to receive its message. It exhibits a breadth of mind, a depth of intellectuality, a keenness of perception that stamp the author as a power in modern literature.

Andrew Bedient, with whose spiritual development the book deals, is an unique character in fiction. A waif thrown on the world by the untimely death of a mother whom he barely remembers, he is first met as a cook on a wreck in the China sea. Through the Philippines and India, he is followed to the West Indies, where he comes into fortune through the strange manner-man love of a retired sea captain.

With the Bible as his guiding star, Andrew Bedient has acquired a Christian philosophy that places woman in a new sphere—a sphere in which she is likened to the Motherhood of the Holy Spirit in the Trinity. "Only through the potential greatness of woman can come the militant greatness of man," is one assertion of his creed. He believes there is one woman for him, but when he meets her in New York, and she, misunderstanding, bids him go, he has a new awakening. He is beyond any one woman. He is of all woman, and his message is for the race of women.

Mr. Comfort's people are people who think, wonderful people in intellect and action. Their thoughts are above the sordidness of the world, beyond the dollar-mad chase of the multitude and the common aspirations and activities of the unthinking. They are the people of the idealist. They are not of life, but of what the author would have life be. They have a wonderful message, but few are ready for its application.

"Fate Knocks at the Door" is not for the hour in the hammock during the summer season. It stands out in the flood of fiction. It is for the student of life—the dreamer of dreams. Mr. Comfort may expect to sustain a certain popularity, but his arrival will come slowly. His circle of readers is limited.

THE MAINSPRING. By Charles Agnew Maclean. Boston: Little, Brown & Co. $1.25 net.

Wall Street stories are numerous, but the financial deal as a subject for fiction cannot be overdone if the stories are good. A big financial deal, over in fiction, is an interesting subject to the American people and the fiction-writer who can cook up a big deal and put it through can get a hearing—or a reading.

In Maclean's story, young Ashmore, a financial reporter, is mistaken for the son of Jessup Craven, a millionaire financier, and gets into the home of the financier who is near death. The real son has been kidnapped by Craven's enemies and Ashmore, who resembles the son somewhat, is induced to impersonate him in order that the Craven millions may be available for impending financial struggle. The manner in which he carries the part and his victory over the same men who had ruined his father years before, make the story. There is a love thread in the plot also, but the writer doesn't follow it out. One doesn't know whether Ashmore wins the girl, but is left to surmise that he will.

The plot is not unusual, but it is original enough to be interesting and is worked out with a master hand.

THE MARRIAGE OF CAPT. KETTLE. By C. J. Cutliffe Hyne. Indianapolis: The Bobbs-Merrill company. $1.25 net.

Here we meet the amazingly efficient little captain in his youth and when his marvelous powers of mastery over men are just developing. It is as first mate, sailing with a weak, drunken captain and a mad chief engineer in the Norman Towers, that he appears on the scene, and the business of the author is to provide him with difficulties almost insurmountable, and then to have him surmount them with ease. Little, spruce, brisk, efficient, determined and resourceful, making up in fiery courage and masterfulness for lack of avoirdupois. Kettle is a striking and likeable figure in fiction, and Mr. Cutliffe Hyne has woven a rattling good story about him. An incidental element is his romance, in which two sweethearts figure; but adventure, excitement and stirring incidents all but obscure the comedy possibilities of this situation. Kettle's singlehanded foray into Africa against thousands of Moors and Berbers is a classic of adventure.

HER WORD OF HONOR. By Edith Macvane. Boston: Little, Brown & Co. $1.25 net.

A delightful story in which love and comedy are interwoven in just the right proportions. The author takes great liberties with the probabilities as an author has a perfect right to do in telling an entertaining story. The heroine is a French girl who leaves the home of her aunt in England because she interferes with the matrimonial prospects of six less attractive cousins. She starts for America to find an old sweetheart of her father. On the ship, her enthusiasm wanes, but she determines to go ahead. She meets a social climber, who induces her to enter into an agreement to marry the climber's son. The son happens to be enamoured of a chorus girl.

Developments come after Lili's arrival in America, when she finds a most attractive young man, whom she would rather marry than the loutish son of her steamer friend. On the eve of the wedding after all means of having the engagement broken had been exhausted and Lili has determined to keep her word at any cost, Victor, the son, meets his chorus girl, defies his mother and leaves Lili free to marry the man of her choice.

The complications draw frequent smiles from the reader, but the real love story is never lost and sympathetic interest is maintained.

THE UNDER TRAIL. By Anna Alice Chapin, author of "The Nowadays Fairy Book," etc. Boston: Little, Brown & Co. $1.25 net.

A tensely interesting tale of the Virginia mountains and mountaineers. Derry Blake, an elemental man of power and magnetism, shoots a mountaineer in a row over a mountain girl, Kitty Turley. Juliet Gray, a trained nurse engaged by a family which is sumering in the mountains, volunteers to nurse the injured man. The virile manhood of Derry Blake stirs her soul, and she becomes his partisan, helping him to escape and snatching his victim out of the jaws of death so that the charge against him will not be murder. The jealousy of Kitty Turley, a wild, elemental mountain girl with some education, is aroused, and her bad old father makes trouble for Juliet. The Under Trail is a hidden trail in the mountains used by moonshiners and desperadoes, and it figures in several dramatic incidents. The book is full of life, color and vitality, the characters are ably sketched, and the story is entertaining. Martin Justice contributes some good pictures.

THE SINS OF THE FATHER. By Thomas Dixon. New York: D. Appleton & Co. $1.35 net.

There may be readers of the novels of Thomas Dixon who, stirred almost too harshly by the problems he presents, may wonder why he selects the bitter conditions in the South following the Civil war, but certainly no one can question the power and unrelenting march of acts and consequences as he presents them. In his latest novel, "The Sins of the Father," Mr. Dixon has again chosen the period of reconstruction following the Civil war as the time of his story. The race problem is again the theme about which he develops his plot.

If the author feels a call to present the ghastliness of any social mingling of the black and white races, he achieves his object, for no one can read "The Sins of the Father" unmoved. The conditions compel horror in the reader most detached and remote from knowledge of the conditions, and such powerful treatment of the matter cannot but leave its mark on the minds of his readers in any locality.

Maj. Norton, a fearless young editor, leader of the Ku Klux Klan, and a power in Southern politics, has in a moment of unguarded passion an intrigue with a mulatto woman. Shortly afterwards his wife dies, and, broken-hearted, he takes his little son and goes to New York to live. Some months later he hears from the mulatto woman that a daughter has been born to her.

Norton is stung with shame. He sees the sinister menace to the South in such affairs, and the tragic consequence to society, and he determines to return to his old home to fight for race purity and segregation. He becomes a great and influential figure and is so sure of himself that he even permits the mulatto woman to remain a member of his household. Meanwhile the son grows to manhood and the daughter of the mulatto woman is reared as a white girl in the North.

Then tragedy enters under the clever engineering of the mulatto. Norton returns from a long campaign, and is horrified to find his son married to the girl whom he believes is not only taintgirl whom he believes is not only tainted with negro blood but is also his own daughter. The last chapters of the book are highly dramatic and the inevitable wage of sin is meted out, but a ray of relief from the tragic hopelessness of it all is permitted to enter.

This latest book from the pen of Thomas Dixon is not a whit less forceful and gripping than the "The Leopard's Spots" and "The Clansman" which preceded it.

BAT. By Edward Marshall. New York: G. W. Dillingham company, $1 net.

A rather entertaining, though an exceedingly light story, in which a impulsive, headstrong girl and a self-opinionated young man are the principal characters. That any young man of 19 should take the expense of educating a girl of 15 whose possibilities of intellectual development appeal to him is extremely improbable in this day and age, but the author manages to weave an interesting narrative around the situation. Of course the young man marries the girl.

A CHAIN OF EVIDENCE. By Carolyn Wells, author of "The Gold Bag, "The Clue," etc. Philadelphia: J. B. Lippincott company. $1.25 net.

A man of wealth is found murdered, apparently with a hatpin. The deed was done in a flat in which there was nobody but his niece and her female servant, and to which access from the outside seemed impossible. A young lawyer, who has been interested in the niece from casual meetings without yet gaining her acquaintance, is brought in when the body is discovered, and plays a leading part in solving the mystery, though a wonderful private detective really does the final work. Suspicion flits from one person to another, but rests mostly on the niece, in spite of her beauty and fine character. The solution is skillfully withheld to the end. It's an entertaining detective story, but not far above the commonplace.

Herman Whitaker writes for June Ainslee's "The Heathen Chinee," a story set in one of the most beautiful parts of the world, the pine-clad, poppy-strewn hills and valleys near Monterey, California. It is a strong love story, and a fine character study of a Chinaman who had been rescued from a band of drunken pursuers by a little child—the daughter of a ranchman, and thereafter devotes his faithful heart and shrewd, capable mind to her interests, bringing the ranch up to a high cultivation for her sake, guarding and shielding her even to the final sacrifice of his life to save her from an unworthy lover. Other excellent stories in this issue are "Connie," by Marion Hill; "The Fairies of Cluucheen Lane," by Thomas P. Byrne; "A Nickel's Worth," by Parker H. Fillmore; "The Little Brother," by Flavia Rosser, and "The Unknown," by Anna Alice Chapin.

Pittsburg has at last come to its own. This week's Life exploits that city and quite appropriately does it in black and white, although there is a colored cover to mitigate the attempt. The Pittsburg husband is held up to the sympathy of the world; and, in fact, Pittsburgers in general and in particular are patted upon the back. The cartoon by MacDonall, "God Helps Those Who—," is a striking picture of big capital.

The exploitation by insurance companies in this country of Dr. Friendensburg's criticisms of the German system of social insurance makes timely a symposium in the May Survey upon the relative merits of the English compensation and the German insurance plan. Dawson, the heads of the casualty insurance companies, and others contribute to this unusual contribution to the discussion of compensation schemes. "The Revolution on the Sea," by George McPherson Hunter, dramatically portrays the miracle working changes in the sea since steam displaced sails which have even produced essential changes in "Jack" himself. "The Dunfermline Trust," by Samuel Harden Church, lifelong associate of Andrew Carnegie, tells of the gift by the master steel maker to his native town "to give the young some charm, some happiness, some elevating conditions of life which providence elsewhere would have denied."

What do the people want? In the arena are man and beast. On the seats of the amphitheater are King Capital and his satellites watching intently the terrific and gory struggle between two opposing elements: Civilization and British Desire. What do the people want? Blood-curdling stunts by doomed airmen? Life-spilling races by crazed motorists? Luxurious marine palaces where danger is forgotten while the senses are pampered to surfeit? What do the people want? Let them give the sign to King Capital. Desire will gore civilization if the people do not speak. Thumbs down! It is mercy. The people demand mercy for the sake of themselves and of posterity. The sober note of evolving change is struck in D. W. Taylor's article, "Lessons from the Titanic Disaster," appearing in the June number of Popular Mechanics magazine. Mr. Taylor is a naval constructor of the United States navy, and highly qualified to discuss the grave subject. He points out many ways in which ocean liners may be made safer. Some unusual illustrations accompany the article, among them a double page drawing of the Titanic when she struck the berg. Other points of the disaster are discussed in "Wireless Co-operation and Laws," "The Titanic's Grave," and two editorials by H. H. Windsor in "Ocean Travel Reform" and "Investigation Is Proper."

TIGERS ARE ON A STRIKE

Refuse to Play Ball Until "Ty" Cobb Has Been Reinstated.

Jennings Is Hustling Players to Represent Detroit Against Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, May 18.—The Philadelphia American league baseball team probably will meet this afternoon a team of semi-professionals, representing the Detroit club if "Ty" Cobb is not reinstated by Ban Johnson, president of the league. This situation is the outcome of the action of the Detroit players in deciding that they will not play ball for Detroit unless the suspension imposed upon Cobb is lifted.

"The boys are determined," said Hughey Jennings, manager of the team, today, "and in order to protect the Detroit club owners I am scouting around for players in order to place a team on the field this afternoon. Failure to do so means that a fine of $5,000 will be imposed in addition to the forfeiture of the game."

When asked where he expected to secure the players Jennings said: "I need twelve and I expect to get two from Jersey City and the others here in Philadelphia."

Questioned as to his view of the situation, Jennings said:

"It is a good lesson for club owners. They should realize that players must be protected from insult."

Asked if he had made a report of the New York incident to Ban Johnson, Jennings said he had and that he had also told him that Cobb was justified and ...at he knew several New York men who would make affidavit that the language of the spectator was foul and insulting.

Connie Mack, manager of the Philadelphia team said:

"I know from my own experiences as a ball player that one gets little sympathy from the grandstand and far less from the bleachers and some of the things a big league player is forced to listen to makes one's blood boil in resentment; yet I think they can adopt more telling tactics than by going into the spectators' reservations and dealing out summary punishment."

Members of the New York and Cleveland American league teams are in sympathy with "Ty" Cobb and the players of the Detroit club in the matter of the indefinite suspension of Tyrus Cobb for his attack on a spectator at a recent Detroit-New York game.

"It's part of the game for ball players to submit to personal abuse by spectators," says Harry Wolverton, manager of the New York club. "It's hard to keep one's temper under such trying circumstances. Certain fans believe that because they pay to get into a ball park they have the right to insult players and umpires.

"The best way to square accounts is to pick out the tormentors and then nail them outside the grounds. If it were possible to print some of the things said to players the public would not condemn a man like Ty Cobb for his recent assault. But as it is, there is no way to show how players must bear the cowardly insults heaped upon them."

The man who was assaulted by Cobb is Claude Lueker, a former pressman, who lost one hand and most of the other a little more than a year ago at his trade. Lueker says that a shout of derision went up on a poor play by Cobb and that the Detroit player singled him out for attack.

LOCAL TRAP SHOOTERS AT WORK

VETERAN BOBBY WALLACE IS ONE OF THE GAME'S GREATEST STARS

St. Louis, May 18.—Thirteen years ago a little fiery, fidgety, dark-haired lad was playing short for the St. Louis Cardinals. He came to town when the Robinson brothers—Frank de Hass and M. Stanley ('tis sad to relate that both are gone now)—transferred their Cleveland club of stars to St. Louis. He was young and unknown, but promising. He had a dash about himself that surprised every one who saw him then; he was quick as a tiger, leaped after the bounders with a great stride and heaved the ball in all directions with perfect accuracy. In a year St. Louis praised him. In two years he was a wonder.

When the Browns took the field at Sportsman's park against the Detroit Tigers a fiery, fidgety, dark-haired athlete occupied the position between the second and third backs. The lad of 1899 and the athlete of 1912 are the same; yes, indeed. He is Rhody J. Wallace.

Wallace has come back, writes Sid Keenen in the Times; his hat is in the center of the arena, and all the shortstops of today are defied. Watching Bob Wallace shortstop for three days in 1912 shows but little difference in the lad the writer saw parade on the old Vandeventer avenue green back in 1899, when he was such a sensation around the National league circuit.

Out to Excel All.

Jimmy Callahan startled the baseball community when he came back last spring; Mike Donlin caused just as much furore when he turned the trick last summer, and now Bob Wallace is going to eclipse both Jimmy and Mike.

No king of the pastime, not even Hans Wagner, Nap Lajoie or Ty Cobb, ever gave a more brilliant exhibition as a player than did Wallace the other afternoon. He was starting out his fifteenth year as an infielder, his eighteenth as a major league player, yet he made plays in the field that might be equaled but never excelled.

Two of them were executed in rotation in the fourth inning and outs were made where the average shortstop would have allowed them to flitter away. Following them came a home run, and instead of four tallies going over the plate, but two did, and the game was saved to a certainty.

Forced to Come Back.

Off Stanage the wee Scot romped back into deep left field for a drooping fly, got under the ball, was bumped by the left fielder, but made the catch and was robbed of a double play when the umpire saw it the other way. Then Bob followed this by chasing far to his right, grabbed a mean hopper that was speeding out into left field to be a base hit and threw the batter out by a step. They were plays that only Bob Wallace could complete and were done in the same grace and ease that he turned them a decade ago.

At the bat it was the same. Wallace went through with the hit and run, pulling the ball through short, the spot vacated by Ownie Bush, and worked the double steal, tearing down the paths as if he was a 10-second runner.

Wallace was forced to put on this come-back skit. Last fall it wasn't his intention ever to return to the game. He did not know positively that he was to manage the Browns this year, but if he signed again he wanted to retire. Two youths went on the training trip to take Wallace's job away from him. First one failed and went to the minors. The other was given every chance in the world but failed, also.

Back to Stay.

Now Wallace is back. He will remain until some one sends along a youth of better ability. It may be 1913, and again it may not be until 1915 or even 1915. Surely Bob can't last forever, but it seems that he retains the same speed and knack of shortstopping that he owned when he first came to St. Louis.

Where is the player who can boast of Bob Wallace's record? Few, if any. Originally he was a pitcher with the Franklin, Pa., independent team. Some one told the Robinson brothers about Bob back in 1894, and in the middle of the year he went to Cleveland. However, he didn't blossom forth until 1897, when he succeeded Chipper McGarr, then rated the king of the third sackers, as the third baseman for the Cleveland Spiders.

The far corner was strange to him, but he tried and made good. Coming to St. Louis he remained a third baseman. When the two clubs switched about Lave Cross remained here. Lave was a third baseman and so was Wallace. A change had to be made. Wallace said he'd try shortstop. He did and he is here today, just as clever as he was 13 years ago.

Wonderful Record.

The record compiled by Bob Wallace as shortstop probably will stand supreme forever. The record books do not show where there is an infielder who has performed at that position for thirteen years, and has such a remarkable average.

In the thirteen years Wallace has fielded for a percentage of .940, indeed phenomenal. One year he topped the field. That was in 1902, when he broke into the American league. However, he always has been near the top. His total number of assists and putouts shows that he covered acres of ground in his territory.

Wallace's complete record as a major league shortstop follows:

Rank.	Years.	G.	PO.	A.	E.	Pct
3.	1911..	123	280	417	42	.943
3.	1910...	99	268	344	33	.948
3.	1909...	87	193	279	27	.946
2.	1908...	137	286	510	41	.951
6.	1907...	147	338	517	54	.941
2.	1906...	138	309	461	41	.949
4.	1905...	156	385	606	62	.935

4.	1901...	135	329	541	61	.934
3.	1900...	127	328	447	49	.940
7.	1899...	98	232	375	57	.914
	Totals	1,665	3,963	5,824	630	.940

St. Louis Proud.

In answer to where is the player who can boast of Bob Wallace's record, the names of some of the stars that came to St. Louis from Cleveland might be mentioned. There were Jesse Burkett, Emmett Heldrick, Pete Childs, Ed McKean, Harry Blake, Chief Zimmer, Cy Young, Lou Criger, Nig Cuppy and others. Young alone remains. But none of them have been in the game as constantly as Wallace.

In developing into a manager Wallace has adopted a system that is quite different from many others. His attack does not border on the style used by McGraw, Bresnahan, Clarke, Dahlen, Callahan and that kind. Wallace, like Connie Mack, believed the diamond battles can be won without the rowdy work, bluffing with the umpires and kicking up the dust.

If Bob Wallace can be as brainy and brilliant a manager as he has been a ball player he will be one of baseball's greatest men. And St. Louis is proud that it owns Bob Wallace.

McGRAW AND MACK ARE GREAT LEADERS

Athletics Manager Is Very Popular, While McGraw Is Admired for His Qualities of Leadership.

New York, May 18.—The public sits in admiration and awe of Connie Mack's world's champion Athletics. The team which humbled the Giants in the world's series last fall is universally conceded to be one of the very best aggregations produced in the history of the national pastime. Yet, in its veneration of the capability of that wonderful machine, the public is prone to overlook the genius of the man who fashioned it.

Connie Mack did not fall heir to any such collection of stars. He had to dig up each and every one of them. His ultimate success is but a tribute to his foresight and rare judgment. For, in his own unassuming, quiet way, Mack has changed the business politics of the great organized profession. The leader of the Athletics was a pioneer in his way. He foresaw ten years ago the great development to which this sport would attain in a decade. He realized that each year it would become more difficult to secure desired talent through purchase and trade. Before the rival managers ever dreamed of paying serious attention to the scouting end of the business, Connie Mack had raked the minor organizations and colleagues with a fine toothcomb.

Perfect Scout System.

No club in organized baseball has such a perfect scouting system as that of Connie Mack. He himself is the great chief of the sleuthing department, and his is the final judgment. He is tipped off to more good green players than any other three managers, simply because his great network of espionage was established before rivals woke up to his wonderful advantage. The Athletics were in on the ground floor, and so long as Mack remains in the game Philadelphia's Americans will continue to have first call.

Until Connie Mack entered the major league field managers looked little further ahead than the tips of their noses. They were content to dwell upon the present so far as results were concerned. Mack studied the future. He planned fully five years ahead. He looked the situation squarely in the face. He saw in a star not his present capability, but the day when he must begin to pale and fade. He figured to have by that day some newcomer to step into the declining veteran's shoes, and he always planned on having in his substitute a man far more capable in every department of the game.

Caught Napping Once.

Connie Mack was caught napping just once. That was in 1906. He was fooled by his champion aggregation of 1906, the bunch that was so badly shown up by the Giants. Mack overestimated the period of usefulness of many of his veterans. The series with the Giants opened his eyes to his mistake. There was a general housecleaning the following year. Then it was that the wily Quaker set out in earnest to develop almost single-handed the great machine he now controls.

His case was similar to that of McGraw. The gallant leader of the Polo grounds was in identically the same fix as Mack, though he did not know it. Half the old champions of 1905 had cracked on McGraw's hands during the hot pennant pace. The world's series of that year gave McGraw no warning. A disastrous campaign followed the next season. The New York leader immediately began the weeding-out process which eventually resulted in the wonderful team now at home in Brush Stadium.

The 1912 Giants appear to outclass the National league as far as the 1911 Athletics outclassed the American league. Eliminating unusual misfortune, each should have a strangle hold on its pennant before fall. In many respects the rival aggregations are very similar. McGraw specializes on speed; Mack on hitting ability. Each, of course, attempts to combine all possible of the one with the other. Both are solidly established in the matter of youth. Yet each is fortified with unusually brilliant substitutes. McGraw maintains that as a chain is no stronger than its weakest link, a team is no stronger than its substitutes.

Athletics the Stronger.

Of the two teams, the Athletics appear the stronger. Whether they would prove so at the end of a strenuous campaign may remain for the next world's series to show. Mack's players have the advantage of longer experience together. It is a more seasoned array in every way, even though the players may be every bit as young in years as New York. Mack has far more seasoned pitchers than McGraw. Mathewson is New York's sole veteran standby, while Bender, Coombs, Plank and Morgan have shown year in and year out for seasons that there are few better so long as they can cheat Old Father Time. Mack also has a lot of promising young tossers who may deliver when the opportunity arises. None have shown the promise of "Rube" Marquard. McGraw has the greatest catcher of the age in Chief Meyers. Wilson is as fine a second string man as could be found anywhere. But the world's champions are not weak behind the bat. Thomas and Lapp are of the best in the league, perhaps, almost the equal of McGraw's Indian in plain backstopping and throwing, though not of course so deadly with the ash.

McGraw's team is the faster; Mack's the much more powerful in hitting. A club that hits close to the .300 notch collectively can do fairly well in any league behind even mediocre tossing. Give it one of the finest battery departments in the game, such as the Athletics boast, and it will prove well nigh invincible.

Greatest Infield.

In the opinion of most experts Connie Mack has the greatest infield ever shown. This goes doubly strong if little "Stuffy" McInnis can deliver such goods at first as he showed last season. Baker, Barry, Collins and McInnis form the most perfect fielding quartet imaginable. McInnis last season was every bit as sensational as Chase. It is doubtful even if Johnny Evers was ever as great as Collins. Barry is the greatest shortstop of the age—managers will add of all time. Baker needs no indorsement in New York. And every one of the four can hit like a demon and skirt the sacks like a flash.

After the final game of the world's series in Philadelphia last fall Manager McGraw of the Giants paid a fitting tribute to Connie Mack's infield. "It is the greatest infield I ever saw," he said. "Not even the old Baltimore bunch could show it anything. Collins and Barry are the greatest pair that ever graced the keystone. Why, not once in the whole series were we able to fool those two kids. It made no difference through which side we attempted the hit and run, the right man always held his station to break it up. If we hit a Barry's division Collins always covered. I actually believe this pair is so fast that it can wait until the ball is hit to figure out the proper defense. We were beaten by one of the greatest teams of all history, and by a team whose infield is one of its main towers of strength."

Connie Mack's club has always been a great trouble-maker for other teams in the American league. He never before had such a wonderful club as that which now commands. For the next three or four years his youngsters are bound to improve and the Athletics are going to be right in the thick of baseball fame. When Collins, Barry, Baker and McInnis begin to go, Connie Mack will undoubtedly produce competent successors to them. He has dozens upon dozens of athletes "planted" in the minor leagues for development. Any one of them he can call upon at short notice. Thus is the leader of the world's champions absolutely fortified against the future.

O'BRIENITES WIN EASILY

Grand Forks Offers Little Opposition to the Sox, Losing 11 to 1.

Johnson Holds Visitors in Check and Wilson Is Pounded Hard.

Duluth had no particular difficulty in defeating the fluttering Flickertails in the first game of the series here yesterday. Taking the bit in their pearly teeth, the animated Sox ran away from the stationary tourists from the state of wind and future hope, cantering home a winner by the score of 11 to 1.

It would be rather tedious to the gentle reader to go into detail as to the acquiring of the runs by the home brigade; suffice it to say that the slants of Wilson had no mysterious meaning to the local bludgeon handlers. One might say Wilson, that's all, and leave it there. But by way of simple explanation it might be added that the Sox garnered sixteen blows during the soiree.

During the first few innings the contest was interesting. In fact, vitally so. Just to illustrate. During the first round a fan's foot caught on fire and he never learned of the conflagration until the sole of his shoe had been burned through. This is on the level. The flame grew back of the press box and required a can of water and a few adjectives that disputed strength and qualities of heat with the fire, before it was extinguished. But as to the fan and his foot, it only goes to show that the game holds interest.

Grand Forks needs some new players. That fact is patent. The team was organized in a few sultry days; let more time and more careful selection improve upon the aggregation. But in justice to the Flickertails it must be said that the team has not enjoyed the advantages of a training season and also it might be added that its members have not been together long enough to develop harmony of action.

There may exist a great and gnawing curiosity as to how the visitors got their lonely run. It came in the fourth, starting with a single by Lohr that went whizzing by Leber. Edmunds promptly forced his boss at second, but went on to the No. 2 sack when Sours heaved wild to first to nip him on a double play effort. Stovern singled to right and the one tally was over. There is a rumor that it is to be preserved in alcohol.

The Sox started hitting in the first and also kept scoring. Errors came with the hits—as close as the late lamented Siamese Twins—and after the third inning there was little doubt of the outcome.

Johnny Johnson was on the mound for the locals and pitched quite a different brand of ball than the game he flung against the Peggers.

The Flickertails are here today and will finish out the series with the game of tomorrow.

SUPERIOR WINS FROM WINNIPEG

Red Sox Take Opening Game When Cummings Blows Up.

Superior won the opener from Winnipeg yesterday when Cummings blew up in the eighth inning, the Red Sox taking the contest by the score of 9 to 7. Up to the eighth round it looked as if the Cousins would win in a canter. Then came the undoing of Cummings and the downfall of the Peggers. Vance pitched a fair game for Superior and received but indifferent support.

GOOD LUCK IS THROWN AWAY AND GAME IS WON.

Kansas City, Mo., May 18.—A good luck horseshoe that has hung in the press box, was torn from its place after Ferris had hit for a home run and two other Minneapolis players had singled in the second inning, and thrown outside the ball park. Shortly after Altrock relieved Maddox and the locals defeated Minneapolis, 6 to 3. With the score tied in the eighth, two singles and a hit batsman filled the bases that Carr's double cleared. Carr was thrown out trying to reach third. The first three times Owens was up to bat he hit the first ball pitched for a single. Score: R. H. E.

DULUTH COACH IS PUSHING HIS MEN

JIMMY TEN EYCK.

DULUTH CREW ENJOYS SEASON'S BEST WORKOUT

With willing hearts and honest hands the crew candidates carried the three big shells over the stretch of terra firma that separates the lake and bay and is responsible for Park Point, the aerial bridge and numerous adjectives of darker shades, and last evening enjoyed one of the best rows of the season in the placid waters of the lake.

Giving the second eight 15 seconds start the first crew overtook the relief men in something less than seven minutes and thirty seconds of rowing and won out by three lengths. James smiled, an enigma with pearly teeth, but refused to comment otherwise than to state that his men had one of the best workouts of the season.

All of the old men were in the first boat, Thompson, Lathrup, Kent, Thorburn, Sole, Quimby, Cheney and Grant being the little drones in the long boat. Jimmy says no passengers are allowed this year. The men showed the best form of the season and also got the new rig to spacing better than she has hopped along this year.

There may be some shifts in the first eight today, the program to hold over until James makes up his mind. Glass, the high school youngster, has been showing some stuff, and he is to be given a trial in the first boat. While light this boy has been behaving very nicely. Cliff Torburn is going over to the second eight for a few nights.

Little Nate Dann is showing some class in the coxswain seat. The youngster is of the 110-pound style of architecture and belongs to the order of the spider. He has shown a good head and has the superb faculty of being able to ignore close friends, once he crawls into the boat. Admirable quality that. The youngster is learning rapidly and has shown some stuff that may land him as the cox of one of the eights.

Now that the regatta is to be held in Winnipeg, as you probably read in The Herald, plans are to be made that will probably result in the taking of a large and able-lunged delegation from Duluth to the regatta. It is stated that the Canadian Northern is perfectly willing to make special rates for the water fest, and as Winnipeg is a city of special interest to the Duluth people, it is believed that a large following will watch the races on the Red river.

Now we are out to win—we are all with the eight, hook, line and sinker, to use the colloquial expression of the popular poet, and the progress of Ten Eyck's pupils will be watched with interest from this day of sunshine until the race is rowed at the imposing metropolis of Manitoba.

VETERAN PITCHERS HOLDING THEIR OWN

New York, May 18.—Hasbeenville is gaining very little in its pitching population, judging from the spring census returns. The strength of several teams in both leagues is in the boxwork of their veterans, and a number of men supposed to hold tickets for that station in life described as gone-back, are as sprightly as chickens of current date and apparently have no intention of departing.

If a big league manager had his pick today between a squad of veteran pitchers and a squad of youngsters, which would he select? Would he take Marquard, Alexander, Gregg, Johnson, Ford and Joe Wood in preference to Mathewson, Bender, Plank, Rucker, Coombs and Walsh? The problem would bout drive him to the home for the mentally infirm. He would want them all. He couldn't work them all, of course—in fact if he had either squad he would suffer an embarrassment of riches—but he would most earnestly desire having the entire bunch sit on his bench, if only for the purpose of looking pleasant.

Either crowd, with good support, would be capable of winning a pennant, if they were all in condition at the same time, but some managers are inclined to the belief that six star pitchers cannot be worked in turn and kept in good condition. True, the average club has more boxmen than that, but none of them have more than half that number of heavers who can be truly called stars, and they figure themselves lucky.

Matty the Greatest Pitcher.

Baseball men, as a rule, accept without argument the proposition that Mathewson is the greatest pitcher in the world, and they base it upon the fact that he has been great for a decade. It seems that the old followers of the game, while always willing to admit a young pitcher's capabilities whenever he displays them, do not place a man in the category of the truly great until he has established himself by more than one or two years' service.

Marquard, Alexander and Gregg are counted wonderful young twirlers, but they are first year men. The indications are that they are truly great, but that stamp will not be placed upon them by the baseball world until they have demonstrated their fitness for a place in the hall of fame by longer service.

Ed Walsh is certainly a great pitcher. Year after year the big spitball artist has gone along, and stood all tests. Napoelon Rucker is counted as truly great. McGraw of the Giants claims that he is one of the best left handers of all times, and he bases it largely upon the fact that the southpaw has been great during all the years of his service.

Bender and Plank will have everlasting places in the hall of fame. These, too, established their class—not have commenced to decline.

Johnson Truly a Marvel.

One of the new generation of pitchers who are still regarded in the light of youngsters, but who cannot be denied recognition as among the greatest of his time, is Walter Johnson, the Washington speed marvel. There are many people who believe that Johnson is the best pitcher in the country today—but that sort of proposition would always provide a long argument.

Jack Coombs is not so much of a veteran as some of the others named with him, but he is no youngster, from the standpoint of service, and what he has done for the world's champion Athletics gives him the right to be mentioned with the greatest of the great.

Marquard and Gregg, left handers, have had two great first years, and both have started with every indication of repeating. There is no question as to their class. The same is true of Alexander, although he is off to a poor start this season.

But will they still be regarded as great five years from now? The chances are in favor of the affirmative. They are young; they have the natural ability. The rest is up to them.

Baseball men will tell you that no matter how much "stuff" a young pitcher may have he cannot be truly great until he has had the experience that makes him wise. "Bugs" Raymond was a man who "had everything," in his particular line, but will the eccentric heaver ever be named in the future as among the great pitchers of this decade? Will he ever be mentioned in the same breath with Mathewson, Bender, Plank and Walsh?

Ford and Wood Rank High.

Russell Ford of the Yankees and Joe Wood of the Boston Red Sox are acknowledged great young pitchers. Ford has had one splendid year, and has pitched consistently good ball, even when losing. In picking out a list of the best heavers in the game today, many would hesitate before leaving off the name of Wood.

The promise of the present holds a future of greatness for such comparitive unknowns as "Bucky" O'Brien, Marty O'Toole, George Tyler, Hugh Dedient, Claude Hendrix, Joe Steen, George Baumgardner, Elmer Brown, Rube Benton, Jeff Tesreau, "Lefty" Allen, Casey Hagerman and half a dozen others. They may be the Mathewsons, Benders, Planks, Coombs, and Walshes of another era, but the old baseball man who was trying to win a pennant would probably just as soon have a Mordecai Brown, or a Bill Donovan, or a George Mullin around as several of these fellows of future promise.

In naming a list of the great veterans of today, it is impossible to overlook Brown, just as it is impossible to omit Donovan and Mullin. There has been considerable talk that Brown is "all in," but the ball players who have faced the wonderful three-fingered flinger will take such reports with a grain of salt until he has passed entirely from the game.

There are many pitchers of undoubted class who are neither veterans nor recruits in both leagues, and whom many regard as much entitled to the rank of greatness as those that have been named. They include Babe Adams of Pittsburg, "Slim Sal" Sallee and Bob Harmon of St. Louis; Howard Camnitz of Pittsburg, George Suggs of Cincinnati, Cy Morgan of Philadelphia, and Jim Scott of Chicago; and certainly, any manager would be glad to take a chance with a staff made up of these chaps.

PACKEY SHOULD MAKE LIMIT OR TURN WELTER

(By Walter H. Eckersall.)

The decisive victory of Packey McFarland over Matt Wells, the recognized English lightweight champion, on April 26 in New York city, stamps the Chicago boxer as king of the 135 pounders over the short distance. Whether McFarland could win by such wide margins in longer fights is a matter of conjecture, but it is a certainty that none of the boxers have any right trying to beat him over the sprint route if the weight is 135 pounds.

McFarland has met all the prominent lightweights of the last eight years with the exception of Joe Gans, Battling Nelson and Ad Wolgast. Packey never was matched to meet Gans, but articles were signed and forfeits posted on three different occasions for fights with Nelson. Last summer Packey was matched to meet Wolgast in Milwaukee, but the authorities refused to permit the contest.

The great majority of McFarland's fights have been won on points. He has knocked out some tough fighters, but he generally is satisfied to let his opponent stay the limit, although he inflicts a lot of punishment in a ten round bout. Although 135 pounds, afternoon weight, is an easy notch for Packey to make, he enters the ring weighing close to 140 pounds. The Windy City fighter puts on weight as easily as he takes it off, and he always is in such fine condition that the work of taking off a few pounds is not a hard task.

As McFarland has beaten the top notchers in the 135 pound division, there remains only one of two things for him to do. He must fight in the welterweight division or he must reduce to 133 pounds and fight Wolgast for the lightweight title. The Chicago miller possibly would have as easy a time in the welterweight class as he has had in fighting the 135 pound boxers. Outside of Mike Gibbons, the St. Paul welter, there is no one in that division who appears likely to give Packey a serious argument.

As long as opponents can be found to meet McFarland at 135 pounds he will not leave that class. He has made a lot of money meeting boxers who were known beforehand to have little chance against him. In the last year Packey has been the busiest fighter in the business. The $10,000 which he received for giving Wells a lacing is one of the largest amounts any fighter has received for a ten round bout in the last two years.

The care which Packey takes of himself enables him to accept a match on a week's notice. Boxing is natural to him, and he never loses his speed nor judgment of distance, no matter how long he has been idle in his finishing bouts he boxes with any of the fighters who care to put on the gloves and they derive a lot of benefit by working with him. He seldom works more than three-quarters of an hour a day in the gymnasium, but does from two to eight miles on the road. The footwork which Packey employs in his fights indicates that he must do a lot of road work to keep it up for ten fast rounds.

While McFarland was training for one of his fights Jack Johnson was an interested spectator. The heavyweight champion remarked afterward that McFarland could step from Chicago to Milwaukee by use of all the footwork he employs in a ten round contest. The negro is a great admirer of Packey.

McFarland wants to meet Wolgast, but the champion still insists on 133 pounds ringside. Packey is willing to make this notch in the afternoon, or five hours before the fight, but Wolgast has said he won the title at 132 pounds ringside, and when he meets a fighter of Packey's ability he is going to insist on ringside poundage. McFarland may accede to the champion's terms, but when he was down to the notch for the proposed Milwaukee scrap he looked drawn and did not appear to be strong enough to stand a hard, gruelling fight.

Fighters who have had trouble making weight claim it is much harder to take off the last two pounds than the first ten. They assert the process of "drying out" weakens a man to such an extent that he loses his speed and desire to fight. As a results, he acts like a novice in a fight with a fast, clever boxer who made weight without having to go to a Turkish bath.

McFarland can make 133 pounds without drying out, but he would not be strong enough to fight twenty rounds with a strong, rugged opponent of the Wolgast type. If allowed five or six hours to put on weight and regain his strength, McFarland would give Wolgast the fight of the champion's career.

As long as McFarland can make 135 pounds there is little chance of his going into the welterweight division. He has met many boxers who were welters and he has beaten all of them. In his whole career he never has met a lightweight champion. As he is fighting better now than ever before in his brilliant career, he is going to leave nothing undone to secure a match with Wolgast.

ANGLERS LEAVING FOR THE FAVORITE STREAMS.

Early this morning men with baskets on their arms were seen on the streets of Duluth. These men were not henpecked husbands, doing some cut price marketing for their better halves—they were followers of that grand old sport, I. Walton, and they were going fishing.

A large crowd will leave the city today and early tomorrow for the various fishing streams in the vicinity of Duluth. The warmup will, it is believed, start the fish biting. Most of the anglers here are optimistic and there is a bull market today.

If some of the bunch do not return with some fish, the railroad officials had better place asbestos roofs on the special fishing trains. The patience of the fishermen has about reached the limit.

Rubber boots and overshoes are now made with an inner heel of leather, which prolongs their period of usefulness.

RACE WILL BE A THRILLER

Speed Fiends Will Compete at Indianapolis on Memorial Day.

Pilots Will Try to Average About 79 Miles an Hour.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 18.—Carrying with it more than $50,000 in cash prizes for the winners, the second annual 500-mile International Sweepstakes race will be started at 10 o'clock the morning of Memorial day, May 30, with twenty-seven speedy racing cars as contenders for the victory.

Manning the cars are almost all of the famous racing pilots in America, and several who have international reputations. Taken throughout the field the starters in this long grind is the classiest that ever has been brought together in one contest.

Last year there were more entries, but only the fastest cars have been entered for the second race, and the terrific speed and endurance demands in the gruelling fray were too great for many to tackle again. With about one exception all of the cars were among the fastest in the first 500-mile race, which furnished a most spectacular contest. It is believed that the average speed will be as high as seventy-nine miles per hour. The last race brought out an average of 74.61 miles for the five-century distance.

Almost without exception the pilots who are practicing for the big race believe that the new record will equal that established for 300 miles on the road at Santa Monica. Some have ventured the opinion that eighty miles per hour will be necessary for the winning car. Last year the drivers were correct in their estimate of speed, most of them saying the seventy-four or seventy-five miles per hour would be the result.

Despite the fact that the eliminating speed was set at seventy-five miles per hour for one full lap of the track most of the motors which have been specially built for the race carry from 100 to 120 miles per hour beneath their bonnets. This great speed capacity is provided because the requirements of the race may make it necessary to have it at times, and sufficient power must be held in reserve so that the motors will not be strained in maintaining an average of about eighty miles.

There is hardly a pilot named for the race who has not a national and in many cases an international reputation. The list in part shows "Wild Bob" Burman, the speed king; Teddy Tetzlaff, winner of the Santa Monica race; Caleb Bragg, the millionaire who finished second at Santa Monica and who will team with Tetzlaff on the Flat entry; Ralph DePalma, whose spectacular driving on mile tracks won him the name of mile-track champion; Harvey Herrick, winner of the 1911 Santa Monica road race, and, until Tetzlaff won the last race, holder of the world's road race record, and Ralph Mulford winner of the 1911 Vanderbilt cup race.

The others are just as notable for there is Louis Disbrow, driver of the 200-horsepower Jay-Eye-See car which recently set new mile track records for five, ten and fifteen miles; Howard Wilcox, holder of the mile straightaway stock car record. Hughie Hughes, the English pilot, who won the Savannah Challenge race in 1911 and Len Zengel who won the 1911 Elgin national stock chassis road race. Several drivers have not been named, but it is reported that David Bruce-Brown, winner of the 1911 Grand Prize race, will be named to drive one of the fast American cars in the race.

Despite the fact that between 80,000 and 90,000 persons saw the last contest it is said that the crowd this year will be even greater. The advance sale of seats indicates that the crowd from outside of Indianapolis will be fully fifty per cent greater than before. More than forty special trains are to be run to Indianapolis from many faraway cities, and six motor club tours will be run to the speedway, one of them coming from Denver.

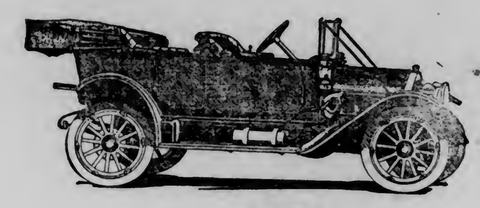
Many E.M.F. Cars in Use.

People are commencing to observe the great number of E. M. F. and Flanders cars used in Duluth. "Len" McNamara has distributed a great many of them during his three years as agent for the company at Duluth. They are all giving satisfaction and the newer models are mighty "classy" from point of looks. Both cars come in several different shapes. The Flanders delivery wagon is being featured by the local agent and several are now in use by Duluth firms.

E-M-F 30 THIRTY Studebaker FLANDERS 20 TWENTY

The Best Liked Cars in America

The width of this car represents total production of Studebaker E-M-F "30" and Flanders "20" cars to May 15, 1911



—1911

The immense growth in numbers in Studebaker E-M-F "30" and Flanders "20" cars within the past year is a striking fact.

Between May 15, 1911, and May 15, 1912, thousands more of E-M-F "30" and Flanders "20" cars were built and sold than had been built altogether in three previous years of their manufacture, rich as those were.

Everyone knows that when the E-M-F "30" was first put on the market it created a furore. Others declared it was too good to be true, the car couldn't be built at the price. Yet it was built, and everyone of those early cars is still in service and giving satisfaction. Then with rapidly growing production Studebaker cars maintained their original promise of unequalled quality at their price and kept on giving satisfaction.

Here is the result. We have built and sold in the last year more cars than in the three years before put together, and there are over 65,000 Studebaker E-M-F "30" and Flanders "20" cars on the roads today.

The American people have tried Studebaker E-M-F "30" and Studebaker Flanders "20" cars, put them to every conceivable test and said, "We're satisfied! These Cars Are Right."

In huge and fast increasing numbers they have backed their approval with cash orders. And every E-M-F "30" and Flanders "20" owner will be proud to tell you the car he drives.

The Best Liked Cars in America. Other good cars have their loyal owners, too, some as loyal as Studebaker owners. But their cars are too few to be compared.

One or more alleged competitors, it is true, sell many cars, but not because their owners are proud to possess them. Nowhere in this world is there such tremendous and incontrovertible approval upon a car as this outspoken conviction of the American people on Studebaker E-M-F "30" and Flanders "20" cars.

There are a hundred other reasons why a Studebaker E-M-F "30" or Flanders "20" should be your choice. Come to us and we will go over them with you in detail. We can convince you by them alone.

But greater than these, standing alone because no other car built can offer any comparable argument, is this one fact.

The American public has tested Studebaker E-M-F "30" and Flanders "20" cars and found them not wanting. The conviction has gone home, and confidence in the Studebaker product has made the year just passed bigger in Studebaker sales than all the years before.

Measure up all the arguments of other cars and then weigh them in the balance against this judgment of the American people.

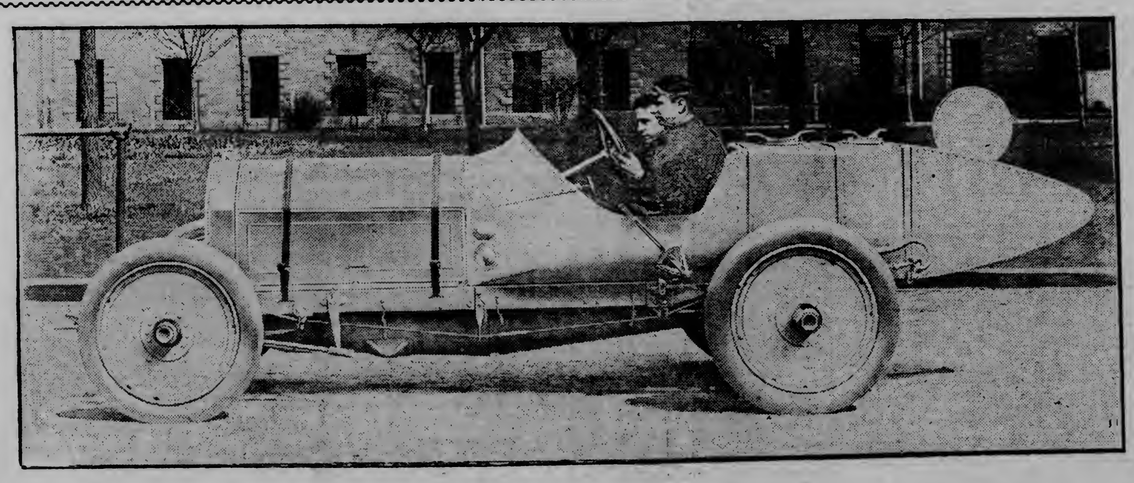
"RAIL BIRDS" THINK WELL OF "WILD BOB" BURMAN'S NEW RACER



BURMAN'S NEW CAR.

"Bob" Burman's 100-horse power Cutting is the cynosure of the eyes of the "rail birds" at the Speedway these pre-race days. The new car of the world's speed champ, the birds discover, resembles somewhat the "Wasp" in which Ray Harroun last Memorial day plugged 500 miles at an average of 74.6 miles an hour to take down the $50,000 price.

"What's her name, Bob?" ask the birds.

Burman claims he hasn't named his pet; declares he will let the scribes in the press stand do this. It would be hard to call the new car anything but the "Streak." She is white with a wasp-like tail.

The Cutting just gets in under the piston displacement limit of 600 cubic inches. She has 597.9 inches with a 5.7-32-inch bore and 7-inch stroke. She is a four cylinder car. The weight is 2,300 pounds, which is 300 pounds above the minimum figures.

"The speed average will be raised this year," says C. D. Cutting, the man who made the Burman car.

"Last year the makers built cars which would do 90 miles on the sprints easily enough, but they could not hold the pace," continues Mr. Cutting. "This year the cars are being built larger. It is useless to enter a machine which will not do the track in 1.40. This means a speed of 90 miles on the turns with 105 to 108 miles on the stretches. Burman's car will hit 110 miles on the stretches with ease."

DIRECTIONS FOR TRAIL TO SUNSET

Much Information in Booklet Issued By American Automobile Association.

Ninety strip maps are included in the 1912 edition of the A. A. A. "Trail to Sunset" route just issued by the American Automobile association from its national touring bureau at 437 Fifth avenue, New York city. The complete route from Chicago to Los Angeles, including the Santa Fe trail, and thence to San Francisco, contains all necessary information with clearness and accuracy, embracing turns, forks, landmarks, and railroad crossings. The first edition of a year ago contained only sixty-five maps and concluded at Los Angeles.

In addition to going through to San Francisco, the new addition has two complete routes between Phoenix and Los Angeles, the new one by Yuma, the Imperial valley, and San Diego. The 1912 book also contains all the corrections noted by A. L. Westgard, A. A. A. official field representative, on his third trip across, last fall. Among the improvements is a short line from Omaha to Kansas City, via the new Plattsmouth bridge, saving about thirty miles, as compared with the route formerly used.

A new A. A. A. transcontinental map, showing all practicable routes in their correct geographic relation, is nearly ready for publication.

Fast Time to Range.

To the Editor of The Herald:

We read with interest your article in yesterday's issue about P. R. Vail and his automobile, and also about the car that went to help the car out. You state that at the time you printed the article, his car had not reached your city. We wish to correct this statement. It was a "Velie 40" owned by ourselves, that went to Duluth and left Virginia, between 9 and 10 o'clock Tuesday night, and reached your city shortly after Mr. Vail's car came in. Better still, our "Velie 40" left Wednesday morning the Mutual Auto company's garage for the range, and reached Virginia shortly after 12 o'clock noon. So by the time your papers were delivered, this "Velie 40" had made the trip from Duluth to the range, been in our garage all afternoon, and ready for more service. The trip from Duluth was made without the slightest mishap. Thanking you for kind attention we remain yours truly, K. J. KARLSON.

EVERYBODY'S DOING IT.

Puzzle That Has Philadelphia People By the Ears.

Philadelphia, May 18.—Rivaling the famous "fifteen" game of a few years ago in popularity, and simpler by reason of the fact that it requires no more apparatus than a lead pencil and a piece of paper to work it, is a puzzle that has Philadelphia by the ears.

Nobody seems to know where it originated, but "everybody's doing it" on the streets, in the trolley and subway cars and in stores and offices. The problem is this: There are three detached houses on fire on one side of a street and three fire plugs on the other. The firemen must run one line of hose from each plug to each house, nine lines in all, without crossing any of the lines.

Simple as it seems, it still awaits solution. When a man first sees it he thinks he can solve it in the first attempt, but the more he tries it the more mystified he gets and the more anxious is he to end the mystery.

Staid high-browed editorial writers of at least one newspaper office have set up all night wrestling with it; reporters have neglected assignments and copy readers have spent their days off in its toils.

It is said to be one reason why the mails do not get delivered as rapidly as they should, and even bank clerks have caught the infection to the detriment of business.

WHAT 'CUTICURA' DID FOR ONE FAMILY

Boy's Sore Cheeks Cured by Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Also Used Them to Heal Deep Cut and to Treat Ingrowing Toenail.

2126 Vine St., Cincinnati, Ohio. — "My little boy's cheeks began getting sore three years ago. I tried everything I ever heard of but nothing cured him. At last I sent for Cuticura Soap and Ointment. After four treatments his face began getting better and in three weeks' treatment he was cured.

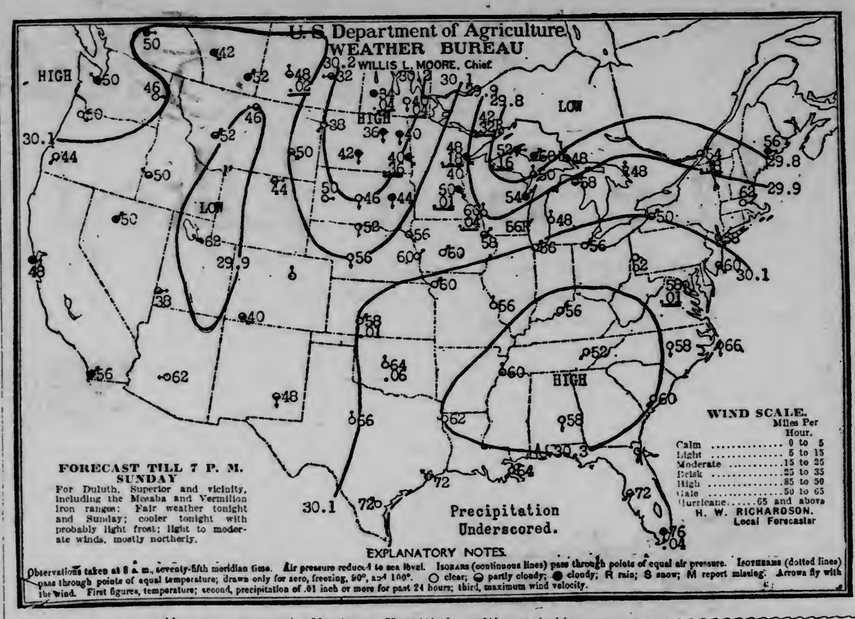
"The first of July my oldest son fell and cut his hand. The cut was very deep. At the time I was in the country and it was impossible to get him to any doctor. I tied the wrist up and put on the Cuticura Ointment very thick, after that I washed it with the Cuticura Soap and continued using the Cuticura Ointment. He had no pain after the Ointment was applied and soon was completely cured of the cut with not a mark left.

"Nothing is better for ingrowing toenails than Cuticura Ointment. For more than eight years I suffered with an ingrowing nail. It almost set me wild. Two months ago I started to use Cuticura Ointment on it. At night I washed the foot with hot water and Cuticura Soap, then I would apply Cuticura Ointment on cotton and wrap the foot up. The ointment softened the hard skin and it could be removed without pain. In a week's time my foot was much better, now it is entirely well.

"For cuts and bruises I think washing them with Cuticura Soap and applying Cuticura Ointment is the best thing on earth. For insect bites if the bite is washed with hot water and Cuticura Soap, and Cuticura Ointment applied, one will receive immediate relief. I have tried it and know." (Signed) Mrs. Arend, Jr., Sept. 11, 1911.

Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers throughout the world. A single set is often sufficient. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. book on the care of the skin. Address "Cuticura," Dept. T, Boston. Tender-faced men should shave with Cuticura Soap Shaving Stick.

OFFICIAL MAP OF THE WEATHER



FORECAST TILL 7 P. M. SUNDAY

For Duluth, Superior and vicinity, including the Mesaba and Vermilion Iron ranges: Fair weather tonight and Sunday; cooler tonight with probably light frost; light to moderate winds, mostly northerly.

FAIR

Almost summer weather prevailed in Duluth yesterday and it was certainly enjoyable. The weather man is keeping up the good record today, for the sun is shining and the temperature is high enough for comfort, if one has used a little discretion in dressing. Continued fair and cool weather is predicted for tonight and tomorrow.—H. J. Pettit, The Odd Fellows.

Fair, cool weather prevailed a year ago today.

The sun rose this morning at 4:28 and it will set at 7:40 this evening, giving fifteen hours and twelve minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"Light rains fell over Canada, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Kansas and Oklahoma during the last twenty-four hours, principally in connection with the disturbance overlying Eastern Canada. Brisk northwesterly winds prevailed last night on western Lake Superior. The northwestern high pressure has caused cooler weather in Manitoba and the Dakotas, which condition will reach the Head of the Lakes this afternoon and tonight, and there is a probability of light frost occurring in low places tonight."

General Forecasts.

WEST END WANT EVERY STREET PAVED

West End Commercial Club Begins an Energetic Campaign.

Every street in the West end will be paved, if the West End Commercial club can get the sanction of the property owners.

At the meeting of the club last evening at the Woodmen hall, Twenty-first avenue west and First street, the members went on record as favoring the paving of First, second and Third streets, from Piedmont avenue to the Grand avenue intersection.

An active campaign among the property owners along the streets will be made by special committees appointed last evening. T. Hedsen and George M. Jensen will canvass the First street property owners; James Preston and Joseph Cummings, the Second street owners, and Alfred Moe and James Maghan, the owners on Third street.

James W. Preston, formermember of the board of public works, gave the principal talk of the evening, speaking on necessary improvements and pavements in the West end. He especially urged the club to take up the paving work and also outlined the plan of action, which the members voted to follow. Addresses on the same subject were made by Alderman Hoar of the Sixth ward, Alderman Bernard of the Seventh ward, Alfred Moe, County Commissioner Joseph Cummings, G. M. Jensen, Sanford W. Hill and E. H. Olson.

Next Friday evening a special address on playgrounds and public parks will be given by Henry S. Curtis of New York, who will be in Duluth next week. Mr. Curtis is a national expert on the subject, having been in charge of playgrounds and parks in the largest municipalities of the country.

MEN'S WELFARE LEAGUE HOLDS FIRST BANQUET.

About 100 members and friends of the Men's Welfare league of the Swedish Mission church, Twenty-first avenue west and Second street, attended the first annual banquet of the organization in the church parlors last evening.

C. R. Magney gave the principal address of the evening, following the banquet. He spoke on "The Man and His City," emphasizing the fact that every church man should take an active interest in the municipal politics and the betterment of the city. He said that if the men in the church voted properly, the men elected to office would do as they were bid by their constituents.

Dr. R. W. Bowden spoke on "The Man and His Church," urging every man to take a greater interest in his church. He said that the time was past when women took the responsibilities of keeping the church in its active state. Dr. Bowden advocated more church work among the boys of each parish. Short talks were also made by Carl E. Staky, president of the league; Gust Hjelm, who talked on "Bible Study," and Carl G. Mellen, who spoke on "The Ladies of the Church."

The musical part of the program was given by Dr. J. C. Annand, Herbert Philstrand and a ladies' octet.

TO PROTECT PASSENGERS LEAVING STREET CARS.

Edward J. Smith of 1932 West Superior street narrowly escaped serious injury yesterday afternoon, while stepping off of a west bound car in front of his drug store, Twentieth avenue west and Superior street. Mr. Smith had left the car and was about to cross the street, when he saw an automobile but a few feet away. He fell backward to escape being hit by the car and wrenched his back. He was taken into his drug store and soon recovered.

Following the accident a number of West end citizens, who had talked with Mr. Smith, announced that they would circulate a petition within a few days asking for an ordinance to safeguard pedestrians.

They want an ordinance compelling automobile drivers to slow down when passing street cars, especially when the gates of the car are open. The automobile may not be speeding, but it is claimed many of them do not stop at a street crossing and compel the pedestrian to perform acrobatic stunts to save his life. Many women are rather slow in getting off a car and usually start with a rush for the sidewalk. It is to prevent accidents in such cases that the new ordinance is desired.

SUFFRAGISTS WILL MEET NEXT MONDAY.

The West End Suffrage club will meet next Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. L. Q. Greeley, 317 North Twenty-third avenue west.

Plans for the mass meeting to be held sometime next month at one of the West end churches will be made during the meeting. A reply from Rev. A. F. Elmquist of Minneapolis, who was invited to be the principal speaker of the evening, will be received by that time. At first the meeting was planned for next Friday evening, but a letter received here last week by Mrs. David Adams stated that Dr. Elmquist would be unable to attend the meeting.

Rev. Dr. Elmquist suggested May 30 for the meeting, as it is a day which he now has open. The members of the club do not care to meet on Decoration day and a letter was written to Dr. Elmquist asking him to name a day early in June. At that time the most prominent suffrage speakers in the city will speak on the cause and an attempt will be made by the members to have a large and representative gathering of men.

FOUR BROTHERS WILL OCCUPY PULPIT.

Rev. Edwin Stromberg of the First Swedish M. E. church, Twentieth avenue west and Third street, announced this morning that his four brother ministers will occupy the pulpit of the church tomorrow morning and evening. In the morning Rev. K. A. Stromberg and Rev. Hjalmer Stromberg will preach, and in the evening Rev. Leonard Stromberg and Rev. Fred Stromberg will conduct the services.

Grace Church Services.

Rev. George E. Silloway of the Grace M. E. church, Twenty-second avenue west and Third street, will preach on "The By-Products of the Church" at the morning services tomorrow. Rev. Mr. Silloway will preach at the Proctor M. E. church in the evening, when the pulpit of the Grace M. E. church will be occupied by Rev. J. H. Giffin, who will speak on "The New Day in China." Rev. Mr. Giffin recently returned from China and the address will tell of his experiences during the seven years he spent there as a missionary.

Girl Breaks Her Arm.

While attempting to climb into a wagon in front of her home yesterday afternoon, Mary, the 4-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Walczak, 215 Wellington street, lost her balance and sustained a broken arm. The child was taken to Dr. L. Q. Greeley's office, where the limb was set. The driver of the wagon had gone in the rear of the house to deliver a package when the little girl attempted to climb into the wagon. She lost her balance and fell to the ground, where her father found her a few minutes later.

Outdoor Supper.

An outdoor supper will be enjoyed Monday evening by the members of the Bible class of the Swedish Mission church, Twenty-first avenue west and First street. The members of the class will meet at the church at 7 o'clock and will then walk to the boulevard, where a bonfire will be built and supper served by the women of the class.

Engstrom Funeral.

The funeral of Robert Engstrom, 21 years old, who died of brain fever Tuesday evening at his home, 2012 West Second street, was held at 2 o'clock this afternoon from the Olson & Crawford undertaking rooms, 2118 West First street. Interment was in the Oneota cemetery. North Star lodge, No. 1, I. O. G. T. had charge of the funeral.

Farewell Surprise.

Miss Julia Johnson was pleasantly surprised this week at the home of Peter Johnson, 2332 West Third street. Miss Johnson left yesterday for Stockholm, Sweden, where she will spend several months with relatives, and the surprise party was given by a number of her friends as a farewell reception. She was the recipient of a camera. Besides Miss Johnson, Mrs. George Johnson and Elmer Peterson left last evening for Sweden.

Memorial Day Service.

The Young People's society of the First Swedish Baptist church, Twenty-second avenue west and Third street, will give a Memorial day entertainment May 30 in the church parlors. The church will be decorated for the occasion and a program of patriotic addresses and musical numbers will be rendered during the evening.

YOUNG MOTHERS

No young woman, in the joy of coming motherhood, should neglect to prepare her system for the physical ordeal she is to undergo. The health of both herself and the coming child depends largely upon the care she bestows upon herself during the waiting months. Mother's Friend prepares the expectant mother's system for the coming event, and its use makes her comfortable during all the term. It works with and for nature, and by gradually expanding all tissues, muscles and tendons, involved, and keeping the breasts in good condition, brings the woman to the crisis in splendid physical condition. The baby, too, is more apt to be perfect and strong where the mother has thus prepared herself for nature's supreme function. No better advice could be given a young expectant mother than that she use Mother's Friend; it is a medicine that has proven its value in thousands of cases. Mother's Friend is sold at drug stores. TAFT TALKS OF BOSSES

Says Walter Brown of Toledo, Roosevelt Backer, Is in That Class.

Claims Ex-President Is Being Supported By Political Combines.

Toledo, Ohio, May 18.—President Taft adopted new offensive tactics against Col. Roosevelt yesterday, when in practically every one of the fourteen speeches he made the president used an argument of particular interest to Ohio and to the northern part of the state, bringing in the names of Dan Hanna of Cleveland and Walter Brown of Toledo, two leaders of the Roosevelt movement.

The president called Mr. Brown "the only boss now in active commission in the state," and charged that Mr. Hanna, "with unlimited wealth," was allied with the special interests, but yet was recognized by Mr. Roosevelt as a patriot, not a boss.

"Boss Brown."

At Tiffin the president said:

"My friends, Mr. Roosevelt has introduced the issue of the bosses. He says that I am a candidate of the bosses, and he is against them all and they are all against him. You have here in Northern Ohio the only man who is in full commission as a boss, Walter Brown of Toledo, and he is backed by Dan Hanna, who is associated with all the great interests in Northern Ohio, and they own three newspapers. Now, that makes a fine collection, doesn't it? The three great metropolitan papers, a man with unlimited wealth associated with all the great special interests, and a boss to represent them in politics.

"And yet Mr. Roosevelt says Mr. Brown is a patriot and a progressive I am not attacking Mr. Roosevelt because Mr. Brown supports him. He is just like me and like any other person in politics. He takes the support of any man who comes to him, without asking him for a certificate of character from the Young Men's Christian association."

Crowds Less Demonstrative.

Aside from this incursion into Ohio politics, Mr. Taft's talks were of the same tenor as on previous days of the present trip. In the morning he ran out of Cleveland into a mild rain storm, but by noon the weather was again fair and bright. The crowds that met the president were up to the average of the trip and were attentive, although not so demonstrative as others have been in other sections of the state.

"Tired of Being Lied About."

"I've got tired of being lied about and held up to the country as having violated every rule of conduct, when I am not conscious that I have violated any," shouted President Taft here in the course of a speech to a crowd that filled every available seat and blocked the aisles of the Toledo Auditorium.

Mr. Taft's speech was one of the most bitter and one of the most plainspoken that he has made since he began to answer the charges of Col. Roosevelt.

The president charged that Walter Brown of Toledo, one of the Roosevelt leaders here, had ceased to be a Taft supporter because the president refused to accept his recommendations for local appointments. He declared that the opposition to him on the part of Dan Hanna of Cleveland came as a consequence of indictments against Mr. Hanna by the Taft department of Justice.

BOY WAIF NOW HEIR TO FORTUNE

Is Adopted By Woman Who Nursed Him During Illness.

St. Louis, Mo., May 18.—Miss Sidney Emeline Boyle, daughter of the late Judge Wilbur F. Boyle, has adopted as her son Lloyd Franks Howard, 4 years old, and took from an orphan asylum last June and whom she nursed through a siege of whooping cough at her home.

The adoption became known when the deed was filed in the recorder's office at the city hall.

Miss Boyle is the sole heir to her father's estate, valued at nearly $600,000. The estate will go to the boy if he survives Miss Boyle.

Avoiding Complications.

Miss Boyle said that she had adopted Lloyd Howard to avoid any possible complications in the future.

"The parents of the child are dead," said Miss Boyle, "and I thought his future would be better assured if I legally adopted him.

"Since I have had him in my home he has had four severe sicknesses, measles, mumps, whooping cough and pneumonia in succession. This series of calamities may change my plans slightly about sending him to school. The doctors advise an outdoor life for him until he has fully recovered his strength and if this is accomplished by next September he will then begin school.

"I am determined he shall have the best education obtainable."

When Miss Boyle took the boy to her home last June he was known at the Bethesda home as Lloyd Franks. The adoption deed sets forth that Miss Boyle went before the probate court of Butler county, Missouri, and had the boy's name changed to Lloyd Franks Howard. The deed confers on the boy all the rights and privileges which he would have if he were Miss Boyle's son.

There was much speculation in Lindell boulevard when a whooping cough placard appeared on the door of the Boyle residence. Though Miss Boyle would give no statement, it was learned that the patient was Lloyd Franks, who won her interest and sympathy when she visited the children's home society headquarters at No. 4447 Margaretta avenue.

Series of Ailments.

The boy had just recovered from typhoid fever and was suffering from after effects in the shape of a slight deafness and adenoids, or growth in the nose passages, which, if unchecked, sometimes affect a child's moral as well as physical nature.

At Miss Boyle's order the boy was taken to the Bethesda home. There he developed whooping cough. He was removed later to the Boyle residence.

Friends at the time said Miss Boyle was attracted to the boy by his beauty, his politeness and his patience under suffering.

Terrible Picture of Suffering

Clinton, Ky.—Mrs. M. C. McElroy, in a letter from Clinton, writes: "For six years, I was a sufferer from female troubles. I could not eat, and could not stand on my feet, without suffering great pain. Three of the best doctors in the state said I was in a critical condition, and going down hill. I lost hope. After using Cardui a week, I began to improve. Now I feel better than in six years." Fifty years of success, in actual practice, is positive proof that Cardui can always be relied on, for relieving female weakness and disease. Why not test it for yourself? Sold by all druggists.

TIME HAS COME TO STOP DESTRUCTIVE CRITICISM OF THE CITY

climate in America, and it is beginning to attract not only summer tourists anxious for a cool breeze, but winter tourists, who prefer a cold, snappy climate to slopping around in mud and slush.

Destructive Criticism.

That Duluth was suffering from a surplus of destructive criticism and a lack of constructive optimism was the statement of one well-known citizen this week. "We need a little applied Christian Science," he explained. "It is time we began to realize that we have the best city in the best state in the best country in the world. We ought to talk about our good points, and think about them, instead of continually criticizing our bad points. Constructive criticism is all right, but mere harping on our shortcomings brings no results. Let me make a statement that I firmly believe. I think Duluth has done more to lay a broad, substantial foundation for a great city in the last five or ten years than any other city in America. That would be difficult to prove, but a study of what constructive work along public lines and private enterprise has been done in that time would amaze you if you stopped to estimate it. We are becoming a city of scolds, of fault finders."

For the sake of compiling a statement of just what had been done in the last few years to advance the general welfare of Duluth along public spirited lines, The Herald did a little investigation work this week. The result is amazing. There is hardly any known branch of charitable or public welfare work that is neglected. The list surprised even the members of the staff of The Herald who were working on it.

The Commercial Club.

Probably the best known public institution in Duluth is the Commercial club, with its many lines of activity. Of these activities, probably the most important and the least known is the work of the traffic commission. These men give their time to the work, and meet every week. They have a paid secretary, and their expenses are met by money subscribed for the purpose.

The traffic commission has been working on the theory that "a railroad can be clubbed into doing a few things for a city, but it can be induced by fair means and a little business sense to do ten times as much." The commission has also been forced to work more or less under cover, and for this reason few people in Duluth begin to comprehend what it has accomplished. For example if the Duluth match factory should find that the grocery store keeper in Podunk Falls, S. D., is buying matches from the Oshkosh factory of the Diamond Match company because he can get them more quickly from Oshkosh than from Duluth, the factory reports to the commission. By jumping into the fight with a whoop and a blare of trumpets, the commission would get considerable advertising, but the Oshkosh factory would probably do all in its power to prevent any results being obtained. Nearly every case handled by the commission is a detail case of this character. The cases are of no interest to the general public individually, and to give them publicity would not only antagonize the railroads, but would prevent any results being obtained by arousing opposition from almost every other traffic point in America.

Service and Rates.

When the traffic commission was organized, it was with the idea that the most important object was service. Rates were a secondary consideration. It is more important for a Duluth jobber to get his goods to Fargo or Grand Forks, or any one of a thousand western cities, promptly and in good order, than it is to save a few cents on freight rates. For this reason one of the first undertakings of the traffic commission was to secure a package freight service on the Great Northern lines out of Duluth. Formerly freight from Duluth was shipped to the Twin Cities and peddled out from there in the package freight cars, unless it was a full carload. Now every line of the Great Northern running out of Duluth has a package freight service and it is paying the railroads. The commission is now sending out more than 15,000 postal cards, for the purpose of gathering information on which to base a request for the establishment of a complete and comprehensive package freight system on every line of railroad running out of Duluth. If this is secured it will be one of the most important steps in Duluth's growth in recent years. It will mean that a freight car will be started from Duluth and peddle its shipments for a distance of 100 or 150 miles. Another car will be loaded with goods for the small stations in the next section of 100 miles, will be sent to that stretch of road, and will peddle its freight along that line. It spells quick service for Duluth jobbers and Duluth merchants, and that means more than even a reduction in rates.

The three big cases brought before the interstate commerce commission are too well known to need any comment. They are now before the commission and a favorable decision in each of the three is hoped for.

Passenger Service.

The commission has not neglected the passenger service. It is now preparing a chart showing the density of population along all lines of railroad leading out of Duluth, and this will give it the facts to present to the railroads, on which to base a request for improvements. The policy of the commission has been not to make an unreasonable request of a railroad, and to be prepared to back up every request with the facts, to prove any statements made.

The commission has thrown the doors wide open to every small town and city in the Northwest. Any community from a water tank to a city is invited to make use of the traffic commission. Any little backwoods settlement is invited to lay its traffic problems before the commission and enlist its aid in solving them. Likewise any citizen of Duluth is free to do the same and to use the traffic commission as a bureau of information.

Agricultural Work.

Another important line of activity of the Duluth Commercial club is the agricultural department. In five years this department has almost entirely changed the public opinion of the state in regard to St. Louis county as a farming community. St. Louis county is no longer looked upon as a wilderness of rocks and pine stumps, but as a coming agricultural community. A state agricultural school has been secured for the county. Through the Commercial club's efforts farmers' clubs and institutes have been established in almost every community. The doctrine of co-operation has been preached. The farmers of the county are learning to market their products intelligently, thanks largely to the Commercial club. The club is teaching them the latest farming methods and the latest marketing methods. It has also turned the city of Duluth into a city of gardens in the space of two or three years.

Industrial Commission.

The industrial commission is a new department of the Commercial club, and a paid secretary is about to be employed for the purpose of promoting the manufacturing interests of Duluth and securing new industries for this city.

The publicity work of the city is looked after by a publicity committee of the club, and also by the newly organized advertising men's club, which will work with this committee.

The Greater Duluth club has but recently been organized, but it promises to be an important factor in promoting the welfare of the city. It plans to devote itself chiefly to promoting the booster spirit generally. Excursions will be run into Duluth this summer from surrounding territory, thanks to the efforts of this club, which is barely two months old. More publicity for the city will also be one of its chief aims.

Development Association.

The work of the Northern Minnesota Development association must not be overlooked. Duluth men have taken a big share in promoting this live organization and fostering it. It has done much to eliminate any charges of selfishness that have been made in the past against Duluth. The Duluth men who have attended the meetings of the association in the past, have shown a spirit of fair play and a desire to work for the welfare of the entire northern part of the state, that have left a warm feeling of friendship in the smaller towns and cities in this territory. The association has done some effective work on good roads that is already showing results, and will show even greater results since the decision of the supreme court yesterday on the Elwell law. Reapportionment, drainage, advertising and state development have not been neglected, and the association has done almost as much for Northern Minnesota as the Duluth Commercial club has for Duluth.

The County club is another institution in which Duluth men have been active. It stands for many of the same movements in St. Louis county that the development association does in the northern part of the state.

Neighborhood Clubs.

Duluth has almost a score of neighborhood clubs, such as the West Duluth Commercial club, the New Duluth Commercial club, the West End Commercial club, the West End Hillside club, the Central Hillside club, the Oneota Improvement club, the East End Hillside club, the Park Point Improvement club, the Lakeside club and the Lester Park club. All of these clubs are for the purpose of promoting any plan that will work for neighborhood improvements.

Municipal Enterprises.

Coming one at a time in the forward march of progress the many things which Duluth has accomplished as a city in recent years have not attracted undue attention. They have been noted for the time being and then accepted as matters of course.

To get an idea of how very important they are imagine for the moment that they were wiped away at one swoop. Think if you can, what magnitude they would then assume. The municipality has really accomplished a great deal of which its citizens can be proud. From most of them it is now deriving many benefits, part of which cannot be estimated in dollars and cents. From others it will gain much in the years to come.

Two large railroad corporations have secured franchises from the city to use certain parts of its streets and avenues. The city, in return for the privilege, has made agreements with the railroads whereby they will pay their just share of the cost of all street improvements where they abut their property. The value of these provisions will become more apparent as the years go by.

Contagious Hospital.

A new contagious hospital has been erected on the hillside near Fourteenth avenue west and Third street, the third floor of which was recently fitted out and is now in use. The health department has found it of great value and partly ascribe to the freedom which the city has recently enjoyed from epidemics of contagious diseases.

At Fifteenth avenue west it has a large incinerator, which has been in use for several years and has been its own proof of its value. It is not worth to its capacity, but the foresight which is responsible for its size is being realized as the demands upon it increase.

Along this line Duluth has started municipal garbage collection which promises to spread soon to all parts of the city. It has passed the experimental stage and has been proved a necessity. That the city can operate it successfully has been clearly demonstrated.

Dance Hall Ordinance.

Only a few weeks ago the council passed a dance hall ordinance which at once eliminated the nickel dances which were becoming obnoxious. If it is not amended out of usefulness it will have solved the dance hall problem while the city is still young.

In the last two or three years a big start has been made towards improving three roads which lead from the city into the tributary country. True, no street car tracks have been laid along them yet, but the iron rails which will bring the country to the city have been brought years nearer. And that's a lot. One is the Getchell road at West Duluth and the others are the Farrell and the Sundby roads coming into the city in the Second ward. Besides this much has been done towards preparing the route for the proposed street car service to New Duluth. This will be the first big extension which the street car company will make after it has extended its rails in the hillside district, the roads for which are now being put in shape. This will bring the street car service to Ninth street, ending at Chester park.

Play Grounds.

About a dozen playgrounds have been started in all parts of the city. All of them have been provided with more or less equipment. In the winter they are used for public skating rinks. Throughout the year the furnish healthy, clean outdoor sport and enjoyment to thousands of children as well as hundreds of adults who skate.

Big additions have been made to the public parks, the most notable being Congdon and Fairmont parks and the big extensions of the boulevard.

The city has an ordinance insuring a safe and sane celebration of the Fourth of July, both the sale and display of explosives or red fire being prohibited. Only recognized societies can have display and then only under the direction of the fire warden. The ordinance not only prevents disastrous destruction of property by fire, but personal injury as well.

To get an idea of how very important they are imagine for the moment that they were wiped away at one swoop. Think if you can, what magnitude the average person can appreciate.

A concrete bridge has been built over Tischer's creek at Thirty-second avenue east and Superior street. A number of old bridges have been replaced with concrete culverts and fills. It means that Duluth has passed the days of temporary bridges and is doing permanent construction work.

Visiting Nurses.

The health department took a look ahead when it secured the services of a visiting nurse to aid in the campaign which is being waged against tuberculosis.

In recent years the city has secured ordinances which compare favorably with the best in the country regulating the sanitary conditions of butcher shops, dairies and bakeries and the sale of their products. Duluth occupies the first position of the cities and towns of the state in this respect. The state officials readily accord this honor to Duluth.

The city has finished a complete revaluation of its real estate. It's a big undertaking in any city and the leading experts in the city state that they are confident that the work could not have been done better. It's object was to adjust erractic values, whereby the burden of taxation was unjustly distributed.

Duluth was first in the state on a comparative basis on the amounts turned in under the new law requiring the listing of moneys and credits. The tax on this class of property is $3 per $1,000.

Three of the city departments, in addition to the police and fire departments, have been provided with automobiles. They are the city engineering department, the board of public works and the water and light department, those of the latter being on the trucking or delivery order.

The board of public works adopted flushing machines but a few summers ago. They are a vast improvement over the old street sweeping machines with their clouds of germ-laden dust.

The city has amended its charter so that street intersections and storm sewers are paid for by general taxation, and it has also secured a wheelage tax to aid in keeping its streets and avenues in repair.

Only this winter, it passed another amendment to aid property owners and stimulate street improvements. The amendment gives the owners three years in which to pay their assessments.

Another amendment has been passed enabling the park board to give band concerts during the summer months.

The last special election made the initiative, referendum and recall part of the city charter, part of the machinery of the foremost municipalities in the United States, and following the supreme court's decision yesterday, The Herald's long campaign for the commission plan of government promises to be successful.

County Activities.

What is true of Duluth is also true of St. Louis county which maintains many institutions of which it can proudly boast. The county's crowning glory is not in the fact that she can brag of a million dollar court house, the best in the state, but rather in the progressiveness of the institutions which she houses.

Almost within city limits, the county is erecting a tuberculosis sanitarium. The building is practically ready for occupancy and has been christened "Nopeming," meaning out-in-the-woods in the Indian language. It was a humanitarian move that the sanitarium commission took when it laid out the plans for this institution. In conducting the institution, only a nominal fee will be charged. This gets away from the pauper idea and gives the self-respecting and worthy poor who are afflicted with tuberculosis a chance for treatment without suffering their pride to be humiliated by being removed to what is commonly known as the county tubercular hospital at the poor farm.

Caring for Poor.

The county has a poor commission of which it can be proud. As St. Louis county is one of the largest in the state and in view of the fact that the winters occasion much suffering among the poor especially on the range, there is expended about $60,000 annually for the helping of the needy poor. Although economy is practiced to the utmost, there is no slighting of those who are worthy and who are in want.

Then there is the Associated Charities, for which the county has provided quarters at the courthouse. This institution is a sort of a clearing house for all other charities of the city and county and is generally considered a committee to investigate the worthiness of the poor who apply for help, to prevent duplications and if possible to do away with pauperism.

City Rockpile.

A move in the right direction towards the abolishment of pauperism was developed about two years ago by the Associated Charities which evolved the idea of a city rockpile, where men in need of immediate work and money could be temporarily employed until they could secure other employment. The rockpile was started in removing rock from the granite hill at Fourteenth avenue west, where Superior street is being cut through.

Under the direction of Hon. J. D. Ensign, judge of the district court, the juvenile court is doing a quiet but splendid work and through its system of "giving the little boy and girl a chance," the salvation of hundreds of wayward boys and girls are worked out every year. Incorrigible children are committed to state institutions.

A valuable aid to the juvenile court and its work may be found in the work of the Duluth Humane society among children. Through the efficient and thorough work of Humane Agent "Bob" McKercher hundreds of young girls have been kept off the public streets at night away from bad company and the lure of the dance hall. The work is purely humanitarian in its character and extends not only to humans but to dumb animals. Throughout the county school children have been organized into Bands of Mercy for the protection of dumb animals.

The city has one of the finest boys' departments of the Y. M. C. A. in America, providing constant amusement and instruction for the young men and boys of the city. The Y. M. C. A. work and the Y. W. C. A. work, for the latter of which a money raising campaign is now in progress, are too well known to need comment. The Y. W. C. A. has recently been doing some very active extension work among the factory employes of the city.

The Children's home is supported by Duluth women. It is ample evidence that the homeless children of the city are not neglected. As an adjunct of this is the child welfare nurse supported by the Masonic order of the city.

Duluth has recently subscribed money for a new Bethel building to provide a shelter for the men of the woods.

The Salvation Army work in its many branches is carried on extensively here, and the industrial home for men out of work has saved many from the necessity of begging.

In the Neighborhood house at the West end the Twentieth Century club of women has the beginnings of a social settlement.

Social Centers.

The social center work is being actively taken up in the city, and the school buildings are being turned into social centers. At least two are in active operation, at the Salter school and at Hunter's Park, and neighborhood clubs have already been formed in them.

Two branches of the Women's Christian Temperance union are working actively for the suppression of the liquor traffic, and three active women's suffrage clubs are intent on putting Minnesota in the list of states where women may vote.

The city has recently adopted a charter amendment intended to permit free band concerts in the city parks and these will begin this coming summer.

Music and art are not being neglected. The Matinee Musicale society and other musical clubs are doing pioneer work in developing a musical taste and appreciation in the children of the city. The best musicians in the city are giving their time free of charge to instruct the pupils in the public schools in the appreciation of the best music. A committee of three public spirited men has brought many noted artists and orchestras to the city. Free concerts were given all winter in the Masonic temple. Duluth has the beginnings of a symphony orchestra. An art exhibit will be held in the city next month, at which some of the finest paintings in America will be shown, together with samples of handicraft.

It has countless clubs for women whose objects range from the study of literature to a very active and very efficient interest in public affairs. It has several thriving athletic clubs for boys and young men, co-operative loan societies and home-building societies, medical inspection of school children, a free tuberculosis dispensary, orphanages, a bureau of information for tourists, a rotary club working for every movement that will help the city to progress, an automobile club working for good roads, nurses to meet every train that arrives in the city and see that no evil befals strange young women, excellent street car service in modern cars, the best city water in the world, which it is already taking steps to safeguard, first-class theaters, a school system that is unequalled any place, a modern library with two branches in the parts of the city that need them most, a municipally-owned gas plant, good electric lighting service and a plan on foot to purchase the plant.

It has the best twelve months' climate in America, the most picturesque location for a city in America, trout fishing in the city limits, big game hunting in the suburbs, and about 80,000 people, who down in their hearts believe the city is the best city in America, but who have fallen into the habit of picking flaws in it.

Probably any reader of The Herald could sit down and add to the above list many things that have been overlooked, but it is sufficient to show the immense amount of public spirited, broad-minded constructive work in city building that has been in progress here during the last few years, and a study of it should be sufficient to turn any Duluth citizen into a booster such as would do credit to booster centers like Los Angeles, Seattle or Portland.

Hilles Issues Statement on Roosevelt and Harvester Affair.

Says President and Officers He Directed Caused Dropping of Suit.

Washington, May 18. — President Taft's secretary, Charles D. Hilles, appearing unannounced in Washington, went to the White House and gave out a statement concerning the delay in the prosecution of the International Harvester company during President Roosevelt's administration in 1907. It was not known here that Mr. Hilles had left President Taft's party in Ohio. He went to rejoin the president.

"I have come to Washington to get United States Attorney Townsend's statement in reference to the Harvester trust,' says the statemnt. Townsend, was, in 1907, one of the attorneys in the department of justice, and had made an investigation of charges against the International Harvester company.

"It shows conclusively" the statement continues, "that President Roosevelt compelled his attorney general to discontinue the Harvester prosecution in the fall of 1907, eighteen months prior to the colonel's retirement from office.

Who Were Responsible.

"President Roosevelt's term expired two years after the matter had been placed in the hands of the prosecuting officers as the result of an investigation. It is quite apparent from the record that the civil and criminal proceedings were about to begin; that about a year and a half before President Rosevelt went out of office, G. W. Perkins took a hand in matters and that in a remarkably short time thereafter, the whole matter was suppresed, stifled, strangled, or put through some other process which, by whatever name you call it, I have no doubt was quite satisfactory to the Harvester trust. If anybody was responsible for it besides President Roosevelt and officials acting under his instructions, it does not appear from the record."

Secretary Hilles' statement goes on to relate that on the receipt of the Townsend report in 1907, Attorney General Bonaparte took steps for the prosecution of the Harvester trust and some individuals. There was some delay, and in 1908 Mr. Townsend was abruptly ordered to take up other work and had to drop the Harvester matter.

"Admission of Guilt."

The Harvester people received permission to file an answer, which Hilles says was regarded as an admission of guilt, and Bonaparte refused to discuss the matter with Perkins, Smith and Roosevelt. Perkins and Smith saw the president, however, and shortly afterward Roosevelt ordered Bonaparte to take no action against the trust. The bureau of corporations investigation, it is charged, was merely an excuse to halt the prosecution.

WHAT OTHER CITIES ARE DOING

Activities of Other Municipalities, Which Might or Might Not Be Copied in Duluth.

THE establishment of a commission on municipal affairs for consideration of questions arising out of the franchises, finances and business methods of the city of Indianapolis was favored in resolutions adopted lately by the governing committee of the board of trade. E. H. Evans, president of the board of trade, suggested the commission plan to other organizations, and copies of resolutions similar to those adopted are now in the hands of the other commercial organizations for consideration. The proposed plan is that the board of trade, the commercial club, the merchants' association, the manufacturers' association and the Indianapolis Trade association each appoint a commissioner. Under this plan a commissioner would be appointed for five years, but the terms of no two commissioners would expire in the same year. The duty of members of the commission would be to obtain information concerning the affairs of the city and make recommendations to city authorities.

Duluth has no commission similar to that proposed for Indianapolis. The various commercial organizations, women's clubs, civic improvement clubs and other societies generally take a deep interest in the affairs of the city. They make individual recommendations to the city authorities and where the matter is of greater importance several of them frequently unite in presenting petitions. The benefits to be derived from such a central organization are apparent and the matter may be taken up here.

WEEKLY REVIEW OF TRADE

New York, May 18.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade today says: Apart from the backwardness of the season, the business situation as a whole maintains its recent favorable aspect. The most significant movement is that in the iron and steel trade, in which the West reports expanding demand with premiums being offered in some instances for prompt delivery. So far as this industry is concerned, there has been a complete breaking away from the hesitation that has hitherto prevailed and in all instances now point to a period of marked activity. There is a broadening demand from the railroads with rail contracts still an important factor and car builders are booked well into the fall. The larger steel plants are now operating close to capacity, heavy specifications having come forward on bars, plates, shapes, sheets and tin plates, while the output of iron is on a larger scale than ever before. Deliveries of steel materials are not so prompt as in recent weeks, and billets have advanced 50 cents a ton, with Bessemer billets commanding a slight premium over open hearth. Pipe and tube shipments this month are exceeding the movement in April and makers of wrought pipe have enough orders ahead to carry beyond the first half of the year.

Although there is considerable complaint in the dry goods market that the weather has been unfavorable for the retail distribution of seasonable merchandise, values of cotton goods hold generally steady and in woolens an advancing tendency is noted. In cottons trading in domestic staples was steady, but seasonably light. Drills and sheetings are firmer than print cloths of the finer convertibles. Staple ginghams are firm and tickings, denims, cheviots and skirting chambrays are being ordered moderately. Miscellaneous export trade with Manila and other points continues better than last year, but there is a little damand from China.

In leather pronounced strength continues to rule. Sharp advances have again occurred in about al varieties of hides, especially packers' stocks.

HOME RULE IS OPPOSED

Ulster Men Drilling to Fight Home Rule, If Necessary.

Guns and Ammunition Being Imported Into North of Ireland.

London, May 18.—Revelations by independent investigators in the north of Ireland lead a great many persons to believe that when, on the occasion of the recent big anti-home rule demonstration at Belfast, more than 100,000 Ulstermen raised their right hands and solemnly repeated after Sir Edward Carson the words: "Never, under any circumstances, will we submit to home rule," they were not swayed by the enthusiasm of the moment nor uttering a mere platitude.

Confronted with indisputable evidence of secret drillings by members of the Orange lodges, and apparently authentic statements from various sources that arms and ammunition are being quietly imported and sequestered throughout Ulster province, even the government is beginning to fear that there may, after all, be something in the boast, "Ulster will fight!"

Army Being Drilled.

One investigator who has just returned from a tour of the anti-home rule territory says:

"The machinery of war has only to be put into motion. At the call to arms Ulster will be able to put 250,000 trained men into the field, equal in numerical strength to the army used by Great Britain in subduing the Boers. I have seen Ulster men drilling and I have handled their rifles. The whole of the district is honeycombed with drill halls and rifle ranges. Every Orange lodge has its battalions and its instructors. The drilling is being done with a quietness that defies ridicule. Those engaged in raising and training the Ulster army do not boast about it, neither do they seek to disguise it. The army is not being drawn from one class of the community, but from all—shipyard hands, tradesmen and wealthy manufacturers, all mingle quietly together in the work of drill and musketry practice."

The government has been informed that arms and ammunition are arriving in large quantities and are being stored in the cellars of clubs and private houses. The cellar of one of the large hotels in Belfast is said to be a distributing depot. Most of the rifles are said to have come from New York. Thus far the government has done little in the way of interference. It is said that the government is aware of the identity of the commander-in-chief of the Ulster army and that he is being constantly shadowed by detectives.

Divided in Religion.

Ulster's case against home rule, which, regardless of the truth of the alleged military activities, has led many of the Orangemen to say openly that they would rather die fighting against it than live under it, may be summarized as follows:

Home rule would mean Rome rule.

It would involve the Roman Catholicizing of Irish education in all its branches.

It would injure Ulster's material prosperity—industrial, commercial and agricultural.

There is no national demand for home rule, because there has never been a homegeneous Irish nation. Ulster stands outside the Nationalist unit.

Ulster is loyal to the empire and home rule would weaken the imperial position.

The Nationalists' answer is:

Home rule would make Irishmen loyal as it has made Canadians loyal.

The general Irish spirit demands self government and that spirit cannot be eradicated.

At present the Irish people have not the slightest control over the 100,000 officials who spend $35,000,000 annually.

Ulster is not all Unionist, nor even overwhelmingly so. Sixteen of its thirty-three members in parliament are Nationalists.

Ulster is not pre-eminently prosperous, law abiding or intelligent, nor is it all Protestant.

An attachment for ordinary elevators has been patented to raise fire hose quickly to any floor of a building.

AS BAD AS BURGLARY

Enticing Away a Husband Held to Be Felony in Kansas.

Judge Imposes Jail Sentence and Fine on a "Vampire."

Kansas City, Kan., May 18.—The exercise of feminine wiles upon the father of a family by any person save the wife belongs in the category with burglary, arson, safe blowing and other felonies, according to a decision made by Judge John T. Sims in the Wyandotte county juvenile court.

Judge Sims fined Mrs. Ethel Shaffer $100 and sentenced her to serve ninety days in the county jail. She was charged by Mrs. C. W. Beach with having caused Beach to desert his family.

Beach is about 40 years old. He once was a member of the Kansas City, Kan., police force, later was a deputy county assessor and deputy county treasurer. He was the owner of a pool hall and had money in the bank, his wife says, when he became acquainted with Mrs. Shafer. Now he is in jail in Arkansas charged with forgery and his wife and two small daughters are dependent for support upon his 16-year-old son, Charles.

"We have been married nearly seventeen years and were prosperous and happy until he met this woman about a year ago," said Mrs. Beach.

Beach Arrested.

After the estrangement a year ago, Mrs. Beach swore to a complaint in the juvenile court charging her husband with non-support and Mrs. Shafer with contributory neglect, felonious under the Kansas statute. Beach was arrested and brought back from Oklahoma, but Mrs. Shafter was not arrested. Upon promise to support his family Beach was paroled by Judge Sims. He failed to do so, however. It was testified, and several weeks ago he was arrested and sentenced by Judge Carlisle in police court to serve 300 days in the city workhouse. A few days ago he was taken to Arkansas on a warrant charging forgery. Recently Mrs. Shaffer went to the workhouse to take him some clothes, it is said, and while she was there the wife arrived.

"Arrest her," the wife cried. "She's responsible for his being here. There's a warrant for her. I swore to it a year ago."

Old Warrant Found.

Mrs. Shaffer was held in a police station until the next day, when the old warrant was found. Mrs. Beach recited her grievances before Judge Sims. She produced three dozen letters alleged to have been written by Mrs. Shaffer to Beach and found by the wife in a suitcase and a ring which she said she found in his pocket. She also produced as witnesses neighbors who testified that they had carried notes and presents for Beach to Mrs. Shaffer.

"In one letter written while my husband was in jail for not supporting the children, she advised him to 'taffy me up' until he could get out and then treat me all right until he could get me to withdraw the charge against her," Mrs. Beach said. "As a result of her attentions to my husband, her own husband left her."

Wrote Loving Letters.

"Did you write this letter beginning 'my darling,' and in which you call this man 'your baby'?" the judge asked Mrs. Shaffer, opening the first of a packet placed in his hands. Mrs. Shaffer did not deny that the writing was hers. The judge then imposed sentence. Mrs. Shaffer, handsomely dressed, was led from the court room weeping. Her attorney, A. L. Clotfelter, gave notice of appeal and bond was given.

"The higher judiciary may reverse my decisions if it sees fit," said Judge Sims, "but the woman whose conduct savors of the original of Kipling's 'Vampire' poem can expect no mercy in this court. In Kansas the exercise of feminine wiles upon the father of a family by any person save the wife is a felony just as much as blowing a safe."

RICH FIND BY NEW BALTIC

Encounters Copper Ground of Excellent Grade on 500-Foot Level.

Lake Mine Slowly Rounding Into Shape for Heavier Production.

Houghton, Mich., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The new Baltic Copper company, operating in the presumed horizon of the Baltic lode, has encountered copper ground of excellent grade in a formation lying several hundred feet west of the lode upon which work heretofore has been centered. The new find was encountered crosscutting west on the 500-foot level and, where opened by the crosscut, disclosed a width of thirty-five feet. The first ten feet next to the footwall contact is exceptionally rich. Drifting is in progress. Work elsewhere is centered in the crosscut, which is driving into the presumed horizon of the Mayflower and St. Louis lodes. The shaft remains bottomed just below the 500-foot level.

Indiana.

The Indiana continues to open excellent copper ground in the felsite bed opened by crosscut and drifts on the 600-foot level. The copper occurs largely in the form of fine mineral with a fair proportion of the heavier barrel work, small masses and nuggets ranging up to thirty and fifty pounds weight. The shaft is sinking without interruption and has attained a depth of about 800 feet.

Lake.

The Lake is slowly rounding into shape for heavier production. Output is at the rate of about 300 tons of rock daily, and it is expected will reach 500 tons before July 1. The yield has gradually declined to between sixteen and eighteen pounds of fine copper per ton of rock milled, as a result of improper selection. Developments underground continue to show much the same character of rock opened in the past, there being stretches of extraordinary richness and stretches of lean ground as well, the two forming a proportion that should yield not far from twenty pounds of fine copper per ton of rock milled. In the extension of the north drifts a decided swing to the westward is noted, with strong indications that the Lake bed makes into South Lake territory less than 2,000 feet north of the Lake shaft. The section of the Lake bed in the immediate vicinity of the shaft has a strike almost due north and south as has been noted.

South Lake.

The South Lake has levied an assessment of $2 per share payable June 3 by stockholders of record June 1. The call will yield the company approximately $12,000, which will be expended in development work. An exploratory shaft was started about a year ago, but was abandoned at shallow depth, owing to lack of funds, and the property has since lain idle. Stephen R. Dow has been elected president of the company and R. M. Edwards has been made superintendent, and their connection with the property is positive assurance that the new work about to begin will be pushed intelligently and vigorously.

Mass.

The Mass has voted to sell 920 acres of its mineral land to a new company to be incorporated with a share capitalization of 100,000 shares. The lands will be sold for not less than $200 per acre. Mass shareholders will be given the right to subscribe for the shares of the new company, which will, without delay, begin exploratory work in the horizon of the Adventure and Algomah lodes. The acreage acquired by the new company occupies a most interesting geological position, and there is every reason to expect that one or more copper-bearing formations of commercial value will be uncovered. The Mass Consolidated company will confine itself to the development of the Evergreen series of lodes. Development work has been highly encouraging for more than a year past and has resulted in the creation of ground reserves such as the company never enjoyed under the former management. Recent developments in the Butler lode are particularly encouraging. The mine is shipping between 200 and 250 tons of rock daily, and adding about twice that amount to reserves.

Laurium.

The Laurium is centering activity in development work in the Kearsarge lode opened by shaft and drifts to a depth of approximately 1,500 feet. Conditions have gradually improved with depth and the showing at the moment on the twelfth, thirteenth and fourteenth levels has never been excelled elsewhere in this and adjoining properties. There has been some talk of opening a second shaft to the northward of the single shaft now opened in this acreage, but no definite announcement is forthcoming and it is altogether likely that no work of this kind will be done in the immediate future. The La Salle, operating next south, abandoned work in this formation several months ago, and according to reports, will turn its attention to exploratory work in the eastern limits of the property and in an endeavor to locate the southerly extensions of the Mayflower and St. Louis lodes.

Quincy.

The Quincy has awarded a contract to the American Bridge & Iron company for the erection of a modern steel shaft-rockhouse to be erected at the No. 9 shaft. This shaft is sinking on the extension of the Pewabic lode and has attained a depth of about 2,000 feet. The shaft is not yielding a regular production, and to a depth of 1,700 feet was generally without encouragement. The situation at 2,000 feet has materially bettered and may be expected to show further improvement with still greater depth. A drift north on the twenty-third level from No. 8 shaft has crossed the line of the No. 9 shaft and for some time has been driving in copper ground of excellent grade. This level will be reached by No. 9 shaft in about three months' time. The conditions obtaining at greater depth in this end of the Quincy property are in a measure disclosed by drifts north on the fortieth and forty-second levels running out of No. 8 or Mesnard shaft. These openings are developing ground of excellent richness.

Superior.

The Superior continues to open copper ground of exceptional richness in the so-called West Superior lode, a formation lying west of and parallel of the Superior main vein at distances ranging from 15 to 50 feet. The West lode, while not as wide as the main vein, is the equal of the latter in richness. Both lodes are producing about the same proportion of rock, with net results in favor of the West lode, due largely to the physical condition of the latter.

FIRST UNIT IS WORKING

Butte & Superior Company's New Concentrator Is Now in Operation.

Second Unit Expected to Be Ready in About a Month.

Butte, Mont., May 18.—The first unit of the 1,000-ton mill being erected by the Butte & Superior company was put in operation this week, and the second 500-ton unit will be ready in about a month. The management is confident that the new mill will do all that is expected of it in operation and large recovery by the new oil flotation process, originated by James B. Hyde of California.

The mill is designed to treat 1,000 tons of ore per day and consists of a crushing plant, jigs, a very complete system of hydraulic classification, a slime plant, which is the oil flotation system, Wilfley tables, which will be used only to separate the lead from the zinc, and storage bins with a capacity of 2,500 tons, etc.

The ore is first reduced by rolls to a six-mesh and after jigging the tails are reground and reduced to a forty mesh and the tailings from the fine jigs again ground down to 100-mesh and treated by the oil flotation process, which is somewhat similar to the Australian flotation practice, but different from that in essential features. After the ore is reduced to the 100-mesh it is thickened in settling tanks to a consistency of three parts water and one part ore. The product is then mixed with a small quantity of oil and sulphuric acid and agitated very severely. The gases generated by the acid from the carbonates in the ore, together with the entangled air particles from agitation in the mixing boxes, forms a spongy pulp of the sulphides, whose specific gravity is sufficiently light to allow it to float on the surface of the water, while the silica, which has no affinity for oil, drops to the bottom and is discarded as tails.

Simple Method.

"It is as simple and nice a method of concentration of sulphide ore as can be conceived and the only extra expense is for oil and acid," said M. W. Atwater, superintendent of the Butte & Superior, under whose direction the new mill is being erected.

The Hyde system has been used successfully by the Butte & Superior at the Basin reduction plant, owned by the United Copper company, but that plant is antequated and dilapidated, besides it was designed to treat copper ore and has not sufficient settling capacity to enable the Butte & Superior to treat its jig tailings. The rental for the Basin plant also is heavy and for these reasons the Butte & Superior has been gradually closing down the Basin mill and for some time has been shipping only 200 tons of ore per day, while putting 350 tons a day into a stock pile at the mine with the object in view of having a stock pile large enough to keep the new mill running continuously, while a change in hoists is being made, which is contemplated soon.

The present hoist is now working to its full capacity, the mine being 1,600 feet deep, but the new engine, which is to be delivered in June, is designed for a five-ton skip and with power to work to a depth of 3,500 feet.

The developments in the mine during recent weeks have added enormously to the value of the property and ore reserves. The work is at present confined to the Black Rock claim, which is developed by a shaft 1,600 feet deep, with levels at 100-foot intervals, except that there is no level at the 1,500. On the 1,200-foot level the vein has been drifted on and opened the full length of the Black Rock claim, 1,500 feet, and at both ends the ore bodies are large and strong. How far beyond that they extend is not known, but the company owns 3,000 feet of ground east of the Black Rock claim and 1,500 feet to the west. The vein is almost vertical and shows in the shaft at the 400 and at the 1,300. Mining is done on the 900, 1,000, 1,100, 1,200, 1,300 and 1,400, and the 1,600 has been opened sufficiently to show a continuation of the ore bodies and values found on the upper levels.

Important Dtvelopment.

An important recent development has been made on the 900 level, where a three-compartment raise is being made in which, 60 feet above the level, a body of ore has been found 18 feet wide. This is the highest point at which ore has been found. Although there is but one vein in the Black Rock ground, there are two or more large and separate bodies or leases of ore. The south ore body on the 900 has opened a distance of 400 feet and it has an average width of 12 feet of 18 per cent zinc ore. The north ore body has been opened 200 feet to the east, the average width being 25 feet and the yield better than 20 per cent zinc. The face of the east opening is still in ore. From 90 to 100 tons of ore are hoisted daily from the 900 level.

The 1,000 level shows up about the same as the 900 as to the south ore body, while on the north the ore body has been opened a distance of 400 feet, the average width being 30 feet, with the east face still in the same character of ore, running about 20 per cent zinc. Seventy-five tons a day are mined from the 1,000 foot level.

The 1,100 is a small level at present, the development being by winze and a short sill floor, showing only the north ore body, where it is about as wide and of the same quality as on the 1,000 level. The 1,100 level yields about 25 tons a day at present.

Eighteen Per Cent Ore.

On the 1,200 level the south ore body is about 800 feet long, about 100 feet in the vein at that point having been found barren. The average width is 20 feet of 18 per cent ore. The north ore body is opened a distance of 600 feet, making the extreme opening on the two ore bodies 1,500 feet. The average width of the north ore body is about 35 feet of 20 per cent ore, although at places the width is more than 60 feet. Both faces are in ore. The 1,200 level yields about 125 tons a day.

On the 1,300 level the south ore body is 400 feet long and the north has been opened 100 feet, the average width being 20 feet of uniform quality. About 100 tons a day come from this level.

The south ore body on the 1,400 level has been opened 600 feet, having a width of 30 feet of 22 per cent zinc. The north vein is 300 feet long, with an average width of 35 feet. The ore body in the east end is now 75 feet wide and all still in the Black Rock claim. At the west end the ore body is 20 feet wide in the face of the opening and Mr. Atwater regards the showing on this level the most important that has been made in six months. About 150 tons a day are mined from the 1,400.

The 1,600 has been developed only sufficiently to show a continuation of the ore bodies and the character and quality of ore disclosed on the upper levels, except that three distinct bodies have been opened on the 1,600, but one is believed to be an offshoot from one of the larger ore bodies.

"Conservative estimates show that there are 2,000,000 tons of ore in sight in the Black Rock mine," said Mr. Atwater. "The general average of the ore is about 20 per cent, with seven ounces of silver to the ton. We also make money out of the gold and lead as by-products, but almost nothing out of the copper. The by-products yield about 75 cents to the ton of ore."

RICH MINES OF COEUR D'ALENE

Interstate Opens Up Three Feet of Silver-Lead Ore.

Spokane, Wash., May 18.—Before the close of the year, if present indications are to be relied upon, the number of producing mines in the Coeur d'Alene district will be increased by two which promise to become among the most important silver-lead producers in the country. The first of the new properties to make good is the Interstate, which has opened up three feet of the richest silver-lead ore ever found in the district, and it has been announced that the Tamarack & Chespeake property will resume operations within a month or two.

The Interstate Silver-Lead company is developing a large property, and recently encountered an extensive shoot of high-grade ore in the property and has begun an upraise on this ore. The strike was made at a depth of 1,200 feet, so that some idea of the tonnage possibilities may be obtained.

"We have made a large and important strike in the Interstate, and we are all feeling very much gratified," said M. G. Rodearmel, vice president of the company, recently. "It is impossible at this time to estimate the value of the strike, though we know it to be large. At last report the drift had been run in the highgrade ore for a distance of fifty feet and the ore averages 60 per cent lead and twenty-five to thirty ounces of silver to the ton. The high-grade ore averaging two feet in width and fifty feet laterally, at a depth of 1,200 feet, means a very large tonnage. Outside of this ore we have a very large tonnage of concentrating ore."

NORTH BUTTE IS GETTING BETTER

Various North Veins in the Property Showing Improvement.

A private dispatch from Butte has reached Thompson, Towle & Co. of Boston stating that on the 1,800-foot level of the Croesus vein eighteen feet of first class ore is being opened; that connection has just been made with the High Ore shaft on the 2,500-foot level; that the developments on the various north veins continue good and that the physical condition of the North Butte mine is showing steady improvement.

"The opening up of such a width of first-class ore in the Croesus vein would appear to be a development of considerable importance, for on the upper levels of the vein the ore has been much lower in copper contents than any of the lower levels, although it has shown high silver values.

"A steady improvement has been made in the ore in each successive level opened on the Croesus in depth. This increase in some of the important shoots has amounted to approximately 2 per cent, while the width and silver values have remained fairly constant.

"The developments during 1911 on the Croesus was very favorable, and some valuable ore bodies have been opened. This vein is one of the most promising of those lying in the North territory, and with the exception the Snowstorm developments have been the best of any situated in this portion of the property.

"On the lower levels of the Edith May vein, namely, the 2,600 and 2,800-foot levels, work is in progress to reach the fault planes, where it is expected that a better grade of ore will be encountered than that which has been opened up to this time. On the 2,600-foot level drifting on the lode has been proceeding slowly owing to poor ventilation. This work should now proceed without further delay, and also crosscutting will be started on the 2,800-foot level, now that connection has been made with the High Ore shaft which will give good air in these workings.

"These two developments which will be taking place in the near future are very important ones for North Butte and the results will be watched with interest."

RECEIVER ASKED FOR THE STEWART

Alleged Heinze Has Misappropriated Stock and Funds of Company.

Wallace, Idaho, May 18.—Alleging that F. August Heinze, without consideration, had transferred to U. U. Hart of Salt Lake City a large amount of the treasury stock of the Stewart Mining company; that he had dissipated the assets of the company in other ways and converted its earnings to his own use, suit has been filed here by Edward J. Carter of Spokane, asking for the appointment of a receiver for the company.

In addition to Heinze and the Stewart company, Secretary-Treasurer M. W. Bacon of Butte and Directors Stanley Gifford and W. L. Dunham of New York are made defendants in the suit.

It is alleged in the complaint that at a meeting of directors of the company in New York July 20, 1911, of which Carter, a director, received no notice, 225,000 shares of the treasury stock of the Stewart company were transferred to Hart under an agreement whereby Heinze, on behalf of the company, agreed to give to Hart that amount of stock provided Hart secured a smelting contract whereby Stewart ores would be treated at 10 cents per ton less than the existing rate, secure certain mining ground, mills, etc., for the company, and arrange with the State Savings bank of Butte to take up the personal notes of W. Mc-C. White and Heinze.

The complaint alleges that the transfer of the stock was a fraud, because no consideration was paid, and that it was a subterfuge to enable Heinze to secure control of the 225,000 shares of treasury stock.

The complaint also alleges that all the company's earnings, amounting to from $40,000 to $50,000, of late have been taken by Heinze, who has refused to make an accounting.

NO MERGER PROBABLE

Report of Copper Combine in the Near Future Unfounded.

May Be Understanding As to Prices and Production.

Butte, Mont., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The recent visit to this city of John D. Ryan's party, the meeting with Vice President Agassiz and General Manager McNaughton of the Calumet & Hecla company and the joining of those gentlemen with Mr. Ryan in acquiring large interests at Thompson's Falls for the erection of a power plant capable of developing 46,000-horse power, together with the entertainment of Mr. Ryan and the other distinguished men at Salt Lake by D. C. Jackling and those closely associated with the Guggenheim interests, has again started the report that there is every prospect of a consolidation of the big copper companies of the country. While there is no doubt that the Guggenheim and Amalgamated people are on more friendly terms today than at any time in recent years, there is every reason to believe that the time is yet some way off when any actual consolidation will take place. The various interests are undoubtedly being drawn more closely together, and it is just possible that there may be an understanding as to prices and production, but beyond this nothing exists, or is likely to exist for at least some time to come. While in this city the Calumet & Hecla officials, as the guests of Mr. Ryan visited the mines, inspected some of the underground workings and went to Anaconda, where they were shown every courtesy at the instance of Mr. Ryan and explained every detail in connection with the operation of the big Washoe smelter.

Stewart Mine.

One of the directors of Heinze's Stewart mine in the Coeur d'Alenes district reports that notwithstanding every effort is being made to keep the stock down, the property is in very fine condition and that it is earning $50,000 a month net. He says that the improvements and the installation of the electric tramway to convey the ore to the mill has brought about a saving of $200 a month.

Assay Office's Report.

The returns of the state assay office for the month of April shows that gold and silver bullion to the amount of $158,649.13 in value was deposited, which is an increase of $33,614.73 over April of the previous year. Madison county leads in the production with $57,800.83, while Fergus county, where are located some of the big placer companies, comes second with $41,475.31. In Madison county is located the property of the Conrey Dredging company and it is at the present time operating four dredges, one of them being the largest of its kind in the country.

Davis-Daly.

The Davis-Daly company is now drifting on the 1,900-foot level of the Colorado mine and it is expected in a short time to encounter the same rich body of ore which is being mined on the 1,700-foot level and from which the shipments are now being made to the East Butte smelter.

The Wage Question.

No definite action has yet been taken on the wage question, but it is generally understood that the Miners' union of this city and the Mill and Smelter-men's union of Anaconda stand ready to indorse the action of the Mill and Smeltermen's union of Great Falls in a willingness to enter into another contract with the Amalgamated Copper company. The Great Falls union also decided to ask for an increase in wages of 50 cents a day, but so far as at present can be learned the request has not yet been formally presented to the company's officials. The Miners' union would like to secure an increase of 50 cents a day and it is believed that the whole matter of increase is now under consideration. C. F. Kelley, vice president of the Anaconda company, left for New York a few days ago and it is understood that while he is in that city the matter will be taken up with Mr. Ryan. There is a general feeling among those who are quite competent to express an opinion that there will not be any serious disagreement among the unions and the company in arriving at an understanding as to the future. The radical element of the Miners' union in this city has already been thoroughly eradicated and the men with homes and families are in possession of the affairs of the organization.

Another Extension Proposed.

Although General Manager Gallwey of the Butte, Anaconda & Pacific Railway company refuses to confirm the report that the Anaconda company proposes to extend its line through to the Philipsburg district from the Georgetown district, there is every reason to believe that the report is true. The Philipsburg district, which is located in Granite county, in times gone by was one of the wealthiest in the whole Western country, and there are today several properties showing a fine grade of shipping ore, but the long wagon haul to the point for shipment makes it so expensive that there is no money after the smelter and other charges are deducted. With the Butte, Anaconda & Pacific railway into this district the ore could be hauled to the Washoe smelter and treated at a fair profit. Surveyors are now at work on the route, and it is stated that the extension will be built before the close of the present year if the owners of property do not demand exorbitant prices for the right-of-way. At the rate the work on the Georgetown extension is proceeding it will be completed in about three months.

BOTH QUANTITY AND QUALITY

Good News on New Ore Body of Calumet & Arizona.

Bisbee, Ariz., May 18.—There has seldom been better news as to the Calumet & Arizona properties than that of the past week. This is true both as to the size of the ore body and the richness of the ore. Both quantity and quality are there. This news has resulted from the recent development work on the 1,300-foot level, where work has been in progress for some time. It is stated that the daily assays of the ores taken from this development work are averaging about 20 per cent. Were it merely a pocket that had been encountered there would be nothing highly remarkable about such assays as small deposits of even richer ore are by no means uncommon, but the work thus far done has developed the fact that there is a large ore body, that such body extends some 200 or 300 feet further than has been heretofore known. The Briggs has been proved to be one of the richest of the Calumet & Arizona company's great holdings. The extent of the ore body has not been fully determined, its limits not yet reached, but the knowledge of something of its size has been obtained.

From Douglas comes the information that materials for construction of the new smelter are arriving and that work is being pushed. Reports of progress in this construction work may now be expected to become in order though the work is of such great magnitude that much time will be required to complete it. With the new smelter completed recent discoveries and the vast store of ore that has been and is being blocked out, it appears certain that in due time there will be a great increase in the output of this company.

DEVELOPMENT OF HIDDEN CREEK

Grandby Decides to Appropriate $500,000 From Next Year's Earnings.

An appropriation of $500,000 from next years earnings has been decided upon by the Granby Consolidated Mining company directors to cover the cost of developing and equipping the Hidden Creek property. After the exhaustion of this appropriation new financing may be resorted to, but until 1913 the company's needs have been provided for. Of the $500,000, $309,000 will be devoted to surface equipment and development, and $200,000 for mine equipment and operations. A 2,000 ton smelter will be erected to handle the Hidden Creek ores from which an ultimate capacity of 30,000,000 pounds of copper annually should come. Over $1,000,000 has been spent on the new property. Of this amount $600,000 went for the purchase of the mine and of the $400,000 balance, $200,000 went into surface work and an equal amount into underground development. With the $500,000 just provided for, there will have been spent on the property at least $1,500,000. The new money will provide for dock, steamers, etc., while a one and one-half mile railroad will connect docks, mines and smelter.

PRESENT DAY CELEBRITIES WHO BECAME FAMOUS IN LATER LIFE

Fanelli, the Musical Genius Whose Fame as a Composer Is Due to the Merest Accident—Walter Greaves, the Long-Forgotten Pupil and Former Friend of Whistler, Whose Recent "Discovery" Has Been the Reigning Sensation in the World of Art—William De Morgan, the Famous Novelist Who Began to Write Fiction at the Age of Sixty-Five—Captain Morris Schaff, the Civil War Veteran Who Has Achieved Fame as a Historian—Charles E. Written For The Herald By E. J. Edwards ("Holland.")

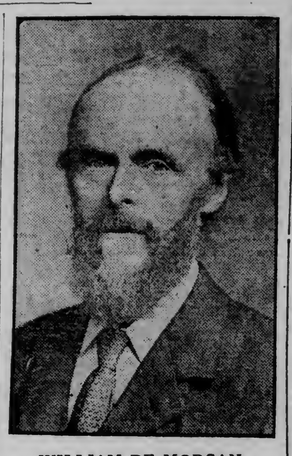
(Copyright, 1912, by E. J. Edwards.)

WHEN BYRON said that he awoke to find himself famous he described in a picturesque and immortal phrase an occurrence of a sort that has always fascinated the onlooking world. In most cases fame comes gradually, and by the time a man is really a celebrity he has become used to it. But what must be the sensations of the man who finds himself famous over night? This is the query felt, if not precisely articulated, by most persons, undoubtedly, when instances of the sort are brought to their attention. Quite irrespective of the man and his particular achievement, the situation appeals to the imagination because of its emotional and dramatic aspects.

And if this is true of cases in which fame has been achieved suddenly, it is still more so in those cases in which the achievement has not only been sudden, but belated. Such a case as that of the late George Du Maurier is an example. There was a man who had spent the best years of his life as an illustrator, producing pen and ink sketches as a matter of regular routine, making a comfortable living and maintaining a position of prominence in his art, but never dreaming of worldwide literary fame. He began to write late in life, urged thereto by some of his literary friends, who thought that his fantastic ideas would make interesting reading. "Trilby" made his name a household word, and when he died he was one of the most famous and successful novelists of his day.

Fame For Fanelli After Thirty Years of Obscurity.

Recently there have been several remarkable instances of the achievement of wide and sudden fame comparable in some ways to the case of Du Maurier, although differing in some respects, but all of them having a dramatic and even romantic interest. One of the most remarkable, as it is the most recent, of these is the case of Ernest Fanelli, composer of orchestral music that has been proclaimed by eminent critics to be masterly. The discovery of Fanelli was one of the sensations of Paris during the early spring of this year. The story of this man's life is one of hope deferred, then blasted, of years of misery, and then of sudden recognition and acclaim—a truly pathetic story which has been paralleled over and over again in music although seldom with the happy issue that is here recorded.



WILLIAM DE MORGAN,
Who Became Famous as a Novelist After He Was 65.

Last winter M. Gabriel Pierne, the leader of the famous Colonne orchestra of Paris and himself one of the most famous of living French composers, advertised for a copyist to write out the separate parts for the orchestral players from full manuscript scores. This kind of work is in one sense the dreariest sort of mechanical drudgery, yet it requires, besides the ability to write a legible musical manuscript, a certain special knowledge of music. It is the last resort of unfortunate musicians. Among those who applied for the work to Mr. Pierne was a tall, somewhat awkward-appearing man of middle age. He produced as a specimen of what he could do in the copying line a manuscript orchestral score.

M. Pierne cast a few casually critical glances over the pages and seemed to be satisfied. But suddenly something he had not noticed before seemed to arrest his attention and he began to study the notes closely and with evidence of rapidly growing interest. Presently he looked up and said quickly and somewhat excitedly:

"Who composed this music?"

"I did," was the reply.

"Has it ever been performed?"

"Never."

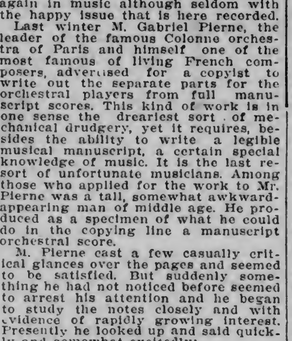
"And you have written other things?"

"Yes, a good many scores."

"Which have not been performed?"

"Exactly so, monsieur."

Now M. Pierne has the ability possessed by highly trained musicians to "hear with the eye." Glancing over those pages of manuscript, he had heard with his eye certain bits of melody that struck him as new and beautiful. A few minutes closer inspection revealed to him the harmonies and the orchestra coloring and of his paintings, and he simply rolled the canvases up and laid them away in odd corners about his house. As the years passed, it became more and more difficult for him to sell his oil paintings, but he continued to work in that medium just the same for the love of it.



GOVERNOR S. E. BALDWIN
Of Connecticut.

Which is the True View?

One man looking out upon life through the dimmed eyes of dyspepsia is dead-sure to see things seriously dark and threatening.

Another, viewing the world through "lamps" lit with the clear light of health, sees men and things steadily growing better and his being here a blessed privilege.

So, we see how much perspective hinges upon health.

All authority has agreed that with normal assimilation of food the rest of the body will take care of itself.

ASSOCIATE JUSTICE CHARLES E. HUGHES AND MRS. HUGHES.

The discovery of Walter Greaves is credited to a woman of taste in matters of art, a foreigner who happened to be visiting in England a year ago. One day she went into a second-hand book store in the Chelsea district, and was struck by a certain quality in an oil painting that was hung in the place. There was something about it that mysteriously suggested Whistler to her, and yet there was something in it also quite distinct from Whistler.

Learning from the shopkeeper that the artist who painted the picture was Walter Greaves, whose name was entirely unknown to her, she said.

"Have you any more of his work?"

"Yes," the shopkeeper replied, "about fifty oil paintings, besides a good many watercolor drawings and etchings."

After examining some of these, she came to the conclusion that she had stumbled upon something interesting. She consulted the manager of one of the famous London galleries and induced him to come and see the unknown artist's work. The result of the inspection was that the manager took over the whole collection at a figure very satisfactory to the shopkeeper who had begun to regard it as just so much unsalable rubbish.

Then one day last May the works thus acquired were put on exhibition in a well known London gallery. The first day of the exhibition about a dozen persons dropped in to see the pictures. One of these was an old gentleman attired in a well worn frock coat and wearing a flowing silk tie that had once been white, but was now a faded yellow. It was Walter Greaves, presenting then the same appearance that had been familiar to residents of certain parts of the Chelsea district for years. He probably did not feel greatly inspirited when he returned home by the evidences he had witnessed of public interest in him. The public evidently wasn't interested at all.

But the next day he went back to see how things were going. It is not altogether easy to imagine what must have been the old gentleman's astonishment at the scene that confronted him when he reached the galleries. The place was crowded, and in the throng the wealth and aristocracy of England were well represented. Great ladies and distinguished men were studying his canvases and discussing their merits. Writers for the newspapers were there eager to ply him with questions about his life and work.

What had happened to cause this sudden interest? Simply this: That morning there had appeared in the Times an article reviewing the exhibition and hailing Greaves as an unknown master. Over night he had become famous.

After that, his pictures sold at figures that almost took his breath away. During the past winter some of his works were exhibited in this country. Fame has placed him in easy circumstances, but it has not greatly altered the tenor of his life. He has gone on painting since he became celebrated just as he painted in the days of his obscurity.

Won Fame as a Novelist at 65.

William De Morgan, the English novelist, is one of the most striking examples of the man to whom fame has come suddenly and late. As in the cases of Fanelli and Greaves, accident played a part in bringing about his triumph, but, unlike them, his celebrity came to him not through his life work, but through a departure from it. From his youth until his 65th year, Mr. De Morgan was an artist, a maker of beautiful things in glass and clay. For many years he made a peculiar kind of artistic tiling, the process for producing which he discovered and perfected, and which was known by his name. The De Morgan tiles were highly esteemed, and his chief reputation was in connection with them.

When he was 65 years of age it occurred to him to try whether he could write fiction. He had always been a great admirer of Dickens and Thackeray, and had read their works over and over again, but it had never occurred to him before that he might write a novel. He wrote a couple of chapters as an experiment, and on reading them over decided that he couldn't write fiction. Perhaps most men in such a case would have given the manuscript up in disgust. Mr. De Morgan did not do that. If he had done it most of us would never have heard of him. He simply laid the manuscript aside.

Some time after this, when Mr. De Morgan and his wife were in Florence spending a part of the year, the manuscript turned up along with some papers relating to household accounts and various business matters which they had sent to them from England. It fell into Mrs. De Morgan's hands and she read it and encouraged her husband to finish it. That was how "Joseph Vance" came to be written. Its publication was likewise the result of a sort of accident. Mr. De Morgan sent it, written in his own hand, to a publisher, only to have it returned. The suggestion was made to him that it would have a better chance with the publishers if it were typewritten. Accordingly, he sent it to an estblishment where such work was done. The manager of the establishment soon had cause to complain over the way the work of typing the novel was being done. The girls who were doing the work had become absorbed in the story itself, and were laughing and crying over it so that they could not attend properly to business.

This incident came to the ears of a prominent publisher. "I think that is a novel I shall want," the publisher said when he heard about it. And that is how "Joseph Vance" came to be published. Its success was instantaneous and enormous, and Mr. De Morgan became famous almost in a day.

The Civil War Veteran Who Has Become a Historian.

Capt. Morris Schaff of Boston is one of those to whom fame has come late. It did not come to him with the dramatic suddenness that characterized its advent in the instances already mentioned, but it did come rapidly enough to have for him some of the elements of surprise. It is only a few years since Capt. Schaff as a writer was unknown. Today he is recognized by competent judges as one of the writers on the Civil war whose work, by reason of its historical value and its literary charm, seems likely to be permanent.

Capt. Schaff was graduated from West Point in the first year of the Civil war, and went directly from the military school to the front. He served in the regular army of the United States throughout the conflict, and gained the brevet of captain in 1864 for gallant and meritorious service in the battle of the Wilderness. He remained in the army until 1871, when he resigned. He had attained the full rank of captain five years earlier. For nearly twenty years he has held office in Massachusetts as a member of the gas and electric light commission of that state.

After Capt. Schaff had gained fame as a writer, a prominent military man of the East, after speaking of the accuracy from a historical point of view, and the vividness and charm from a literary point of view of Schaff's writings, said: "I remember seeing Schaff during the war. He was a handsome, fair and golden-haired young man, with a wonderfully bright and a remarkably alert manner. He always seemed to be seeing something interesting somewhere around, no matter where he happened to be."

Capt. Schaff was past 65 years of age when he began to be known as a writer.

A Supreme Court Justice to Whom Fame Came Suddenly.

Great fame in American political life came to no man of recent times more suddenly than it did to Associate Justice Charles E. Hughes of the United States supreme court. In the early part of 1905, Justice Hughes, although he had been practicing law in New York for nearly twenty years, was hardly known even in that city outside his legal profession. Three years later he was one of the most famous of Americans, was governor of the state of New York, and that state's candidate for the Republican nomination for the presidency.

Justice Hughes career illustrates the fact that a man may have a very high, although very limited, reputation in a profession which some peculiarly favorable circumstances only is needed to expand into a wide celebrity. Justice Hughes was known, for example, to lawyers in New York in 1905 as a master of corporation law, and a man who had a wonderful ability to analyze and clear up complicated propositions of law and business. Lawyers had seen what he had done, but the general public had not, for the simple reason that the legal work he had performed had not been in connection with matters that figured prominently in the news.

When therefore the Stevens commission appointed by the New York legislature in 1905 to investigate the gas companies in New York city, announced that it had retained just the right man for counsel and then said his name was Charles E. Hughes, the great majority of New Yorkers asked, "Who is Hughes?"

Mr. Hughes conducted the gas investigation with the same searching and clarifying analysis that he had previously applied to similar complicated problems in his private practice. The insurance investigation which followed was a more striking and far more widely followed exhibition of his powers. Before it had proceeded far he was a national figure, of whom the politicians were prophesying that the highest office in the land might be his. He had spent twenty years practicing law in comparative obscurity, in about as many weeks he had gained world wide fame.

Other Instances of the Fame That Was Belated.

Not many days ago it was announced that Gen. Homer Lea, seriously ill, was returning to this country from China, where for more than ten years he had been identified with the revolutionary movement. The Chinese have long regarded this young American as a great man. It is only now that the revolution in China has finally triumphed that quite suddenly Americans have begun to take the same view of him.

It cannot be said that Homer Lea has been unknown all these years. He was known, but he was not taken seriously. It seemed impossible that a man handicapped as he was by a puny and frail physique could be a great soldier and when he returned from China in 1901 after having attempted the relief of the Emperor Kwang Hsu and announced that he was lieutenant-general in the Chinese reform army people were inclined to smile. For years after that he was a man of mystery, heard of now and then in out-of-the-way places in China. Today he is spoken of as the man who created the new Chinese army, which less than six months ago overthrew the Manchu dynasty and made possible the establishment of a republic.

A notable instance of the belated achievement of political fame is the case of Governor Simeon E. Baldwin of Connecticut, whom the Democrats of that state recently designated as their choice for the presidency. Two years ago Governor Baldwin was retired from the bench of the supreme court of errors of Connecticut, having reached the age limit of service—seventy years. The Democrats immediately nominated him for governor of Connecticut, and he was elected, although all the other candidates on the Democratic state ticket were defeated. For a year past he has been mentioned among the Democratic presidential possibilities.

Work for the Young Women's Christian association has been the chief thought of a large number of Duluth women this past week, and next week with the continuation of the campaign for $8,000, which they are carrying on, little social activity will be sandwiched in. More than 100 women were entertained at a luncheon at the association building Tuesday and 100 young business women of the city were guests of the association Wednesday evening at a banquet in preparation for this campaign and now the women and girls are working for the $8,000 and 500 new members and are confident of success.

The close of the campaign will be on Friday and all memberships must be in by then and all pledges signed by 5 o'clock on that day to be counted in the results of the campaign.

Rummage Sale.

Serving a threefold purpose of adding to the funds for the little tots at the children's home, of giving many good articles at prices so very much lower than they could be purchased in shops, making a big saving to the purchases and giving a good outlet for the unused articles which collect around homes and which at this time of the year are a problem to the housewife who cannot use them and yet hesitates to destroy good garments and articles, the rummage sale which has been conducted yesterday and today at the Elks building by the members of the board of directors of the children's home has proved a much bigger success than the women anticipated.

The large building filled with tables stacked high with useful things was so depleted on the first day that more donations were sent in and the sale today has cleared up pretty nearly everything, and a good sum has been netted for the home.

Under the direction of Mrs. George Oliver, Mrs. T. F. Cole, Mrs. C. E. Lum, Mrs. A. C. Volk, Mrs. F. D. Day, Mrs. S. R. Holden, Mrs. H. H. Myers, Mrs. H. B. Paull, Mrs. J. H. McLean, Mrs. W. H. Hoyt and Mrs. J. N. McKindley some fifty more women and girls worked steadily at the sale filling the wants of the customers and keeping the stock in good condition.

Weddings

A pretty wedding took place Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. L. Larsen, 614 East Second street, when her daughter, Austria, became the bride of Edward C. Wall of this city.

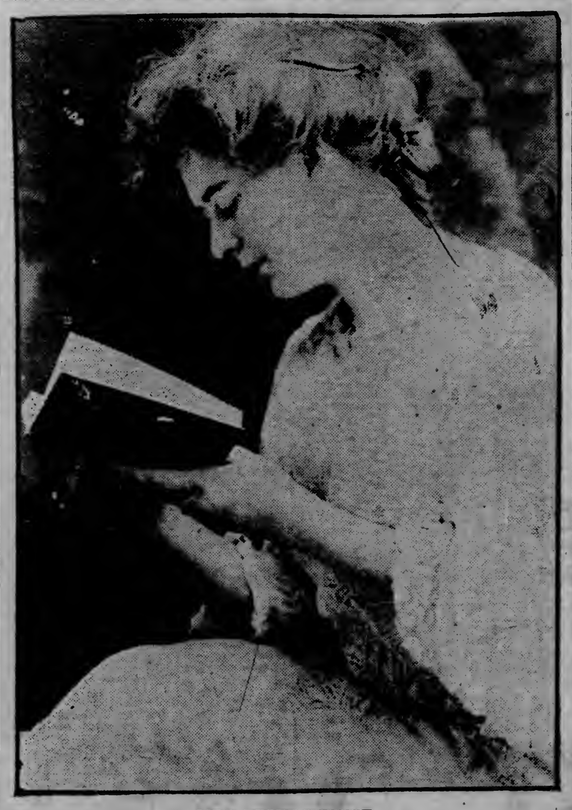
She was attended by her sister, Miss Alyce Larsen, as maid of honor, and Thomas O'Rourke was the best man. At Least She Bent the "Bank" at Monte Carlo



MRS. FRITZ HEINZE.

The man who broke the bank at Monte Carlo is now thrown into the shade. Mrs. F. A. Heinze of Montana and New York has done the trick without half trying. She started betting even on color and gradually worked up to the numbers. She was ahead of the game from the first play. If Mrs. Heinze were still on the stage, one would suspect the press agent, but she left the profession when she married the Montana millionaire. She has just returned from Europe after spending some of her winnings for frocks and jewels.

MME. GADSKI AND DAUGHTER.

Mme. Johanna Gadski has sailed for Europe after a very successful concert and opera season. She goes to spend a part of the summer resting in her villa in the south of Germany, and will return in the fall. Mme. Gadski maintains a home in New York. It is a flat on Seventy-second street, and there she keeps house for her husband, Herr Tauscher, and her little daughter Lotte. She is not such a little daughter either. When Walter Damrosch brought Mme. Gadski here for the first time, to sing with his German opera company, Lotte was very small indeed. But today she is almost a woman. She is a great favorite with the members of the opera company as is her beautiful mother.

NORMAL NOTES

The students at the normal school were especially favored Thursday morning in having the opportunity to hear Miss Lucinne Finch in her impersonation of her old negro "Mammy," who, according to her own story, had been an African princess. The effect of Miss Finch's art was heightened by the stage setting. The room was dark, except for wax candles on either side of the improvised throne, where Miss Finch, dressed in a flowing velvet robe, was seated. She first told the negro version of the creation of the world, a fascinating combination of the sublime and the ridiculous. The account of the creation of Eve, so that Adam would have someone to "'spute with him," was particularly amusing. The audience, even the children from the upper grades of the training school, sat spellbound by the skill of her impersonation. Following this story Miss Finch sang some of the typical songs of the race, among them being a lullaby, "Boogie Man," "Who's Gwine Live When I Am Dead Up Behind the Sky?," "Satan," and "It's Mighty Hard to Lub." These songs had the strange rhythm and melody peculiar to the negro and were enthusiastically applauded.

Misses Scharlie Robertson and Anna Adams have sent out dainty peanut-shaped invitations to the members of the Lea-Li-Ba-Elp society for the regular meeting of the society, to be held this evening in their room at Torrance hall.

Miss Ruby Haigh, who has been teaching in Saginaw, Mich., visited her sisters, Nellie and Jessie Haigh, at Torrance hall this week.

During the chapel exercises Monday Miss Lucile Vanderpoel sang a delightful contralto solo, "The Night," which was very much enjoyed. This was followed by the singing of "The Gipsy's Chorus," by the school. President Bohannon then read a number of very amusing anecdotes.

Miss Esther Minory entertained several girls Tuesday night at a charming Dutch lunch in her room at Torrance hall. Her guests were: Genevieve Lambert, Jessie Stephan, Melinda LaValle and Esther Strand.

Miss Lucile Vanderpoel left Friday for Virginia to spend the week end with her uncle, C. G. Vanderpoel of tha teity.

The members of Miss Strong's classes in themes and literature are planning a series of debates on topics of current interest, political, social and educational. Two, four or six girls will take part in each of these debates, which will be given in class some time next week.

Miss Emma Olson, a member of the senior class until a few weeks ago, was operated upon for appendicitis last week. She is now able to receive callers and many of her classmates are taking advantage of this permission.

Miss Taylor, head of the music department, is training a number of children from the model school in a toy symphony orchestra of eleven pieces. Some of the instruments, the cuckoo, quail and nightingale, are made only in England and had to be procured from that country. The members of the orchestra are Jeanette Wilbanks, piano; Edwin Skinner, John Rakowsky, first violin; Agnes Alexander, second violin; Raymond Lyons, cuckoo; Charles LeRicheux, nightingale; Galen Pearson, quail; Carl Gebauer, rattle; Philip Warner, triangle; Hamilton Phelps, drum, and William Richardson, trumpet. The youthful musicians are planning to play for the students some time during commencement week, and the seventh and eighth grades will constitute the chorus.

During her stay here Miss Finch was the guest of Miss Pettengill, at her home on East Fourth street. Miss Pettengill was hostess Wednesday evening at a charming dinner in honor of Miss Finch, at which Miss Burch and Miss Taylor of the normal school faculty were among the guests. Miss Burch was a schoolmate of Miss Finch's, and it was partially through her influence that the students were able to hear her recital.

The children of the training school are preparing a charming little fairy cantata, "Midsummer Eve," to be given Tuesday afternoon of commencement week. Only the two principal parts have been assigned. FOUR TEACHERS ARE ENGAGED IN TEACHING THE SCHOOL GIRLS OF DULUTH TO COOK

DINNER COOKED AND SERVED BY GIRLS.

THAT the school girls of today will be the housewives of tomorrow seems to be taken well into consideration in the outlining of the work in the public schools of this city and the domestic science work which has been put into the schools is being worked out practically and ably by the four teachers who have charge of the work. Commencing with the girls in the eighth grades, the work gives a good general education of the art of home keeping especially of cooking. How to get up good meals at the least expense, how to get the food values out of foodstuffs, and the fundamental principals of running a home cleanly, neatly and to the best advantage are the main subjects in this course and the girls do surprisingly well in their grasp of the work.

The domestic science centers in the public schools of the city are at the manual traning high school, where Miss Florence Gaumnitz is the instructor in both high school and grade classes; at the C. C. Salter school, where Miss Francis Quillard teaches the eighth grade girls of that school and other schools in that section of the city; at the Bryant school, with Miss Hills in charge of the grade work from six schools; and at the industrial high school in West Duluth, where Miss Irene Walker has charge of the work. The work in the last named school is confined to the high school students and is given on a practical scale more than on the theoretical basis.

The high school work of course is taken on a more minute scale giving a good deal of attention to the scientific side of the work, laboratory work coming in for a large share of attention. In the manual training high school for instance, the girls of the grade classes spend two lessons on bread-making while the high school work on this same subject covered several weeks.

During the year the girls in these classes have worked on the putting up of fruits and pickles in the fall through all the foodstuffs, taking vegetables, breads, cakes, candies, pies, salads, meats, fish, soups, and other topics with lessons on the making up of menus, the preparing, cooking and serving of meals and the setting of the tables.

Dinner Is Served.

As an example of the work done through the city a delightful dinner, carefully planned and excellently prepared by the girls of the eighth grade of the Bryant school was served at the school building Monday afternoon. The girls who have been under the instruction of Miss Hills planned their own menu which began with a tomato consomme and included roast beef, browned potatoes, stewed corn, parker-house rolls, pineapple and pear salad with cheese wafers and ice cream and bonbons, all made and prepared by the class. The table was tastefully appointed, the class colors, fawn and moss green being suggested in the favors and place cards also made by the class. There was a center piece of yellow tulips. Members of the class served the dinner at which places were set for twenty-three.

MISS FLORENCE GAUMNITZ.

This same work has been carried out in the other schools.

Invalid cooking is also a special feature to be taken up later in the year, especially by appetizing and nutritious dishes being included in this course as well as a study of the scientific side of this cooking to some extent.

The girls all enjoy these classes and the work in all cases has been most satisfactory.

CLUBS AND MUSICAL

Orchestra Concerts.

FRED G. BRADBURY, with his orchestra of thirty members, will give the first of the series of Sunday night concerts at the Orpheum theater, Sunday, May 26. The orchestra gave a series of concerts last season at the Orpheum and the success met with then has warranted a second series. The programs will be strictly popular and are made up to please rather than to instruct. Rehearsals have been in progress for several weeks and an excellent performance is assured.

Mr. Bradbury has secured the services of several excellent musicians from out of the city to assist in the programs. The soloist at the first concert will be Bertha James Gilbert of Chicago, soprano, who has appeared at several concerts and recitals here in the past with marked success. Miss Valborg Gunderson, he talented violinist, will also appear on the first program as soloist. Since Miss Gunderson's appearance before the Thursday Musicale Society of Minneapolis and the Schubert Club of St. Paul, her services have been in great demand and her ability is well known to many Duluthians.

WOMAN'S COUNCIL.

Henry S. Curtis Will Talk at Extra Meeting of Club Women.

Henry S. Curtis, an expert on playgrounds and playground work who will be in Duluth next week will speak at a special work meeting of the Woman's Council, which will be held at the library clubroom on Thursday afternoon, May 23 at 2:30 o'clock. All club women of the city are especially invited to this meeting and a large attendance is expected as the playground question has been a topic of interest especially among the clubs for several seasons but no definite plan of running them in this city has yet been adopted.

Enjoyable Recital.

MISS MABEL FULTON'S pupils who appeared in her annual recital last evening at Forresters' hall gave a delightful program which was especially appreciated by a large audience of parents and friends, which filled the large hall. Every number of both the vocal and piano selections was given with credit by both the little tots and the more advanced pupils, and careful training and evident study were shown in their work.

Little Miss Grace Rossman, who sang "I'm Ashamed to Look My Dolly in the Eyes," and Irwin Kunerth in his "I Don't Like You Any More," were especially good for the little folks, and Miss Borgill Dahl, who sang "My Heart Is Weary," a recitative and aria from "Nadeschda," by A. Goring Thomas, created a delightful impression. She has a wonderfully sweet, rich voice with exceptionally fine qualities and good possibilities.

Miss Parker of Cloquet also sang very well.

Miss Violet Flaaten and Miss Ellen Messler both won high praise and loud applause for their piano numbers. They were the most advanced of any of the pupils, but for the smaller pupils Sheldon Johnson played creditably and Miss Florence Mattson deserved special mention. All of the others taking part played or sang extremely well and every number was enjoyed.

The others on the program were Violet Smith, Alberta Johnson, Helen Thrall, Earl Gratto, Ruby Patterson, Gudrun Thrana, Viola Carlson, Luella Cloutier, Ruth Trolanden, Pearl Hart, Bernice Haverty, Esther Donald, Florence Messler; accompanists, Miss Fulton and Miss Flaaten.

After the recital many of the guests waited on account of the rain and Miss Fulton gave an impromptu recital of songs and readings which were particularly enjoyed.

THE choir of the First Swedish Lutheran church, Sixth avenue east and Third street, will render Finley Lyon's cantata, "The Great Light," Wednesday evening, June 5. "VOTES FOR WOMEN" NOTES

THE Men's Equal Suffrage League of New York, which formed a conspicuous part of the recent suffrage parade, numbers among its members some of the most prominent men of the state, including politicians, lawyers, college professors, philanthropists, clergymen, editors and financiers. It has local branches in Buffalo, Rochester, Syracuse, Albany and other cities, and has been carrying on active organization for the last two years.

For the first time in the history of Pennsylvania, the Republicans of the state, in convention at Harrisburg, reserved a box for women. An appeal was made for an expression regarding women's suffrage, and the convention responded by adopting a resolution declaring that while the convention deemed it inexpedient to commit the party to suffrage, the growing sentiment in its favor must be recognized and requesting the next legislature to "give this great question careful consideration with a view of submitting the proposition to a referendum vote when a reasonable public sentiment demands it."

A suffrage club has been formed in Redwood Falls, Minn., with Mrs. Ella Philbrick, president, and Mrs. Florence Landon, secretary; another club has been formed in Pipestone, Minn., with Miss Jessie Walkup, president. These clubs are auxiliary to the Minnesota Suffrage association.

A six months' free subscription to the "Woman's Journal," the organ of the National Woman's Suffrage association will be sent to the first 100 libraries or ministers of Minnesota, who apply for the same to Mrs. A. H. Potter, 1206 Southeast Fourth street, Minneapolis, Minn.

Missouri women, supported by every woman's organization in the state, have entered upon a campaign for the ballot. Initiative petitions calling for the submission to the electors of a constitutional amendment to give women the right to vote for all city, county, state and federal offices in Missouri were placed in circulation last week, and reports to the headquarters of the suffrage association show that they are being signed at a rapid rate.

FIRES RAGING IN THE VALLEY OF THE YUKON.

Seattle, Wash., May 18.—A special cable from Dawson says: The Yukon valley is a roaring furnace for 200 miles between High Salmon and Stuart City. Everywhere forest fires are raging, but they are not near any city. Much timber has been ruined.

MINNESOTA UNIVERSITY

Duluth Students Receive Considerable Mention in 1913 Gopher.

Lawrence Jaques Honored By Election to the Grey Friars.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The 1913 Gopher crawled out of his mysterious hole Thursday and displayed itself to the college community, some of whom enjoyed its antics and some didn't. Gopher day is always one of the big days of the year and the flutter caused in college circles by its arrival does not subside for some time. This year the book was two weeks late in getting out, but the delay only stimulated the interest. Immediately upon the arrival of the books in large vans, the crowd gathered around the booth in front of the library, eager to get their books. Whereupon couples and groups wandered off to the knoll to read together under the trees. It is a tradition that the Gopher is never issued except on a fine, warm day, so that everyone can sit around on the grass and enjoy the book with a friend. Classes for the rest of the day are forgotten.

That the students hailing from Duluth are marked is evidenced by the fact that the comment upon each one of them in the album makes some remark about their being from Duluth. It remarks of one that he is, "one of those boys from Duluth who are making good at the university," and of another that she is, "one of those Duluth cut-ups," and of another that "she is quiet—in Duluth."

In the junior class there are several Duluth people, Harold Burnett, Marjorie Davis, William Ecklund, Robert Ely, Marion Fee, Rose Guinn, Florence Halvorson, Ruth Hanson, John Jenswold, Lawrence Jacques, Fannie Lumm, Leonard McHugh, Myrna Pressnell and Gerhard Ringsred. Upon the Gopher board of managers were Myrna Pressnell and Leonard McHugh, and upon the staff, Robert Ely, representing the school of mines.

Lawrence Jaques of Duluth was one of the twenty junior men honored by election to Grey Friars. Grey Friars is a club of seniors distinguished for prominence in student activities. The men are elected at the end of their junior year, and election is a mark of distinction for having done things for the university. Mr. Jaques is a member of Sigma Chi, the Students' Council, the Junior-Ball association, president of the Tillikum Klub, and of the Woodrow Wilson club.

These are busy days in military circles. Unusual activity and interest is manifested by the cadets who, as a rule, are not very enthusiastic soldiers. For the first time the trousers are being pressed and yards of cloth and cans of oil are being used to take all the rust and dirst off the guns. The reason for this unusual state of affairs is the approach of the annual inspection day. On Monday the cadets have to appear in immaculate uniforms and with clean, glistening arms, or else the year's agony will have to be endured over again. Capt. H. H. Tebetts, U. S. A., will be the inspecting officer.

An extemporaneous speaking contest is being planned by the public speaking department and President Vincent. The president has offered a copy of Croyl's "The Promise of American Life" as a prize to the winner.

The Forum Literary society won permanent possession of the Jacob's debate trophy on Wednesday evening by defeating the Athenian society from the agricultural college.

One of the big features of the county fair to be given at the agricultural college is seriously threatened by a sudden move by the girls. This feature is the girls' milking contest. At the last minute the girls threaten to withdraw, claiming that milking is a man's work and that they, as a body, do not believe in encroaching on men's rights. When the contest was first suggested it was found that very few girls in the whole Minnesota school knew how to milk and that only one cow of the herd would allow a girl to milk her.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The committee which was selected to take charge of the Schillerbund Literary society party to be held in the chemistry laboratory next Tuesday, met in Miss Augusta Ziegler's room Thursday afternoon for the perfection of plans relative to the social. A fudge party was decided upon and will be attended by the members of the German club and some of the faculty. Fannie Weinberg, Lillian Levy, Henry Hallenbeck and John Fredin compose the committee.

Adelaide Miller and George Stillman, who were chosen by the seniors to take charge of the annual senior farewell party which will take place next Friday evening, have decided upon the personnel of the various committees to assist in making preparations for the function. Preceding the dance the students of the class of 1912, the presidents of the lower classes and some of the faculty will hold a banquet in the lunch room. President Robert Mars of the seniors will act as toastmaster at the banquet.

The first of the spelling examinations for the fourth year students was given Tuesday afternoon. About ten of the seniors availed themselves of this opportunity to clear up their back spelling and gain credit for graduation. The second of the series of exams in this subject will be given next week.

The Wallace trophy, which is competed for annually in the oratorical and declamatory contests between the Duluth and Superior high schools, and which was won for the second time by Duluth Central, has been on exhibition in the assembly hall during the past week. The trophy occupies a conspicuous position on the platform, and the beautifully ornate silver cup is the object of the enthusiastic admiration of the entire student body.

Prof. Robert D. Brackett, head of the public speaking department, who has coached all of Central's representatives in the Wallace contest since the dual meet was inaugurated three years ago, has had marked success in developing winners in the contests. Of the six Central speakers entered in oratory and declamation in the three annual meets, but one has failed to secure first place in his respective division.

Prof. Brackett has announced that a special training course will be added to the curriculum next year, and urges that all those who are desirous of enrolling, hand their names in to to him.

The senior boys held a special meeting in the assembly hall Tuesday afternoon and discussed matters relative to the senior farewell hop.

It was decided to make a canvass of the senior session rooms next Monday, in an effort to ascertain as closely as possible the number of students who expect to attend the spread, so that those in charge of the lunchroom can arrange accordingly.

The weekly session of the girls' Bible classes was postponed yesterday afternoon.

Following the meeting next Friday afternoon at the Y. W. C. A., the studies will be discontinued for the present school term.

A rare treat was accorded the students Wednesday morning when Miss Lucine Finch the popular Southern dialect reader, appeared before the students during the chapel period. The stories and folk songs as reproduced by Miss Finch were interesting and instructive and were thoroughly enjoyed by the students.

Several business matters were discussed at a special meeting of the Schillerbund Literary society, which was called by Miss Augusta Ziegler of the German department Monday afternoon. The members reviewed the work of the club during the past year and decided to hold one more meeting before the end of the school term.

The freshman baseball squad, under the leadership of Capt. Robert Gunderson reported for practice yesterday afternoon at Forty-seventh avenue east. The annual game with the sophomores is to be played in two weeks and the freshmen are availing themselves of an early start to get the jump on their rivals.

Friday morning in chapel the members of the D. C. H. S. basket ball team were presented with sweaters by the Athletic association. In presenting them Mr. Young complimented the boys on their showing and spirit and also read the number of points scored by each during the season. Capt. Osman made a few fitting remarks in acceptance. The men receiving "D's" were: Osman, Marris, Stillman, Currie, St. Clair, Elder.

In the initial game of the season the D. C. H. S. baseball team decisively defeated the Cathedral boys by the score of 10 to 6. For the Central boys it was chiefly a tryout as about fifteen men were used during the game. The Central boys scored almost at will while Watkins, a Central "find" held the hard-hitting Catholics to three clouts. The game was very satisfactory for Central as an unusually large number of able candidates were tried out. On the showing made, hopes for a good team this year, to represent the red and white, have been raised greatly.

The other classes of the school have all been featured in the book. The faculty is given a special space in front of the annual.

BUSINESS MEN TO ATTEND HEARING

State Railroad and Warehouse Commission Will Hear Complaints.

Every West Duluth resident and business man was last evening requested to attend the public hearing of the state railroad and warehouse commission to be held Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock at the West Duluth Commercial club. The members of the club held their regular meeting last evening and plans were made to campaign this end of the city for a representative gathering Tuesday morning.

The object of the hearing is to hear complaints against the Northern Pacific road for not having erected a passenger and freight station in West Duluth. The members of the club have been agitating a new station for the past five years and this is the first public hearing set by the state railroad and warehouse commission. J. J. Frey, head of the club's railroad committee, wrote the commission early last fall, explaining the situation. Early this month the state commission announced the date for a public hearing, when members of the commission will be here to listen to the complaints of the club.

The members of the club claim that the railroad has maintained the station in a most dilapidated condition, making such repairs in the past ten years as were absolutely necessary. There are no separate waiting rooms for men and women.

The following committee was appointed to confer with other organizations interested in the building of a country road between the farming district in the vicinity of Wrenshall and local suburbs: E. J. Zauft, L. A. Barnes, Louis Ramsted, A. J. Meldahl and P. H. Martin. The club announced that next Friday evening there would be an open meeting to hear Henry F. Curtis of Duluth, the playground expert, who will spend next week in Duluth.

WILL CLOSE STORES EARLIER IN EVENING.

All the grocers and meat dealrs of West Duluth will close at 6:30 o'clock each evening except Saturdays and pay days if the present plans of those behind the movement materialize. The dealers in this end of the city have been closing at all hours in the evening, there being no set hour in the past to close the stores. Following the announcement of the New Duluth dealers, the local men have taken up the idea and a petition is now being circulated among the grocers and meat dealers. Every man seen so far has announced himself willing to join the majority in the movement.

MIGHT HAVE SAVED MONEY BY PAYING FINE PROMPTLY

Myer Fernstein, aged 22, may be a clever salesman and perhaps is gifted in handing out reasons why every housewife should not be without a detachable water filter for the plumbing, but he evidently has a few things to learn about court procedure.

Myer took his first lesson at Ely this week and the experience cost him $34, of which $17.50 was a fine imposed on him for peddling without a license. The balance of $16.50 also went to the Ely authorities, although Myer might have saved himself this expense had he not tried to slip through a knothole and get out of the whole thing.

Fernstein walked into the county attorney's office this morning with a grievance against the city authorities and municipal court officers at Ely. They had beaten him out of his money unlawfully, he claimed and he was seeking retribution.

According to his story, he was arrested Wednesday afternoon at Ely for peddling without a license. He was engaged at the time in selling, by a house to house canvass, a patented water filter device. In court, the young man put up a cash bond of $50 and was released until Thursday when his trial was set.

When he appeared in court, Thursday morning, Fernstein pleaded guilty and the judge assessed his fine at $17.50 in default of which Myer had the option of spending twenty days in the county jail.

Fernstein was told, that in case he wished to pay his fine he could get his money from the clerk, minus his fine. Instead of getting his change, amounting to $32.50 at that time, Mr. Fernstein went to the clerk and secures a receipt for the $50 which he had put up for a bond.

Later in the day, he was seen to have boarded a train for Two Harbors. The Ely authorities, under the impression that Fernstein was attempting to evade paying the fine and that he might institute proceedings to get his $50 back for which he held a receipt, wired the Two Harbors authorities to arrest him for jumping his bond.

At Two Harbors, Fernstein was again taken in custody and held for one day at the city lockup. The town constable at Ely was sent to Two Harbors to get the young man and to take him to Duluth. When Fernstein and the officer arrived in the city, they went to the jail, where the matter was adjusted.

Out of the $50 which Fernstein put up, he received back but $16. Besides his fine of $17.50, he was obliged to pay the expenses of the town constable in coming to Duluth from Ely and returning, which amounted to $16.50. Had he paid his fine at the time, he would have received $32.50 change back from the clerk and the incident would have been closed.

Assistant County Attorney Warren E. Greene, who listened to the young man's story, told him that there was nothing for him to do but to take his own medicine and that there was no claim for action against the Ely city authorities.

ROOT MAY BE THE CHAIRMAN

Sub-Committee Meets to Arrange for Chicago Convention.

Chicago, May 18.—An all-day session of the sub-committee of the national Republican committee which has charge of the arrangements for the national Republican convention was called to order by Chairman Harry S. New in the Congress hotel here today.

The selection of a temporary chairman of the convention overshadowed all other subjects when the doors closed on the committeemen, all of whom, with the exception of Arthur L. Voorys of Ohio, were present. Other questions, including the distribution of tickets and final approval of the seating plans for the convention hall, were to be discussed.

Among those who have been suggested for the temporary chairmanship are Elihu Root, Former Vice President Charles W. Fairbanks and Governor Deneen of Illinois. Chairman New repeatedly has declined to say what names he would suggest.

Other officers of the convention are to be named by the sub-committee, and it was expected La Fayette B. Gleason of New York would be made secretary of the convention. Gleason has attended every national Republican convention for twenty years and was assistant secretary four years ago.

Washington, May 18.—Representative Moss of Indiana, chairman of the house committee on expenditures in the agricultural department, surprised that committee today by announcing that under his direction a well known expert veterinarian, whose identity he withheld, quietly was investigating the packing centers.

Representative Nelson of Wisconsin, author of the resolution for a full investigation of the meat inspection service, asked that Dr. J. F. Harms of Fremont, Ohio, one of the fifteen scientists whom Mr. Nelson has offered in order to substantiate his charges, be produced as a witness. The committee agreed to hear both Dr. Harms and the unidentified investigator.

MAY CALL OUT ALL FREIGHT HANDLERS

Flannery Says That Such Action Now Appears Inevitable.

Chicago, May 18.—After P. J. Flannery, president of the local freight handlers' union, had announced that a general strike throughout the country would be called by the international officers of his organization today, a futile attempt was made by three disinterested men to induce the railroad managers to arbitrate the trouble with the Chicago strikers.

Fred Sterling of Rockford, secretary of the state board of arbitration; Harry M. Powell of Peoria, a member of the same organization, and E. R. Wright, president of the State Federation of Labor, called on W. A. Garrett, chairman of the General Managers' association, and offered to use their influence to bring about a settlement of the dispute.

"The railroads do not recognize that there is a strike in progress," Mr. Garrett said. "All of the freight houses are working full forces. There is nothing to arbitrate."

President Flannery said the situation had not changed since he made his announcement, and that a general strike appeared inevitable.

WANT ROAD TO FARMING DISTRICT.

Farmers in the country south of Carlton will petition the district court for a judicial road, which, if built, will open up to Duluth and its steel plant a direct line to the farming country tributary to Carlton.

The road which will be petitioned for will be fifteen miles long and will start at Fond du Lac and will run in a southwesterly direction to Wrenshall and Twin Lake and then west and southwest to the intersection of the main highway between Carlton and St. Paul.

The petition which is now being drawn up will be signed by twenty free holders and taxpayers of the two counties which the road will connect. It will be presented to Judge Cant of the district court.

If the road can be legalized by the court, a board of commissioners will be appointed to go ahead and take the necessary steps towards its establishment. The road would undoubtedly be of great benefit both to the Carlton farmers and the city.

HARVARD AND YALE TRACK TEAMS MEET.

Cambridge, Mass., May 18.—Harvard and Yale met today in the twenty-first annual dual track and field meet between the two colleges. The fact that each college has won ten meets lent interest to the contest.

The crimson's strength in the field and distance runs has been manifest all the season. Although many Yale athletes have been incapacitated, the blue had strong men scattered through most of the events and a goodly number of seconds and thirds, with even a few firsts might decide the meet in the blue's favor.

BRITISH ATHLETES IN OLYMPIC TRIALS.

London, May 18.—All that is best in British amateur athletics competed this afternoon in the eliminating trials for the Olympic games at the Stamford bridge athletic grounds. There were no fewer than 400 entries for the program besides sixty starters in the Marathon from Windsor Castle to Stamford bridge.

The first notable achievement of the day was that of C. N. Seedhouse of the Black Heath Harriers, who carried off the final of the 400 meters flat race by seven yards in 49 1-5 seconds, equaling the Olympic record for the distance of the American runner, Harry L. Hillman, at St. Louis in 1904.

J. C Corkery of the Irish-Canadian Athletic club won the Marathon race. His time for the distance was 2 hours 36 minutes and 53 seconds. C. W. Gitsham of South Africa captured second honors and H. Green of the Hernehill Harriers finished third.

Johnson Stands Pat.

Cincinnati, Ohio, May 18.—President B. B Johnson of the American league, on his arrival here today, sent the following telegram to Manager Jennings of the Detroit team:

"Cobb's suspension stands until the matter is fully investigated. If teams refuse to play, that is a matter for the club owners to make good on. Umpire would have put the man out of the stand. Cobb had no right to attack him."

Baseball Gossip.

When the Giants stole about nine bases on the Phillies the New York experts talked of the speed of McGraw's men, while the Philadelphia writers discoursed on the bat arm of Peaches Graham. All of which reminds one that it is the point of view.

George Smith, formerly of New York and Buffalo, was in professional base ball twenty-one years, but it was not until he quit the real game that he pulled something spectacular. Smith is now playing with a semi-pro team in Buffalo and on Sunday, May 5, he made an unassisted triple play. He pulled down a line drive, stepped on second and then tagged a runner from first who ran into his arms. Three were on bases and the play saved the day for Smith's team.

It's pretty tough to be put out with a broken wrist before you have been ten minutes in the game, but that is what happened to Lee Tannehill of the Chicago White Sox on May 8. He had taken Weaver's place in the game with Washington and was at bat when one of Walter Johnson's shoots caught him on the arm. He did not know the arm was broken until he went into the field after the side was retired and attempted to throw. Tannehill will be out for some weeks.

Ralph Pratt, who made a fine record as a pitcher with the Dean academy team last year and was taken on by Connie Mack in the fall, is lost to base ball. In a hospital at Worcester, Mass., recently his left leg was amputated above the knee. He was hit by a batted ball on the knee in a college game and cancer developed. Connie Mack had a high opinion of the young player and paid him a bonus to join the Athletics last fall. At that time the injured leg bothered him, but he did not consider his injury serious.

LOST QUARTER CAUSED FIRE.

Zanesville correspondence Cincinnati Times-Star: While working in a haymow a small son of Jerry Gregory of Byesville lost a quarter. He struck a match to look for the missing coin, and as a result his father's barn and two valuable horses were burned. The barn of Robert Snowball, next door, was also burned and the entire town was threatened.

LAUGHED OUT OF HIS NAME.

London Chronicle: It is hard to be laughed out of one's surname. That is what occurred to an inoffensive gentleman, Charles Sainsbury Pickwick, Esq., who after the publication of Dickens's famous novel felt constrained to advertise in the Times informing the world that owing to its having been brought into ridicule and made a byword by the novelist he intended to abandon his name forever. This was the more hard in his case because he proudly traced his name to a knightly origin — from "Piques-vite" — "spur fast."

THACKERAY'S FIRST ENGLISH HOME.

London Daily Graphic: A Thackeray house has come into the market—the cottage at Hadley Green, near Barnet, which was the residence of the novelist's mother.

It was here that Thackeray was brought from Calcutta as a child of 7, and there he wrote his first recorded letter to his "Mama" and Capt. Carmichael Smyth, his stepfather (prototype of Col. Newcombe).

It was while staying with his relatives that an aunt became alarmed at the size of the little boy's head. The aunt sought the advice of Sir Charles Clarke, who assured her that she should not be afraid, adding: "It is a big head, but there is a good deal in it."

"FOR RENT—NICELY FURNISHED room for gentleman. East end, modern home, private, every convenience; use of telephone; one minute from car line, 12 minutes from Third avenue west; $3 per week. Blank 243 X."

Costs a little more than the ordinary ad. Yes: but in nine cases out of ten the results are so much better and quicker that it pays in the end.

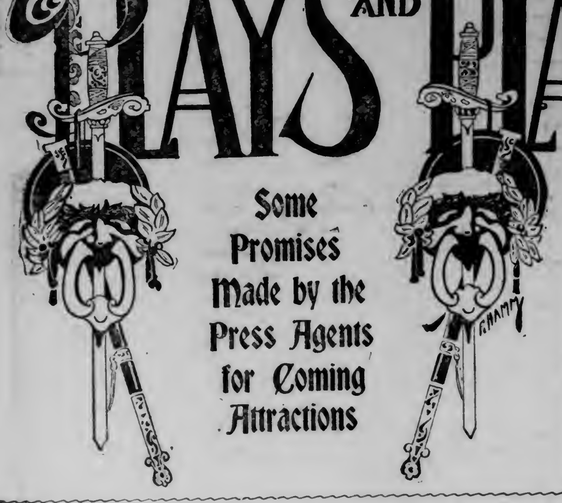
PLAYS AND PLAYERS



AT THE LYCEUM

When Lulu Glaser comes to the Lyceum for an engagement on Monday and Tuesday nights, this city will have its first opportunity in six years to see again the charming heroine of "Dolly Varden," and this time in the role of a mad-cap Scotch lassie, and amid Highland surroundings. "Miss Dudelsack" is said to be an opera of the Viennese school, with the dash and swing of "The Spring Maid," "The Merry Widow" and "The Chocolate Soldier."

While "Miss Dudelsack" has only been seen in a dozen important cities in the East, it is an established European success, its alluring and tuneful music, and dainty story having given it popularity in every city of the continent. It is said to have much of the musical quality and charm of recent Viennese successes. The scenes of the operatta are laid in Scotland, giving opportunity for picturesque stage settings and costumes; and kilts and plaids of Bonnie Scotland form a background of rich color. Its story is modern, and its characters of romantic interest. "Miss Dudelsack" is said to give Miss Glaser the best role she has had since "Dolly Varden,' and one in which her magnetic temperament and infectious good humor vie with her vocal abilities. There are many song numbers, all of the whistling sort, while much of its dialogue is set to music, giving it an unusual operatic value among recent musical productions.

The book, by Hans Reichart and Fritz Greunbaum, two Berlin authors, one of whom wrote "The Dollar Princess," tells the story of Betty Dudelsack, so called because she plays the bag pipes, and her romance with Capt. Jack MacHumber. Betty has been reared by the aged keeper of Castle MacHumber estates. She meets Capt. Jack, who is believed to be the heir to the estates, flirts with him, and finds her young heart a victim to the handsome officer. How Betty brings confusion into the MacHumber family, and love triumphs in the end, is said to form an unusually well written book, which has been set to music by Rudolph Nelson, who has combing Scotch melodies with brilliant Viennese waltzes and song numbers to form a musical setting of alluring charm. Among the notable song numbers in "Miss Dudelsack", the "Oh, You Darling," duet; "Pluck Not the Rose," "They Call Me Dudelsack," "Betty, Wealth and Power" and "Sandy' are a quartette of interest. One notable number is the collection of old Scotch melodies sung by Miss Glaser, the men principals and the double male quartet.

The star will be surrounded by a company of twenty principals, a chorus of thirty singers and a special orchestra. The picturesque stage settings, showing Highland scenes and castles, the gay plaids and kilts of the costumes, and Miss Glaser's Parisian toilettes add interest to the engagement.

Amy Leslie, the famous dramatic critic of the Chicago News, in reviewing George Barr McCutcheon's "Beverly," writes as follows: "George Barr McCutcheon's sparkling romance, 'Beverly,' has been exquisitely transformed by the scholarly Robert M. Baker into a delightful play which was introduced to an attentive and enthusiastic audience at the Studebaker last night. The beautiful stage pictures followed one after the other and the costumes are unique and costly. The scenes are piquant, exciting and full of romance. In the third act there is a fine Anthony Hope sort of battle scene with three against one, which is quite as pulsing and genuinely thrilling as anything Sothern or Hackett used to do. Every minute detail of the production is exact, elegant and gratifying, and for those who urge the preservation of clean sentiment and rugged adventure, 'Beverly' is bound to delight."

The Studebaker theater, Chicago, cast and production will be presented at the Lyceum theater on May 30.

Klaw & Erlanger's most successful musical comedy, "The Pink Lady," will be an offering at the Lyceum, where it is booked for May 31 and June 1.

"The Pink Lady" is in three acts with book and lyrics by C. M. S. McLellh and music by Ivan Caryll. The story was adapted from the French farce, "Le Satyre," by Georgia Berr and Marcel Guillemaud. In its musical form it was originally presented in Philadelphia and then transferred to New York, where it has just closed a run of a year, having been seen in that time by 567,923 people. It is a brilliant production with a company of ninety people in the organization, which includes the famous Pink Lady orchestra.

In the cast are John E. Young, Olga De Baugh, Marguerite Wright, Octavia Brooke, Josie Intropidi, Raymond Bottomly, Minnie Jarbeau, Harry Depp, and others as well known, and the pink of perfection chorus. A special orchestra of thirty musicians is another feature of the engagement.

"The Lord intended every one should be happy, only some of us mix up our ambitions and aspirations so that we forget to be contented." Any one who ever listened to May Robson speaking these lines have realized her power for serious work in acting. True, theatergoers have come to regard this actress as funny, and so she is, but there is also a tenderness in her voice when she wishes to use it. In her new play, "A Night Out," she develops the opportunity for expressing pathos, but never fails to raise a laugh a moment later. In the character of a lovable, unselfish woman, known as "Granmum," she raises above mere capacity or talent to a genius for characterization. This power of expression is rare even with the greatest actors, and May Robson never acquired it—she inherited it—and she advocates hereditary influence in the play. Aside from a very interesting story, it will be well presented and May Robson will add another triumph to her list of successes.

"A Night Out" will be presented here at the Lyceum on June 5 and 6.

AT THE ORPHEUM

Next week the last bill of the current season will be seen at the Duluth Orpheum, and according to the statement of Manager H. E. Billings it will be the most expensive bill ever presented in the Duluth theater, not excepting even the Annette Kellermann bill last year.

David Belasco's own production of "Madame Butterfly" will be the headline act. This is perhaps the most talked of vaudeville act in the West at the present time. Mr. Belasco, at the request of Martin Beck, the managing director of the Orpheum circuit, prepared two productions for vaudeville this year. One of them was "Madame Butterfly" and the other "The Drums of Oude." The latter has just been completed, and was given its first performance in Chicago recently. "Madame Butterfly" has played the greater part of the Orpheum circuit, and has been one of the most successful acts of the season.

The impression that "Madame Butterfly" is a condensed version of a play has become prevalent. This is not the case. It has always been a one-act play, and Mr. Belasco's present production is the same as when the piece was used as a curtain raiser for "Naughty Anthony." Like the opera of the same name, the playlet was taken from John Luther Long's story of Japanese life. It is famous in literature, grand opera and tabloid drama. The pathetic little love story of Cho Cho San is said to have been given a most effective setting by Mr. Belasco. The story is quite familiar to theatergoers. Cho Cho San is married under the customs of her country, to an American lieutenant, who sails away to his own land after a year or more of happiness. He leaves Cho Cho Sn and her baby at the foot of her native Hibashi hills. She waits for his return. During his absence he forgets his little Japanese wife and takes an American girl as his bride. He did not take his Japanese love affair to be more than a harmless flirtation, but on his return with his new bride finds little Cho Cho San waiting for him with her baby, born after his departure. "If you cannot live with honor, die with honor" reads the legend on the American lover's sword, which he had left with little Cho Cho San, and she takes the only road left to her when her faithless husband returns with his new bride.

The stamp of Belasco upon a production has come to be a guaranty of quality in things theatrical, and he is said to have outdone himself in his first entry into the ranks of vaudeville producers. No less an actress than Clara Blandick is cast in the part of Cho Cho San. Earl Ryder appears as the American consul and George Wellington as the lieutenant. The rest of the company is said to be up to the same standard.

For many years magazine readers have laughed at W. W. Jacobs' stories of sea life. One of the best of these stories, "The Bosun's Mate," has been dramatized for vaudeville and it will be presented on next week's bill by Percy Waram and a capable little company. Mr. Waram is a well known English actor, who has also been successful in this country before going into vaudeville. He was a member of Charles Frohman's company. Mr. Jacob's story is said to have lost nothing in the dramatization, and this act is expected to be one of the most refreshing comedy hits seen on the circuit this season.

Regular Orpheum patrons will remember the striking beauty of Miss Leona Thurber, who was seen here last season with her partner, Harry Madison, in a sketch called "On A Shopping Tour." It was generally admitted to be one of the best team acts seen in the theater last season, because of the clever comedy of Mr. Madison, and the remarkable appearance of his partner. They have a modernized version of their sketch "On A Shopping Tour," which differs greatly from that presented last season. Miss Thurber is claimed to be the best gowned actress on the Orpheum circuit.

A trio of pretty, shapely girls bearing the title of the O'Meers Sisters and company will furnish a novelty in wire performances. They open their act with a pretty little song, flit about on the wire and finish with a picturesquely costumed Russian folk song. The two O'Meers sisters are said to be most exceptional performers on the steel wire, and also to be most captivating in appearance.

"The Australian Orpheus" is the rather high sounding title chosen by Harry Atkinson, who will be seen next week. He possesses the peculiar faculty of imitating the mandolin, the cornet, banjo, bagpipes, penny trumpet and other musical instruments too numerous to mention. Mr. Atkinson is an Englishman who has lived most of his life in Australia. He started out to become a singer but discovered the remarkable qualities of his voice, and decided to develop these unique qualities instead of continuing his vocal studies. He is called "The man with the orchestra in his throat" and this describes the act that he offers.

The remaining act on the bill will be presented by James Clemons and Gussie Dean. It is a singing and dancing turn and said to be an exceptionally entertaining one.

The Kinodrome will present a new series of motion pictures, and the Orpheum orchestra will complete the bill for the week. The theater will be closed for the summer following the last performance of next week's bill, next Saturday night, and will remain closed until Aug. 25, so that next week will be the last opportunity to witness Orpheum vaudeville in Duluth for three months to come.

AT THE EMPRESS

The booking managers of the Sullivan & Considine circuit have secured an exceptionally strong array of talent for the bill which comes to the Empress for one week commencing Sunday.

The headline attraction for the week will be Rapoli, conceded to be one of the greatest jugglers in the world. This marvelous man juggles articles of every size, weight and description from tooth picks up to cannon balls and heavy wagon wheels. The Sullivan & Considine circuit has sent to Duluth such noted jugglers as Paul Conchas, Gerard and Kara, but none of these, it is claimed, are in the same class as Rapoli. This man is said to be the highest priced juggler in the world. In the art of jugglery he stands supreme and he can well claim the title of the world's greatest juggler. Graceful as well as marvelously skilled, it is claimed to be a delight to watch his performance. His astounding feats are of the most spectacular order and he accomplishes the most astounding feats with remarkable swiftness and ease. His work is fast and at all times thrilling. Rapoli comes to this country from Europe for an exclusive tour of the Sullivan & Considine circuit and since his first appearance on the circuit, he has created a sensation. In other cities, say the advance reports, those who heretofore have cared but little for juggling have gone into raptures over his wonderful feats. His tricks follow each other so rapidly that it is difficult to pick the best one. Not alone for his execution of the most marvelous feats is Rapoli noted but he also receives credit from the critics for his originality. He is constantly devising some new trick and although he occupies the highest pinnacle in the juggling world, he practices as much as the ordinary amateur who is commencing to master the most simple tricks. Rapoli always works with an eye to the artistic and the more accomplishment of difficult feats does not satisfy him, but to the contrary, after having mastered some wonderful trick, he does not present it before an audience until he is able to do so in a finished and artistic manner. The New York Herald said of Rapoli: "Jugglers are numerous in vaudeville, but the juggler with a good line of ability will always be popular. Rapoli is counted in a class by himself as a juggler and his feats lead one to believe that he deserves the distinction. He holds the attention of his audience every second and his rapidly executed maneuvers win their tribute of applause at each performance."

Patrons of the Empress will find real pleasure in the offering of Snowie Maybelle, who is widely known as one of the best child impersonators in vaudeville. This winsome young miss has appeared in all of the principal vaudeville theaters of the East and has been an instantaneous hit from the start and it is expected that on this, her first Western tour, she will meet with the same success. Miss Maybelle, who is as cute and cunning as a 4-year-old, gives to vaudeville that dainty joyousness and youthful charm so keenly admired but so seldom seen. In additon to her ability as an impersonator of children, she is a winsome comedienne and an accomplished vocalist. Miss Maybelle is gifted with a voice that is clear and sweet and her repertoire of songs include many that are new and particularly adapted to her style of working. A Cincinnati critic said of Miss Maybelle: "But few grown-ups can impersonate very little girls without disaster, but Miss Maybelle is a veritable fairy who never strikes a false note and who holds all sorts and classes of people in rapt attention because of her piquancy and naturalness."

Kelly and Lifman will introduce a singing and talking specialty, which is said to be different from the ordinary run of attractions of this nature. These clever folks are widely known in the musical comedy field, where they have created an enviable reputation for themselves as entertainers of more than ordinary ability. They will introduce several of the latest songs which are now being sung and whistled up and down Broadway and they have a line of "gags" which are said to be on the side-splitting order. Both are blessed with excellent voices which they know ho wto use to good advantage. They know how to put their patter across to obtain the best results and in addition have pleasing personalities, which add greatly to the merits of their offering from an entertaining standpoint.

It is an acknowledged fact that the continental gymnasts excel all others for spectacular and sensational accomplishments. They do not fear competition for the reason that they have made gymnastics their life work and as a rule come from families that have been gymnasts for generations back. The continental gymnast generally is one who has spent a lifetime in perfecting himself in certain specialties and in consequence they need not fear competition. The European feature at the Empress with this bill will be the Delzaros, novelty gymnasts. They come to the Empress direct from the Hippodrome, London, where they appeared for twenty-five weeks. Having spent all of their life as gymnasts, their work, it is said, has a finish which is lacking in many attractions of this nature and in addition to the spectacular and sensational features of their work, there is said to be a charm and grace which is delightful to the eye.

Rose Sharon and company will present a fascinating comedy playlet which is expected to please highly. Miss Sharon has a reputation in vaudeville as being one of the best producers of comedy playlets in the business and her offering for next week comes highly recommended. The playlet is said to have a novel and original plot about which is woven a clever fabric of comedy. Its situations are developed naturally and are said to be highly entertaining and the lines of the playlet are said to contain a wealth of comedy. Miss Sharon has appeared in the leading comedy roles of some of the most successful comedy productions of recent years and she is said to be very charming in the leading role of her vaudeville playlet. She has surrounded herself with a company of clever artists and it is expected that their offering will be one of the bright spots on next week's bill.

The motion pictures, as usual, will be the best and most entertaining subjects obtainable. A matinee is given daily at 2:45 and evening performances at 8 and 9:30. Seats may be reserved one week in advance by either telephone. Special attention is paid to the comfort and entertainment of ladies and children at all times.

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO

"I excel in after dinner rather than curtain speeches," says James T. Powers. 'During my last tour of the South I delivered twenty-eight after dinner speeches in two weeks. What was the occasion?

"Why after the meal I simply said: 'Waiter this dinner was rotten.'"

"It is not true," says Mr. Lee Shubert, "that New York audiences are freakish in their likes and dislikes. They are just as sound as audiences in Chicago or Portland, Ore. Why a play should fail in Chicago and succeed in New York, as in the case of 'A Butterfly on the Wheel' things being equal as to the season, cast, manner of production and so on, is too deep to fathom, but it should not be laid at the door of New York's capriciousness. There seems to be an effort to belittle New York's judgment at the expense of the road. This is utterly absurd. One may as well argue that because a piece succeeds in New York people will not patronize it when it goes on tour because they do not rely on what New York thinks of plays."

Grete Wiesenthal, who created the role of "Sumurun" in the wordless play of the same name, is to appear soon in a mimo-opera which is being written for her by Dr. Edward Strauss. This will not come, however, until Fraulein Wiesenthal has finished her engagement at the Winter garden, New York.

Lewis Waller, who is now presenting his special star company in "The Explorer," at Daly theater, New York, has revived in that famous house the custom of having a call boy, now generally considered obsolete. The boy is Joseph Hughes and he is 11 years of age. He has the distinction of being the only genuine call boy in New York.

The Messrs. Shubert and William A. Brady have made arrangements with Fred C. Whitney whereby their star Gilbert & Sullivan Opera company, now presenting "Patience" at the Lyric theater, is to visit England next autumn. The company will present a repertoire of four Gilbert and Sullivan masterpieces in London—"The Mikado," "Pinafore," "Patience" and "The Pirates of Penzance."

Two noted actresses who have, of late, been seen only in Syndicate theaters, are now appearing in Shubert New York houses. The ladies are Marie Doro, for many seasons a Frohman star, who is now singing the title role of "Patience;" and Constance Collier, who was seen last year in "Thais" and who is appearing with Lewis Waller in "The Explorer." Both women were leading players in the star revival of "Oliver Twist," and they came under independent management simultaneously.

James T. Powers declares that he read fifty-four manuscripts before selecting the vehicle in which he is now starring under the Shubert management at the Casino and which is entitled "Two Little Brides." This piece was originally presented in Berlin and then adapted for London. Although Powers adapted his "book" from the English version, it will not actually be offered in London for some time.

"Just Like John," which is to be the opening attraction at William A. Brady's new Forty-eighth street theater in August, has had its three weeks' try-out, so that there will be no hitches at the New York premier. An extra representation was given on Tuesday evening at Plainfield in order that Mr. Brady might look the comedy over personally.

One of the biggest minstrel acts ever seen in vaudeville is the one presented by Lew Dockstader at the Majestic theater, Chicago. The famous blackface comedian-proprietor will be on one end in the first part. Opposite him will be Neil O'Brien. Others in the company are Manuel Romaine, Lee Copeland, Happy Naulty, Don Ferrandon, Master Charles Leo, Pete Detzell, Major Nowak, Frank Farron and E. V. Cupera. The tour in vaudeville is under the direction of M. S. Bentham.

A new play by Arnold Bennett, best known in America as a novelist, is promised at the Little theater next season by Winthrop Ames. The play is entitled "The Great Adventure" and is a dramatization of Mr. Bennett's whimsical novel, "Buried Alive." Mr. Bennett allready is distinguished in England as a playwright. "Milestones," which will be presented here next season by Klaw & Erlanger, is by Mr. Bennett and Edward Knoblauch, and is at present one of London's biggest successes. "The Honeymoon," which once served Marie Tempest well, also was written by Mr. Bennett.

George Cohan's new play will be known as "Broadway Jones," and is to have a production some time next season, with Cohan in the role of a small town youngster. Parts are being written for Jerry and Mrs. Helen M. Cohan. There will be but four musical numbers in the piece, and perhaps a small chorus.

There is much speculation over the cast to be chosen for the American production of "Bella Donna," which has met more than ordinary success in London. Mrs. Patrick Campbell and George Alexander play the two leading roles in England, but it is rumored that in New York either a man or woman will be featured alone. The possible candidates are Nazimova,

ONE OF THE COMMANDING FIGURES IN AMERICAN THEATRICAL WORLD

GEORGE C. TYLER.

George Crouse Tyler, managing director for the Liebler company, a managerial concern which in fifteen years has produced some 250 plays, and at present controls about one-sixth of the first-class legitimate theatrical attractions in this country, was born in Ohio, a state that sent forth at least six of the more prominent theatrical managers of the day, forty-five years ago. His father was editor of a daily paper in the little city of Chillicothe, and in this city young Tyler gathered his first theatrical experiences. He began as a distributer of programs, a device to secure admission to the playhouse rather than a means to earn a livelihood. The age of 15 saw him full-fledged manager of the local opera house, treating his townsfolk to engagements by Booth, Barrett and the other stars of the so-called "palmy days"—the annual deficit being met by the youthful manager's editor-father.

In time, Tyler's ambition took him to New York, where he was, for a while, a writer on the Dramatic Mirror. He then became business manager in advance of a number of touring attractions, a position which he held until he met Theodore A. Liebler, his present partner. In 1897 the firm of Liebler & Co., since incomporated under the title of the Liebler company, was formed, its first production being that of "The Royal Box," with its author, the late Charles Coghlan, a famous romantic actor of the past generation, in the stellar role. This production was a pronounced success, and was followed by Hall Caine's "The Christian," with Viola Allen making her debut as star, a play reputed to have made more money than any other ever produced.

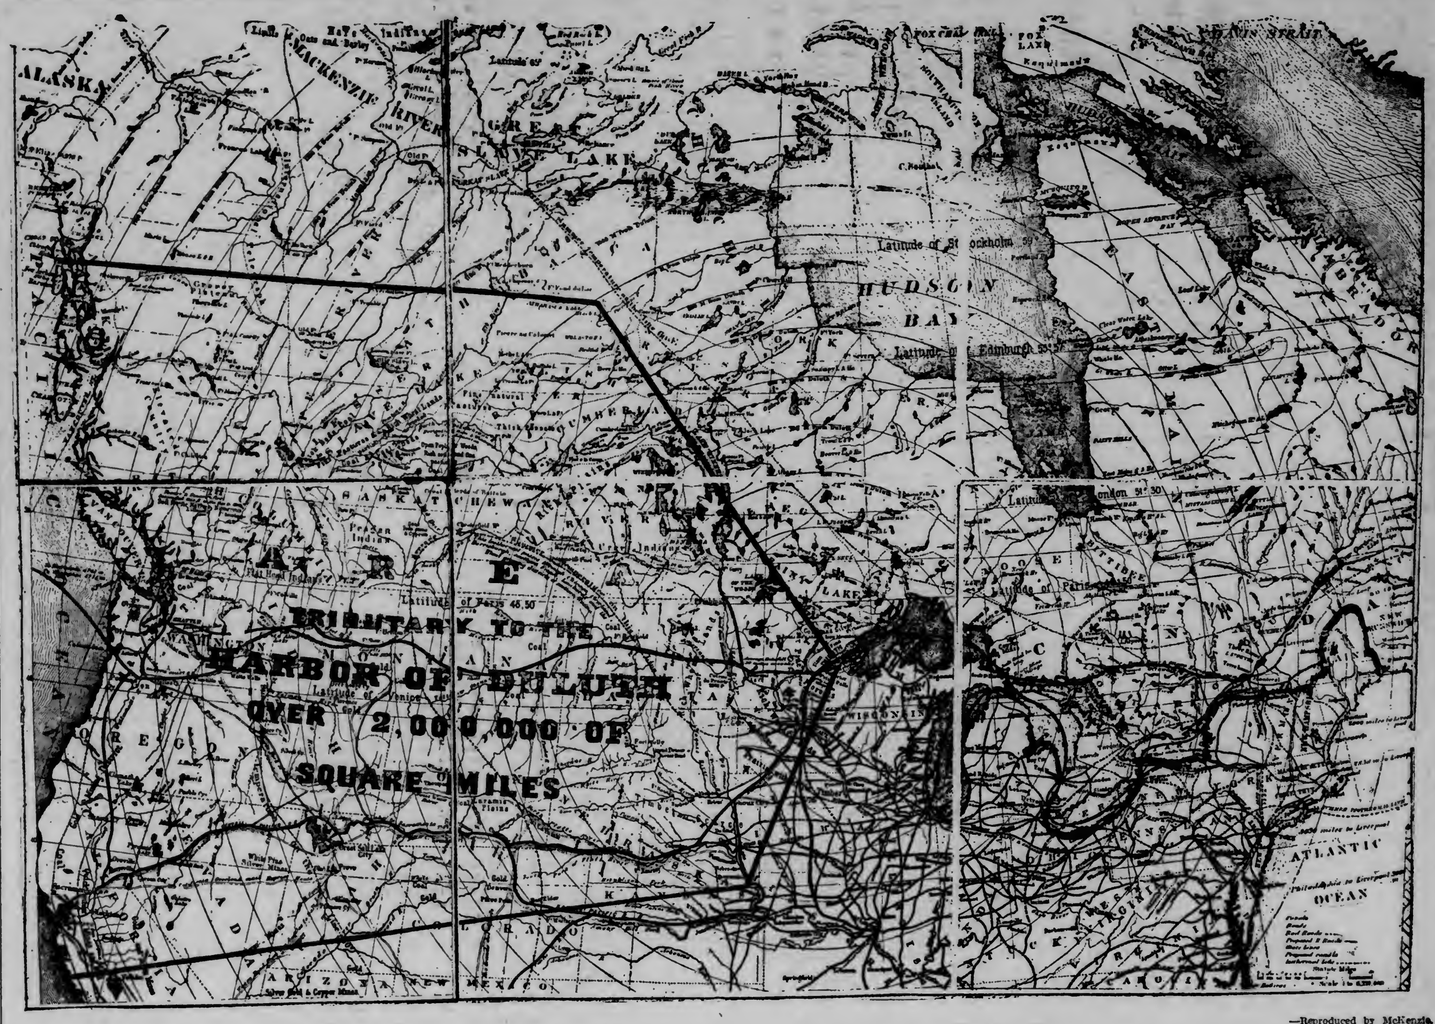
Since that time, the record achieved by this firm is one long list of important productions and popular successes. Duse and Rejane were brought to this country. Ada Rehan and Otis Skinner were jointly presented in classic repertoire. Mrs. Patrick Campbell was introduced to American audiences, as were, more recently, Madame Simone and the Irish players. James Herne's last play, "Sag Harbor," all Zangwill's important plays, such as "The Melting Pot," "Merely Mary Ann" and "The Children of the Ghetto," Louis N. Parker's "Pomander Walk" and "Disraeli," Masterlinck's "Mary Magdalene," and such successful American plays as "The Squawman," "Salomy Jane," "Raffles," "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," "The Man From Home," "The Dawn of a Tomorrow," "Allias Jimmy Valentine," "The Fourth Estate," "The Deep Purple," "The Battle" and within the past few months Edwin Milton Royle's "The Unwritten Law" and Rachel Crothers' "The Herfords," come most readily to mind in listing the firm's past productions. Not a season in ten has passed but that at least two of the year's most successful plays—that is, the year's leading eight or ten—have been Liebler company attractions.

Mention must be made of the annual "all star" revivals of the firm. To name a few, there were "The Musketeers," Browning's "In a Balcony," "The Hunchback," "Romeo and Juliet," "She Stoops to Conquer," "London Assurance," "The Two Orphans" and this year's "Oliver Twist." This season the Liebler company eclipsed not only its own previous achievements, but those of all other native managers, with the marvelous production of "The Garden of Allah," reaping a rich reward in that over $500,000 was paid in through the box office windows during the all-season New York run of this gorgeous spectacle.

This brilliant record of success is due for the most part to the judgment and keen instincts of Mr. Tyler. He is quick to sense the finer things that go to give dramatic production distinction. Long before the name of Reinhard was well known here, Tyler had seized upon the principles underlying the German's art, and, robbing them of their freakishness, had applied them to the production of the ordinary drama. "The Garden of Allah," carrying the conception of realism, is really the first application of impressionism in staging a large production, and thus it is a triumph of artistic principles as well as a great popular success.

One would think that a production of the magnitude of "The Garden of Allah," now internationally celebrated, would have satisfied the ambitions of one who is called a "commercial manager," yet Mr. Tyler and his associates are now hard at work on a production intended to outdistance even that. It is "The Daughter of Heaven," a drama of modern China, written by Pierre Loti, one of the really important members of the French academy, which is to have its first production in any country at the Century theater, New York, next fall. This is only part of a heavy season's program, which also includes the establishment of the first children's theater in America, the importation of several foreign players of the first magnitude, and the production of a dozen new plays of British and native authorship.

COPY OF THE MAP THAT PROCTOR KNOTT BASED HIS FAMOUS SPEECH ON, IS FOUND BY DULUTHIAN DURING TOUR OF THE EAST



—Reproduced by McKenzie.

Nothing tells a story better than a picture and here is a reproduction of the map which the late Hon. Proctor Knott of Kentucky, used when at Washington in 1873 he gave Duluth the greatest advertisement that a young and ambitious city ever received—although it was unintentional on his part.

Mr. Knott was opposing a land grant to the Bayfield & St. Croix railroad, which was to run from Hudson, Wis., to Bayfield and Superior. Mr. Knott understood that Duluth was to be the terminus of the road instead of Superior and framed his remarks accordingly. As a matter of fact, Duluth people were opposed to the grant and after they heard about the speech they wired Mr. Knott congratulations.

The map reproduced above is the property of Jay Cooke Howard, a real estate dealer of this city. It was formerly owned by G. O. Fay, who died recently at his home at Hartford, Conn. Mr. Howard recently returned from the East where he secured the map from Mr. Fay's family. While it is not the identical map which was used in congress, it is one similar in all respects to the one used by Mr. Knott.

Mr. Howard has shown the map to a number of old settlers. They never saw it before and were much surprised and interested. It is probably the only one of its kind in the city. In addition to the map of the United States, which is reproduced above, Mr. Howard also secured a map of the plat of the city in 1870.

G. O. Fay, former owner of the maps, was a former resident of this city, coming here in 1870. Mr. Fay at that time purchased the lot on which the Silberstein & Bondy store is now located. He paid $3,000 for it. Later he sold it for $10,000. Today it is worth $90,000 without the bulidings.

Mr. Knott's Remarks.

Mr. Knott in his famous speech made several references to the map shown above. His first reference is found in this remark: "Yet, sir, had it not been for this map kindly furnished me by the legislature of Minnesota, I might have gone down to my obscure and humble grave in an agony of despair, because I could nowhere find Duluth. Just as my agony was about to culminate in the frenzy of despair, this blessed map was placed in my hands, and as I unfolded it, a resplendent scene of ineffable glory opened before me, such as I imagined burst forth upon the enraptured vision of the wandering peri through the opening gates of paradise. There for the first time, my eyes rested upon the ravishing word 'Duluth.'"

Mr. Knott continued as follows: "This map, sir, is intended as it appears from its title to illustrate the position of Duluth in the United States, but if gentlemen will examine it they will concur with me in the opinion that it is far too modest in its pretensions. It not only illustrates the position of Duluth in the United States but exhibits its relations with all created things. It even goes farther than this. It lifts the shadowy veil of futurity and affords us a view of the golden prospects of Duluth far along the dim vista of ages to come. If gentlemen will examine this map, they will find Duluth not only in the center of the map but represented in a series of concentric circles 100 miles apart and some of them as much as 4,000 miles diameter, embracing alike in their tremendous sweep, the fragrant savannas of the sunlit South and the eternal solitudes of snow that mantle the icebound North. But the fact is, sir, Duluth is pre-eminently a central place, for I have been told by gentlemen who have been so reckless of their personal safety as to venture away in those awful regions where Duluth is supposed to be that the sky comes down at precisely the same distance all around it.

"I find by reference to this map that Duluth is situated somewhere near the western end of Lake Superior, but as there is no dot or other mark indicating its exact location, I am unable to say whether it is actually confined to any particular spot or whether it is just lying around there loose••• I see it stated here on this map that it is exactly 3,990 miles from Liverpool though I have no doubt, for the sake of convenience, it may be moved back ten miles so as to make the distance an even 4,000 •••

"As to the commercial resources of Duluth, sir, they are simply illimitable and inexhaustible, as is shown by this map. I see, it is stated here that there is a vast scope of territory, embracing an area of over 2,000,000 square miles, rich in every element of material wealth and commercial prosperity, all tributary to Duluth. Look at it sir, (pointing to the map) here are inexhaustible mines of gold, immeasurable veins of silver, impenetrable depths of boundless forests, vast coal mines, wide extended plains of the richest pasturage, all, all, embraced in this vast territory, which must in the very nature of things empty the untold treasures of its commerce into the lap of Duluth. Look at it, sir, (pointing to the map) do you not see these broad brown lines drawn around this immense territory, that the enterprising inhabitants of Duluth intend, some day, to enclose it all in one vast corral, so that its commerce would be bound to go there whether it would or not?"

Early Plat of Duluth.

The other map in the possession of Mr. Howard shows Duluth as it was platted in 1870. Both maps were published by the Western Land Association of Minnesota of which Luther Mendenhall was then agent. The map of Duluth shows the water of the bay to be from 5 to 10 feet deep except in the channels and also shows the old island which used to be in the bay, but which a number of years ago broke up into three pieces and floated out into the lake.

Mr. Howard, was yesterday reminded by the old map of Duluth of the time when Jay Cooke visited Duluth. According to the story which Mr. Howard tells, J. P. Johnson rowed Mr. Cooke to the island, which was then merely a floating bog. It was very spongy and it was necessary to put out a board for Mr. Cooke to stand upon. Mr. Cooke stepped out from the boat and in the presence only of Mr. Johnson delivered a rather masterful tribute to the future grandeur of Duluth as he surveyed the harbor front from the position that he took.

The old map shows the harbor arrangement to be very peculiar and at that time a 600-foot boat could not have docked at any of the piers.

Ethel Barrymore and William Gillette. The play is by Robert Hichens and Bernard Fagan.

Vinie Daly will sing the prma donna role n "The Eternl Waltz" when Martin Beck produces the Leo Fall operetta at the Palace theater early next season. Miss Daly went abroad two years ago to study for grand oper.

Arrangements have been completed by the Shuberts and William A. Brady, whereby Arthur Collin's Drury Lane melodramas and pantomines will be imported from London, to be shown at the Manhattan opera house here, beginning in October with "The Whip," this to be followed by "'Op o' My Thumb," a Christmas pantomine. Some of the original players will be brought to New York and all of Drury Lane scenery and accessories.

Arthur Bertram., representing Martin Harvey, is now in New York arranging for the coming production of "Oedipus Rex," in which Mr. Harvey will appear next fall under the direction of the Shuberts. As previously announced this spectacle-drama will likely be staged at the Manhattan opera house.

SAVING MOTHERS AND BABIES

Half the Births Unattended By Physicians—Better Preparation Urged for Midwives—Training School for Midwives Started.

By CAROLYN VAN BLARCOM,
Secretary, New York Committee on Prevention of Blindness.

(Exclusive Service The Survey Press Bureau.)

A blind baby presents a strangely pitiful problem to modern philanthropy. It has a soul. It has a mind that conditons combine to stunt. But the eye, through which babyhood receives commonly perhaps nine-tenths of the impressions that mean the earliest "education", is lacking. One-quarter of the helpless tots and larger children in our schools for the blind are doomed to life-long darkness because their eyes were not properly washed and treated at their birth.

To many, if not most of us, the mother with her new born baby, "new to earth and sky," the beaming faced, white-capped nurse and the trained physician are a trinity so closely associated with the arrival of the stork, that it is more than a surprise to learn that about 50 per cent of the births in this country are known to be attended only by midwives, who, for the most part, are dirty, ignorant, untrained women. Ignorant of hygiene or of asepsis and antisepsis, but with confidence in their ability to attend abnormal cases, malpractice by slovenly and careless midwives is responsible not for a large proportion of the instances of unnecessary blindness but also for death and mental and physical degeneracy of children and much unnecessary death and invalidism of mothers as well. These women exercising the functions of both doctor and nurse are allowed except in a very few localities to follow their calling unsupervised and unrestricted. In thirty-three of the forty-nine states and territories, there is no law restraining the practice of midwifery, while in three, Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi, midwives are actually allowed by law to practice unrestricted.

So far as we are able to learn, the United States of America is the only civilized country in the world in which the life and health and future well being of mothers and infants are not safeguarded so far as possible through the training and control of midwives. In other enlightened countries this has been made a national question, since the conservation of the health and life of babies and mothers is felt to be of national importance.

That midwifery is logical work for trained nurses has been recognized both by the lay and by the medical public in England, Australia and New Zealand. In these countries the midwife is very commonly a trained nurse, officially supervised and frequently working in conjunction with public health and philanthropic agencies for the purpose of preventing infant mortality and blindness. In additon to acting as midwife, she gives her patients nursing care and secures for them adequate medical attention on the appearance of symptoms of any complications.

In England, where eleven years ago the midwifery situation was strongly analogous to ours at the present time, the problem was faced and met through the establishment of the central midwives board by an act of parliament in 1902. The midwives' act forbids any woman not holding a certificate issued by the central midwives board to practice as a midwife. In order to be examined and licensed by this board, candidates must present a diploma from a recognized training school.

While it is not possible to reduce the service England has received from trained midwifery to concrete terms, it is significant that during the last nine years since the enactment of the midwives' act, the percentage of deaths among infants in that country has dropped from 151 per 1,000 during 1901 to 106 per 1,000 in 1910. Although other causes have contributed, it is believed by English workers that the midwives act must be reckoned as one factor in this decline.

By placing restrictions on the practice of medicine and the practice of nursing, we are protecting only one-half the babies in this country from blindness and other permanent injuries. In New York state a vigorous effort has been made to raise the standard. At the last meeting of the state medical society a large portion of one session was devoted to a discussion of the ways and means of remedying the evils of the uncontrolled practice of midwifery. New York city now requires that midwives shall be registered annually, be able to read and write, be of good moral character and clean person and have attended twenty cases of child birth under the supervision of a licensed and registered physician. Details of equipment and restriction of practice are also stipulated. Although New York has taken these preliminary steps to remedy the bad conditions first disclosed by Miss Crowell's report on the midwives of our largest city, those familiar with the problem believe that only strict training of those practising this important profession will adequately guard mothers and their babies.

Midwives should be permitted to attend only normal cases and should be obliged to call in a physician upon the appearance of any symptoms of abnormality. This means that the greatest value of her service lies in giving humane and intelligent nursing care to the mother and her infant during a period of from two to three weeks. Not only does the immediate safety of the mother and the child depend upon intelligent care when the child is born but future health and well being of both may be impaired or destroyed through ignorance or careless work.

The plan to recognize, train and control midwives in this country is sometimes oposed by members of the medical profession who claim that the province of physicians would thus be invaded. This might be a logical claim were we considering the inauguration of a new and untried profession. But the midwife is here to stay, for it must be clearly recognized that the custom among the foreign born population of employing midwives is a deeply rooted, Old World traditon. The midwife, moreover, is an economic necessity to those whom she attends, for in most instances the patient is able to secure from her both medical attention and nursing care at a cost which seldom exceeds a doctor's fee for medical attention alone. The midwife acts not only as a visiting nurse but as general adviser and woman friend at a period which is fraught with anxiety. She frequently prepares the meal and gives aid which an attending physican could not attempt to offer.

The training, registering and control of midwives would not only raise the status of their profession but would have a reactionary effect upon those who are equally in the wrong at present—physicians who are careless and health officials who do not discharge their functions. The compulsory use of a prophylactic against ophthalmia meonatorum would thus be robbed of the danger which attends upon its unskilled application.

Through the efforts of the New York committee on the prevention of blindness the first hospital training school for midwives has been started in connection with Bellevue hospital and it is hoped that this example will be followed in other cities and in other states.

MEXICAN ELECTION IMPENDING

Law for Direct Election of Members of Assembly to Be in Force for First Time---Madero Fears Result While Revolution Continues.

Mexico City, May 18.—Mexico is face to face with the difficult problem of effecting the election of senators and deputies to the national assembly under unprecedented circumstances.

The law calling for the direct election of members of the assembly is to be in force for the first time, and the states of Chihuahua and Sinaloa in the north and Morelos and Guerrero in the south are partially or entirely beyond the jurisdiction of the central government and in a state of open war.

President Madero does not think himself justified in suspending the elections until the country is pacified, since he has a congress which is made up in its majority of partisans of the old regime. On the other hand, he fears the result of campaign propaganda which would necessarily precede the election of a new assembly.

Local political conditions in the state of Oaxaca, where the governor, Benito Juarez Maza, died a few weeks ago, has already assumed a condition of unrest which is alarming. The popular candidate for the governorship is Gen. Felix Diaz, nephew of the ex-president, who was defeated by Juarez in the last elections, in a campaign which was not free from bloodshed. Gen. Vito Alessio Robles, who, until recently, had charge of the campaign against the revolutionists in Morelos, Puebla and Guerrero, is the government candidate. He is not popular in his home state and it is believed that an attempt to force him on the people would result in a general uprising in that state, of which it has been said: "When Oaxaca rises, the government packs its trunk."

Gen. Pascual Orozco, leader of the present revolution, has added still further to the political difficulties by making it plain, through a message to the national assembly, that the revolution, in case it were to triumph, would refuse to recognize any officials elected at this time, whether state or federal.

A huge monolith was unearthed in the capital a short time ago during excavations which are being carried on for the extension of water mains. The stone is in the form of a plumed serpent, and it is thought may have been one of the corner stones of the ancient Aztec temple of Tenochtitlan. The find has been turned over to the national museum with accurate measurements as to the place in which it was found. A committee will be chosen to study the stone and the place of its discovery, with a view to fixing the exact location of the ancient temple.

Harper Lee, the only American bullfighter and consequently of international fame, has retired from the ring and was recently confirmed in the Episcopal faith in Guadalajara. His retirement was romantic, although not according to the best ethics of the profession.

In accordance with time-worn usage it is customary for the retiring "matador" to cut off the short queue, which is the badge of the profession, before leaving the ring after his last fight. Lee's fiancee, in defiance of custom, cut off his queue at a dinner which was given him at the home of her parents in San Luis Potosi.

Jesus Flores Magon, minister of the interior in President Madero's cabinet, is the principal source of official information in Mexico City, and receives the reporters from the local papers every evening, official duties permitting. Not long ago he was asked for some information as to the movements of a lieutenant of Emiliana Zapata, the rebel leader in the south.

It happened that the rebel's name was the same as that of one of the reporters, and turning to him Magon said: "By the way, what is your cousin ding at present?" The reporter protested indignantly, disclaiming any relation to the rebel, whereupon Mr. Magon said: "I see no reason for you to be offended. I have brothers who are anarchists and see no cause why you should not have relatives who are Zapatistas."

It's apt to "stay 'ost" unless you advertise for it.

SLAVES IN MAN'S GUISE

For Two Years Plucky Wife Did Heavy Manual Work.

Passed for Mild-Mannered Man—Searching for Husband.

Erie, Pa., May 18.—A bereaved young matron, vainly seeking her strangely lost husband, Mrs. Alexandra Koslowska of this place only disclosed her sex after various experiences while working in the guise of a man, by fainting at her boarding house.

She has masqueraded as a man for two years, performing arduous tasks in coal mines, machine and boiler shops and paper mills. For six months she has been employed in three Erie manufacturing concerns. She now says she's going to be a maidenly maid and has abandoned masculine work.

Alexandra is 20 years old, weighs 135 pounds and is about 5 feet 6 inches tall. She has earned from $2 to $2.50 a day as a coal miner in the Ohio fields. She has heated rivets for $1.50 a day in a Philadelphia boiler shop and went out on strike with the union boilermakers.

Employed in Paper Mill.

Mrs. Kozlowska was paid $1.50 a day for doing a man's work in an Erie paper mill, and made as much as $9.90 a week working overtime at running a drill press in a manufacturing plant here.

She was paid $1.50 a day for driving mules in a Pennsylvania coal mine, a vocation at which she continued for three months.

After coming to this country with her parents, Alexandra lived at Gary, W. Va., where she met George Zeleski, with whom she fell in love, and the pair were married before the girl was 16 years old. When their first child died, the husband, who was irreconcilable to the loss of the baby, began to act queerly, and a few weeks afterward disappeared. The wife believes the baby's death so affected his mind that he wandered away and lost his identity.

To find her husband has been the task to which Alexandra set herself with unprecedented energy and courage. She made every effort to locate him by inquiries addressed to all parts of the United States, but without avail, and her own worry brought her down with a malignant attack of typhoid fever.

Her blonde hair suffered from the ravages of the fever, and it was the fact that her hair was cut short that led her to adopt the guise of a man in her travels to find her husband.

Efficient Elevator "Boy."

She first tried New York, where she obtained a place in a big restaurant as an elevator boy. Then she went to Philadelphia, later to the anthracite coal regions, and thence to the bituminous fields before coming to Erie.

Mrs. Kozlowska played the part of a man so well that until she fainted no one entertained a suspicion that she was a slim, well-molded girl. She associated with her shopmates as an unobtrusive, mild-mannered fellow.

Although she has quit playing man, Alexandra is still determned to search for her husband until she finds him, inspired by the belief that if he can be found she can readily recall him from his second personality to his real self by his love for her, which she feels has never abated.

IS SOLVING PROBLEMS

Changes in Religious Activity By Advent of the Automobile.

Now Possible to Connect Sunday Run With Rural Services.

New York, May 18.—The automobile is proving to be a new agency and an important factor in the changing religious conditions of the time. It is helping to solve various problems, among them that one which is troubling the church efficiency experts—the 20,000 or more country churches throughout the land which are vacant on any given Sunday. Dwellers in cities do not realize the vast number of country churches which have preaching services only once a month, one pastor serving four or more churches and himself living in town.

Now the aroused laymen of the churches, multitudes of whom possess automobiles, are finding a solution for that problem in many cases by motoring from their homes out into the country and holding a religious service. The vogue of the automobile has brought great stretches of the rural regions within reach of the larger towns and cities.

One Memphis banker holds weekly services fifteen miles from the city and attends his own church besides. This man is an acceptable speaker at all sorts of gatherings, national as well as local, and like many laymen he is able to hold his own with the average minister. It is generally true that congregations prefer hearing a layman, although it is not true that the average layman who is active in church work can speak as well as the average preacher. The notion that his talk is not professional, however, is probably what accounts for the layman's popularity as a speaker. Whatever the explanation, an entirely new era has been established, calling into service hundreds of laymen who would otherwise not have been engaged in active Christian work on Sundays.

Where England Led.

Motor missions are a novelty in America, but in Great Britain they have been in vogue for a dozen years. During the political campaigns that have had a religious aspect of late, the great non-conformist leaders, like Dr. John Clifford, Dr. F. B. Meyer, and Dr. J. H. Jowett, have covered England on speaking tours in automobiles. Their part in putting the liberal party into power has been by no means inconsiderable. These non-conformist motor tours are historic.

Gen. Booth, the venerable head of the Salvation Army, has sped all over Great Britain in his automobile campaigning. The sight of the famous old man with goggles, and his white beard streaming is familiar to multitudes of rural Britons. When taxed with his use of the aristocratic vehicle, he says that he can cover more ground in an automobile than any other way, and he wants to use the most up-to-date methods in fighting Satan.

Within the last two or three years Americans have come to realize the relation of the automobile to religious activity. This space-devouring invention permits country folks to go to town in order to attend church, and it enables the townspeople to travel far afield to hold missions or to worship as they may please.

Auto Street Preaching.

The first systematic automobile evangelistic campaign on record in this country was that planned by the late Robert Adams of the Philadelphia Y. M. C. A. He created an automobile squadron which, starting from Broad and Arch streets, would carry volunteer workers to assigned places in various sections of the city, where the men would speak and sing from the automobiles and then move on after a time and hold other meetings elsewhere.

The use of automobiles in connection with Sunday school parades and at convention times to whirl speakers from one meeting to another is well known. The average itinerating Christian worker, be he evangelist or board secretary, is quite familiar with many makes of machines.

In Charlotte, N. C., there is a notable Yoke Fellows band in connection with the Y. M. C. A., and this conducts half a dozen services every Sunday in the city and its environs. Gospel meetings are held in the convict camps, in the jail, in the almshouse, the hospital, etc.

This is all volunteer work; the Y. M. C. A. secretaries do not even organize the meetings. The laymen provide their own automobiles, and when the owner cannot speak he acts as chauffeur to carry his friend who has not a machine, but has a voice. It is noteworthy that in all this work the owners of automobiles are eager to enlist. The passion for social service has taken hold of the men of America. A Minnesota capitalist was enlisted recently for social work and he liked it so well that he declared he would give up making money and devote the rest of his days to helping people.

Layman's Opportunity.

The presbytery of Chester, Pa., until distinguished by a famous recent lynching, was most notable for the evangelistic zeal of its laymen. These men go about the presbytery holding evangelistic meetings, and because of the good roads there is scarcely a point in the presbytery from which the men cannot return the same evening in their own machines. These laymen's meetings are uncommonly popular, and there is a group of strong men in the churches who are devoted to this work. The presbytery maintains its own evangelist to labor among the churches, and the business men have presented him with an automobile for use in his work.

Deputation work by the laymen has become especially the vogue in the South. There are scores of laymen in the Southern churches, and especially among the Southern Presbyterians, who are busy several nights a week in making speeches, mostly upon missions. They like the work and congregations like to hear them. The deputation activity gives the layman a chance for a larger expression of his personality than business offers. The unflagging devotion of those men indicate that in actual preaching, as well as in planning and paying, the laymen of the future are to bulk large in the work of the church.

Minot Postoffice Fire.

Minot, N. D., May 18.—Fire originating in the rubbish can in the rear of the postoffice and barber shop in the Frank building Thursday evening caused a loss of $40,000. A bursting hydrant put two streams out of commission. The fire swept to the upper floors but at 10 o'clock Chief Torgersen announced the fire under control.

IS EXILED TO SIBERIA

Fall of a Russian Mystic Who Had Gained Great Power.

Meddling in Church Affairs the Cause of His Banishment.

St. Petersburg, May 18.—"Holy Rasputin," self-styled priest, mystic, faith healer and prophet, whose power and influence in social, political, clerical and court circles in St. Petersburg reached almost incredible height, is on his way back to his Siberian home, from whence he started but a short time since as plain Gregor Rasputin, peasant farmer. He was ordered exiled to Siberia after an amazing career in St. Petersburg which was brought to an end at its very height by the duma—the Russian parliament—demanding an inquiry as to his power and influence in high circles.

Rasputin recalls the career of the famous French hypnotist, Phillips, who attained sway in Russian court circles as a result of his alleged mysterious power, until the opposition to him finally became so great that he was hastily hustled away. "Holy" Rasputin, as he was known, was "discovered" by a "generaless"—the wife of a widely known general in the army. He cured disease by faith and prayers; he could foresee the future and tell the past. He had Svengali eyes and hypnotic power which impressed women particularly. He was a mystic such as every large American city has a half dozen or more.

His Influence Over Women.

Rasputin's fame grew until he became the "fad" in high society. It penetrated the most exclusive court circles and there was keen rivalry to be known as his "protector" or "protectoress."

The "holy" man began to meddle in politics and church affairs. Any one who sought preferment, promotion, rank or position tried to see the fanatical mystic. Through his women followers he kept remarkably well posted on what was going on in high official circles. He was the "star" in the exclusive drawing rooms. The climax to his power came when he plunged the popular Bishop Hermogen, one of the princes of the Russian church, from his position to a distant monastry to do penance. Rasputin also caused much trouble in the ministry. Strange tales are still told of his peculiar influence over women. Those who desired to be cured of disease or "purified" had to present themselves before him unclothed.

Gained Enmity of Duma.

The fall of Bishop Hermogen caused a reaction against Rasputin. The duma demanded an interpellation of the Holy Synod of the Russian church. Sensational disclosures in high circles were threatened. Rasputin was hastily ordered home to Siberia.

Rasputin's career and fall calls attention again to the credulity of the Russian masses and the superstition and belief in the supernatural that prevails even in intellectual circles in Russia. Even Russian papers refer to the "intellectual darkness of the masses." "Wise women" in a village a short time ago dreamed that in order to cure a disease of the eyes that many of the village had it was only necessary to place them in one of the large bread ovens and "toast" them. It was a sort of "Turkish bath." One of the patients was burned to death. He clamored to be taken out of the oven. The woman refused to take him out until he had "become quiet" as it was impossible to affect a cure while he was so agitated. His screams "was the devil coming out." After a time he became quiet. Confident that the patient was completely cured, the women opened the oven door and found the man—dead.

Witchcraft Still Has Hold.

In another village the fanatical population recently killed a 10-month-old child whom they said was the "Antichrist." An epidemic had broken out among the cattle. An old woman said that this was an indication that the "Antichrist" had been born in a village. The peasants seized upon this with fanatical zeal. The infant son of a young farmer and his wife was fixed upon as the "Antichrist." Even the father was carried away by the fanatical superstition and with his own hands killed the child.

St. Petersburg, Moscow and other Russian cities are profitable fields for hypnotists, clairvoyants, mediums and seers. The clientele is by no means always the ignorant. As a result of Rasputin's career, some of the Russian papers are calling for some police regulations and suppression of the priests and priestesses of alleged supernatural arts and powers.

BEQUEST OF BOAS.

Steamship Magnate Provides for Widow Even If She Remarries.

New York, May 17.—In remarkable contrast to the will of Col. John Jacob Astor was that of Emil L. Boas, formally filed for probate here.

While Col. Astor provided liberally for his young widow on condition that she does not remarry, Mr. Boas, who was resident head of the Hamburg-American line, directed that if his widow should marry again his son, Herbert A. Boas, is to maintain her in comfort.

The will provides for the establishment of a trust fund, the income of which is to go to Mrs. Boas as long as she remains unmarried. But in the event of her remarriage the income will go to the son until he is 40 years of age, and then he will get the principal.

It's apt to "stay 'ost" unless you advertise for it.

DOCTORS ARE SUCCESSFUL

Electro Medical Doctors Make Good. Cured Many Afflicted With Chronic Ailments.

Weak Men and Women Are Gaining Health and Strength Rapidly By New Method of Treatment.

Of all the hundreds of patients who have come to Duluth from all parts of the middle west, very few were sent home incurable. It seemed at first that the Doctors had some difficulty in getting established, not financially, but difficulties in getting enough patients. Then, again, the opposition of other advertising and other physicians.

The Doctors of the Electro Medical office say: "We believe in the power of advertising the good news of superior treatments. We believe in bringing the gospel of successful cures to the sick and suffering. We have got a good thing, a method which cures, a method which relieves suffering, a method which prolongs life, and we feel that we would do wrong if we would not let the people share the benefit.

As little as you can call every advertising merchant a "shark" just as little you can call every advertising doctor a "quack." We have always endeavored to supply the newspapers with such news which is truthful and at the same time of interest, especially to the sick. We have always kept our doors open even to those who had not money for treatments, for we are not out to get riches, but we are out to cure those upon whose minds have been impressed the fact that they are "incurable." If any of these poor sufferers will come to us, we may be in a position to prove to him the tremendous power there is in Electro Medicine. It has cured others who have been pronounced to be incurable, and the time will come when Medical Science will have advanced to a degree our forefathers would never have dreamed of.

This superior healing power has been looked for in medicine, which failed. Earlier in history, it has been looked for in self tortures, and prayers. But ever since the invention of Electro Medicine the world has become more convinced that the natural method of healing is the one which is triumphant in curing diseases. We have one of the most prominent physicians here to act as our representative. We did this to prove that our methods were so far in advance of the ordinary methods taught in medical schools and practiced by the family physician that it would not and could not be thoroughly understood until applied by one of our most prominent doctors. Since we have thrown open our doors to the public our testimonials speak for themselves. We treat more doctors and their families than any other institution in the world. The offices of the Electro Medical Doctors are located at No. 28 West Superior street. There are separate waiting rooms for men and women, beautifully furnished, and no one need feel embarrassed.

REAL ESTATE

MAY WILL BE GOOD MONTH IN THE BUILDING TRADES

Contractors Report Good Volume of Work and Rapid Progress.

Architects Say Tables Are Well Filled With New Plans.

Building permits for the week numbered twenty-nine and totaled $45,550. The figure is small as compared with last week when a permit for a new Superior street block to cost $65,000 was taken out, but it is not much below the average.

May started off with a swing in the way of building operations and from present indications, the month bids fair to be one of the best for some time past. The building permits have been keeping well up to the $50,000 mark each week and last week they jumped up to $108,600.

This seems to indicate that a continued era of activity in structural lines throughout the coming summer may be assured for Duluth. This of course carries with it a promise of a steady demand for skilled labor in all of the building trades.

Contractors say that the present conditions are most satisfactory and that all work projected and under way can be rushed to completion without delays from lack of material or labor.

Local architects declare that there is a healthy volume of future construction in their offices on which the work of preparing designs, plans and specifications is now being prosecuted. A considerable amount of capital, in all probability will be invested in building propositions in Duluth this summer.

Johnson & Larson, grocers, are building a $10,000 flat and store building fronting thirty-five feet on Seventh avenue east and seventy feet on Seventh street. The plans were prepared by Architect W. J. Sullivan and the contract is in the hands of E. M. Olson.

The same architect will take bids next week on the construction of a twenty-room hotel to cost about $10,000, which will be erected by the Fitger Brewing company this summer at Manganese. The building will be of frame construction.

Kelley & Williams, local architects, will have plans out next week for the new city hall and jail building to be erected at Cloquet this summer. The city will put up a $15,000 structure of brick construction with two stories and basement.

Architect Terryberry is preparing plans for remodeling the First Methodist church at Brainerd at a cost of $5,000. The arrangement of the building will be completely changed and a new front will be built. The seating capacity will be considerably enlarged.

Tredway residence, which will be erected on Second street, between Nineteenth and Twentieth avenues east, this summer. The figure was $924. * * *

The West end 5 and 10-cent store at 2022 and 2224 West Superior street has been torn down to make way for the foundation for a two-story brick building, the work on which will star within a short time. The building will cost $20,000 and will be occupied by Mohaupt Bros., proprietors of the old store. A. H. Burg & Co. are financing the new building.

TWIN CITIES OF CANADA HAVE REAL ESTATE BOOM

Port Arthur and Fort William, the Canadian twins, are experiencing a real estate boom and inasmuch as what transpires at the Canadian Head of the Lakes is of interest and importance to the American Head of the Lakes, the condition is of some importance locally.

At Port Arthur several big deals have been put through during the past few days in city and suburban real estate. A number of city blocks have changed hands at advanced prices. The activity is said to be due to the rumors of the incoming of another railroad and that several new concerns are anticipating locating at the Canadian Head of the Lakes.

The Canadian Northern railroad is now engaged in connecting up the gap which will link together its eastern and western systems and when this is completed some time next year, the importance of the accomplishment will be significant at Port Arthur. It is expected that in view of the fact that Port Arthur is a division headquarters for the Canadian Northern, that the yard room will be doubled, the staff enlarged and a considerable increase in a population which will be of a permanent character.

Port Arthur people find much encouragement in the fact that the Western Drydock and Shipbuilding company is now a going concern and that it already has three years' work ahead of it without taking any more orders. It is also understood that the Ontario and Western Car company proposes to build one of the largest enterprises of the kind in Canada at Port Arthur. If this is built, and there is no reason to believe that it will not be, hundreds of men will be afforded employment.

Like Duluth, Port Arthur has a commanding position at the Head of the Lakes. This coupled with the recent announcement of a steel plant to be established in Port Arthur by the Mackenzie & Mann interests leaves no room to doubt but what the present boom in real estate is placed on a sound and firm foundation. Even with the present advances in prices, values are not said to be unreasonable and the market is reported to be extremely active.

REAL ESTATE MEN OF COUNTRY WILL ASSEMBLE IN LOUISVILLE

Real estate men of this city are taking a keen interest in the arrangements for the fifth annual convention of the National Association of Real Estate Exchanges, to be held at Louisville, Ky., June 19, 20 and 21.

It is expected that upwards of 1,000 delegates from every state in the union as well as several provinces in Canada, will be present at the Louisville meeting. Last year the convention was held in Denver, Colo., at which time Louisville was chosen as the next meeting place. Owing to the fact that Eastern and Middle Western states will be within a comparatively short distance of the convention city, it is believed that the attendance will far eclipse that of any previous session.

Delegates from over sixty real estate boards, located in every large city throughout the country, will be present at the convention. Many individuals from smaller cities and towns will also attend. A general invitation to real estate men throughout America is being issued by the national association.

During the past year, under the energetic management of President Samuel S. Thorpe of Minneapolis, seventeen real estate boards have joined the national association. It is expected that several more will affiliate before the time of the convention.

The Louisville convention will be held in the armory building, the Hotel Seelbach being the official headquarters of the national association. A large and energetic committee of Louisville men is busy making arrangements for the convention.

In addition to the regular business session, which will be replete with stirring addresses and useful conferences considerable entertainment will be provided. On the first day, there will be a trip to a large amusement park. On the second day, arrangements have been made for a three-hour steamboat trip on the Ohio river. On the evening of the third day, there will be a banquet; and, on the fourth day, hundreds of delegates will board a special train and make a visit to the wonderful Mammoth cave, situated ninety miles from Louisville.

A committee on program, consisting of A. H. Wetten, Chicago, chairman; A. H. Frederick, St. Louis; Alexander S. Taylor, Cleveland; Eugene H. Blake, Kansas City; and Val. J. Rothschild, St. Paul, is now busy making final arrangements for the program of the convention. Many notable speakers will be represented on this program.

A cordial invitation has been issued to the real estate men of this city to attend the convention, and it is hoped that a good sized delegation will go from here.

The officers of the national association are: Samuel S. Thorpe, Minneapolis, president; R. Bruce Douglas, Milwaukee, secretary; A. G. Bowes, Denver, treasurer; Thomas S. Ingersoll, Minneapolis, executive secretary. Vice presidents are, Frank Craven, Philadelphia; V. H. Surghnor, Chicago; Samuel Collyer, Seattle; G. B. O'Reilly, St. Louis; Forrest Adair, Atlanta; and C. N. Shepard, Wichipee.

Those in charge of the arangements at Louisville are, Pink Varble, chairman; Caldwell Norton, vice chairman; and S. C. Dalrymple, secretary and treasurer.

PLANS FOR NEW BUSINESS BLOCK

Another Modern Building Will Be Erected on Disappearing Bowery.

Kris & Rose are having Architect J. J. Wangenstein prepare plans for a three-story and basement Superior street structure, to be erected on the upper side of the street, between Fifth and Sixth avenues west. The structure will cost upwards of $18,000.

The new block will go in next to the new Hamm Brewing company block, which is to be built on the northeast corner of Sixth avenue west and Superior street. It will front twenty-five feet on Superior street and will run 100 feet deep.

The same architect has prepared plans and is taking figures on two new buildings, to be erected for the Duluth Brewing & Malting company at International Falls. Bids will be called for next week on both jobs.

One of the structures will be erected by the brewing company for S. K. Bancroft. It will be 25x100 feet, two stories high and will cost about $18,000. The other is to be occupied by M. Burnett, is to be of brick construction three stories and basement, 50x80, and will be used for hotel purposes. It will cost in the neighborhood of $20,000.

A JOHNSON LIBRARY.

London Daily Mail: Lichfield, the birthplace of Dr. Johnson, has just celebrated the two dundred and second anniversary of the birth of its most illustrious citizen, and Johnsonian scholars and admirers gathered in the ancient city to take part in the commemorative proceedings.

At the old house in St. Mary's square, where Johnson was born, the mayor of Lichfield accepted, on behalf of the city, the Hay-Hunter library. It comprises about 1,050 volumes, was formed by the late Rev. Peter Hay-Hunter of Edinburgh, and has been presented to the birthplace by his widow. Among its rarest treasures are first editions of the dictionary, the "Adventurer," "Rambler," "Rasselas" and the poetical works and political tracts. It also includes between thirty and forty editions of Roswell's "Life."

The annual Johnson supper was held in the old George hostel. The "coarse" fare beloved by Johnson—beefsteak pudding, with kidneys, oysters and mushrooms, haunch of mutton, apple pie with cream and toasted cheese—was served and then the old ale and punch were brought in and the guests had each a church-warden pipe and a dish of tobacco.

BUSIEST WEEK IN REALTY SINCE FIRST OF THE YEAR

Duluth Agents Report Greatly Improved Demand for Property.

Two High-Class Residence Sites Sold—Acreage in Demand.

A better tone to the real estate market is reported by Duluth dealers in realty and the week past has been a moderately active one. The various brokers declare that they are doing more business now than at any time since the first of the year. City property is moving and there is noticeable a brisk demand in acreage, especially the small five and ten-acre tracts.

Two 75-foot lots of first class, unimproved residence property were sold through the firm of E. D. Field & Co. this week for C. F. Colman. The lots are on the lower side of Seventh street between Twenty-sixth and Twenty-seventh avenues east.

Charles D. Brewer purchased one of the properties, but the name of the other buyer has not been made public. The lots sold for $2,450 each. It is understood that both properties will be improved with handsome homes this year.

E. D. Field & Co. also report activity in the disposal of their five-acre garden tracts near Proctor. The tracts are nearly all sold and earnest money is said to have been received on the last of them.

The Western Realty company reports considerable activity in West end property and in acreage back of the West end. During the past week this firm sold a house and lot at 3818 West Third street, from Peter Johnson to Oscar Anderson for $2,200; a lot at Fortieth avenue west and Sixth street, from Annon Hegland to Wilhelm Mossberg. It also sold garden tracts close to the Piedmont car line to F. L. Stram, Albert S. Krans, Andrew F. Ahlgren, and Carl E. Staky. The company is putting on sale a number of garden tracts on the Morris Thomas and Hutchinson roads, and considerable inquiry is reported.

A. W. Kuehnow this week sold five lots in Norton's Steel Plant division, four going to purchasers at Bessemer, Mich., and one to a Neenah, Wis., man. The latter is a barber who expects to build a shop on his lot next fall and move his business from Neenah to New Duluth.

Mr. Kuehnow this week also sold a quarter section in 31, 55-15, to Herman Grossing. The land is situated along the line of the new Canadian Northern branch into Duluth.

Andrew Berquist, a real estate dealer with offices in the Exchange building, reports a brisk business in garden tracts and five-acre parcels along the new Hutchinson road in the Seventh Ward Garden division. The lots are being sold on a cash basis which has appealed to a great many. Some of the tracts are already being improved.

RED BOULDERS IN NEW HOME

Millen Residence Will Introduce Novelty in Building Material.

A novel effect in the construction of high class residences will be worked out in the building of the new home at Congdon park this summer for John Millen. The residence will probably be one of the best to be erected in the city this year and will cost in the neighborhood of $75,000.

The entire first story of the house will be constructed of Lake county red stone boulders and the arrangement will be unique and striking. The upper portion of the house will be constructed of tapestry brick, half timbered and there will be a tile roof. There will be a gate lodge in connection with the house.

The plans for the new Millen home have been prepared by Architect F. G. German and it is expected that he will take figures on it next week. Several contractors are figuring on the job and considerable competition is evident.

CHANGES IN AN OLD FIRM

Stryker, Manley & Buck Reorganize and Take in New Partners.

Stryker, Manley & Buck announce some interesting changes in their company.

R. S. Manley who has been with the company seventeen years; W. K. McLennan, who has been in their employment ten years, and Fred W. Buck, son of George W. Buck, have each purchased an interest in the corporation. Fred W. Buck has been elected secretary and the other officers are John D. Stryker, president; Arthur H. Brown, vice president, and George W. Buck, treasurer.

The real estate, loans and insurance business of Stryker, Manley & Buck was established in 1881 by George W. Kimberley. Mr. Stryker became interested in the business in 1886, Mr. Buck in 1890 and Mr. Brown in 1894.

Stryker, Manley & Buck have built up a large and successful business by giving careful attention to it in all its details and by always doing what they agree to do. They claim their success is largely due to the fact that they conduct their business in such a way that when a person once does business with them he is glad to continue.

ENGLISH NAMES.

London Correspondence New York Sun: A curious person who wrote for information as to the pronunciation of the name of Viscount Haldane, the secretary of war, has been told by Lord Haldane's private secretary that the first syllable is pronounced as the "hall in Westminister hall."

Lord Rosebery, whose name is Primrose and who was formerly Lord Dalmeny and was recently made Lord Midlothian, told an audience that "when my name was Dalmeny I had frequent spasms on hearing how that name was pronounced by people who were not of Scottish extraction." It should be pronounced as if the second siyable were spelled "menny."

Knowledge of the accepted pronunciation of the names of many well known public men is not as general in England as might be expected. A short list has been printed here to put people straight on the subject. Sir Ernest Soars, who retired from the house of commons recently, is "So-are-ez." Mr. Higham, a member of parliament, is "Hyam," but Mr. Bigham, who is now Lord Mersey, pronounced his family name as it was spelled.

Gen. Bethune is "Beeton." Gen Baden-Powell of Mafeking is Boyd-Carpenter." Pole-Carew is "Pull-Carey." Among members of parliament Courthope is "Court-up," Dalziel is "Dee-ell," Loupgh is "Lock," Menzies is "Minjies," and Yerburgh is "Yarboro." Berkeley is "Bar-klay" and Verney is "Varny."

THAT SPANISH PRISONER.

Madrid Correspondence London Daily News: The police of Bilbao have discovered an influential organization, the members of which have been engaged in working what is known as the "Spanish prisoner swindle."

The concern was conducted like a big commercial undertaking, there being a managing director, a staff of employes, ledgers and classified correspondence. The concern has ramifications all over Spain, each provincial capital having a branch and office with a subdirector and a special code for the transmission of secret messages.

There are workshops for the making of the false seals, which were used to give an appearance of genuineness to counterfeit documents like court orders and magisterial decisions.

Owing to the concern having an excellent espionage service the chief operators of the swindle got warning in time of the intended action of the police. The general manager had an automobile always ready at his disposal, and availing himself of this he crossed the frontier into France. Only subordinates and a caretaker were arrested.

MEASURING BIRD'S FLIGHT.

Tit Bits: More wonderful, as one studies the subject deeper, does the flight of birds become.

Part of the work of the Aberdeen university is to obtain specific and accurate records of bird flights. The method employed is to mark newly hatched or young chicks in the nest in the hope of tracing their subsequent movements. The longest flight recorded is that of a song thrush, which, five months after it had been marked was found 1,250 miles away. Of five lapwings, marked in the northeast of Scotland, four were shot in Ireland, and the fifth was found in Southern Portugal. A guillemot, marked when a newly-hatched chick on the Aberdeenshire cliffs, was shot eighteen weeks latetr north og Gothenburg, Sweden. And a widgeon duckling, marked in the nest on one of the lochs in Scotland, was taken in a duck decoy in Holland three months afterward.

STEADY DAY FOR WHEAT

Little Occurs to Cause Any Important Change for Bulls or Bears.

May Flaxseed Is Slightly Lower But July Price Goes Up a Cent.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 18.—There was little done by either the bulls or the bears on the wheat markets of North America today, and on the whole, the prices closed at about the same level as they did yesterday. Duluth May and July wheat both closed unchanged today at $1.14, though the May was the asking price and the July the bidding price. Yesterday's May close was $1.14 nominal, but yesterday July closed with a transaction at that price. Duluth cash wheat closed half a cent over May and July. Durum, rye and barley closed unchanged, while oats were half a cent off.

The market started off this morning in a way that seemed to promise rather a bullish day. It appeared that the time was ripe for a reaction from the bearish movements that have taken place during the last few days, and the primary receipts indicated a considerable falling off from those of a year ago, though there was some gain over those of the week ago. To-day's primary receipts were in the neighborhood of 390,000 bu., against 342,000 bu. a week ago and 450,000 bu a year ago. But a little later there came a very bearish report from the Burlington railroad in regard to the Nebraska crop, which, it was said, would be a bumper, according to present indications. This, together with generally good weather reports, about counteracted whatever bullish tendencies there were in the North American wheat markets. Some of the futures, notably those at Winnipeg, however, closed slightly higher.

The cables were almost without exception bullish. Liverpool wheat closed unchanged to ¼d higher. The principal factors on that market were the stronger Buenos Ayres wheat cables, fewer Indian offers, smaller American shipments than were expected and firmer American offers.

May Flaxseed Off.

It developed that the cargo of linseed, amounting to about 120,000 bu, which arrived at Duluth last evening from Port Arthur, was destined for the Minneapolis crushers. The bulk of the cargo is going to the Minneapolis stores of the Midland Linseed company, but some belongs to the American Linseed and other companies. This is the first time a cargo of any kind of grain ever came from Port Arthur by water to Duluth. Such a flaxseed movement as that is a thing heretofore unheard of. Duluth brokers today were apparently unanimous in the opinion that the shipment was simply the result of the remarkably high price of cash and May flaxseed at Duluth. Today there was a margin between Duluth May and Winnipeg May of 35c. Inasmuch as the duty is 25c, and there is a rebate of 7c from that for the export of the seed cake, it is not at all surprising that the Minneapolis crushers found it more profitable to buy the Canadian product than the American product. The wonder seems to be rather that this movement did not begin long ago. There seemed to be some effect from this big importation in the way of checking the rise of Duluth May, for it closed ½c off. But it is still held up in a manner that may have the effect of bringing more of the Canadian seed to compete with the American product right here in the Western region where the American seed is raised. Duluth July seed, on the other hand, which has been rather bearish during the last few days, took an upward turn and closed 1c higher. There were ten cars of flaxseed on the track at Duluth for inspection today.

MARKET GOSSIP

Exports of flaxseed from India and Argentina to the United States, while thus far during the present year away behind what they were a year ago, have been increasing lately on account of the scarcity and high price of the American product.

During the week ending May 9 the exports of Calcutta flaxseed to the United States amounted to 32,000 bu. This, added to the 46,000 bu previously exported to this country since Jan. 1 from India, makes a total of 84,000 bu. This total is far behind the corresponding total of last year.

The exports from La Plata during the same week were rather heavy, the total of the shipments being 225,000 bu. This added to the total of previous exports from the same country to the United States since Jan. 1 makes a total of 962,000 bu, against a total of 3,432,000 bu for the corresponding period of 1911.

The Chicago Paint, Oil and Drug Review says:

"As the month of May progresses, the demand for deliveries of linseed oil continues to be on the increase, and the mills are very busy in supplying the demands for May contracts.

"As has been predicted in these columns for many months past, the market continues its upward movement, and higher prices are ruling now than a week ago. The scarcity of flaxseed has forced prices upward which has been reflected in the market so that on Monday of this week, the carload price for strictly pure, raw linseed oil in cooperage advanced to 72c per gallon. As we go to press on Tuesday afternoon, the market is very firm at this figure, and we momentarily expect to see further advances.

"Oil cannot be made in Minneapolis based on the present price of flaxseed for less than 71c or 72c, so that selling oil at present prices in Chicago would appear to be a losing game to the crushers. The market in New York is higher than in Chicago, which is practically on a parity with the Northwestern terminals. So, it would seem prices in Chicago are more favorable than elsewhere. This is no time for questioning the stability of the market or what the future holds forth. By reviewing the foregoing flaxseed notes, it will be observed that the market for seed is very firm, that the commodity itself is quite scarce with yet many months before the new crop, and up to the present moment, the quantity of seed which has been delivered to crushers on the present crop year is only a percentage of the usual requirements. This leaves only one logical conclusion—that is, for the summer months the price of linseed oil must be on a high level.

"The Chicago jobbers are quoting raw oil in less than carload lots at 76c per gallon.

"The demand for linseed cake abroad shows a very healthy improvement and orders for upwards of 2,000 tons for summer delivery were received this week, but the brokers have been unable to find sellers. As a matter of fact, crushers are reluctant to release what cake they have. They are fairly well sold up, and the market is very firm at $33 per ton f. o. b. Chicago."

Although wheat has declined a great deal during the last few days, there has been no corresponding increase in the flour sales. Duluth millers say the flour sales will not resume anything like their usual volume until wheat goes about 8c lower than it is now, and they hardly expect this to happen before the coming of the spring wheat crop upon the market. At present the flour buyers are placing orders only for what flour they need and must have without delay. They are making their purchases "from hand to mouth."

Bracken of Kansas City wired in regard to the wheat crop of Republic county, Kansas: "Ten per cent of the acreage has been abandoned, and there is a prospect that the rest will average 20 to 25 bu per acre."

The Burlington railroad crop report indicates a bumper crop of wheat for Nebraska. The acreage is far in excess of any heretofore grown. For 43 counties shown in the report, the following condition is given: Twenty counties, 100; ten counties, 95; six counties, 90; two counties 85; four counties, 75; one county, 70. The spring wheat acreage is a little in excess of last year and the condition does not show below 100 in any locality. Oats are placed at 100 and the acreage is in excess of last year.

CHICAGO MARKET.

Nebraska Crop Predictions Pull Down Wheat Prices.

Chicago, May 18.—Assertions today that the Nebraska yield would be a "bumper" pulled down the price of wheat. Railroad reports were quoted as authority. Another influence on the bear side was the fact that the week's shipments out of Chicago amounted to less than the receipts here. Predictions of lighter world shipments and of a liberal decrease in the United States visible supply had some bullish effect at the outset, but the firmness quickly wore off, especially as the weather continued favorable in all directions. Opening figures varied from ⅛@¼c lower to ⅜c up. July started at $1.08½ to $1.08⅝, a shade off to ⅛@¼c higher, and declined to $1.08.

Subsequently an upturn resulted from shorts covering. The close was steady, with July ⅛@¼c net higher at $1.08⅝.

Moderate commission selling proved sufficient to make corn sag. Warmer temperatures and cessation of rain were incentives for the bears. July opened the same as last night to ⅛c above, at 74⅜c to 74⅞c, and descended to 74?@74½c.

A rally ensued owing to the recovery of wheat. The close was easy at 74⅝c for July, a net loss of ⅛c.

The oats market suffered from unloading in which a prominent concern set the example. Sympathy with the action of other grain had considerable to do with the weakness. July started unchanged to ⅛c lower at 49¾c to 49⅞c and dropped to 49¼c.

A decline at the yards led to some hammering of the provision market. Trade on the whole, however, was light and there was no severe depression. Initial transactions ranged from 10c lower to 12½c advance, with September delivery $18.80 for pork, $10.71½ to $11.00 for lard and $10.62½ for ribs.

ADVANCES IN STOCKS

Anthracite Issues Dominate the Market During the Brief Session.

Crude Oil Advance Followed By Rise in the Oil Stocks.

New York, May 18.—Moderate dealings in the stock market today opened with some irregularity. Canadian Pacific soon declined a full point, with fractional losses in Union Pacific and some of the trunk lines. The gains included Lehigh Valley, United States Rubber and some of the minor specialties.

The market's uncertainty disappeared when moderate buying orders appeared. Coal stocks, Union Pacific and Steel were in demand.

The market closed strong. The anthracite stocks dominated the market throughout the brief session, Lehigh Valley rising to 179½ and Reading to 177¼. Other prominent features included People's Gas, United States Rubber, Texas company, Mexican Petroleum and Sears-Roebuck. A further rise in the oil stocks followed announcement of an advance in crude oil. In the final dealings, Union Pacific, Smelting, Steel and Amalgamated Copper rose a point.

ONE DAY'S AVERAGE ROOM RENT!

IT WILL PAY for a Room for Rent ad for three or four days in THE HERALD, and you will have ample space to tell enough about your room to interest the prospective room renter.

People pick rooms from the description given in the ad—they then call on those they have chosen, and if you have interested them in your ad you will have a chance to show them your room and rent it to them. ——

SO TELL THEM ABOUT IT.

IT COSTS ONLY ONE CENT PER WORD PER DAY, TWO OR MORE DAYS!

VIGILANTES MAY BE PROSECUTED

Found More at Fault Than Industrial Workers at San Diego.

Sacramento, Col., May 18.—Col. Harris Weinstock, special commissioner apointed by Governor Johnson to investsigate the San Diego "free speech' campaign carried on by the Industrial Workers of the World, finds in his report, made public today, that the "vigilantes" of San Diego have been guilty of more culpable offense than the Industrial Workers, and recommends their prosecution.

Col. Weinstock is the head of the firm of Weinstock-Lubin company, which conducts several large department stores in various cities throughout this state.

MARINE

BOATS ARE BUSY.

Nearly All Vessels Rushing to Duluth for One-Way Cargoes.

There is no change in the marine situation. The boats are all busy. Nearly all of them are coming light for ore. The grain rate is said to have been raised by some who are anxious for tonnage to 1¾ cents. Tonnage is scarce. No coal is moving as yet. The movement in package freight and lumber continues heavy. If labor difficulties were straightened out and coal were moving, the present would be the busiest time on the lakes in several seasons.

THE MODEST CALLER.

Philadelphia Inquirer: Mrs. Brown was a mistress who allowed her servant, Jane, to bring her young man into her kitchen at nights.

Now, Mrs. Brown was very inquisitive and listened outside the door to the conversation.

A short time ago Jane got a fresh young man, and the mistress noticed how quiet all was when he was in the kitchen.

"Jane," said Mrs. Brown the next morning, "how is it I never hear any talk in the kitchen when your new young man visits you?"

"Oh, mum," replied Jane, "he's that modest he does nothing but eat when he calls on me."

TO PRESERVE OLD PHOTOGGRAPH.

National Magazine: One way to preserve old photographs is as follows: Put the photographs into clean, hot water; very soon the pictures loosen and may be easily removed from the cards. When dry, either trim down, to economize space, or carefully cut away the background entirely. Mount them in a scrap book or a book made especially for kodak pictures. You will then have a book with which you can spend many happy moments looking over familiar scenes and faces.

ONE AMERICAN AMONG THE TEN GREATEST.

"Doubtless," writes Clement Shorter, in the Strand, "there are many great men living in the world today—men with prospective greatness, that is, or even achieved greatness—but only time can decide. In my judgment there is no man in world today who is great in any walk of life in so striking a way that his contemporaries can unhesitatingly proclaim him great. History has proclaimed the elder Pitt a great man, but not so certainly his son. It has not assigned this epithet to Palmrston or Peel and it is too early yet to decide whether it will concede it to Gladstone or Disraeli. The great man is surely he who, by force of genius, has impressed himself upon his age in some permanent form. Whether the achievements of Mr. Roosevelt or Emperor William are of this character had better be decided a century hence. As you ask me, however, to join in what can scarcely be a serious discussion, I suggest that we take the name of a living man from each country who has by invention or creation stamped himself upon his age. I therefore nominate the ten greatest men of the present day as follows:

Great Britain ...Thomas Hardy.
Great Britain ...Lord Lister.
United States ...Thomas A. Edison.
Italy .....Guglielmo Marconi
Italy .....Giacomo Puccini.
France .....Francois Coppee.
Austria .....Richard Strauss.
Germany .....Hermann Suderman
Belgium .....Maurice Maeterlinck
Russia .....Ellie Metchnikoff.

CALLS THE KAISER "WILLY."

"The German Emperor, in absence of his consort, speaks of her as 'my wife,' says the Woman's Home Companion, "the empress in the home circle addresses him as 'Willy.'

"The former alludes to his family, from the crown prince to the princess, as 'my young ones'; the latter speaks of them not by title, but as 'my children,' both expressions so clearly conveying the close existing attachment.

"Very often the emperor gives evidence at unexpected moments of the ever present love with him of his family. At times, when they were small children, and he was being entertained at state banquets as the guest of princes or cities, he would slip bonbons into his pocket, quietly saying, 'These are for the young ones' something brought home always tastes better; I know that from experience.'

"It is told of the emperor that in Rome, when he was selecting a gown to take home as a present to the empress, a relative advised as choice an elaborate creation, mainly of lace. 'Impossible!' he answered. 'With the children constantly clambering over her it would soon be in ribbons.'"

A DOG UNDER ARREST.

London Globe: A dog thief—not a dog stealer, but a dog which had been trained to steal—has been arrested by the French police. He was caught "en flagrant delit," we read, when he was in the act of stealing a pair of lady's shoes from an establishment in Noisy-le-Sec. His procedure was so cunning that it left no doubt among the police that the dog was no "untutored mind."

Nothing could be drawn from the animal at the police office, so it was decided to shut him up without food. After some hours confinement the dog was released and a police cyclist was in readiness to follow the dog home. But the "best laid schemes of mice and men gang aft asley."

The dog when liberated instead of rushing home deliberately walked to the other side of the road, and there sat down on a doorstep and awaited events, every now and again throwing suspicious galnces at the police in waiting. Finding that there was no chance of the dog going home he was again taken into the police office and sent to the fourriere, where he will meet an untimely end.

HIS CHINESE CLIENT.

Wasp: The late Dennis Spencer of Napa, Cal., was noted as a lawmaker, orator and lawyer.

One day there entered his office in Napa a bright looking, well dressed Chinaman. He took a chair and proceeded straight to the point:

"You Mr. Spencer, the big lawyer?"

"Yes."

"How much you charge to defend a Chinaman?"

"For what crime?"

"Murder."

"Five hundred dollars."

The Chinamon said he would call again.

A few days later he returned to Spencer's office, gravely placed $500 in coin on the desk before the astonished attorney, and said:

"All lite. I kill 'im."

Spencer defended and acquitted him.

COPPERS FOLLOW METAL UPWARD

Higher Copper Prices Cause Stronger Closes of the Stocks.

The better prices that have been commanded during the last few days by copper both at home and abroad today had their natural effect on the copper stock values and most of the active shares closed at good gains. The rise was accentuated by the bullish news from the general stock market of New York, where closes were generally strong. Calumet & Arizona and Hancock closed at a gain of more than $1. Good gains were also made by Amalgamated, Carmen, Butte & Superior, North Butte and Giroux.

Gay & Sturgis, today received the following closing stock letter from I. J. Sturgis at Boston: "The lethargy was broken today and higher prices appeared all around. The coalers and tractions were especially strong and look higher. Coppers were strong and fairly active. The producers especially made good gains which is putting the horse in proper relation to the cart. With a possible pause over Tuesday, the market should continue its advance. Conditions are growing steadily better in every way except politically."

Paine, Webber & Co., today received from Foster at Boston, the following closing copper letter: "The whole list looked better today. The volume of transactions was not very large but the buying was steady and at gradually advanced prices. The demand at present seems to be confined to the better class of coppers and we expect to see much higher prices for the producing mines. Copper Range closed at 60, Osceola at 120, Quincy at 90 bid, Calumet & Hecla 490 and Ahmeek 310 bid. The metal is strong at 16½c per lb. with an increasing demand and it will soon be possible to figure the earnings on good mines which will justify at least a 50 per cent advance from present selling prices."

SPECIAL BARGAINS IN FARM LANDS.

EXCEPTIONAL COLONIZATION OPPORTUNITY.

About 6,600 acres, the last large tract of good land at a low price in Douglas County, Wisconsin.

This tract of land is fairly well bunched, and for the most part lies within two or three miles of a railroad. The South Shore and the N. P. railways cross through the tract. Nearly all of the land is adjacent to good wagon roads.

The south half of the tract is a sandy loam soil, with just enough clay to make an ideal potato land, and farmers in this district made $100 per acre net profit from their potato crops last year. This land also produces good grain and hay, and is especially adapted to the raising of small fruits and vegetables.

Considerably more than half of this tract can be cleared at less than half the usual cost of clearing land, and some of it can be cleared for only a few dollars per acre. The D., S. S. & A. Ry. Co. is establishing a demonstration farm almost in the center of this tract of land. Our price of $6.50 per acre is very close, and we can make terms of $2.50 cash and balance in five or six years at 6 per cent.

We advise immediate action on the part of any one interested in this deal.

160 acres, in a solid body of choice, level St. Louis county land located south of Aurora. A great many settlers already in this town; new wagon roads and postoffice close to land. If sold at once, $5 per acre will take it. Can be easily and quickly retailed for $10.

80 acres — 53-17 — free from stone; contains some good timber; on good road; improved farm, also school one-half mile away. Can close this at $7.50 per acre.

In Carlton county, close to the stations of Moose Lake, Barnum, Normadji, Blackhoof and Fregner, we have a large list of personally selected lands which are suitable for general farming, and which we can sell on very easy terms in tracts as wanted, from 40 acres to 160 acres, at from $10 to $20 per acre on very easy terms.

100 acres on the shore of one of the most beautiful lakes in St. Louis county; close to good wagon roads, which we offer at $10 per acre; very easy terms.

120 acres south of Biwabik, very choice land, only $10 per acre. Will take unencumbered city property as part payment or make very easy terms.

10-acre tracts less than three miles from end of car line from Lester Park: two of these tracts touch Lester river; ideal for poultry and truck farming; $1,000; terms.

1,160 acres close to Two Harbors; can be bought for $5.50 per acre; a big snap; easily retailed at double if subdivided.

120-acre improved farm in St. Louis county on Miller trunk road; postoffice and store on land; $15 per acre.

160-acre Carlton county improved farm, 80 acres cleared; buildings cost $1,800; $40, easy terms.

70 acres fronting on large lake in Douglas county, Wis., one mile from station; good road; part open land; easily cleared; $15; terms.

80 acres, few rods from Brule river; fine creek; exceptionally easily cleared; close to station; $15, easy terms.

HOMEACRES.

DULUTH HEIGHTS.

Acre garden tracts within thirty minutes from Superior street and Seventh avenue west. Good soil; easily cleared.

Secure your land now, raise crop of potatoes or other vegetables to supply you all winter and help pay for your land.

Our Homeacre tracts are so near the center of the city that you can live there and work in town, while saving house rent, cost of garden produce, etc.

Only nine blocks from present street railway and school.

Let us show you what others are doing at Homeacres in the way of building their homes, clearing and cultivating land.

Four houses building; other owners starting to clear their lands.

A Homeacre tract means surer, better and real living for yourself, wife and children, in good times and bad—an insurance policy against hard times.

GET AN ACRE AND BE INDEPENDENT.

Whom had you rather be? The man that buys a 25-foot lot in a crowded part of town, your children playing in the streets, buying milk by pint and stale vegetables by the quarter peck, storage eggs all at high prices,

OR

The man with a home acre, children in the garden, taxes low, no assessment, sweet milk by the gallon, fresh eggs daily, chickens, fresh vegetables in the summer, and contentment?

Mr. Wage Earner, a home acre means to you an acre at the cost of a cheap 25-foot lot; easy access to business center or place of work on 15-minute car ride; a chance for vegetables, chickens and cow; cheaper living; work for yourself when out of work; healthy surroundings for your family. Ten lots that will advance in value ten times as fast as one lot. The very best chance that has been offered the homeseeker or small investor, counting price, terms, location and what you get. Your wife, with her chickens and a cow, and your boys in a garden, can make as much from Homeacre every year as you can earn in wages.

PRICES:

$175 to $350 per Homeacre. Block of ten 25-foot lots equal to $17.50 to $35 per lot.

Easy Payments. No Interest. No Payments When Sick. Torrens Title. See us for full information.

EBERHART TIED BODY AND SOUL TO BREWERY COMBINE, SAYS GORDON

Urges Anti-Saloon League to Join Him in the Fight.

Should Unite to Knock Out the Brewery-Owned Saloons.

Their Influence Stands as Barrier to All Progressive Legislation.

St. Paul, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Sam Y. Gordon has made the following reply to a letter addressed to the candidates for governor by the superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, requesting their views on county option:

"J. P. Youngdahl, state superintendent, Minnesota Anti-Saloon League: Dear Sir—Answering your letter of the 15th inst., I want to say that while I am fully aware of the fact that county option is a very live issue and a long ways from being eliminated from the politics of this state, I also know, as do you, that the present composition of the state senate makes it impossible to pass such a measure. However, let me assure you that I am unalterably opposed to the entire brewery program of Ed E. Smith, Dar Reese, Fred Zollman and their entire crowd of brewery-owned hirelings.

"I think you already understand this, but I want no mistake about it. I am sure, too, that you are fully advised that the brewery combine, with present headquarters in the Pioneer Press building, St. Paul, and an office full of paid hirelings and political bosses, have been scouring this state for many months, using every means at their command to defeat my nomination.

"You know all this as well as I do, and that I voluntarily drew their fire long before I ever took the oath of office as lieutenant governor. The reason why the present administration is being so strenuously opposed by me is

SUDDEN DEATH IS SHOCK TO CLOQUET

Charles Wilander, Ex-City Treasurer and Old Resident, Dies Suddenly.

Cloquet, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Claus E. Wilander died this morning at 6, after an illness of a few days. His death was a great shock to the community. Mr. Wilander was about 51 years old and a bachelor. He had lived either at Carlton or Cloquet for twenty-five years. At Carlton he ran a grocery store for a few years, but for many years has been identified with business in Cloquet, running grocery store here. He was city treasurer for a long period until last year, when he was succeeded by J. H. Ellwood, and has been prominent in all the affairs of the city. He was both a Mason and an Odd Fellow, a Rebekah and member of S. H. and E. F. of A. Four sisters survive: Mrs. Clayton Dodge of Moose Lake, Mrs. Andrew Freeman of Thomson, Mrs. Emil Nelson of Superior and Mrs. Henry Wolf of Hayward, Wis. He is an uncle of Fritz Freeman of Cloquet. No funeral arrangements have been made.

NAMED IN "BLACKLIST" KEPT BY HARRY THAW

CRAIG WADSWORTH.

New York, May 20.—Craig Wadsworth, identified with the Long Island set, so-called, was on the "black list" of Harry Thaw, it appears. The existence of such a black list has just been discovered, and although two of the men on it have died, the list will be used in an effort to prevent Thaw's release. Thaw sent in 1903 to a confidential agent in New York a list of names, after three of which he wrote "Kill." One of these was the name of the man Thaw killed—Stanford White. Here is the list:

"Bancroft Davis, (Kill); Freddy Gebhard, (Kill); Stanford White, (Kill); Craig Wadsworth; Reginald Francklyn."

Of these White was killed and Gebhard has since died.

METHODISTS MUST HURRY

Have Much Work to Do Before Adjournment Date Next Week.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—With the general conference of the Methodist-Episcopal church scheduled to adjourn on May 28, about one week distant, more than half of the bishops yet are to be elected and the church must consider several topics, some of which may occasion strenuous debate on the floor.

At the Baltimore conference four years ago it required nineteen ballots to elect eight bishops. Six have been taken at the present session, and delegates declare that the record at Baltimore will be broken before the entire number of bishops have been chosen, and that the balloting may not be finished by the 28th at the present rate of two ballots a day. Until the sixth ballot here, but one man has been named, Dr. Homer C. Stuntz of New York going in on the first ballot. That a number of "combines" have been ef-

RICHESON IS EAGER TO DIE

Says He Will Not Break Down When Last Hour Comes.

Sings Hymns and Reads Psalms—No Relative to See Murderer.

Boston, Mass., May 20.—A desire that his execution might come speedily was apparently the dominating thought in the mind of Clarence V. T. Richeson when he arose from his prison bed today. The young Virginian, who shortly after midnight tonight, probably, will pay the penalty for the murder of Avis Linnell, has become reconciled to his fate.

"I will be ready when you want me, warden," he said to Gen. Bridges late last night when the official paid him a brief visit. "Do not worry," he added. "I shall not break down."

Sang Hymns and Read Psalms.

Richeson bore up well through his last Sunday on earth. He even was cheerful as he sang hymns with Chaplain Herbert W. Stebbins until a late hour last night, several times repeating his favorite selection, "Some Time We'll Understand." Then he would read from the Psalms, and his expositions of the lessons were described by the chaplain as eloquent and learned.

It was not until daylight this morning that Richeson fell into a fitful sleep. Realizing that his hours were so few in number, the condemned man openly declared he did not want to sleep.

WOULD STOP ALL WILDCAT STOCKS

Kelsey Chase Has Bill to Submit at the Extra Session.

St. Paul, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Kelsey S. Chase, state superintendent of banks, is preparing a bill to be introduced at the extra session of the legislature if that body takes up any measures other than the three designated by the governor in his proclamation, to stop, if possible, the sale of "blue sky" and "wildcat" stocks in Minnesota.

The measure will require all persons selling stock to take out licenses and will require a financial statement of the affairs of the company in which stock is offered to be made public. Licenses will be made revocable.

Taft Takes New Line of Attack in Wind-up of Ohio Fight.

Replies to Charge That He Dissolved Federal Commission.

Roosevelt and La Follette Also Talk on Last Day of Campaign.

Hamilton, Ohio, May 20.—President Taft on the last day of his campaign tour of Ohio developed new lines of criticism of Colonel Roosevelt. In a speech here today to one of the biggest crowds that ever assembled in Hamilton to hear a political address, Mr. Taft made answer to Colonel Roosevelt's charge that he had abolished many important "commissions" appointed by the last administration by making the counter charge that these commissions frequently had been unlawfully appointed.

Mr. Taft again declared that Mr. Roosevelt evidently thought he was the Republican party. The crowd broke in several times with cheers and applause.

EMPLOYES MEET WITH EMPLOYERS

Co-operative Campaign Is Launched at Gathering in New York City.

New York, May 20.—A national co-operative campaign by employes and workmen was inaugurated here today at the opening of the seventeenth annual convention of the National Association of Manufacturers, which was attended by manufacturers from every part of the United States, with delegations of their workmen, foremen and factory superintendents.

The co-operative campaign is designed to improve the conditions and efficiency of American industrial methods through education on the questions of accident prevention and industrial training for apprentices, immigration and fire prevention.

SENATE COMMITTEE CLEARS LORIMER AND SAYS ACCUSERS LIED

Majority Report on Second Investigation Discredits Burgess' Story.

Declares Result of First Inquiry Should Have Been Allowed to Stand.

Denounces Funk and White and Suggests Liquor Interests Paid Holtslaw.

Washington, May 20.—The case of Senator Lorimer of Illinois, whose election was alleged to have been brought about through corruption, today was placed before the senate for final action. Majority and minority reports were made by the special investigating committee, the former upholding and the latter condemning the senator.

The majority reported that all the rules of law, judicial procedure and justice required the senate's former judgment in Senator Lorimer's favor be held final and conclusive, and that there absolutely was no new and substantial evidence discovered, his election being the logical result of existing political conditions in Illinois.

Ten Corrupt Votes.

The minority reported that the evidence presented at the second investigation was "broader and more far-reaching" than the previous inquiry brought out, and that it conclusively established that at least ten of the votes cast for Lorimer were corrupt.

MOTHER CLAIMS WAIFS FROM TITANIC

MME. MICHAEL NAVRATILA AND HER RESCUED CHILDREN.

New York, May 20.—Mme. Michael Navratila arrived in New York on the Oceanic, and was reunited to the two children who were brought to New York as the guests of Miss Hays, after being rescued from the Titanic. They had been awarded to her by the court while suit was pending to separate their father and mother. The father stole them and started for America on the Titanic with another woman and the little boys. He sailed under a false name, which helped make the identity of the little ones obscure. He was drowned and the boys were unable to tell anyone who they were, but they were evidently French, so their pictures were sent to France and widely published, with the result that their mother recognized them. She will take the boys back to their native land.

SCANLON MAN IS FATALLY INJURED

Falls From Ore Train He Was Riding Home From Cloquet.

Cloquet, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Carl Jacobson of Scanlon was instantly killed Sunday morning as he jumped from a moving ore train at his home station. Jacobson worked in a Cloquet saw mill and boarded the train after he finished his night's work, riding to Scanlon. He was drawn under the wheels and his head and limbs were crushed.

A widowed mother at Scanlon survives him, whose support he was, and a sister residing in Virginia. Jacobson was about 19 years old.

PREDICTS MUCH HEMP GROWING IN WISCONSIN.

Madison, Wis., May 20.—That the growing of hemp will become an important industry in Wisconsin within the near future is the prediction of Prof. R. A. Moore, head of the agronomy department of the Wisconsin agricultural college. Last year hemp was grown on the state prison farm at Waupun. A fiber machine has just been placed in operation there which will produce a ton of fiber per hour from the hemp stalks. Prof. Moore says that over a ton of hemp is grown on every acre, and that the sale of fiber will approximate about $120.

PRESBYTERIANS PICK ATLANTA

Will Hold Their General Assembly in Georgia City Next Year.

Louisville, Ky., May 20.—Atlanta, Ga., was selected as host for the 1913 general assembly of the Northern Presbyterian church today. Rochester and Atlantic City, which were contenders, withdrew. Atlanta plans to entertain thousands of members of each branch of the Presbyterian church in 1913.

CHICAGO AUTO PARTY OF FIVE ARE ALL DROWNED

Car Goes Off Bridge That Is Opened for Boat to Pass.

Unidentified Body of Woman the Only One Recovered.

Chicago, May 20.—Five persons, three men and two women, were drowned early today when the automobile in which they were riding plunged into the Calumet river at the Ninety-second street bridge. None of the names of the victims so far has been learned by the police, and only one of the bodies has been recovered.

One of the women jumped into the river as the embankment was reached, according to a watchman. Her body was recovered. The woman was apparently 24 years old, and the initials "A. M." were on a bracelet worn by her.

The automobile, which was going about thirty miles an hour, turned completely over as it went into the river. Only one of the party was seen afterward. One of the men swam for several minutes. The watchman threw a life preserver to him but he apparently did not see it and went down.

The bridge had been swung to allow a boat to pass, and although a warning was shouted to the driver of the machine by the watchman, the former was unable to apply the brakes in time to avert the accident.

Divers Help Raise Car.

Divers attached ropes to the automobile and the top was raised to the surface. The state license tag came into view, showing license tag No. 5, which, according to the records, was issued to O. W. Cannon of Danville, Ill.

Divers found no bodies beneath the car.

Examination of the car definitely established that it was owned by Mrs. C. F. Spalding, 1300 Astor street. It was driven by John Buchanan, a chauffeur temporarily employed by Mrs. Spalding, who took the car without permission and invited four friends, two of whom were young women, to ride with him.

Cannon Car Is Safe.

Danville, Ill., May 20.—O. W. Cannon, nephew of Joseph G. Cannon, and whose motor care license number is 5, the same as that on the automobile which early today ran into the Calumet river, Chicago, said his car was safe in its garage here. He and Mrs. Cannon made a trip to Chicago in the car last week.

SEES CHANCE FOR HIS MAN

Houser Thinks La Follette Is Gaining By Taft-Roosevelt Fight.

Predicts Deadlock in the National Republican Convention.

Madison, Wis., May 20.—"The presidential outlook is awfully mixed," said Walter L. Houser, campaign manager for Senator La Follette, today.

Mr. Houser left for Huron, S. D., this afternoon to arrange a series of speaking dates for the Wisconsin senator in that state. Mr. La Follette will enter that state in about a week and a body of Wisconsin men will assist him in the campaign.

"The personal charges between President Taft and Col. Roosevelt have brought the presidential contest to a low level and the nomination of either would mean certain defeat. The people are becoming disgusted.

"So far as La Follette is concerned, he has kept out of this and has confined himself to the presentation of the issues. This is to his advantage, as he has the strength of the rank and file. The convention will undoubtedly be tied up in a deadlock and I think Senator La Follette stands a good chance."

LINCOLN HALL AT NEGRO INSTITUTE IS DEDICATED.

Claremont, Vt., May 20.—Lincoln Memorial hall, the latest addition to the buildings of the temperance, industrial and collegiate institute here, was dedicated today, with elaborate exercises presided over by Governor Mann. The institute, which now has a plant worth $750,000, and is attended by negro students from all over the country, was founded twenty years ago by John J. Smallwood, a negro educator, with ten pupils and less than $50 in cash. Mrs. John Hay was the chief contributor to the $50,000 fund for Lincoln hall.

PIONEER LIMITED GOES INTO THE MISSISSIPPI

Part of Section 1 Derailed By Washout Eight Miles From Winona.

Slow Speed Prevents Casualty List on the Milwaukee Road.

Winona, Minn., May 20.—The first section of train No. 1 on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway, known as the Pioneer Limited, was derailed at about 3:20 this morning, near Homer, eight miles east of here. Two sleepers, a baggage and buffet car are in the ditch and are partially submerged in the Mississippi river, which the track parallels at this point. The wreck was caused by heavy rains last night which washed out the roadbed and let the train slide from the track.

One passenger, William West, a traveling salesman, was caught in the washroom when the train went over, and had to break his way out of the window to keep from drowning. He was brought to the hospital here but his injuries consist only of lacerated hands and limbs. The second section of the train came around the wreck on the double track and brought the passengers and what remained on the track of the first section to this city.

That there was no loss of life is due to the fact that the train had had warning to watch for washouts and was running slowly at the time of the accident.

ADVERTISING MEN IN SESSION

"Houn' Dawg" Gets Prominence at Gathering in Dallas, Tex.

Dallas, Tex., May 20.—Advertising men from all parts of the nation reached Dallas today, each delegation coming with some startling variety of noises or decoration designed to impress others with the importance of the particular town from which each hailed.

It was the signal for the beginning of the annual meeting of the Associated Advertising Clubs of America. The first feature today was the automobile parade in which each delegation was expected to launch some startling innovation that would bring glory to its native city. The St. Louis delegation, for instance, brought a chorus trained exclusively on the "Houn' Dawg" song. However, the words were different, intimating that inasmuch as the "houn" was a healthy bull terrior, weighing eighty pounds, nobody "was kickin' him aroun'."

The principal address today was delivered by Julius Schneider.

CHURCH CAUSES UNREST.

Theory Is Advanced By Speaker at Presbyterian Assembly.

Louisville, Ky., May 20.—The church, by preaching its high ideals, is primarily responsible for the social unrest, declared Charles Steizle, superintendent of the Presbyterian bureau of social service, addressing a mass meeting held here in connection with the general assembly of the Presbyterian church in the United States. Mr. Steizle was on the program with William J. Bryan who was heard in one of his set lectures.

Mr. Steizle regarded the social unrest as the most hopeful sign of progress and added that "the church must come the home and center of the great movements of reform and reconstruction about which they may organize and unify themselves."

To this end he urged that the church become the exponent of the fundamental principles of truth and justice, permitting every man to apply them for himself.

STREET CAR EMPLOYES ASK FOR CONCESSIONS

Want Raise in Wages and Shorter Working Hours.

Lack of Organization Would Make Strike Difficult to Arrange.

Manager Warren Issues Statement, Giving Company's Side of Case.

Unless wages are raised, working time shortened, and a more pleasant waiting room constructed, there is a possibility of a street car strike in Duluth.

These seem to be the principal demands of the men employed by the company. A postcard vote is being taken among the men and labor leaders claim that about 90 per cent are in favor of striking. The postal cards were distributed among the men and addressed to "Stuart McDonald, 825 East Ninth street."

An attempt will be made at the council meeting tonight to get the men and the officials of the company together that the differences may be settled by a compromise. The men seem willing to meet with officials of the company and arbitrate the matter.

S. S. McDonald, general organizer for the American Federation of Labor, and employed at the News Tribune, seems to be engineering the strike. There is no organization among the employes of the company and for that reason it is felt to be doubtful if all those who vote to strike will go out when called.

For some time past the men have been airing their grievences through the columns of The Herald. Several letters have been published which were written by employes of the company and their friends.

The men claim that they have had no raise in years and the company claims that the wages have been raised on several occasions and voluntarily.

William E. McEwen, publisher of the Labor World, and generally accepted as an authority on local labor matters, did not know any thing about the matter when interviewed by a Herald reported this morning.

"I know there has been some talk of a strike among the men for some time," said Mr. McEwen, "but I didn't know that they had definitely decided upon any action."

Defends Men.

Thomas Bayliss of Lafayette, Ind., who represents the Painters and Decorators' union and who is in Duluth in connection with the Union Labor Forward movement, stated that all over the country the street car men are worked long hours and not given sufficient pay. He said that as a general rule the men are oppressed and from what he has heard of the local situation, the men are justified in striking.

General manager Warren of the street car company gove out a statement today in which he showed that the wages of the employes have been raised from $.13.28 per hour in 1899 to $.22.49 per hour in 1912. He also stated that no employe has expressed himself dissatisfied either with working conditions or wages and that he has no reason to believe that there is any dissatisfaction on the part of the men whatever. He states also that the public need have no fear of a strike. He says plans for the new waiting room, which the men demend, are completed and that building will soon begin.

Men's Statement.

The statement given out last evening by Mr. McDonald, representing the men, follows:

"The Duluth Street Railway company is in an exceedingly prosperous condition and no increase in wages has been granted to the employes operating its cars for the last twenty-three years. The cost of living has more than doubled in the same period. It is now no longer possible for the men to maintain that standard of living which they are entitled to enjoy as a reward for faithfulness to duty and to their employers.

"The men are compelled to work long hours at a rate of pay that is far below the standard allowed for similar work in other cities. Therefore, the street car men, through their committee, declare for the following propositions:

"1. That the company grant its employes an increase in wages of 5 cents per hour, or a minimum rate of 26 cents per hour.

"2. That not more than twelve hours of duty be required of any employe in each day of twenty-four hours. (This is to be construed to mean that an employe is to be excused from further duty after twelve hours from the time he first reports for work each day.)

"3. That students shall be paid 10 cents per hour while practicing.

"4. That students, after receiving their appointments and being placed on the extra list, shall receive 26 cents per hour with a minimum day's pay of $2 until assigned to regular runs.

"5. That not less than ten hours' work be assigned to each employe each day.

"6. That a new and sanitary waiting room be constructed with an outside exposure.

"Should these demands be refused, immediate steps will be taken to organize to the end that the company shall be compelled to give us recognition, and if this is not given, the company shall be notified that, after a certain date, we shall refuse to operate its cars."

Men Are Unorganized.

A street car conductor on the East Fourth street line told a Herald reporter that he did not think he men would strike. He stated tha here is no organizaton and consequently no way of holding them together. "No one would know whether the others are going to strike or not and the men would not care to take a chance on the action of his fellows," he said.

"There is no way for the men to hold a meeting. Half of them are on and half off at the same time and only those getting the postals, know how many are in favor and how many look on the matter with disfavor. Personally, I think we are worth more to the company than we are getting. We, all of us, hold responsible positions. We handle thousnds of dollars for the company. We must be honest and capable of operating a street car safely."

Does Not Expect Strike.

General Manager Warren says the people of Duluth need have no fear of a street car strike. He says further: "Several months ago a series of letters appeared in The Herald, some of them being signed by assumed names but purporting to come from street railway eployes, and others signed by prominent Socialists of the city all referring to wages and working conditions of street railway employes. We paid no attention to these letters at that time, but now as there are a number of mis-statements in the statement in the morning paper purporting to come from one S. S. McDonald we think the public and our newer men should be given the facts, which are as follows:

"In 1899 our employes were organized and were being paid at the rates of $50 to $60 per month according to length of service. These wages were computed on a 12-hour day, and in a thirty-one day month were equivalent to 13 cents and 16 cents per hour.

"At the time of the panic the men struck on account of a reduction of 20 per cent. A compromise was effected leaving the wages at from $45 to $50.76 per month or from about 11 cents to about 13½ cents per hour. The wages remained at this rate until May 1, 1889 when they were raised at 15 cents, 16 cents and 17 cents per hour. On May 1, 1900, they were raised to 17 cents and 18 cents per hour. On June 1, 1902, they were raised to 18 cents and 20 cents an hour. On Jan. 1, 1906, they were raised to 20 cents and 22 cents per hour. On June 1 1907, they were raised to the present scale of from 21 cents to 25 cents per hour; so that instead of there being no increase in the past twenty-three years there have been five increases in the past thirteen years and in twenty-three years the wages have been raised from $50 per month (for horse car drivers), equivalent to 13* cents per hour, to the present average of 22½c per hour, or 66 2-3 per cent, and from the low point in 1898 of 13½ cents nearly 70 per cent in fourteen years. Since 1898 the average rates of wages paid conductors and motormen have increased as follows:

1899	15.58	1907	21.38
1900	17.09	1908	22.04
1901	17.44	1909	22.26
1902	18.68	1910	22.27
1903	19.14	1911	22.30
1904	19.48	1912	22.49
1905	19.13

Trouble of 1899.

"In 1899 while the company was in the hands of a receiver it was found necessary to discharge some members of the union. This brought on trouble which resulted in the dismissal of more men and eventually in an almost complete change in the personnel of the force. Some months later the former employes who had maintained their organization, after first attempting to cripple the company by cutting down its feed wires, then attempted to drive the new men from their positions precipitating the 'strike' of 1899 that many will remember.

"Notice had previously been given of an increase in wages and there was no question of wages or for that matter any other question involved in this so-called strike. It was simply an attempt by former employes to dislodge other employes.

"The company has never granted an increase in pay on any demand of any organization, but instead of not raising wages in twenty-three years, has in that time raised wages voluntarily a number of times as above stated. Rates of pay of street railway employes for obvious reasons are higher in large cities than in small ones. In some of the larger cities in the Eastern and Central states, in the extreme West, and on high-speed interurban lines higher rates than those in Duluth are paid, but the rates paid here are much higher than the average over country. The rates paid in Duluth and Superior are the same as those paid in the Twin Cities which are four or five times as large as Duluth and Superior. Anyone appreciating the relation between the companies would scarcely expect to see the rates here higher than in the Twin Cities.

"Regarding the waiting room: We know the present room is not as pleasant as it should be, but the men use such a room very little and are in it but a few minutes at a time. We have, however, been working on plans for new quarters for six months past and have recently ordered them built. While our plans have not been officially announced the most of our men have known about them and discussed them.

"We have had no request for a raise in wages, nor any complaint about conditions from any employe of the company and have no reason to believe that our employes are not perfectly satisfied. Men are plentiful as compared to what they have been many times in recent years, but real good men are somewhat scarce. We deplore these agitations by outsiders as they tend to make our men uneasy and to make it harder for us to procure good men to recruit our service."

OBITUARY

James D. Porter, governor of Tennessee for two terms, beginning in 1876, is dead at his home at Paris, Tenn., following a stroke of paralysis two monthse ago. He was born in Paris, Tenn., Dec. 7, 1828.

Franz Lauenstein, a resident of Fond du Lac, Wis., for sixty-two years and one of the founders and for many years president of the old German English academy there, is dead, aged 82. He was in the wholesale liquor business for many years. Mr. Lauenstein is survived by a widow and four daughters.

John A. Conover, 81 years old, territorial pioneer and owner of the first harness shop in the town of St. Anthony, is dead at the home of his son, J. A. Conover, Jr. in Minneapolis. Mr. Conover was born in Cranberry, N. J., April 10, 1831, and settled in Minnesota in 1854. He served in Hatch's battalion throughout the civil war. He is survived by a brother, two sisters, two sons and two daughters.

M. A. Cleveland, of Brockport, N. Y., a prominent contractor, is dead at his home of heart trouble. Mr. Cleveland built the Pittsburg, Cleveland & Toledo railroad, now a part of the Baltimore & Ohio system, and improved many harbors along the Great Lakes.

BEACON TO TENNYSON'S MEMORY.

Pall Mall Gazette: The Tennyson beacon, on the edge of the Isle of Wight, which the gale has destroyed, was a landmark for all vessels entering the Solent from the west. It consisted of a tall Iona cross, thirty-two feet high with the pedestal, and bore the following inscription: "To the memory of Alfred, Lord Tennyson, this cross, a beacon to sailors, is raised by the people of Freshwater and others who desired to honor him in England and America."

The site on which it stood formed part of the manor of Farringford, and was one of the objects of the long daily walk which he took until within a few short years of his death.

HUGO AND DOM PEDRO.

London Globe: Victor Hugo was moved when Dom Pedro accepted an invitation to dine at his house. After dinner the emperor asked Hugo to inscribe his name on the title page of his last work.

Here the author was in a difficulty about using the term majesty, so he improvised the following: "A Dom Pedro d'Alcantara." This, as our contemporary observes, would not stultify anything he had written in "Hernani" or "Ruy Blas." Another instance cited of the littleness of genius is the way in which Hugo addressed the Duc d'Aumale, who sent him his book on the "Princes de Conde." His letter of thanks began, "Cher et royal confrere."

SAYS TOWN MUST PAY UP

Attorney Charges Buyck With Attempt to Evade Bonded Debt.

Says Long Recognition of Incorporation Will Prevent Dissolution.

That the application of County Attorney John H. Norton to Attorney General Lyndon A. Smith for a writ of quo warranto to dissolve the corporate existence of the town of Buyck is but a counter move on the part of the township officials to evade payment of a $22,000 bond issue sold to Charles H. Strawbridge, is the opinion of Charles E. Adams, attorney for Mr. Strawbridge.

Neither Mr. Norton, county attorney, nor Mr. Adams, special counsel for the county board, is acting in his official capacity in the litigation. Mr. Adams is attorney for the plaintiff in a lawsuit which Mr. Strawbridge has brought against the town of Buyck to enforce the collection of overdue bonds amounting to about $7,000. The attorney of record in the case for the town is John Heitman. Mr. Norton is assisting Mr. Heitman in the case.

In its defense, the township has attacked its own legal existence and claims that at the time it was organized it was formed in an illegal manner. Attorney Adams declares that the courts have held that a township which has been organized as long as has the town of Buyck cannot raise the point of its own legal existence. In such cases, a third party must cause proceedings to be brought and the town organization, itself, he contends, has no means of attacking its own legality.

The town of Buyck was organized five years and eight months ago. Mr. Adams claims tht it has been levying taxes, building roads, making improvements, receiving state aid, and has been recognized both by county and state as a legal public corporation. In view of this fact alone, Mr. Adams declares that he has little doubt what the courts will hold that the township organization must stand, even if there was some irregularity in its inception.

Attorney General Smith has as yet taken no official action on the application of the county attorney.

RAILROADS

ORE DOCKS KEPT BUSY

Great Northern Road Is Handling 2,000 Cars Per Day.

Shipments Are Much Heavier Than at This Time Last Year.

More than 80,000 tons of ore is being shipped from the Great Northern docks at Allouez every day.

This is close to twice as much business as was being done at the same docks at the same time last year.

On an average 2,000 cars of ore are being received at the docks each day and each car will average about 41 tons.

This means that about 492,000 tons of ore are being shipped each week.

The shipments from the Missabe docks are not as heavy as those from the Great Northern. At this period last year about half the number of cars and about half as much ore was going down the lakes.

Nearly all the boats leaving both the Duluth and the Superior entrance to the local harbor are taking ore. The dispatch is of the best at both the Great Northern and the Missabe docks, many of the boats being loaded in record time. This is important to vessel owners as the boats in nearly every case must come to Duluth light, coal moving but slowly.

The coal strike is now settled and the men are going back to word, according to dispatches from the East. This means that coal will again move up the lakes. Local marine men state that the companies are so far back at the present time that it is doubtful if hard coal will begin to move very freely until about July 1.

FOSTER COUNTY'S NEW RAILROAD BEING BUILT.

Carrington, N. D., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Construction trains will enter Foster county June 1 and the work of laying the heavy steel on the Great Northern's new cut-off will be completed, it is expected, by the early part of July. An irregular train service will undoubtedly be established very soon afterward.

Pig Iron Rate Upheld.

Washington, May 20.—The interstate commerce commission held today that the present freight rate of $3 a gross ton on pig iron from Birmingham, Ala., to New Orleans was not unreasonable.

ATTACKS ROAD'S OIL HOLDINGS

Government Charges Fraud By Officials of the Southern Pacific.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 20.——Federal officials here announced today that within six weeks the entire holdings of the Southern Pacific Railroad company in the oil sections of California would be attacked by the government. The railroad's holdings in the state are worth millions, comprising much of the richest of the oil lands.

The next step in the hearing involving the Elk Hill lands, which the government now is seeking to reclaim will be an investigation of the company's books. The hearing has been adjourned until June 1.

Through a copy of a lease the government claimed to have proved the existence of a gigantic conspiracy, it is said, by Southern Pacific officials in 1904, to obtain lands in the state.

NEW WAY OF MAKING CUTTING TOOLS.

Cassier's Magazine: Some remarkable results have recently been obtained by the bureau of ordnance of the United States navy department with cutting tools produced by a new and interesting process.

Instead of making the tool from high cost tool steel, containing the carbon and other elements in its entire mass, the new stools are made of soft steel, easily shaped into the proper form, and then treated by the so-called "infusion" process, the carbon and other elements being placed in contact with the metal in the form of a special powder and subjected to a heat treatment which causes the soft steel to become hardened to such a deptn as to convert it into cutting material even superior to the far more costly tool steel.

The tests at the ordnance bureau showed that milling cutters made by the infusion process cut deeper, safter and further than tools made of the best carbon tool steel, and fully as well as cutters made from modern high speed tool steel of far higher cost. The chief of the bureau says that the infusion process "appears superior to any hardening process now in use at the naval gun factory," so that it appears that we are now in possession of a method of making tools of the highest grade for cutting out of ordinary soft steel.

GLEANED ALONG THE POLICE RUN

George Dorg and Roy McDonald have not been wasting any time in familiarizing themselves in the ways of some kinds of high finance.

Although but 11 and 13 years of age, respectively, they have already come under the wings of the juvenile court for making use of a "get-rich-quick" scheme.

For some weeks past, according to the police, the youths have been making sales of various small articles to a local hardware company. They brought their stuff to a man in the basement, who furnished them a credit slip to cash with the cashier. Their transaction of last week will serve to illustrate the o ther. The man handed them a rough piece of paper calling for 42 cents. On their way to the cashier they "doctored" it so that it called for $3.42. As the order was written in pencil it was a most simple process.

The authorities state that they did the same thing several different times, their total operations netting them something like $12 or $13.

The young financiers, evidently pleased with their success, seem to have conceived the idea of seeing something of the world. Like other boys they had probably read some interesting stories which did not dampen their already vivid imaginations.

And like the others, they undoubtedly plotted and planned for days and days in advance, laying out a program which would bring fame and success. Saturday the matter appears to have reached its climax. In pursuance of the line of action they got as far as Superior. But there they met their Waterloo. A big policeman saw the youngsters about the depot. He kept his eye upon them and when they were about to board the train which they expected to carry them to parts unknown, he took them in charge.

The unforeseen act of the bluecoat punctured their balloon. With tears in their eyes they saw their hopes and aspirations cruelly collapse. From Superior they were brought back to this side of the bay. Their adventures had an inglorious ending just as they were beginning. They were taken into the juvenile court, and after getting some sound advice upon the way small boys should conduct themselves with warnings as to their future fate if they persisted in the ways they had begun, they were turned over to their parents.

The atmosphere at fire headquarters must possess some strange unknown and uncanny quality which so takes possession of a man that he shoots like a fiend.

A week ago Sunday C. W. Wilson, second assistant chief of the fire department, stationed at headquarters, attended the shoot of the Central Gun club on Park Point. He carried away first honors, winning the Dupont trophy. He literally "ate 'em alive," smashing fifty of the clay birds as fast as they were pulled from the trap. Not one escaped him.

Yesterday Capt. A. S. Klock of engine company No. 1 nonchalantly drilled to the grounds of the club on the other side of the canal. Without as much as a whispered "if you please" he proceeded to do the same thing over again. He broke fifty of them in a row as prettily as you can imagine. Whereupon he walked away with the handsome mackinaw jacket which had been hung up as a prize.

Moral—If you want to shoot, spend some days and nights at the headquarters hall and soak up some of that mysterious something which pervades its precincts. Judging from what has happened the last two Sundays it will be impossible to make anything but the elusive perfect score.

The police answered a hurry-up burglar alarm from the vicinity of Tenth avenue east and Ninth street early yesterday morning. A woman thought she heard a prowler about the premises, but when the headquarters' detail arrived on the scene he had disappeared.

Floyd F. Dolson was arrested Saturday evening on a charge of being a deserter from the United States navy. He was turned over to the naval authorities. He is 21 years old and was working for the street railway company.

Martin Murphy was picked up by the police Saturday afternoon while trying to peddle some phony rings on the Bowery. He was charged with peddling without a license. On his promise to leave this part of the country he was released. While in the bull pen he had a nose bleed and declared that if he did not get the best medical attention in the city within a minute he would die. The way he hiked away from the station left no doubt as to his being still numbered among the living.

Julius Mezrowski entered a plea of not guilty in police court this morning when charged with acting as a "runner" for a local hotel without a license. He will be tried tomorrow afternoon. He is out on $15 bail.

James Powers, colored, a porter, was arrested this morning on a warrant sworn out by H. Blackwell, charging him with trespass. He pleaded guilty but the case was set over until this afternoon for further investigation. It appears that his wife is employed at the Blackwell home as a nurse, and that, although he has been told to stay away, he has been there several times, frightening Mrs. Blackwell and her small daughter.

John Polanic was arrested early this morning on a charge of disorderly conduct. It is claimed that he broke a window at 214 Lake avenue south. He will be arraigned in police court this afternoon.

Leon Senduski was arrested yesterday on a charge of disorderly conduct. Miks Steffin claimed that he threatened him with a knife near Twelfth avenue west. He pleaded not guilty and will be tried this afternoon.

The police were called to 607 Lake avenue north Saturday night in response to a report that Martin Moe had threatened to assassinate Samuel Sande. It is claimed that Moe was disappointed because Anna Sande, employed in a local department store, spurned his love advances and wanted to wreck his vengeance on her father. Moe is said to have been ordered from the house twice Saturday by the father, the trouble coming to a climax Saturday night with Moe's threats. He had disappeared when the police arrived.

ST. MARY AND WIFE PLACED ON TRIAL

Man and Woman Charged With Taking Earnings of Girl.

Philip St. Mary and his wife, Clara St. Mary, indicted by the May grand jury on a charge of having shared in the earnings of an immoral woman, were put on trial today in district court. The case is the first one on the May term of the criminal calendar and is being conducted before Judge Dibell.

St. Mary and wife are charged with having received earnings from Minnie Lee, a 17-year-old girl. The girl is expected to testify that in return for the privilege of having a room at the St. Mary apartments at 123 West First street, upstairs, she divided her earnings with St. Mary and wife.

Other witnesses who will be called by the state are Mrs. Charles Lee of Superior and Mrs. Sam Olson of 123½ West First street. Assistant County Attorney Warren E. Green is conducting the case for the state and William Marx is defending.

The morning session was given over to the selection of a jury. Those chosen were: F. L. Cowen, Arthur G. Hatch, Marvin C. McLaren, Harry Harrington, Walter S. Spearin, R. G. Foord, Ralph J. Hall, C. H. Taylor, H. F. Sleepack, Matthew Prettner, I. N. Power and Nathan Kris.

GANG PLANK FALLS; TWO PEOPLE KILLED.

Seattle, Wash., May 20.—Two persons are known to have been drowned and forty or more were injured Sunday when the adjustable end of a temporary passenger gang plank at the Colman dock dropped, precipitating sixty passengers into the water as they were preparing to board the sound steamer Flyer for Tacoma. The dead:

MRS. V. CERNED, Seattle.
CARL BRUDER, 1 year old, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Bruder of Seattle.

Most of the injured were only slightly bruised by striking against piling or the hull of the vessel when they fell into the water, and all will recover. A defective cog broke under the weight of the crowding passengers and the shock of the drop was sufficient to strip all the cogs and let the end of the plank fall into the water.

DULUTH SHRINERS BACK FROM COAST

Aad Temple Quartet Was Hit of Conclave at Los Angeles.

The Duluth Shriners are back from their Los Angeles trip, tired but still enthusiastic over the big conclave, in which Aad patrol of this city was at all times a conspicuous figure.

"The boys had a great time of it," said T. P. Bradley, leader of the local patrol. "Everywhere we went, Prof. Custance and his quartet scored a big hit and it is safe to say that they are still talking about the Duluth bunch out on the coast.

"We were loyally entertained at Los Angeles, and every one enjoyed the trip. On the way back several of the patrol stopped at Portland, Seattle and a number of the other coast towns."

Some of the local Shriners returned Saturday and others did not get back until this morning.

WOODROW WILSON MEN TO ORGANIZE

Supporters of New Jersey Governor Will Meet Thursday Evening.

Woodrow Wilson supporters in Duluth will meet at the city hall Thursday evening of this week to organize a Woodrow Wilson club to work at the primaries Saturday.

No opposition to Wilson has developed in St. Louis county thus far and the Wilson men have had everything their own way. When the caucuses Saturday will bring forth is a question, but Wilson supporters say they will easily control the county convention.

On account of the unanimity of sentiment, the Wilson Democrats have not organized heretofore, but have decided now that they should have an organization before the primaries.

GREAT BASEBALL STRIKE IS DECLARED ENDED

Philadelphia, Pa., May 20.—"Ty" Cobb, the suspended center fielder of the Detroit team, on whose account the players struck Saturday afternoon, appealed to the strikers to return to the game tomorrow without him. This followed a similar appeal from President Navin of the Detroit club. Mr. Navin told them they were still members of the Detroit team and they had not yet jeopardized their positions. They decided to accept his invitation and the great baseball strike was called off.

President Johnson said he told Mr. Navin he must send Cobb home as he would not be reinstated until the matter is thoroughly threshed out.

"The players must submit to punishment, I told him. This probably will take the form of a fine. I liked the attitude of Navin, who was very firm and expressed himself strongly regarding the strike."

LANGDON WINS MEET.

North Dakota Town's Entries Carry Off Honors.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Langdon won the annual North Dakota interscholastic field and track meet held in Grand Forks Saturday. COURTS GIVE MRS. BRITTON CONTROL OF CARDINALS.

St. Louis, Mo., May 20.—Mrs. Helene Hathaway Britton won complete control of the St. Louis National league baseball team today. Circuit Judge Grimm enjoined Edward A. Steininger, administrator of the estate of M. Stanley Robison, from voting at the annual stockholders' election of the American Baseball and Athletic Exhibition company, the shares of stock willed by Robison to Mrs. Britton.

Concurrent with Judge Grimm's decision, Judge Hancock also enjoined Steininger from voting the shares of stock willed to Mrs. Britton's mother, Mrs. Sarah Robison.

The two injunctions deprive Steininger, who is president of the local National league team, of control.

Mrs. Britton, owner of a majority of the stock, may vote it as she pleases at the annual election, which was postponed when the injunction suits were filed.

CANARIES IN MINES.

Scientific American: About fifteen years ago Dr. John Scott Haldane, who had studied conditions in Cornish collieries, suggested that canaries could be used to advantage for detecting poisonous gases. These delicate birds are very susceptible to impure atmosphere, and can thus be used to give a warning before a man feels the slightest discomfort.

The first test of canaries in a real mine disaster in this country took place at the Cross Mountain mine explosion at Briceville, Tenn. Here the government rescuers, equipped with oxygen making machines upon their backs and carrying caged canaries, were followed by squads of unprotected volunteer rescuers. The birds were watched, and as long as they remained cheerful all was well, but when their wings began to droop and they gasped for breath it was known that the men without oxygen machines must venture no further.

The canaries drew the line of safety, and as a result no volunteer rescuers were exposed to the dangers of afterdamp.

SECOND-HAND SHOES.

New York Sun: "We do quite a business in second-hand shoes," remarked the shoe salesman, picking up a pair of old shoes which a customer had just discarded. "Many of our customers don't seem to care to have their old shoes half soled and are glad to leave them on our hands. Most shoes left in this manner find their way eventually to East side stores, where they are sold for $1 a pair. That is, after they have been fixed up.

"Nowadays there are men who make a regular business of buying discarded shoes from such stores as this. We have a man who calls here once a month for shoes which our customers have left. He may get a dozen pairs or he may get more.

"The shoes are in good condition for his purposes, as they were the better grade of shoes with lasting qualities, even though they may have lost some of their shape and good looks. He pays, say, a quarter for each pair. Then he has them soled and the uppers fixed and polished and sells them to stores on the lower East side at a fair profit.

"These shoes are not to be confounded with sample shoes. There is a regular business done in that line, too, but by a different class of dealers. These sample shoes come from the manufacturers and are the shoes their salesmen take out on the road. One salesman will take the right shoe and another the left. After they have made their trips the shoes are put together again and are sold to the sample shoe dealer.

"In their travels around the country in the hands of the salesmen they may have got scratched up a bit, but otherwise are all right and naturally are the best the manufacturer could turn out in their particular line. Hence they are apt to be bargains.

"Of course, there are hardly enough of these sample shoes discarded by the manufacturers in a year to stock all the sample shoe places now running. In a good many cases you will probably find that other shoes have been thrown in with them, the sample shoes helping to sell the others."

GLASS PAVING A FAILURE.

Consular and Trade Reports: Seven or eight years ago a plant was established at La Demi Lune, a suburb about four miles from Lyon, France, for making glass paving material under the name of "pierre de verre Garchey." After many experiments carried out at the factory the manufacturer applied to the Lyon municipality for the right to make a trial on one of the chief thoroughfares. The necessary authorization was granted, provided that the inventor would bear the entire expense of the undertaking.

The place chosen for laying the glass pavement was a section of the Place de la Republique, where traffic of cabs, automobiles and wagons of all kinds is very heavy. The glass bricks remained in place for less than two years and were then taken out, as they were in very poor condition, the edges were all broken, and in many cases the blocks were split through and through. The opinion of officials here at that time was to the effect that the glass pavement could be used under favorable circumstances for sidewalks, but not for the middle of streets.

MADE MOUSE A PET.

Los Angeles Examiner: A mouse two inches long, with a tiny red bow about its neck, was carried in the hand of John T. Powers into the lobby of the Van Nuys hotel recently.

When an inquisitive young woman saw the mouse was alive there was a scream that echoed through the peaceful corridors and a swirl of skirts and a hasty exit.

As a crowd of guests gathered Powers exhibited his pocket pet and detailed its history.

"I procured the mouse in El Paso," he said, "as he ran through my room one night. Since then he has been my constant companion. I have taught him to stay on my hand whenever I take him out of my pocket, and I feed him three times a day. His chief diet is milk, cheese and bacon. I have named him Billy. He sleeps at the foot of my bed in a basket. I have taken him to the opera and the theater several times. He seems to take more kindly to music than to the drama."

TROUBLESOME ACCOUNT.

Chicago Record-Herald: "My husband has given me a checking account."

"Isn't that lovely? Now you can buy anything you want and just write out a check for it."

"Yes. I'm rather sorry on one account, though. It seems such a lot of trouble to have to write out a check for one's carfare, especially when the cars are crowded or when you have to pay as you enter."

TALKS ON MISSIONS.

Field Secretary Says Work is Needed at Home.

Mrs. H. L. Hill of New York, general field secretary of the Women's Home and Foreign Missionary society of Methodist Episcopal churches, addressed a large gathering of women at the First M. E. church yesterday afternoon.

She discussed the necessity of missionary work at home, depicting conditions in various large centers of the United States to show the need of it. She asserted that in various cities of the Pacific coast, and particularly in San Francisco, large numbers of Chinese and Japanese women are being imported for immoral purposes.

She quoted several authorities to substantiate her statements. Buddahism and Hindulism, she said, are spreading rapidly and claimed that a number of heathen temples are being erected for their followers. She added that large numbers of Mexicans have entered the southern states in recent years and are following pagan practices.

Mrs. Hill gave statistics to prove that New York is the largest foreign city in the world, while in Chicago she declared that a Persian Mohammaden temple is under course of construction.

THE EVENING STORY

AN OFFERING FROM GERMANY

By Sallie F. Toler.

"Albertina," called Mrs. Augsberg to her daughter-in-law, who sat in the parlor giving a lesson on the piano, "I vill go by oldt Mrs. Vendle today—Albertina, listen vonce. I vill go by Mrs. Vendle, und carry her dose Chermans newspapers, and a couple of dose apples from do oldt country. She vill be vhat you call tickle to get dose apples from Chermany, so big and redt."

Albertina stopped the monotonous "one, two, three, one, two, three," of the little girl at the piano. "Mama, you'd better wait until Gus or I can go with you. It is cold this morning, and you have to change cars twice to go to Wendle's. You know how absentminded you are, mama."

"Ach, you talk foolishness. Mrs. Vendle is got lumbago alretty, and can't go by outside at all. De oldt lady likes very much to get de Cherman newspapers. She is a great readter. Her headt is strong, aber her back is weak."

"Oh, all right, if you will go; but put on your heavy cloak, and be careful about the cars." Mrs. Augsberg waddled into the next room to get ready for her visit. Gus came in from the woodshed with a lumpy-looking package tied up in a newspaper. Albertina laughed as he held it up for her to see. "For goodness' sake, Gus, why don't you order a load of kindling brought to the office and save trouble? It looks so pleayunish to be carrying kindling down every day."

"This is for tomorrow," said Gus. "I have some for today that I carried yesterday. It isn't much trouble, and I keep forgetting to order some."

"You never forget to carry it."

"No," he laughed, "that's my economical streak, I guess."

"Gus!" said his mother from her room.

"Yes," answered her son.

"Take dose Cherman newspapers and a couple of dese apples from de oldt country, und tie dem in a package for me to take to Mrs. Vendle."

"All right; but it's cold this morning. You want to look out and take the right car when you change at Romney street."

A confused remonstrance in German reached Gus's ears from Mrs. Augsberg's closet. He knew his mother resented the imputation of not being able to take care of herself. Indeed, she was more capable and independent of help than many people of her age.

Mrs. Augsberg was 71, used no glasses, was smooth-faced and apple-cheeked as a girl. She was an active worker in charitable affairs, and a welcome guest, because of her genial character, at many social gatherings. She was so willing, even anxious to be of service, that she was made a director of the Free Kindergarten association, also of the Young Women's Christian association. At the rooms of the latter she taught a beginner's class in German twice a week.

"Those young women put too much work on you, at your age," complained her daughter-in-law.

"No, Albertina," Mrs. Augsberg insisted, "it is better that I have something to think about. In de oldt country I had much housekeeping to keep me busy, aber here I haf only de sick peoples and de childrens."

Mrs. Augsberg's heart and head were so full of interest and generous plans for others that she was unmindful of herself and her own comfort. She left her handbag, her books, her parcels, her umbrella, in fact, every portable thing that was not attached to her person, with equal impartiality, on the cars, in the store, postoffice or at church. The conductor on the line which she most frequented always looked in the seats after she got off, to take care of her things, so prone ws she to leave something behind her.

This morning she took up the package which Gus had left on the kitchen table and clutched it tightly, with the firm determination not to let it out of her hands until she had seen old Mrs. Wendel's eyes light up at the sight of the apples grown in the far away home in the fatherland, and look with content on the newspapers printed in her own familiar type. She had made one change of cars, when the sight of the dry goods stores reminded her that she had promised two pairs of new stockings to the little girl of Albertina's washerwoman.

Mrs. Augsberg got safely out of the store, with her precious package under her arm and the new stockings stuffed in her bag. Crossing Romney street to take her car, she met one of the assistant teachers of the free kindergarten.

"O Mrs. Augsberg," exclaimed the young woman, "you are just the person I wanted to see. Won't you come round to the schoolroom for a little while? There is a meeting of the board of directors, and you will just make the quorum. I was going for Mrs. Amsden, but you are right here."

Mrs. Augsberg hesitated.

"I don't know, I vas going by Mrs. Vendle's. I vas bring her some Cherman newspapers und some apples from Chermany."

"It will take but a few minutes," urged the girl; and Mrs. Augsberg, who could refuse nobody, went along to the board meeting, cast her vote, and departed again to take the car for Mrs. Wendle's.

A familiar face beamed at her, and she sat down beside the pastor of the little German church of which she was a member. The pastor poured into her sympathetic ear a sad tale of a family in distress. The father was dead, the mother sick, the children poorly clad and living in a tent, he was sure Mrs. Augsberg could enlist aid for them. He gave her an address and dropped off the car, leaving the good woman to muse over the story, and to realize presently that she had gone several blocks beyond her destination.

Nervously she jumped to ring the bell, and hurriedly got off to walk back. She gave an exclamation of dismay. She had left in the car her package containing the newspapers from Germany and the apples. It was too cold to wait; besides she could not tell which car she had left. All the cars on this line went to Thirty-fifth street, turned a loop and came back. She decided to take the first one returning, stop at the car office up town, and wait there for the turning in of her package. She felt sure it would be turned in by the conductor. She had had experience with bundles before.

It was 9 o'clock when Mrs. Augsberg left home that morning. It was twenty minutes past 2 when, the fateful package once more in her hands, she took the car again for Mrs. Wendele's. This time she arrived at the Wendle residence safely, package and all, only to find the house tightly closed. Her repeated ringing of the door bell brought old Mrs. Wendle herself to an up stairs window.

"Who is there," she said in German.

"It's Mrs. Augsberg. I bring you some Cherman newspapers und some apples from de oldt country."

"Melle, my daughter, she is gone by der coal office; she maked der door locked for safe."

"Ach, what foolishness. Suppose a fire?"

"Maybe you could by der doorstep put it," suggested Mrs. Wendle.

"No, somebody might steal it. I vill take it by de grocery man's on de corner, and he will bring it when Melle comes back. Ach de vindt is cold. I come some oder time alretty, Mrs. Vendle, when you ain't in chail." The two old ladies laughed, and the perpetrator of the chilly witticisim trotted across the street. The grocer promised to deliver the package as soon as he thought Mrs. Wendle junior, was returned, and with a feeling of mingled hunger and relief, Mrs. Augsberg hailed a car and started for home.

As the conductor paused expectantly in front of her, she mechanically reached for her hand bag.

"My moneys!" she gasped. "I haf left my bag by de grocery on de corner. I must go back." The conductor obligingly rang the bell, and the exasperated lady took the back track, four blocks away to the grocery. I will not be shocking to relate that the gentlehearted Mrs. Augsberg indulged—in thought only—in a stream of mild, purified German anathema, when a close search by the grocer failed to find the missing bag.

"It must be by de street car office, Himmel! but Albertina vill laugh." Borrowing 5 cents from the obliging grocer, she rode back to the office.

"O, Mrs. Augsberg," said the clerk, "you've come for your bag. Your son was just in, and I gave it to him." Once more Mrs. Augsberg was forced to become a borrower, for she had neglected to take a transfer. It was 4:30 in the afternoon when, weary, hungry, but happy that her errand of friendship was accomplished, she opened the door of her daughter-in-law's house.

"Well, mamma," reproached Albertina, "where in the world have you been all day? And wasn't it just like you to go off, after all, without the German newspapers and the apples for Mrs. Wendle!"

Mrs. Augsberg sank into a chair. Her cloak was twisted awry, and her little jet bonnet was leaning tipsily over one eye. "Mitout de Cherman newspapers unde apples from Chermany? What foolishness you talk, Albertina. I haf dem left alretty by de grocery mans on de corner. Melle has no sense. She was gone away, und lock Mrs. Vendle in. But de grocery mans say he vill de package bring when Melle comes back."

"Well, here is your bundle, just as Gus tied it up for you," said Albertina and she unrolled a parcel wrapped in a newspaper. There were three newspapers and two red apples inside.

"Ach, himmel! Vat den, haf I carried all day, by Miller's store, by de board meetlng, on de car—Albertina, vat, den, haif I left by de grocery mans for Mrs. Vendle?"

"Gus's kindling," shrieked Albertina, in a hurricane of laughter. "But here is your bag all right. Gus brought that." With a calmness born after desperate buffetings with fate her mother surveyed the leather bag which the younger woman held in her hand. "'Tis not mine," she cried. "Mine is black; dis von is brown!"

CORPORATIONS MAKING LESS

Reports Under Federal Tax Law Show Decrease in Net Earnings.

Washington, May 20.—Corporate earnings in the United States decreased $175,500,000 during 1911. That figure represents the comparative loss in net earnings as reported to Royal E. Cabell, commissioner of internal revenue, for making assessment under the corporation excise tax law.

In a statement Mr. Cabell says the returns indicate poorer business conditions last year than in 1910, particularly in iron, steel and certain manufacturing industries.

The gross receipts of corporations did not suffer as great a ratio of decrease as the net. The returns indicate, the commissioner says, that this was because labor and supply men shared more largely in the receipts of the various companies in 1911 than in 1910. This was particularly so in the case of railroads, he says, which seem generally to have paid increased amounts for labor without a corresponding increase in income being indicated. In many cases an actual decrease in income being shown.

Nation Gets $28,278,000.

The 1 per cent assessment on the 1911 net earnings of corporations will turn into the federal treasury about $28,278,000, most of which will be paid in June, against $29,432,000 last year, a decrease of $1,154,000. The amount probably will be augmented somewhat before the close of the fiscal year, Mr. Cabell says, bringing the decrease below $1,000,000. Considering business conditions in 1911, he adds, this may be considered fairly satisfactory.

While there was a big loss in the aggregate net earnings, there was an increase of 17,660 in the number of corporations. The number in 1911 was 287,862 as compared with 270,202 in 1910. Of the total number which filed returns only 20 per cent were found liable to tax.

Mr. Cabell draws his conclusions regarding the iron and steel industries from the showing of the corporations in the Pittsburg district. The net corporate earnings in that section decreased $47,591,000.

The assessments for Hawaii, the commissioner remarks, indicate an extremely prosperous condition, the net earnings increasing $4,274,000.

"TELL IT ALL," IS PERKINS' ADVICE

He Issues Statement on White House Harvester Trust Matters.

New York, May 20.—Publication of all correspondence relating to the prosecution of the International Harvester company is suggested by George W. Perkins, the New York financier, who, upon his return to New York issued a reply to the statement given out at the White House last Friday night by Charles D. Hilles, secretary to the president.

The statement reads

"I have read Mr. Hilles' version of the Harvester matter, and fail to find anything in it that in the remotest degree answers my letter of April 29 last, to Chairman McKinley. If Mr. Taft and his managers had at any time meant to be fair and square and frank with the public in this matter, they would have complied with the senate's recent request and published in full all that has taken place with regard to the Harvester company during the Taft administration, especially during the last twelve or eighteen months.

Some Favors Asked.

"The public is being deluged day after day with the Taft version of how Mr. Roosevelt held up Mr. Bonaparte's suit against the Harvester company and why; but great care is being taken to keep from the public all knowledge as to whether or not Mr. Taft held up Mr. Wickersham's suit against the Harvester company and why.

"Full publicity regarding the whole affair would enable the public to form its own judgment and reach its own conclusion. It would show what Mr. Hilles regards as proper favors for a private secretary to a president seeking renomination, to ask from the officers of a corporation threatened with prosecution by the self-same president."

HOME FOUND FOR DESERTED FAMILY

Relatives Will Care for Mrs. Anna Jacobson and Children.

Relatives at Rice Lake, Wis., will take care of Mrs. Anna Jacobson and her five children, who were deserted recently at Hibbing.

Humane Agent R. D. McKercher yesterday sent the mother and children to Rice Lake, where provisions have been made to take care of them.

The woman's husband went to Canada last March and since that time has not contributed a cent to his family's support, it is claimed. Jacobson is a stone and brick mason.

When he left his family at Hibbing things for them went from bad to worse and finally they were left upon the charity of neighbors and citizens. The children range in age from 3 to 11 and three of them are sick. When the attention of the local humane agent was called in the matter, he brought the woman and children to Duluth.

Although wife deseration is an offense both in Canada and in the United States, it is not an extraditable one and as a consequence Jacobson is protected as long as he remains on the other side of the Canadian border.

WILL DELIVER COAL BY AUTO

Automobile trucks will be used for all deliveries of coal to be made by the Pittsburg Coal company in this city in the future.

This announcement has been made by W. W. Broughton, vice president of the company, who resides in Minneapolis but who is today a guest at the Spalding.

Mr. Broughton takes the stand that the Duluth hills work too many hardships on the horse. The change will be made as soon as possible.

Mr. Broughton looks forward to a big year and predicts that the movement of anthracite from the Head of the Lakes to interior points will be exceptionally heavy next fall.

KILLS BABY IN MOTHER'S ARMS

Unknown "Jack the Shooter" Has Terrorized People of Little Rock, Ark.

Little Rock, Ark., May 20.—Mrs. D. P. Coulter, victim of an attempted assault, lives because her 9-month-old baby, lying on her breast, stopped with its own little body the bullets fired by her assailant. The baby died instantly.

This city has been terrorized lately by a series of attempted assaults on women, committed, it is believed, by a mysterious person whom the police call "Jack the Shooter." Mayor Charles F. Taylor has issued a proclamation calling upon the citizens of Little Rock to arm themselves and aid the police in capturing or killing the prowler.

Early Sunday morning the man entered the Coulter residence, three blocks from the center of the business district, and attacked Mrs. Coulter, who held her baby in her arms. She made an outcry and the intruder fired at her twice, both bullets striking the child. The mother was untouched. The murderer fled.

Half an hour afterward the same man, it is thought, entered the residence of M. M. Hankins, a half block from the main business street. He fired at Mrs. Hankins and at two policemen who were attracted by her cries. The police emptied their revolvers at his fleeing form, but he escaped again.

WILL INCREASE NUMBER OF BIBLES IN HOTELS.

Chicago, May 20.—The Gideons, an association of Christian traveling men, in convention here have declared their intention of increasing the number of Bibles in Illinois hotels from 8,000 to 35,000. Extension of the "Bible corps," as the distributors of Bibles are styled, was discussed, and an order for another carload of Bibles is expected.

EX-COWBOY LASSOES WHALE ON LONG ISLAND.

New York, May 20. — A whale, twenty feet long and weighing about two tons, was lassoed off Rockaway beach, Long Island, near the Arverne life saving station, Sunday by John Ehrhart. It was a new record in the annals of occasional whaling along the Long Island coast.

The monster was sighted early in the day, evidently trying to free itself from a depression in the sand, having crossed a small bar in pursuit of a school of fish.

Ehrhart, who said he had punched cattle in the West, improvised a lariat of coarse rope and dropped the noose over the mammal's thrashing tail. Notwithstanding the monster's struggles, the rope held him captive after it had been firmly tied to a driven pile. As the tide ebbed, the whale gasped its life away, and all afternoon it lay as an object of great curiosity to beach strollers.

THE INDIAN MEDICINE MAN

was chosen by his tribe in pioneer days because of his expert knowledge in combining medicines from roots and herbs to cure disease. They could conquer diseases that today baffle the most skilled physicians who have spent years in the study of drugs.

From the roots and herbs of the field Lydia E. Pinkham nearly forty years ago gave to the women of the world a remedy for female ills deemed more potent and efficacious than any combination of drugs. Today Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is recognized the world over as the standard remedy for female ills.

PAPER MAKERS TO RAISE PRICES

Substitute for Wood Pulp in Manufacture Is Not Yet Found.

Madison, Wis., May 20.—Wisconsin paper manufacturers are sending out notices of an immediate advance in the price of paper, and withdrawing all previous quotations. The reason is said to be the increasing cost of wood pulp and the consequent necessity of finding a substitute. Experiments to this end are being made at the United States forest products laboratory in this city. Similar tests will be made at the new $30,000 laboratory at Wausau.

It is claimed the paper industry is making alarming inroads upon the supply of spruce, which is said to be too valuable as structural material to be used in the making of paper. The woods which are being tried out in the effort to find a cheaper substitute are yellow birch, white birch, maple, poplar, jackpine and hemlock.

EASTERN CAPITALISTS INSPECT NEW LINE.

Robert W. Sandford, Chauncey Eldridge and Philip L. Salstrustall, capitalists of Boston, all three of whom are interested in the financing of the Mesaba Electric Range railway, arrived in Duluth yesterday and left this morning on a tour of inspection of the new road. They expect to return during the latter part of the week. The Mesaba Electric Range road is now in the course of construction. It will run through the Mesaba range towns. Most of the franchises have been obtained. The road will be ready for operation late in the fall or early next spring.

All three of these visitors are interested in companies which are holders of the bonds of the Great Northern Power company. Mr. Salustrall is one of the directors of that company.

PASTOR RESIGNS AFTER SEVEN YEARS OF SERVICE

After seven years of service, Rev. John C. Faries will resign as pastor of Glen Avon Presbyterian church, Woodland, in order to take up a post-graduate course at Columbia university next fall.

He announced his intention to the congregation yesterday morning and asked that a meeting be called to accept his resignation. The meeting will probably be held on May 30.

At the university, Mr. Faries will take up the study of sociology and social economy, subjects in which he has been interested for years.

Yesterday he told his congregation that he felt that he could leave them to take up this work as the church at Woodland was thoroughly organized and everybody was working in perfect harmony.

The announcement of his intended resignation was a surprise to his congregation, the members of which have held him in high esteem.

In order for the ties which bind Rev. Mr. Faries to his congregation to be broken, it is necessary that the Presbytery take official action. The request will probably be made both by pastor and congregation to the Duluth Presbytery at its meeting on June 3.

In all probability Rev. Mr. Faries will leave his parish about July 14.

Mr. Faries took his B. A. degree at the University of Minnesota in 1889 and graduated from the McCormick Theological seminary in 1893. He engaged in city mission work in Minneapolis for one year and then made a tour of the world for a year, visiting mission stations and traveling extensively through the Orient.

From 1896 to 1902, Mr. Faries was editor of the North and West, published in Minneapolis until its consolidation with the Interior, now the Continent, of Chicago. During that time Mr. Faries also held a pastorate at Waverly, Minn., for two years.

Mr. Faries became pastor of Glen Avon Presbyterian church Jan. 1, 1905. During his pastorate, the church has more than doubled in membership and has built a stone edifice costing $50,000. The church is a banner church in mission activities and benevolences. During the last five years Mr. Faries has been chairman of the home mission committee of Duluth presbytery.

Mr. Faries has been active in civic movements. He has been a member of the library board for six years, and for four years has been its vice president.

MINNESOTA POLITICS

Duration of Extra Session Cannot Be Estimated —Much Needed Legislation Mentioned By Members—Sam Y. Gordon Fears Political Trickery and Wants Confusion Averted—Alvah Eastman May Be Out in the Cold.

Length of Session in Doubt.

Statements issued by members of the legislature, commenting on the extra session proclamation, do not indicate the probable length of the session. Some members favor a time limit of three or five days. Others declare they are ready to remain for the enactment of needed legislation, regardless of the time required.

The statements include many criticisms of Governor Eberhart for calling the session at this late date. The legislators deplore the politics in the call, but give promise of getting down to business and doing something for the state.

No man can tell what the extra session will bring forth. Many members are in favor of enacting a direct primary law and adjourning. Others mention one or two other laws that should be enacted in a short session. A large number mention increasing railroad taxes. Few express themselves in favor of a long session—but public expressions and private opinions may differ slightly.

The legislature of 1911 was subjected to severe criticism. Many of the individual members are not in favor with their constituents. An election is coming, and the special session will give the members of the legislature an opportunity to make political capital for themselves. The temper of the people of Minnesota is such that to square themselves with their districts, the legislators would be required to pass constructive legislation.

Among the subjects mentioned for the extra session are increased gross earnings tax, reapportionment, distance tariff, the ratification of the income tax, the initiative, referendum and recall, the repeal of the seven senators bill, and some pet measures of individual legislators.

The logical course for the legislature would be to call a conference at the opening of the session to decide on a legislative program, and probably fix a date for adjournment. There might be some difficulty in reaching an agreement, but one might be made that would not call for a long session. The members have drawn their salary from the state. They will be at the capital at their own expense. Not having counted on the session, many are not in a position to neglect their private business at this time of the year. Many considerations point toward a short session, if political considerations can be overcome and a short, constructive program agreed upon.

Sam Gordon is Suspicious.

Sam Y. Gordon sees a dark being in the woodpile. The legislature might fail to pass a primary bill before the date set for the caucuses. The state central committee might not rescind its convention call. At the same time, it might not obey the mandate of the Minneapolis convention, having the extra session as an excuse. Then the legislature might fail to pass a primary law, or might bring one in conflict with the state convention, and there would be confusion all around.

Mr. Gordon wants to know "where the state is at." That's the conclusion drawn from a letter he has indited to the governor. The chief executive is asked to have his state central committee rescind the call for the state convention, or take the action suggested by the Minneapolis convention, in order that there may be a primary in any event. Mr. Gordon expresses his fear of political trickery and wants protection against it. His letter says:

"I appeal to you in the interests of the people of the state and of the members of the Republican party to see that immediate action is taken by your committee either to rescind the call for the state convention or to have the comittee comply with the order issued last week by the Republican state convention and provide for a primary election under the present law.

"You have called the legislature to meet June 4. Your committee has fixed the date for county conventions, June 28. The caucuses must all be held before that date. Already one county has acted and it will be most unfair for you to allow any state of uncertainty to exist as to the plans which the people must follow in the matter of nominating state officers.

"The mere fact that you have called such an extra session to meet a short time before the county conventions gives no assurances to the people that a primary law will be passed in time to be effective for the nomination of state officers for this year.

"I request that you forthwith call this matter to the attention of your chairman, Ed E. Smith and urge immediate action. Those who have watched recent political developments in this state must realize that the people are at present in no mood to tolerate trickery or sharp practice. Anything that smacks of manipulation or jockeying certainly will tend to disrupt and disorganize the party, and I am sure you and your advisers ought to take immediate steps to avert such a calamity.

"In this connection I deem it only fair to state that it is my interpretation of the recent action of the state convention that it was intended that the people should have the right to this primary election, and the mere calling of a session of the legislature and leaving the other matter unattended to may well be construed as an attempt to baffle the people and the party and to throw dust in their eyes. Yours very truly,

"SAM Y. GORDON."

Was It Panic?

An intimation comes from St. Paul that the governor's extra session call came through a panic of desperation, which was shared by E. E. Smith. Mr. Smith isn't given to panics, but circumstances may alter cases. The story from St. Paul is that the governor and Mr. Smith failed to consult the powers behind the throne and that some stormy sessions have resulted. The fear is expressed that the governor may repent and rescind his call. That is hardly likely. Now that the call is issued, the governor will have to stand by and take the consequences. If the call should be rescinded, the governor would go to the tall timber, politically speaking.

Where Does Eastman Stand?

Alvah Eastman of St. Cloud may find the office, which he is seeking and for which he was sought, obliterated before it existed. If the legislature should pass a congressional reapportionment bill, Mr. Eastman would be out in the cold. It isn't likely that he would be in a new district. He wouldn't make the run against Congressman Lindbergh for the nomination in the Sixth. He would not even have the fun of running for office. If the state is redistricted, part of the Eighth and part of the Fifth districts may be joined for a new district. Hennepin county has a population far above the normal for a congressional district, and the Eighth district is large in population and territory.

May Change Plans.

Sam Y. Gordon is so busily engaged in getting his bearings in regard to the extra session that the Gordon headquarters, which were to have been opened in Duluth this week, may not be opened until later. Mr. Gordon will make an aggressive campaign in Northern Minnesota and he will have a headquarters at the seat of war. If the legislature should set a primary date later in the summer, the most aggressive part of the campaign would be deferred. Cleon T. Knapp, who will have charge of the Duluth headquarters for Gordon, will attend the special session of the legislature, so there may be a change of plans.

Democratic Caucuses.

The Democratic presidential primaries in St. Louis county will be held next Saturday from 2 to 4 p. m. in the villages and rural districts, and from 7 to 8 p. m. in the cities and towns. Little sentiment other than that for Woodrow Wilson has developed in St. Louis county and the county convention will undoubtedly be controlled by Wilson supporters. Nothing further has been heard as to the prospective visit of Charles A. Towne to campaign for Clark. If Mr. Towne is coming this week, as he announced, his advertisers aren't working very well.

Change of Heart.

The Luverne Herald, which has been a stanch supporter of Governor Eberhart and the state organization, has come out for J. C. Gunderson of Alexandria for the Republican nomination for governor. Senator Gunderson is an able man, but if Eberhart supporters generally should have a sudden change of heart and support him, his cause would not be well recommended to the people.

speeches. He will return to Cincinnati to spend the night at the home of his brother, Charles P. Taft.

On his tour today the president was scheduled to make speeches at Hamilton, Eaton, Greenville, Piqua, Troy, Tippecanoe City, Xenia and Dayton.

Roosevelt at Dennison.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 20.—His campaign for votes in the primary to be held in Ohio tomorrow will be brought to a close by Col. Roosevelt today. His last stop will be at Dennison. Thence he will go to Oyster Bay, there to await the news from the election which, it is said, may decide whether he or President Taft will be chosen by the Chicago convention as the candidate of the Republican party for the presidency.

Col. Roosevelt, after a week of hard campaigning, spent yesterday quietly near Cleveland, as the guest of James R. Garfield, his former cabinet officer. Last night the ex-president left for Marietta, his first stop for today. Other scheduled stops were Caldwell, Cambridge, Zanesville, Newark, Trinway, Coshocton, Newcomerstown, Uhrichsville and New Philadelphia.

La Follette at Cleveland.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 20.—One of the largest armories of the city has been reserved for Senator La Follette tonight. The Wisconsin senator, who would like the Republican nomination for president, will be the third aspirant to be heard within five days, President Taft and Col Roosevelt having preceded him.

The schedule of Senator La Follette for today embraced Medina and Painesville, nearby towns, at which he was to speak before making his closing appeal to Cleveland voters on the eve of the state primary.

and that his election therefore was invalid.

The minority report was signed by Senators Kern and Lea, Democrats, and Kenyon, Republican.

The majority took the position that the senate having once "solemnly and deliberately passed on the charges against Senator Lorimer, he should be permitted to retain his seat unless new and convincing evidence had been produced, establishing corruption in his election." Absolutely no "new and substantial evidence" had been produced at the re investigation, the majority said.

The report dealt at length with the evidence and also reviewed legal opinions to show that the first investigation of the senate should be taken as final.

Rejected Funck's Story.

The controlling factor in the action of the senate in reopening the case, so the majority said, was a report that a fund of $100,0000 was either raised by or through the efforts of Edward Hines, the Chicago lumberman, to secure the election of Senator Lorimer.

The majority rejected the version Clarence S. Funk, general manager of the International Harvester company, gave of a conversation he held with Mr. Hines in the Union League club at Chicago just after Senator Lorimer's election. It was during this conversation that Funk claims Hines asked for a $10,000 contribution to a $100,000 Lorimer fund.

Calls It Improbable.

"In view of the fact that it was known to Mr. Hines," said the committee, "that the relations existing between the officers of the International Harvester company and Mr. Lorimer were those of opponents rather than friends, it is improbable that he would seek from Mr. Funk a contribution to aid in the election of Mr. Lorimer; and it is inconceivable that Mr. Hines, if guilty of an infamous crime, would have unreservedly revealed it under the circumstances described by Mr. Funk."

In discussing Mr. Funk's testimony that he had heard reports of Mr. Hines' activity at Springfield, the majority declared that "such reports" must have had birth in Mr. Funk's imagination.

Refers to Roosevelt.

Comment was passed on the fact that for many months H. H. Kohlsaat, editor of the Chicago Record-Herald, James Keeley, editor of the Chicago Tirbune, Victor F. Lawson, owner of the Chicago News, and Col. Theodore Roosevelt knew of Mr. Funk's version and none saw fit to bring the information to the attention of any person connected with any investigation.

The committee reported it did find Mr. Hines was flattered by being consulted by Senators Aldrich and Penrose in regard to the desire to have some Republican elected to the senate from Illinois.

"His sense of the importance of the matter," it was said, "was enhanced when he knew they had been in conference with the president and that Mr. Lorimer's candidacy would not be objectionable to him."

Ignores Burgess' Testimony.

The committee considered testimony of William Burgess of Duluth, Minn., brother-in-law of Mr. Hines, had stated last March that he had contributed $10,000 to a Lorimer election fund. Contradictory testimony was commented upon with this concluding statement:

"With a convincing array of evidence in denial of all the facts contained in Mr. Burgess' testimony, and in view of the improbability that a man of Mr. Wiehe's intelligence and business experience, in a public place and to an utter stranger, would have confessed to having taken part in an infamous proceeding, this committee cannot do otherwise than discard the testimony of Mr. Burgess as proof of any facts alleged."

Accept McGowan's Story.

In this connection the committee considered the attempt to impeach the testimony of Charles McGowan, the young Canadian who testified in Wiehe's behalf. This impeachment was sought by private detectives with a stenographer and a telephone apparatus extending into a room which Mr. McGowan was supposed to have acknowledged having perjured himself.

The act by Former State's Representative Charles A. White of receiving Lorimer election money was pronounced as "a pure fabrication so far as it relates to the election of Senator Lorimer."

"From a most exhaustive examination and painstaking consideration of all the testimony in the case," the report declared, "the committee finds that White was one of the fifty-three Democrats who felt justified in voting for Mr. Lorimer in order to break the deadlock which had existed, and that White's attempt to enrich himself at the expense of his own reputation was the result of an afterthought, and of a purpose which he had conceived at a time when he had reached the lowest depths of degradation."

Holtslaw's Story Discredited.

The committee advanced the theory that instead of Senator Daniel W. Holtslaw having been paid $2,500 for having voted for Lorimer, it might have been paid by liquor interests to defray his campaign expenses.

"It is conceded that liquor legislation has been one of the prominent and continuing elements in the Illinois general assembly, and John Broderick, being a saloonkeeper in the city of Chicago, naturally was a representative of the liquor interests, and money passed by him to Holtslaw is a feature of the case so suggestive, in the absence of any other consideration for its payment, as to raise a strong presumption at least that its payment had some connection with the election of Mr. Holtslaw to the senate of Illinois."

Lorimer Lily-White.

Taken, altogether, the committee said, the testimony indicated to it that Mr. Lorimer's election was the result of political conditions, and not attributable to the corrupt use of money. It dwelt upon the statement that not a single witness had reflected on Senator Lorimer personally, and that no testimony existed as to a single improper action on his part.

As to general corruption funds in the Illinois legislature, it was said that "without definite proof of the existence of a specific jackpot, the committee can only report that a general belief exists among many classes that corruption funds have been more or less common in connection with legislation in that state."

No relative of the former minister will console him in his last hours or pay him a farewell visit. His aged father in Virginia is too feeble to stand the journey. His sister in New York state does not wish to have her last thought of her brother associated with a death cell. His brother, Douglas Richeson of Chicago, although in the city today, declared last night he would not go to the prison today, but would remain until after the execution to see to the disposition of the body.

Will Perform Autopsy.

Following the execution, the medical examiner of the county, Dr. G. B. Magrath, will perform an autopsy, in accordance with the law, notwithstanding the fact the family sent word they would not allow it.

Rev. Herbert S. Johnson, Richeson's spiritual adviser, and his counsel, William A. Morse, probably will accompany the body to Virginia, where it will be buried beside that of the young man's mother at Amherst Courthouse.

The disposition of Richeson's effects already has been provided for.

Row Over Title.

With the amusement question settled last week by the retention in the church discipline of the paragraph which prohibits dancing, card playing and theater-going, it is probable that much of the routine business of the conference hastily will be disposed of.

It is said that one of the hardest fights of the session may occur over a matter of sentiment, whether the term "district superintendent" shall not be changed back to "presiding elder." The name "district superintendent" was authorized at the Baltimore conference.

The report of the Temperance society, presented by Dr. Clarence True Wilson of Chicago, reviewed in detail the work of that organization and pointed out that 200,000 young people had been induced by its efforts to sign the total abstinence pledge since the last meeting of the general conference. More than 100 public meetings in the interest of temperance were held and 9,000 books on the subject were circulated in the churches. The society rendered valuable assistance in the campaigns for prohibition in Oklahoma, Florida, Oregon, Missouri, Texas, Maine, West Virginia and other states.

because it is tied body and soul to this combination. In the furtherance of their ruthless and shameless rampage for wealth and power they are enabled, with their political combination, to thwart the will of the people on every hand and amongst other things to defeat the most meritorious legislation, such for instance as reapportionment and the like.

Chance for a Knockout Blow.

"In this connection I want to call your attention to the fact that even with the present composition of the senate, it is my honest judgment that it is possible to hit them a blow beneath the belt in at least one place, and in a most effective manner, and that is to knock out the brewery-owned saloons. The friends of good government with all their force should stand unitedly to first settle this question. This will clear the way to more good legislation and to a higher standard of morality and good citizenship than any other single-handed stroke I can conceive of at this time. This is the paramount issue in this state today, for it is vastly more important and far reaching than any other and I hope that all true friends of good clean government will join me in my efforts to make a winning fight against this evil. Until the people rise in their might to smite this monster, the brewery-owned saloon, Minnesota will continue to be boss-ridden by Ed E. Smith and brewery-ruled by the Billy Hamms. As a candidate for governor, I am out to make an open fight to drive from our legislative halls and from the politics of this state, the demoralizing influence of the political bosses who feed out of the hands and take their orders from this monster brewery combine, which influence stands as a bulwark and barrier to all progressive legislation; and if elected to this highest office within the gift of the people of this state, I will put forth my most strenuous efforts in that direction and my official acts will be in keeping with the views herein expressed.

"Yours very truly,

"SAM Y. GORDON."

PATENT PIPE WILL BE MANUFACTURED HERE

Paine's perfect pipe, an invention by a Duluth man, will be manufactured in Duluth.

Franklin Paine, inventor of the pipe, is organizing his company, and it will soon be incorporated. As soon as the preliminaries can be arranged, arrangements will be made for a factory of sufficient capacity to meed the demand for some time to come.

Mr. Paine's pipe has been on the market in a small way for some time. He has found that he cannot meet the demand with the present arrangements for manufacture, and has determined to organize a Duluth company for the manufacture of the invention.

The practicability and popularity of the pipe have been demonstrated by the many sales and the great demand for the pipe, even though it has not been extensively advertised, nor pushed.

Mr. Paine's pipe is arranged so that the nicotine cannot get into the stem, thus assuring the smoker a cool, dry smoke. The inner bowl may be cleaned easily by being removed. Mr. Paine's pipe is something new in smoking articles and has made a ready appeal to smokers.

THE WEEK IN THE HOME GARDEN

Don't put off your planting any longer. Get busy this week. If you are going to have a garden this year and you want your patch to look as well as your neighbor's and give as much satisfaction, you must lose no more time but get at least the earlier stuff in now.

Half the success of a garden depends on getting a reasonably early start. This does not mean that you must be the first to plant, or that you must do it so early that your seeds will rot in the ground or freeze when they get above.

Danger of frost is now about over. There may be some more frost, but it is quite probable that there will not be after plants put in now are up. A slight frost will do the seeds no harm, at least those of the earlier kinds such as lettuce, radishes, onions.

Up to this time the weather has not been the most favorable, and many who planned on putting part of their seeds in have been unable to do so. The cold and rainy weather has interfered to some extent with backyard gardening, but there is yet plenty of time, even though the spading is yet to be done.

Those who started their gardens last week found that gardening is real work. Spading is not the easiest work in the world, and many proudly displayed blistered hands at their offices. Raking or pulverising the soil, picking the soil, picking the stones and breaking up lumps of earth is real work.

Time to Plant.

Nearly all of the ordinary garden plants can be put in this week. The time is ideal for potatoes. Radishes, lettuce, onion sets and onion seed may be put in without fear of frost.

Some have even stated that they will plant their corn during the coming week. Rhubarb can now be set out, as can strawberry plants and bush fruits. It is yet early for tomato and cabbage plants.

In planting radishes and lettuce, be liberal with seed, for some of the seed is not as good this year as it has been in other years. If the plants come up too thickly, it is an easy matter to thin them out.

The best varieties of garden plants have been given from time to time in this column. Those given were the brands local gardeners seem to have had the best success with.

"There is no luck in gardening, except, possibly, the weather," says an old-time gardener. "The success depends entirely on the gardener. Careful cultivation, attention and care will contribute more to the success of the venture than any other element that I know."

These are planting days, and there is nothing for the backyard farmer to do but prepare the soil and put in his seeds. Some have already done this and are watching for the first signs. There are those who have their plants well up above the ground and are cutting weeds, thinning the plants and stirring the ground around them to hasten them on their way upward.

How to Plant Rhubarb.

How few rhubarb plants one sees growing and how nice that old-fashioned spring tonic is. Considering the fact that it costs practically nothing to plant it, and the plants come up year after year, there is no reason why we should not, all of us, have all of the pieplant pie that we can eat every spring. Half a dozen hills will supply an average family.

Harvest time for rhubard is the spring and early summer, but we frequently get a second crop in the fall.

Sandy loam is best for this plant, but it will grow well in any rich, warm, moist soil. You cannot get the soil too rich for rhubarb, and it does not stand drouth very well.

Do not try to grow the plants from seed if you can secure root cuttings from a good, strong old hill. Each cutting should have two buds or eyes. Plant them in rows three feet apart, with the eyes an inch below the surface. They will begin to grow at once, and, if planted early, a few stalks can be pulled the first year.

As fast as seed stalks appear cut them off. If very fine, large stalks are wanted—and why not have the best—thin out all but the center buds, so that the entire strength of the plant will feed these.

Strawberries.

May is the best month to set out a new strawberry bed, but many successful beds are set out as late as June 15. Select well-drained, warm land which has been used for a garden patch the previous year, if possible. Perfect drainage is highly important for strawberries. Plow or spade the ground from six to eight inches deep, turning under a couple of inches of well-rotted stable manure, and then cultivate the surface until it is very fine and smooth.

Buy your plants from your seedsman, or, better still, from some man who has a good strawberry bed already started, and be careful to get good strong plants which are not run down. You will be safe in getting your plants from any reliable seed house.

The rows may be placed from two to three feet apart where the bed is to be cultivated by hand. Make a furrow with a hoe just deep enough so that the plant roots are well spread and the crown of the plant, the point where the roots and the stems join, is just above the surface of the soil. Cover the roots deeply, and tread the soil firmly around the plants. Pick off the blossoms and dead leaves and keep the blossoms off the plants during the first season so as to conserve the energy of the plant and get it well established. Be careful not to allow the roots of the plants to become dry before they are placed in the ground.

Some of the plants are perfect and can fertilize the seed, while other plants in the same bed do not produce pollen, hence require pollen from other plants to produce fruit. For this reason it is a good plan to set one row of perfect plants for every two rows of the imperfect plants, although this rule admits of a great deal of variation.

As soon as the plants are set in the ground, water them well to bring the soil particles in close contact with the roots, and then cultivate the ground between the rows.

The plants should be set about eighteen inches apart in the row, and the runners, or vine-like tendrils, must be kept back with a hoo the first season.

Gardening in a Flat.

If you live in a flat and have no ground available for gardening, do not give up the idea of raising some delicious fresh vegetables of your own. Many vegetables will grow in pots and porch or window boxes just as well as they will grow anywhere. It is very easy to grow them, many of the plants are as decorative as flowers, and the product will be much nicer and very much less expensive than store vegetables.

The location of the vegetable boxes is important. They should be placed where the sun will strike them nearly all day. Windows, porches and roofs can be used to advantage, under proper conditions.

It is usually better to use boxes or trays instead of flower pots, as the former will hold more plants to a given area, dry out less quickly, and are less liable to get broken.

Any dirt tight wooden box, eight or more inches deep, will make a good vegetable box. These boxes have to be deeper than hotbed trays because the vegetables are to mature in them. Bore some half inch holes in the bottom of the box to provide drainage. Put in two inches of cinders, gravel or other course material. Cover this with from four to six inches of fine rich earth, prepared greenhouse earth, if possible. It should be thoroughly enriched with fine, well rotted manure, and some wood ashes will help, also. Coal ashes possess no available plant food.

Fasten your boxes firmly in place and plant your vegetable seeds or plants as you would a regular garden.

Keep the soil well watered and after the plants are up it will be well to keep the surface of the soil in a crumbled condition most of the time.

Radishes, lettuce, Swiss chard, spinach, onions, garlic and leek can all be grown from seed in boxes. Magnificent crops of cucumbers and tomatoes can be had all summer long. These plants should be pruned and trained on supports of some kind, either wires, stakes or strings.

Care must be taken to water, cultivate, fertilize and spray for insect pests, if any appear. If bees and insects do not reach the blossoms to pollinate them, it will be necessary to do this by hand, with some of the vegetables mentioned. Take a camel's hair brush and transfer the pollen from one plant to another. This insures fruit and is quite important.

Care of Flowers

By J. J. Le BORIOUS.

Where you have seeds sown, the earth should be stirred up as soon as the plants come up. The rain has packed the soil too hard. It is commencing to get sour. If you stir it up the air will get down to the roots and you will be surprised how fast the plants will grow. The same is true of the flowers you intend to plant the latter part of this month. The soil should be loose about the plants. Give the sun and air a chance to sweeten the earth. Stir the soil around your shrubbery and trees and it will be better than watering them.

If you are going to plant asters this year try some lime in your bed as it is about the only thing that will check the aster disease, for the little care that you have to give asters, they are about the best fall flowers. One or two dozen plants will give you all the flowers that you want. Now is a good time to put in your pansy plants. Be sure you have a good rich bed and you will get larger flowers.

POTATOES, FODDER CORN AND ROOTS

By A. J. McGUIRE,

Superintendent of Northeast Experiment Farm, Grand Rapids, Minn.

From May 20 to June 1 is the best time to plant potatoes, root crops and fodder corn in Northeastern Minnesota. Planting may be continued well into June, but the results are not so satisfactory. When necessary, fodder corn may be planted as late as July 1 and a fair crop secured if the season is favorable.

A clover sod is the best for the potato, root and corn crop. It should be plowed from six to eight inches deep and disked thoroughly. Land that has been in the same hay for a number of years should be broken up and planted to some of these crops this spring. Old hay land produced less than a ton of hay to the acre in 1911. The same kind of land broken up and put into fodder corn yielded as high as five tons of cured fodder per acre. Fodder corn is splendid feed for dairy cows and by growing it on the old land it not only produces more feed, but it puts the ground in good condition for a grain crop next year.

Roots produces from twelve to eighteen tons per acre and roots can be made to take the place of expensive mill feed for dairy cows in this section of the state. The old hay land can be made to produce five times the feed in fodder corn and roots that it will produce in hay.

Potatoes planted on sod land are less subject to scab and produce a larger yield. If the potato seed is scabby the scab can be killed by soaking the seed before cutting for three hours in a barrel of water in which is mixed one quart of formaldehyde. This can be bought at any drug store.

All manure about the barn yard should be gotten out on the potato, corn and root ground: If time will not permit getting it out before plowing it may be applied as a top dressing after the crop is in. In this case it should be applied evenly and thin. Manure for the above named crops is worth over $1.50 a ton when applied on the fields in good condition. Left in piles around the buildings through the summer it loses most of its values.

Potatoes, fodder corn and roots are more important to the farmer of a few acres than the grain cops.

"MADAME BUTTERFLY"

Belasco Production of Famous Playlet Features Orpheum Bill.

When it was announced a few months ago that David Belasco would produce two one-act plays for vaudeville critics who had been rather wont to sneer at the "two a day" gasped a little. Belasco, it was believed, would be the last to succumb to the attractions of the vaudeville field. In the past Mr. Belasco's name has always been a guaranty of an artistic, finished production, whether it happened to catch the public fancy or not. In "Madame Butterfly," which headlines the closing bill at the Orpheum this week, Mr. Belasco has apparently outdone himself. It is hardly fair to call it a playlet or a sketch. It comes nearer to being a full fledged play. The cast comprises ten people, with a musical director and a formidable list of other attaches, according to the program. It runs nearly an hour and greater care could not have been taken with the scenery, costumes and lighting effects if it had been a real three or four-act play.

The story is the same as that told in Puccini's opera heard here several years ago and the scenery and lighting effects are almost identical. Snatches of the opera are used for incidental music.

Miss Clara Blandick is cast in the title role, a very exciting one, for she leaves the stage for but a moment during the entire action of the play. She gives to the part of little Cho Cho San an appeal that is irresistible. Handkerchiefs were very much in evidence last evening and the little tragedy was given the most flattering attention. The other members of the little company are thoroughly adequate—rather a rare occurrence in vaudeville sketches, which are usually built around one performer.

"Madame Butterfly" marks a new era in vaudeville playlets, and Duluth theatergoers cannot afford to miss it this week. Even the comedy loving Sunday night audience waxed enthusiastic over it, and the curtain had to ascend a dozen times or more on the prostrate figure of little Cho Cho San and the baby waving the little American flag. (Score another mark—Miss Blandick did not rise and bow acknowledgements.)

The rest of the performance is good, lively, clean vaudeville, a notch ahead of the regular Orpheum standard. It looks as if the Orpheum management were determined to leave a good impression behind with the closing.

One of W. W. Jacob's clever stories, "The Bosun's Mate," is the fun making vehicle of Percy Waram and his little company, and many a laugh they drew from it last evening. It is surprising that Mr. Jacobs' stories have escaped the vaudeville booking managers so long. "The Bosun's Mate" is well worth while, and it is ably presented, with an excellent scenic setting.

Miss Leona Thurber and Harry Madison, the former a striking beauty, and the latter a genuinely funny comedian, are back with their amusing dialogue "On a Shopping Tour," and it scored heavily last night. Their burlesque on modern vaudeville tricks and Mr. Madison's eccentric dance were excellent.

Clemons and Deane, a very lively dancing team, open the bill with a rush, and on a less elaborate program would occupy a much more important position than the opening one. Their dancing is very much out of the ordinary. Mr. Clemons' "inebriate dance" scoring one of the biggest hits of the entire bill. The O'Meers Sisters and company, three young women, combine singing, dancing and wire walking, and the whole is set off by some very attractive costumes and the good appearance of the three young women themselves. It is a dainty and clever little novelty. Harry Atkinson imitates the various musical instruments with his voice and fills in about twelve minutes most acceptably.

One picture this week shows how the earth looks to an aeroplane operator. It is taken from the seat of a machine in flight. The orchestra concert completes the bill.

VARIETY IN EMPRESS BILL

Rapoli, Clever Foreign Juggler, Heads New Vaudeville Program.

This week's bill at the Empress has a most pleasing variety of acts. From the opening acrobatic act to the closing juggling feature, the bill includes much that is out of the ordinary in vaudeville.

Rapoli is without a doubt the most finished juggler ever seen at the Empress. As the headline act, Rapoli well deserves his position and his numerous tricks are performed with the greatest apparent ease and rapidity. He can juggle everything from cannon balls, eight-inch army projectiles to carriage wheels. The most heavy articles are as easily thrown about and caught by Rapoli, as are the small rubber balls by his contemporaries. Rapoli is a rapid juggler, who keeps up his continual series of tricks, from the rise to the drop of the curtain. His egg-balancing feature scored a hit.

Another European act opens the bill this week in the form of the Delzaros, a young man and a woman, who perform a number of perilous tricks on the trapeze. They are both excellent in the work and go through the most difficult feats with the slightest apparent effort. The man is exceptionally strong, performing a number of balancing tricks with the young woman.

Lifman and Kelly introduce many new jokes in their comedy act which are a real treat to hear. The young man especially knows how to tell these stories and the audience last evening really enjoyed the act. The pair sang several popular songs which pleased.

Rose Sharon & Co. present the roaring comedy, "An Up-to-Date Invention." The sketch is full of comedy lines and humorous situations, which kept the audience in a constant laughter for over fifteen minutes last evening. Miss Sharon plays the wife, who is misunderstood by her husband, Richard Garrett. The latter finds a letter on the table and immediately goes into a rage. The letter is written to a young man telling the latter that the elopment is necessary. The husband falls in a rage and plans to kill everyone concerned. In reality the letter is part of a novel, which the wife is writing to assist her husband in earning enough money to cover the household expenses. After a number of humorous incidents, R. E. Milasch, who plays the detective, comes on the scene. He is about twice the size of the couple and the husband's efforts to destroy "this wrecker of homes" is most amusing. John Stevens completes the cast.

Snowie Maybelle can tell incidents about children in the most amusing way. There are few vaudeville entertainers today who can tell these sayings in Miss Maybelle's delightful manner. The stories are humorous and they received a splendid reception last evening. Miss Maybelle opens her act with a song. Her soft soprano voice is most attractive.

The picture, as usual, are entertaining. The same bill will be presented for the remainder of the week, with a daily matinee

LULU GLASER HERE.

Will Be Seen at the Lyceum in "Miss Dudelsack."

The kilts and plaids of Scotland are said to become Lulu Glaser quite as much as did the quaint costumes of rural England, which she wore in "Dolly Varden" when she made her last coast tour six years ago. Duluth audiences will have an opportunity of seeing Miss Glaser in Highland costume tonight and tomorrow when she comes to the Lyceum in her new Viennese opera, "Miss Dudelsack."

Written by two European authors and composers, Rudolph Nelson and Fritzz Greunbaum, "Miss Dudelsack" is yet as Scottish as Harry Lauder, and its acts are said to fairly riot with kilts and plaids, and the colorful effect is harmonized with skill, and is extremely novel.

Miss Glaser, herself, as the daughter of the caretaker of Castle MacHumber, makes her first appearance in the Stewart plaid, and the knee-length skirt and Scotch stockings combine with the jaunty cap to present a most fetching costume. Miss Glaser plays the bagpipes, too, as a further proof that she is Scotch, and is surrounded by a cast and chorus whose individual members wear nearly a score of authentic Scottish plaids.

"Miss Dudelsack" comes to the Lyceum for an engagement of two nights only.

SEEK JOBS FOR MEN DRIVEN FROM MEXICO.

Washington, May 20.—President Taft has directed the state department to endeavor to find work for the American locomotive engineers and conductors who are out of employment because of the strike on the National Railways of Mexico.

The department has sent letters to the heads of 150 railroads in the United States asking for work for 80 engineers and 83 conductors now idle in the border towns of Texas. C. E. Webb, representing the engineers at San Antonio, and D. F. Anderson, representing the conductors at Laredo, are in touch with the department in the negotiations. American consuls in Mexico are trying to find any other engineers and conductors out of work, and still in Mexico.

A New Delicious Drink

Has a flavor much like the rare old Javas that we used to have when Java coffee really came from Java.

INSTANT POSTUM

A food drink, not only 100 per cent pure, but free from any trace of the coffee drug, "caffeine," or any other harmful ingredient.

Instant Postum requires no boiling

It is made "quick as a wink" by stirring a teaspoonful in a cup of hot water; and adding cream and sugar to taste.

Make it strong or weak (just as you desire) by varying the amount used for each cup.

Always uniform in taste and a rich, health-giving beverage.

Convenient—Economical Satisfying

A 100-cup tin of INSTANT POSTUM costs 50 cents at grocers.
Smaller tin at 30 cents makes about 50 cups.

Coffee averages about double that cost.

The Duluth Herald accepts advertising contracts with the distinct guarantee that it has the largest circulation of any newspaper published in Minnesota outside the Twin Cities. Its value as an advertising medium is apparent.

ARBITRATE IT.

The employes of the Duluth Street Railway company have presented to the company a set of demands relating to wages, hours and working conditions.

This has followed several months of apparent unrest among the street railway employes, evidenced by a series of letters in The Herald's Open Court columns.

There is talk that if the demands are not granted there will be a strike.

Of course neither the men, whose present wages would be interrupted, the company, whose receipts would decrease sharply, nor the public, which would be seriously inconvenienced, want a strike.

Yet if the conditions are as complained of by the employes, they would seem to have a case that should be given fair consideration.

This is a day of arbitration. Public sentiment is against resorting to the arbitrament of battle—and that's what a strike actually is—to settle such disputes. The strike is against public interests, and against the interests of the two direct parties as well. Victory in a strike rests oftener with the stronger than with the side which is right.

Why not, then, submit the issue that has been raised to a fair tribunal for arbitration? Let the men select a part, the company an equal part and let those selected by both sides pick the remainder of the arbitrating body. Then the fair thing can be done with no harm to the men, the company or the public.

When the Band Starts Up.

The Methodists have decided against dancing, but the problem, judging from former experience, will be to keep the question from jigging around in spite of them.

THE SOCIALIST TICKET.

While the Republicans and Democrats are still rowing over their nominations, another party has its ticket and platform in the ring.

The Socialists have nominated as their candidate for president Eugene V. Debs of Indiana, and as their candidate for vice president Emil Seidel of Wisconsin. From a Socialist viewpoint it is a good ticket. Debs is a man of great personal appeal and a powerful orator. Seidel is a hardheaded and practical German who possesses a large fund of common sense, and who made a good mayor of Milwaukee.

Mr. Debs, who is the mildest mannered and sweetest natured man who ever uttered revolutionary sentiments, is now ahead of Mr. Bryan as a presidential candidate. So far Mr. Bryan has run only three times. This makes Mr. Debs's fourth consecutive run for the presidency. Whether Mr. Debs can maintain this lead nobody will know until the Baltimore convention is over.

Mr. Debs started running for the presidency in 1900, when he got 87,814 votes. He ran again in 1904, and got 412,283 votes. He tried it again in 1908 and received 420,793 votes. The gain over 1904 was really greater than it seems, because in 1904 many Democrats voted the Socialist ticket through discontent with the Parker candidacy.

How many votes will Debs get this year? He will get many more than he ever got before. The number will depend largely on the behavior of the "old parties" in their conventions. If either or both should disappoint their progressive members, a large protest vote for Debs might be expected. If both parties please their progressive elements Debs's vote will be largely a straight Socialist vote, because disappointed conservatives are very unlikely to register their protest by voting the Socialist ticket. They are more likely to take to the woods.

Hardly anybody puts the Debs vote this fall at less than a million. The Socialists expect two or three millions. It wouldn't be surprising to see a million and a half. Socialism is growing; and that is a thing to think about.

The Socialists acted wisely in voting down violent proposals and in setting their faces against anarchy disguised as Socialism. This will get them votes, because it will get them respect.

And Not An Unwelcome One.

Debs and Seidel. Well, well! And those fellows are likely to get the surprise of their lives, especially if Taft and Clark or Harmon should be the other nominees.

A SIX-YEAR PRESIDENTIAL TERM.

A plan of providing a six-year term for the president, with no re-election, is being discussed, and a resolution carrying out the idea is now before the senate.

Harper's Weekly and the New York Sun approve the idea very ardently.

So do the advocates of Toryism and the enemies of real democracy everywhere.

They put it on the ground that the four-year term, with a chance for re-election, keeps the president busy figuring on re-election, and in the Taft case has led him to get out and make an unseemly contest before the people for the place.

There is no harm in keeping a president busy figuring on re-election. It keeps him busy doing things the people want done, and that's the object of a democratic government. The short term, with the privilege of re-election if the president deserves it, keeps the president responsive to the people. And that's what those who advocate the new plan wish to avoid.

It isn't particularly pleasing to have a president campaigning for re-election. Nobody has been edified by the unpleasant squabble between Taft and Roosevelt. But that's no reason why there should be a change in the presidential term.

A president elected for six years, with no possibility of re-election, without the opportunity for a recall, would be as far removed from the reach of public opinion as a czar surrounded by a forest of bayonets.

Nothing but impeachment could reach him.

His power for mischief would be enormous, and would reach far beyond his term of office.

This scheme of a six-year term and no re-election is about the prettiest piece of Tory subtlety that has lately been devised.

The Tories don't like the present system because it keeps the president responsive to the popular will.

They want the six-year term and no re-election because it would make the president utterly unresponsive to the popular will.

The people want their presidents—and all their servants—responsive to them and heedful of their will.

Therefore, when they come to think it over, they will not approve this new scheme. They will not fall in behind the New York Sun and the chorus of Tory advocates which echoes it.

The plan has plausibility that will fool some. But it is not in the interest of the people, and it should be defeated.

Is the Breach Complete?

Governor Eberhart says "there exists throughout the state a clearly expressed demand for the immediate enactment of a state-wide primary law," etc. The St. Paul correspondence of the News Tribune says there is "little call for an extra session." Some lack of team work somewhere, evidently, but there's been evidence before that it was coming.

BOTH OBJECTS GAINED.

When The Herald began its fight for an extra session, it had two objects.

The first, of course, was to bring about an extra session of the legislature to pass a reapportionment law and to submit to the voters at this fall's election an increase in railroad taxation.

The second was to show up the character of the boss-ridden and special interest-financed machine which has controlled the Republican politics of Minnesota.

When the machine, fresh from a statewide trouncing in the presidential fight, throws out an extra session of the legislature, as the man pursued by wolves throws out the last quarter of beef in his wagon, it looks very much as though The Herald had gained both of the things it was after.

Such As It Is.

President Taft has been telling the Ohio people that the trust dissolutions restored competition. Sure they did. You never hear two housewives talking but they tell each other how little of any given commodity they can get along with.

FIGHTING THE LOAN EVIL.

Assistant County Attorney Greene agrees with The Herald, after several months of study, that the best if not the only way to combat the "loan shark" evil is to provide a substitute for it in the shape of a loan association prepared to lend money on reasonable terms to people of small means.

They why not have such an association in Duluth?

The man working on wages or salary has as great a need of borrowing, at times, as the business man with assets who can borrow money at the bank. Dark days come into every home when money is needed quickly, and in few homes of workers is there a balance to fall back upon. Shall such people be forced to turn to the "loan shark" for relief which turns out in the end to be a curse?

Mr. Greene suggests the need of legislation authorizing a higher rate of interest than the present legal limit for such loans, and this legislation should be provided. In the meantime, Duluth can do a good deed for its people if it will provide such a loan association as St. Paul lately provided.

More Up-to-Date Spelling.

Considering Taft's campaign and his opponent in Ohio, one is tempted to spell it as the "Buck I state."

THE GOVERNOR'S CONVERSION.

Governor Eberhart is either wantonly wasteful of state money and is playing political tricks with the machinery of state government now when he calls an extra session of the legislature, or he was wickedly neglectful of the state's interests and his public duty when he refused to call an extra session, as he did three different times in the last year.

There was a statewide demand for an extra session to increase railroad taxation, but the governor refused to call it; and in his call now he does not mention railroad taxation as one of the matters on which the legislation should act.

There was a demand throughout Northern Minnesota for an extra session to provide reapportionment, based in large part on the governor's promise to the Northern Minnesota Development association that he would call one if the legislature failed to act at the regular session; but the governor refused that demand.

There was a statewide demand for an extra session to provide a presidential preference primary; but the governor refused to heed it.

But the rank and file of the Republican party, their minds firmly made up, got along pretty well in the presidential fight without a primary. In spite of the support of the Eberhart machine, President Taft's candidacy was overwhelmingly repudiated through the machinery of the old convention system.

This showed that when the people are aroused they can work their will even through the convention system. The temper of the convention was strongly anti-Eberhart, and this showed the governor and his backers that there was peril to them even in the convention system, with a number of candidates working more or less harmoniously to get delegates away from him.

Hence the call for an extra session to provide a statewide primary bill, under which, unless the legislature is careful about the kind of primary bill it passes, the field will split the opposition and Eberhart will gain the nomination by a small minority of the total vote cast.

There must be some way of accounting for the governor's change of heart. Has anybody a better way than this of accounting for it?

Unless He Recalls His Decision.

Of course Taft won't quit. Didn't he say nothing but death would put him out of the race?

THE COAT FITS SNUGLY.

Congratulations to the News Tribune on its surprising and unexpected development of sagacity. We were not sure that it would realize, though we knew everybody else would, whom The Herald meant when it condemned carping criticism, nagging, scolding and cross-fire agitation that interferes with the well-ordered work of the organized agencies which are doing things for Duluth. If it wishes to direct its fire at The Herald, very well; that will distract its attention from the destructive general criticism that is doing so much harm. It cannot hurt The Herald, and Duluth's interests will be served.

THE LAW AS A "BROTHER'S KEEPER."

Kansas City Star: A workman negligently sets off a blast in a rock quarry and another workman is killed. The widow gets nothing because the negligent workman was the fellow servant of the dead man.

A laborer is ordered by his boss to go into a deep ditch to work. The sides cave in and kill him. The widow is not entitled to compensation because the danger was obvious and the killed man assumed the risk.

An employer fails to safeguard some part of the machinery. An employe relaxes his vigilance, becomes careless and is killed. His dependents recover nothing because the employe was guilty of "contributory negligence."

Those three rules of judges—they were never passed by a legislative body—got on people's nerves. The demand for their abolition became a national issue. Society required many dangerous employments. The doctrine came into favor that the dangerous business should bear the cost of injuries resulting from it. The railroad business alone has killed an average of about 4,000 employes a year for the last ten or fifteen years. It has injured about 80,000 employes a year.

Two general plans, different but closely related, took form. One was to abolish the three common law defenses (so-called "immoral" defenses) —contributory negligence, "assumption of risk" and the fellow servant exemption—and still leave the employe and his heirs the right to sue and leave the employer his right to contest the suit. A law for that change is usually called an employers' liability law.

The other closely allied plan was to declare by statute that for every workman killed or disabled in employment a certain specified sum should be paid to his dependents if he was killed, to himself if only disabled. Schedules determined what the sum to be paid should be.

A few states have adopted workmen's compensation acts. Some have passed employers' liability laws. Some (as Wisconsin and New Jersey) have given options between the two. Employers and employes may elect to come in under the provisions of the workmen's compensation plan. If an employer does not come in he is deprived of the right to plead any of the three defenses mentioned when he defends an ordinary suit for damages. If an employe refuses the terms of the workmen's compensation act the old defenses can be pleaded against his suit if they fit.

But most states still endure the old conditions.

In 1908 congress passed an employers' liability statute—of the plan first described. It applied to railroads engaged in interstate commerce.

Now the senate has passed a workmen's compensation act, compulsory upon all interstate railroads and all their employes. It makes the ascertained compensation the exclusive remedy. The bill is now pending in the house of representatives, where the probability is that it will pass. If it is thus enacted the employers' liability bill of 1908 will be in effect repealed, since all defenses will be repealed and all ordinary damage suits will be done away with.

With the employers' liability statute in force it is far less important that this federal workmen's compensation law should be enacted than it was before the old immoral defenses were abolished. Senator Culberson of Texas, indeed, filed a minority report protesting against the compensation act on the ground that under that act smaller compensation would be paid than might now be collected in damage suits.

Senator Sutherland of Utah points out for the majority of the special committee that while some might fare worse under he compensation plan than in a damage suit, with the immoral defenses removed, still, the general class of railroad employes will fare far better. Recovery will not depend upon the shrewdness of one-s lawyer. One injured man will not get $10,000 while another gets nothing. There will be practically no lawsuits and a lawyer is not needed to collect the compensation.

The definite compensation plan is generally regarded as the more scientific and the fairer of the two. But both the compensation and the liability plans industry and politics.

THE OPEN COURT

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest, but discussions of sectarian religious differences are barred. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

ON THE RIGHT TRACK.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Nothing ever was gained by big stick methods not supplemented by constructive activity. I want to commend The Herald for its civic sermon in Saturday evening's paper. It was just what we needed. We have too long been blinded to our advantages and harping on our disadvantages. We need to put our advantages before the world, and set about constructive activity to remedy our disadvantages.

As you said, Duluth has more talking points than most cities. It is up to us to do the talking. "Scolds" don't accomplish anything, and the public-spirited corrector of faults does. The Herald has taken the right track. Keep it up. J. A. M.

Duluth, May 19.

Abating a Nuisance.

In the June American Magazine Edna Ferber writes another Emma McChesney story. Emma McChesney is the crack traveling saleswoman for the T. A. Buck Featherloom Petticoat company. On one of her trips to the home office she met young T. A. Buck. Following is an extract from the story:

"Young T. A. rose. He laughed a little laugh of sheer admiration. Admiration shone, too, in those eyes of his which so many women found irresistible. He took a step forward and laid one well-shaped hand on Emma McChesney's arm. She did not shrink, so he let his hand slip down the neat blue serge sleeve until it reached her snugly gloved hand.

"'You're all right!' he said. His voice was very low, and there was a new note in it. 'Listen, girlie. I've just bought a new sixty-power machine. Have dinner with me tonight, will you? And we'll take a run in the country somewhere. It's warm, even for March. I'll bring along a fur coat for you. H'm?'

"Mrs. McChesney stood thoughtfully regarding the hand that covered her own. The blue of her eyes and the pink of her cheeks were a marvel to behold. "It's a shame,' she began slowly, 'that you're not twenty-five years younger, so that your father could give you the licking you deserve when he comes home. I shouldn't be surprised if he'd do it anyway. The Lord preserve me from these quiet, deep devils with temperamental hands and luminous eyes. Give me one of the bull-necked, red-faced, horse-voiced fresh kind, every time. You know what they're going to say, at least, and you're prepared for them. If I were to tell you how the hand you're holding is tingling to box your ears you'd marvel that any human being could have that much repression and live. I've heard of this kind of thing, but I didn't know it happened often off the stage and outside of novels. Let's get down to cases. If I let you make love to me I keep my job? Is that it?'

"'Why—no—I—to tell the truth I was only—'

"'Don't embarrass yourself. I just want to tell you that before I'd accept your auto ride I'd open a little fancy art goods and needlework store in Menominee, Mich., and get out the newest things in Hardanger work and Egyptian embroidery. And that's my notion of zero in occupation. Besides, no plain, every day working woman could enjoy herself in your car because her conscience wouldn't let her. She'd be thinking all the time how she was depriving some poor, hard working chorus girl of her legitimate pastime, and that would spoil everything. The elevator man told me that you had a new motor car, but the news didn't interest me half as much as that of his having new twin girls. Anything with $5,000 can have a sixty-power machine, but only an elevator man on $8 a week can afford the luxury of twins.'

"'My dear Mrs. McChesney—'

"'Don't,' said Emma McChesney sharply. 'I couldn't stand much more. I joke you know, when other women cry. It isn't so wearing.'"

All of the Same Mind.

New York Tribune: Rudolph Blankenburg, the reform mayor of Philadelphia, was praising at a dinner, the intelligence of women.

"Woman," he said, "is a realist. She has no illusions. She sees the truth and no matter what ideals it shatters, she accepts the truth bravely.

"She accepts it wittily," Mr. Blankenburg continued, with a smile. "In Germantown one evening, as a family sat grouped about the library table, the little son looked up from his book and asked:

"'Papa, what is an egotist?'

"'An egotist,' the father answered, 'is any one who thinks he is cleverer than any one else.'

"But the mother, laughing coldly, appended:

"'No, my son, that is not quite right. An egotist is a man who says he is cleverer than any one else—every man thinks he is.'"

The Wilson Opposition.

Collier's: "I do not hesitate to say," declares Senator Bailey of Texas, "that I would vote for Harmon, Clark or Underwood, any or all of them, to defeat Wilson." Voting for all of them might seem exaggerated, but Senator Bailey's point of view is shared by most of the politicians in his party, and most of the men who control and use the politicians, but it was not shown by the Texas masses.

Ups and Downs.

Charleston News and Courier: Shoes are lower this year, but they cost more.

GRASPING AT A STRAW.

The people do not want an extra session; I see no demand for an extra session; it would be useless expense; the legislature would not enact—The people want an extra session; I see a strong demand for an extra session; the expense will not be great; the legislature is anxious to act; I have called an extra session for June 4.—Governor Eberhart.

Deer River News: Which will you have and why?

The above are the expressions of decided stands taken by Minnesota's governor three months ago and today.

There's a reason.

If he was right all winter, he is in the wrong now. If he is right now, he was in the wrong all winter. Why?

The national delegate convention at Minneapolis Wednesday showed the handwriting on the wall, and it read anti-Eberhart distinctly.

Eberhart saw it first, and before the echoes of the knell had died from the hall he had issued the call for an extra session of the legislature, to be held June 4—as the only straw within reach to keep him, at least temporarily, above water.

When The Duluth Herald shouted a demand for months and months and months for an extra session, with logic in it, we thought the shout was gingered with too much politics; but if The Herald was right then, it is right now, and Eberhart now hearing the voice of the people where before he was deaf and blind, let us, with all due apology and credit, quote from The Duluth Herald of yesterday.

That "right" (though a Democratic) paper, says:

"Governor Adolph O. Eberhart has decided to call an extra session of the Minnesota legislature, to meet Tuesday, June 4, for the purpose of passing a state-wide primary law, a reapportionment law and a corrupt practices act.

"Better late than never, so far as the good of the state is concerned. There should have been an extra session last winter, not only for the state-wide primary and reapportionment, but for a presidential preference primary and an increase in railroad taxes. The proposed extra session comes in the heat of a campaign, and it will be that much harder to get clean, logical action out of a gathering of men with their faces turned toward the home districts where their political fortunes are in issue. Nevertheless, even if it is belated, The Herald is glad there is an extra session.

"When an extra session was proposed to increase railroad taxes, Governor Eberhart refused to call one on the ground that there was no need of one, that there was no demand for one, that nothing would come of it, and that it would cost too much. Yet a failure to act on railroad taxes at an extra session means an unnecessary delay for two years, and the total loss of two years' increased revenues. * * *"

The Herald goes on with other reasons for the extra session, and concluding it says: "A majority of each house is pledged to these reforms, and this state is in no position, with the highest state tax in forty years, to throw away the millions of dollars that will be lost if no action is taken on railroad taxation at the special session."

How to Teach Children to Hate War.

In an article in the June American magazine on "Peace Education and Peace," Sir Francis Vane, who is the leader in Europe of the World Scout movement, makes the following observations:

At a peace conference last year, I remember someone got up and said that he had done much work for peace; he had given over 1,000 lectures on peace to boys in school. I turned to a very distinguished member who was sitting next me and said, 'That man has made more warriors than Napoleon.' I who have myself seen the vulgarity and brutality of war,—he made even me feel warlike!

"Anyone who had the slightest knowledge of the hearts of the young would have known that an elderly and sloppy gentleman who had never seen war, knew nothing whatever of war. preaching the beauties of peace in stuffy schoolrooms, must inevitably create a reaction against the noble thing he was advocating.

"The only kind of peace picture that counts anything with children is when in camp, for instance, around the campfire, or other similar and naturally appropriate occasion, they ask you to spin them yarns. Then you can give them real accounts of real warfare. You can show them all the gilt on their ginger bread. You can by indirection make them understand what a false picture of war it is that they have been trained to look at. You can cause them to see that the high color of chivalry and nobility in which war has been painted for them is only superficial and is really only a lie and a disguise.

"Then, too, is the psychological moment for showng them that even in war it is the little acts of kindness and goodness that sometimes occur which do more than all the guns to bind races and nations together—which, in fact, make peace possible after all the furious injustices of war. By citing actual instances of this kind, you do more to destroy illusions and 're-establish a sense of actual values than you would by hundreds of sermons cut out of whole cloth."

Metaphorically Speaking.

Judge's Library: "Let us nip this monster in the bud before it overwhelms us as an oncoming tidal wave!" shouted the young politician.

"Perhaps," said an experienced campaigner in the back of the hall, "it would be better to smoke it out of its lair before it becomes a festering canker."

G. G. Hartley gave a dinner party last evening at his residence, and a company of prominent citizens and city officials was present. The guest of the evening was Thomas Lowry, the street car magnate of St. Paul and Minneapolis, who is also a director in the Duluth Street Railway company. Mr. Lowry sat at the head of the table and on either side were Bishop McGolrick, Judge Stearns, Mayor d'Autremont, Mayor Sargent of Lakeside, Luther Mendenhall and A. R. Macfarlane. About 10 o'clock yesterday a fierce wind, which raged all day, tackled and overcame the new conveyor trestle between elevators B and D, and it toppled over with a loud crash. It was recently erected in place of the one blown down in the big March blizzard. The greater portion of the structure fell on the boiler house and after house of the propeller D. W. Rust, which was lying alongside the dock. The boat was badly damaged. The culvert on Superior street near Ninth avenue is partially washed out, and also a portion of the street. Chester creek is swollen and tearing along at a great rate and is evidently making an effort to emulate the great Missouri.

The Hartman Electric company will extend its lines to Woodland and Hunter's Park, and by June 15 will be prepared to furnish current for both arc and incandescent lights in that district.

THE GOVERNORSHIP.

Only One Course.

Fairmont Sentinel: A whole raft of Republican newspapers are either intentionally or recklessly putting themselves in a position where they cannot retain their self respect and support Governor Eberhart for re-election.

Hard on Eberhart.

Little Falls Herald: Kandiyohi is one of the strongest Scandinavian counties in the state. It gave Governor Eberhart 779 plurality over Gray in 1910. And now it is carried for governor by Lee, with Gordon second, and the governor far in the rear. This certainly is not an auspicious beginning.

The People Awakened.

Aurora News: After the machine and machine politicians had everything claimed for Taft the St. Louis county voters just went and boosted for Roosevelt. These same machine cogs have been Eberhart's sole supporters. Now where does Eberhart stand with the people?

Good Work.

Fairmont Sentinel: The Hon. William E. Lee is doing the state a valuable service by proving that Governor Eberhart is governor in name only.

Going Down.

Northfield News: In passing it might be interesting to note that "Down With the Current," was the topic under consideration at the Elks' meeting in Minneapolis where Governor Eberhart, sang "I Love You Only."

The Record.

Cuyuna Miner: Eberhart's administration has made a record of itself—of non-accomplishments.

Spirit of Revolt.

Red Wing Republican: It is true that the conventions were for the sole purpose of naming delegates to state and district conventions called to send men to Chicago to place in nomination a candidate for the presidency. The contest over the state ticket is still to come in later conventions. But the spirit of revolt was so clearly manifest against the further domination of all those special interests which Eberhart so completely represents that he who runs may read.

The Square Deal.

Pine River Sentinel: The Roosevelt sweep in Minnesota does not argue very well for the Eberhart machine. Now if the country can only unite with the city on either Gordon or Lee Mr. Eberhart will find that the people will vote for a real square deal—for themselves.

Wall Street's Hunt for Wilson.

Savannah, Ga., Press: A writer in McClure's magazine for May, George Kibbe Turner, says that the Republicans who are booming Mr. Taft place their confidence in his re-election upon the probable fact that Wall street, now active in the Democratic party, will certainly hunt down and destroy any anti-corporation candidate in the Democratic party before he can be nominated. This hunt has been public knowledge for several months. The knowledge for several months. The plan of the corporation is for the Democratic party of the destruction of Woodrow Wilson. PLANS ADDITION TO IRVING SCHOOL Board Will Take Steps to Relieve Congestion Next Year.

As a result of several visits to the Irving school by the school board last week, recommendations for an immediate enlargement, or possibly the erection of a new high school for West Duluth, will be made at the next meeting of the board.

Dr. S. H. Boyer and Andrew Nelson, members of the committee on schools, were much impressed at the crowded condition of the school during their visit last week. Messrs. W. E. Magner, W. M. Evered and F. L. Brewer of the committee on buildings also visited the institution during the week. The committee has already requested Henry Sullivan and Frank Kreidler, who are at the head of the manual training department of the high school, to draw a rough sketch of the various necessary improvements.

It has been suggested that an addition be built to the east end of the present building to relieve the present congestion. The plan may be taken up by the school board this summer, according to the statements of the members, who visited the building last week. The addition would provide for four rooms. At present there are about 1,000 students attending the Irving school and the Industrial high school. An additional 100 students are expected to attend the high school this fall.

MEETS DEATH ON COAL DOCK

Body of Vincent Sabowski Found By Fellow Workmen.

Vincent Sabowski, 21 years old, who was employed as a roofer at the Duluth, Missabe & Northern coal docks, was found with his skull crushed Saturday afternoon on the roof of one of the docks at the foot of Thirty-second avenue west. The young man was seen but a few minutes before his body was found by his fellow workmen.

Just how the young man met his death is not known, but it is believed that Sabowski came in contact with the beams, which were being hoisted to the roof of the building on which he was working. He had been working with the hoists and when other workmen missed him, a search was made and the body was found lying on the hoist. Life was extinct. Sabowski's head had been crushed.

Sabowski was married three months ago and was living at 10 West Tenth street. He was a son of Charles Sabowski, 3202 Vernon street. The body was removed to the Stewart undertaking rooms, where Coroner McComb will hold an autopsy some time today. An investigation as to the cause of the young man's death will also be made by Coroner McComb.

CRUSHED UNDER HEAVY WINDOW

Little Girl's Curiosity to See Factory Interior Causes Death.

Irene M. Klug, the 6-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Klug, 5013 Roosevelt street, died at the home of her parents yesterday morning as a result of an accident Saturday afternoon. The little girl had been playing with other children in the vicinity of the Union Match factory Saturday afternoon, when her curiosity led her to one of the large open windows. She was lifted up by her playmates and was watching the machinery on the inside, when the heavy sash dropped on her neck. The child's collar bone was broken, parts of it entering her lungs.

Employes at the factory immediately rushed to the child's assistance, having been attracted to the scene by the cries of all the children, who had been holding Irene so that she could look inside. She was taken to her home, where Drs. D. W. Seashore and W. E. Judson attended her. The penetration of the collar bone into the child's lungs caused her death yesterday morning.

The funeral will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon from the family residence and at 2:30 o'clock from the German Lutheran church, Sixty-seventh avenue west and Raleigh street. Rev. Walter O. Sievers, pastor of the church, will officiate and interment will be in Oneota cemetery.

DR. KRANTZ ATTENDS COLLEGE JUBILEE.

Rev. J. A. Krantz, D. D., president of the Minnesota Conference of Swedish Lutheran churches and pastor of the Elim Swedish Lutheran church, Fifty-sixth avenue west and Elinor street, is conducting the sermons and holy meetings at the golden jubilee of the Gustavus Adolphus college, now being celebrated at St. Peter.

Dr. Krantz was chosen by the Minnesota conference as its representative at the jubilee. The college was founded just fifty years ago this week. The celebration was opened by Dr. Krantz last Thursday evening. Tomorrow is grand jubilee day, when addresses are to be given by Gov. A. O. Eberhart, Dr. G. E. Vincent, president of the University of Minnesota; Rev. C. J. Petri, D. D., of Minneapolis; Rev. M. Wahlstrom, Ph. D., of Chicago; Rev. P. H. Frick, D. D., of Milwaukee; Prof. E. Jorenson of Fergus Falls, Minn., and A. W. Edwins, a returned missionary from China.

The quilt is worked in pink and white, and contains three blocks devoted to the G. A. R., W. C. T. U. and prominent business men of Duluth. The following members of the society are in charge of the affair Friday evening: Mrs. Ruth Merritt, chairman; Mrs. Laurenze, Mrs. B. N. Sampson, Mrs. L. L. Gilpin, Mrs. H. B. Randall, Mrs. H. Merritt, Mrs. C. W. Emery, Mrs. J. Stewart and Mrs. Charles Peterson.

Pioneer West Duluth Man Is Victim of Pneumonia.

Elliott D. Abbott, 64 years old, one of West Duluth's pioneer residents, died late Saturday evening at his residence, 5609 Grand avenue, after an illness of several days. Pneumonia was the cause of death.

Mr. Abbott was one of the best known residents in this end of the city, having been employed at the Northern Pacific station here for the past twenty years. The deceased is survived by a widow and two sons. The sons are Ray W. Abbott of West Duluth, and H. C. Abbott of the West end.

The funeral was held at 4 o'clock this afternoon from the residence and at 4:30 o'clock from the Asbury M. E. church, Sixtieth avenue west and Raleigh street. Rev. W. H. Farrell, pastor of the church officiated.

The body will be taken this evening to Floyd, Iowa. His sons, Ray W. and Herbert C. Abbott, will accompany the body.

DESTRUCTIVE FIRES IN BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Winnipeg, Man., May 20.—A dispatch from Kaslo, B. C., says that destructive forest fires are raging in that vicinity and the timber limits of several large lumber firms are threatened. Government fire wardens with a big force of employes of lumbermen are fighting the flames.

A recent discovery in Ireland indicates the presence of a large area rich in copper, sulphur and arsenic.

GIVEN WARM RECEPTION

Call to Drop "Destructive Criticism" Is Commended on All Sides.

Business Men Agree That Duluth's "Talking Points" Have Been Neglected.

The Herald's denunciation of destructive criticism of Duluth, and suggestions for constructive activity in civic development, published Saturday evening, found ready response with Duluth business men.

Scores of telephone calls and letters have been received in commendation of The Herald's position.

Several public spirited Duluth men who have watched with disfavor the growing tendency to find fault with the city, telephoned to The Herald today and suggested other "talking points" that had been overlooked in the article published Saturday. It is the intention to follow Saturday's article with others from time to time, calling attention to Duluth's "talking points," and any suggestion along this line will be welcomed by The Herald.

Duluth's talking points have often been lost sight of, while critics have harped on disadvantages that they greatly overestimated. The critics who have no remedy to suggest have been numerous, while single minded criticism did not include an appreciation of advantages that other cities do not possess.

The Herald Saturday evening gave a clear statement of Duluth's "talking points," and instead of a "deadly parallel" in which Duluth is on the wrong end, drew a parallel that gave public spirited citizens boosting material from a new angle.

Civic organizations working for the real industrial and social betterment of the city have been hampered by critics without suggestions for remedies. People outside of the city have often been given wrong impressions. Visitors weren't given the kind of talk that makes friends for a city.

Many Duluth people have been given a new viewpoint. Workers in the organizations in Duluth were delighted with The Herald's article dealing with the situation. They say it will make their work easier and give informal boosters, who haven't take time to investigate conditions for themselves, something to work on.

Watson S. Moorse of the Duluth Board of Trade, wrote in to say "You made a home run when you published Duluth's talking points in Saturday's issue of The Herald. You could also add that we have, during the last ten years, reduced our general city debt (excepting the water and light department) after issuing $150,000 park bonds, though the city increased 49 per cent in population during the same period. No other city in the country has done that."

Whitney Wall, real estate dealer, declared that The Herald has taken a position every good citizen of Duluth should have. "Keep up the good work," he said. "Let us look around and see what Duluth has that other cities have not, and then tell the world about it. That's the kind of city-boosting that gets results."

LADIES AND BABIES.

Los Angeles Times: Comedian Cohan, at a supper in New York, told a story about a veteran actor.

"The old boy, at a certain banquet," he began, "was down for a toast on babies; but Mr. Roosevelt turned up at the last moment, so the babies' toast was naturally given to him, and the old fellow was shifted to a toast on the ladies instead.

"He spoke very well, and after he sat down a comedian said to his aged wife:

"'How well your husband acquitted himself!'

"But she, poor old dear, was very deaf. She hadn't heard a word of the toast.

"'What?' she said.

"'How well your husband spoke on the ladies!' bawled the comedian.

"'Oh, yes!' she said, and she added, unaware that the toast had been changed:

"'He's so fond of them! I've sometimes seen him with two or three on his knee at once.'

"'No!' said the comedian.

"'Yes, indeed,' continued the old lady. 'He simply can't resist them. Why, he never goes into the park without kissing every one he sees. And they realize what a soft spot he has in his heart for them. They'll come to him when they won't go near any one else!'"

A BATH OF SENTIMENTALITY.

Los Angeles Times: Of John Grier Hibben, the new president of Princeton, a Peoria man said the other day:

"Hibben has a very keen intellect. Hence I'm not surprised at his success. Why, his fine, strong mind, his hatred of sentimentality and gush, were remarkable even in his boyhood here in Peoria.

"I, as a boy, was rather a gusher myself. I once went to a matinee with Hibben. The play was one of Daly's—a sentimental piece—and in the second act I began to blubber. Miss Rehan spoke beautifully her silly, sentimental lines, and big tears flowed one after another from my eyes.

"'Why, you're crying!' whispered Hibben.

"'Well,' said I, 'in a play as sad as this I ain't ashamed to show a little feeling.'

"'Feeling?' Hibben looked at my wet and teary cheeks. 'Oh,' he said, 'feeling is all right, but you don't need to wash your face in it.'"

THE CURE.

Los Angeles Times: Miss Fay Templeton, at a supper at the Ritz-Carlton in New York given in honor of her return to the stage, praised the American business man.

"I have only one fault to find with him," she said. "He works too hard. Hence, of an evening, he is some times a little dull.

"But intelligent wives can soon cure their husbands of overworking. I know a wife—she and her good man are in Egypt now—who came down to dinner one night in a somber black robe.

"Her husband—a frightfully overworked millionaire—looked at her costume and exclaimed:

"'Why on earth, my love, are you wearing a dress like that? It's positively half-mourning.'

"'Of course it's half-mourning,' she replied. 'When you come home from the office, don't you always complain that you're half dead?'"

ONE WAY TO GET AUBURN HAIR.

Chicago Tribune: It has been found that the way to obtain auburn hair is to get a job in a soda ash manufactory. A new soda ash plant started abroad employs many men in the processes of changing the salt as it comes from the huge veins which underlie the locality. When these men went to work they wore hair that ranged from the light blond of the natives of Northern Europe to the dark and shiny locks that grow upon the heads of other races.

Gradually it was noted that the hair of the blond men was, assuming a golden tinge, and as time wore on the golden hue deepened until now the hair ranges through all the shades of red from a golden auburn to a fiery red. The change from the brown hair of some of the men to the reddish tinge appeared to be slower, while the black hair resisted longest, but now virtually every man who has worked in the plant more than a year can testify to the fact that his hair is red. Mustaches and beards have been affected the same way.

SUGAR A HEART STIMULANT.

Sugar has had its champions as well as its opponents. Its advocates have declared that, aside from its nourishing value, it carries with it a quick stimulation that is without perceptible reaction.

On the other side, say the Bakers Weekly, "we have had radical utterances connecting sugar with some of the most incurable of organic diseases. But an English physician recently contended that cane sugar is almost a specific in the treatment of certain diseases of the heart. Emphasis is laid upon cane sugar."

Dr. F. S. Locke of King's college, London, has kept the heart of a mammal beating for eighty to ninety hours after the death of the animal simply by keeping the heart muscles sprinkled with powdered cane sugar. These later experiments with cane sugar, especially with reference to dilation of the heart muscles, show that in numerous cases cures have been effected that are of three or four years standing.

NIGHT AND DAY FARMING.

Los Angeles Times: Farming at night is the innovation just introduced by E. W. Fowler, who lives twelve miles west of Lodi, Cal. Fowler has two crews of six men each and has been ploughing night and day.

Immense searchlights are attached to the ploughs and the laborers declare that they can see at night almost as well as during the day. An incongruous feature of the work is that when the night crew is eating breakfast at 6 o'clock at night, the day shift is eating supper from the same table. Fowler is planting 2,000 acres of barley and has resorted to the novel scheme of working twenty-four house a day in order that he may get the grain in before the heavy rains.

AN AMERICAN CAT.

Letter in the Spectator: A New York publishing firm whose premises occupy the sixth and seventh floors of one of the city's sykscrapers has two black cats which have been in its service for several years. These cats are usually domciled in the editorial department on the seventh floor, where they have many friends among the employes. Recently for certain reasons the cats were "degraded" to the printing department on the sixth floor. This treatment they naturally resented and the elder, graver and more resourceful of the two has hit upon the following ingenious expedient to regain his old haunts and friends. Every morning at 8 o'clock he waits at the gates of an ascending elevator and entering with the connivance of the operator is conveyed to the seventh floor, where he alights. The cat is somewhat "advanced in years" and moreover, being an American citizen, does not see the force of climbing a "stairway" when he can go up by the elevator.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

WOULD HELP FARMER BOY

Proposed Change in Time of Starting and Ending High School Term.

North Dakota High School Conference Believes Change Would Benefit.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—"Give the farmer boy a chance" was the slogan adopted by the North Dakota high school conference at the annual meeting held here.

This change, it is pointed out, will make it possible for the boy from the farm to make his high school work more complete. The records indicate that early in the spring, when farming operations commence, there is a falling off of attendance from the rural districts. During the first two or three weeks in the autumn the same condition prevails, the attendance from farming sections of boys of high school ag being light.

By continuing the work two weeks lyater in the spring, the boys who are compelled to drop out are given an opportunity of coming in again and finishing up with their classes at the examination. In the fall the farm work will be done and they can join classes at the regular time without the disadvantage of being behind.

Some Athletic Benefits.

Another argument in favor of later spring and summer sessions is found in the athletic advantages. To continue school two weeks longer would mean increased interest in interscholastic baseball and field and track meets. There probably would b a corresponding decrease in the football advantages, as the latter opening would delay work on the gridiron.

The state high school board laid down requirements for the agricultural high schools of the state, providing that agricultural tracts must all be in one piece; that teachers of domestic science, agriculture and manual training must be engaged, and also that certain standards of work shall be carried on. The agricultural schools are supported, in part, by the state.

In the annual declamation contest here, Miss Bertha Moe and Herbert Hanson, both of Churchs Ferry, were winners. The state debate was won by the Leeds team against Hatton. This is the second time Leeds has taken the honors.

CITE BANKER FOR CONTEMPT

Bowbells, N. D., Financier Alleged to Have Ignored Injunction.

Bowbells, N. D., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—A. C. Wiper, president of the First National bank, George H. Gjertsen, Wiper's attorney, and V. L. Lind, the constable who ejected Ed Emery from the Emery farm two weeks ago, have been served with a summons and complaint by Attorney L. J. Palda, Jr., asking that the defendants be punished for contempt of court. Attorney Palda alleges that they disobeyed a restraining order issued by Judge Leighton.

The trouble arose over the deeding of the Emery farm over to Wiper last winter. Wiper brought suit to eject Emery, and had Constable Lind eject Emery, his two children and housekeeper, together with all household effects. Attorney Palda arrived on the scene during the ejection, and it is alleged that he also was thrown bodily out of the buildings by Lind. Emery appealed to the district court for a stay bond which would entitle him to a stay of execution, and Palda states in his complaint that Judge Leighton had issued an order restraining Lind from serving the execution. Emery has been allowed to go back into the house until the case is settled.

GLADSTONE, MICH., TO ENTERTAIN FIREMEN.

Marquette, Mich., May 20.—Fire fighters of the north country are looking forward to a rousing time when they gather at Gladstone in reunion at the annual tournament of the Upper Peninsula Firemen's association July 31 and Aug. 1, 2 and 3. "Lumberjack Financier" Dies.

Mr. Shelley was a well-known character who figured in the early days of the city's history. He began as a boy as a lumberjack, picked out pine lands, and at the time of his death was said to be worth $100,000. Some years ago he became a member of a syndicate that backed many a friend who needed assistance. Mr. Shelley was born in St. Anthony, and lived his entire life there.

COMMISSION FORM IS AGAIN ATTACKED

Wisconsin Senator Starts Proceedings to Test Law in That State.

Oshkosh, Wis., May 20.—Scouting validity of the state law under which a score of Wisconsin cities are now being operated by the commission form of government, State Senator J. Elmer Lehr in the circuit court filed application for a writ of certiorari attacking primarily the commission form of the city of Appleton.

The action was taken in behalf of William Bloomer, a former city policeman of Appleton, who seeks to have held void the acts of the commission form—mayor, councilmen and board of fire and police commissioners who authorized Bloomer's dismissal from the service.

Basis of Assault.

Lehr cites the following reasons for attacking the law:

First—The law for commission form is unconstitutional because it is a delegation of legislative power to a city and under the Constitution the legislature only has such power.

Second—That it permits citizens of any city to repeal, modify and change their charter, all of which is prohibited by the Constitution.

The case is expected to be carried speedily before the supreme court.

SIBERIAN EXPEDITION.

Smithsonian Institute to Make Collection of Birds and Mammals.

Washington, May 20.—Through the liberality of a friend, the Smithsonian institution will be enabled to participate in a zoological expedition to the Altai Mountain region of the Siberia-Mongolian border, Central Asia, an exceedingly interesting territory, from which the National museum at present has no collections.

Ned Hollister, assistant curator, division of mammals, United States national museum, will represent the institution and make a general collection of the birds and mammals. He will have as a field assistant Conrad Kain of Vienna, Austria, a celebrated Alpine guide.

The party leaves New York, May 22, on the Mauretania, for London, from whence the field will be reached by way of St. Petersburg and the Siberian railway.

The scene of the survey and exploration, the Altai mountain region, is a particularly wild country and quite unsettled, although it is well stocked with game. These mountains are inhabited by the largest of the wild sheep, which, with the ibex, will form the principal big game animals sought by the party, but a complete and general collection of smaller mammals and birds will also be made.

At present it is the expectation of the party to remain in the field for four months hunting and collecting, returning to the United States about Oct. 1.

RAINY RIVER PEOPLE ARE GREATLY DISSATISFIED

Government's Failure to Provide Funds for Needed Road Building.

Plans for Heavy Work at the Foley Mine Hampered.

Mine Center, Ont., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The more progressive of the people in the Rainy River district are extremely dissatisfied over the government's attitude toward public improvements in this end of the province, particularly in the matter of road construction.

Several strong petitions were sent to the department of public works before the legislative assembly adjourned. Although the government appropriated $5,000,000 for public works, only a small percentage of it was definitely allotted to the Rainy River district.

The entire Mine Center region received but $500 and that was for a road not seriously required nor generally desired. The Glenorchy settlers were cut off without a cent and the blow fell especially hard on settlers and mining interests in the Shoal Lake region.

Last winter, there was indifference locally as to the welfare of certain portions of the Mine Center region and several local people refused to sign a petition for road improvements that would have made a number of mines accessible and brought freighting costs down to a reasonable basis. Now, however, all citizens, regardless of politics, personal interests and petty jealousies, are waking up and proposing to work harmoniously and as a unit for a just share of the government funds and an impartial expenditure of the same.

Petitions, letters and agitation are being used to influence the officials who have it within their power to give relief. Meetings are being held and plain language used. Many feel "stung" who never expected it from the present administration. The boards of trade in the Thunder Bay and Rainy River districts will hold a meeting in Fort Frances May 24 to consider ways and means for getting a proper and equitable share of the $5,000,000 set aside by the provincial government for public works. The railroads have made a special rate for the occasion and efforts will be put forth to make something drop loudly enough to be heard clear to Toronto.

Mine Plans Delayed.

"I am at a loss to account for the failure to receive liberal and general appropriations for road work tributary to Mine Centre," said John L. Morrison, president and general manager of the Foley mine, who was here last week. "My company had such confidence in the government's fairness and liberality that we did not deem it necessary to agitate and lobby after our wants were made known. We signed a petition with such men as Graham and Horne of Fort William, Col. Ray and A. L. Lougheed of Port Arthur, the several American companies having heavy holdings in the Shoal Lake region and others. Not one penny did we get for the Mine Centre-Shoal Lake road and, to date, not an Ontario official has replied to our questions asking why.

"Whether the situation is due to indifference, petty political rivalry or a mere oversight, I do not know. I do know, however, that as a result plans for heavy work at the Foley mine have been hampered and delayed. We hoped and expected to have that road put in proper condition for heavy hauling this season but, the way it looks now, we either will have to make improvements ourselves or put on a boat between Fort Frances and Shoal Lake. As we already have expended as much money as the government on the wagon road and had less benefit by far than the general public, we are inclined to the boat line. Of course this would mean a loss to Mine Centre business houses but we cannot help it, as much as we would regret it.

"The prospects are bright for a busy season at the Foley mine if we are not unduly hampered by local and outside influences. We are putting in a large vegetable garden. Timbers have been hewed for a new boat dock. There is a large quantity of cordwood which will be hauled to the boilers as soon as the company can conclude the purchase of a new team. A telephone line to connect with the Canadian Northern telegraph lines is planned. Considerable work will be done at clearing second growth from the location. Additions and improvements will be made to camp buildings. The powerhouse at the South shaft will be rebuilt and a new boiler installed. Work on several shafts will be started as quickly as possible after these preliminary improvements are finished.

"Much interest in this district is being aroused and I look for many visitors during the summer. Some will come for pleasure but many more to study the formations, minerals and general mining features of the region. It is surprising, the number of inquiries I have received the past sixty days.

"The main criticism I have to make is that entirely too many mine owners are waiting for some one else to spend money, make a showing, arouse interest, and bring the district into prominence and popularity."

The Elizabeth Mine.

In previous letters The Herald's correspondent has spoken of the Elizabeth mine close to Harold lake, near Atl-ko-kan, which was opened up by Alan Sullivan some years ago, but which failed to pay under his very liberal management.

Some months ago, A. McKinnon, said to be a Boston man, went to work there. He has rebuilt the camps and put the stamp mill in order. It is stated that milling is going on and that a very profitable gold saving is being made. Twenty men are being worked and demands are being made to the government for $1,000 for a wagon road to the property.

Charley Gehl has left the work at the Calm Lake mine, east of La Seine station, in the hands of a man from Pennsylvania and gone to Pine City, Minn., for the summer. Rheumatism and a desire for one season with his family are the cause of this change of base. The Calm Lake company has good camp buildings, a machinery plant that cost $3,500 and a shaft about 100 feet deep. A crosscut at a depth of about eighty feet has cut two veins and just reached a third one that shows great surface width.

The Dryden region is about the most active place in the entire district. A. H. Hutchison is finishing the installation of steam hoist at the Gold Moose mine. He has uncovered a vein ten feet wide on the surface. A shaft is down on another vein ninety-five feet and four feet of the quartz exposed, show sensational values in free gold.

Robert Hutchison has completed assessment work on lot 8 claim, owned by the Dryden Mining company and managed by E. G. Rognon. Under test-pitting a vein showing slightly on the surface has reached a width of five feet and samples pan richly in free gold.

The Redeemer Property.

Gus Larsen has made a fine discovery on the vein passing through the Redeemer property. Every inch of a five-foot vein pans gold freely and shows both galena and silver. Recent assays range from $50 to $200 a ton. Pannings made in an agglomerate rock outside of the vein also show gold values, something very unusual.

The Dryden Prospecting syndicate is being organized to develop mines in the Dryden area. Nearly all the leading citizens are heavy subscribers to the enterprise.

C. H. Rogers, manager for the Berwick-Moreing company, now exploring the Good Luck mine, has gone to Toronto on business. A. G. Ripley recently exhibited some rich rock from his Maggie Bee claim. A. R. Hutchinson is back from Chicago, where he went to consult with those interested in the Gold Moose.

Around Kenora, everyone is on the tip-toe of expectancy for this season. The outlook is better than for a dozen years and a much superior class of investors seeks properties in the Lake of the Woods region.

The Olympia mine produced bullion all winter under the management of George Vernon of St. Paul. There is a bright outlook for a busy season at the Ophir. A $3,000,000 corporation was organized last year to own and operate this mine. Judge Fishback of Chicago is heavily interested. A. J. Morton, local representative of the company, states that the shaft is down 160 feet and that drifting will start at the 200-foot level.

Charles Brent, president of the Canadian Homestake Gold Mining company, is making history at the old Scramble mine, about five miles northeast of Kenora. During the winter he repaired the shaft, installed machinery, brought electrical power to the mine, put up good camp buildings and got everything in condition for heavy, active operations. President Brent recently went to Buffalo to attend the annual meeting of the company and to visit his family. He is expected back here May 24 for a long and busy stay.

As previously reported, the Scramble mine will be operated by electricity. When development warrants, a milling plant of 500 tons daily capacity, employing a combined amalgamation and cyanidation process of ore treatment, will be installed and operated with electrical power costing but $12 per horse power per annum.

Recently, in doing assessment work on claims taken up on the extension of the old Scramble property, three parallel veins were uncovered. One was from two to six feet wide and samples taken along its course at intervals of 300 feet, panned gold freely. The two other veins were stripped for a length of 200 feet and both of them panned free gold. Mr. Brent states that this showing would warrant a price of $50,000 per forty-acre claim, if at Porcupine or based on Porcupine values.

WEATHER FOR THE WEEK

Washington, May 20.—Temperature near or above the normal will prevail in the Southern states and generally throughout the Western districts during the coming week, according to the weekly bulletin of the weather bureau.

"Cool weather will prevail," the bulletin continues, "the first half of the week in the northern states east of the Rocky mountains, but it will give way to warmer weather in this region about Wednesday. The weather over the country during the week will be generally fair, except that it will be unsettled with local showers and thunder storms the first half of the week in the northern states, as a result of the eastward movement of a disturbance that is now forming in the far west. No general storm area will cross the country during the week."

International Falls Makes Loan.

St. Paul, Minn., May 20.—Loans aggregating $199,985 were made by the state board of investment Saturday. The largest sum went to International Falls, where the school district asked for $125,000 for a new building. Several other loans of some magnitude were made to towns throughout the state for municipal improvements.

WHAT OTHER CITIES ARE DOING

Activities of Other Municipalities, Which Might or Might Not Be Copied in Duluth.

IN LINE with his policy of educating the people to the importance of fire prevention, Fire Marshall Hammonds is arranging for the systematic dissemination of information of that sort through the public schools of Oklahoma. Addresses will probably be made by the members of the fire marshal's force before the school children in the larger cities, and pamphlets will be prepared for the benefit of the teachers, to help them in instructing the children in regard to the elementary points of fire prevention, including the things to be avoided in keeping a fire from starting and what to do in case that a fire does get a start. He has the hearty cooperation of State Superintendent Wilson in that matter and expects to get his information into every school in the state just as speedily as possible.

Minnesota might benefit from the example of Oklahoma. Fires have caused untold havoc and destruction in the state, particularly in the northern end, much of which is covered by forests. Aided by pamphlets from the office of the state fire marshal the teachers of the public schools could be of invaluable aid in a campaign of education along the lines of fire prevention. Every home is in danger of fire and the knowledge is such as should be part of every person's education. One address on this subject was made to the high school pupils, but there has been no organized movement.

While the convention is in session, the tenth anniversary of the organization of the United German societies is to be celebrated.

S.S.S. NATURE'S PERFECT TONIC

Something more than an ordinary tonic is required to restore health to a weakened, run-down system; the medicine must possess blood-purifying properties as well, because the weakness and impurity of the circulation is responsible for the poor physical condition. The blood does not contain the necessary quantity of rich, red corpuscles, and is therefore a weak, watery stream which cannot afford sufficient nourishment to sustain the system in ordinary health. A poorly nourished body cannot resist disease, and this explains why so many persons are attacked by a spell of sickness when the use of a good tonic would have prevented the trouble. In S. S. S. will be found both blood-cleansing and tonic qualities combined. It builds up weak constitutions by removing all impurities and germs from the blood, thus supplying a certain means for restoring strength and invigorating the system. The healthful, vegetable ingredients of which S. S. S. is composed make it splendidly fitted to the needs of those systems which are delicate from any cause. It is Nature's Perfect Tonic, free from all harmful minerals, a safe and pleasant acting medicine for persons of every age. S. S. S. rids the body of that tired, worn-out feeling so common at this season, improves the appetite and digestion, tones up the stomach, acts with pleasing effects on the nervous system, and reinvigorates every portion of the body. Not Whether to Go to COLORADO But HOW to Get there!

That is the question. Everybody who can beg, borrow or steal the time for a vacation is going to Colorado this year. Old Pike's Peak is flashing her wireless to every city and home. People are dreaming of camping tents in deep ravines and quaint summer homes on the mountainside. Men and women, young and old, are going by the thousands this year. And they all want to know the best way to get there.

There are five routes to Colorado, but the oldest, surest, finest route is

UNION PACIFIC

The Hundred-Million-Dollar Road of Luxury

—the road on which your vacation starts when the train starts—the road that makes Colorado an overnight trip and brings it within the reach of every home. You have never thought of this before. Colorado has seemed so far away that only the fortunate people of leisure could go. Now the Union Pacific has brought it down to a trip between two suns. And, such a trip! Such dinners! Such beds! Such open carriages, where you sit out-of-doors in the cool shade and Nature unrolls for you such a daylight and moonlight film as was never shown in any theatre!

This wonderful road of heavy double tracks, of Automatic Electric Block Safety Signals and dustless Sherman gravel; and this train, with its reading-rooms like a club and its lounging parlors—this route on which a hundred million dollars have just been spent for your luxury—this certainly is the only way to go.

"WILL BE NO COMPROMISE"

Roosevelt Predicts He Will Be Nominated at Chicago.

Talks at Cambridge, Ohio, of Obligations of College Training.

Cambridge, Ohio, May 20.—Col. Roosevelt served notice today that he would resist any compromise at the Republican national convention.

"There can be no compromise,' he said at Cambridge. "Some of our opponents say that neither Mr. Taft nor I should be nominated. I'll name the compromise candidate. He will be me."

A crowd of several thousand persons, including the members of the Roosevelt club of Marietta college, greeted Col. Roosevelt.

Mr. Roosevelt was told that Prof. Perry of Marietta college, in a speech to the students last Friday, had urged the members of the Roosevelt club who planned to go to hear the colonel to get back to their desks as soon as possible after "the disturbance" was over.

Talked of College Man.

The colonel based his speech largely upon this incident.

"Unfortunately, in every college," he said, "you will find a certain proportion of men who, instead of realizing that a college education imposes upon the man who receives it an additional obligation, seem to feel as if it had given him immunity and who feel as if the intrusion by the people into their own government was a disturbance."

Col. Roosevelt smiled and the students cheered.

"The first necessity in any college education," the colonel went on, "is to learn the lesson that these students have learned; that they are a part of the whole community.

Some Who Were "Disturbed."

"To use the words used here in Marietta, we have 'disturbed' a great many people in the last three months.

"We've disturbed Mr. Lorimer in Illinois to the tune of 52 to 2; we've disturbed Mr. Penrose in Pennsylvania to the tune of 70 to 6. In the state of Washington the people insisted upon holding a popular primary, and the Taft people then barred out of the convention all delegates the people had elected on the ground that the people had no business to create a 'disturbance' and upset the work the politicians had done."

REHEARING ORDERED IN ALASKAN RATE CASE.

Washington, May 20.—In view of the decision of the United States supreme court that the railroads of Alaska are subject to the regulation of the interstate commerce commission, the commission today ordered a rehearing of the case of the Humboldt Steamship company, against the White Pass & Yukon Route and other Alaska transportation companies.

It was in this case the commission decided by a majority vote, that Alaska carriers were not within the jurisdiction of the body. Commissioner Clements and Lane dissented.

BRIGHT'S DISEASE

Let there be no evasion—we mean chronic and supposed incurable cases involving dropsy, albumen and casts. They are curable in many cases.

Let us cite a typical case—that of Mr. R. F. Nitscke, of 1246 Spaight Street, Madison, Wis. There had been eight physicians on this case and it got so extreme that he finally had one of the last symptoms; namely, failing eye-sight. In January, 1907, the doctors admitted that nothing further could be done, and they sent him to Eureka Springs, Arkansas. He continued to get worse, the dropsy finally reaching the stomach, heart and lungs. He stated that at one time the tests showed albumen as high as 75 per cent.

He learned of Fulton's Renal Compound and began to take it July 3rd. Dropsy began slowly to decline and the albumen dropped to forty, then to twenty, then to ten, and finally to two per cent in May, 1908.

He had returned to his employment at last advices.

Fire Destroys Pumphouse.

The Superior Shipbuilding company's pumping house at the end of the docks was practically destroyed by fire at midnight. The estimated loss is placed at $5,000, which is covered by insurance. A defective flue is given as the cause of the blaze.

Otto Wikelan, 38 years old, of 232 West Fourteenth street, is now in a serious condition as a result of an accident at the Allouez ore docks Saturday morning. Wikelan was run over by an ore train and the amputation of his legs above the knees was considered necessary yesterday by the attending physicians. The young man is in a weak condition from loss of blood.

WEAR OF TRAFFIC ON ROADS.

London Daily Mail: A machine that measures the wear caused by traffic upon public highways is among the scientific instruments on show at the exhibition of the Physical Society of London at the Imperial college of science, South Kensington.

In speaking about this machine an official of the road board referred to the wear on the various main roads of London. "Wood pavement," he said, "wears down one inch in about six years, except in places where the traffic is particularly intense. The asphalt pavement in the city wears down about half an inch in ten years. The ordinary country highway wears down two inches in from three to ten years, according to the amount of traffic.

HIS ONLY COMPLAINT.

Los Angeles Times: Senator Beveridge, at a luncheon in New York, was talking about the child-labor problem.

"Children are so plucky and so cheerful," he said, "we don't realize how horribly overworked they are till it's too late—till their bodies and minds are stunted irretrievably.

"I was once talking to a tiny errand boy at the height of the Christmas shopping season. He was working, I knew, seventeen hours a day. As he walked sturdily along with a mountain of parcels piled on his thin, narrow shoulders, I said to him:

"'Do you like your job?'

"'Yes, sir,' he said; 'I like it fine. Only——'

"Here he grinned up at me gaily from beneath his load.

"'Only I'm afraid I'm doing an automobile truck out of a job.'"

THE GREATER NEED.

Los Angeles Times: Miss Beatrice Herford, whose humor bids fair to eclipse her brother Oliver's, was talking at a tea at the Colony club in New York, about wedding presents.

"It's a great mistake," she said, "for us to give our friends wedding presents that are above their station and their means. This mistake was well brought home to me the other day in the exchange department of a big Broadway store.

"A pretty creature, a bride evidently, sidled up to the manager and said:

"'Do you exchange wedding presents?'

"'Certainly, madam, if they were bought here,' he replied.

"'Then,' she said, blushing a little, 'I'd like you, please, to take back a set of Russian leather automobile trunks. I'll take the amount out in canned goods from your delicatessen counter.'"

"I saw a want ad the other day that I intended to answer, but was prevented. Perhaps it may appear again today." Such a remark helps to explain why some ads ought to have more than one publication.

MINORITY HITS HINES

Makes Anti-Lorimer Report to the United States Senate.

Says the Illinois Legislative Record Reeks With Corruption.

Washington, May 20.—The minority of the Lorimer committee in the senate, in its conclusions, presented today, arraigned the course of Edward Hines during the grand jury investigation and during the committee investigation, and submitted the following resolution:

"Resolved, That corrupt methods and practices were employed in the election of William Lorimer to the senate of the United States from the state of Illinois, and that his election, therefore, was invalid."

"We believe the testimony of Clarence Funk and W. M. Burgess to be true," the report states. "This conclusion is strengthened by consideration of Edward Hines' action during the grand jury investigation, when he tried to get O'Brien and Cook out of the jurisdiction of the grand jury, and of his suspicious and questionable transactions during this investigation, and we believe that Hines was an accessory to the corruption which resulted in the election of Lorimer.

"Reeks With Corruption."

"Believing that the confessions of the members of the legislature, strengthened by corroborating circumstances and by other evidence relating to the members of the legislature who did not confess, establish conclusively not only that at least ten votes were purchased for the purpose of electing William Lorimer to the senate, but that the record reeks and teems with evidence of a general scheme of corruption, we have no hesitancy in stating that the investigation establishes beyond contradiction that the election of William Lorimer was obtained by corrupt means, and therefore was invalid.

NO LETTER FROM JUDGE HIMSELF

Mere Identifications Given in Testimony in Wall Paper Case.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 20.—No letter written by Judge Grenville M. Ingalsbee, secretary of the Imperial Wall Paper company of Glen Falls, N. Y., to W. D. Wilson, sales manager of the William Campbell Wall Paper company of Hackensack, N. J., was introduced as testimony in the trial of the eight wall paper manufacturers and jobbers for alleged conspiracy in restraint of trade here on May 17, as reported in an Associated Press dispatch of that date from this city. Judge Ingalsbee as witness only identified letters written by other officials of the company.

The letter which Judge Ingalsbee was erroneously reported to have written, requested Wilson to notify a 5 and 10-cent wallpaper concern that he could not sell it paper because of "manufacturing conditions."

STOP-LOSS ORDERS BREAK WHEAT PRICE.

Chicago, May 20.—Many stop-loss orders executed on a market bare of demand brought about a severe decline today in wheat. Crop and weather news was bearish, but the break appeared chiefly to be an aftermath of the selling flurry of last week.

July delivery of wheat sold as low $1.06, as compared with $1.08⅝ at the close Saturday night. Weakness nearly as great showed itself, too, in corn, oats and provisions.

DESTROYS WEEDS.

A machine which it is asserted will destroy weeds by fire and extinguish the flames and sparks immediately afterward to prevent fire from spreading is one of the recent inventions described in Good Roads. It uses crude oil which is driven by boiler pressure into a mixer, where it combines with steam at a heat sufficient to vaporize the oil.

From the mixer the oil and steam are conveyed through a tube to burners, combustion takes place, and the flames are driven down to the roots of the weeds with a steam pressure of 120 pounds. Practically any number of burners may be used.

By using a fine spray of oil it is possible to burn out subborn growths like salt grass and other stubborn weeds while they are green. By this method the gutters of residential streets, where the traffic is not heavy enough to keep down the weeds, may be kept clear.

The burner is covered with an apron of sheet steel, lined with fireproof material an inch thick, to localize the fire and prevent damage to fences, shrubbery, etc. After the flame has done its work it is extinguished by a fine spray of water forced over the ground.

A hand burner is recommended for clearing gutters. This is a small type, mounted on a cart with the tongue fastened to the rear of the machine in such a way that it can be guided along the line. It is claimed that twenty miles can be cleared in a day, and all seeds and roots destroyed.

NEGRO WHO KNEW FAMOUS MEN.

The death of David Hazelton, the veteran porter in the office of the president of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad in Baltimore, removes a familiar figure from the ranks of the old school of Maryland servants. Perhaps no other negro in this country was acquainted with so many prominent men of affairs, says the Railroad Man's Magazine.

David, who was over 70, was a native Baltimorean. While a boy he witnessed the Baltimore riot on April 19, 1861, and was ever fond of telling of the encounter with the Massachusetts soldiers.

He entered the service of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad in 1874 as a waiter at the Relay house, a few miles from Baltimore. Dining cars were not then known on American railroads.

He continued in this position for more than a year. Later he became the head waiter at the Deer Park hotel when the Baltimore & Ohio opened it in Western Maryland. It was President John W. Garrett who, about 1876, chose him as a private car porter. For more than thirty years he remained in charge of the official cars of the Baltimore & Ohio's presidents.

During that time David crossed the continent hundreds of times in charge of special parties and with officials of the railroad. He has ridden over practically every mile of railroad track in North America from the Isthmus of Panama to the northernmost lines in Canada. He was six feet tall and made a striking appearance in his uniform of royal blue trimmed in gold and cap slightly tilted.

On a trip with a party in which Commodore Vanderbilt was a guest, David's dinner was pronounced by the commodore the best meal he had ever eaten. David had charge of presidential parties from Gen. Grant down to McKinley and Roosevelt. Gen. Grant was numbered as one of his favorite guests. President Cleveland also frequently traveled with David. When he started on his honeymoon he made a special request that David be placed in charge of his car.

David retired a few years ago and became a messenger in the office of the Baltimore & Ohio's president. Visitors will recall David occupying a place just outside the suite of the chief executive of the road, his hat slightly tilted and humming a tune popular in Dixie.

The Woman Suffrage Association of France has increased its membership 50 per cent during the last twelve months.

Olives may be cheaper. At least, the prospects in Spain and Italy are of the best, as the weather has been ideal for crops.

DULUTH HAS EASY TIME

Grand Forks Is Beaten By Score of 11 to 2 in Final Game.

Hoffman Holds the Flickertails in Check While Local Hitters Swat.

In a way the playing of the Grand Forks team is showing improvement. Last Friday the team hurriedly gathered together was defeated by the White Sox by the score of 11 to 1; Saturday the Flickertails managed to score 5 to the 10 points batted in by the locals, and yesterday Lohr's tourists scored 2 while the Sox were making 11. With this percentage of improvement the Grand Forks aggregation may be playing some baseball by July.

The contest of yesterday was but little different in general from the two preceding. Menzel and Wasgatt were on the mound for the visitors and both were hit hard and often. Hoffman was the real laborer for the Sox and had not the least difficulty in holding the visitors in check.

Two singles and an out scored the first for the Sox in the first. A double, an error and sacrifice fly tied the count in the second. Two hits, an error and an infield out scored two more in the third. Six runs were scored in the fourth by five singles, a double, several errors, some stolen bases and some slow work upon the part of the visitors. An error, a sacrifice and an out at first produced one more run in the fifth and the last came in the seventh through a walk, wild pitch and an error. Grand Forks scored its second run in the sixth through two bunched singles.

Perhaps it is too soon to take snap judgment on the Flickertails. Lohr says his men are sore and stiff from lack of spring practice. Perhaps such a condition must be expected when a team is thrown into the field so hurriedly. But for the good of Grand Forks and the benefit of the rest of the league the manager of the Flickertails should be told to take his team out to the park in the morning and give them some practice in unity and harmony of action.

Dusty Rhoades had the goods yesterday, and Superior won the final game of the series from Winnipeg by the score of 3 to 2. The Superior twirler kept the hits of the enemy scattered, three of them being of the order of the scratch. The game was the best of the series and was exciting throughout.

BIG SCORES ARE MADE BY TEAMS

All Games in Duluth and Superior League Are One-Sided.

Three games were played in the Duluth and Superior league yesterday, the New Duluths defeating the Temcos by the score of 17 to 2; the Duluth Heights being defeated by the Jeffersons by the score of 13 to 1, and the Binghams winning from the Blue Bells by the score of 14 to 3.

The one-sided nature of all the games is ascribed to the fact that weather conditions were against good playing and also the fact that none of the teams have hit their stride as yet.

In the contest at New Duluth Parker and Preston were easy for the opposing hitters, while Underhill held the visitors to two measly blows. The New Duluth bunch also had but two misplays charged against it, while the visitors accumulated eight errors during the afternoon. Superior all-around playing won for the New Duluth team. The score by innings:
New Duluth ....3 1 0 1 4 5 0 3 x—17
Batteries—Underhill and Otto; Parker, Preston and Lathan.

In the contest at the Heights the Jeffersons had a walk away. Danielson was on the mound for the Jeffs, holding the hilltop boys to five scattered blows. On the other hand Schultz was found for fifteen hits. The East End aggregation showed better form in every department of the game. The score by innings:
Heights ..... 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 1—1
Jeffersons ..... 0 2 0 0 2 1 2 6 0—13
Batteries—Schultz and Harwood; Danielson and Baker.

The Binghams of Superior administered a crushing defeat to the Blue Bells of this city. McAndrews was the hill worker during the afternoon and the local team garnered but six hits from his assortment. Baugrande and Mulchay were the flingers for the defeated team and the offerings of both were taken kindly to by the Superior hitters. The Binghams played errorless baseball and the Blue Bells made eight miscues.

The score by innings:
Binghams ..... 0 0 8 0 4 0 0 2 x—14
Batteries—Baugrande, Mulchay and Liming; McAndrews and Murphy.

YALE SWAMPED BY HARVARD ATHLETES.

Cambridge, Mass., May 20.—Yale's varsity track team suffered at the hands of a well balanced Harvard aggregation Saturday, the worst defeat in the history of the dual track meets between the two colleges. In winning the odd meet of 21 contests, Harvard piled up a total of 71 points to Yale's 33. Except for the two-mile run in which Boyd of Harvard set up a new dual record of 9 minutes 45 seconds, the performances were mediocre.

The previous record for two miles was 9 minutes 46 4-5 seconds.

The expected great performances in pole vaulting did not materialize. Yale captured all three places, but Wagoner won at a height of only 12 feet 2 inches, and failed on three trials for a new world's record at 12 feet 11 5-8 inches.

Cable, the colored athlete of Harvard, was the individual star of the meet. After leaping 22 feet 10¾ inches to first place in the broad jump, Cable threw the 16-pound hammer 154.74 feet, more than seven feet beyond his nearest competitor.

Barrin of Harvard won a fast quarter mile race from Farrar of Yale, Harvard placed all three men in the half mile, Smith leading the bunch home.

Yale stated only two men to Harvard's six in the mile and again the Crimson captured all three places, with Warren in front in 4 minutes 29 seconds.

NEW BALL TEAM MAY REPRESENT DETROIT

If Strike Remains Unsettled, President Johnson Will Arrange for New Club.

Games Scheduled Are Called Off—Jennings to Manage New Team.

Philadelphia, May 20.—With the arrival here of Frank J. Navin, president of the Detroit club, further developments are expected today in the extraordinary baseball situation brought about by the strike of the American league team.

The game scheduled for today between Philadelphia and Detroit has been "postponed" by agreement and if there is no settlement the games scheduled between the Tigers and Washington, in the national capital will also be played at another time. If there is no settlement of the trouble today or tomorrow immediate steps will be taken, according to Mr. Johnson, to put a new team in the field to represent Detroit. The team, Johnson says, will be a good one but he declines to say from what source the players will be drawn. It is probable, however, at the special meeting of the American league, called for tomorrow in this city, each of the club owners will help Mr. Navin to put together a new team. Hugh Jennings, it is understood, has agreed to manage the new combination.

According to Johnson, all the Detroit players who refused to play ball last Saturday stand suspended.

Commenting upon the situation, Manager Mack said:

"We have no desire to take advantage of the unfortunate position of the owners of the Detroit club, brought about by circumstances which they could not control."

Johnson Meets Jennings.

Mr. Johnson arrived in Philadelphia from Cincinnati shortly after 3 o'clock yesterday and went into conference with Hugh Jennings, manager of the Detroit team. What occurred at the meeting was not made public, Mr. Johnson merely saying that he had had an extended talk with the manager. He said he would not discuss the matter further until the arrival of Frank M. Navin, president of the Detroit club.

During the afternoon, Mr. Johnson met and discussed the situation with Ben Shibe, president of the Philadelphia American league baseball club, and with Connie Mack, its manager.

The Detroit players held a meeting Sunday, and while no announcement was made, several of the players said that "they would stick together" and unless Cobb was reinstated, the players would not play today. The players insist that Cobb was fully justified in hitting the spectator. Unlike Saturday, the players were more guarded in their talk and were disinclined to discuss the matter for publication. In groups they took trolley rides about the city.

Joke Game Saturday.

Without a regular Detroit player on the team, a club representing that city in the American league was defeated by Philadelphia Saturday afternoon, 24 to 2. Manager Jennings' players went to the park, put on their uniforms, practiced a few minutes and then changed uniforms with a bunch of players gathered up by the former.

Nearly all the men put on the field by Jennings were amateurs, many being members of the St. Joseph college team. Sugden and McGuire, the former major league catchers, who scout for Detroit, were pressed into service behind the bat and at first base. Detroit's pitcher, Travers, could do little but float the ball up to the plate and the home players banged his delivery all over the field and ran bases recklessly. Collins led with five hits and four stolen bases.

Manager Mack started with his regular team except two substitute outfielders. He used three pitchers, Coombs, Brown and Pennock. The crowd of 20,000 persons took the affair as a joke. At the end of the third inning there was a rush by a couple of thousand bleacherites who demanded their money back. When this was refused, nearly all returned to their seats. There was no disorder at the end of the game.

ANTIPODES TO SEND SWIMMERS

New York, May 20.—While it is not likely that Australia will send more than three or four swimmers to the Olympic games, as they would be hopelessly outclassed in most of the events, the Viennese newspapers express the belief that Otto Sheff, O. Dernjan, F. Kellner and R. Kollner have a good chance to land in the awards.

This seems to outsiders rather an optimistic view to take of the situation, when past performances are considered. Still, with these days of rapid progress in aquatics, everything is possible, and it is unwise to be too skeptical. Sheff is undoubtedly a good man at 400 and 1,500 yards, and if he has improved of late, as claimed, he may accomplish the unexpected, for some time ago he negotiated 400 yards in 5.40 and a 110-foot pool, and one mile in 25.30 over a 110-yard course. At that, though, his prospects are not over bright.

Dernjan, on the other hand, appears to be a rather promising candidate for the two breast stroke races. At 200 meters he may only make a bid for a place, but at 400 meters he is credited with having done 6.45, and this time, if correct, should place him in line for the title.

Kollner may figure in the 100-meter back stroke race. He is thought to be able to swim the distance under 1.19, and such a performance would rank him with the leaders. As to Kollner, the fancy diver, he must have developed wonderfully to be in the running, and even European experts think his skill has been greatly overestimated. They don't concede him a look-in.

PROCTOR WINS FROM CLOTHIERS

The Big Duluths were defeated at Proctor yesterday as the result, they claim, of the worst umpiring that a Duluth team has run up against for several seasons. The umpire was so bad that some of the Proctor fans laughed at his weird decisions. The game was close throughout and exciting, with the home guard having the best of it, part of the credit for this going to the indicator holder.

In preparation for the opening of the Commercial league, three of the teams that will be in the league the present season, played games yesterday. The Northern Shoe company's team defeated the South Shore aggregation, the final score being 9 to 8. How pitched for the shoe men and Long was behind the bat. Carlson and Johnson were in the points for the railroaders. While the game was ragged, due to the fact that few of the players had been out before, there was some good playing shown during the afternoon.

The Board of Trade defeated the F. A. Patrick company by the score of 10 to 7. Bishoff and Hansen pitched for the winning team with Harwood behind the bat. Bowers did the flinging for the Patricks with C. Wooleben behind the mask and pad.

The Commercial league will start its season on June 8 and the games yesterday were in the nature of tryouts for the various players.

LIKENS TEDDY TO LOUIS XIV

Taft Attacks Colonel in Ohio Statement—Roosevelt Attacks Taft.

Cincinnati, Ohio, May 20.—In a most bitter and scathing denunciation of Col. Roosevelt, President Taft last night declared that the certainty of his defeat for the Republican presidential nomination must be a source of profound congratulation for all patriotic citizens, declared that his predecessor in the White House would wreck the party if he is not chosen by the Republican national convention, and compared Mr. Roosevelt to Louis XIV. of France, who said "the state, it is I."

Roosevelt Satisfied.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 20.—"I am entirely satisfied with the last week," said Col. Roosevelt in a statement Sunday. "I believe the people of Ohio are sound and will place Ohio behind Pennsylvania and Illinois in this line up of the people against the powers that prey."

Col. Roosevelt's statement was issued at Mentor, a suburb of Cleveland, where he spent the day with James R. Garfield, ex-secretary of the interior. In it he criticized President Taft sharply, saying that the president had claimed credit for the mining bureau. Col. Roosevelt asserted that this bureau was established by Mr. Garfield, with the assistance of a commission of engineers.

The commission rendered service of inestimable value, Col. Roosevelt continued, "and President Taft disbanded it under the dictation of Messrs. Cannon and Tawney, as he did the country life commission and various other commissions, yielding, as usual, to the bosses and heedless of the damage he did to the people. I had repeatedly recommended the bill, and it would never have been passed had we not actually established the bureau."

HIBBING PAVING JOB ATTRACTING

Contractors and Paving Concerns Are Striving for Work.

Hibbing, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—That the competition between contractors for the contract for paving the streets of Hibbing will be spirited is evidenced by the interest displayed by various contractors in Minnesota.

During the past week representatives of the Bloine company of Chicago, several St. Paul firms, the creosoted wood block manufacturers of Minneapolis, a vitrified brick concern, the Bitulithic company of Boston have been in the city looking over the specifications and sizing up the specifications.

Showing Their Work.

The bitulithic people are conducting quite an advertising campaign. A section of their pavement is prominently displayed in the window of a drug store and there has been quite a distribution of literature bearing on its merits. Bids will be opened by the council one week from tomorrow.

Few cases of the disease were found in this vicinity and those discovered were for the most part attenuated.

Two sisters of foreign parentage, attending the Washington and Jefferson schools here, showed symptoms of trachoma in the early stages when the experts examined them and they have been taken from the schools for observation.

This building will stand on a forty which is the property of the state and which is on the North side and nearly opposite the main entrance to Olcott park. Crews of men are working in many places along the line between Hibbing and Gilbert and the work is in all stages from the cutting of the brush to the finishing of grading making ready for the laying of ties and rails. The cars will pass through Virginia, going the whole distance across the city on Wyoming street, passing the new postoffice building, which is now being erected at the corner of Maple street and Wyoming avenue.

Cars Like Duluth's.

The cars to be used for the interurban service will be of the type of the newer cars used in Duluth. All the work that could be done during the winter and much which could be done better then than when the snow and frost have left, was done. WANT LAND PLATTED.

Believe Steel Corporation Opposes Virginia Annexation Scheme.

Virginia, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The first step of the Oliver Iron Mining company in its opposition to the plan of Virginia to annex a 1,280-acre tract east of the city limits was taken in the form of a notice that the court will be asked June 8 to vacate a plat which is a part of the property to be annexed. The Security Land & Exploration company makes the application for the vacation. It was expected the mining company would protest against the city acquiring this tract and it is believed the company seeks to have the plat vacated, thus removing the one thing that is an essential if the city may annex. Those who advocate annexation, say the mining company cannot, after the annexation petition has been filed, legally commence vacation proceedings.

CHANCES IN THE PHILIPPINES

Rare Opportunities Offered Americans in the Islands.

R. A. McGraht of Manila, an American business man, who is engaged in private business in the largest city of the American possessions, is a guest of the Spalding. Mr. McGrath has been in the Philippines since 1908 and believes they offer to the live American greater opportunity than any part of the United States.

"We have the greatest agricultural country in the world," said Mr. McGrath. "Rice is our greatest crop and the land is the best in the world for that purpose. More Americans are needed in the Philippines for the scientific study of the agricultural conditions of the country. There is greater opportunity to-day in the Philippines for the simple reason that there are few live Americans there taking advantage of the opportunity that is offered. I know of no place where the live man with a little capital is offered the exceptional opportunities that the islands give to him.

"The population of the Philippines is growing. Railroads at the present time penetrate to many parts of the country and there is a greater opportunity for the shipper and exporter. With the wonderful possibilities of the soil and the increase of the facilities for shipping, the Philippines are destined to become a very rich country."

ONE WEEK TO CLEAN CITY

Health Department Will Not Confine Activities to Single Day.

School Children Will Be Enlisted in War on Tin Cans.

Duluth is to have a cleaning week instead of the annual cleaning day.

The announcement was made this morning by Dr. E. W. Fahey, health commissioner. He believes that better results can be secured by spreading the time for putting premises into shape over six days instead of concentrating all efforts on a single day.

Duluth's cleaning week will commence next Monday morning and continue through Saturday, the last to mark the climax of the campaign which is expected to leave the city a "spotless town." It is expected that the matter will be taken up in the schools and explained to the children, as has been done in the past, with a special appeal to them to get out Saturday to make a final sweep of any ashes or rubbish heaps which may remain.

By taking an entire week the health department is also practically eliminating the weather. While it might rain or be cold and disagreeable on one day, it is hardly likely that the conditions would remain unfavorable for a solid week.

Thus far the weather has been too unsettled to warrant the hiring of extra sanitary inspectors or to name any time for a general municipal house cleaning. Recently there has been a great improvement and along with it the department has announced its cleaning plans.

At the end of next week the officials hope that every yard and every vacant lot will be in presentable shape, with all tin cans, old rubbish, loose paper and other refuse reposing on the city dump, out of sight of all eyes.

After the citizens have been given an opportunity to clean their premises the city will be thoroughly checked up by sanitary inspectors. Where it has been found that the provisions of the city ordinance have not been observed notices will be served upon the occupants or owners. Then another check will be made, and where the premises are found in the same condition, it is stated that legal steps will be taken to have the nuisances removed.

WANTS BETTER ROADS.

Mandan Automobile Club Starts on Such Camapign.

Mandan, N. D., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The good roads germ has taken life among the members of the Mandan Auto club and among the extensive improvements in the way of public highways to be taken up by that organization is the building of a two-mile river drive along the Heart river, the co-operation with all commercial clubs in the county for the improvement of roads and expenditure of the fund derived from the auto tax, the erection of guide posts for the direction of travelers and a general superintendency of all road work in that section.

EASTERN BUYERS ARE AFTER LUMBER.

Eastern buyers have been very active of late on the Duluth lumber market. Lumbermen declare that the demand is better than it has been for years. During the winter most of the supplies of low grade lumber at Duluth were sold out and now there is a good demand for the better grades. Some of the local manufacturing companies are of the opinion that all the lumber they produce will be sold this year before it is milled.

Sales were made during the past week by the Mullery-McDonald Lumber company amounting to 10,000,000 feet and during the first eighteen days of this month the sales came to 26,000,000 feet, which were sold for more than $500,000. All of this lumber will leave Duluth by water, and will be delivered at North Tonawanda, Buffalo, Detroit and Cleveland. Large sales have also been made of late by the Virginia & Rainy Lake company and Alger, Smith & Co.

"THE FEAST OF WEEKS"

Shabuoth Will Be Observed By Jews of Duluth Tuesday.

Special Services Will Be Held in Temple Emanuel.

Shabuoth, "The Feast of Weeks," also called "The Feast of the First Fruits," falls, according to the Jewish calendar, on the sixth of Sivan which will occur this year on the eve of May 21.

It's name is derived from the seven weeks which elapsed between the departure of the children of Israel from Egypt and their arrival at Mt. Sinai. Like its companion holiday, the Feast of Passover, it too, has both an agricultural and a historical aspect. This was the early harvest season when the first of the wheat, baked in two loaves of bread, was brought as an offering of gratitude, and as a token of man's dependence upon the goodness of God. Historically it goes back in memory to the promulgation of the Ten Commandments, when Israel accepted the new moral code and religious legislation, and was aroused for the first time to the consciousness of his new spiritual task and destiny. The Ten Commandments were the Magna Charta of religion. Having secured political freedom, Moses found it necessary to give his people religious freedom. The new nation must be buttressed upon religious obligation. They may be a kingdom, but they must be a kingdom of priests, a holy nation.

Shabuoth has gained a stronger and a more impressive hold today by entwining its symbolism about the impressionable child. "Confirmation" is the youth's feast of self-consecration. The Jews publicly affirm by this ceremonial that their children, the first ripe fruits of their religious schools, shall stand morally and religiously in the same enthusiastic and receptive attitude as did their fathers at the foot of Mount Sinai.

Shabuoth has a distinctly modern and indispensable appeal to the individual. It teaches, first of all, that religion, as a necessity of life, is the actuating motive and sanction of personal, social and national character. Secondly, it champions the cause of religious freedom as the most highly prized privilege and possession of the human race.

Special services in celebration of the Shabuoth festival will be held at the Temple Emanuel Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock. There will be a special musical program by the choir and a sermon by Rabbi Lefkovits.

GERMAN NOBLE KILLS HIMSELF

Found Dead in Chicago With Photograph of Woman in His Hand.

Chicago, May 20.—Henry Spruck von Armenthal, member of the German nobility and large land owner in Washington, Oregon and Idaho, shot and killed himself in his room at a downtown hotel Sunday. Hotel attaches who found the body, discovered a revolver in von Armenthal's right hand and a photograph of Mrs. Frances Rosenblatt, niece of the late Nelson Morris, millionaire packer, in the left.

Known as Henry Spruck.

Wenatchee, Wash., May 20.—Henry Spruck von Armenthal, who committed suicide in Chicago, is believed to have been a former resident of Wenatchee, where he was known as Henry Spruck. He left here three years ago after the death of his wife and was reported to have gone to California. He visited here three months ago to look after some business affairs.

HORSE THROWS PRESIDENT.

University Head Unable to "Sit" Missouri Animal.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 20.—President George E. Vincent of the University of Minnesota was thrown from his saddle at the close of the pageant at the country fair at the agricultural college Saturday. With Mrs. Vincent, he had participated in the pageant. At the close his horse, recently purchased from a Missouri breeder, became frightened, shied and threw the president from the saddle. Dr. Vincent, an experienced horseman, landed on his feet. He quieted the animal and a moment later was again in the saddle.

A CURE GAVE HIM AMBITION

Broken Down in Health and Spirit, Young Swanstrom Was Forced to Return Home.

Has Been Cured Since With Electro Medicine and Will Go to Alaska, Looking for Gold.

Imagine the persons depressed by diseases and weakness, downcast, hopeless, ill-natured, peevish, despondent, absent-minded, inattentive, unattractive. How can such a person hope to get on in the world? Everything is against him. They not only have not the energy to help themselves, but they repel people who may have it in their power to throw something in their way. Such has been the case with young Swanstrom from Winnipeg, who had been on his way to Alaska. He heard from one of his friends of the fortunes there are awaiting a good man in Alaska. "If you are not fortunate enough to locate a gold mine, there are always jobs waiting for a strong and healthy man which pay him from $20 to $25 a day," wrote Swanstrom's friend. Young Swanstrom had made up his mind to become a fortune hunter, but had had luck with his health and though doctored for a long time, he never improved much. The news of the Electro Medical Doctors and how they cure diseases the natural way, had appealed to him, and he came to Duluth and consulted the Doctors who had marvelous success in curing chronic diseases of men and women alike. It did not take long to improve this young lad's condition. When he came to the Doctors he had varicose veins and other troubles which reduced the hemoglobin of his blood to 80 per cent. The hemoglobin of the blood is always a barometer of a man's vitality. If that is low, like in this young man's case, the circulation will also be low and a man will feel fagged out, because of the lack of vitality, which is the crowning glory of real manhood and womanhood.

It has taken young Swanstrom several months to get back his health, and now he is a picture of health, at least he looks it, a tall, well-built six-footer. He says: "I feel as healthy now as I ever felt, and I am sure that I now can stand the hardships of the Arctic climate."

"Give us the men and women," said the examining doctor, "who are broken down in spirit, gloomy, despondent, unambitious or lacking confidence in themselves; let us place them under our treatment, and in three months' time we will have them world-beaters. A weak-hearted disposition is nothing but weak nerves and our treatment taken daily will overcome it in a few weeks.

"I heartily agree with President Eliot of Harvard university, who recently said in a lecture to students:

"'So far as I have seen, there is one indispensible foundation of life and health. A young man ought to be a clean, wholesome vigorous animal; that is the foundation of everything else, and I hope you will be in all things, nothing more.'"

Electro Medicine has proved to be the greatest remedy for weak men and women. People, who were run down with disease and couldn't get well anywhere else, have found their health in Duluth. The man and woman who earnestly desire to dig their way to success, but lack the necessary health, the vim and vigor of strong, healthy manhood and womanhood, those should consult the Electro Medical Doctors whose offices are at No. 26 West Superior street. They have cured others, they may cure you. The vital energy, which is the pride of manhood, is the birthright of every well-born man and woman.

Baking Helps

Learn to Regulate the Heat of Your Oven

By Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill, Editor of the Boston Cooking School Magazine

There is just one way to make your cakes rise high and keep an even surface. Have your oven moderate at first, until the cake is fully risen; then increase the heat, so as to brown it over quickly. Extreme heat stiffens the dough. If you stiffen the outside of the cake before the rising is complete, you stop the rising process. Then the leavening gas, forming inside, will bulge up the center, where the dough is still soft, and spoil the shape of the cake. 38

NOTE—Biscuits or other pastries made from stiff dough, that are cut into shapes for the oven, bake in a hot oven. This is because the cut surfaces of the dough do not sear over, but rather leave the pores open, allowing the leavening gas to escape and the heat to penetrate readily. Small ovens cool quickly; therefore they should be made several degrees hotter than a larger oven, and the less the door is opened the better. Do not attempt to bake bread and pastry together. Bread requires prolonged, moderate baking—pastry the reverse.

Have a strong underheat for baking powder preparations, especially pastry.

These are only a few of the many baking helps found in the K C Cook's Book—a copy of which may be secured by sending the colored certificate taken from a 25-cent can of K C Baking Powder to the JAQUES MFG. CO., Chicago.

BIG BREAK IN WHEAT

Heavy Slump Is Caused By Continued Reports of Good Weather.

Duluth Declines Nearly One Cent—Flaxseed Market Is Steady.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 20.—There was a decided break in wheat on the leading North American markets today. It was all due, apparently, to continued reports of fine growing weather. Today the bull forces were put to utter rout. Duluth May and July closed at a decline of ⅞c. This is remarkable in view of recent declines, from which it would seem that some reaction was about due. Duluth cash wheat closed ½c over May and July. Durum, rye and barley closed unchanged. Oats declined 1½c. Duluth May flax closed unchanged, but July lost ⅝c.

Wheat took another drop on the markets of North America this morning. This was due in large measure to continued receipts of excellent growing weather in almost all parts of this country and Canada. News from foreign countries was for the most part bearish. Liverpool wheat closed ¼@½d lower, the principal bearish factors being the report of larger world shipments and good European crop reports, particularly that of France. The American primary receipts were rather bullish, showing some falling off from what they were a year ago, and there was a large decrease reported in the American visible supply. But these bullish forces amounted to little in comparison with the roseate crop news that came from almost every part of the wheat regions of this country and British America. Duluth July wheat, which closed Saturday at $1.14 bid, opened today at the same figure asked and not long afterwards was selling at $1.13 asked.

Flaxseed Is Steady.

Changes in flaxseed on the Duluth market today amounted to little. There were reports current to the effect that a movement was on foot to make large shipments of high grade Canadian seed from Winnipeg and other parts of Western Canada upon the Duluth market, on account of the extremely high price of the May option. Those who held this opinion seemed, however, to take little stock in this story, for the price of the option did not decline. At noon today Duluth May flaxseed was unchanged at $2.28½, July was down ½c at $2.13½ asked. Winnipeg May was up ¼c at $1.93½ asked. Buenos Ayres May closed Saturday unchanged at $1.77½ and London Calcutta May and June closed today unchanged at $2.31⅝. There were nineteen cars of flaxseed on the track for inspection at Duluth. It is not likely, however, that any increase in the car receipts will help to bring down the May option, as the flaxseed must grade No. 1 in order to be used to make deliveries on that option, and very little of the American flaxseed that is now arriving grades so high.

FLAXSEED.

During the week ending last Saturday, flaxseed on the Duluth market cut up some queer capers. Duluth May, arguing very strong at the beginning of the week went still higher, while there were declines in the May option at Winnipeg, Buenos Ayres and London. On Thursday, Duluth May was 3c higher than on Monday. It would probably have gone still higher had the news not reached the Duluth market that a cargo of 120,000 bu of flaxseed from Port Arthur was headed for Duluth. It was, but this option was down 1c at the close on Saturday from the close of Thursday, but there was still a gain of 2c over Monday's close. At the same time, Winnipeg May had gone down more than 5c, Buenos Ayres more than 2c and London nearly 3c. What was the more remarkable was that Duluth July during the week showed a declining tendency like the May options on the other markets. Duluth July on Saturday closed 3c lower than on Monday.

Evidently Duluth May has a little boosting force behind it that is peculiarly its own. There has been quite a scarcity of No. 1 American flaxseed on the Duluth market, and the holders of the May option under the rules of the Duluth Board of Trade can and do refuse to accept delivery of No. 2 American, even at a discount. It is said that those who hold the May options are interested in keeping the price of Duluth May high in order that they may thus be able to get a better price for linseed oil.

When it was first heard that that cargo of Canadian flaxseed was headed for Duluth, many Duluth brokers wondered whether it was to be sold on the Duluth market. Some thought the cargo might contain a great deal of No. 1 northwestern flaxseed, which, when mixed with the No. 2 American or with the No. 1 Manitoba, in proper proportions will make a mixture that grades No. 1 American. If this should be done, the corner in Duluth May might readily be broken, but it developed that the cargo was consigned to Minneapolis. The Minneapolis crushers have found the American price of cash flaxseed, boosted by the strength of the May option at Duluth, too high, and they have accordingly done some large purchasing at Winnipeg of the flaxseed that is in store at Port Arthur. It is not surprising that they have preferred to buy the Canadian product, when they could get it 3c a bu cheaper. The duty is 25c and the cost of transportation from Port Arthur to Minneapolis is about offset by the rebate that is paid by the American government for the export of the cake, amounting to about 7c a bu. Thus the crushers, by buying at Winnipeg, instead of Duluth or Minneapolis, have been able to make a saving of about 10c on every bushel. Still the Duluth price keeps up. It is what many of the Duluth brokers call a "boot-strap market." Crushers do not care to beat down the price at Duluth, when they can get all the flaxseed they want at a low price by buying at Winnipeg.

It is still easy to keep up the price of May flaxseed at Duluth by manipulation, for the receipts from the country are small, and are rather decreasing than increasing. Moreover, the quality of the flaxseed from the country is not such as to grade high enough for delivery on the May option, as long as the holders insist on having American No. 1. Hence, the holders of the May option have been able to control the price.

Duluth July flaxseed seems to have been following the natural laws of trade, declining and rising together with the other markets. It may be that the crushers who are buying Duluth May feel that by the time July deliveries become due, there will be enough high grade Canadian flaxseed at Duluth to make plenty of American No 1 to satisfy the option. Certainly conditions are such that it ought to be a paying proposition to ship No. 1 northwestern from Port Arthur to be sold on the Duluth market.

Grain men are now inclined to believe that unless there is a great and totally unlooked for crop calamity in some important wheat-growing country this year that at the end of the year there will be plenty of that grain for the world's requirements and a good surplus besides. It is thought that the world at large will have a substantial surplus in sight at the end of the coming American harvests. This will, of course, mean a price readjustment.

It now seems to be generally believed that the damage to the growing crop in the soft winter wheat states had a much greater effect in the way of bulling the markets than was really justified by the facts. Chicago led in this sensational bulge. Many grain dealers now declare that if this damage had not occurred so near to Chicago, but a few hundred miles farther away, there would never have been any such a sensational rise in the price of Chicago wheat, or anything like it. It is now generally believed that the splendid condition of the crop in the hard winter wheat states will more than offset this damage, to say nothing of the fine prospects for a big crop in the spring wheat region.

W. C. Mitchell, of the Randall, Gee & Mitchell company, who spent two days at Winnipeg during the latter part of last week, remarked today that all the talk that he heard there from the grain brokers in regard to the Canadian crop prospects was optimistic. "Most of them declare," he said, "that the weather conditions and general prospects could not be better if they had had the privilege of making them. I do not believe there will be any great increase in the wheat acreage, on account of the fact that very little fall plowing was done, owing to the early setting in of the winter. But, there will probably be a vast increase in the acreage of other grains, which do not need to be planted as early as wheat, particularly rye, barley and flax. It is generally believed that Western Canada will raise more grain in the aggregate this year than ever before."

The French official report gives the acreage of winter wheat at 15,753,000 acres and spring wheat at 418,000 acres. This compares with winter wheat last year at 15,515,000 acres and spring wheat at 612,000 acres. Condition of winter wheat, May 1, 1912, 75 per cent; May 1, 1911, 69.9; spring wheat, May 1, 1912, 78; May 1, 1911, 69.9; oats, May 1, 1912, 74; May 1, 1911, 76. There is a fine acreage planted to oats.

An official report for the United Provinces of India places the wheat crop at 107,200,000 bu, showing a small decrease from last year, whereas an increase of 10 per cent was expected. Last year the wheat crop was officially placed at 107,670,000 bu.

CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Turns Weak on Extreme Scarcity of Buying Orders.

Chicago, May 20.—There was an extreme scarcity of buying orders in the wheat pit today, and the market turned very weak. Free selling resulted from the influence of large world shipments and because of a French official report showing winter wheat acreage larger than last year with a condition materially improved. Warmer temperatures in the United States tended also to favor the bear side. The opening was ¼c to ⅜c lower. July started at $1.08¾ to $1.08¾, the same change from Saturday night as the market taken altogether. A decline to $1.07 followed, and then a rally to $1.07⅜.

Execution of numerous stop-loss orders led to a further break. Subsequently a big decrease in the United States visible supply total rallied prices somewhat. The close was easy, with July 1¼c net lower at $1.07⅛.

Moderate offerings on the part of cash houses and commission concerns proved sufficient to knock out support from under corn. Good weather for planting and growth counted against the bulls. July opened unchanged to ⅛c up at 74⅝c to 74⅞c, dropped to 73¾c and recovered to 73¾@73⅞c.

Scantiness of buying resulted in additional setbacks. Later there was an upturn when wheat began to recover. The close was steady at 73¾c for July, a net loss of ⅞c.

Renewed unloading by owners of oats incited the bears to become aggressive regarding that cereal. The fine crop outlook was a reason for discouragement to holders. July started ⅝c to 1c down at 48⅜c to 49c and sank to 45¾c.

Heavy receipts of hogs and the weakness of grain put much pressure on the trade in provisions. Initial transactions ranged from 2½c to 15c lower, with September delivery $18.42½ to $18.47½; for pork, $10.85 to $10.87½ for lard, and $10.40 for ribs.

DECLINES IN STOCKS

Prices Drop to Lowest Point of Day in Last Hour.

Rise in Rubber Attended By Rumors of Increased Dividend.

New York, May 20.—Termination of the anthracite coal strike was reflected in the strength of Lehigh Valley and Reading at the opening of today's stock market. The former advanced 1⅝ and the later 1⅜. Some strength was shown by United States Steel, Canadian Pacific, Illinois Central, Great Northern ore certificates and some of the minor specialties.

Lehigh Valley, after advancing over 2 points, fell back with Reading. A more uneven tone was displayed generally, except in the specialties.

Irregularity of the first hour became marked later, Lehigh Valley yielding more of its gain and Reading selling under Saturday's close, as did United States Steel, Amalgamated Copper, Smelting and other market leaders. Harriman shares were relatively firm.

Manipulative tactics in specialties were continued, Rubber common rising 4 points, with material gains in such speculative stocks as Texas Company, Colorado Fuel, International Harvester, Sears Roebuck and American Car & Foundry. The rise in rubber was attended by rumors of an increased dividend. Canadian Pacific fell over a point and Northern Pacific 1 point. Bonds were easy.

The market closed heavy. Prices yielded to the lowest of the day in the last hour, Lehigh Valley losing all its gain and other standard stocks selling under Saturday's close.

AMBITION NEEDED IN CHURCH WORK

Rev. J. A. McGaughey Preaches on Paul's Approach to Rome.

Rev. J. A. McGaughey of the Second Presbyterian church, 1515 West Superior street, preached on "Nearing Rome" at the regular services last evening. Mr. McGaughey used Paul's entrance into Rome as an illustration of the position the Christian missionary holds today.

"Paul, the greatest man in all the world," said Mr. McGaughey, "while standing before Rome, is seized with the desire to take the whole world for Jesus Christ. Rome, the city full of opportunities, gave Paul this remarkable ambition. Oh, for something of the imperial ambition of a Paul today in our church work."

The sermon was an appeal to the church for better church workers and more sincere effort on the part of the members to aid and help the church at all times. Mr. McGaughey said this morning that the sermon was a preparatory move in the coming every-member canvas for all church benevolences. A mission committee has been appointed and the church will follow out the work suggested by the missionary committee of the Men and Religion Forward movement.

BY-PRODUCTS OF THE CHURCH

Rev. Silloway Preaches on Incidental Activities in Church Work.

Everything in missionary work today, the underlying principles of the fraternal organizations throughout the world, the freedom of slaves, labor movements and the Chinese republic are the by-products of the church, according to Rev. George E. Silloway of the Grace M. E. church, Twenty-second avenue west and Third street, in his sermon on "The By-Products of the Church" yesterday morning.

Rev. Silloway said in part:

"During the trial in which the government was prosecuting one of the large business organizations of this country, the testimony was brought out that the concern, whose profits amounted to millions yearly, made 97 per cent of its profits on its by-products and only 3 per cent on its principle output. In the history of the Christian church no small part of its accomplishments have been in the nature of "by-products," or results that have come incidentally to its main purpose, and not as the result of direct aim.

"When the Pilgrim fathers came to New England their whole aim was to settle some place where they could worship God according to the dictates of their consciences. But that was the least of the benefits to humanity that accrued from the settlement of the Puritans on these shores. The influence of the Puritan spirit and the deep religious motives that characterized the first settlers in the new world have had an inestimable influence on all subsequent history in the United States."

"The underlying principles of fraternal organizations are traceable to the church and the teachings of Christ. If anyone questions the credit of the church in such affairs he has only to look for some such movements or ideals that have ever originated outside of the pale of the Christian religion. These and all the good they accomplish for mankind are the by-products of the church of Christ.

"A clear illustration of the incidental benefits that come from the gospel message is found in the recent developments in China.

"It was only a little over a half century ago that missionaries were first admitted to China. Up to that time, for nearly 4,000 years China had been making no progress. She was the same at the end of the forty centuries that she was at the beginning. But soon the Christian missionaries came with the message of the cross of Christ.

"During the last half century the Chinese people made more progress in civic matters than during the preceding forty centuries. And just this last week a prominent citizen of China said that the Chinese republic, the institution of which has been one of the most notable events of the century, owes the possibility of its existence to the enlightenment that has come to that country through the work of the Christian missionaries."

ONLY ONE-THIRD HAVE PAID TAX

Owners of Vehicles Are Slow in Taking Out Licenses.

But one-third of the people who possess vehicles of various kinds have paid their wheelage taxes up to date, according to Edward Whalen, special detective who has charge of the collections.

The records at the office of the city clerk show that less than 500 tags have been issued, and in many instances several of these have gone to single persons who have more than one rig.

At the end of the present month Officer Whalen states that he will begin a systematic campaign to check up the vehicles in the city which are being used in violation of the provisions of the ordinance. The same thing had to be done a year ago, and substantial fines were assessed against the delinquents. In addition to the fines they were obliged to pay the amounts which they owed the city.

SUES DULUTH CREDIT MEN.

Brose of Virginia Charges Mismanagement of Business.

Virginia, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Brose Mercantile company at Hibbing has filed suit against the Duluth Jobbers' Credit bureau, N. S. Mitchell, secretary and manager, and W. B. Cross, treasurer, claiming $20,000 damages. The plaintiff is insolvent and the defendant took over the business under a trust deed. It is claimed there was mismanagement and that the defendant represented only part of the creditors and sold goods and property worth $20,000. The plaintiff wants the defendant enjoined from paying out funds and wants an accounting, and asks that the trust deed be annulled, alleging breach of contract. They want damages on account of alleged misrepresentation.

PORTLAND MAN IS BOOSTER FOR DULUTH.

A. R. Porter, formerly of this city, who is at the present time a contractor in Portland, Or., is a guest of the Spalding today. While a booster for Portland, Mr. Porter had a good word to say of Duluth.

"Duluth is one of the best cities in the country," said Mr. Porter. "Its growth is assured and is coming fast. I have always been a booster for this city. Portland's growth was very rapid, and the same has been true of a number of cities on the coast. Duluth's big growth, in my opinion, is not very far ahead, and when it does start I am inclined to believe that it will be very rapid."

IRON AND STEEL REVIEW

New York, May 20.—The railroads were more conservative in placing contracts for equipment last week and fewer large ones for finished steel products came from manufacturers. It is estimated, however, that the steel mills booked additional contracts for 300,000 tons, half of which was derived from railroad purchasers, including 85,000 tons of rails, 10,000 tons for bridge work and 50,000 tons for rolling stock and motive power.

The principal rail contracts were given by the New York, New Haven & Hartford, Seaboard Air Line, Atlantic Coat Line, and by railroads in Brazil and Cuba. Inquiries still pending aggregate 175,000 tons, including the Pacific Coat lines, Missouri Pacific and Illinois Central. The largest car orders came from the Seaboard Air Line, the Burlington, the Great Northern and the American Refrigerator & Transit company, and the principal locomotive orders from the Burlington and New Haven.

Numerous small orders were placed for steel buildings and manufacturing plant extensions in all sections of the country, but there was an absence of any large single contracts. Steel specifications on contracts were heavy. The United States Steel corporation purchased 10,000 tons more of billets on the open market and automobile and hardware manufacturers secured 9,000 tons from the Eastern districts. Prices on warehouse jobbers on bars and shapes, were advanced $1 per ton in the New York, Chicago and Pittsburg districts and the American Steel & Tin Plate company, advanced tin plate 10 cents per base box or $2 per ton to $3.50 per box.

The buying movement in pig iron is over temporarily, contracts aggregating only 100,000 tons in all districts, incuding 45,000 tons for pipe works, secured from Alabama furnaces.

INSPECTION OF BRIDGES

City Engineer Reports on Repairs That Are Necessary.

Concrete Structures Are All Found in Excellent Shape.

The engineering department has completed its annual inspection of the bridges of the city.

The report contains many comments on bridges which have been made before. Some of them are so far decayed as to be unsafe for traffic; others have rotten pilings; others need only minor repairs, such as new planking or walks and scraping and painting.

The reports on the wooden bridges again emphasize the advantages of permanent construction along this line.

Concrete bridges, steel bridges, or concrete culverts and fills are generally found to be in excellent shape. Not only are they not subject to deterioration from the elements, but the cost of maintaining them is small. While the first cost is greater they are considered more economical than the wooden bridges. There are many of the latter in the city which will soon have to be torn down and replaced.

The pilings under a number of bridges on Oneota street are reported in bad shape, except under the street car tracks, where the old pilings have been replaced. Many of the bridges along Grand avenue and in the vicinity of New Duluth are not in good condition. Two on the Howard and Gneson road are deemed safe for light traffic only, while it is recommended that two on the Hermantown road be closed to traffic. Similar reports have been made on other bridges scattered throughout the city.

The report was submitted to the board of public works this morning by the engineer. The board will not take any action upon it until a later meeting. It is expected that repairs will be made upon the bridges which get much use. In some intsances but one-half of the bridge has been fixed up, while the other half has been closed to traffic. The same may be done this season.

DR. CURTIS IN DULUTH

Busy Program Mapped Out for Head of Playground Movement.

Will Spend Six Days in His Campaign in This City.

Dr. Henry S. Curtis of New York will open his six days' campaign to stimulate interest in the playgrounds movement in Duluth with two meetings this evening.

At 6 o'clock he will attend a meeting of prominent business and professional men and others at the Y. M. C. A. They will form a city health league and will listen to an address by Dr. Curtis. Playgrounds are deemed one of the principal adjuncts of a city in the interests of good health.

Later in the evening he will attend a meeting of the city council, where he will discuss playgrounds and breathing spots.

Duluth has already made an excellent beginning in the way of providing playgrounds. Under the direction of the park board and the playgrounds association, playgrounds have been started in all parts of the city, from the far western to the eastern suburbs. Practically all of them are convenient to various public schools and they are frequented by thousands of children. But it is felt that not only are more playgrounds needed, but that those already established should have more equipment and more supervision. At only a few of the playgrounds, and then only for a portion of the summer, has it been found possible to have the services of supervisors to teach the children how to play. This is considered one of the most essential features of the playgrounds movement.

Dr. Curtis spent the day conferring with various city officials and others who have interested themselves in playgrounds in the city. He has been getting all possible information relative to the local situation in order that he may be of the greatest possible assistance. With his wide experience the visit of Dr. Curtis promises to be of much benefit to the movement in Duluth. A busy program has been mapped out for him and it has been arranged so that he will be able to meet or talk to the greatest possible number of people. Before he leaves he will have addressed meetings in every part of the city.

Dr. Curtis will address a meeting of the central council of the Associated Charities tomorrow afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. auditorium, Third avenue west and Second street. The meeting will be called at 2:30 o'clock.

The visitor is said to have an interesting and practical talk in store for those who are interested in the subjects of playgrounds and recreation centers. Dr. Curtis will be prepared to answer questions on any phase of it which might concern the playground movement in Duluth.

The meeting is open to the general public and the central council of the Associated Charities extends an invitation to all who may be interested in playgrounds for Duluth to attend.

EXODUS FROM DEPARTMENT

Six Employes of City Engineer's Office Have Resigned.

Since the new administration took charge there has been a general exodus from the office of the city engineer.

Bert Farrell, who has been with the department the last twenty years, has sent in his resignation to take effect the first of next month. William E. Hawley, who was first assistant under the former administration, has taken a similar action. Ed Johnson, who has been sidewalk inspector the last few years, has also sent in a resignation to take effect next week.

Some weeks ago three other men in the office turned in their resignations. They were Walter Johnson, who was with the department many years; Chris Brian and Herbert Tischer. All of them state that they are going into business for themselves or have had better positions offered them with other firms.

Several new men have been employed by the department, but despite this City Engineer Wilson states that the depature of the men will cripple the department for a time at least.

LET A WANT AD NEGOTIATE A TRADE FOR YOU---OF SOMETHING YOU DON'T NEED FOR SOMETHING YOU DO

SENTIMENT OR BUSINESS?

ON WHICH BASIS DO YOU BUY ADVERTISING SPACE?

Some men buy advertising space in a paper because the paper tells them that "it deserves their support," not because the space will produce results.

Then they charge the amount up to their advertising appropriation.

An advertising appropriation is the seed of the modern business, properly sown and cultivated it will multiply a hundred fold.

So that each cent taken from the advertising appropriation robs the advertiser not of one cent, but of a potential dollar.

Be charitable, not with the seed, but out of the abundance of the harvest! Next time a paper approaches you with an appeal for your "support"—subscribe for the paper out of your private purse if you like, and have it sent to a friend, but don't buy alleged "advertising" space and deduct the cost from the amount you can afford to spend in real advertising.

Business and sentiment are oil and water—they won't mix. The heavy-lidded poppies luxuriate over the business-graves of hundreds who have refused to accept this truism.

And remember—every time you "buy" 10 cents worth of space in a worthless advertising medium, you are throwing nine dollars and ninety cents into the lake.

That isn't even charity—it's just foolishness!

REVOLT OF NEGROES IN CUBA MAY RESULT IN SERIOUS TROUBLE

Provinces of Santa Clara and Oriente Scene of Greatest Difficulty.

Government at Havana Minimizes Affair, But Calls Out Troops.

Great Unrest and Apprehension Reported at Santiago.

Havana, Cuba, May 21.—Gen. Evaristo Esteno, one of the Liberal leaders, and Gen. Ivonet are directing the movements of negro insurgents in the province of Oriente, where the situation has become most serious, according to dispatches received by the government today.

A strong band of negroes assaulted the barracks of the rural guards at Maguito, near Guantanamo, but the rural guards were able to offer a successful defense, although they lost two killed.

Apparently the trouble is confined to the provinces of Santa Clara and Oriente. The province of Matauzas and the district of Cimagney in the province of Puerto Principe remain quiet, while two small bands in the province of Havana and Pinar Del Rio have been dispersed by the troops and Col. Az-

LANDIS UPHOLDS TRAFFIC BOARD

Makes Decision as to Rate Agreement Between Railways and Steamships.

Chicago, May 21.—United States District Judge Landis upheld the interstate commerce commission today in the dispute between the Michigan, Indiana & Illinois line and the Ludington Transportation company, steamship companies and twenty-five railroad lines.

Judge Landis also refused to grant a permanent injunction restraining the severing of the tariff agreement, and dissolved the temporary injunction granted when the steamship companies appealed to the court.

The United States circuit court of appeals will be asked to review the order entered today.

The litigation is the outgrowth of a controversy over transportation rates on salt carried by the steamship lines. Criminal prosecution of the steamship and railroad companies because of the traffic agreement frowned on by the interstate commerce commission has been threatened.

Judge Landis held that the interstate commerce commission was not bound to issue an order, but that an expression of its opinion on rate matters was amply within its powers.

GERMAN POLICE KILL BANDITS

Pair Who Start Terrorizing Tactics at Nauen Are Run Down.

Nauen, Germany, May 21.—The example of the Apaches who recently terrorized Paris and its environs has been followed by criminals here. Two of them, detected last night while committing burglaries, dashed to their bicycles, which had been left outside the house. On the way they were confronted by a policeman whom they shot dead.

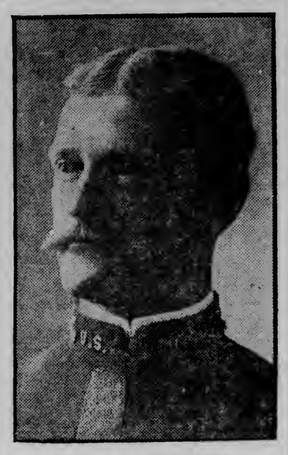
They then rode rapidly away, but pursuers wounded one of them. His comrade then deliberately killed the wounded man to prevent his capture and possible betrayal. The surviving burglar continued the battle against some hundreds of armed police and countrymen until he was finally shot dead.

OLBRICH MAY BE THE NOMINATOR

Likely to Be Chosen to Present La Follette's Name at Chicago.

Madison, Wis., May 21.—Michael B. Olbrich of this city, delegate from the Third congressional district of Wisconsin to the Republican national convention, will undoubtedly be chosen to nominate Senator La Follette as the Republican candidate for president. The only other name that has been suggested in the La Follette camp to present the senator's name is Henry F. Cochems of Milwaukee. Inasmuch as Cochems named La Follette four years ago, it is generally believed here that Olbrich will be selected this time. Walter L. Houser, La Follette's campaign manager, said that no name had yet been decided upon. He admitted, however, that either Olbrich or Cochems would be acceptable.

MAY BECOME HEAD OF WEST POINT ACADEMY



GEN. J. J. PERSHING.

Washington, May 21.—Gen. J. J. Pershing, now stationed in the Philippines, is being pushed as a candidate for superintendent at West Point to succeed Gen. Barry. Gen. Pershing is the officer who was jumped over the heads of captains, majors, lieutenant-colonels and colonels by Roosevelt to make him brigadier-general in 1906. The act was associated in the public mind with the fact that Pershing had married a daughter of Senator Warren, then at the head of the committee on military affairs. He is now fourth on the list of brigadier generals. If he is not chosen, it is said the appointment will go to Gen. A. L. Mills, who held the place before.

LACK 2,000 PREACHERS

Presbyterians Will Seek Young Men Fitted for Ministry.

Casting Aside of Old Workers Blamed for Present Conditions.

Louisville, Ky., May 21.—After the surprising declaration that there are 2,000 churches in the United States "pastorless and shepherdless" had been made in the general assembly of the Northern Presbyterian church today, resolutions were adopted urging that all Presbyterian commissioners (laymen) keep in close touch with young men who might be candidates for the ministry.

Rev. Joseph W. Cochrane of Philadelphia, discussing a minister's "living chances," said:

"We hear advices that a man to be a minister must starve. I never knew that to be true. I will admit the salaries are not princely, but it can't be remedied except by this very assembly."

Casting Aside Old Men.

Immediately Rev. Dr. Henry J. Becker of Dayton, Ohio, interrupted—"Hundreds of grayhaired men of the ministry annually are dismissed or cast aside. Men of brains, education and good records are eliminated for no other reason than that they are 'too old.'"

To this Dr. Becker attributed the gradual decline of successful candidates for the ministry. The young men need the advice and counsel of their elders, but now there are too few elders. The general assembly today proceeded with consideration of a report on a new intermediate catechism and a mass of other technical tasks.

Pensions or annuities up to $500 for every disabled minister of the Presbyterian church in the United States, corresponding in amount to the beneficiary term of service, are the objectives of an action taken yesterday by the general assembly. This action was the combination, in a body of twelve men, of powers and duties heretofore exercised by the board of relief and the committee on ministerial sustenance fund, the latter being in part an insurance plan.

Working on Catechism.

The assembly, when adjournment was taken, was in the midst of consideration of the report of a special committee which has been working for four years on an intermediate catechism.

A genuine awakening of interest in the call to the ministry is shown in reports from colleges and universities, according to the report of the board of education, presented through the committee on education. The board is maintaining religious work at fifteen state universities.

IOWA EPISCOPALIANS TO JOIN FEDERATION.

Davenport, Iowa, May 21.—The Protestant Episcopal church of the diocese of Iowa will join the inter-church federation which will include seven denominations in the state. The convention's vote today was unanimous. Bishop Morrison was authorized to appoint two delegates to the federation. The convention next year will be held May 19 at Burlington.

GERMANS MAY PENSION WIDOWS OF AVIATORS.

Berlin, May 21.—The reichstag today passed the first and second reading of a pension bill for military aviators which ranks accidents occurring to them while flying on the same level as casualties incurred in time of war.

VICTORIES ARE COSTLY

Prodigious Funds Being Dispensed in the Roosevelt Campaign.

Signs That Taft Southern Delegates May Not Hold Together.

(By Willis J. Abbot.)

Washington, May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Given a certain amount of slangwanging and it becomes wholly impossible that the adversaries in a war of words shall become allies in the battle of the ballots. It is the merest futility to say that after the bitter attacks made upon each other in this preliminary campaign Taft and Roosevelt can sink all differences and work unitedly for the success of either. It can't and won't be done, that's all—and the discovery of the third man who might slip in betwixt the two and hold the strength of both seems as far away as ever.

At this writing the control of the convention by the colonel seems fairly well assured. Not that he has a majority of delegates in sight—far from it. But he enjoys a certain devoted

SEEK BODIES OF MOTOR VICTIMS

Three Are Missing Where Car Went Off Bridge in Chicago.

Chicago, May 21.—At dawn today the police resumed dragging the Calumet river in South Chicago for the bodies of the occupants of the automobile which was driven through the open draw of the East Ninety-second street bridge yesterday morning, resulting in the death, it is believed, of five persons. The bodies of two of the victims have been recovered.

MINNEAPOLIS AVIATOR KILLED

F. J. Southard's First Flight in New Aeroplane Ends Fatally.

Xenia, Ohio, May 21.—Fred J. Southard of Minneapolis, Minn., an aviator, fell 100 feet at the Wright aviation field, near Osborn, early today and was killed instantly.

Southard, who was 40 years old, had just bought the aeroplane from the Wright brothers. He obtained the keys to the hangar after he had been refused permission to take the aeroplane out without further experience. He fell just six minutes after he had begun his first flight alone. His body was badly crushed.

SCOFFS AT RIVAL PALS

Senator Stone Speaks on "Modern Damon and Pythias."

Berates Roosevelt and Taft for Character of Their Campaign.

Washington, May 21.—Senator Stone of Missouri today carried out his purpose of addressing the senate on "The Modern Damon and Pythias and Correlated Subjects Pertaining to Current Politics."

"Mr. President," he said, "any man having even a meagre knowledge of ancient lore will recall the story of Damon and Pythias and the story of David and Jonathan.

"A few years ago the American people and the civilized world were given to understand that here in our own dear country we had a reproduction of these glorious traditions of the far-distant past.

Come From the Past.

"We were led to believe that combined and consolidated spirits of Damon and Jonathan had come out of their haven of rest and taken refuge in the corpus of Theodore Roosevelt and that the combined spirit of David and Pythias had in like manner come to rest on the ample bosom of William Howard Taft.

"Thus in happy conjunction both of these old stories of ancient lore and love were reproduced here in this new world of ours for the edification and uplifting of the human race."

Senator Stone, amid laughter, said

MUNSEY DENIES ROOSEVELT OFFER

Says He Was Not Promised Ambassadorship or Any Other Job.

New York, May 21.—Frank A. Munsey today authorized a denial of the statement recently published that Mr. Roosevelt had promised him the ambassadorship to the court of St. James in the event of his election. Mr. Munsey said:

"I wish to say that there is not one word of truth or shading of truth in it. Mr. Roosevelt has never offered me anything and I never have asked anything of him.

"I want to add, too, that whatever I am doing in this Roosevelt campaign is done from the citizen point of view and not with regard to any personal work for Mr. Roosevelt himself."

MINERS ON STRIKE IN SYMPATHY FOR MULES.

Coshocton, Pa., May 21.—Sympathy for the mine mules has caused seventy-five men of the Morgan Run colliery to go on strike. The men said they did not think the mules received proper treatment, and say they will remain on strike until assured the mules will be humanely treated.

FAIL AGAIN TO NAME BISHOP

Methodists Cast Ninth Ballot Without Making a Choice.

Extra Sessions of Conference Held in Effort to Decide Question.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—With no election declared, Dr T. S. Henderson of New York East conference was high man on the ninth ballot in the fight for a place on the board of bishops of the Methodist Episcopal church. Dr. Henderson received 451 votes, 516 being necessary to elect W. O. Shepard of New York was second with 448, and R. J. Cooke, New York, third with 353.

Indications that the conference will attempt to keep to its resolution of reaching an adjournment on May 28 are evidenced in the night sessions of the conference, which were begun with a meeting at 10 o'clock last night to cast a ballot for bishops. It is probable that even with the election of one or two men today, which hardly is expected by the delegates, that another night session will be held tonight in order that three instead of two ballots may be taken in a day.

Stuntz Only One Chosen.

Since the first ballot, on which Dr. Homer C. Stuntz was elected, numerous men have headed the no-election bal-

LAUGHS AT NEWS HE IS TO HANG

BUILDING FALLS AND KILLS NEGRO

Six Others Hurt in Collapse of Condemned St. Louis Structure.

St. Louis, Mo., May 21.—One negro was killed and six others were injured, some of them seriously, when a three-story brick building collapsed here this morning. It is reported that another person, a woman, still is in the wreckage pinned down by a heavy beam. About twenty-five persons were in the building, which had been condemned a week ago, when it collapsed.

TAFT AND ROOSEVELT FORCES BOTH CLAIM ADVANTAGE IN OHIO

WILL NAME BALDWIN AT BALTIMORE MEETING

ARCHIBALD McNIEL,
Connecticut State Senator.

Bridgeport, Conn., May 21.—One of the orators of the Baltimore convention will be State Senator Archibald McNiel of Bridgeport, who has been chosen to present the name of Governor Baldwin. Mr. McNiel is young, but he has made some reputation as an orator. He is a friend of Bryan.

"REVEL" ON STATE FUNDS

Board of Medical Examiners Scored in Examiner Fritz's Report.

He Says They Have Used Up $6,000 They Had No Right To.

St. Paul, Minn., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Revelling in $20 dinners, smoking choice Havana cigars, riding in taxicabs and "splitting up" practically all the money that has come into its hands, the state board of medical examiners has spent nearly $6,000 since May 1, 1910, which rightfully belongs to the state.

This is the disclosure of Andrew Fritz, state public examiner, in a report made to Governor Eberhart today.

While he makes no direct charge, Mr. Fritz points to an opinion given by Lyndon A. Smith, assistant attorney general, in 1910, in which he said that the "reciprocal fees," amounting to $50 each, collected by the board should be turned into the state treasury. Since the opinion was given the board has collected and kept $6,110, less $985.86 now on hand.

"Reciprocal fees" come from physicians who, having obtained license to practice in other states, come to Minnesota and are admitted to practice here without further examination, on payment of a $50 fee. Former Public Examiner Anton Schafer could find no law giving the board of medical examiners right to keep the fees,

WINS $20,000 BET BY KANSAS RAIN

Wheat Grower Also Stands to Clean Up $100,000 on His Crop.

Topeka, Kan., May 21.—"Jim" Fike, known as the Kansas wheat king, bet $20,000 during August and September last year that rain would fall on his 7,000 acres of wheat in northwest Kansas before the middle of May, 1912. He has won.

Fike never had such a wheat prospect in fifteen years as he has at the present time. If he has only the average Kansas yield of wheat he stands to clean up more than $90,000 on the one wheat crop.

If rains continue during this month and the early part of June he stands to beat this by $20,000 to $30,000.

Bi Day Keeps Some ners From Polls at the Primary.

ng in Cleveland Makes Roosevelt and Harmon Favorites.

Polls Are Opened at 5:30 a. m. and Close 5:30 or 6 p. m.

Columbus, Ohio, May 21.—Taft managers early declared that the bright sunshine with which primary day dawned was indicative of a sure victory for the president. Many of the farmers, they said, who were supporting Col. Roosevelt were far behind in their spring work and would not leave their fields to cast a vote.

Roosevelt supporters stuck to their former claims that a majority of the delegates elected would be Roosevelt men.

Almost all of the approximately 5,000 voting precincts in the state opened at 5:30 o'clock, and in the cities a large early vote was cast. The polls will close at 5:30 tonight in the cities, but in some of the country districts will remain open until 6 o'clock.

Two candidates for the presidential nomination, President Taft and Governor Harmon, will cast their votes in Cincinnati. The president will leave that city early in the day. Governor Harmon will remain at his home to hear the returns.

MILLER SENDS PENSION BLANKS

Rates Under New Law Are Effective From Date of Application.

(From The Herald Washington Bureau.)

Washington, May 21.—In order that as many old soldiers as possible may get their applications on file for pensions under the new Sherwood law, Representative Miller has sent blank applications to several hundred soldiers in his district during the last week.

"The veterans do not all know that the new rate under the Sherwood law takes effect from the date of filing," said Mr. Miller today, "and I have sent applications to such of the old soldiers as I have listed in my files, in order that they may reach the pension office as early as possible. I want to reach as many of the veterans as possible, and will be glad to have others communicate with me in order that I may send them the necessary blank forms."

DOOMED MAN BEGS NEWS OF RICHESON

Wakens Guard to Ask If He "Died Like Man or Cur."

Denver, Col., May 21.—Oscar Cook, a murderer condemned to die in November, arose from the cot in his cell in the county jail at midnight and hoarsely called to his guard:

"Has that preacher, Richeson, been electrocuted yet? I can't sleep thinking of him."

Throughout the night as the guard tramped the corridor the condemned man clung to the bars of his cell.

"Can't you telephone the newspapers and find out if he died like a man or a cur? See if he had to be carried," he urged. "Is it easier than to be hanged? Do you think there is any chance of the state putting in a chair before November?"

Cook refused to return to bed, declaring horrible nightmares filled his dreams.

WEST DULUTHIANS ARGUE FOR NEW RAILROAD DEPOT

State Commission Hears Their Case Against Northern Pacific.

West Duluth has been heard in its request for a new Northern Pacific passenger and freight station.

This morning the state railroad and warehouse commission held a hearing at the West Duluth Commercial club. The conditions at the present station and the need of a new station were brought before the commission. Judge Ira B. Mills, chairman of the commission, and C. F. Staples and C. E. Elinquist, all attended the hearing.

The Northern Pacific railroad was represented by K. M. Nicoles, superintendent; G. A. Mitchell, assistant general freight agent, and Louis Hanitch, attorney.

Witnesses testified that the present condition of the station is deplorable; that the size of the rooms was not according to law; that there is no room for the large passenger service; that the ladies' waiting room is often used for a freight room; that there is a pool underneath the building; that no accommodations are afforded patrons of the station; that an employe died because of the dampness in the building; that local merchants do not receive the proper treatment with regard to their shipments; that the position of the station is dangerous to the fire department; that a new station should be built one block east of the present structure; and that whatever improvements have been made on the building were made recently following the announcement of the present hearing of the state railroad commission.

The first witness heard was J. J. Frey, chairman of the railroad committee representing the West Duluth Commercial club. Mr. Frey told the commission of the many attempts made by the club to secure a new station in West Duluth. He also introduced the information that Mr. Nicoles had promised the club a station two years ago, on condition that the members of the club did not go before the state commission. The hearing continued as follows:

The Conditions.

Judge Mills—"State the condition of the depot to your knowledge.

Mr Frey—"The station is in a filthy condition, too small, only one waiting room up to recently, no toilet rooms in the building up to a year ago and a continual pool underneath the building. It ought to have been condemned years ago. During the winter perishable goods are stored in the ladies' waiting room and the women are compelled to sit in the men's room, which is not fit for them. There are 200 passengers in the morning and evening to and from the steel plant. The station is not large enough to house these workingmen. The toilet is always under lock and key."

Q. "Are not the people notified immediately after perishable freight comes in?"

A. "Yes, because there is no room to keep the goods and the merchants know the conditions."

Mr. Hanitch questioned Mr. Frey further:

Q. "At what time do these men go to work in the morning?"

A. "At 6:35 o'clock and they return at 6:35 o'clock in the the evening."

Q. "How long does this trip take?"

A. "Twenty-five minutes."

Q. "Are the cars usually filled?"

A. "Yes, the four coaches are always filled with these workingmen."

Q. "Does the railroad sell commutation tickets?"

A. "Yes."

Q. "There is no street car to the plant?"

A. "No, but one is now being agitated."

Q. "Then, when the street car line is extended, the railroad will cease doing this large business?"

A. "To some extent, yes."

Q. "Is it not evident that the workmen will take a street car, when it is cheaper?"

A. "No. A railroad is much faster and with the commutation tickets in reality is cheaper than a street car."

Q. "How many women can go in the women's room at one time?"

A. "None, as there is always considerable freight stored in that room."

Q. "You say that it is cold in these waiting rooms during the winter months. Are not stoves in the rooms?"

A. "Yes, for ornament."

Q. "You also stated that the rooms are smaller than the law requires."

A. "Yes. After an investigation we learned that the law required a room to be 15 by 18 feet in size. This station is only 14 by 16 feet in size."

Mr. Frey's statement was verified by the commission.

Q. "Do you know what the business of the station is during the year?"

Business for Year.

The answer was made by Judge Mills, who read the annual report of the Northern Pacific during the year of 1911. The incoming freight amounted to $49,002.75, the outgoing freight to $4,300, and the passenger business to $16,185.80. The total business for the year was given as $85,771.36.

W. B. Getchell then questioned Mr. Frey.

Q. "Is it not your understanding that there will be a double fare on the new street car line from the present terminus at Seventy-first avenue west?"

A. "Yes."

Q. "From your experience do you think the present location of the depot is a good one?"

A. "We have taken this matter up also and at one time were promised that a station would be built just one block east of Central avenue. It is too dangerous on Central avenue."

In the discussion that followed statements were made by W. B. Getchell, A. J. Macauley, P. H. Martin and Andrew Miles.

It was brought out that trains from St. Paul, carrying passengers bound for Superior, change at West Duluth. These passengers are also compelled to use the station as a waiting room. During the day many passengers to and from the steel plant are compelled to wait for trains. There are five trains a day to the steel plant. Mr. Hanitch attempted to bring out the fact that the complaint has only been since the steel plant was started and that the condition would be remedied after a street car line was extended. He was answered by Mr. Getchell, who brought out the fact, through questioning Mr. Frey, that the agitation for a station has been going for the past ten years.

At this point the information with regard to Mr. Nicoles' statement to Mr. Frey two years ago was brought out.

"We were promised at that time by an official of the company that a new station would be built here, if the matter was not taken up with the state railroad commission. If we did take the matter up, the official told us we would get a small building, while otherwise we would get a structure worthy of being proud of."

"Who said this?" asked Judge Mills.

"I do not care to state."

"But the commission must know."

"It was Mr. Nicoles."

Freight Conditions.

Edward Dormedy was the next witness called upon and he gave an interesting account of the freight conditions existing in West Duluth, claiming that freight from St. Paul went through West Duluth in the morning, going to Duluth proper, and was then sent back the next day. He said that many times his freight after such a wait had perished and that he was later compelled to do away with his St. Paul buying. Johnson of Johnson & Thygeson reiterated this statement and cited similar examples to the commission.

Emil J. Zauft, another member of the Commercial club committee, was called upon. He told of the conditions in the station, citing similar incidents to those told by the other witnesses. The fact that there is a sewer underneath the station and that it is not used for draining off the water was the principal feature of Mr. Zauft's testimony.

Warren H. Sweet, agent at the West Duluth station, was the last witness heard. He said that he had been working there since 1897, always in the same building. He told at length of the freight and passenger traffic in the West Duluth station. Nearly all articles of manufacture, perishable goods, vegetables, fruit, lumber, logs, steel, grain, dry goods and machinery are received at the local station during the year. The small size of the express office to handle the express freight was also brought out. Mr. Sweet stated the room used for this purpose was 3x8x8.

He also testified that there is water under the building, that the rooms are often overcrowded, that the shipments are large and that local merchants are compelled to wait an extra day for their freight. The fact that until recently no tickets to other parts of the country were sold there, and that no one ever used the station for any other purpose but to go to the steel plant was also brought out. An important point was brought out here by M. J. Filiatrault, who stated that on Sundays, women and children have no place to sit and wait for picnic trains. Mr. Sweet affirmed this statement.

Following the testimony several members of the club attempted to show that if a new station was built in West Duluth, the business would grow and that more people would use the local building, instead of going down town. Mr. Hanitch replied for the railroad, stating that officials of the road promise to remedy the present freight conditions and that merchants will hereafter receive their goods the same day they arrive here from St. Paul.

No action was taken by the commission, the members stating that a report will be issued the latter part of this week.

MAY BE MARIE QUINN.

Partial Identification Made of Los Angeles Murder Victim.

Chicago, May 21.—Chicago and Los Angeles police are working on the theory that the murdered woman whose body was found in a bungalow on the outskirts of the California city on May 7, was Miss Minnie Quinn. She formerly was a domestic in the employ of Mrs. Harold F. McCormick in Lake Forest, and of Douglas Smith in Winnetka. Smith has partly identified a picture of the slain woman as that of his former employe.

According to Smith, Miss Quinn received calls while in his employment from a man named Dillon, who, she said, was an Evanston electrician. Smith said she declared she intended to marry Dillon. C. C. Dillon, who was killed by a train last Saturday and who is thought by the police to have been the slayer of the woman in Los Angeles, was an electrician.

Hear Story of Doctor.

Dr. J. F. Presnell told detectives here that a young woman giving the name of Minnie Quinn and her address as Winnetka, called on him last January and asked him to perform an operation for her. He refused, he said, and she went away and never returned.

Clothing belonging to C. C. Dillon will be shipped to Los Angeles for possible identification. Examination showed the owner's name had been removed from the collar and the shirt and the name tag taken from the inside coat pocket. Buttons on the coat show it was made by a California company, say the police. The shoes bear a Sacramento dealer's name. With the clothing will be sent a ring taken from Dillon's finger after his death. He wore this ring on his trip to California and the police believe it may prove a valuable clew.

ANNUAL

Exhibition and Demonstration

—of—

"Peninsular" Stoves, Ranges and Gas Ranges

Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week we will hold our annual exhibit and demonstration of the famous "Peninsular" Stoves, Ranges and Gas Ranges. Experienced stove men, sent direct from the factory will be in charge during this exhibit, and it will be a pleasure for them to show you the superior points of the "Peninsular" above any and all other stoves made. "Peninsular" Stoves are built on the most scientific principles known to stove manufacturers. "The Genuine Hammered Planished Steel" used in our ranges is so expensive that other manufacturers declined to use it, and substitute cheaper material. Our steel requires no blacking—simply wipe it with a soft cloth.

"The walls of the body are of triple thickness," composed of two plates of heavy steel, lined with pure asbestos, all being riveted together with "steeple head rivets."

"The steel body rests on a cast base," made of the finest quality of iron.

"All doors are carefully ground and fitted" by our special machinery, making absolutely tight joints.

"Covers and centers" are strongly braced and ribbed, to prevent warping or cracking. Fitted with sufficient room for expansion and contraction.

"Peninsular" simmering cover permits small vessels being placed right over the fire.

"Peninsular interchangeable key plate top" will out-last any ordinary top, as the key plates are interchangeable with other, making their durability almost everlasting.

"Peninsular oven bottoms" are made of ten-guage cold rolled steel, riveted to body every two inches, and bolted by two heavy steel bolts. Absolutely guaranteed never to warp or buckle.

"Peninsular Gas Ranges," like all other "Peninsular" products, are made of the heaviest and very best of material and are fully guaranteed.

A liberal allowance made for your old stove, and all "Peninsulars" are sold on Easy Payments.

Hot biscuits and coffee served to all visitors at all times, from Wednesday morning till Saturday night.

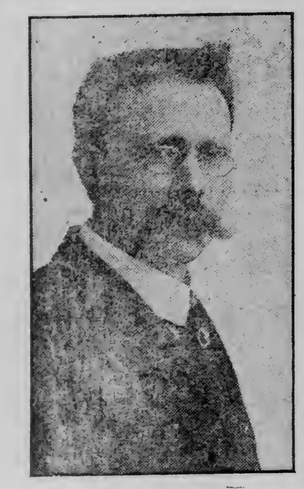
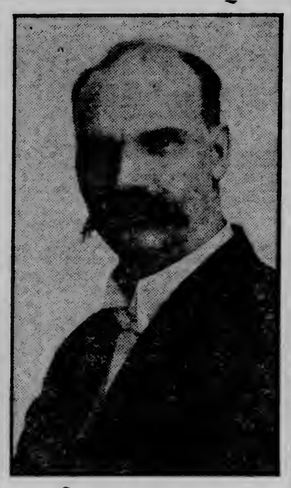
NEWS OF THE WEST END

NEARLY 1,000 SWEDISH SINGERS WILL COME TO DULUTH IN JULY FOR BIENNIAL SANGERFEST



CHARLES F. FORSELL,
President of the Western Division of the American Union of Swedish Singers.

J. A. WALLIN,
Festival Secretary of the Division and Member of the Executive Committee.



CHARLES JOHNSON,
Treasurer of the Western Division and Member of the Executive Committee on Arrangements.

Nearly 1,000 Swedish singers from the Western division of the American Union of Swedish Singers will come to Duluth July 22 to 25 for the grand biennial convention and sangerfest. About 500 of this number will make up the grand union chorus to be heard here during the convention.

Notice of the arrangements for the biennial gathering of these singers was received here by Charles F. Forsell, president of the Western division. The delegates will all meet in Duluth on July 22. A short business meeting will be held in the afternoon at the Spalding hotel, which is to be made the headquarters during the sangerfest. In the evening of July 22 the first of a series of three concerts will be given at the Lyceum theater. On the next day a matinee and evening performance will be given.

Nearly 500 voices are to be heard in the concerts. This large chorus will sing a number of national and Swedish songs. Several interesting musical features will also be introduced during the course of the concerts.

Entertainment.

The visiting delegates are to be taken for a boat ride during their stay in the city, and on the second morning an automobile ride around the boulevard will be the feature. The final business meeting will be held in the sun parlor of the Spalding on the morning of July 24. The Svea Glee club and the Orpheus Singing society are at the head of the local work for the convention, and the members of the two organizations are now completing the arrangements. The two Duluth singing secured the convention at the last gathering held in the East two years ago. The Svea Glee club will give a musical festival for the benefit of the sangerfest at the First M. E. church next Thursday evening.

The executive committee which was recently appointed to take charge of the sangerfest and convention is as follows: Charles Forsell of Duluth, president of the Western division; Dr. Victor Nilsson of Minneapolis, first vice president; J. A. Wallin of Duluth, festival secretary, and Charles Johnson of Duluth, treasurer. The exact program for the sangerfest will not be announced for several weeks, but the tentative plans have already been decided upon and approved by the officers of the American Union.

The American Union of Swedish Singers, of which the Duluth societies are members, is a purely musical organization, whose ambition is to cultivate Swedish male chorus singing. The union was organized Thanksgiving day, 1892, at a meeting in Chicago, at which nine societies were present. Today the union numbers over 2,000 singers from all parts of the United States, which includes nearly fifty different Swedish musical organizations.

The first successful festival and sangerfest of the union was held in connection with the three official Swedish days at the World's fair at Chicago in 1893. The second festival was held in the Carnegie hall in New York in 1897. After that the Western and Eastern divisions were formed, with biennial festivals for each and quadrennial festivals to be held jointly. The sangerfest in Duluth the latter part of July is the first ever held in this city.

The officers of the Western division are as follows: Charles E. Forsell of Duluth, president; Dr. Victor Nilsson of Minneapolis, first vice president; N. O. Johnson of Chicago, second vice president; Herman G. Nordberg of Chicago, recording secretary; Ernest Lindskog of Chicago, financial secretary; J. A. Wallin of Duluth, festival secretary; Charles Johnson of Duluth, treasurer, and Arvid Akerlind of New York, director-in-chief.

The officers of the American Union are: Charles K. Johansen of New York, president; Olof F. Nelson of Chicago, first vice president; Hjalmer Nilsson of Minneapolis, second vice president; Ferdinand E. Love of Boston, Mass., secretary; C. M. Carlstedt of Moline, Ill., financial secretary; Edward E. Molin of Brooklyn, N. Y., festival secretary, and Ernest Nordstrom of New York, treasurer.

Dover, Eng., May 21.—H. Cromberz, a Belgian aviator, crossed the English channel in a monoplane from Nieuport, Belgium, whence he started early this morning.

When the airman appeared over the little fishing port of St. Margaret's, near here, he dropped a visiting card on which was written:

"I regret to be obliged to return to Nieuport, Belgium, without breaking my journey."

Then Cromberz made a graceful sweep over the surrounding country and started to return across the channel, taking the direction of Calais, France.

WILL URGE PROMPT ACTION ON COMMISSION PLAN

The movement for the adoption of the commission form of government for Duluth will be renewed at the first meeting of the new public affairs committee of the Commercial club tomorrow evening.

A suggestion will be made that the club have another special committee on the commission form, to confer with the charter commission, and take steps to bring definite action. The public affairs committee will probably renew its indorsement of the commission plan.

The public affairs committee, at the time the commission plan was first considered for Duluth, appointed a subcommittee which made an exhaustive study of the subject. Many cities having the commission form were communicated with and their experiences learned. When the committee made its final report, the public affairs committee gave the commission plan its unanimous indorsement.

The agitation for the adoption of commission government by Duluth was dropped pending the decision on the Mankato case before the supreme court. Now that the court has decided that case favorably, the advocates of the commission plan are again alive in Duluth.

Another feature of the first meeting of the new public affairs committee will be a talk by George H. Maxwell, the homecroft expert, who arrived in Duluth this morning. Mr. Maxwell, who started the homecroft movement here a year ago, and later awakened public spirit by his address on "Ultimate Duluth," has firm faith in the future of Duluth. He is an expert on civic development problems and the suggestions he made in his talk last fall will be of value to Duluth. He will supplement them tomorrow evening.

The public affairs committee will meet at 6 o'clock, and the business meeting will follow dinner. The meeting is open to all members of the club, as well as the members of the public affairs committee. Chairman W. A. McGonagle will begin his third year as chairman of the committee. Though the organization of the committee is practically the same the membership is not, and there will be many new faces at the table.

The questions answered below are general in character, the symptoms or diseases are given and the answers will apply to any case of similar nature.

Those wishing further advice free, may address Dr. Lewis Baker, College Bldg., College-Elwood Sts., Dayton, O., enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope for reply. Full name and address must be given, but only initials or fictitious name will be used in my answers. The prescriptions can be filled at any well-stocked drug store. "Marie" writes. "I would like a remedy for a pimply, oily skin. I suffer from constipation, headache and indigestion."

Answer: Get from your druggist three grain sulpherb tablets and take according to directions. These tablets are packed in sealed tubes and contain full directions for using. I have found them to be the most reliable in such ailments as arise from constipation. They are made of sulphur, cream of tartar and herb medicines and if taken regularly will cure your constipation and purify the blood, thus causing your skin to become clear. These are fine children, as they do not sicken.

"Mary O'T.": If your friend told you that my prescription of one ounce of tannic acid and two ounces of antiseptic vliane powder cured a chronic case of leucorrhea, inflammation, bearing down pains, etc., you should not hesitate to use it yourself. Any woman can find relief and freedom from such ailments by mixing the above and using a teaspoonful to a quart of warm water twice daily as an injection. "Sadie" says: "I misplaced the prescription you sent me for dandruff and itching scalp; will you please send it again?"

Answer: There is nothing better for dandruff and itching scalp than plain yellow minyol which is sold in 4 oz. jars at any well stocked drug store. Use this according to directions and you will soon be cured of all diseases of the hair and scalp.

"Nina R." writes: "Please advise me what to take to overcome extreme thinness. My arms and bust have no development and my face is so thin that it is positively homely, although my features are regular."

Answer: Many ladies would be much more beautiful if they were somewhat fleshier and as increased weight is possible it is the duty of every woman to be always at her best. Begin taking three grain hyponuclane tablets, which are obtained in sealed cartons with directions, and continue until your weight is satisfactory. Frequently a two months' treatment adds 15 to 30 pounds, besides adding more color to the cheeks and lips and a sparkle of health to the eyes.

"Mrs. O." writes: "Kindly publish again the prescription for rheumatism which you gave to 'Ted' some time ago."

Answer: I shall be very glad to repeat the formula. Get at the drug store the following ingredients and mix yourself, taking a teaspoonful at meal times and at bedtime. Iodide of potassium, 2 drams; sodium salicylate, 4 drams; wine of colchicum, one-half oz.; comp. essence cardiol, 1 oz.; comp. fluid balmwort, 1 oz.; and syrup sarsaparilla, 5 ozs. This is my favorite prescription for rheumatism.

"Charlotte" writes: "Some time ago you answered through your columns telling 'Marie' how to cure bad cough and cold. Will you kindly repeat the formula?"

Answer: I shall be very glad to repeat the formula for you. Get from your druggist a 2½ oz. package of essence mentholaxene and mix with honey or home-made sugar syrup and take according to directions given on the bottle. This is a very mild laxative and will surely cure your cold in a few days at most. It is absolutely harmless and very pleasant to take.

"Ted" writes. "I have had chronic appendicitis for some time but I cannot consent to an operation. My stomach is in a bad condition also. Can you help me?"

Answer: The best scientific and satisfactory treatment for you is tablets triopeptine, which you can get at any well-stocked drug store. They are packed in sealed cartons with full directions for taking. I think many cases of appendicitis could be prevented if triopeptine was used regularly.

"Mrs. T." writes: "I have been sick for some time and do not seem to be able to get anything to give me strength. I am nervous and cannot sleep. Could you prescribe a good tonic?"

Answer: The best system and nerve tonic I know of is made by mixing 5 ozs. syrup hypophosphites comp. and 1 oz. tincture cadomene (not cardamon). Mix by shaking well and take a teaspoonful before meals. This is a fine tonic for old and young.

"X. Y. Z." says: "In the last two years I have become so fat that I am very uncomfortable. Diet and exercise do not seem to do any good."

Answer: I receive daily letters from hundreds of grateful people who have used the following treatment for reducing their weight. I advise you to purchase these separately so as to avoid any substitution: Aromatic elixir 5 ozs., glycol arbolene 1 oz. Mix, shake well before using. Take a teaspoonful for the first three days after your meals and thereafter take two teaspoonfuls until you are the weight you wish to be.

MINNESOTA POLITICS

State Central Committee Will Probably Rescind Convention Call—Sentiment of Minnesota Democrats Indicates Wilson Victory at Primaries—P. M. Ringdal Receiving Support for Democratic Nomination for Governor.

Call May Be Rescinded.

The Republican state central committee will meet in a few days and will probably rescind the call for the state convention July 2. It would seem that no other course is open. Failure to rescind the call would throw the party into chaos.

Unless the governor should rescind the call for the extra session, which is not likely, there will be no need for the convention. When the legislators get together, they will pass a primary bill of some kind. With the people of the state in their present temper, failure of the legislature to act would put many strange faces into the legislature of 1913. A collection of strange faces in that legislature is the last thing desired by the present members.

The state central committee is in a position to keep some candidates for governor, and others, on the anxious seat for a time. Governor Eberhart is part of the organization, however, and the governor would be further embarrassed by failure on the part of the committee to rescind the convention call. The call will undoubtedly be rescinded and Kandiyohi county's vote will have gone for naught.

When the state central committee set the convention date at July 2, which is unusually early, it had an object. The presidential primaries are just over, and the people were greatly absorbed in them. They had little time for the governorship contest. A hired contest before the last convention would be to Eberhart's advantage, as his supporters are well-organized and the opposing candidates have a hasty and incomplete organization. If the people hadn't handled the state organization so roughly, and if the state convention hadn't stepped in with the primary demand, Eberhart would have had a distinct lead.

The legislature will probably set the date for the primary on governor at the same time as the congressional and county primaries in September. That will give time for a long, thorough campaign, with resultant embarrassment for the organization's candidate.

Motives Are Questioned.

Press comments on the extra session aren't very flattering to the governor. While nearly all are agreed that the legislation mentioned in the call is needed, the papers decry the politics which inspired the call, after an earlier demand that came from the people had failed to move the chief executive.

The country weeklies of the state haven't had a chance at commenting on the governor's action yet. His ears will burn when they do. The need for the session was just as great six or eight months ago as it is now and the call would have been welcomed. The late date and the fact that the call was evidently based on a hope that it would help the governor's political fortunes, rather than on consideration for the people, are the things that will not go down.

Nearly all of the comment that has come to the exchange table thus far mentions the second choice proposition. Not only for the present contest, but for future contest, provisions should be made for second choice votes and for a minimum requirement for nomination, is the position taken.

County for Wilson.

Within four days of the Democratic caucuses in St. Louis county, little work has been done for any of the candidates. Active workers in the party sounded the sentiment some months ago and found the Wilson sentiment practically unanimous. The situation has not changed materially. Long search has revealed a few men who favor Champ Clark, but they are so few that the caucuses Saturday are expected to be greatly one-sided.

The Wilson men will not sleep Saturday, however. The meeting of Wilson men, called for the city hall on Thursday evening, will result in an organization to take charge of the Wilson campaign at the caucuses. Wilson tickets will be placed in every precinct and if eleventh-hour caucuses materialize, the Wilson men will be ready to meet them.

Little Clark Sentiment.

Unless the supporters of Wilson remain away from the caucuses and are checkmated by quiet-working Clark supporters, which isn't very likely, the Wilson men will be in control of the state convention here, will elect all but a very few of Minnesota's twenty-four delegates to the Baltimore convention and will bind the rest by the unit rule.

The Fourth district may go for Clark, though there will be a contest. The old organization in Ramsey county was first for Harmon, but shifted to Clark in pursuance of "the field against Wilson" policy of the New Jersey governor's opponents.

There will be a merry contest between the Wilson and Clark supporters in the Hennepin county caucuses May 27. The Clark men are split into two factions, one headed by W. H. Williams and the other by "Jim" Dwyer. E. A. Purdy, the leader of the Wilson forces, has a large following and is putting up a good contest. The outcome is in doubt, but the Wilson men are hopeful, especially as the Clark supporters are torn by internal discord.

Outside of those two districts, little Clark sentiment has appeared. Only one or two newspapers in the state have shown any preference for the speaker. George Fred Williams of Massachusetts, who is speaking for Clark in the First district, hasn't met with a very enthusiastic recention. Some of the prominent Democrats of the Third district are for Clark, but are believed to be outnumbered. Surprises are always possible in politics and the caucuses may upset calculations, but that is regarded as extremely unlikely. Unless signs fail, the Wilson victory will be complete.

Bouquet for Ringdal.

When Democratic candidates for governor are mentioned, the name of P. M. Ringdal of Crookston always figures. The St. Peter Herald, one of the strong Democratic papers in the state, is the latest to shower bouquets on the board of control member. The Herald says:

Can he be prevailed upon to accept the gubernatorial nomination, P. M. Ringdal of the state board of control, probably is the strongest man the Democrats of Minnesota can name. Mr. Ringdal first won recognition as a member of the legislature, and under the administration of Governor John Lind was appointed to the state railroad and warehouse commission. When he and his colleagues were appointed Minnesota had a real railway commission for the first and only time in its history. So effective was their work that the railroads had the system changed and the offices made elective, enabling them to control the nominations in the Republican convention and not run the unnecessary risk of having a Democratic governor make "unsafe" appointments. When Governor Johnson was elected, Mr. Ringdal was appointed to the board of control, and there, as elsewhere, he has made good. He is a man his party could support unitedly, and he would get the votes of thousands of dissatisfied Republicans.

Candidates in Ninth.

It is said that R. H. Battey of Detroit may be a candidate for the Republican nomination for congress in the Ninth district. With Steenerson, F. H. Peterson of Moorhead and Mr. Battey in the field for the Republican nomination, Ole Sageng running as an independent, M. A. Brattland of Ada as a Socialist candidate, and the Democrats also having an entrant, the congressional race in the Ninth this year should be interesting.

GEORGE D. McCARTHY.

following, fanatical some might call it, that will be slow to break away from his legions. There are signs already that the Southern delegates, won for Taft by the power of patronage, are not easily to be held together. The growing possibility of the president's defeat, with the certain loss of Federal jobs which that would entail, does not help to hold the mercenaries in line. Moreover, the very lavish expenditures of the Roosevelt forces will not help to maintain the integrity of the Taft delegates. The colonel, or his supporters, paid $5 a vote for every vote won in the primaries in New York county. As he got over 12,000 votes, that runs up into money. In Maryland his victory was practically as costly. Illinois touched almost the $100,000 mark, while a stream of money has been flowing in Ohio. It takes real cash to run a reform campaign for the benefit of the poor and common people.

Impertinent and Irrelevant.

In one of Ruskin's essays occurs a certain parable which at the moment I must quote, not literally, but from memory:

"Behold," quoth Turpin to a throng of gaping villagers on the green, "with what liberality and good fellowship I distribute largesse amongst you."

"Aye, but Dick," queried one rustic shrewdly, "where did you get it?"

"The question," responded Turpin, "is both impertinent and irrelevant."

As yet the question as to whence comes the prodigious funds dispensed in the Roosevelt campaign, funds readily shown to reach into six figures, is airily waved aside by all concerned. Whether another practical man like Harriman has been discovered in the person of George W. Perkins, whether the insurance companies have gone back to their old time habit of financing politicians, or whether the Steel trust is still grateful for the gift of Tennessee Coal & Iron is yet to be discovered. If the pending publicity bill, covering expenditures prior to the nominations, shall become a law the country may learn some facts of interest.

Will He Bolt.

Next to the question of whence comes the Roosevelt campaign fund, the issue most generally discussed down here is whether the colonel intends to go into the Chicago convention and abide by its result or to bolt in the event of his defeat.

Men who have studied him have always clung to the belief that party regularity was his shibboleth, and that however much he disapproved of the action taken by his party, he would oppose it wholly within party lines. But there is apparently a new Roosevelt this year. There is a psychological theory that men change every seven years. For example, we may recall the fact that about seven years ago Mr. Roosevelt was insisting that never, under any circumstances, would he again be a candidate for the presidency. That seems to be one very vigorous change.

Now, despite his lifelong record of regularity, he is making speeches which constitute an obvious threat to bolt the Chicago nomination unless it should come to him. A month in advance he insists that the convention can only be controlled by the Taft forces through methods of fraud and force, and goes on to say, "The attempt so to control it will be unsuccessful. If successful, it would merely mean the ruin of the Republican party."

There can be but one construction placed upon this, namely, that the colonel holds that only fraud can beat him, and that he will resent fraud by defeating his party.

All of which is very cheerful for the Democrats.

Taft in Similar Humor.

The report is pretty general here that President Taft is in a humor not much unlike that of Col. Roosevelt. As the president is never interviewed, one can judge only by his speeches. But I am informed by persons close to him that he feels that he took up the cudgels too late and that the chances of his nomination are very slender. My informants, however, go on to say that he believes that, if without sufficient power to nominate himself, he has a following ample to beat Roosevelt. It may be doubted whether, in the recent history of American politics, there has been an instance of a feud so bitter among leaders so eminent. Of course, the fight between Conkling and Garfield was a famous one, and turned the control of the government over to the Democrats. This one is even more savage, and you can hardly find a man about the corridors of the capitol who does not believe that it will have the same outcome.

$4,000,000 FOR LITTLE CRIPPLES

School Is Endowed on Day Widener Wills Are Probated.

Philadelphia, May 21.—The wills of George D. Widener and his son Harry, who met death when the Titanic sank, were probated yesterday in Norristown. At the same time P. A. B. Widener, the father and grandfather, executed a deed of trust for $4,000,000 in 4 per cent securities to be used as an endowment for the Widener memorial school for crippled children.

The will of Harry Widener provides that his valuable library shall be given to Harvard university and his entire estate, valued at $150,000, is left to his mother.

George D. Widener's will provides that his widow shall receive one-third outright together with his household furnishings. The remainder of the estate is placed in trust for his children and grandchildren.

A charter for the Widener memorial school for crippled children, which P. A. Widener endowed, was applied for last January. A special order of the court was required in order to enable it to receive such a large endowment.

ROOT CHAIRMAN FOR REPUBLICANS

Senator Will Take Charge at Opening of Chicago Convention.

Chicago, May 21.—Col. Harry S. New has announced United States Senator Elihu Root as temporary chairman of the Republican national convention.

The naming of Senator Root occasioned no surprise. It was rumored after the meeting of the sub-committee on arrangements last Saturday that the temporary chairmanship had been offered him. The meeting adjourned with the announcement that the selection had been left entirely in the hands of Col. New. It had been common gossip in political circles that Senator Root would be acceptable to both the Taft and Roosevelt forces.

"I just received the acceptance of Senator Root," said Col. New when he made the announcement. "There is nothing more that I can say."

It had been said that the choice would not be made public until after the presidential preference primaries in Ohio. Roosevelt adherents had contended that this course should be followed, it had been generally reported.

It is planned among other things to give courses in first aid to the injured as applying to shops and factories. A comprehensive educational scheme will be worked out at another meeting which will be held in the near future.

TO CENTRALIZE THE SALOONS

Campaign Will Be Planned at Mass Meeting Tuesday.

An anti-saloon mass meeting will be held at the First Methodist Episcopal church on Tuesday evening, May 28.

At this meeting a plan will be announced for centralizing the saloons of the city. The ultimate object is to exterminate them, but it is deemed best to start by attacking them outside of the main business district of the city. At this meeting also a movement will be started to win converts to the cause of county option.

The principal speakers will be P. A. Baker of Washington, D. C., national superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, and P. J. Youngdahl of Minneapolis, state superintendent of the same organization.

The campaign is to be carried on mainly through the various religious societies of the city, particularly the men's clubs of the churches. It is intended to send speakers to address anti-saloon mass meetings in the various churches of Duluth and elsewhere in the county. The county option campaign is to be county-wide. It is thought that by unifying the vote of the various church clubs, the number of votes thus cast will be a large factor in the coming election, and a force well worth having on the side of county option.

Sensible Women Know Foundation of Health

As health talks to women become more general, both in the newspapers and on the platform, the mass of women are beginning to realize what the more cultivated have always known, that good health cannot be found in a powder box. The externals of health may be obtained in that way, but the basis of health lies deeper, and yet is just as easily obtained.

The most important thing that a woman can do for herself, and about which she is often most neglectful, is to watch the condition of her stomach and bowels. The weary eyes, the bad breath, the frequent headaches, the pimples, the general air of lassitude is nine times out of ten the result of constipation or indigestion, or both. Many simple remedies can be obtained, but the best in the estimation of most women is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is mild, pleasant to the taste and exactly suited to her needs. It is far superior to salts, cathartic pills, waters, etc., which are entirely too violent.

Women should see to it that they have at least one movement of the bowels each day, and when showing any tendency to constipation should take Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin in the small dose prescribed. A brief use of it will so train the stomach and bowel muscles that all forms of medicine can be dispensed with. These opinions are voiced by thousands of women, after personal experience, among them Edna H. Dickinson, Verndale, Minn., and Marie Yager, Marinette, Wis.

Anyone wishing to make a trial of this remedy before buying it in the regular way of a druggist at fifty cents or one dollar a large bottle (family size) can have a sample bottle sent to the home free of charge by simply addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 405 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. Your name and address on a postal card will do.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

ARE AFTER UNIFORMITY

Pea Cultivators of Wisconsin Want Plants That Blossom Simultaneously.

Experiments to That End to Be Conducted at Agricultural College.

Madison, Wis., May 21.—To insure a better quality of canned peas for consumers, the agricultural college at the University of Wisconsin will conduct a series of experiments this year to ascertain whether a vine can be grown on which practically all the blossoms will bloom at one time, and the pods develop simultaneously. One of the handicaps of the industry in peas in this and other states is that while some of the pods are dead ripe another vine on the same plant may just be blossoming.

Pea Canners Advise Plan.

Two pea canners have advised the college that a better variety should be developed to give an increased yield, with uniform size and ripening time. They claim it would not only improve the quality of the product furnished to the consumer but that the crop could be harvested at less cost. The preliminary work done at the college in the past year or more indicates that a short peavine can be grown to meet all these requirements.

She is survived by three sons and four daughters: Augustus of Osceola, A. A. Roese of Hudson, J. O. Roese of Osceola, Mrs. Ina Martin of Oshkosh, Mrs. R. E. DON'T PULL OUT THE GRAY HAIRS

A Few Applications of a Simple Remedy Will Bring Back the Natural Color.

"Pull out one gray hair and a dozen will take its place" is an old saying, which is, to a great extent, true, it no steps are taken to stop the cause. When gray hairs appear it is a sign that Nature needs assistance. It is Nature's call for help. Gray hair, dull, lifeless hair, or hair that is falling out, is not necessarily a sign of advancing age, for there are thousands of elderly people with perfect heads of hair without a single streak of gray.

When gray hairs come, or when the hair seems to be lifeless or dead, some good, reliable hair-restoring treatment should be resorted to at once. Specialists say that one of the best preparations to use is the old-fashioned "sage tea" which our grandparents used. The best preparation of this kind is Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, a preparation of domestic sage and sulphur, scientifically compounded with later discovered hair tonics and stimulants, the whole mixture being carefully balanced and tested by experts.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is clean and wholesome and perfectly harmless. It refreshes dry, parched hair, removes dandruff and gradually restores faded or gray hair to its natural color.

Don't delay another minute. Start using Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur at once and see what a difference a few days' treatment will make in your hair.

This preparation is offered to the public at 50 cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists.

FARMHOUSE BURNS; TWO LOSE LIVES

Woman and Grandchild She Tries to Save Perish Near Escanaba.

Escanaba, Mich., May 21.—Flames that enveloped a farmhouse in Baydenoc township near here caused the death of Mrs. George Hardwick, aged 53, and her granddaughter, Hazel Hardwick. The child was burned to death in the building, while Mrs. Hardwick was so severely burned in attempting to save her granddaughter that she soon succumbed.

Seeks to Save Mother.

John Hardwick rushed into the building after his mother only to find that the door of the room in which she had gone to search for the child was held shut. After forcing it open he found the woman on the floor, with the flames enveloping her body, and carried her out.

WARM WEATHER HELPING CROPS

North Dakota Crop Conditions Are Considered Most Favorable.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—"North Dakota's crops are growing so rapidly that one can almost see the blades shoot up," as the farmers put it. With fine warm weather prevailing at the present time, following the heavy rains of the earlier season, the grain is getting a splendid start and the fields are rapidly taking on that green hue so promising to the farmers.

Only a very small amount of seeding remains to be done on late grains, such as barley and corn. Millet and grasses of that nature are to be planted yet, but otherwise the farmers are through.

There is a general feeling of satisfaction among the farmers, as the warm weather that prevails now is just what they want. There is a sufficient supply of moisture in every section of the state to insure satisfactory early season growth, and no more rains are necessary for at least several weeks. Pot holes, sloughs and ditches, in many places, have standing water, and that augers well for the success of the season.

If the deal materializes the company will start a Slavic colony on the lands, they having forty families to come this summer. The lands are well adapted for stock raising and general farming, which the Slavonic representatives stated would be the main pursuit of their settlers.

FIGHTING FOR ROAD.

North Dakota Counties Anxious for Meridian Highway.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—North Dakota road builders are keen to the advantages of the Meridian automobile highway from Winnipeg to the Gulf of Mexico, and in four counties there is a fight in progress for the road.

In Richland county Hankinson citizens have formed a club to secure the road.

The Hankinson route is west of the route originally fixed by the state organization, and the upshot of the contest, it is expected, will be two roads through the county.

In Grand Forks county farmers in the southern district are fighting for the highway.

Walsh and Pembina counties have a hard fight under way, involving the route north of Grafton to the international boundary line.

RICHESON, FORMER PASTOR, DIES FOR MURDER OF GIRL

Goes to Chair With Hymn on His Lips and Declaring Faith in God.

Electrocution Is Most Successful of Any Yet Held in Boston.

Boston, May 21.—Douglas Richeson of Chicago, brother of the former clergyman, Clarence V. T. Richeson, who paid the penalty for the murder of Avis Linnell in the electric chair at the state prison just after midnight, claimed the body today. Before the body could be turned over to relatives it was necessary for Dr. George B. Magrath, medical examiner of Suffolk county, to perform the autopsy required by law.

Reports that the brain and other organs of the executed man might be given to the medical institutions and medical specialists to examine and study were declared untrue by Dr. Magrath.

Electrocuted After Midnight.

Clarence V. T. Richeson was electrocuted this morning. The current was turned on at 12:10:02 a. m. and the prisoner was declared dead at 12:17.

The former Baptist clergyman, confessed poisoner of Avis Linnell of Hyannis, his one-time sweetheart, was outwardly calm when he entered the death chamber, and he maintained his composure while the straps and electrodes were being adjusted as he sat in the electric chair.

Richeson walked to the electric chair erect, eyes straight ahead, until he sat down. Then he closed his eyes and kept them shut until the end.

Seated in the chair, he was asked a series of questions by the Rev. Herbert S. Johnson, his spiritual adviser.

"I Forgive Everybody."

During his answers he said:

"God will take care of my soul and I pray for all. I forgive everybody."

The last question was: "Are you willing to die for Jesus' sake?

The reply, in even, well modulated tone, was simply "I am willing to die."

The current applied was of 1,900 volts, 8 amperes. One application was sufficient.

When the officials and witnesses entered the death chamber after walking through the prison yard in a pelting rain, they heard, sounding through the walls, the strains of song. It was Richeson and his spiritual advisers, Mr. Johnson and Chaplain Stebbins singing. Distinctly audible as they closed were the words, "For I know what e'er befall me. Jesus doeth all things well."

Left Cell Smiling.

Richeson left his cell, smiling, at 12:08. Before starting on the death march, he shook hands with William Morse, his counsel, who at the last moment had been admitted as a witness of the execution and with the two chaplains, Rev. M. J. Murphy, the Catholic prison chaplain being also present. Then he said: "I'm ready," and walked on.

He was dressed in a black frock coat, white waistcoat, white shirt, turned-down collar and a black bow tie, with gold studs on his shirt front, and with black low shoes, brightly polished. His head was shaved down the middle for the application of the head electrode. The party then entered the chamber. Richeson, accompanied by the clergymen, followed soon after, the un-frocked minister appearing as calm as either of his companions.

Poison Sent Him By Mail.

Among many letters addressed to Richeson which were opened by Warden Bridges yesterday, was one which was found to contain cyanide of potassium. It was mailed from Station N., New York city, on May 19, at 3 p. m. It contained no clew to the sender, the powder being enclosed in a small sub-envelope marked "headache powders." Analysis showed it was poison of the same nature as that used in killing Miss Linnell. Attorney Morse advised Bridges to make public the receipt of the powders. Richeson was innocent of any knowledge of the sending, the attorney said.

Rev. Herbert W. Stebbins, the prison chaplain preceded the condemned man in the march to the chair. Richeson settled himself slowly in the electric chair, and threw back his head and closed his eyes.

Four prison guards picked up the straps dangling like tentacles from the chair of death, and quickly slipped them into place through their buckles. There was a quiver in every man's hand, and even the electrician twice placed the face strap over the doomed man's face, before he could adjust it satisfactorily.

Richeson left no public statement, but his counsel, William A. Morse gave out an interview immediately after the execution in which he told of the last hours spent with the prisoner.

"For two hours," said his attorney, I was in close conversation with Richeson tonight, and he talked confidentially on all matters. He expressed to me all that he wanted done, and I shall carry out all his wishes. He was ready to go, brave and reconciled. He asked me to go with him to the death chair, and I did."

Buried in Virginia.

Richeson's body will be taken back to his old home in Virginia, if his wishes are carried out, and will be buried in the little cemetery at Amherst Courthouse. The last words as the remains are committed to the grave will be said by Rev. Herbert S. Johnson of Boston, who acted as Richeson's spiritual adviser after he was taken to the death house. One of the last requests made by Richeson was that Mr. Johnson accompany the body to Virginia. Mr. Johnson also will carry messages from the executed murderer to his relatives.

Richeson left no will, but in conversations with Mr. Johnson and William A. Morse, his legal counsel, during the hours preceding his death, he gave directions as to the disposition of his personal effects. His library Richeson left to clerical friends.

Was Unusually Successful.

The execution of Richeson is said by witnesses to have been the most successful of any of the fourteen that have been held at the state prison since the electric chair was adopted. It was only necessary to apply the current once, and less than fifteen minutes after Warden Bridges and the party of witnesses left the prison office for the death house, they filed back and attached their signatures to the papers stating that the order of the court had been complied with.

After his collapse of last Friday it had been feared that Richeson would not be able to stand the final strain, but on the way from his cell to the execution chamber his steps did not falter and he answered calmly the questions as to his faith in God put to him by his spiritual advisers.

Within a few days the death house will be occupied again by Lena Cusamano and Enrico Mascioli of Hull, who have been sentenced to death during the week of June 2 for the murder of the woman's husband.

cona, leader of the former, has been arrested.

Will Support Government.

The government continues to receive from all quarters assurances of support.

Gen. Emilio Nunez, president of the Association of Veterans, and Alfred Zayas, vice president of the republic, as leader of the Liberal party, both have explained that they deplore the fact that the anniversary of the birth of the nation should be marked by an attempt on the life of the republic, and urge all patriotic Cubans to rally in defense of the government.

More Troops Called Out.

The Cuban government disclaims any knowledge regarding the uprising of the negroes, but the opinion is spreading that conditions are becoming more serious. It is creditably reported today that two armed parties are operating in the province of Matanzas, which hitherto has been reported tranquil.

Orders were issued today for additional troops to be prepared to take the field. The newspapers complain that the government is censoring press dispatches from the disturbed districts.

Anxiety at Santiago.

Santiago, Cuba, May 21.—Great unrest prevails here and there is grave apprehension throughout this vicinity. It is reported a party of armed negroes passed through the town of Siboney, near the coast, with a number of horses which were stolen from an American citizen.

Many of the longshoremen on strike are missing today and it is reported they have joined the rebels.

FRAUD LAID TO TWO LAND PROMOTERS.

Seattle, Wash., May 21.—Indictments containing twenty-two counts have been returned by the United States grand jury against W. A. Ridgway and Glass promoters of the Jevita townsite, charging use of the United States mails to defraud.

weather conditions prevailed when the polls opened for today's primaries. Indications after the first few hours were that only 40 per cent of the vote would be cast. Numerous wagers have been posted, making Roosevelt and Harmon slight favorites.

Heavy Vote at Cincinnati.

Cincinnati, Ohio, May 21.—Fair weather brought out an unusually large primary vote here early today. Most interest apparently was in the outcome of the Republican preferential vote, although there is a sharp contest on between followers of Harmon and Wilson in the Democratic ranks.

Youngstown Voters Out Early.

Youngstown, Ohio, May 21.—A heavy primary vote was polled here in the early morning hours.

Busy in Toledo.

Toledo, Ohio, May 21.—Early activity today following a vigorous campaign, indicated an unusually heavy vote here.

Farmers Too Busy to Vote.

Dayton, Ohio, May 21.—Weather conditions are perfect, and a heavy primary vote is promised in the city, although farmers are too busy planting corn to go to the polls, which fact is expected to be to the detriment of Col. Roosevelt.

Progressives Working Hard.

Akron, Ohio, May 21.—With ideal weather it is estimated by the election board that 50 per cent of the Republican vote and 25 per cent of the Democratic vote had been polled here at 9 o'clock. Progressives in both parties have been working to get the voters out.

Stark County for Teddy?

Canton, Ohio, May 21.—With sharp contests for state delegates to the Democratic and Republican state conventions, voters of Stark county were out early to cast their ballots. Out of twenty delegates to the Republican state convention fourteen are expected to be for Roosevelt. The early vote was heavy, the weather agreeable.

Roosevelt at Oyster Bay.

New York, May 21.—Col. Theodore Roosevelt returned from the primary campaign in Ohio today and went to his home in Oyster Bay, where he will remain for several days before engaging in the primary fight in New Jersey. Col. Roosevelt was pleased with the campaign in Ohio, and when asked regarding the outcome, remarked:

"I am a better warrior than a prophet."

Wright Becomes Conscious.

Dayton, O., May 21.—Wilbur Wright became conscious for a few minutes last night, and his case was pronounced as not yet out of danger.

lots, remaining high man for a time only, to give way when it seemed that the necessary two-thirds votes of the delegates present could not be secured. Dr. D. G. Downey of New York was well to the fore on the second ballot, but he gave way to Dr. W. O. Shepard of Chicago, who in turn dropped on the eighth ballot to second place, ceding first position to Dr. T. S. Henderson of Brooklyn, N. Y.

Candidates constantly are dropping out, although on the eighth ballot there were about twenty who received not more than two or three votes. The total number of candidates voted on in the eighth was seventy-nine, but by the end of the week, this number is expected to be considerably smaller, as those who have been casting complimentary ballots swing to those who the delegates consider really are in the race.

Oldham Wants Full Title.

Among the candidates is W. F. Oldham, who now holds the distinction of being a bishop in the church. His title, however, is that of missionary bishop, which is not synonymous with that of "general superintendent," and his power is restricted to his own field, which is Malaysia. As a missionary bishop he also is not given the power to preside at a session of the general conference.

Last night's session of the conference was given over to the Freedmen's Aid society, Bishop David H. Moore presiding. Among those who made addresses were Bishop William A. Quayle, M. C. B. Mason and P. J. Maveety.

According to the report presented, the society, which has for its purpose the aiding of the education of the negroes of the South, has twenty-two schools, and during the quadrennium $146,677 has been expended in the building and equipment. It was also announced that Andrew Carnegie had given $10,000 during this time to the society, and that the indebtedness of the society had been reduced from $104,784 to $36,466.80. The report also recommends the concentration of a number of the smaller schools into a larger institution.

The conference adopted the report of the Episcopacy committee advocating the continuation in active service of the seven missionary bishops and the division of the United States into zones for the purpose of Episcopal supervision.

Rheumatism

A Home Cure Given by One Who Had It

In the spring of 1893 I was attacked by Muscular and Inflammatory Rheumatism. I suffered as only those who have it know, for over three years. I tried remedy after remedy, and doctor after doctor, but such relief as I received was only temporary. Finally, I found a remedy that cured me completely, and it has never returned. I have given it to a number who were terribly afflicted and even bidridden with Rheumatism, and it effected a cure in every case.

I want every sufferer from any form of rheumatic trouble to try this marvelous healing power. Don't send a cent; simply mail your name and address and I will send it free to try. If, after you have used it and it has proven itself to be that long-looked-for means of curing your Rheumatism, you may send the price of it, one dollar, but, understand, I do not want your money unless you are perfectly satisfied to send it. Isn't that fair? Why suffer any longer when positive relief is thus offered you free? Don't delay. Write today.

SCOFFS AT RIVAL PALS

it had been a case of "two souls with but a single thought; two hearts that beat as one," until "the slimy and poisonous serpent of ambition crawled across the path they were walking, and divided them. Both had tasted the bitter-sweet of power and liked it overmuch. Both were tempted and both fell."

Vaudeville in Politics.

"So, instead of peace we have had war," the senator continued; "war with knives and knives to the hilt. As a consequence of this ferocious contest the country and the world have been treated to a series of spectacular vaudeville stunts in politics without a parallel in the history of our country, and which I devoutly hope will not be repeated."

Senator Stone referred to Senator La Follette's participation in the campaign and continued:

"Mr. President, passing over the personal and party aspects of this miserable squabble, is it not truly a sad spectacle we are witnessing?

"These world-famed Republican leaders have been for months circling the country, abusing each other like pickpockets, in language akin to the vernacular of a fish-market, or even something worse. The world outside looks on aghast."

BOY SHOT BY MATE; PROBABLY WILL DIE.

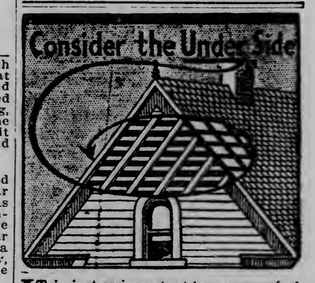
Sterling, Ill., May 21.—Clyde Thome, 18 years old, son of Mayor A. A. Thome, was shot and probably fatally wounded by Willie McGuire, a boy friend, while the lads were on a hunting trip. The boys were experimenting with a rifle, which was accidentally discharged. The bullet penetrated Thome's abdomen.

DROPS PERSONAL INJURY SUIT AGAINST HOSPITAL.

After a jury had been drawn, the case of Hilma Maki against the St. Luke's hospital association was yesterday dismissed by the plaintiff and ordered stricken from the district court calender. The case is one in which the plaintiff is a laundress, who was injured while employed at the hospital. She claimed that although the hospital association settled with her for $1,000 at the time of the accident that the settlement was made under duress. She sued for $9,000 because her arm had been crushed in a laundry mangle at the hospital.

Suicide Near St. Cloud.

St. Cloud, Minn., May 21.—Gordon Dunlap, aged 23, whose parents reside on a farm two miles north of here, committed suicide by drinking strychnine. The body was discovered by employes of the railroad in a small tool house. Young Dunlap was despondent.



IT is just as important to your comfort in summer to keep the heat out of your house as it is to keep the rain out. Don't think because you have already provided adequate protection against the elements on the outside, that your roof is serving its full purpose in sheltering you from the heat, unless the cracks and crevices of under side are properly plugged up.

Consider the underside—and line it with—

LINOFELT

The quarter-inch flax fibres of Linofelt used like building paper on the under side of your roof, or laid upon the floor of an unfinished attic, will keep the heat in during the winter and keep the house cool and comfortable in summer by keeping the heat out.

Linofelt resists the passage of heat or cold more effectively than any other known substance—and if proof is wanted, call up our local agent today and let him demonstrate its value to you.

Write for your copy of Linofelt booklet and learn just how the use of heat-and-cold insulation will cut down your fuel bill and keep every room of your home at an even temperature every month in the year.

THE LEGISLATURE'S DUTY.

WHAT THE EXTRA SESSION SHOULD DO.

Increase the railroad taxes.
Pass a statewide primary law with a second choice provision.
Pass an equitable reapportionment bill.
Provide an effective corrupt practices act.
Submit constitutional amendments providing for the initiative, the referendum and the recall.

After three times refusing to call an extra session of the Minnesota legislature, Governor Eberhart has succumbed to the pressure of political adversity and has called one in the hope that this belated response to public need will save him.

Whether it should or will save him is another question, which will be passed upon by the people.

The session being called, the main question is what the legislature should do.

The three things named by the governor, the statewide primary, reapportionment and an effective corrupt practices act, should of course be adopted,—but the legislature cannot and should not be confined to these measures.

The statewide primary law that is enacted should be framed with great care. The suggestion of Representative Rines of Kanabec county, which is being received favorably by many members of the legislature, is that the law should safeguard the parties and the state against minority nominations. By all means this safeguard should be provided.

A plain statewide primary would not always produce candidates representing the wishes of the parties, which embrace issues more vital than the individual candidates. How it might work out can be illustrated from the present contest for the Republican nomination for governor.

Governor Eberhart is a candidate from the Second congressional district. Lieutenant-Governor Gordon and Representative Spooner are candidates from the Seventh congressional district. William E. Lee is a candidate from the Sixth district. F. B. Snyder is going to be a candidate from the Fifth district, E. T. Young may be a candidate from the Fourth district, and Bob Dunn may be a candidate from the Eighth.

All these are anti-Eberhart and anti-administration candidates, presumably, except Eberhart. Here are six candidates to divide the anti-machine votes, and but one candidate to benefit by the votes the machine can muster. Each candidate will get a certain number of votes from his own section, based on local pride. Suppose 100,000 votes were cast at the primary election. Suppose they are divided as follows: Eberhart, 25,000; Gordon, 20,000; Lee, 12,500; Snyder, 12,500; Spooner, 10,000; Young, 10,000; Dunn, 10,000; total, 100,000.

Here are 25,000 pro-administration and pro-machine votes, gathered from all over the state. It would easily be possible for Eberhart to gather such a proportion of the vote in such a field and still lose every county in the state. Against that twenty-five per cent of the total vote would be 75,000 anti-administration and anti-machine votes lost by division among six candidates.

Under a plain statewide primary law, Eberhart, though the choice of a small minority of his party, would be nominated.

The way to beat that game is through the adoption of a second choice ballot, with the requirement that no first-choice candidate should be nominated unless he gets forty per cent of the votes. If no candidate meets the requirements, second choice votes are added to first choice votes until some candidate does meet them. This assures that the overwhelming majority which is against the machine will not be defeated by a division of its strength.

Though the governor does not include it in his call, the legislature should of course take steps to increase railroad taxes, in order that the people may vote upon it, as the Constitution requires, this fall. To fail in this is to delay the increase two years, and to lose millions in taxes that the railroads should be paying and that the merchants and farmers and bankers and laborers are paying instead.

Constitutional amendments providing for the initiative, referendum and recall should certainly be submitted to the people. These were all jockeyed to defeat at the last session, and will pass if put to a vote.

Happy Place!

Dr. F. I. Drake said in Madison, Wis., the other day that there is too much "promiscuous kissing." Gee! Where?

SHOULD BE DEFEATED.

Senator Root's amendment to the Dillingham immigration law proposes a course of action that should be examined very carefully on all sides before it is adopted.

It provides for the deportation of "any alien who shall take advantage of his residence in the United States to conspire with others for the violent overthrow of a foreign government recognized by the United States."

Perhaps some good would come of that provision. It is certain that it could be used harmfully, to stifle patriots and to smother freedom.

It would put this country in the position of supporting and protecting the governments of other countries, no matter how tyrannical they may be.

Suppose France had had such a provision when Franklin and Adams were conspiring in that country for the "violent overthrow" of British rule in America?

This country harbored Chinese patriots who were conspiring for the "violent overthrow" of the Manchu government in China.

When Russia gains freedom, it probably will be through the "violent overthrow" of the czardom; and that will be a boon to humanity which this nation of the free should not obstruct.

Kossuth conspired in this country. Garibaldi conspired in this country. This nation has been a land of hope to "conspirators" for free government everywhere. Shall its doors be closed to patriots in the interest of tyranny?

That's the danger of the Root amendment. It ought not to be adopted.

For His Comfort.

Harry Thaw, in his effort to get free, is respectfully recommended to consider the Richeson and Floyd Allen cases.

DO THEY WANT TO WIN?

The Herald doesn't often hazard political predictions, the same being well known as a venturesome practice vastly prejudicial to the reputations for foresight of those given to it; but on Jan. 26, 1912, The Herald departed from its habit and made two predictions, to-wit:

> Prediction No. 1. When the Republicans gather in convention in Chicago June 18 they will be obsessed above all other things by the desire to win. They will nominate as their candidate for president Theodore Roosevelt of Oyster Bay, N. Y.
> Prediction No. 2. When the Democrats gather in convention in Baltimore June 25 they will be obsessed above all other things by the desire to win. They will nominate as their candidate for president Woodrow Wilson of Princeton, N. J.

These predictions, it will be noted, are both based on the assumption that both parties will wish to win.

The Republicans are showing that they wish to win.

How about the Democrats?

Minnesota Democrats will answer that question in Duluth June 6 by instructing their twenty-four delegates to vote as a unit for Woodrow Wilson for president.

Why Such Brutal Matteroffactness?

"Castles in the air," remarks the Wisconsin State Journal, "are generally shy a pantry." That's a fine thing to spring in the middle of a multi-cornered campaign!

DULUTH SHOULD BE THERE.

The annual meeting of the Northwest Development league will be held at Seattle June 5 to 8. John H. Dight of Duluth, one of the league's vice presidents, urges that Duluth send a large delegation. Duluth should by all means do that.

Through this league the Northwestern states from Minnesota to the coast are working for settlers and development. If Minnesota and Duluth are to get their share of the results, they should contribute their share of the work and enthusiasm. As Duluth's territory includes most of the unsettled area of Minnesota, Duluth's interest in the movement is great. It should show that interest by attending the Seattle meeting.

It Can't Be That.

The coal miners stayed out seven weeks. The Detroit Baseball team stayed out two days. Do we take our sports less seriously than our business?

A "CLEAN-UP WEEK."

Instead of a spring "clean-up" day, Duluth is to have a "clean-up" week, beginning Monday. This announcement was made through The Herald last evening by Dr. Fahey, health commissioner. Work will be done through the school children, and directly by the health inspectors. The announcement is a hint—those who wish to keep in line will do their cleaning next week; those who do not wish to keep in line will be made to.

Probably most of the cleaning is already done. The weather has not been the best, but tidy householders have seized on the good days to clean up rubbish, rake the lawn, seed bare places, plant shrubs, trees and flower-beds, etc. The city is looking pretty well now, thank you; but it can be improved—hence "clean-up week." Presently the flood of summer visitors will begin, and Duluth should dress up for it. Clean-up week ought to be a busy time, and after it is over Duluth should glisten like a new town.

Has a Metallic Ring.

Montana is for Taft. Trying to copper a bet?

PLAYGROUNDS.

Dr. Henry S. Curtis of New York, playground expert, is conducting a six-day campaign in Duluth to enliven public interest in the playground movement. He should have many hearers and full support.

There is but one side to the playground question. It is a question of making effective use of public parks, a question of providing safe and wholesome places for children to play who otherwise would be compelled to take to streets and alleys that are perilous to body and morals.

The playground movement is a good movement. It is building a stronger and better coming generation. It has a good start in Duluth, but interest in it should be kept alive and the movement not only maintained but expanded. Dr. Curtis's visit, therefore, is timely, and it is to be hoped that many will go to hear him.

Would Be Natural.

With the stockyards so handy, what could be more natural than a rump convention at Chicago in June?

IF IT'S POLITICS, ALL RIGHT.

We have regretted very much to see the Canadian newspapers taking so seriously President Taft's blundering letter about reciprocity making Canada "an adjunct of the United States," which he blunderingly made public in a campaign speech.

Those who read some of these newspapers, and no others, might be justified in believing that the Taft utterance disclosed a deeplaid plot on the part of the United States to gobble up Canada and make it one of our "foreign possessions."

Of course the president meant nothing like what the Canadian papers are talking about. Even Champ Clark's fool remarks about Canadian annexation were for rhetorical purposes only, and were simply an example of a man permitting his mind to leave his jaw in unguarded motion.

But a second thought—and a second glance at the Canadian exchanges—gives encouragement.

The papers that are making a to-do about that letter, and brandishing the bogey of Canadian absorption by the United States, are all Conservative papers, and therefore were all opposed to reciprocity.

So probably they are just "talking politics" after the vigorous and sweeping Canadian fashion.

That reassures us as to the sanity and good sense of our Canadian cousins, of which we were for only a moment in doubt.

It is hard for people in Duluth to realize that the festive mosquito already is getting busy in many communities.

Wonder if the agitation for a six-year presidential term grows from a feeling that we live six years in the same length of time our forefathers lived four?

SOME OF THE OLD GUARD

By SAVOYARD.

One of the Old Guard, who led his troop in the political riot when Grant was president and Conkling and Blaine, Martin and Logan, Garfield and Allison, Ingalls and Reed, were yet captains of the G. O. P., was asked the other day whom he favored, Taft or Roosevelt. Without halting his pace he roared out, "I'd sooner be pestered with a boil than afflicted with a cancer." From that it was marvelous shrewdly opined that the veteran old standpatter is for Taft, though he could name a candidate he would prefer to him.

What a grand set of party chieftains they were who led the G. O. P. in the days of its grandeur! They were wrong, desperately wrong, miserably wrong; but they were capable and they were brave. They never hesitated, and in their creed failure was the chiefest, if not the sole crime. Only a few are left. Hoar, Platt, and Frye, of the New England senatorial squad, are dead. Aldrich and Hale are retired. Only Lodge of the standpat New England senators of first rank remains, and the party will no longer dance to his piping.

Reed, the greatest Republican, save Lincoln alone, saw the cataclysm when it was yet afar off, when its cloud was no bigger than a man's hand. He knew that it would be resistless, and he, the bravest as well as the greatest Republican of his day, retired from the conflict. A man of a little imagination might muse about the thing and fancy the untold beneficent results had the Democratic party discovered the magnanimity and the sagacity to nominate Tom Reed for president in 1900 and had Tom Reed been blessed with the robust physical vitality that had been his the day he was chosen speaker in 1889.

When Roosevelt was president the Old Guard in the house of representatives was officered by Dalzell, Cannon, Grosvenor, Hepburn, Hitt, Littlefield, McCall and Tawney. Burrows and Dolliver had been "promoted" to the senate, but the leaders I have named as remaining in the house knew how to do things, and what was much to the point, they knew how not to do things. All of them are gone except Cannon, Dalzell and McCall, and Dalzell, one of the most capable and gifted legislators of his time, has been slaughtered in the household of his friends. By a very narrow margin Boss Flinn has succeeded in defeating for re-election to congress the greatest Pennsylvanian now living.

And that is a feat that Matthew S. Quay repeatedly attempted and always failed. Dalzell was never a member of the machine and never a favorite of Quay. Had he been content to be a henchman of a boss he would have been a senator long ago. He entered the house of representatives in 1887. His first legislative experience was the session when the Mills tariff bill was passed by the house of which Carlisle was speaker. And men and brethren—you Democrats, I'm talking to—do you know that a clamorous cat would exist emerge from Tophet than that same Democratic Mills tariff of 1888 would get out of the ways and means committee of the present Democratic house of which Clark is speaker? Fact. Baileyism has supplanted Millsism in Democratic councils so far as the present Democratic congress is concerned. And maybe that is how it came that Texas went "helpent" for Millsism and against Baileyism in the Democratic primaries May 4 of this good year.

But to get back to Dalzell. All of us who oppose him as well as all who agree with him must admire the manly courage for his splendid intellect, for his admirable poise, for his lofty character. He comes from Pittsburg and is a tariff robber all right, but he believes in it. In his opinion the Constitution, our institutions, our soil, our clime, our sturdy people would all go to pot if our robber tariff should be forced to give place to honest free trade. It is a strange obsession of a great mind. Achilles had a weak heel. Alexander had a bad shoulder, Hannibal was a one-eyed man, Caesar had fits, and Napoleon Bonaparte got eczema at Toulon and it was yet with him at Waterloo.

Burrows was considerable of an orator. He was a tall, portly man, physically handsome, but there was too much of the animal in his personal appearance. He was not a fine-grained handsome man, like John C. Breckinridge or Roscoe Conkling, but coarse. His voice was resonant, his poise grandiose, his attitudes and language provocative. It was impossible for Burrows to make a speech without arousing the fiercest anger of anyone who disagreed with him and he had but two speeches—Southern treason and the tariff. He abandoned the former, not because he considered it bad philosophy, but because he saw it was bad politics. When he made a tariff speech his argument was that only bad men could oppose the dogma of protection. His strong point was lumber, and the last double decade of his career his sole mission in the public councils was to advocate a high tariff on lumber.

But Dalzell is a very different order of man. His knowledge of public questions is wide and thorough. He is a scholar and a student. He is a fine lawyer. He is widely read in general literature, especially history. He is the one public man with whom I have had any converse at this capital who was familiar with the debates of the parliaments of George II, though I doubt not Cabot Lodge knows all about them. When Dalzell makes a speech he reasons. He never strives to convince the adversary. That is a job for your Bacon or Burke, whose tribe is extinct. He seeks to confound the other side, it is true, but above all he tempts a rally to his own side, and he never failed until the insurgents came on deck.

Joseph G. Cannon remains, and doubtless he will be leader, for as soon as Roosevelt is the nominee, if he does get it, you will see him holding out the olive branch to the standpatters. Teddy is the best, the shiftiest, the most practical politician of them all; he knows how to use men, and he will get the standpatters if he has to promise the speakership to Uncle Joe again, the boss-ship to Penrose, and the senatorship to Crane and to Bradley.

If Taft is the nominee Cannon is certain to be returned to congress for the twentieth term and he will be the regular Republican nominee for speaker. If Roosevelt is president he will force Cannon on the Insurgents, and if Taft is elected Cannon will be the regular party nominee for his old job. If both Taft and Roosevelt run, each claiming to be the regular nominee, it will throw politics into chaos and there will be a bushel of that chaos on the Democratic side of the hedge also.

Wrong as he has always been, Uncle Cannon is yet a fine old man. There is this to be said of and for him. As a member of the committee on appropriations his voice, vote and influence have always been for strict honesty in expenditures, economy without penuriousness and liberality without lavishness. An unnecessary or a corrupt appropriation never found a more relentless or a fiercer enemy than old Joe Cannon.

The misery of it is that his general politics is so rotten that it is a pity he ever got to congress at all.

THE OPEN COURT

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest, but discussions of sectarian religious differences are barred. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

BETTER HOURS FOR THE FIREMEN.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Now that warm weather is coming on, and not so many dangers of fire in the city, the firemen feel that they can justly ask for a little more time off, as a little leisure time at this time of year can be used to good advantage around the house. And not only for those who have homes but for the single man also, who, like us, enjoy outings and other summer pleasures. As it is the firemen only have twenty-four hours of freedom during the week, and if they hear an alarm during that time they must go to the fire, regardless of what they are doing or where they are. Duluth surely ought to be able to give better hours or at least as good to her firemen as Superior which now has better hours than Duluth. There is no city employe who has as little leisure time as the firemen who goes forth day or night to meet danger for the citizens of the city. Thanking you for your valuable space in the interest of a good cause. I remain yours respectfully,

"DO IT FOR DULUTH."

To the Editor of The Herald:

I was very much interested in the article you published about "Do It For Duluth." If there is cause for the publication of such an article in the general run of business how much more so is the need of calling attention to our city officials sending out of town for men to do the work that should be left here. This includes a great many but not all of the departments. This totals many thousand dollars during the year. I will specify a few: Park board, architect and engineers; water board, engineer; city council, electrical engineers; city council, sanitary experts; city engineer, inspectors. I have no doubt the departments need men who know their business but it would be better to find the material at home.

Yours truly,

Duluth, May 20. I. A. WORTMAN.

ARBITRATE.

To the Editor of The Herald:

I think the street railway company owes it to the city to grant the request of its conductors and motormen for an increase in wages.

There is no reason at this time to allow a disastrous strike to cripple the business in Duluth. Both employes, the company, and the general public would lose by it. If men who are compelled to work long hours are paid a fair salary the company will get better and more honest work done, and in a long run will gain by paying better wages. There should be absolutely no dickering about the question now. We all should help boost Duluth to be a greater and better city to live in. Both corporation and the men who work for it should drop criticism of each other for the general welfare of the city. Several propositions for extending the lines are contemplated which should be carried out as soon as possible.

In considering the demand of the conductors and motormen, let the company select one, the men one and the city council one, these to constitute a board of arbitration to decide the wage question. The finding of this board should be final. There should be no suspension of work while this board is in session.

If the company would grant the request for increased wages at once without any arbitration board so much the better.

WEST END CITIZEN.

Duluth, May 20.

The Trout of the Thames.

Pall Mall Gazette: Week enders who went up the river for the week end saw the trout fishers at work. They practice chiefly in the running water at the weirs, at nearly all of which there are many fine fish. These anglers are among the most patient members of their craft, as may be gathered from the fact that despite the large numbers of fishers it has been estimated by authorities that the number of trout taken each year between Teddington and Oxford is about one fish to each mile of the water. Still, the average weight is high, something like three and a half pounds, and fish of seven pounds and as heavy as ten pounds are not unknown. Thames trouting is to a great extent a lottery, but the big majority of the fish fall to the spinning rods of the experts.

Big Thames trout are never eaten, though doubtless edible. Casts are made of them for the halls of anglers' homes of anglers' clubs. They are "specimen" fish, and as such have their glass-case reward.

The story is told of an inexperienced Thames angler who went for a day's trout fishing at Shepperton and was lucky enough to kill two heavy trout in one day, his first on the river. So elated was he by his success that he forthwith took a house there, renting it for three years. Each angling day during the summers of these years he was at the waterside busy with the spinner. He never killed or even hooked another fish!

What Is Piquant?

Chicago Evening Post: A correspondent of the Portland Oregonian writes that journal in quest of information:

> To settle a dispute, is rhubarb a vegetable or a fruit?

To which the Oregonian conservatively replies:

> You may call it either, with authoritative ground for dispute.

That is a perfectly absurd reply. A plain catechetical answer is possible and the rule of this newspaper is that when a plain catechetical answer can be given, it should be given.

Our plain catechetical and categorical answer would be that, of course, the rhubarb is.

The wholesale grocery houses list it under "fruit" and the seedmen list it under "vegetables." The botanical rule to which one next appeals and which is perfectly easy to remember—is that fruit is that which grows out of a flower or contains a seed. This looks like a very fine rule, one of the best rules of the sort we have ever seen. It should be decisive.

Under this rule, rhubarb, of course, would be vegetable. But the extension of this rule makes trouble. Under it, the humble egg plant, which is universally accounted a vegetable, would be a fruit. And at this point the Century dictionary increases the confusion. Of the humble egg plant it says:

> The brinjal, or aubergine, cultivated for its large oblong or ovate fruit. * * * The fruit is highly esteemed as a vegetable.

But the United States department of agriculture, abandoning rules, has succeeded in pinning rhubarb down in the category of vegetable.

The Usual Result.

THE DEMOCRATIC CONTEST.

Democracy's Opportunity.

Hutchinson Leader: The Democratic party's great opportunity this year is to nominate Woodrow Wilson for president. He represents more than any other man in American public life, the ideals and aspirations of the honest and patriotic citizenship of this country. He changed the state of New Jersey in one session of the state legislature from the worst boss-ridden state in the Union to one having the most progressive laws. He defied the bosses and backed by public sentiment, defeated the machine candidate for the United States senate and forced through the legislature his entire legislative program. He is a clear thinker, a ripe scholar, a great leader. He would attract thousands of the thinking, independent voters of the country, and would gain in strength from the day of his nomination.

And For a Great Deal More.

Albert Lea Tribune: It seems that Governor Woodrow Wilson is destined to be remembered for the enemies he has made.

Honors Ahead.

Aitkin Independent: President Taft and Col. Roosevelt are running neck and neck in a contest for the honor of being defeated by Woodrow Wilson next November.

The Field Against Wilson.

Little Falls Herald: It is apparent that the field is against Wilson. Out of the candidates in the field, we do not feel anyone can command as many Republican votes, besides holding the Democratic vote, as Woodrow Wilson, and he can command votes in the states where they are most needed.

A Big Man.

Cass Lake Times: If Wilson is defeated it will be because he is too big a man for the White House—the White House that politicians have made.

One Reason for Support.

St. Peter Herald: It is plainly evident that the big interests are opposed to the nomination of Woodrow Wilson. He should, therefore, receive the solid support of Minnesota Democracy.

Wilson is Available.

Litchfield Independent: Wilson and Clark seem to be pretty evenly matched in the race for the Democratic presidential nomination. Clark is showing considerable strength of late. We have held the opinion that Wilson would be the most available candidate of the two, for the reason that he is not so strong a partisan as Clark and has not as much party feeling to contend with. Clark's record in congress if he secures the nomination, will be raked with a fine toothed comb to find votes and acts during his long congressional career that may be used to prejudice the voters against him. So far as we have been able to find out, his record is good, and he has stood on the side of the people consistently. Wilson, on the other hand, having been engaged in educational work until a few years ago, and not mixed a great deal in the political game, has an advantage with the disgusted voters of the opposite party. We consider Wilson to be a true representative of the interests of the whole people.

Republicans Are Pleased.

Albert Lea Tribune, (Rep.): The success of Speaker Clark over Woodrow Wilson in the Massachusetts primaries, was one of the surprises of the preconvention campaign. It is said that Clark's advancement in the campaign is very pleasing to Republican leaders, as he is looked upon as the weakest of the Democratic aspirants for the place, and would be an easy man to defeat.

The Three Chairs.

The first chair was tiny—a nigh chair—
A baby was tied in the seat;
A fat, hungry child, he crowed and he smiled,
While waiting for something to eat.
A mother kept watch o'er this diner
For fear he might make the chair fall.
And now we are done with chair number one,
The first little chair of them all.

The second chair, thirty years later,
Held a boy who was handsome and strong;
In a gilded cafe, with roysterers gay,
He let the swift hours slip along.
A waiter kept watch o'er this diner,
For fear he might make the chair fall.
And now we are through with chair number two,
The merriest chair of them all.

The third chair was back of a barroom,
In a corner all dingy and dark;
A man worn and thin had pleaded for gin,
Because it was cold in the park.
No soul kept watch o'er this outcast—
They knew he had met with his fall.
He was sleeping, you see, in chair number three,
The last little chair of them all.

Mayor Gaynor on Socialism.

Indianapolis News: Armed with a lot of searching questions a reporter who had made a study of Socialism was sent by the New York Times to ask them of Mayor Gaynor. Instead of answering them the mayor proceeded to ask questions and make statements. He averred that 99 per cent of intelligent people did not know what Socialism was, and that Socialists would do well to explain what their propaganda means. This he emphasized in many ways. Socialists are so busy talking angrily that they do not notice what advances the world is making in Socialism. We have engaged in Socialism with the seal herds of Alaska. They were being destroyed until the government took charge and leased the right to kill only a limited number yearly. Under this treatment the herds are increasing. That is Socialism. The mayor could not see why we should not do the same with the coal mines and other mines of Alaska that we had done with the seals—lease them instead of selling them to private individuals to be exploited.

Most persons, he went on to say, thought that Socialism meant the division of property among the people, whereas it meant just the opposite, the collective ownership of property to be administered by the government. But this, he thought, would not work in fact. The notion of massing everything in the state was not workable. Under state ownership and control all competition and emulation would be abolished and each person would do as little and not as much as possible. The total product of society would diminish and the result would be scarcity and poverty. To have prosperity we must have a product of industry large enough to give the necessaries and luxuries of life to people. But if every one were put on a level all competition would be abolished and the product would go down steadily. Under such a scheme, also, we could not get men to run the government. Where would competent and honest men come from for the purpose? Human capacity and understanding would not be changed, nor would human nature, and what would we do with the incompetent, the lazy, the vicious?

Meanwhile the mayor would have Socialists explain what their propaganda is, and, above all, to start in with explaining what the red flag means. People think that it means bloodshed, whereas Socialists hold it to mean a symbol of the red blood that flows in all and makes all brothers, one of the fundamental principles of Socialism being opposition to bloodshed and all violence. If Socialists succeed in getting a majority of people to vote with them Mr. Gaynor would not object. He understood Socialists to be peaceable, willing to live under our flag and to introduce reforms by the ballot, reforms in economy and government. Now if a majority of the voters of the country should agree to this the country would continue right along under its own flag, wouldn't it, he asked. But Socialists, he closed with saying, did not seem to know how to make people understand what their intentions are and they had besides too many noisy people among them who did not know what they were talking about.

The First May Bluff.

Detroit Free Press: "I have called to collect the rent," said the landlord.

"Yes," replied the lady of the house, "come in. Now before I give you the money this month, I—"

"Just a minute, madam," said the landlord. "I can save your time for you. I know the parlor isn't fit for a pig to live in, the dining room wall paper is a shocking example of refinement, the kitchen walls are a disgrace, and the back porch is a menace to life and limb. I'm also aware that you won't stay here another month unless the barber shop wall paper in the back bedroom is changed to something in a delicate pink, and I'm next to the fact that you're ashamed to have people look at such gas fixtures as I have provided. This spring I'm going to paint the front and back porches and let it go at that."

"Thank you very much," said the lady meekly. "You have saved me a lot of trouble. That is all we really expected to have done, but I was afraid that I should have to make the same old bluff to get that much out of you."

WHAT OTHER CITIES ARE DOING

Activities of Other Municipalities, Which Might or Might Not Be Copied in Duluth.

FOLLOWING the example of citizens of Lincoln county, Okla., who recently constructed thirty miles of road in a day, 300 business men of Lawton that state, with 100 teams spent a day recently in constructing a model road from Fort Sill to Lawton, a three-mile stretch. The day was declared a holiday. All banks, most business houses and city and county offices were closed. There were too many men for the number of teams, and one squad of men pulled dump wagons by hand. The women took luncheon to the men by motor cars, and at houses adjoining the road made coffee for them.

The same idea might be inaugurated in this locality by the automobile men or others interested in the campaign for good roads. If there is any particular road which is especially desirable for use and is in poor condition the plan might be carried out on a smaller scale, improving instead of building. That this will be done is not likely, although considerable benefit might be derived if groups of settlers would get together to do something along that line.

TRUTH NEEDED IN ADVERTISING

Necessity Discussed at Dallas Meeting—Ad Men Have Good Time.

Dallas, Texas, May 21.—The necessity for truthfulness in advertising was the keynote of today's discussions in the eighth annual convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of America. The demand for high moral and ethical character in advertising is one of the features of the meeting. There were scores of addresses on today's program, the busiest of the convention. The day closed with a formal reception to President George W. Coleman of the Associated Advertising clubs.

The "ad" men are playing as hard as they are working. Some of the Southern delegations have demonstrated novel methods of advertising during the entertainments. At a "battle royal" the Atlanta delegation plastered its streamer upon the back of one of the negro boxers participating in the event.

San Francisco, Baltimore and Toronto men continue to spring surprises in their campaigns for the next convention. Baltimore last night put on a moving picture showing one of the downtown streets, with Baltimore attractions.

The Toronto Kilties, unaccustomed to the power of a Southern sun at this time of the year, carelessly left their bare knees cocked up during the long automobile rides yesterday afternoon, and today they are wishing for longer kilts. Some of them also are applying various lotions.

VISITOR HERE FROM BELGIUM

E. G. Gifefure Says Europe Is Fairly Prosperous at Present Time.

E. G. Gifefure of Vihovde, Belgium, is a guest of the McKay today. Mr. Gifefure is here on a matter of business and expects to be in Duluth several days.

"There are no particular matters of public interest in Belgium at the present time," said Mr. Gifefure. "Politically speaking, the affairs of the country are quiet. European politics at the present time is rather quiet. Since the threatened trouble between Germany and France there has not been any incident to arouse the attention of all the countries of Europe.

"Belgium is in a fairly prosperous condition at the present time. Speaking generally the conditions in Europe are very good."

STONE WILL TALK ON "DAMON AND PYTHIAS."

Washington, May 21.—Senator Stone of Missouri has given notice in the senate that at the earliest practicable moment he will address the senate on "the modern Damon and Pythias and correlated subjects pertaining to current American politics." In response to a question, Mr. Stone admitted that his remarks would deal with the two leading candidates for the Republican nomination for the presidency and incidentally with the Ohio situation.

NOTHING FROM STEEL TRUST FOR ROOSEVELT.

New York, May 21.—Judge Gary, chairman of the United States Steel corporation, referring to a recent statement of Senator La Follette that he (Gary) had contributed to the Roosevelt campaign, said:

"Neither I nor the United States Steel corporation has contributed or has been asked to contribute anything whatever to the Roosevelt campaign."

BELIEVE NEW YORK MAN IS MURDER VICTIM.

Chicago, May 21.—Discovery that a man believed to have been H. Clark Cheney of New York, who was found shot to death in Grant park early yesterday, had suffered a fractured skull, has caused the police to further investigate the case in the belief that Cheney might have been murdered.

It was at first thought Cheney committed suicide. A revolver with one chamber empty was found beside the body. Examination disclosed a fracture of the skull about the right temple, while the bullet had entered below the temple.

SCHOOL REOPENED.

Epidemic of Chicken-pox at Arnold Lake Has Subsided.

The Arnold Lake school in Rice Lake township, after being closed since Thursday on account of a threatened epidemic of chicken-pox, was reopened today. The school was ordered closed by the board of trustees, consisting of George Marciniak, James Coburn and Joseph Haller, on the advice of Dr S. H. Boyer, as twelve of the 140 pupils of the school were afflicted with the disease.

The trustees now consider the conditions sufficiently improved to warrant the reopening of the school, and it is not thought that the brief closing will necessitate any of the children failing in this term's school work. A report was recently circulated to the effect that the school was in an insanitary condition and that the storm windows had not been removed for two years, but this was indignantly denied by Trustee Haller. He said the school was closed merely to prevent the children from assembling at the time when there seemed to be great danger of a serious epidemic of the disease.

PREPARING PROGRAM FOR JUNE MEETING.

H. V. Eva, secretary of the Duluth Commercial club, returned this morning from Cass Lake, where he attended a meeting of the executive committee of the Northern Minnesota Development association yesterday.

The committee discussed the program for the June meeting at International Falls, and also considered the attitude of the association on the extra session of the legislature. The association was interested in several legislative measures at the last session, and particularly in reapportionment. Steps may be taken to bring some of the matters before the legislators in extra session. That will be determined at a meeting of all committees of the association at Cass Lake Wednesday, May 29.

The program for the International Falls meeting was not completed yesterday, but will be at the meeting next week.

Timely Hints on Hair and Complexion

The trying months of summer will touch lightly the hair that is shampooed with canthrox, a teaspoonful of which dissolved in a cup of hot water is ample for a thorough cleansing. After a canthrox shampoo the hair takes on a silky softness and beautiful luster and the roots are so strengthened that the sun will not have the blighting effect so noticeable with hair improperly cared for.

Wind and sun will not freckle or tan the skin protected with a simple spurmax lotion. This is prepared by dissolving 4 ounces of spurmax in ½ pint witch hazel (or hot water), then adding 2 teaspoonfuls glycerine. The spurmax lotion is invisible when on, is not affected by wind or perspiration, and its daily use rapidly dispels the sallow, oily condition and imparts to any complexion a rose-tint and charming softness.

A GREAT RECORD

Hard to Duplicate It in Duluth.

Scores of representative citizens of Duluth are testifying for Doan's Kidney Pills. Such a record of local endorsement is unequalled in modern times. This public statement made by a citizen is but one of the many that have preceded it and the hundreds that will follow. Read it:

Mrs. O. B. Olson, 2019 W. Fourth St., Duluth, Minn., says: "My little girl, six years of age, was troubled from infancy by a kidney weakness. At night she could not retain the kidney secretions and during the day this trouble was almost as bad. If the secretions were left standing, they deposited a sediment. Two years ago we were successful in finding the right treatment for her. A relative recommended Doan's Kidney Pills and we tried them. The child soon received great improvement. Doan's Kidney Pills not only acted as represented in this case, but were used with success by a young man who was staying with us at that time. In November, 1908, I publicly endorsed Doan's Kidney Pills and I am giving this statement to confirm my first one."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

CONVENTION CALL ISSUED

Rotary Clubs of America Will Meet Here Aug. 6.

Efforts Being Made to Bring 3,000 People to Duluth.

Efforts are being made to attract 3,000 people to Duluth for the third annual convention of the National Association of Rotary Clubs of America, which will be held here Aug. 6, 7, 8 and 9.

The latest issue of the National Rotarian, the official publication of the association, contains the official call for the Duluth convention, and an appeal for 3,000 members to attend the convention.

Each club affiliated with the national association is expected to send a large delegation to Duluth. The number of accredited delegates will be several hundreds and many visitors are expected to take advantage of the opportunity to visit Duluth.

The national association has affiliated clubs in about fifty cities of the United States. All of the larger cities are represented with big organizations, and the convention will attract visitors from great centers of population all over the country.

The Duluth Rotary club is making preparations for the entertainment of the visitors. No elaborate program will be arranged, but the visitors will be given every opportunity to enjoy the beauties of Duluth in summer.

E. J. Filiatrault is president of the Duluth club, and A. A. Michaud secretary. Paul P. Harris of Chicago is president of the national association, and Mac Martin of Minneapolis is secretary.

The convention is one of the largest and most important to be held in Duluth this summer. It will bring members from the North, South, East and West and will result in some valuable advertising for Duluth and its summer climate.

LEGISLATION IS TO BE DISCUSSED

Various Committees of N. M. D. A. to Meet at Cass Lake May 28.

Cass Lake, Minn., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—C. M. King of Deer River, chairman; W. R. Mackenzie of Bemidji, H. V. Eva of Duluth and M. N. Koll of Cass Lake, of the executive committee of the Northern Minnesota Development association met here yesterday afternoon to prepare the program for the International Falls convention, but on account of the call of the governor for a special session of the legislature it was deemed advisable by the executive committee to have a general meeting of all the permanent and standing committees of the association as soon as possible with a view to discussing the attitude to be taken by the association with regard to legislation which may come up affecting Northern Minnesota.

The meeting of the entire membership of all these committees is called for Cass Lake on Wednesday morning, May 29, at 10 o'clock.

The meeting will call for the presence of about forty committeemen and it is expected that all sub-committees will formulate reports at that time for the International Falls meeting to be held June 20 and 21. The program for the International Falls meeting will also be prepared at that time. The committee also is asking the presence here on May 29 of experts of tuberculosis, with a view to ascertaining whether the association can be of assistance in the work of combatting the disease.

LULU GLASER AT THE LYCEUM

Favorite Comedienne Returns After an Absence of Six Years.

Duluthians had pleasant recollections of Lulu Glaser's naive comedy in the part of "Dolly Varden" and the Lyceum was well filled last evening with her old admirers anxious to see her in her newest vehicle, "Miss Dudelsack." They were not disappointed.

Musically and scenically, "Miss Dudelsack" is a long lap ahead of the average musical comedy. The usual slapstick and burlesque methods of musical comedy are noticeably lacking. The performance is clean. There is not a line or a situation that the most fastidious could object to. It is a musical comedy without a German comedian, or a revolution. What it lacks in horseplay that generally passes for comedy in musical shows, it more than makes up in its delightful music, beautiful lights, scenery and costumes, and last, but not least, the attractive mannerisms of its star, Miss Glaser..

"Miss Dudelsack" is the name given a young Scotch maiden, by her German godfather, because of her ability to play the bagpipes. The scene is laid in Scotland. The head of the MacHumber clan had left his castle in Scotland on the death of his wife, and had spent his time traveling abroad. His young daughter had been left to the care of his lifelong friend, a kindly old German. He has brought her up as his own daughter. Complications regarding the estate follow. There are several heirs, a dashing young nephew, and the Hon. Peter MacHumber with his four daughters. Sir Francis returns just in time to escape being declared legally dead, and the complications regarding the will are adjusted in a manner that enables the love story to be worked out to a happy conclusion. The plot is insignificant, but it offers an opportunity for some very attractive Scotch costumes and some very pretty scenic effects.

But the principal appeal for popularity is made by the music. With an augmented orchestra of thirteen pieces, and an excellent singing chorus, the production must be ranked very much above the average production of this kind, musically. The most popular numbers last evening were "Oh You, You Darling," "Ride, Red Captain, Ride," "Sandy," "The Mace" and the collection of old Scottish airs sung by the male chorus. This latter number was encored several times.

Miss Glaser herself is as attractive as ever. The six years that have passed since she was last seen in "Dolly Varden" have made no noticeable change in her, with the possible exception of a slight tendency toward increasing avoirdupois. She is a comedienne of original and inimitable methods, and a personal magnetism that would carry to success a far less attractive production than "Miss Dudelsack."

Thomas Richards, possessed of an excellent voice, good looks, and pleasing presence, appears opposite her in the part of Capt. Jack Mac Humber; George Graham has a good little comedy bit in the part of Hon. Peter MacHumber, and David Torrence makes an impressive Sir Francis Mac Humber. Miss Rosetta Nier with a soprano voice of exceptional range and volume, sings the role of Lady Kitty Somerset well, and Miss Mardelle Marion is adequate in the minor comedy part of Olympia Mac Humber. Baldy Strang as Sandy the piper, has the principal comedy part, outside of the Hon. Peter, and his one number was one of the hits of the performance.

The minor parts are well handled, and the chorus is the best singing organization heard here this season.

The performance will be repeated this evening.

Amusement Notes.

"I call her 'Trouble,'" said little Cho Cho San in "Madame Butterfly" at the Orpheum this week. "When her father returns, I call her 'Joy.'"

"Trouble is played by little 7-year-old Ynez Seabury, in the David Belasco production of "Madame Butterfly" at the Orpheum this week, and when the curtain goes down on the little girl waving the American flag, beside the lifeless body of her little Japanese mother, handkerchiefs are very much in evidence. Little Ynez is the pet of the company. She is delightfully natural and unspoiled, and has none of the mannerisms of the average youthful stage prodigy. Her mother and father are both appearing in the company.

This is only the second month that the company has been out. It opened in St. Paul April 7, and has been seen since then in Chicago, Winnipeg and some of the other Orpheum cities. The playlet was formerly used as a curtain raiser for "Naughty Anthony" and is the most artistic production of the season in the line of dramatic sketches.

As "Trouble" in "Madame Butterfly" at the Orpheum This Week.

It is seldom that a juggling act possesses sufficient merit to headline a vaudeville bill, but Rapoll, who occupies that position on this week's bill at the Empress, certainly merits that place. This wonderful man is a past master in the art of juggleryand he has created a sensation since his appearance at the Empress. Rapoll juggles everything from small wads of paper up to eight-inch projectiles and he does it with an ease and accuracy that makes the most difficult tricks look simple. He is introducing several new tricks this week, among them a trick with two eggs and two billiard cues. This trick is one of the best ever presented by any juggler who has appeared at the Empress and this one trick alone stamps Rapoli as being a juggler of more than ordinary ability. "An Up-to-Date Invention," as presented by Rose Sharon and company, is proving breezily entertaining. The plot of the playlet is a plausible one, the lines and situations are laughable and the whole playlet is given an excellent presentation by Miss Sharon and her clever support. Snowie Maybelle is one of the cleverest child impersonators seen at the Empress this year. She tells a grist of clever child stories in a fascinating manner and is proving highly popular this week. The Delzaros open the show with a sensational gymnastic turn and are followed by Lipman & Kelly, who present some of the latest popular songs and a line of pleasing conversation.

Detroit Man Is Suicide.

Paris and the Pannier Skirt

You can find out if you want to know—and, of course, you do—

what Paris says,
what a great dressmaker has done and what Miss Gould thinks, not only about the Pannier skirt, but also the other new ideas in spring and summer clothes.
The Pannier skirt is still scant.
There will be the kimono sleeve and the sleeve boufant.
There will be sash drapings, flouncings and pleatings.
It will be a silk season in Paris—and here.

OTHER things collected and translated for you out of the original French about clothes and dress accessories, include—

"The Right Clothes for a Short European Trip"
"The Lingerie Blouse of Today"
"Embroideries for Little Girls"
"An Embroidered Pongee Costume"
"Dress for a Girl Graduate"
"Two Stenciled Dresses" and many other helpful hints for every woman who wears clothes and cares what she wears and how she wears it.

Eating in Summer

Of course, you must eat, but this is the time to abandon the heavy, hot dishes. Miss Farmer describes some excellent vegetarian dishes and suggests a whole month of menus for June.

The Bazar of Bargains

How many things you want that 15 cents will buy

MANY things you want to do but don't know how. Many things you never thought of doing you will now want to do. Things you will appreciate and can use to help you dress better and less expensively, to help you keep house better and more economically, to help you educate, entertain, bring up and dress your children. Special articles for mothers of daughters, and daughters of mothers, for husbands and wives; short stories and long stories; a delightful visit with "Princess Pat," the loveliest of English princesses; editorials and articles about books and art—just the sort of reading for June—15 cents.

Weddings

In June a mother's fancy turns to thoughts of a daughter's wedding. "The June Home Wedding" will be just as helpful to such a mother as "The June Bride's Linen Chest." "The Vanishing Husband," however, is for wives whose weddings occurred several Junes ago.

Luncheons and Parties

Each month has its own social functions. For June there are suggestions ranging all the way from "Some Appetizing Strawberry Desserts" by Fannie Merritt Farmer, to some special June parties, including "A Going Abroad Luncheon," which works in well with Miss Gould's article on "The Right Clothes for a Short European Trip."

The Summer Vacation

If you cannot go abroad why not spend the vacation outdoors in a portable house, such as is described in "A Portable Vacation House?" Another vacation idea is "A Backyard Experience Camp." A third suggestion is "The Fresh Air Club."

Any one of these suggestions carried out will be worth many times fifteen cents for your summer enjoyment.

The Fall of the Eiffel Tower

It might be called the "Awful" Tower because the Tower represents the great percentage of infant mortality in the past which has been reduced by the methods described—methods you can employ. It will interest all mothers because summer is a hard time for the baby.

And then the Children

There are more Kewpies, more Jack-and-Betty Adventures, Prizes for Young People, and a two-part story for girls, called "Martha," by Eunice Farland. There is also a fine picture ready for framing, by a special new German process—the equivalent of a costly engraving.

SUICIDE VERDICT.

Niece of Armenthal's Former Fiancee Testifies at Inquest.

Chicago, May 21.—A coroner's jury has returned a verdict of "suicide while despondent" in the case of Henry Armenthal, a brother of a German baron, who was found shot to death in a hotel here. The principal witness was Mrs. Frances Rosenblatt, a niece of Mrs. Nelson Morris, to whom the suicide referred in a letter he left. Friends say the couple's engagement was recently broken off on account of Armenthal's inability to quit drinking. Mrs. Rosenblatt made no reference to the reported engagement in her testimony.

Mrs. Rosenblatt testified that after receiving two letters from Armenthal, in one of which he threatened to kill himself, they met at the home of Attorney W. H. Domes.

"He was under the influence of liquor when I met him," she testified. "I tried to prevail on him to quit drinking, but it did no good. I saw his coat bulging, and believing he had a revolver in his hip pocket, we tried to induce him to give up the weapon. He would not admit he had a revolver and laughed the matter off. I never took seriously his threats to end his life. Drinking heavily caused his despondency."

Assigned Mortgages.

Seattle, Wash., May 21.—Henry Spruck von Armenthal, who committed suicide at Chicago by shooting, visited Seattle frequently and was known as Henry Spruck. On his last visit several months ago, he spent a day with his attorney, E. H. Kohlhase, arranging business matters and caused papers to be drawn assigning to Mrs. Frances Rosenblatt of Chicago three mortgages on Weratchee, Wash., real estate. The mortgages were for $15,000, $10,000 and $5,000.

Von Armenthal owned property all over the state, mostly orchard lands in the vicinity of Wenatchee.

BOAT THAT SAVED WRECK VICTIM NOW IS WRECK.

Cordova, Alaska, May 21.—The United States lighthouse tender Armeria is ashore near Cape Hinchinbrook and is being pounded to pieces by the waves. The thirty-two persons aboard, including seven officers, twenty-four men and one survivor of the crew of the lost barge Haydn Brown, were taken off by the steamship Admiral Sampson, which picked up the wireless distress signals.

The Admiral Sampson reported the loss of the Armeria by wireless and gave the additional information that the Armeria had solved the fate of the Haydn Brown, which was cut adrift by the tug Pioneer in a storm in Prince William sound May 10. The Haydn Brown drifted ashore off Montague island, in the entrance to the sound, May 12. Only two of the eight men aboard reached shore and one died of exposure the next day. August Palmer, the lone survivor, lived on canned beef until picked up by the Armeria.

Woman's Realm

Workers in the Young Women's Christian association campaign for $8,000, which they are trying to raise in eight days, have called on most of the business men near the center of the city and as much time is being wasted in walking blocks from one place to the next or in waiting for street cars automobiles placed at the disposal of the workers would be valuable donations toward the cause.

"If the women who did not have the time or strength to help in the actual soliciting," said Miss Trimble, general secretary of the association, "could offer their machines to the workers for even a half a day at a time so much more ground could be covered and the lists gone through with much more quickly.

"Yesterday was our banner day so far in the work," she continued, "the total of yesterday's pledges being $1,436.50, making a total of $4,433.50 raised during the four days' work. Contributions are coming in by mail steadily and others have signified their intention of sending in donations before the close of the campaign Friday afternoon."

THE EVENING STORY

A Pair of Moose Horns

By Bliss Coburn.

As trophies of many seasons spent in the deep wildernesses of Maine and New Brunswick, Mr. Winston has in his house an impressive number of mounted heads of bear, moose, caribou and other of the larger animals. Among those is a pair of moose antlers of unusual spread, one of them marked by a hole through the broadest part. There is no head with the great branching horns, but the story of their taking is such that the owner regards them as a significant trophy of a very poor shot.

Some years ago, before the open season was shortened, he was far up in the Aroostook region, above Munsungan lake, with his guide, still hunting on the snow. It was a few days before Christmas.

The two were crossing a hillside, when the guide, who was in the lead, suddenly stopped and threw out a warning hand.

Winston halted instantly and followed the other's example in squatting in his tracks.

"What is it, Clint?" he whispered.

Clint half turned his head. "See them bushes about a hundred yards ahead there? No, you ain't lookin' in the right place—just this side the big spruce."

"Yes, I've got it now."

"Well, there's a bull moose right in behind there. He's put his head down now, feeding, but I saw his horns when I stopped, an' he's an ol' settler. Wait a minute—there, now you can see him."

Winston looked. There was no sight of the animal's body, but above the leafless but still dense undergrowth appeared the tops of a splendid pair of horns, moving slightly as the moose crewed. He was facing up the hill, with his side toward the hunters.

"Shoot from here," whispered the guide. "You can't get any nearer," and he crouched at one side, out of Winston's path. "Aim low, now," he cautioned. "You can figger where his shoulder'll be. Remember you're shooting a little down hill. Hurry up before he moves. Hold her low, now!"

Winston did not have buck fever—he had been in the woods too long for that—but was by nature a somewhat nervous man, and the unexpectedness of the meeting excited him.

"Yes, yes. I know, I know!" he answered. He threw his rifle hastily to his shoulder and pulled the trigger. At the crack of the gun the horns disappeared from sight.

"I got him, I got him," crowed Winston. The guide listened a moment. "He ain't hurt bad, I guess, and he's going down the hill to beat the world. Come on! The two ran forward. As they approached the bushes, Winston panted:

"I tell you Clint, he's lying right there. I can see a horn."

"Horn nothing," cried Clint, excitedly. "He's making tracks for the foot of the hill—big ones too."

They broke through the screen of bushes. "What did I tell you," both men cried at once. Then Winston added, "O shucks," and Clint declared, "Well, I sawn to man," as he held up one enormous antler with a bullet hole squarely through its broad blade. At that time of the year the moose is nearly ready to shed his horns. The impact of Winston's bullet—which he had not aimed low—had given just the sudden jar necessary to shake off the heavy antler. There it lay, while its former owner was separating its mate from it as rapidly as possible. Clint's hunting instinct was the first to overcome his amusement. "Come on. He won't travel fast with that one horn. He's all lopsided."

And the trail soon gave evidence that the startled animal was finding difficulty with his suddenly unbalanced head. The left side was now some twenty-five pounds heavier than the right, and a very ill balanced twenty-five pounds, too. The moose swung constantly toward the left, stumbled every few steps, ran into trees and stumps, and was evidently having a most unpleasant time of it. In a few minutes the men were near enough to hear it crashing along in laborious awkwardness. Then there came to their ears a sudden tunk!

Ran into another tree, I guess," panted Clint. "Come on!" The next moment, however, there were indications of suddenly accelerated speed on the part of the game. Clint's jaw dropped. "I know what that means," he muttered.

"What?" gasped his employer. Before Clint found breath to answer they came in sight of a tall beech with a fresh scar on its back—and at its foot was the other horn!

A distant sound of breaking underbrush indicated the point where the moose, probably very grateful for the little assistance gave to nature, was making a speedy and final exit from the scene. "Well," said Clint, "even if you did make a thundering poor shot, you got a fine pair of horns and Mr. Moose, he ain't regretting 'em any. I guess the arrangement ought to be generally satisfactory."

WAR ON CLOSED SHOP.

New York, May 21.—Continued warfare on the "closed shop" in the printing trade was urged in a report submitted here to the seventeenth annual meeting of the National Manufacturers' association. Politicians and municipal officials were criticized for enforcing the rule of placing the union label on city printing. United action for the building of a strong American merchant marine was urged in the report of the committee on merchant marine.

The report of the committee against the union label says:

"As the presence of a union label on printed matter is an indication that it emanates from a shop closed to non-union printers, it represents a discrimination against a great class of American workmen that should be the concern of every man who believes in an equal opportunity to labor. The committee advises those who believe in the principles of the 'open shop' to return union label printing, marked with appropriate comment, and to give patronage to printing concerns ignoring the union label."

SEEN IN THE SHOPS

One of the Superior street shops is displaying a windowful of dainty undergarments which are attracting the admiration of the feminine passers-by. Several garments of novelty make and material are especially nice. Soft crepes make up prettily for underclothing, and are especially popular because of the fact that they do not require ironing. Trimmed with heavy linen laces, they are serviceable as well as pretty.

This same shop has a pretty line of nightgowns, some of a novelty material with a dainty rosebud pattern of delicate pinks or blues. They are trimmed with insertions and medallions, and have either the kimono or tiny puff sleeve.

The shopper was also interested in a line of aprons displayed on one table. There were the most practical big kitchen aprons, the kind that slip on and cover the entire gown, made of plain blues, tans and checked materials daintily trimmed with contrasting colors. They were cut out in a round Dutch neck with elbow puff sleeves, and were open all the way down the back. These were priced at $1.75. Then there were the aprons with the bibs trimmed with finishing braid or rick-rack braid, at 65 cents. These would reach nearly to the hem of the skirt; and then there were the small little tea aprons, plain and neat, or fine and elaborate, at various prices.

These aprons would make a practical gift for the dowry box of the bride-to-be or the "hope box" of the girl who has not yet found the "one man." By the way, this plan of having a "hope box," as they call it, has become quite a fad among the girls of the city, and nearly every girl has something put away as a beginning.

ALDERMEN TRY TO AVERT A STREET RAILWAY STRIKE

Ask Manager to Meet With Committee Representing the Men.

Playground Expert Gives Talk on Necessity of Supervision.

The city council last night passed a resolution intended to avert the threatened strike of the employes of the street railway company.

The aldermen called upon Herbert Warren, general manager, to meet with a committee of three members of the council for the purpose of agreeing either to settle the existing differences by conciliation through negotiations with a committee representing the employes, or by arbitration. The aldermen wish the general manager to inform them of his position not later than Thursday, May 23.

The committee which was appointed by President Hoar consists of Aldermen Hicken, Jordan and Bernard.

W. E. McEwen, editor of the Labor World, delivered a strong address in favor of the adoption of the resolution. He stated that he believed the matter could be settled without a strike being called. He pointed out that whereas the company might ignore a call from any other body to arbitrate, it could hardly afford to pay no attention to such a request coming from the city council. He said that he has been informed that the street car men are almost unanimous in their demands and that in his opinion they would not hesitate to strike if forced to do so to support their position.

Alderman Bernard said that he believed the council should pass the resolution. He asserted that he resides in the West end, where many employes of the company make their homes, and that he thought the resolution fair to them as well as to the company. Alderman Scott thought the resolution to be fair but offered a resolution to have it laid over one week. It did not receive a second and did not come to a vote. Alderman Phillips declared that he was strongly oppose to any delay.

The Resolution.

The resolution which was adopted by the council was as follows:

"Whereas, There appears to be general discontent among the motormen and conductors in the employ of the Duluth Street Railway company, and

"Whereas, The said employes of the Duluth Street Railway company are polling the system for the purpose of determining whether or not a strike shall be called to compel said company to increase wages, fix the number of working hours on a 10-hour basis within a 12-hour limit and providing for a sanitary waiting room, and,

"Whereas, The employes of the Duluth Street Railway company have shown a disposition to be fair with said company, and have used unusually conservative means to urge the company to voluntarily remedy the conditions that to them seemed unsatisfactory, all of which the management of the Duluth Street Railway company has seemingly ignored, and,

"Whereas, It is reported to this council that many employes have been discharged from the service of the company for no apparent reason other than that they were suspected of encouraging the printing of letters in the newspapers urging the public to help them secure better conditions, and many other employes have left the service of the company on their own free will, because of the fact that they were obliged to labor for less than a living wage, and,

"Whereas, It is the opinion of the council that a street railway strike should be averted, and we, the members thereof, deem it our duty to use our public office for the purpose of attempting to bring about an adjustment of the differences existing. A strike will be bad for the city of Duluth at this time. It will mean inconvenience to the public at large. It will seriously affect business and it will place too great a hazard upon life and property; therefore be it

"Resolved, By the common council of the city of Duluth, that General Manager Herbert Warren of the Duluth Street Railway company is hereby requested to meet with a committee of three to be appointed by the president of this council for the purpose of agreeing either to settle the existing differences by conciliation through collective bargaining with a committee representing the employes or through arbitration, and be it further

"Resolved, That the city clerk is hereby directed to forthwith forward a copy of this resolution to Herbert Warren, general manager of the Duluth Street Railway company, with the request that an answer be given at his earliest possible convenience and not later than Thursday, May 29, 1912."

Dr. Henry S. Curtis of New York, playgrounds expert, made a most favorable impression upon the aldermen by his able presentation of the subject. He explained that he has not yet had time to thoroughly familiarize himself with conditions in Duluth but that this city like many others would find the playgrounds a good business investment. He said that about 500 municipalities are now equipped with playgrounds, the growth for the last four or five years having been at the rate of approximately 100 per cent a year. He laid much stress upon the importance of having the playgrounds supervised, citing figures of different cities to prove that supervision greatly increases the attendance. In one large city he stated that while the regular supervisor was present about 400 children made use of the grounds; that when a substitute was placed in charge the attendance dropped to 200, and that when the janitor was placed in charge scarcely half a dozen could be seen making use of the grounds. In the same cities he declared that the supervised grounds greatly exceed the others in attendance.

Attorney Bert Fesler submitted a proposition whereby the city can exchange its Ramsey street dock holdings, consisting of 15,000 square feet, for another nearby tract of 27,000 square feet. He believed that the trade would be an advantageous one for the city, explaining that it would be much more adaptable for dock purposes. The matter was referred to a committee for investigation.

The committee on streets, alleys and sidewalks submitted its report on the proposed street car extension to New Duluth. The committee believed that an underground crossing of the Northern Pacific tracks and a concrete culvert and fill for the Grand avenue bridge, part of which was destroyed by fire a year ago, were desirable changes. But it was pointed out that the permanent improvement fund is too short of cash to allow the changes to be made this year. The committee thought that provision for the changes should be made in the budget for next year. The council also wants to know definitely if the company will build the extension if the city spends the $20,000 which, it is estimated, that the imporvements will cost.

The patrol limits were moved back to Twenty-fourth avenue west. Alderman Curren registered the only vote against it, stating that he knew what he was voting for when he approved the extension and that his position had not changed. Another ordinance to further reduce the limits to Twenty-third avenue west had its first reading. Applications were received for the renewal of the two licenses on the east side of Twenty-third avenue west.

The application of J. T. Condon for a license to conduct a dance hall at Lester Park was passed unanimously. No opposition was offered from any source, contrary to expectations.

The board of public works asked the council for an appropriation of $2,000 for the balance of the year. The request was referred to the finance committee. A committee consisting of Aldermen Scott and Gibson was appointed to confer with the welfare board and the county commissioners relative to a correctional farm.

The board of water and light commissioners was granted permission to run pipes to Park Point over the aerial bridge to conduct gas to residents on the other side of the canal. Much difficulty has been encountered in giving satisfactory service with the pipes under water.

The city assessor was authorized to advertise for bids for an adding machine to be used in his department. It was reported that the business of the office has become so heavy that it cannot be properly taken care of without such a machine.

The board of public works sent in a communication stating that its funds are insufficient, while there is a big balance in the street maintenance and repair fund. The board wanted to know if it could borrow from the latter fund, thus saving the payment of interest. The matter was referred to the finance committee and the city attorney.

The building inspector reported that an application has been made for a dance hall license for the Armory, but that it cannot be granted because the building does not comply with the provisions of the ordinance. He pointed out that he had submitted plans for making the necessary changes two years ago, but that no action had been taken on them by the council. The estimated cost of the alterations was about $1,000, and at that time the aldermen did not deem it a wise expenditure. The proposition was referred to the committee on city property.

The city engineer was directed to make a survey to relieve the sewer congestion in the district between Twenty-third and Twenty-sixth avenues east and Fourth and Seventh streets.

The engineer was directed to make an estimate of the cost of establishing the grade of Twentieth avenue east between Fourth and Sixth streets.

The same department was asked for an estimate of the cost of extending the storm sewer in First avenue west far enough into the Lake avenue slip to eliminate any nuisance and of connecting the Lake avenue sanitary sewer with it.

The board of public works was directed to readvertise for accident insurance for the rock crusher and the stone quarries.

The custodian of the city hall was directed to ask for bids for repapering and varnishing the council chambers.

The council committee on drains, sewers and sanitation will meet with a committee of the Fifth Ward Improvement club, the city engineer and the health commissioner to consider the proposition of further extending the concrete inclosure over Buckingham creek at Twelfth avenue west, Wednesday at 2 o'clock.

The use of the council chambers for May 23 was granted to those who desire to form a Wilson club.

• • •

Mrs. Susie Knapp filed a notice of a claim of $5,000 for injuries alleged to have been sustained at Sixty-second avenue west, near Grand avenue, through the negligence of the city.

The expenditure of not to exceed $25 was authorized for the printing of copies of the housing ordinance. It is expected that the proposed new ordinance will be submitted to the council next Monday night.

"DURNED FOOL BEAR" COST THE OLD TRAPPER JUST $17

"That durned fool bear, he couldn't mind his own business—he just had to go a buttin' in and it cost me $17," angrily exclaimed an old trapper of the Knife river region, as he threw down the black-furred hide of the animal on the floor of a taxidermist's establishment on West Superior street today.

"Why couldn't that fellow let my traps alone?" he continued in the same tone of disgust. "I didn't want him. I was after a wolf and I'd a got him and it would a been worth $20 to me, if this fool hadn't butted in. I'd a had $5 for the fur and $15 for the bounty. I saw that wolf in the hollow right near where I set the traps and I knew he had to follow the trail and run into the traps. But along comes this here crazy cuss and gets himself caught in one of the traps and scares the wolf away. I killed him, you bet, but all I get is $3 for the hide."

LATEST SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

BRUCE'S COLUMN

COMMENT AND DIVERS DISCUSSION OF THE MERRY WORLD OF SPORT.

THERE is always a why and wherefore and other things besides when some one high up in the white glare of the publicity light, the one that glares and glimmers and attracts the moths, hits a bump and must stop long enough for repairs or meditation. Thus is Ad Wolgast, the champion, the genuine blown in the bottle kind of a scrapper, the fair-haired boy, the 99 per cent pure pugilist, coming to the stage where the reasons why are sprung. There is somewhere a line in one of the greatest poems ever written that says, "Theirs' not to reason why," etc. This is one of the considerations that ought to apply to the champions. Let the public play the role of George, and do it.

On the coast they are saying that the champ has gotten by the stage where he can smoke big black cigars all the time, up to within a few sultry days of the training period, and then expect to be in the best condition when he climbs through the ropes. All this is true, trite and not trivial.

They say, and we refer here to the exchanges, to the fact that Ad is not the mere youth that he was in the merry days of the past. As age advances the caution of man should grow also. The very fact that the critics of the game are beginning to invent some reasons and wherefores for the showing of the champion against this Willie Ritchie—though we thought that the showing was all it should have been—shows that there may be something wrong with the greatest fighting machine since the palmy days of Bat Nelson.

And so it has ever been. People knew that Jim Corbett was not the flashy youngster of old after he was beaten by Fitzsimmons. Jim Jeffries was only a shell after the fight with Johnson, though there was the capital I crowd of critics from the East, the bunch that was so sure Jeff was going to annihilate the negro that they assisted their friends generally in the loss of copious kale. In the case of Wolgast it may be that the critics have awakened sooner than the alarm clock of precedent has been in the habit of going off, and that there is something of a falling off of form in the broad-shouldered little champion.

Shooting from the home targets, we are going to string along with the man from Cadillac in his next fight, and any time he starts over the four-round route with Ritchie, we are going to hold to the German. Unless Wolgast has faded woefully, like the soubrette out of work, he is too good for the boys of his class.

⊙ ⊙ ⊙ ⊙

TROUBLE starts more trouble. One sheep starts another, and though trouble is meaner generally and lacks that poetic mildness of the bah bah brand of Western means of self support, the simile is there nevertheless. We are going to speak of the mess, muss and muddle that chesty Tyrus Cobb has stirred up, aided and abetted by the members of the Detroit team. Ban Johnson may have been too impulsive; but the fact remains—until early in the morning, like a true sport—that Ty Cobb is so chesty that the time has come when he should have some strong hand pull on the anchor rope and bring him down to earth with the rest of the blase and soul-ridden mortals.

One thing, sweet Geraldine, don't think that fat Ban will weaken. He will stick until the last and most truculent towser is hung. He is the little white czar of baseball; in fact he is two or three czars rolly baked into one. He would make the ruler of the Russians look as mild and meaningless as a man whose wife has just been elected to the presidency of a militant suffragette rough throwing club. Non, no; he won't weaken; put your bet on Ban.

Ban might have been hasty, but on the other hand, the one with the ring—this Cobb had no right to hurdle the bleacher rail and add to the general gayety of the game by pummeling the holder of the two-bit seat. It's safer to sit in the grandstand, as they have wire and policemen in the most convenient places.

Trouble draws trouble, like cheese draws Teutons and mice. Ban may have increased the burdens of his office by acting with impulse, but at the same time little Tyrus Raymond wears a rich red mantle of blame and he will be lucky if he escapes without having his little $10,000 hanies pat-a-patted.

YESTERDAY a gent from Chicago blew in, registered at one of the rest and ration houses, slung his coat to a bell hop, and then started to talk baseball. "The crowds have started to go to the White Sox park," he began. "We never did like Murphy any too well in Chicago, and now that the Cubs have started to lose and the Sox are way up there ahead of the procession, there is nothing to it. The Cubs are through. Lenox hasn't made good at third and the pitchers are about the worst in the old league. DETROIT'S STAR BOX MAN IS SHOWING FORM

GEORGE DUBUC.

TIGERS CALL STRIKE OFF

Detroit Team Is Playing at Washington Minus "Ty" Cobb.

Player Who Caused Trouble Urges Team to Continue Without Him.

Philadelphia, May 21.—On the ground that they did not want to see Frank Navin, president of the club, suffer for any action on their part, the players of the Detroit American league baseball club called off their strike late yesterday afternoon and agreed to play the regular scheduled game in Washington today, without the services of Ty Cobb. Thus ends one of the most extraordinary situations that has ever been brought about in organized baseball. In announcing their decision to return to the field the players said they want it distinctly understood that they will still fight for the principle involved, and for which they struck.

In returning to the club the players received no concessions from Ban Johnson, who had indefinitely suspended Ty Cobb for attacking a spectator in a game in New York last week. Mr. Navin, however, promised the men that if they returned he would do his utmost to have Cobb reinstated as quickly as possible; that he would do all he could as a club owner to have the American league give better protection to the players on the field against unsportsmanlike conduct on the part of the spectators, and that he will see that none of the players will suffer any financial loss as the result of any fines that may be imposed upon them by the league.

To Hold Special Meeting.

The special meeting of the American league will be held today. The club owners will decide what punishment, if any, should be inflicted upon the strikers. The question of a fine against the club, it is expected, will also be taken up by the league. After the meeting President Johnson will go to New York and investigate the assault case and on the result of this inquiry, it is said, will depend the re-instatement of the star center fielder. When Mr. Johnson was told that some of the players had intimated that Cobb might be re-instated Wednesday or Thursday, he said they had "another guess." Mr. Johnson would not talk about the action of the men in determining to return to the field. Matters began to develop as soon as Mr. Navin arrived here early in the day. His first action was to see Mr. Johnson. Upon leaving to go into conference with the players, Mr. Navin said that it was a question whether the players or the club owners would run the league.

The Detroit president was in conference with his men for nearly two hours. He told them that Mr. Johnson had announced to him that there would be no compromise and that they would have to return to the ball field without Ty Cobb or take the consequences.

Navin Appeals to Players.

Mr. Navin made a personal appeal to them. He told them that he was the principal sufferer in the affair and he did not feel that it was just to him.

Cobb told the players that he felt he was responsible for what had occurred, and that while he appreciated the action of his team-mates, he felt that for the sake of Mr. Navin, who had always treated them well, the players should reconsider their action and return to the club. He added that he was willing to stand alone and take whatever is coming, one way or the other.

The result of the conference was a proposition from the players delivered to Mr. Johnson by Mr. Navin, which it was understood was to the effect that the men would return to the game if Cobb were reinstated on Wednesday or at some fixed time. Mr. Navin did not bring back a very favorable reply according to the players, but reported that Mr. Johnson had put the matter up to Mr. Navin that he must place a team in the field. The players then decided that Mr. Navin should not be the innocent sufferer.

The second conference was brief and shortly before 4 o'clock the newspaper men were called in and the announcement was made in the presence of Mr. Navin that they had agreed to play in Washington today without Ty Cobb on the promises made by President Navin.

CLUB OFFICIALS TO PLAN WORK

At a meeting to be held next Thursday it is expected that the captains of the various athletic departments of the Duluth Boat club will be appointed for the present season. John E. MacGregor is slated to be again chosen as the captain of the rowing department, and it is stated that Charles Brewer will also be at the head of the sailing department.

At the meeting of the officials, set for next week, it is also probable that the carnival committee will be appointed. It is stated that the carnival will be held the week before the Northwestern International regatta, which will very likely be held at Winnipeg July 26 and 27.

In the event that it is definitely planned to hold a carnival of the size of the one attempted last year, overtures may be made to some of the Eastern and Western Boat clubs in order that some visiting crews may be here for the boat races. However this phase of the carnival has not been definitely decided upon as yet.

Plans are already being made for the summer sport program at the club, and with the announcement of the appointment of the various department captains, the program will be about ready to be announced.

NORTHERN PACIFIC TEAM ENTERS THE LOCAL FIELD.

The Northern Pacific engineering department has organized a baseball team under the management of P. W. Stickney at the Y. M. C. A. and is looking for games with any fast organization in the Northwest.

They will play a similar organization from St. Paul at White Bear next Saturday, May 25 and will line up as follows: Parlane, catcher; Stickney, McGinnis, Daniels, Hope, pitchers; Pierce, first base; Pinger, second base; Rankin, shorstop; Ponthan, third base; O'Donnell, left field; Cullen, center field; Drennan, right field.

Bout Is Postponed.

New York, May 21.—The bout between Sid Burns of England and Mike Gibbons of St. Paul, which was to have been held in Madison Square Garden tonight, has been postponed because of illness of the Englishman. He is suffering with stomach trouble and has been ordered to stop training. His manager hopes he will be in condition to fight in about three weeks.

Temple Gets Decision.

Memphis, May 21.—Ray Temple of Milwaukee was awarded the decision over Joe Mandot of New Orleans, at the end of an eight-round bout here last night.

Wisconsin-Illinois.

At Wausau, 1; Rockord, 8.
Aurora at Green Bay, wet grounds.
Madison at Oshkosh, wet grounds.
Racine at Appleton, rain.

White Beats Moran.

Syracuse, May 21.—Owen Moran, worsted in six of the rounds, twice fouled Charley White of Chicago in the ninth round of their battle here last night. The Chicago boy fought one of the best battles of his career. In the second round a terrific hook to the jaw sent the Englishman spinning to the floor. At the close of the eighth round, he had given Moran a bad beating.

WHITE HOSE WIN EASILY

Grand Forks Loses Opening Home Game By Score of 5 to 1.

League Season Dedicated By Parade and Speech By Mayor.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Grand Forks found Mr. Robert Worman of Duluth "some" pitcher yesterday afternoon, and that fact was the principal cause resulting in their defeat by a score of 5 to 1 in the first game on the local grounds. A crowd of nearly 2,000 people saw the locals defeated by the Zenith City aggregation in a game that found Grand Forks outfielding Duluth, but with the O'Brienites stronger at the stick and quite capable of handling one Mr. Wilson sent to the mound by Lohr. In fact, so capable were they that ten hits were credited to them before the day was over.

Weather conditions were ideal, and when Mayor M. F. Murphy, after a short talk to the crowd, in which he told them just how much he thought of the old town, pitched the first ball right square over the pan, and Kuehn missed it about a mile, Grand Forks fans yelled themselves hoarse, but it didn't help much. They just yelled and yelled; in the meantime the Dacotahs got on, and twice looked mighty formidable, but Worman steadied and the fun was over.

That man Worman was there. Five hits was all he allowed, and he scattered them over four innings, and all were singles. He had nine strike-outs to his credit, as well as three assists. And he also made a hit and a run.

Wilson lacked ability to hold the White Sox polers down. The first two men up tallied on hits, one of them a homer. In the third two singles and a sacrifice fly off his delivery netted the Duluthians a run, and in the seventh he presented Duluth with a run by a pair of wild pitches after a hit. Then, in the eighth, Duluth coupled a two-bagger with a base on balls and a fielder's choice, and there was another run across the pan.

The support back of Worman was not all that it should have been, and no less than five men got to first base on errors. Only two Duluthians got to first on bungles by the Lohr gang. None of the errors by Grand Forks figured in the run getting, excepting the wild pitches in the seventh by Wilson. Sours' failure to handle a grounder gave the Lohr team its one run.

Game in Detail.

But here are the sordid details:

First inning—Duluth: Kuehn singled and McGraw lammed one back to the fence, and scampered around with Kuehn in front. Menlece gained life on an error by Van Dine, who booted a grounder, but he died at second, which he stole, when Leber whiffed; Sours flied to Stovern, and O'Brien went out, Strain to Foster. For Grand Forks, Donovan went out on a fly in front of the pan, grabbed off by Erickson, and Strain and Bell fanned.

Second inning—Blum flew to Donovan; Erickson singled, while Worman went out on a pop up to Van Dine. Then Kuehn singled, but Erickson was caught napping at third, Edmunds to Van Dine. Van Dine opened for the Lohr tribe by going out at first, Worman to Blum. Foster gained life on a base on balls, and stole second. Then Lohr hit, advancing Foster to third, and he scored when Sours bungled a grounder off Edmund's bat. Stovern fanned and Wilson flew to Sours.

Third inning—McGraw fanned, and Menelce and Leber singled in order. Sours gained life on Wilson's error and Menelce scored when O'Brien batted a long one into left field, on which he went ort. Blum grounded to Foster and was out. Donovan started again for Grand Forks by going out on a foul to Kuehn. Strain whiffed, Bell got life on Blum's error, Van Dine retiring the side when he grounded to O'Brien and was thrown out at first.

Fourth inning—The fourth was short for Duluth. Erickson and Kuehn fanned, and Worman flew to Strain. Edmunds got on for Grand Forks by singling after Foster had flown to Leber, and Lohr had been thrown out at first by Worman. Stovern flew to Menelce and it was done.

Fifth inning—McGraw and Menelce went out in order on flies to Lohr in center, and Leber was thrown out at first by Strain. Things looked promising for Grand Forks in its half of the fifth. Wilson fanned, and Donovan gained life on an error by Sours, while Strain flew to McGraw. Bell singled and a moment later he and Donovan worked the double steal. But Worman tightened and Van Dine whiffed.

Sixth inning—Sours singled, but was tagged between second and third by Bell when he got a grounder off O'Brien's bat. O'Brien stole second and died there, with Blum going out at first, while Erickson fanned. Then Grand Forks had another good chance, filling the bases with singles by Lohr and Edmunds, Stovern getting on by O'Brien's bungle of a grounder. Foster had gone down before the base filling episode, and when Wilson fanned, while Donovan went out at first, O'Brien handling an easy grounder to Blum.

Seventh inning—Worman singled, went to second on a wild pitch, advanced to third when Kuehn went out at first, and then scored on another wild heave. McGraw gained life on a base on balls, and Menelce went out at first, Worman handling the ball. Leber flew to Kuehn.

Eighth inning—The eighth netted another for Duluth. Sours went to first on four wide ones, O'Brien getting to first on a fielders' choice, Sours being napping at second. Then Blum advanced O'Brien, going out himself at first. O'Brien scored when Erickson doubled, and the side retired with Worman's fanning of the breeze. In its half of the eighth, Grand Forks got one man on, Foster getting there through McGraw's muff of a fly. Lohr flew to Menelce, Edmunds flew to Bell, and Stovern flew to McGraw.

Ninth inning—Kuehn went out on a fly to Lohr, while McGraw gained life on an error by Strain, but he was caught loafing off the base, Wilson to Foster. Menelce doubled, and went out, Edmunds to Strain, while trying to steal second. Heiser batter for Wilson and fanned; Donovan flew to Sours, and Strain went out, Leber to Blum.

SUPERIOR WINS OPENING GAME

Winnipeg Defeated in Extra Inning Contest By 4 to 3 Score.

Winnipeg, Man., May 21.—The Central International league season was formally opened here yesterday before a crowd estimated at over 3,000 people. A parade to Riverview park, speeches by public officials and the usual official throwing of the first ball across, marked the ushering in of the new league. After the festivities the visitors defeated the Maroons by the score of 4 to 3, the contest requiring eleven innings.

Hirsch and Chief Chase tied up in a hurling duel, the Indian having much the better support. In the final inning two errors upon the part of the locals combined with two hits allowed the Red Sox to score two runs. Briggs and Anderson did the heavy hitting for the visitors.

THREE YEARS OF MISERY

Mrs. Burnside Escaped an Operation by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mahoningtown, Pa.—"For three years I suffered untold misery every month, and had to stay in bed the first two or three days. I also had a displacement and other ailments peculiar to women. I became so weak and run down I could scarcely walk across the floor.

"The doctor told me I would never be well unless I would undergo an operation, but I was advised by my mother to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and after I had taken four bottles I am strong and well. I have got others to take your medicine with the same good results and they cannot say enough for it."—Mrs. J. A. BURNSIDE, Mahoningtown, Pa.

Thousands of unsolicited and genuine testimonials like the above prove the efficiency of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Women who suffer from those distressing ills should not lose sight of these facts or doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegecable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

How to Beautify the Hair

This Simple Home-Treatment Restores Color and Sheen to Gray or Faded Hair

Gray or faded hair is as welcome to a woman as a wrinkled skin—either of which is ruinous to true beauty. When the brunette finds her hair growing gray, streaky or losing its lustre, she should avoid injurious dyes or worthless hair "shaders," and get a small, original package of barsicum and steep it in one pint of water, then moisten the comb and comb the hair thoroughly each night until former shade and gloss are restored.

Hair of Titian or auburn hue can soon be restored to its original color and brilliancy by washing with a tea made by putting an ounce of cambia in a pint of boiling water, and she who would bring back the shimmery golden color to her hair should wash it in plain arbane tea. This method is harmless and unfailing.

SHARED IN THE WAGES OF SIN

Philip St. Mary and his wife, Clara, charged by a grand jury indictment with having received earnings from an immoral woman, Minnie Lee, aged 17, and to have furnished her a room at their home, 123 West First street, were found guilty by a jury in district court this afternoon and recommended to the mercy of the court.

The Lee girl was the only witness called by the state. She told a story which corroborated the facts charged in the indictment. She asserted that she had given the St. Marys $100 during her stay at their home for three months, January to March inclusive, this year.

St. Mary and his wife were both on the stand and told a different version of the affair. Their claim was that the girl had simply been taken in because she was "down and out" and an object for pity. They were playing the Good Samaritan, so to speak.

When the Lee girl came to the St. Mary apartments no express agreement was made as to what room and board she was to pay. The St. Marys testified that they received during three months about $15 from the girl and that when they had an intimation that she was not leading a moral life, they as first remonstrated with her and then ordered her out.

Mrs. St. Mary is 23 years old.

At the time of her arrest, Mrs. St. Mary was employed as a clerk at the Leader store, this city. She was working under the name of Miss Olson, she explained in order that she might keep her place and earn an honest living. She testified that she was not seeking to avoid arrest.

The Lee girl, the state's witness, broke down under a gruelling cross-examination of William Marx, who defended the St. Marys. He introduced several witnesses to impeach the testimony of the girl.

LONGLEY MADE SUFFRAGAN BISHOP

He was chosen on the sixth ballot with 21 clerical and 55 lay votes. The new bishop's place of residence will be designated by Bishop Morrison and a committee chosen for that purpose.

To Erase Marks Left by Father Time

It is an easy matter to erase wrinkles and "crow's feet" with an ordinary Chinese ice-pencil, if the skin is first cleansed of impurities, then a coating of Chinese ice applied to the crevices and a gentle massage employed. This dissolves the fatty tissues on each side of the wrinkles and at the same time energizes the membranes underneath the furrows. Invariably but few treatments are required to rub out every trace of wrinkle or line.

Because of its slightly astringent properties, Chinese ice is splendid for sagging muscles or flabby skins. The ice should be generously applied, then massaged from point of chin to ears. This gradually reduces the muscles to their normal size and proportions. Frequent applications of the Chinese ice-pencil clear the skin of all impurities and gives to a "muddy" or oily complexion a soft, velvety appearance and healthy tint. Chinese ice-pencils are inexpensive and can be had at any drug store.

ON THE IRON RANGES

ALLOWS MORGAN TO BE CITY ATTORNEY

Virginia, Minn., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The new city attorney, D. D. Morgan is expected to assume office at tonight's council meeting. Mayor Murphy has permitted the resolution appointing Mr. Morgan to become effective without his signature.

Two important matters in which the new city attorney will figure will be the annexation of a tract east of the present city limits which is opposed by the Oliver Iron Mining company, and municipal ownership, providing the city goes ahead with what has been outlined in the way of acquiring the property of the Virginia, Electric Power & Water company.

The council has only two more meetings before the special election at which six of the nine aldermen may be recalled. All are candidates for re-election.

ADAMS CONTRACT IS GIGANTIC ONE

Eveleth, Minn., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.—The Adams mine, about which the papers printed stories that it was soon to be stripped by the iron ore branch of the Great Northern Railway company, does not lie close to Eveleth, as the papers state, but is in the Chisholm territory, definitely described as the southwest quarter of section 27, township 58, range 20, about one-half mile south of Longyear lake, and described on maps of the ore lands as the J. E. Adams prospect.

Great Deposit of Ore.

It is an immense deposit of ore, assessed by the state at 17,611,433 tons. It is understood that the stripping contract, aggregating the removal of 6,000,000 yards of overburden, will be let to the Drake & Stratton company.

MASS MEETING TO DISCUSS ROAD LAW

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Tomorrow evening the people of Itasca county will meet in mass meeting with the county commissioners at the courthouse to discuss the location of roads which are to be built in Itasca county under the Elwell law and to give the largest number a clear insight into the workings of the law.

Itasca county is taking this action in order to get the greatest possible benefits from the Elwell law.

Commissioners for Good Roads.

The county commissioners are keen for good roads and all want to get the work started on the roads in this county which will be built under the Elwell law. At the meeting tomorrow night representatives from all the towns of the county are expected to be present and a number of rousing speeches will be delivered. It is expected that there will be an impressive array of speeches as most of the best speakers in the county will be present.

FAVORS ANNEXATION.

Mayor Weirick Believes Hibbing and Alice Should Consolidate.

Hibbing, Minn., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mayor H. R. Weirick is quoted as being in favor of annexing Alice to Hibbing, especially since the efforts of the nearby village to expend a large amount in improvements have been balked in the courts by a mining company that objects to the expenditure. Dr. Weirick believes each community would benefit by the consolidation and that it is only a question of a few years when the two towns will be one and the people might just as well anticipate that time now as any other time. Hibbing needs Alice and Alice needs Hibbing, as the mayor sees it. He does not commit himself to spending $75,000 in improvements in Alice just now as the citizens of the village want to but believes there should be a reasonable expenditure.

HIBBING SUFFRAGE CLUB.

Expected to Be Formed During Dr. McCoy's Visit.

Hibbing, Minn., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—During the visit of Dr. Mary McCoy to Hibbing today to deliver an address at the annual meeting of the Saturday club, an effort will be made to organize a suffrage club in Hibbing.

The movement was gotten under way here several weeks ago, when Miss Mary McFadden of Duluth visited the city and delivered an address on suffrage at the Armory. There are a number of enthusiastic suffragists in the city who would like to see the movement culminate in the organization of a club, and it will probably be undertaken today.

Today's meeting of the Saturday club will be the last of the current club year. The husbands of the members will be guests at a social affair to be held at the public library this evening, when there will be a program of vocal and instrumental music and an address on suffrage by Dr. Mary McCoy.

NEW SANITARIUM IS READY FOR PATIENTS.

Although a formal opening of the new St. Louis county tuberculosis sanitarium, Nopeming, will not be held until June, the first patients will be received this week.

All equipment has been put in place, including bedding and furniture and the building is in charge of the matron, Mrs. John M. Townsend and head nurse, Miss Grace Holmes.

Contractor Emil Zauft has not yet officially turned over the buildings to the county, although they are practically completed. Work has just been finished on the drilling of a well. Water was struck at 200 feet, the well supplying 10,000 gallons a day. An analysis shows the water pure.

The Canadian Northern has chosen Nopeming for the name of the station on its new line one half mile from the sanitarium.

NEW SECRETARY NOT YET SELECTED

It is not believed that a selection will be made of the new secretary of the Duluth Y. M. C. A. for the next two weeks. At least this is the belief of the members of the board of directors of the association. President F. E. House of the Duluth & Iron Range, who is the chairman of the board of directors, is at the present time going over the matter, but he says that it will require some time before a decision is reached.

In the meantime Assistant Secretary Ranck is doing the work and preparing the statements for the coming month.

Will Close Out the Entire Stock.

Mr. Charles Decker of Decker's Art store will close out his entire stock, consisting principally of Pictures, Frames, Mouldings, Artists' Materials, Books and Church goods. Each department will carry a new stock of the best the market can produce as soon as the art store is remodeled.

This is an excellent opportunity of buying artistic pictures at a very low cost. The stock consists of Oil Paintings, Water Colors, Etchings, Photogravures, Carbons and all copyrighted subjects.

RETURNS FROM WESTERN TOUR

That Los Angeles is not a boom town, dependent upon its climate and tourists for what business it gets, but has real solid commercial backing was a statement made today by George H. Crosby, who has just returned to Duluth after a vacation of four months in California. Mr. and Mrs. Crosby, their daughter Margaret, and Mrs. Crosby's mother, Mrs. W. H. Stultz of Duluth, have been spending a great deal of time during the past winter in touring that state. The winter home of the Crosby family is at Pasadena.

Mr. Crosby and the rest of his touring party spent a great deal of time at Los Angeles. Mr. Crosby says that in his opinion the commercial prosperity of Los Angeles is due largely to the fact of the close relationship between that city and the country which surrounds it. The country around Los Angeles, once consisting of great ranches, is now cut up into small farms and ranches of about ten acres each. These supply Los Angeles markets with its food products. Furthermore, the oil industry is a big business factor in that city. The machinery and equipment for that enterprise are manufactured in Los Angeles.

Mr. Crosby says that in his opinion tourists spend about $1,000,000 a day in California and a third to a half is spent in Los Angeles. The city has business property selling at $6,500 to $7,500 a front foot and it pays a good revenue on such an investment. The aggregate of the building permits is immense, being exceeded by but few American cities.

Motherhood

The highest point of woman's happiness is reached only through motherhood, in the clasping of her child within her arms. Yet the mother-to-be is often fearful of nature's ordeal and shrinks from the suffering incident to its consummation. But for nature's ills and discomforts nature provides remedies, and in Mother's Friend is to be found a medicine of great value to every expectant mother. It is an emulsion for external application, composed of ingredients which act with beneficial and soothing effect on those portions of the system involved. It is intended to prepare the system for the crisis, and thus relieve, in great part, the suffering through which the mother usually passes. The regular use of Mother's Friend will repay any mother in the comfort it affords before, and the helpful restoration to health and strength it brings about after baby comes. Mother's Friend is for sale at drug stores. Write for our free book for expectant mothers which contains much valuable information, and many suggestions of a helpful nature.

FUNERAL OF ACCIDENT VICTIM

IRENE M. KLUG.

The funeral of Irene M. Klug, the 6-year-old daughter of Richard Klug, 5013 Roosevelt street, who died at her home Sunday morning as a result of injuries sustained in an accident at the Union Match factory Saturday afternoon, was held at 2 o'clock this afternoon from the residence. At 2:30 a second service was held at the German Lutheran church, Sixty-seventh avenue west and Raleigh street. Rev. Walter Sievers, pastor of the church, officiated and interment was in Oneota cemetery.

THREE TALKS ON PLAYGROUNDS

The program for today called for three talks by Dr. Henry S. Curtis of New York, president of the National Playgrounds association.

At noon Dr. Curtis addressed the newspaper men of the city at the Duluth Commercial club. This afternoon he is meeting with members of social organizations at the Y. M. C. A. Members of the Woman's Council, the Associated Charities and other organizations are in attendance.

The main address for the day will be given at the high school auditorium at 8 o'clock tonight. The meeting is especially for the teachers of the city, but the general public is invited. Dr. Curtis' talk, which will give the playgrounds experiences of other cities, will be illustrated by lantern slides.

Dr. Curtis is meeting with a hearty reception in Duluth. He found the playground movement well organized, if somewhat deficient in funds, and a lively interest in the work promises much for the future. His practical suggestions will give impetus to the movement here.

DEMONSTRATION PLOTS

For Farm Experiments to Be Selected Near Cass Lake.

Cass Lake, Minn., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Ray W. Labbitt of St. Paul, who is connected with the Great Northern railway agricultural extension department spent yesterday in this vicinity looking over the territory tentatively with a view to locating later in the season about four demonstration plots under the system which the Great Northern has of paying a premium for the handling of the plots by the owners thereof under the supervision of their experts. The owners of the land is to farm it under expert advice and the railway company will furnish seed and pay a premium besides for the use of the ground for the demonstration. The crop also goes to the owner.

Cass Lake people were very enthusiastic about the proposition and Mr. Labbitt was shown various suitable tracts and the owners all expressed enthusiastic desire to cooperate with the railway company in the work. Mr. Labbitt stated that while he was only making a preliminary trip and could not give any definite assurances as to where these plots would be located, if any, still he felt that the enthusiastic reception he received both in Cass Lake and from the farmers indicated one of the best requisites necessary for securing same, in his opinion. He stated that the value of the work would be much greater if enthusiastic co-operation such as shown here is secured, than otherwise.

AN UPWARD REACTION

Today's Bulge Almost Exactly Equals the Decline of Yesterday.

Flaxseed Is Higher at Duluth —Foreign News Is Quite Bullish.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 21.—The closing prices of wheat on the markets of North America today were almost exactly the same as those of Saturday. Today there was a bulge that wiped out the decline which took place yesterday. It was partly due to a reaction, and in part to somewhat bullish market news. Duluth July wheat closed today at an advance of ⅞c, just equal to the slump that took place yesterday. Duluth cash wheat closed ½c over July. Oats closed 1⅞c higher. Durum, rye and barley were unchanged. Duluth May flaxseed closed 1c higher and July ¾c higher.

The slump that took place in wheat on the markets of North America yesterday was about wiped out by the rise that occurred this morning. There was nothing sensationally bullish in the crop news or in any other market news, but there was a reactionary movement from the slump of yesterday almost as soon as the market opened this morning and wheat gradually strengthened through the morning. The American primary receipts showed a considerable decrease from those of a year ago, but about the only distinctly bullish news consisted of some reports of damaged wheat in the fields of Missouri. This was hardly a new factor, however, but merely a confirmation of what had been heard before. Bradstreet's report of the world's visible supply of wheat perhaps helped the bull movement. He reported a total decrease of nearly 5,000,000 bushels the world over and of this more than 3,000,000 was in the United States. Europe showed a considerable increase. The Canadian decrease was larger than that of the United States. There was nothing particularly sensational about the report, however, for it did little else than confirm impressions that had already existed in the minds of American wheat traders in general.

Wheat on the Liverpool market closed unchanged to ¼d lower. The bearishness was due chiefly to weakness at Buenos Ayres, the pressure of Indian offers, the increase in the European visible and a forecast of heavy shipments from Argentina and Canada.

Duluth July wheat, which closed yesterday at $1.13⅛ asked, opened today at $1.13½ bid, and at noon was quoted at $1.14 bid. There were higher quotations likewise at Minneapolis, Chicago and Winnipeg.

Flaxseed Is Stronger.

Flaxseed was strong this morning, not only at Duluth, but on other markets. There seems to be a general scarcity of first-class seed. The Duluth May option, instead of declining, today made new high records for the year, and at noon was 1c higher at $2.29½. July was ¾c higher at $2.14. The rise was without doubt encouraged by bullish news from other markets. Buenos Ayres May last night closed 1⅝c higher at $1.78⅞. London Calcutta May and June seed closed today ⅞c up at $2.32½. May flax on the Winnipeg market at noon today was 2½c up at $1.96½ bid. There were 3 cars of flaxseed on the Duluth tracks for inspection.

T. H. Hagen, local manager of Stair, Christensen & Timmerman, who recently returned from a business trip to Colorado, declares that the prospects for a large grain crop in the Southwest are excellent. "We heard a great deal about winter killing in Missouri and Kansas," he said today. "What really killed the wheat in spots was the excessive amount of water when the vast quantity of snow melted off. In many places it was drowned out. That explains the peculiar condition of a considerable quantity of wheat being killed, and what is left being in excellent condition. But, where the wheat was drowned out, the acreage will not be lost, but will be used for spring wheat, oats and other grains. The same thing is true of the killed acreage farther East. While spring wheat will not give as good results as would have been obtained from winter wheat, the use of the land for the crop-growing season will not by any means be lost.

"Colorado, like Montana, is fast turning from a cattle-raising to a wheat-raising state. The huge ranches are being cut up into farms. The farms, of course, produce far more food to the acre, but meat naturally grows more expensive as the ranches are made smaller and diminished in number. Farmers should be induced to raise more cattle. Farms could thus be made to produce their full capacity of grain, and put cattle on the market besides."

CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Prices Tend Upward on Indications of Overselling.

Chicago, May 21.—Evidence developed today that the wheat market had been over-sold. Accordingly, prices tended upward, especially as cable quotations showed power to remain stable, despite declines on this side of the Atlantic. The fact that receipts of red wheat here were light helped also to attract attention to possibilities on the bull side, and so did reports of cash sales. Moreover, there was word of a big falling off in the wheat yield of India. Opening figures ranged from ⅛c lower to ⅛c advance. July started at $1.07¼ to $1.07½, a gain of ⅛c to ⅜c and rose to $1.07¾@1.07⅞.

Illinois reports that half the wheat standing was turning out to be cheat caused prices to harden still more. The close was firm with July 1⅛@1⅛c net higher at $1.08⅛@1.08⅜.

Offerings dried up in the corn crowd. Shorts scrambled to cover, and in their eagerness hoisted the market against themselves. July opened ⅛c to ¼c off at 73⅛@73⅝c to 73⅝c, and climbed to 74⅛@74⅜c.

A further advance ensued owing to predictions of unsettled weather. The close was firm at 74⅝c for July, a gain of 1c net.

There was right and left purchasing of oats when that cereal made a dip at the outset. In consequence, the early loss was more than overcome. Buyers took their cue from the action of one of the largest houses in the trade. July started unchanged to ⅝c down at 47¾c to 47⅞c and rallied to 48⅛@48⅛c.

Provisions worked higher all around. Packers led the advance. Initial sales varied from 2½c to 22½c up with September delivery $18.20 to $18.25 for pork, $10.70 to $10.72½ for lard and $10.27½ to $10.32½ for ribs.

STOCKS ARE IRREGULAR

Dealings Unusually Light and Board Room Sentiment Is Confused.

Break in Canadian Pacific Ascribed to Liquidation in Berlin.

New York, May 21.—An opening break of 2 points in Canadian Pacific followed by a further decline to 3½ points was the notable feature at the opening of today's stock market. Reading soon declined a point and weakness was shown by Lehigh Valley, Union Pacific, St. Paul and other active stocks. United States Rubber advanced over a point.

The leaders recovered from early weakness. Rubber, Tennessee Copper and National Lead were materially higher with declines in General Electric, Westinghouse and American Car & Foundry.

Dullness and irregularity were the main characteristics of today's early stock market, with some hardening of prices later. Dealings were unusually light and without significance. Board room sentiment was confused. Early weakness in Canadian Pacific followed another break in that stock abroad, due, it was believed, to liquidation in Berlin. The movement in the standard shares was exceedingly narrow. Another fractional advance in copper metal appeared to exercise no influence.

Bonds were steady.

The market closed steady. Rubber dropped sharply on announcement of the proposed 20 per cent stock dividend and retirement of the second preferred but soon made partial recovery. Reading was again weak in the late trading. Smelting was strong.

COPPER STOCKS SLIGHTLY HIGHER

The copper stock market today was not active and the changes in the values amounted to little. Most of the changes were hardly worth mentioning. Amalgamated and Calumet & Arizona gained somewhat and Cliff closed a little lower. Copper was higher at Boston and New York, selling for 16¾c, but the stocks did not respond readily to this influence. Copper on the London market closed 1s 3d higher. The New York stock exchange was dull and shares were apathetic.

VOTE TO STRIKE IF NECESSARY

Of 200 Street Car Men 135 Favor Walkout.

The postcard vote, taken among the employes of the Duluth Street Railway company, has resulted in 135 answers up to noon today, all of the answers, it is claimed, being favorable to a strike if it is necessary.

There are said to be some 200 men in the employ of the company as conductors and motormen. The cards were passed out at the car barns Sunday evening, and in every instance the card when mailed in, is said to have read favorably for a strike unless the company increases wages and grants other concessions.

On some of the cards the writers state that they would rather settle the differences without loss of time on their part.

Street car conductors have evidently been warned to talk as little of the matter as possible, for several of them were approached today and they refused to discuss the subject. Yesterday they seemed ready and willing to state their position, but today they would say nothing one way or another.

It is thought that the entire vote will be in the hands of S. S. McDonald, organizer for the American Federation of Labor, by noon tomorrow. He is handling the affair for the men and the postal cards are mailed to him. Time will then be given the company to get together with a committee from the common council. If this meeting does not take place and the company shows no disposition to meet the men half way, they will walk out, probably at noon Saturday, it is stated by the men behind the movement.

The company has not yet replied to the council's request for a conference.

NEEDED IN SMALL CITIES

"Any town of 5,000 people or more needs playgrounds," said Dr. Henry H. Curtis today, after looking over conditions in Duluth.

"It is a mistaken idea that only large cities need them. You might put a playground down in the center of an open tract of country, and the supervised playground would be filled, while the rest of the open tract would have nobody on it. In England and Germany playgrounds are more numerous in the country than in the cities, and the playgrounds will go far toward solving the social problems of rural communities."

Dr. Curtis, after looking over the playgrounds of Duluth, is of the opinion that the work of providing the proper kind of public playgrounds for the children of the city has hardly begun as yet.

"We saw several sites today that would make very good playgrounds," said the doctor, "but as yet they are little more than vacant lots. The people

GLEANED ALONG THE POLICE RUN

Things at headquarters are so slow that it's more than hard to keep from spinning fantastical yards of "copy" about nothing, or almost nothing.

As the old policeman was remarking this morning there hasn't been a classy hold-up, or robbery, or burglary, or anything else for a "dog's age." The nearest approach to a yarn petered out the other day when the digging of the chain gang between the buildings at 334 and 336 Lake avenue south failed to reveal even a trace of the skeleton of Nicholas Simi, whom rumor said, was foully murdered thirteen years ago and his body hastily laid away there, under three feet of dirt.

A fair opportunity for a vivid imagination offered itself yesterday afternoon, but being held down to facts as well as being so unfortunate as not to be of an inventive turn of mind, it is impossible to make such use of it.

The facts in the case are that an unknown colored man made a strong "bluff" at severing his connection with this mortal coil by means of a real revolver loaded with real cartridges; that he actually did fire a couple of shots, supposedly at himself; that he was such a "punk" marksman that he couldn't hit even himself, and that he ingloriously took to his heels when a blue-coated cop huve into sight, not bearing as much as his name behind him so that he might properly be ushered into a feeble illmelight from the lamp of fame.

The layout offers a chance to the theorist or the amateur sleuth, or a writer with a bent for lurid fiction. He might have had one or both of the bullets bounce off the colored man's skull; he might have woven a tale of a disappointed lover, spurned by some dusky maiden; he might have built up a fabric of a dozen different delusions besetting the alleged would-be suicide, or if he didn't care about facts he might have clothed him in garments of the Orient, with all its possibilities of the mysterious, the uncanny and the unknown. Nobody appears to know his identity, so the writer might have rigged it out to suit himself without hurting anybody in particular.

The police themselves are wondering how to account for the prevailing calm on the criminal sea. They are not quite so egotistical as to puff out their chests and take all the credit to themselves. While they often hear that the city has the best police force of its size in the world, they realize that a lot of things might happen which are entirely beyond their control in any manner.

Yet the actual situation is that the stillness persists and nothing seems to break it. But there is also a feeling that it may just be the lull before the storm, and instead of sitting back with a satisfied air most of the force is even more alert, on tip-toes, figuratively speaking, for if anything should break loose they want to be "on the job."

Every man in the grist this morning, with one exception, got a suspended sentence. Most of them had been so unfortunate as to fall into the hands of policemen after imbibing more of the joy stuff than they could handle.

The exception was William Franks, who was charged with driving across a sidewalk. He pleaded guilty and paid a fine of $5 and costs. The others didn't have enough cash altogether to pay that big a fine if their entire visible wealth had been tossed into a common pot.

Among those who were given their liberty was August Klar. Klar was in some time ago on a charge of stealing a pair of shoes. He declared that he had stolen in order to get money with which to buy medicine for a sick child. At that time the court gave him the price of the prescription, after he had found his story to be substantially true, along with a suspended sentence.

At that time the court asked Klar if he had ever used liquor. He admitted that he had become intoxicated once, but offered the excuse that it didn't cost him anything, a willing friend having supplied the "dough" for both of them.

Joe Misocki pleaded guilty to obstructing the street by having his house in the public highway near Fifth avenue east and Ninth street. He promised to remove it as quickly as possible and was allowed to go.

Patrolman Riedel picked up a small, flaxen-haired girl about 3 years old near Second avenue west and Superior street yesterday afternoon. He coaxed her to the station by buying her a sack of peanuts. There she remained, standing on a chair in front of a window, or sitting on the sill, until her mother claimed her a couple of hours later. In the meantime Jailer Louis Johnson removed the stains from her hands and face and combed her hair. But not until her mother come for her did she let a sound escape her. And then the only sign of her feelings was two big tears which rolled down her cheeks.

C. B. Brooks was given a straight sentence of sixty days in the county jail yesterday afternoon after he had been convicted of keeping a house of ill fame in the West end. Witnesses said that he and his wife, who is now serving fifteen days for drunkenness, unlawfully relieved one of their number of a $5 bill in their place several nights ago. His previous record was also against him.

The body of Louis Nygren, 65 years old, who was killed by a railroad train at Aurora, was brought to the undertaking rooms of C. J. Stewart yesterday afternoon. The funeral took place this afternoon at the undertaking rooms, with interment at London Road cemetery.

Work has been started on the new fire hall at Seventh avenue east and Ninth street. Operations were held up for some time after the letting of the contract because of a shortage of cash in the permanent improvement fund.

James Powers, the colored man who was arrested yesterday morning on a charge of trespassing on the premises of Herbert Blackwell, was given a suspended sentence in police court yesterday afternoon. He pleaded guilty to the charge.

The case against Morris Rachlin, who was arrested on a charge of assault preferred by his wife, was dismissed in police court yesterday afternoon. Prosecutor Mason Forbes acted as peacemaker and they agreed to settle their differences out of court.

Leon Sandusky, arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct, was found guilty in police court yesterday afternoon. Mike Steffin claimed that he threatened to carve him with a knife. He paid a fine of $5 and costs.

How could it possibly happen? They say that three West end barbers went out fishing last Sunday, and not only came back without fish, but with all the "bait" which they had taken along with them. Their friends do not know how to account for the alleged phenomenon.

Do not come into the station looking for lodging when under the influence of liquids stronger than coffee. Five different men learned that last night when all of them were booked up on charges of drunkenness. But luck was with them and they were among the crowd which drew suspended sentences this morning.

DR. JACKOLA LEFT LITTLE

Judge S. W. Gilpin of the probate court will allow the claim of $600 which has been brought against the estate of the late Dr. John Jackola by St. Luke's hospital.

The hospital association claims that the doctor had acted as banker for a number of his patients, who were of Finnish extraction. In cases where patients were attended at the hospital, the association claims that there was an express agreement whereby the doctor was to receive and pay all bills incurred by his patients at the hospital. The hospital also puts in a claim for money alleged to have been owed by the late doctor for the use of the operating rooms.

The hearing on claims against the Jackola estate occupied the attention of the court most of yesterday afternoon. Besides the $600 bill of St. Luke's hospital, twenty or thirty other claims were presented and allowed by the court. In all, the claims will total about $2,000. John Saari as administrator of the Jackola estate opposed the payment of the hospital claim, asserting that the late physician had only acted as a collector for the hospital and that he did not stand sponsor for the debts incurred at the hospital by his clients.

After the debts have been deducted the estate will dwindle down to about $1,000 which will be sent to a mother residing in Finland. At one time, Dr. Jackola was rated as being quite well-to-do, but in the settlement of his estate, it has appeared that he was in hard circumstances during the last year or so of his life. He borrowed money on a number of notes which have since been paid out of the money of the estate.

Dr. Jackola was one of the most prominent citizens of Finnish birth, in Duluth. Not only was he versed in medicine and allied topics but he also had pronounced literary inclinations.

Dr. Jackola mysteriously disappeared last fall and up to the time that his body was found near Woodland there was much speculation, as to what became of him. It is generally supposed that the doctor came to his death by his own hand and that he was suffering from a severe mental breakdown at the time of the suicide. He died about seven months ago.

Judge Gilpin yesterday also heard claims against the estate of William Tackaberry, which involve a piece of property over which there has been litigation since 1904. The property is located opposite Fitger's brewery and was claimed by William Tackaberry by right of adverse possession. There have been five trials of the case and a sixth has been ordered by the supreme court. Both principals involved in the dispute over ownership have died, the judge and court stenographer at the first trial have dropped off, and the case has not yet been decided.

Clinton Skinner, a young man of Barron, Wis., who was found to be suffering from an attack of insanity was yesterday committed to the hospital for the insane at Fergus Falls by Judge Gilpin. The court also committed Christina Anderson, a resident of the Glen, to the hospital for treatment. It is claimed that she has been acting strangely for several days past and has refused to eat.

BIG MEETING OF UNION MEN

Many celebrities in labor unions will be in attendance at the mass meeting to be held this evening at Moose hall, 224 West First street.

Daniel Harris, president of the New York State Federation of Labor, with headquarters in New York City; E. G. Hall, president of the Minnesota State Federation of Labor; Charles M. Fieder, representing the barbers' union; Frank Kennedy of Chicago, representing the plumbers; John Walquist of the executive board of the Brotherhood of Carpenters; Thomas Bayliss, representing the painters and decorators, and others to arrive in the city from Minneapolis at an early hour this evening will attend.

The meeting is one of the series being held in connection with the Union Labor Forward Movement. It will be one of the largest meetings of the movement. The committees have been working some weeks on arrangements for it.

All of the outside men mentioned have been at Minneapolis and St. Paul working with the organizations of those cities. The labor revival just over in the Twin Cities is said to have been a great success. William E. McEwen, a local man always prominent in labor matters, will also speak this evening.

Frank Kennedy of the plumbers and steamfitters held a meeting with the local men this afternoon at the Kalamazoo hall.

Organizers in the different trades are expected to arrive today and several meetings will be held among the members of the different unions during the remainder of the week.

POINTS OUT DUTY OF EDUCATED NEGROES.

Kansas City, Mo., May 21.—"It is peculiarly obligatory upon all educated negroes to save the less fortunate of the race from dirt, disease and death," said Dr C. V. Roman, a delegate to the African Methodist Episcopal conference here.

Rev. R. D. Stimson, principal of the Atlanta, Ga., normal school, called attention to the necessity of negroes' learning manual labor, or "honest work" as he characterized it.

Features of the Neal Institute Which Should Appeal to Busy Men.
If desired, a man may go to the Neal Institute, stay three days, during which time he will be cured of the drink habit completely and perfectly, and return to his business or home and no one except the physician in charge will know that he has been there.
During his stay all his meals will be served in his room and he need not venture outside of it unless he so desires. He may come by night and go by night; in fact every possible effort has and will be made to protect patients from publicity.
Busy, prominent men in the public eye, who find that drinking interferes, or is likely to interfere with their business or social connections, should take advantage of the Neal Treatment and become cured. It takes such a short time — just 72 hours— that your absence will not be noted.
Write for free booklet giving full information and a copy of their contract. It will be mailed to you under a plain sealed envelope and everything will be strictly confidential. Both phones.
NEAL INSTITUTE,
Cor. Belknap and West Seventh St., Superior, Wis.

WHERE MEN GET CURED
Of Bad Heart, Stagnant Circulation, Varicose Veins and Other Diseases
There are thousands of men walking around who are a picture of disease. They are all fagged out and dragged down by it. The cause of it may be a bad stomach, kidney trouble, or some secret suffering. Others again, are the very picture of health, but they suffer nevertheless from imperfect circulation of which knotted veins are the result.
The veins are dark blue, because of the poisonous waste matter, while the arteries are bright red. When this vein-blood, heavy with poisons, again reaches the lungs, it exchanges its carbon-dioxide, a heavy and very poisonous gas, for pure oxygen and returns again through the arteries. When some part of the body is injured by sickness, excesses, kicks, blows or overwork, the veins are injured, and retard free circulation. The poison-loaded blood, instead of returning to the lungs for a fresh supply of life-giving oxygen, piles up against the injured part, poisoning the walls of the veins, swells and dilates them, hardens them and sometimes expands them to an enormous extent. In men the legs and other vital parts are usually attacked by this self-generated poison, which after first poisoning the veins, attacks the vital parts themselves, causing weakness and wasting. Walking becomes difficult, hard knots form which open easily and form "VARICOSE ULCERS," the patient is easily exhausted, becomes nervous and depressed, his memory weakens and all ambition leaves him. Later the poison will take an upward course, and, entering the pelvis, will poison the pelvic nerves. Stagnant circulation will result in nervous diseases, in diseases of the rectum, prostate and associated parts, and is not strictly local because nerves, blood vessels and lymphatics are all connected. What affects one affects all, just as a broken wire or short circuit in any part of a serially connected electric system has an effect on any and every part of that system. We found in former years that cutting and dissecting out these veins did not cure the patient, the deep-seated nerves that control the functions and nutritions of the organs still caused trouble and more pain than before. We therefore invented the "Dissolving Process," a method as superior to the old way of cutting and blood-letting as the modern electric light is superior to the tallow candle of bygone ages. We can explain the practical application of the dissolving process to any man if he will give us the necessary statements about his case, although we would rather examine and demonstrate to him than talk or write about it. The specialists who can guarantee to cure this and all other disease without cutting, without chloroform or any of the ordinary old-style hospital methods, will surely be wanted by any man who is suffering from it. That is what we can do, and guarantee to do! Consultation free from 9 a. m. to 8 p. m. Sundays 10 a. m. to 1 p. m.

LET A WANT AD NEGOTIATE A TRADE FOR YOU---OF SOMETHING YOU DON'T NEED FOR SOMETHING YOU DO

WHEN a manufacturer backs up his goods with thousands of dollars spent in advertising, it's a certainty that his goods are right, and he knows they are right. Otherwise his investment in publicity would hasten his downfall. Inferior goods are never advertised—they cannot stand it. Dealers and consumers both profit most when they sell and buy advertised goods.
